THERE'S LOTS OF CANDIDATES

OVER IN OAKLAND COUNTY AS WELL AS WAYNE.

Register of Deeds Office Seems to Have Most Attractions.

The Oakland county Republican convention for the purpose of nominating candidates for county offices will be held at the court house at Pontiac, September 2. There have been few, if any, times in the history of the county when there have been so many candidates for nominations at the hands of the Republicans as there are this year. The number has increased during the past month and there are still more candidates for the nomination of register of deeds than for any other position and there are so many for this position that the possibility of a dead lock is not improbable.

George Greer and R. D. Belt are the candidates for the nomination of sheriff. Two years ago they were candidates and Mr. Belt received the nomination. He was defeated by Sheriff Brewster. Mr. Greer is credited with having the greater strength this year.

Judson L. Sibley, supervisor of Commerce, and Theodore Collier of Pontiac township would like the nomination for county treasurer. Mr. Collier has had a hankering for a political position before but was unsuccessful in the convention.

County Clerk George A. Brown stands alone as the candidate for renomination to that position.

George F. Brondige, deputy register of deeds, C. H. Glaspe of Oxford, who was assistant secretary to the republican county committee two years ago; Supervisor Frank Tanner of Novi; Supervisor Frank Vowles of Lyon; Alderman Peter Betzing of Pontiac and J. F. Rundle of Birmingham are the candidates for the position of register of deeds.

Prosecutor Kleber P. Rockwell is a candidate for renomination to the position of prosecuting attorney. Frank L. Covert is also out for the nomination.

Judson Fredenburgh and Charles J. Ostrander, circuit court commissioners, have each held that position one term and are entitled to the renomination. Chauncey Brace will probably be one of the candidates for coroner, a position he has held for several years. Dr. C. J. Sutherland of Clarkston was elected a coroner two years ago but failed to qualify. Mr. Brace is therefore the county's only coroner. F. A. Slater will be a candidate for renomination as county surveyor.

And there are still more to be heard from.

Sudden Death of Mrs. VanAken.

Mrs. A. B. VanAken, wife of the Standard Oil company's representative here, died very suddenly late Tuesday afternoon of heart failure, caused by fatty degeneration. She had been in her usual health until three o'clock, when she was taken very ill. A physician was summoned and every effort made for her relief but death came in three hours after the attack commenced.

Besides the husband three young children are thus suddenly bereft of a mother's love and care. Much sympathy is felt for the family.

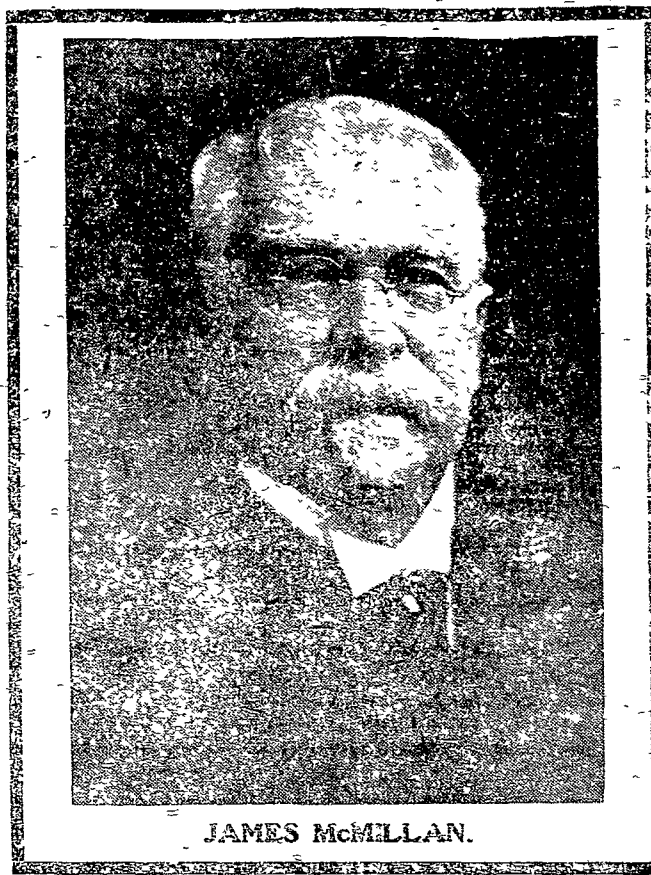

Mrs. VanAken was about 32 years of age and is spoken of by those who knew her in the highest terms.

The funeral services were held at Lapham's Corners yesterday afternoon at three o'clock, conducted by Rev. W. H. Shannon of Wayne.

Legislative Committee.

Speaker John J. Carton has appointed a committee of seven to represent the Michigan House of Representatives at the funeral of Senator McMillan. The members named are Representatives Wade of Allegan, Martindale and Neal of Wayne, Lowrey of Montcalm; Van Zoeren of Kent, Weter of Macomb and Byrns of Marquette. Speaker Carton will accompany the committee, who are to meet at the Russell House at 12 noon today—Detroit Free Press.

COM'R. BOWERS AND PARTY WERE HERE FRIDAY.

Will Favor Appropriation to Further Improve Grounds.

United States Commissioner of Fish and Fisheries Geo. M. Bowers and Chief of Division of Fish Culture J. W. Titcomb of Washington accompanied by Superintendent H. D. Dean of Neosho, Mo., Geo. Scragle of Wytheville, Va., and D. O. Booth of Spearfish, S. D., were here last Friday afternoon to inspect Uncle Sam's hatchery. They expressed themselves as highly pleased with appearances at the Northville station—which really is the prettiest and best equipped station in the United States—and Mr. Titcomb took it upon himself to call all the employees together and personally compliment them upon their work and the condition of the grounds, hatchery, ponds and apparatus. Commissioner Bowers said he would indorse at once the recommendation of Supt. Clark for an amount of money sufficient to further develop the springs and to establish a large "wild" pond made of cement, to be used in place of the old wooden ponds recently removed.

At its next session congress will be asked to make a further appropriation to improve the government grounds on the Flats back of the hatchery, according to plans made by the government architect some years ago.

MEN WHO KNEW HIM

EULOGIZED SENATOR McMILLAN
AT DETROIT LAST NIGHT.

RESOLUTIONS ALSO PASSED BY THE ASSEMBLY.

WASHINGTON BOARD OF TRADE
ADOPTS TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 14.—In the great hall that owes its existence in part to his munificence, an audience of nearly 1,000 people gathered last night to reverse the memory of the late James McMillan.

Eulogies such as are accorded only to the world's great flowed from the lips of eloquent speakers as one citizen followed the other with words of praise and tribute. In the audience and on the platform were men who had known the senator for the many years of his distinguished career in the city.

Among those seated in the black chairs on the stage were: General R. A. Alger, Colonel Frank J. Hecker, General H. M. Duffield, ex-Governor J. T. Rich, W. F. Quinby, Judge Whelan, Judge Carpenter, J. E. Scripps, Rev. Ernest Van Dyke, Thomas Barlum, D. Augustus Straker, Rev. F. J. Van Antwerp, Rev. A. H. Barr, A. I. McLeod, F. A. Blades, W. C. Martindale, Homer Warren, W. H. McGregor, George H. Barbour, J. B. Corliss, Michael Brennan, Mayor Maybury, Rev. W. H. Clark, J. T. Keena, H. M. Campbell and D. M. Perry.

Mayor Maybury who acted as chairman, called upon Rev. W. H. Clark to invoke a blessing on the meeting.

Mr. Maybury then stated the purpose of the meeting and read letters from ex-Senator Palmer and Governor

Bliss, deploring the death of Senator McMillan.

"Senator McMillan was a very remarkable man in many ways," said General R. A. Alger. "He was quiet, a man of few words, but he could appreciate a business situation, and he could understand the needs of the nation. In the senate his counsel was sought more than that of perhaps any other man. He was given, not to words, but to thought and deeds. Let us join in heartfelt sympathy with the family and in remembrance of the good works he did while he was with us."

"We did not at first realize the void that his death would create," said General Henry M. Duffield. "But day after day comes some new thought of the way in which the influence of the senator manifested itself in our midst. This army in which our citizens have met to utter the words of eulogy prompted by the heart, would never have been erected but for his liberality and generosity. He was a pioneer, if not the pioneer, of the captains of industry. He was the first business man of Detroit to develop a great and growing business, and his fortune was made, not by saving, but by carrying out broadminded views and business methods."

Governor Rich's Tribute.
Ex-Governor John T. Rich, who was long and familiarly acquainted with Senator McMillan, accorded his memory a magnificent tribute.

"There was scarcely a man in the city who had so much to live for," he said. "He had wealth, position and a fine family, whose society he enjoyed. So great a change has come in so short a time. All his enterprises involved the employment of labor. The number of people drawing their living from his enterprises is such as few men have ever looked upon. He once had an idea of having his employees attend his funeral in a body. But there are not less than 20,000 of them. He was a most comfortable man to do business with. He had time for recreation and time for his family. It will be a long day before Michigan can find a man who will fill the position as captain of industry, a statesman and father."

Many others spoke in a like strain, after which Dexter M. Ferry offered the resolutions which had been prepared and read to the assembly by Mayor Maybury, amid profound silence. Their adoption was moved by General Alger and seconded by Attorney Brennan, the assembly concurring with unanimity. After their adoption the gathering was dismissed with a benediction from Francis A. Blades.

The train bearing the remains of Senator McMillan arrived here this morning. The body is inclosed in a cedar casket covered with broadcloth and with silver handles.

State Senate Committee.

Lieutenant-Governor Robinson has appointed State Senators Holmes, Atwood, Doherty and Charles Smith as a committee from the senate to attend the funeral, which will take place Friday afternoon, the public service being held at the residence, which will be simply decorated with flowers for the occasion.

The commissioners of the District of Columbia, Hon. H. B. MacFarland, Colonel John Biddle, U. S. A., also Daniel H. Burnham of Chicago and Charles F. McKim of New York, members of the senate park commission, will attend the funeral.

The active pallbearers will be: Truman H. Newberry, Clarence Carpenter, Frederick W. Whitte, George M. Black, Howard G. Vered, Cameron Currie, Ellwood T. Hance and W. Howie Murr.

Washington, Aug. 14.—The board of directors of the Washington board of trade Wednesday held a special meeting to take appropriate action on the death of Senator McMillan. The board adopted a tribute of respect eulogizing his late senatorial work as chairman of the senate committee on the District of Columbia. It concluded as follows: "No amount of labor, however, no bronze or marble testimony, no utterances of a community bereaved, can do full justice to the noble character of James McMillan."

A Medicine for Old People.

Rev. Geo. Gay, Greenwich, Conn., is past 83 years of age, yet he says: "I am enjoying excellent health for a man of my age, due entirely to the rejuvenating influence of Dr. Miles' Nervine. It brings sleep and rest when nothing else will, and gives strength and vitality even to one of my old age."

"I am an old soldier," writes Mr. Geo. Watson, of Newton, Ia., "and I have been a great sufferer from nervousness, vertigo and spinal trouble. Have spent considerable money for medicine and doctors, but with little benefit. I was so bad my mind showed signs of weakness. I began taking Dr. Miles' Nervine, and I know it saved my life."

Dr. Miles' Nervine

Saved me from the insane asylum. Mrs. A. M. Heifner, of Jerico Springs, Mo., writes: "I was so nervous that I could scarcely control myself, could not sleep nor rest, would even forget the names of my own children at times. I commenced using Dr. Miles' Nervine and it helped me from the first, and now I am perfectly well."

The much-hated and sometimes maligned English sparrow is gradually making its way all through the western part of the country. HE IS DEAD

Senator James McMillan Succumbs to Heart Failure.

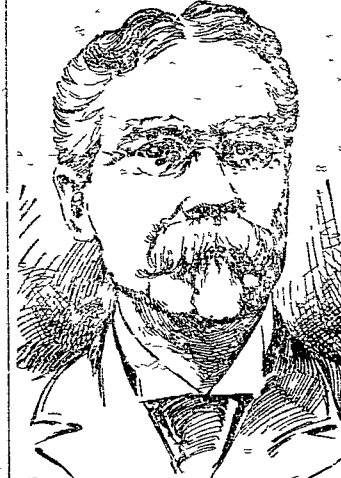

AT HIS SUMMER HOME

started in Life a Poor Boy—Organized Michigan Car Company—President of a Railroad—Been in the Senate Since 1888.

Manchester, Mass., Aug. 11.—Senator James McMillan of Michigan died suddenly Sunday morning at Eagle Head, his country home on the shore of the Atlantic ocean, near this city.

No event could have been more unexpected than the death of Senator McMillan. Saturday he was in his usual robust health. In the morning he enjoyed a brisk game of golf and later had a drive along the beautiful country roads near Eagle Head with some guests.

In the afternoon, while sitting on the veranda overlooking the ocean, with the spray from the pounding breakers lashing almost to his feet, he complained of feeling faint. But the faintness passed, and later he resumed his place on the ocean side of the house, where a stiff breeze from the sea rolled giant waves against the bold, rocky promontory on which Eagle Head stands, making a sight well worth watching.

THE HONORABLE JAMES McMILLAN

By evening he had entirely recovered his good spirits and spent several happy hours in the society of Mrs. McMillan, Miss McMillan and his son.

At about 11 p. m. he retired, apparently as well as he had been in years, and with every prospect of passing a comfortable and restful night.

The senator had generally been a good, sound sleeper, and consequently when he was taken suddenly ill at mid night there was considerable alarm at no time, however, was his condition considered dangerous, although a cough, which had been first noticed in the evening, suddenly became more severe and the usual ministrations for congestion of the lungs were administered by the physician in attendance.

At 4 o'clock in the morning, when the senator for some time had appeared to be resting easier he all at once began sinking rapidly, and in two or three minutes, perhaps in less time, had ceased to breathe.

His heart, influenced by the congestion of the lungs, had suddenly ceased to perform its functions, and death came almost before anyone at the bedside realized the danger.

The relatives in Detroit have been notified, and the arrangements for the funeral will not be made until the senator's son, William C. McMillan, arrives. It is understood, however, that the interment will be in Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 11.—A dispatch was received here Sunday announcing the death of Senator James McMillan at 4 o'clock in the morning, at his summer home at Manchester-by-the-Sea, Mass. Death was the result of heart failure, following congestion, after an illness of a very few hours. The news came as a great shock to his host of friends and admirers, as when he senator left Washington, shortly after the adjournment of congress, he appeared to be in good health and looked forward with much satisfaction to a quiet and restful summer. For some years Senator McMillan has made his summer home at Manchester-by-the-Sea, having erected a very fine cottage at that place. While no information on that point has been received, the expectation is that his remains will be brought here and be deposited in the family vault at Elmwood cemetery.

Hon. James McMillan was born in Hamilton, Ont., May 13 1838, and came to Detroit at the age of sixteen, clerking in a hardware store for two years and then becoming purchasing agent for the Detroit & Milwaukee railroad. In 1864, with John S. Newberry and others, he organized the Michigan Car company, which in ten years became one of the largest car manufacturing concerns in the United States, and led to the formation of the Detroit Car Wheel company and the Baugh Steam Forge company and other large enterprises. In 1881 he organized, with others, the Detroit, Mackinaw & Marquette railway and became its president. He was interested in numerous banks and trust companies and director in several. He was the largest stockholder and president of the Detroit & Cleveland Steam Navigation company and the new Detroit & Buffalo line. In 1886 he jointly with John S. Newberry, gave $200,000 for the establishment of a free hospital in Detroit.

Great, however, as has been his success in the financial world, it has been even more marked in political circles. He was first elected chairman of the Republican state central committee, and in 1886 was elected United States senator, being re-elected in 1894 and in 1900. Without assuming the dictatorial attitude that makes political bosses so offensive, he rapidly and steadily gathered the reins of state affairs in velvet gloves which, however, surely hid the mailed hand of the master. For many years his influence has been potent in Michigan legislation and patronage, and his passing cannot but create consternation in the ranks of those who owe their positions and prestige to the good graces of Senator McMillan.

On the other hand, the anti-McMillan action feel, as they see the scepter fall from his lifeless hand, the kindling of hopes long abandoned, and it is not unlikely that before the bier of the chieftain is hidden from sight the skirmish lines of enemies and those of his retainers will be clashing a premonition of the great battle that will now rage around Governor Bliss, whose duty it will be to fill the vacancy for the next five years.

In the capacity of senator, congress too, has realized his great value, and his life in the capital city has been a busy one.

He was chairman of the committee of the District of Columbia in that body and was also a member of the committees on appropriations, commerce, naval affairs, relations with Cuba, coast and insular survey and corporations organized in the District of Columbia. As chairman of the district committee, Senator McMillan was identified with district affairs and became very well known to the citizens of Washington, by whom he was highly regarded. He took a lively interest in the welfare of the district and was one of the foremost advocates in the efforts that are being made for the improvement of the city.

Senator McMillan was united in marriage in 1860 to Miss Mary Wetmore. Four children were born to them—James H. W. C. Frank and a daughter. All save James H. survive him. The latter died some months since in Arizona, whether he had gone in search of health.

Senator McMillan's family was prominent in social circles in both Washington and Detroit. In the capital he was a member of the Metropolitan and Cherry Chase clubs.

If the family desire it a congressional committee from both houses of congress will be appointed to accompany the remains to their last resting place. The designations will be made by Senator Frye the president pro tem of the senate who now is in Maine and by Speaker Henderson.

Saginaw, Mich., Aug. 11.—Governor Bliss was greatly shocked over the intelligence of the death of Senator McMillan and expressed the regret which he knew would be generally shared over the loss sustained by the state and nation. He absolutely declined to be interviewed regarding the matter of a successor to Senator McMillan until after the funeral, but intimated that the vacancy would undoubtedly be left to the state legislature to fill in the regular way, as that body convenes in January next under some unexpected contingency should render a temporary appointment advisable. He will necessarily be guided by circumstances which may arise.

Proclamation by Governor Bliss.
Lansing, Mich., Aug. 10, 1902.
Hon. James McMillan, United States senator from Michigan, died Sunday Aug. 10, 1902, in his summer home at Manchester-by-the-Sea, Mass. Death came suddenly and very unexpectedly, with one stroke ending the active and highly honorable career of one of the most eminent of Michigan's many illustrious public men. But slightly past his sixty-fourth birthday, in the maturity of a vigorous life, he had the promise of many years of useful service and his untimely demise will be generally regretted. A self-made man, resolutely he climbed the ladder of success in both business and public life, at all times clear of head and keen of judgment, a man to be depended upon, a true friend, honest of purpose and fair in his dealings with all men. In his home relations, where American manhood is at its best, he was a loving husband and a devoted father. Thrice elected to represent his commonwealth in the United States senate, by a very force of character he became a leader in that august body, applying to the solution of the problems of legislation the sharpened judgment of a business man, and bringing to the execution of tasks intrusted to him executive ability of a high order. His death is a distinct loss to the nation as well as to the state.

As a mark of public respect, until after the funeral, the flags on the capitol and at all other state buildings will be displayed at half-staff. During the funeral services all state departments will be closed and as far as circumstances will admit the justices of the supreme court, state officers and heads of departments are requested to attend the obsequies.

(Signed) A. T. BLISS, Governor.

EXPLOSION AT ADRIAN.

Young Man Killed and Five Other Persons Injured.

Adrian, Mich., Aug. 11.—At 8 45 Saturday morning the boiler at the Excelsior laundry, 50 West Maumee street, exploded, and young James Oram, a son of the proprietor, was instantly killed. Carl Hall, the engineer, so badly hurt that he will die, and five others were seriously injured.

The building, a two-story frame structure, is practically a complete wreck. The boiler was in the rear portion and had been used for some time by Mr. Oram. The front was used for the laundry machinery and the office. The explosion tore the back end of the building to pieces. The whole interior was gutted, the machinery twisted and broken.

The dead: James Oram, blown to pieces. The injured: Carl Hall, engineer, leg broken in three places, face and body scalded; unconscious and will die. Mrs. Mary Metamore, laundress, right leg broken, ankle crushed, cut about head and face, spine hurt. Ben Bauehey, badly burned and cut about the face and head. Anna Bauehey, laundress slightly cut. William Oram, cut about head and body. Daisy Horner, laundress, arm dislocated by falling timber. Otto Krueger, policeman, struck on head and back by bricks.

A MEMORIAL MEETING.

Prominent Men Will Eulogize the Dead Senator McMillan.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 13.—The city council, in special session Tuesday morning, decided to hold a public memorial meeting in Light Guard armory tonight, where prominent men will eulogize on the dead Senator McMillan.

Invitations have been sent out to a number of citizens who have been associated with the senator in business or in social life, to attend the meeting and say a few words, and it is altogether probable that such men as T. W. Palmer, D. M. Ferry, Colonel E. J. Hecker, George H. Baibour, Bishop Foley and Rev. A. H. Barr, among others, will address the meeting.

Citizens of all walks of life have been invited to act as vice-presidents and take their seats on the platform. Advice from Manchester, Mass., announces that the McMillan funeral party will leave Manchester at 11 o'clock today, and Boston at 2 o'clock. It will arrive in Detroit at 7 45 on Thursday morning. President Lodge has sent his private car, and the funeral car of the Boston & Maine road will also be used. On its arrival the body will be taken directly to the home on Jefferson avenue, and the house will be open to all friends during the afternoon.

The funeral will be public and will take place at the home, 515 Jefferson avenue, at 2 30 p. m. Friday, with Rev. Alfred H. Barr, pastor of the Jefferson Avenue Presbyterian church, officiating. The burial will be at Elmwood cemetery.

A committee of United States senators will attend the funeral. The committee named for this occasion is as follows: Senators Allison, Bacon, Burrows, Cockrell, Cullom, Fairbanks, Foraker, Gallinger, Hale, Hanna, Keam, Lodge, Martin, Mason, McComas, Pritchard, Wetmore.

The honorary pallbearers will be selected exclusively from among the citizens of Detroit, as the time is too short to allow of friends from the state being reached. The family will appreciate the attendance of the congressional council of the city of Detroit, the board of auditors of the country and other officials, the members of the state legislature and the senator's friends throughout the state, at the funeral services to be held at 515 Jefferson avenue at 2 30 o'clock on Friday afternoon, Aug. 15.

House Filled With Stolen Goods.

St. Joseph, Mich., Aug. 13.—In the arrest of Jacob Nagel at his home here Sunday night, Sheriff Collins is confident that he has the ringleader of a gang that has been operating for a long time in this section of the state. Over $2,000 worth of property that has already been identified by persons from whom it was stolen was found in Nagel's house. It included 500 cans of fruit stolen from the Hotel Benton, 30 pairs of trousers, 26 suits of underwear, expensive linens, rugs, robes, harnesses and many other articles.

Big Real Estate Deal.

Marquette, Mich., Aug. 13.—The Cleveland Chiffs Iron company has purchased from the Michigan Iron & Land Co. a tract of about 18,000 acres long northwest of here, in Marquette county, for $55,000. In Alger county it has purchased from Wellington Burt of Saginaw 6,000 acres for $27,000. These are only two of a large number of similar deals closed by the Cleveland Chiffs company within the past few months, and it is rumored that the company is planning important extensions of its railroad system from the copper country to the Soo.

Transport Lawton Arrives.

San Francisco, Aug. 13.—The United States transport Lawton has arrived here from Manila. She brings a few casuals, a detachment of third cavalry and a battalion of the Sixteenth Infantry. This battalion completes this regiment, the first portion of which returned last month, passing through here on their way to the new stations in Georgia and New York. The detachment has been ordered to Fort McPherson, Georgia.

Postoffice Robbers Secured $2,000.

Highland Falls, N. Y., Aug. 13.—The postoffice here was entered by burglars Monday night. The large safe was blown open with dynamite and stamps to the value of $1,500 and $500 in currency, three diamond rings, a valuable bracelet and all the records of the office were stolen. There is no clue to the robbers.

Civil War Battle Flags.

Mr. P. D. Harrison of Manchester, N. H. is compiling a history of battle flags of this country, especially of those carried in what he incidentally calls "The Brothers' Quarrel," in 1861-5. He finds that the number of flags now in the custody of Southern states is much less than those preserved by the Northern Commonwealths, but he is desirous of making a complete list of them all.

A Physician Healed.

Dr. Geo. Twing, a practicing physician of Smith's Grove, Ky., for over thirty years writes his personal experience with Fayer's Kidney Cure: "For years I had been greatly bothered with kidney and bladder trouble and enlarged prostate gland. I used everything known to the profession, without relief until I commenced to use Fayer's Kidney Cure. After taking three bottles I was entirely relieved and cured. I prescribe it now daily in my practice and heartily recommend its use to all physicians for such troubles. I have prescribed it in hundreds of cases with perfect success." Sold by Murdock Bros.

May Not See Their Brides.

Among certain African tribes husbands are not permitted to look upon their wives. They live in huts apart, and only during the night are they allowed to visit their brides. This custom, which prevails in the neighborhood of Timbuctoo, is equalled in singularity by that in vogue at Futa, where wives never permit their husbands to see them unveiled until three years has elapsed since their marriage.

Earthquakes Widely Felt.

While volcanic eruptions are usually restricted in area, earth movements are said to be more widely felt in the great earthquakes.

A Necessary Precaution.

Don't neglect a cold. It is worse than influenza. It is dangerous. By using One Minute Cough Cure you can cure it at once. Allays inflammation, clears the head, soothes and strengthens the mucous membranes. Cures coughs, croup, throat and lung troubles. Absolutely safe. Acts immediately. Children like it. Murdock Bros.

Clergyman Defends Gambling.

The Austral Light a Roman Catholic magazine of Australia, recently published an elaborate defense of gambling written by a Jesuit priest under instructions from Cardinal Moran, the head of the church in Australia. The article expressly affirms that gambling in itself is right, even when gain (not entertainment) is the direct aim of the gambler, and that it is wrong only when carried to excess.—New York Tribune.

Cholera, infantum, dysentery, diarrhea. Dr. Fayer's Extract of Wild Strawberry never fails to conquer them.

Christians Were Scarce.

Rev. Dr. Evans, an Episcopal clergyman in Middletown, N. Y., when he began his rectorship some years ago was told by a discouraged Presbyterian divine that he did not believe there were 300 Christians in all Middletown. "Not so many, not so many," said Dr. Evans. "I've got in my church all there are, and they do not number three hundred yet."

Miss Florence Allan

THREE BEAUTIFUL WOMEN

Worn Out And Nervous Regained Their Health And Beauty By Taking Peruna.

Miss Florence Allan, a beautiful Chicago girl, writes the following to Dr. S. B. Hartman concerning his catarrhal tonic, Peruna:

"75 Walton Place, Chicago, Ill. As a tonic for a worn-out system, Peruna stands at the head in my estimation. Its effects are truly wonderful in rejuvenating the entire system. I keep it on hand all the time, and never have that 'tired feeling' as a few doses always make me feel like a different woman."—Florence Allan.

Thousands of women suffer from systemic catarrh. This is sure to produce such symptoms as cold feet and hands, sick headache, palpitation of the heart and heavy feelings in the stomach.

Then begins a series of experiments. They take medicine for sick headache. They take medicine for nervous prostration, for palpitation of the heart, for dyspepsia. None of these medicines do any good because they do not reach the cause of the complaint.

Peruna at once mitigates all these symptoms by removing the cause.

Systemic catarrh is the trouble. Systemic catarrh pervades the whole system, deranges every organ, weakens every function. No permanent cure can be expected until the systemic catarrh is removed.

This is exactly what Peruna will do.

Miss Cullen Was Exhausted From Over-Work.

Miss Rose Cullen, President of the Young Woman's Club, Butte, Montana, writes:

321 Galena street, Butte, Mont.

Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.

Gentlemen—"Peruna has many friends in Butte. I cannot say too much in praise of it. While finishing school I became very nervous and exhausted from over-study. I was weak and sick, and could neither eat, sleep nor enjoy life. A couple bottles of Peruna put new life in me. I find by having it in the house and taking a dose off and on it keeps me in fine health. A large number of my friends place Peruna at the head of all medicines."—Rose Cullen.

Peruna is especially adapted to protecting against and curing nervous diseases of run-down women, as the testimonial of Miss Cullen indicates.

Miss Blanche Myers, 3120 Penn street, Kansas City, Mo., has the following to say of Peruna:

"During each of the past four seasons I have caught a severe cold, when suddenly chilled after an evening party, and catarrh for several weeks would be the result. One bottle of Peruna cured me, and I shall not dread colds any more as I did."—Blanche Myers.

An excellent little treatise on "Health and Beauty," written especially for women, by Dr. Hartman, will be sent free to any address by The Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, Ohio.

State fair at Pontiac September 22 to 26.

Plymouth band excursion to Tashmoo park August 21.

Some stain and oil has recently improved the looks of the interior of the post-office.

A republican caucus will be held at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon to elect Senatorial and Judicial delegates.

The probabilities are that a U. S. senator to succeed the late James McMillan will not be elected until the next regular session convenes in January.

The flags at the U. S. fish hatchery and at the Record office have been displayed at half mast this week as a tribute of respect to the memory of Senator McMillan.

Receiver F. R. Beal says he has no doubt but what enough will be realized from the sale of the Globe factory to pay up all indebtedness and still have quite an amount of cash for the stockholders.

The State Tax commission has ordered all the supervisors in Wayne county to appear with their rolls before the commission in Detroit next Monday to show cause why they had not assessed electric railways in their towns as ordered by the commission.

A lively game of base ball was played Saturday afternoon at Pere Marquette park between Walled Lake and Northville, the latter winning by a score of 12 to 5. The most thrilling event of the game was the sensational double plays made by Messrs. Bert Leadbeater and Fred Burch.

The few rains so far in August leads to the conclusion that the recent rainbow sign was not so far out of the way after all.

The L. O. T. M. M. go to Belle Isle for a basket picnic Aug. 20, leaving via Northwestern at 8:30 a. m. General invitation extended to all Lady Macabees and friends.

Prof. I. B. Gilbert, formerly of the Northville schools, has now a fine position at Travers City. He conducts the Clinton county teachers' institute at St. Johns this week.

Quite a number from here will attend the meeting of the Salem Veterans Union which is to be held next week Thursday, August 21st, as noted in the Salem correspondence.

Before putting on summer cars the suburban electric lines should get their winter outfits in readiness. Some of these "hot August days" are like the chilly November days of by-gone years.

The Globe Furniture Co. property here will be sold at receiver's sale on August 27. There is some talk of a stock company being organized here to purchase one and continue to operate it.

The new corner entrance to the Park house lobby and offices instead of the old double doors, is a very noticeable improvement as well as a great convenience, and quite alters the appearance of that familiar hostelry.

The unqualified success of the Wayne county Woodmen's annual excursions so far in their history has been very largely due to the efficient hustling of the Northville members of the organization ably assisted by other camps.

The B. Y. P. U. and Gleaner class will serve supper consisting of roast beef, mashed potatoes, brown gravy, salads, cake and coffee, in the rink next Tuesday evening from 5:30 until all are served, and will be pleased to have a large patronage. Supper 15c.

There are still people in Northville cruel enough to throw out poison for dogs and cats, heedless of the suffering they may cause innocent dumb creatures or the possibility of destroying valuable hunting dogs whose loss would represent a good deal to the owners.

It has been currently reported that another "Jack the huggler" has been lurking in the dark corners around town and watching his chance to scare lone female pedestrians into spasms by insisting on fervently embracing them. He is quite likely to get hold of the wrong "woman" some evening.

A car full of happy Methodists went to Orchard Lake Wednesday the occasion being the annual Sunday-school picnic of that denomination here. The weather was not quite all that could have been desired all day, but happy childhood can always find pleasure for the seeking, and on the whole all had a very enjoyable time.

Lest You Forget.

L. O. T. M. M. are the proud possessors of a $225.00 set of new Robes which will add greatly to the impressiveness of their initiatory work.

Mrs. W. H. Yerkes was agreeably surprised last Saturday evening when seven or eight of her friends came in to take supper with her, bringing the supper with them. An enjoyable time resulted for hostess and guests.

The 22nd Michigan infantry is to hold its annual reunion at Owosso this year on Thursday, August 28th. The regiment, which is noted particularly for the large number of its members who endured the horrors of Libby and Andersonville prisons, was organized in Oakland county and many of its survivors are citizens of this vicinity.

The Wayne county M. W. A. have again done themselves proud and further enhanced their popularity as excursion makers by the extremely delightful time everybody enjoyed who was fortunate enough to go to "Bob Low" last Friday. The boat ride was unsurpassable, the island supremely beautiful and even the weather was all that could be desired. The accommodations and arrangements throughout were simply perfect. Over 2,000 people were on the big "Columbia" and there was no crowding at that. Everybody wants to go again.

At least one family in Northville knows by personal experience of the kindheartedness of the late Senator McMillan when he became interested in any trouble he thought worthy his sympathy and assistance. Through the influence of a friend of his family, Mr. McMillan's cooperation was secured on the case referred to, and although it required all his influence and persistence to obtain what he believed, when once his sympathies were enlisted, to be the right judgment of a seemingly hopeless situation, he succeeded. Those he aided were entirely unknown to him personally.

Rev. J. E. Ryerson of Fowlerville will occupy the pulpit next Sunday morning and evening. Morning subject, "The Present Day Conflicts of Religion;" evening, "Jesus Christ." Mr. Ryerson is an eloquent preacher and will be sure to please his congregation.

Baptist Church Notes.

(By the Pastor.)

Themes for next Sunday: Morning, "Eternity of Christ's Words;" evening, "The All-together Lovely."

The choir is preparing for a concert to be given in the near future. Keep this in mind and plan to attend.

Mrs. VanZile is to lead the BYBU and it is hoped that there will be a good attendance. The topic for the evening will be "The Life of Faith." Come prepared to give a bit of your experience in that life.

The summer is drawing to a close, therefore let's begin to shake ourselves and prepare for an active campaign this fall and winter. Victory has been ours in the year past, let us look forward and press forward hopefully, and in "His name" we shall surely overcome in the year that is before us. Let unity of purpose, soul-winning and soul culture, and the honor and glory of our King be our watchword and beacon light.

Cooking Made Easy.

The Wallace Mfg. Co. of Detroit are making a new baker oven and steam cooker that is ahead of any thing yet on the market. It is called the Hukker. It sets over a single burner and heats in two minutes. Think of it from one-quarter to one-sixth the time with less than one-half the average amount of gasoline. But we go further than this because after the "Hukker" is heated, the flame beneath the oven must be reduced, when starting to bake, to at least one-half its normal capacity. It does better work in less time and at a saving of 25 per cent in fuel.

One may be seen in use in the home of the publisher of this paper any day we are going to have pie for dinner or cake or supper.

What He Played Best.

PEOPLE WE KNOW

They are Northville People, and What They Say is of Local Interest.

When an incident like the following occurs right here at home, it is bound to carry weight with our readers. So many strange occurrences go the rounds of the press are published as facts, people become skeptical. On one subject skepticism is rapidly disappearing. This is due to the actual experiences of our citizens, and their public utterances regarding them. The doubter must doubt no more in the face of such evidence as this. The public statement of a reputable citizen living right here at home, one whom you can see every day, leaves no ground for the skeptic to stand on.

Mr. T. W. Wood, Painter and Paper Hanger, of 37 Center St., says: "My wife and I are thoroughly convinced of the curative powers of this popular remedy Doan's Kidney Pills for we used them some years ago for backache and other kidney troubles. They acted very effectively and promptly, relieving the backache and other annoyances. Doan's Kidney Pills are the best medicine we ever used and we are pleased to testify to their merits." Just such emphatic endorsement is plentiful in Northville. Call at Murdock Bros. drug store and ask them what their customers report.

For sale by all dealers; price 50 cents per box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no substitute.

Not Over-Wise.

There is an old allegorical picture of a girl scared at a grasshopper but on the act of heedlessly treading on a snake. This is paralleled by the man who spends a large sum of money building a cyclone cellar, but neglects to provide his family with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy as a safeguard against bowel complaints, whose victims outnumber those of the cyclone a hundred to one. This remedy is everywhere recognized as the most prompt and reliable medicine in use for these diseases. For sale by George C. Hueston.

The Earth and Mars.

Possibilities of communicating with the Planet Mars form a topic which presents a perennial interest for the play of popular imagination. In France, particularly, the people eagerly scan every detail which is offered on this head. An old lady left a large sum of money in trust, in Paris, to be awarded as a prize to the first scientist who should succeed in establishing what the French call inter-planetary communication.

Who Pays the Printer?

When you go around from printer to printer getting bids on a job and then giving it to the lowest bidder, you get an indifferently good job—one with no particularly good points—one that sells no goods for you, then who pays the printer?

YOU DO.

When you put out a good printer, giving him all your work, educating him to an idea of your needs, and paying a fair price for the work you get, your printer matter (when secured at the Record Printing) necessarily creates a favorable impression for you and for what you offer, and becomes a factor in selling your goods. Then who pays the printer? Your customer.

HE DOES.

NOT LIKE OTHER MEN

By Frederic Van Rensselaer Dey, Author of "The Brotherhood of Silence," "The Quality of a Sin," Etc.

Copyright, 1901, by Frederic Van Rensselaer Dey.

"Correct. I don't. But I know Craig Thompson. Craig and me are reasonably well-acquainted, and he does lots of things that I don't approve of. That would be one of 'em. I ain't advising you against your father's authority, not a bit of it. Don't get any such idea into your head. Say, there's one thing that you might be turning over in your noddle while you are getting ready for the interview. It's

"How are you, Maxwell?" was Thompson's greeting. "I managed to give him the impression that you hadn't any idea of coming here, that you were only looking on to the scene over the ridge when my steel came along and that you had to help me in, that I asked you to do it. See?"

"Thank you; yes." "Well, there he comes. Now you can work the thing out as you think best, but if you have a row with the old man you're welcome in my outfit at any holy minute."

He touched his spur to his horse and rode on, leaving Lisle to meet his father alone.

"Is this the beginning of continued disregard of my wishes, Lisle?" asked Richard Maxwell as soon as he was with his son, but without expressing the least sign of anger.

"No, sir." "You know, that I did not wish you to come here, did you not?"

"I did."

"That is going against my wishes."

"I cannot always be guided by them, sir. The time will come when I will be obliged to decide for myself. In this one instance I have anticipated it. I have seen the camp. I will return home now if you order me to do so."

"I wish you to do so. I do not order it."

"Then I will remain. If the surroundings here will contaminate me, it is better that it should happen in your presence than in your absence."

"Very well, you may remain for a day or two at least, with the understanding that if at any time I desire you to return you will do so without demur."

"Certainly, sir."

That was all there was of it, and Craig Thompson, when he heard what had taken place (for Lisle did not regard it out of place to repeat the conversation to him), was delighted.

"Lisle," he said, "you've got more force and sand behind that pretty girl face of yours than half of the men out yonder. If, now, you could only sprout a hair or two on that upper lip of yours, I'd like it. They'll grow, though, after awhile."

CHAPTER IV. A LASSO DUEL.

RICHARD MAXWELL did not, however, send his son away, but he did the next best thing from his standpoint of the circumstances—he kept him constantly at his side on one pretext or another, so that Lisle had very little chance to follow out any inclinations that were original with himself. His father's watchful, restless eyes and keen intelligence anticipated everything which might have embarrassed his theories or created interrogation points in the mind of the youth, and day after day passed without incident other than those of such constant occurrence that they had ceased to be noticeable. It was rarely, too, that Craig Thompson found an opportunity to converse with his young friend, for whom he had conceived such a strong and unaccountable liking.

One day, when the work of sorting and separating was nearly completed, Craig rode over to Maxwell's camp and asked for Lisle, and one of the men having pointed him out, at some distance, where he was riding slowly toward the slope of the mountains, Craig gave chase and soon came up with him.

"Say, Lisle," he said as soon as they were side by side, "do you remember Jim Cummings?"

"No; I never heard of him," was the reply.

"Well, he thinks he has heard of you. I thought he had gone east, but he's shown up here, and he's looking for you."

"Looking for me? I don't know him. Who is he?"

"He's the fellow that worked for me that you winged—the one who said that you were cut out for a girl and all that. Remember now?"

"Yes."

"He's minus a bit of one of his ribs, but he's about as good as ever, and he's a bad egg if there ever was one. He'll hurt you if he gets a chance. That's what I wanted to tell you."

"I do not fear him," said Lisle laughingly.

"Who said you did? Not I. I would not be here preaching to you if I thought that you were afraid. But I want to warn you about this fellow. He hasn't made any breaks, and he won't, because he knows that if I had a handle to take hold of that would prove that he was looking for you I'd make mince meat of him in no time. He hasn't said anything; not a word; not he, but he stands around and watches you out of the corners of his eyes and grins like a bloody coyote, so that I know that he's up to something. All that I wanted to say on this matter is for you to keep your eyes peeled so that he can't get a chance to take you unawares. The games will be coming on in a day or so now, and then is when you must have your peepers behind as well as in front of you. The boys like to have the games mixed up with a fight or two, and if Cummings gets a fair chance at you and opens the ball in what these cusses call a gentlemanly way, it would not do for me to let Dick Maxwell take a lead in, for if he did we'd have seven or eight cusses going all at once, and there'd be a graveyard started here that a Coconino doctor could not fill in two years. All you've got to do is to keep your 'frankets' in good working order, so that you can use any of them at short notice. Do you know him by sight?"

"Yes—that is, I will remember him if I see him."

"All right, that's all. I'm going back now."

He went away then, and Lisle rode on, speedily forgetting everything that Craig Thompson had said, for his mind was busy with other problems that had been suggested to it by his sojourn in the Smoky valley and which were destined to tax to the utmost the explanatory powers of his father.

The day soon came when the work of the round up was completed, and the time for play arrived. There was a broad stretch of level ground near the center of the valley, and that was selected for the place where exhibitions of skill in horsemanship and use of various weapons were to take place.

The men, nearly 200 all told, lined up on either side of the selected ground. Some remained in their saddles, others stood leaning against their horses, and others, still, tethered their animals some distance away and stood in groups, discussing the events that were about to take place or bustled themselves arranging for succeeding ones. It was a wild and beautiful picture, and even the cattle grazing along the slopes raised their heads often, sniffed the air more frequently and murmured their uttering bellows in a deeper tone, as though the excitement of anticipation had communicated it self to them.

The first entertainment on the programme was a foot race, and Richard Maxwell was requested to measure off the distance to be run. This he declined to do whereupon Lisle volunteered to do it. His services were accepted, and he dismounted from his horse, leaving it in the care of one of his men while he started off alone down that stretch of open ground. Craig Thompson saw him leave his horse and go to the center of the ground, where, after marking the point of beginning, he began to pace the distance for the contestants to run.

"The fool!" muttered the old ranchman. "If I haven't lost all my judgment, this is just the chance that Jim Cummings will take."

Nothing occurred, however, until Lisle had paced the 150 yards and faced about to return. Then, up at the head of the line, a horseman was seen to detach himself from the surrounding group, spur his horse into a gallop and dash at full speed straight toward the solitary figure in the center of the tournament ground. He was bending well forward in his saddle, his right arm was raised above him, coiling and twisting like a long and sinuous serpent was the loop of his terrible lasso, more feared on the plains as a weapon of offense than all other known implements of warfare.

Lisle saw and recognized him instantly, and if he had not the loud shout that went up from the spectators would sufficiently have warned him, for there was not a man there who did not know the meaning of such an act. An old grudge was to be settled. A long standing feud was to come to an end one way or another. A duel to the death was to be fought in their presence, and, although everybody could see that the advantage was unfairly on one side and that the man on the ground was practically at the mercy of the other, that was regarded as his own fault, one that he should not have committed while an enemy was near at hand, one with which they could not and would not interfere. Many of them were aware of the incident of the shooting affair between Cummings and Lisle Maxwell, and now they were to witness the final act. The "code of the plains" permitted the man attacked in such a manner to make use of any weapon at his command, and the unerring marksmanship of the youth was familiar to every man there. Every one expected to see him pull his revolver and curtail hostilities with a single shot.

At the instant when Lisle discovered that he was an object of attack he glanced toward the spot where he had left his father. He saw him start forward as if to run to his assistance, and he saw Craig Thompson, who had hastened to his side as if he anticipated the move, seize him around the body and hold him firmly, and he could imagine what the ranchman said, although of course he could not hear it.

"Keep back, Dick, keep back!" The kid'll be enough for him, and besides the boys would put a rope around you before you had gone a dozen steps."

That was what he did say, and afterward he retained his grasp upon Richard Maxwell's arm, fearful of what he might do in the excitement that was to come.

Lisle smiled, well pleased. He realized the danger of his position, but he was not afraid. As he turned his eyes back again toward his antagonist he drew his revolver and raised it, but as he glanced along the barrel he saw that if he fired there was imminent danger that the bullet might pass through or beyond its objective point and injure one of the spectators who termed the group around his father. He thrust it back again into his belt and drew his knife, smiling when he heard a cheer go up from the crowd in admiration of his coolness and bravery. Then, planting his feet well apart, he waited.

He knew that if that fatal loop once settled around his shoulders he would be dragged down to certain and horrible death. Cummings knew it, too, and so did the men who looked on.

There was a hideous grin of exultation on the face of the horseman while he rode slowly toward his intended victim. There was no need for haste. The lad could not escape. The loop of the mounted man's rawhide lasso coiled and twisted, writhed and lashed above and around his head as he advanced to the attack, and Lisle stood with upraised knife waiting him.

Lisle Cummings rode all the way around him, toying with the lasso and feeling in an ecstasy of fury, circling to the left and decreasing the radius with each turn, playing with his intended victim, and as he circled Lisle continued to face him, never taking his eyes from the hand that held the rope.

Then Cummings perceptibly increased the speed of his horse, describing the circles still more narrowly. Riding lightly at last, he approached nearest and nearer to his intended victim, the deadly rope never ceasing to writhe and twist above his head, as if it were possessed of life and hatred and was eager to fall upon its prey.

Suddenly his arm straightened out, and the loop was released from his grasp. At the same instant Lisle leaped into the air. The rope struck him upon the head and fell harmlessly aside, and another cheer went up from the spectators. Cummings laughed and dashed away, gathering the lasso quickly for another throw. In a moment he was ready, and the circling began anew, while Lisle, seemingly as cool as ever, faced him steadily and with unflinching courage. Three times the horseman made the turn. Then Lisle saw him rise in his stirrups. The deadly loop left his hand. It seemed to hang in midair over his head in serpentine curves which changed their forms with every fraction of those perilous seconds which seemed like hours. Lisle made no further effort to dodge. He knew that such tactics must soon become futile; that ultimately the rope must encircle him. It were better that it should do so now while he was fresh and still master of every faculty. He remained perfectly still and waited until the loop was almost upon him, and then, with a quick motion, he placed his hands in the position that one assumes when in the act of diving—together and directly above his head—and so permitted the coil to encircle him.

It fell true and accurately. The horse ridden by Cummings was pulled back upon his hunkles, and then, impelled by the cruel spurs and tight rein of its master, it wheeled and leaped away. As the coil tightened around him Lisle managed to seize the rope beyond the knot with his left hand. His right hand still grasped the knife. Then came that awful jerk. He was dragged from his feet headforemost to the earth. As he fell he succeeded in shortening his left arm and reaching out his right hand, which had not loosened its hold upon the knife. The keen edge touched the tightened rawhide, and it parted.

Instantly he was upon his feet again. There was blood upon his face, but he did not know it. He turned and ran with all his speed toward the nearest group of spectators.

A howl of derision went up from the mob. It thought that he was running away. But that mob did not know Lisle Maxwell.

"Somebody's horse!" he shouted as he ran. "Lend me a horse and a rope!"

A man spurred toward him, dismounted and thrust the bridle into his grasp. It was Craig Thompson. But Lisle did not see him. He only saw the horse. In an instant he was in the saddle with Craig's lasso firmly in his grasp. He was shaken and breathless by the experience through which he had just passed, but he was upon equal ground with his antagonist now, and he gloried in the consciousness of his own superior ability. Something new had awakened within him, and he dashed into the arena, eager for the combat. Not half a minute had passed since the cutting of the lasso, and yet Cummings had found time to tie another loop and was riding madly back again. The hooting of the crowd changed again to cheers. It was not to be cheated of its sport after all. The kid was game. He would not run away.

Warily, though rapidly, the antagonists approached each other, guiding their horses elliptically. Swiftly and silently they rode round and round, their manes twisting and hissing like coiled snakes in the air above them. The first throw must be the last, for if one failed the other would succeed. Both knew that. Strategy alone could mark the victor in that strange duel.

Both made the cast at the same instant. Both were true. Cummings' arms were pulled at his sides, but Lisle, with admirable forethought, kept his right hand poised in the air, so that the lasso in settling over him caught and held only his left arm against his body. The horses, trained by long practice, knew quite as well as their riders the parts they had to perform. They remained stock still, straining upon the ropes and holding them taut.

The tableau lasted only an instant, but it was a fraction of time that was fraught with tremendous excitement. Then Lisle's free hand dropped to his holsters. It leaped up again, the arm straightened out and stiffened with deadly aim, there was a loud report, and Jim Cummings pitched headlong from his saddle to the earth. His horse, frightened, started away. Lisle would have been dragged down and killed even then had not his right arm been free. He dropped the pistol and seized the reins, digging the spurs into Thompson's horse, chasing the other and riding thus madly he succeeded in thrusting his one free hand into one of his pockets. When he drew it forth it contained a clasp knife. He opened the blade with his teeth and cut the rope.

While the cowboys were cheering and throwing their sombreros into the air firing their pistols and otherwise testifying to their joy and relieving the pressure of suspense under which they had labored, Craig Thompson rode out to Lisle and met him.

"Kid," he said, and his voice was husky with emotion, "I'm proud of you! Hang me if I ain't! Just make a speech to them fellows now, short and to the point."

But Lisle scarcely heard him. He centered to the center of the ground and raised his right arm to enjoin silence. When it was achieved, he rose in his stirrups and turned his head slowly from side to side until he took in all who were there. Then he spoke in a clear, ringing voice which every one heard.

"If there is any other person here who thinks that I was cut out for a woman and spoiled in the making, now is the time to speak," he said. Dead silence followed his words, and after waiting sufficient time he raised his hat, saluted them all and cantered to his father's side. But the only words that greeted him where he expected the greatest praise was the calm announcement—

"We will take the trail in an hour, Lisle. See that you are ready. You may invite Mr. Thompson to accompany us if he cares to do so." And then without a word in reference to the combat Richard Maxwell mounted his horse and rode away.

A new cheese factory is about to begin operations at Gagetown and Secretary of State Warner is the man who furnishes the authority to run it.

"Birmingham is full of dogs," says the Eccentric. How! The rest of the population manage to stay? That town ought to be a good location for a sausage manufactory to embark in business. It's dog days there all the year.

"A good beat crop will be had this year in spite of the rain," says a Pontiac Press headline. Undoubtedly. Usually the "beat" crops up flourishingly especially when a function like the state fair is in progress. So beat it.

Oh well, this hasn't been such an awfully bad season for the ice man after all. One Ann Arbor dealer in the frozen product is building tea summer cottages at one of the lakes out that way. His prosperity is obviously a cold fact.

There are other dangers connected with ice cream besides that of poisoning or of financial ruin to the youthful swain. A young man at Ann Arbor is two fingers shy on account of too intimate association with an ice cream machine a few days ago.

Pontiac has been having a butter famine and the people over there have been buying their biscuits with something else for a week or so. The supply of butter for the scarcity is that the farmers have been too busy to market the butter crop.

According to the Orion Review two Frosts visited that town last week. Think of it. The first of August too! But then, a place that has been known to have a sea serpent on it is almost anything there are frosts in Orion every month in the year, and they undoubtedly do things to the "golden rule" too.

Wayne had a serious conflagration one night last week in which the need of adequate fire protection was once more hotly emphasized. Next morning a piece of music lost from some of the effects taken from the burning buildings lay on the sidewalk, its title epitomizing the situation in big letters that he who ran might read. It was "Ain't It a Shame."

Emma Youngs of Ypsilanti, has sued Emma Burbank of the same place for $12,000 on account of injuries received as a result of breaking through a board walk. The walk was on a place owned by Mrs. Burbank and owned by Mrs. Youngs. The latter is charged with a monopoly of the walk to come to grade. The walk is being built by the city and the walk is being built by the city.

The horse auto can go on the horse auto better than the motor of running away. It can run away, backward and a horse never known to go that a woman at St. Johns was alleged from one of the machines the other day when her dress caught the lever and started the "baste" at full speed. As it was reversed the thing ran away retrogressively but violently, smashing itself, a wagon and a fence or two and causing a pair of horse to run away too.

The Pontiac Post announces among "some things about this man's town." I have made a notable discovery. The monkey wrench gets its name from its inventor, Thomas Monkey, of Borden-town, N. Y. Queer that Thomas never let anybody get on to the secret before. Probably it was a wrench for him to part with it. But then everybody has the nerve to monkey with such abstruse problems, although lots of folks have wondered why this was thus.

Wonderland-Temple Theatre—Detroit.

The splendid comedienne, Grace Emmet, supported by a strong company of recognized actors and actresses, will occupy the stellar position on the excellent vaudeville program that Manager Moore of Wonderland and Temple theatre, Detroit, has booked for next week. BE BURIED ON FRIDAY

SEN. McMILLAN'S REMAINS TO BE TRANSPORTED WEDNESDAY.

PUBLIC SERVICES WILL BE HELD THURSDAY AFTERNOON.

OFFICIAL REPRESENTATION WILL BE SENT FROM CONGRESS.

Manchester, Mass., Aug. 12.—F. H. McMillan and W. C. McMillan, sons of the late Senator James McMillan and Mrs. P. H. McMillan reached Manchester from Detroit Monday afternoon. They were driven at once to Eagle Head, the McMillan summer residence. Later, plans for the funeral were discussed and it was decided that a brief private service should be held at Eagle Head Wednesday forenoon. The body then will be taken to a private funeral car at the Boston & Maine railway station here. A special train will carry the family and the body to Boston and thence directly to Detroit, Senator McMillan's home.

At Detroit public funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon with Rev. Dr. Barr of Jefferson Avenue Presbyterian church, pastor of the deceased, officiating.

A private burial service will be held Friday afternoon.

Detroit Mich., Aug. 12.—The county auditors met yesterday morning and offered to place the county building at the disposal of the family as the most fitting place in which the remains could be in state, thus giving the whole community a chance to look their last upon a man whom all respected and admired. The offer was made to ex-Governor Rich by letter but no answer has yet been returned.

It is hardly likely that the offer will be accepted, as it was the well-known wish of the senator that his interment should be private. It is altogether probable then that the funeral will be as private as possible. J. J. McGrain, assistant sergeant-at-arms of the senate, will come to Detroit to take charge of the congressional party. Mr. Charles Moore, clerk of the district committee will take charge of them at Manchester. Congressman John B. Corliss received telegrams yesterday from Congressmen E. L. Hamilton and Henry C. Smith of Adrian, signifying their willingness to do anything he might suggest concerning the funeral.

Sam W. Smith of Pontiac called personally to give the same assurance.

Interment at Elmwood.

The interment will be in the family vault at Elmwood cemetery. A list of honorary pallbearers is being made up by Elwood T. Hance, John T. Rich and Stanley W. Turner but it is not yet completed.

Mayor Maybury was in Montreal when he learned the sad news, and immediately telegraphed to his secretary, Clarence A. Colton, recommending that all business be suspended during the funeral, and that the flags of all public buildings be half-staffed until then.

Washington, Aug. 12.—Speaker Henry D. Clayton, who is at Atlantic City, has requested Representative Corliss of Michigan to communicate with the members of the Michigan delegation in congress and secure their presence at the funeral of the late senator. They, as well as the senate committee will assemble in Detroit to attend the funeral, which is to take place at 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon.

The death of Senator McMillan is almost the sole topic of conversation among the people of Washington of all classes. The Business Men's association, an organization composed of leading business and professional men, met and adopted a resolution of regret, and the leading men who were interviewed expressed personal regret at the loss sustained by the country, the state of Michigan and the District of Columbia.

Won't Appoint a Successor.

Saginaw, Mich., Aug. 12.—Governor Bliss stated last night that he saw no necessity for filling the vacancy occasioned by the death of Senator McMillan by appointment, and added that unless some unforeseen contingency arises which renders such appointment imperative, none will be made.

FIRST LADY OF FRANCE.

President Loubet's Wife a Simple, Home-Loving Person.

MME. EMILE LOUBET.

Like her distinguished husband, Mme. Emile Loubet, wife of the president of the French republic, is a plain person whom success in the world has not turned from the even tenor of her ways or mode of thinking. Through all the great changes that have come into her life from the time of her marriage to the provincial lawyer to her elevation to the very summit of French society she has remained the same simple housewife she has always been.

Mme. Loubet represents the great mass of middle class French householders, not the Faubourg St. Germain, the home of the ancient aristocracy or the palaces of the "new rich."

Mme. Loubet is the daughter of an iron dealer of the town of Montelmar, in the south of France. Her maiden name was Mrs. Denis. Mme. and M. Loubet were married thirty-five years ago and have three children, two sons and a daughter.

The wife of the president was brought up in a simple manner and numbers cooking among her household accomplishments. It is said that even now at the Elysee she frequently visits the kitchen and prepares for her husband and his old friends dishes of which they are especially fond.

In appearance Mme. Loubet is like her husband, short and stout. She is gray haired, but carries her age, about fifty-five, very well. Mme. Loubet dresses simply, invariably in good taste, but she is little inclined to adopt the latest Parisian modes. She is courteous to a degree and is very charitable, taking a personal interest in the many public institutions of Paris.

Although it was freely predicted that the motherly lady from the provinces would be overwhelmed by the grandeur of her position, she has yet given no indication of embarrassment. Only at the state dinners she insists on seeing that her guests have sufficient to eat and displays concern too much from the standpoint of "high society"—lest they should rise unsatisfied.

Mme. Loubet does not concern herself with politics and has resolutely refused to exert her influence with the president for or against any faction.

If all the land planted in corn in the United States this year were massed, the area would exceed the British Isles, Holland and Belgium combined, or four-fifths of the area of France or Germany.

Now a mere boy of seventeen years Cleveland Grover will attain his majority in state prison at Portland, Me., where he began last week a term of twelve years for incendiarism.

Runs Over Five Hundred Plows.

W. B. Feebles, of Vienna, Ala., is one of the largest planters and most prominent men in the South. He runs over 500 plows on his plantations. "About five years ago," he says, "my infant daughter began cutting teeth and as is often the case her bowels became deranged and it run into chronic dysentery. I had her treated by three of the best physicians in Pickens county but her case baffled the skill of all of them, and my baby became so weak and emaciated that she had to be nursed on a pillow. The nurse would sometimes have to change her napkin as often as twenty-five times a day. At last we got hold of a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and by using one bottle of it she was entirely cured of her trouble. I consider it the most valuable remedy on the market for all bowel troubles. For sale by George C. Hueston.

Sweet Brier a Nuisance.

Some years ago sweet brier was introduced into Tasmania and became apparently too abundant. Goats were put upon the land with the idea that they would eat down the briars and ultimately eradicate them. But the briars came out best and eradicated the goats. The hairy linings of the fruit of the sweet brier killed the animals as they did also a number of cattle.

"Why Should Calamity Be Full of Words?"

The mere saying of words is easy, and some men devote their whole lives to it. They talk rather than act. The calamity howlers in any community are of this kind.

While the unsuccessful business man is talking the successful man is acting. When he speaks he uses words, but he tells facts. He seldom, however, depends upon his own voice.

He brings to his aid the trumpet tongued voice of the press.

He purchases space in the advertising columns of his local paper, and he uses it to good advantage.

This is your local paper.

There is space in these columns for use. Are you adding its strength to your voice? Properly used it will aid you.
