APPEALS TO YOUNG PEOPLE.

SUPT. MARTIN WANTS 'EM TO ATTEND SCHOOL.

Says Education Helps to Find Profitable Employment.

"We trust," says Supt. Martin, of Northville schools, "that many of the young people of Northville and vicinity will decide to take up school work and to enter at the beginning of the term. If there are any who have been out of school for some time and would like to continue their studies, we want you to come. Do not let false pride or the notion that you are not so far advanced as someone else keep you from getting an education. If you want to attend school and are willing to work, by all means come; the teachers and pupils will be glad to welcome you. There never has been a time when our schools and colleges have been in a more prosperous condition than they are today, and each year marks a general increase in attendance. We should be glad to see the young people of this locality freely represented in the general educational movement."

"It is usually the ones who are educated and who have fitted themselves to do something the common laborer can not do who find more easily employment that is congenial and profitable, while those who have not enriched themselves with a fair education are not at liberty to select from the many avenues of employment the work that is most agreeable. We desire to make our schools of use to the young people of this locality. Come and enjoy a year of pleasant and profitable work."

FRED WOOD OF LENAWE

TO OPPOSE CHARLIE TOWNSEND FOR CONGRESS.

The Unexpected Happened at Ann Arbor Wednesday.

Fred Wood of Tecumseh, a well known Lenawee county attorney, was nominated for congress at the Democratic convention in Ann Arbor Wednesday to oppose Charlie Townsend of Jackson. John Strong of Monroe and Lou O'Mealy of Adrian, the leading candidates, went down to defeat though it was thought that Mr. Strong had a cinch. The unexpected happened when Jackson and Lenawee formed a combine that did the business. Strong charged his defeat to "malicious misrepresentations" and Secretary McInery of Wyandotte charged "fraud and fixing of delegates by telephone."

Mr. Wood was not a candidate for the nomination. He has served as prosecutor of Lenawee county and was commander of state troops under Gov. Winans. Mr. Wood is a free silver Bryan democrat, which fact he anticipates will add much to his vote in Lenawee county.

School Notes.

School opens on Monday morning, Sept. 1.

All teachers are asked to meet in room 9, at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, August 30.

We trust every boy or girl who expects to enter school will do so the first morning.

The seniors and juniors are requested to come to the high school room for classification on Saturday, August 30, from 9 to 12 a. m. and from 1 to 3 p. m. The classification of all other pupils will be made on Monday forenoon, Sept. 1.

All parents who have children five years old or older and desire to start them to school should do so at the beginning of the term as even a few days delay causes considerable inconvenience to the teacher and the class that is already formed.

Our Board of Education has recently adopted a new series of readers and on this account above the second grade and below the high school are asked to retain their old readers until after school opens when full and plain directions regarding the exchange will be made.

HOW'D YOU LIKE TO BE THE PRESIDENT IN THE GOOD OLD SUMMER TIME?

—Boston Herald.

DRAGGED OFF TO COUNTY JAIL.

FORMER NORTHVILLE CITIZEN SHAMEFULLY USED.

J. F. Perry in Durand Vile for a Whole Week.

After spending a week in the Wayne county jail says the Detroit Journal of August 23, James F. Perry was taken before Police Justice Sellers. The justice listened to just one witness and then said:

"I don't want to hear any more of this case. You are free, Mr. Perry."

The witness proved that Mr. Perry, a respected citizen of Cheboygan, Mich., 53 years old, had spent a week in jail here through a misunderstanding. Mr. Perry was dragged from his home a week ago on a warrant charging him with robbing, concealing and embezzling a soda fountain with intent to defraud. The fountain was the property of the George Marsh Co.

"When Mr. Perry lived in Northville last summer," said Mr. F. F. Bumps, attorney for Mr. Perry, "he bought a second-hand soda fountain for $165. He had paid $95 on it up to this summer. Under contract it was still the property of the George Marsh Co. This spring, when Mr. Perry moved with his soda fountain to Cheboygan he told the bank at Northville to forward his notes, payable upon the soda fountain, to the bank at Cheboygan.

The misunderstanding came in the failure somewhere of the Geo. Marsh Co. to receive this notification. Cashier Babbitt of the Northville State Savings bank says that he had given the notification. Mr. Marsh, or the soda fountain company, said that he had never received it. Mr. Perry spent his week in jail while this misunderstanding was being straightened out.

"The arrest of an innocent man," added Mr. Bumps, "is a warning to judges that extreme care should be used in invoking the aid of the criminal law to collect a private debt, which was the course taken to put Mr. Perry in jail."

On to Washington. Low Rates.

The Peze Marquette, Wabash and Penna. lines, via Niagara Falls and Gettysburg, Pa., have been selected as the official route to the 36th annual encampment G. A. R. to be held in Washington, D. C., in October, on account of the most special privileges and excellent service and equipment afforded by these lines. Special train of Wabash free-reclining chairs leaves Detroit at 4 p. m., Saturday, October 4, running through to Washington without change. Sleeper if desired. Spend Sunday at Gettysburg battlefield. Ten days' stop at Niagara Falls returning. Get tickets via above route, good until Nov. 3. Fare 1c mile each way. R. S. GREENWOOD, M. P. A.

Again Ready for Business.

We are again ready for business at the Novel elevator and will pay the highest market price for wheat, corn, oats and grains of all kinds, potatoes, apples, baled hay and straw. J. D. McLAREN & Co.

INDEPENDENT TELEPHONES.

J. W. Martin Isn't Stuck on Detroit's Prospects.

Joseph W. Martin, telephone promoter, has severed his connection with the Cooperative Telephone company of Detroit. He has returned to Pontiac and states that he is through with the independent telephone business in Detroit.

"After careful investigation, I am convinced that this cooperative company will be a total failure," said Mr. Martin. "It is impossible to make it succeed, and I want to take this means of informing my friends through the press that I am done with it."

"If the People's Telephone Co. isn't sold out to the Bell and finishes its plant, it will be Detroit's only salvation for cheap telephone rates. If the Bell crowd get the People's Telephone Co. it's all off as far as Detroit is concerned."

There appears to be little or no prospect for any independent company to ever get a foot hold in Detroit. The People's company recently forfeited its $1,000 deposit bond at Wyandotte when it had applied for a franchise a year or more ago.

AN UNEXPECTED TURN.

Alleged-Conspirators in Military Scandal Pleaded Guilty to New Charge.

Lansing, Mich., Aug. 27.—The Henderson-Ames company's troubles growing out of the old military board scandal, took an unexpected turn in the circuit court when the charges against Hunter, Kauffer, Woodworth and Bickerstaff were called. The warrants against them alleged perjury. By mutual consent, the charge was changed to conspiracy to defraud the state—the same charge on which General Will White was convicted and given ten years.

When this was done the attorneys for the accused announced to the court that the four members of the company named were ready to plead guilty. The court will accept the plea. Judge Wiest notified them to appear Tuesday afternoon, but at 3 o'clock decided not to take up the cases until today.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 27.—Former State University Regent Eli R. Sutton, charged jointly with Hunter, Kauffer, Woodworth and Bickerstaff with perjury, escaped service of a warrant by fleeing the state. He is still a fugitive from justice. He is still a fugitive from justice. He is still a fugitive from justice.

Caught It From Cattle.

Pratt, Kan., Aug. 27.—A Mrs. Kimball is dead from "lumpy jaw," caught from cattle, and Mr. Cochran of the Pratt Republican, is dangerously ill with the disease. The doctors here say there are only six cases on record where human beings have caught the disease from cattle.

GLOBE FACTORIES WERE SOLD

CALLE BROS. OF DETROIT HIGHEST BIDDERS.

It May Mean a Big Boom for Northville.

The Globe factory buildings here were bid off Wednesday at the Receivers sale by Calle Bros. of Detroit for $17,700 and E. K. Starkweather got the residence for $400. The bids are subject the approval of the courts but it is thought they will be accepted. Calle Bros. are extensive manufacturers of slot machines and should they bring their whole business here it will mean a big boom for Northville. Their work gives employment to something like 350 men.

DELEGATES ARRIVING.

Municipal League Convention Opens at Grand Rapids.

Grand Rapids, Mich. Aug. 27.—Arrangements are completed for the opening of the annual convention of the League of American Municipalities today. The top floor of the big furniture exhibition building, where the sessions will be held, has been elaborately decorated with potted palms and flowering plants from the park greenhouses.

A large number of delegates from various parts of the country arrived Tuesday and last evening, and it is expected that at least 400 will be present at the opening session. Mayor Charles S. Ashley of New Bedford, Mass., president of the league, and Secretary John Macvicar of Des Moines, Ia., were among the first arrivals. Mayor R. J. Barr, with several city officials of Joliet, Ill., arrived last night and at once started an active campaign to capture the next meeting of the league. They are supplied with handsome badges bearing the inscription, "Joliet, Ill., 1903."

Colorado Springs is also in the race for the next convention.

Mayor W. W. Palmer will welcome the visitors, and President Ashley will respond. The speakers today will be Mayor J. M. Head, Nashville, Tenn.; Mayor T. G. Haynes, Baltimore, G. A. Parker, Hartford, Conn.; Mayor W. D. Lighthall, Westmount, Ont.; J. A. Johnson, Fargo, N. D.; Mayor S. M. Jones, Toledo; W. S. Grandall, New York.

Is Roosevelt Sounding Alger?

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 27.—General Alger will leave the city today for a trip east. The question is asked whether the object of his visit is to see the president. A mysterious visit of Congressman Smith Monday night is thought to have had something to do with Alger's movements, and the theory is advanced by local politicians that President Roosevelt has been sounding General Alger through Congressman Smith. Senator Burrows has not agreed in every way with the administration's policies, and it is hinted that the president would like to know where General Alger stands.

Soldiers and Sailors' Reunion.

Flint, Mich., Aug. 27.—The ninth annual reunion of the Northeastern Soldiers and Sailors' association will be held in Flint Sept. 3, 4 and 5. The first day will be devoted to business meeting, dress parade, address of welcome by Mayor Alvord; addresses by Colonel James of Detroit; William T. Tower, Coleman; Judge Beach of Lexington, and other prominent speakers. Governor Bliss and others will deliver addresses Thursday, and Judge Durand will speak Friday, followed by other well-known men.

Federal Building Sites.

Washington, Aug. 27.—The treasury department has selected a lot on the northwest corner of Exchange and Park streets, offered by C. S. & O. B. Williams, as a site for a public building at Owosso. At Grand Haven a lot on the corner of Washington and Third South streets, offered by John A. Bagley, has been selected. In each case the government is to get title to the property for the nominal consideration of $1, citizens being obliged to raise sufficient funds to compensate the owners for their land.

What Is Mont Pelee Doing?

St. Thomas, D. W. I., Aug. 27.—Advices received from Dominica say that between 10 in the morning and 8 in the afternoon Monday, clouds of dust were seen in the direction of Mont Pelee, Island of Martinique, and that detonation at long intervals were heard till the morning. Light showers of volcanic dust fell on Dominica.

Addressed the Postmasters.

Milwaukee, Aug. 27.—The fifth annual convention of postmasters met here Tuesday. Mayor Rose welcomed the gathering. The feature of the first session was the annual address of President F. B. Dickerson of Detroit. Niagara Falls is bidding for the next convention.

The Trusts and Marriage.

President Patton of Princeton believes that the time is not far distant when there will not be a thing that we eat, drink or wear that will not be made by a trust, and then he says: "it will not be long until it will be a financial impossibility for the average young man to get married."

The obvious moral for the young man who wants to marry is to get the girl before it is everlastingly too late.

AUTHOR LIKES POLITICS.

Winston Churchill has Ambitions to Become a Lawmaker.
Winston Churchill, the author of "Richard Carvel," "The Crisis" and other popular books, is to emulate his English namesake and enter politics. The English author, soldier and politician has been a member of parliament for some time, and the American novelist has just announced his desire of becoming a member of the 1903 New Hampshire legislature. As Mr. Churchill is well liked by the people about his home he will probably be elected. His friends predict for the clever young man a brilliant career in politics.

Mr Churchill's home is known as Harlakenden House. It is situated near Combs, N. H., very near the Vermont line. So near is he to the Green Mountain State that his postoffice address is given as Windsor, Vt. Harlakenden House is a beautiful structure overlooking the picturesque Connecticut river valley. Here Mr Churchill lives the life of a country gentleman in sufficient seclusion to grant him leisure for the writing of the books that have made him famous and yet in touch with the world.

The subjects in which Mr Churchill are particularly interested are forest preservation and the building of good roads, and it is on a platform advocating these that he seeks election. He said recently "I am a candidate for the legislature because of a warm and increasing interest in New Hampshire and in national issues. I intend to go on writing books just the same whether I secure the nomination and election or not."
Although Mr Churchill is by birth a St. Louisan, his ancestry is Yankee. He was born Nov. 10, 1871, and was educated at Smith academy, St. Louis, and at the Naval academy. Mr Churchill found naval life little to his liking and resumed from the service shortly after his graduation in 1895 he was married to Miss Mabel H. Hall, a St. Louis girl. After resigning from the navy Mr Churchill was employed on the Army and Navy Journal and the Cosmopolitan Magazine. He left the latter to devote all his time and attention to books. Mr Churchill's first book, "The Celebrity," appeared in 1898.

NEW LITERARY LIGHT.

Wife of Chicago's Mayor, Who Has Written a Book.

Mrs Carter H. Harrison, wife of the mayor of Chicago, who has just written a book, makes her debut in the field of literature as the author of a "Fairy Story For Little Ones," as she calls it. The book will be published during the coming fall, and the smart set of the city by the lake is eagerly awaiting an opportunity of passing judgment upon it.

Before her marriage to Mr. Harrison in 1887 the new authoress was Miss Edith Ogden, daughter of the Hon. Robert N. Ogden, judge of the Louisiana court of appeals at New Orleans. Miss Ogden was educated at a fashionable school in the Crescent City and later by private tutors. She speaks German fluently and has a good command of French. Mrs. Harrison has traveled extensively both in this country and in Europe. Although she is fond of society and well fitted in every way to take a leading part in its functions, she is devoted to her children and to literature.

The latest craze in Paris is the wearing of a lighted lantern as a personal-ornament. The fashion originated with a speculative manufacturer, whose "petites lanternes" were bought by tens of thousands at the fair of Neuilly. The lantern is very small and neat, and made in a Gothic form after an ancient model.

Runs Over Five Hundred Plows.

W. B. Peebles, of Vienna, Ala., is one of the largest planters and most prominent men in the South. He runs over 500 plows on his plantations. "About five years ago," he says "my infant daughter began cutting teeth and as is often the case her bowels became deranged and it run into chronic dysentery. I had her treated by three of the best physicians in Pickens county but her case baffled the skill of all of them, and my baby became so weak and emaciated that she had to be nursed on a pillow. The nurse would sometimes have to change her napkin as often as twenty-five times a day. At last we got hold of a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and by using one bottle of it she was entirely cured of her trouble. I consider it the most valuable remedy on the market for all bowel troubles. For sale by George C. Hueston.

NOT LIKE OTHER MEN

By Frederic Van Rensselaer Dey,
Author of "The Brotherhood of Silence," "The Quality of a Sin," Etc.

Copyright, 1901, by Frederic Van Rensselaer Dey.

"It is both; it is the father and the mother."
"You are replying now to the third question I would have asked, for it concerned creation. Children are not grafted upon their fathers and mothers as you graft the sprouts upon the trees in our orchard."
"The principle is the same, Lisle, throughout all nature. The law of creation is the same in all things; from the alfalfa growing on the river bottoms to the sagebrush on the hills, from the animal kingdom to humanity. You know what evolution is, I have taught you that. The younger and weaker plants, whether they are vegetable or animal, are the result of laws which are controlled by the Supreme Father of all and which are and forever will remain a mystery to all mankind. They evolve into the older and stronger product. Let us end this discussion now. On the day when you are 21 we will resume these subjects. Come to me then."
"Is that the crucial age of man?—Are all things revealed to him then?—Will I experience a change when I arrive at that age? Will all things be made clear to me then?"
"All things which puzzle you now will be made clear to you then, my son. I dread the day."
"Why?"
"It can bring no joy to you—nothing but misery to me."
"Father!"
"Go, Lisle. Leave me now. Remain as you have been until that time. After that—"
"What, father?"
Richard Maxwell did not reply, and after waiting a moment Lisle silently left the room and the house, mounted his horse and galloped away through the starlight alone. He was not unhappy, far from it, but he was possessed by the spirit of investigation, and without his knowledge he was borne as rapidly as his horse could run straight toward the immediate solution of all his vexing problems.

CHAPTER VII.

A WOMAN IN THE QUESTION.

LISLE'S horse did not borne him much more than a mile when out of the semidarkness in front of him loomed a figure, also on horseback. At the same instant the stranger accosted him by uttering a shout which might, in that clear, still air, have been heard at the ranch.

"Can you tell me if there is a human habitation near here?" he asked as soon as Lisle, pistol in hand—for strangers were not always friendly in that wild country—rode up to him.

"There is one, sir," replied Lisle. "Are you in trouble?"
"I should say so," was the petulant response. "Do you know a ranchman in this region by the name of Craig Thompson?"
"Yes, sir, very well indeed."
"Is it his house that is near here?"
"No. He lives 30 miles away, but my father's house is about a mile distant. Will you go there with me? In the morning I will guide you to Thompson's ranch."
"Thank you, young man. I accept your hospitality most gladly. My daughter will be especially pleased, for she is frightened to death at the prospect of spending the night on the plains, with nothing but the stars for a counterpane."
"Your daughter!" exclaimed Lisle.

"Yes, my daughter. I don't wonder that you express surprise at finding two strangers alone at night in such a place as this and one of them a woman. It is all because of her obstinacy. It's woman's mission to get men into trouble. She would come out here today. I could not prevail upon her to wait until we could get a guide. She never rode a horse in her life, so I found and bought an old wagon, which has done nothing but break down ever since we started, and now it has gone beyond repair."
How much more of an explanation he would have volunteered is not known, for at that instant they were both interrupted by a clear voice calling to them out of the darkness, and presently Lisle saw approaching them a figure such as he had never seen before, not even in his most vivid hours of imagining—the slender, willowy, perfectly clad figure of a woman fresh from the hands of her midwife.

"I could not remain alone in that horrid place, with all sorts of eyes staring at me out of the darkness," she said as she approached. "Who have you got with you, papa? I hope it is not one of those dirty Indians."
"A gentleman, Erna, who has offered to assist us. This is my daughter, Miss Ernestina Thomas. I am Thomas O. Thomas of Kansas City. May I ask what your name is?"
Lisle raised his broad brimmed hat from his head with a courtesy that was instinctive while he replied:
"I am the son of Richard Maxwell, who owns this ranch. I am quite sure that my father will welcome you, although it will be the first time that a woman has ever entered our house."
"If the night were darker, so that I could not see you, I should say that you were a woman yourself," retorted Miss Thomas. "Is your father a wom-

"No, sir. I much prefer to remain until these people arrive. I wish to see what a woman of our own kind looks like. Is it the manner of dress that makes the difference?"
"Dress and training. Let it be beg of you, Lisle, not to permit your curiosity to express itself to either of our guests. Such conduct would not be gentlemanly."
"You do not like to have this woman here, sir?" questioned Lisle.
"No. Emphatically I do not."
"I could not do otherwise than to ask them to come."
"Certainly not. Their being here, however, need not necessarily bring you in contact with them or with the woman. I will send Jack over to Thompson's with them in the morning."
"I have already promised to go, father."
"I have other duties for you to perform. It will make no difference who acts as your guide."
The strangers arrived soon afterward. Mr. Thomas came up with outstretched hand, for he had dismounted and was walking beside his daughter.

"Your son has been our savior," he said cordially. "I should have been obliged to pass the night in the open if he had not found us, and God knows what would have become of my daughter before morning. I have been endeavoring ever since your son mentioned your name to me to recall it. I have succeeded. I think we have had some correspondence in the past, Mr. Maxwell. I am the Thomas of Thomas & Armstrong, Kansas City, Mo., hides, hoods and pelts. This is my daughter, Ernestina. I hope that we may not put you to any inconvenience, but I can assure you that your horse is a good one to us now."
"You are welcome, Mr. Thomas. Pleased to meet you, Miss Thomas. I regret that there is not a woman in my establishment, so, if you will permit me, I will show you to your room myself."
"If you would show me to the dining room, it would be more to the point. I am simply famishing. As for going to a sleeping room, I much prefer to remain here for a little while. The night is heavenly now that I am not dying with thirst," said Miss Thomas rapidly. She disposed herself in one of the big easy chairs and continued, almost without pause "It is strange that you haven't a woman about you. How do you do your cooking and mending? Who makes the beds and does other things that a woman ought to do for you? Your son says that you are a woman hater. I don't think there is any sense in that. Oh, dear! I'm completely done up by the terrible experiences we have had today."
"We are provided with efficient servants, Miss Thomas," said Maxwell calmly. "Lisle, will you find Ah Sh and tell him to prepare supper for our guests?"

"A Chinese cook!" cried Miss Thomas. "How lovely! Is he chambermaid too? I have heard that they are excellent servants and that they are really preferred to women in lots of places. Papa never took me with him on one of his trips before, but I just wouldn't let him go without me this time. An hour ago I would have given the world to be back again in Kansas City, and now I wouldn't be anywhere else than here if I could. What a pleasant room this one is!" rising and passing unceremoniously through the open window. "This is the library? Your son mentioned it to us, but I did not suppose that anybody had such a thing as a real library in this region."
She began an inspection of the bookshelves, which she continued with verbal approval of the bindings until her eyes rested upon the piano.

"Well, I never!" she declared vehemently. Then, raising her voice, she called out, "Who plays upon this—the Chinese cook?"
"No," responded a quiet voice directly behind her. "My father and I play upon it."
"Why, Mr. Maxwell! How you startled me! I did not hear you come in. Whoever would have expected to find a piano here? Why, you are really quite civilized, are you not?"
She raised her eyes to Lisle's when she asked the question, and her eyes and face were much more perfect than her manners, for they were exquisite, but when they encountered the wide eyed stare with which Lisle was regarding her her glance sank in confusion, and the red blood suffused her throat and cheeks and brow. Then, because he continued silent and because she knew that he was still watching her, she became angry.

"One would think that you never saw a woman before!" she exclaimed. "I never did," was the quiet reply. "What?"
Miss Thomas forgot her confusion and her anger at the same instant.

"What did you say? Say it again, please," she exclaimed after a short pause.
"You are the first woman that I ever saw, Miss Thomas," said Lisle in the same quiet tone. He was perfectly self contained. He regarded the beautiful creature before him with exactly the same emotions that he would have felt if he had been standing before a cage in a menagerie viewing some rare specimen of captive from equatorial Africa. He was studying her physique without approval, mentally rejoiced that his own in no way resembled it. That slender waist, which he might have spanned with his fingers, found no likeness in his own. That swelling bust, prominent beneath the tight fitting tailor made waist, appeared to him like a deformity. The tightly drawn skirt of brown cashmere seemed to him as though it would be a decided impediment to walking, and he realized at once why its wearer had declined to mount his horse. Her hair filled him with wonder. She had thrown aside her hat, and he saw upon her head the most remarkable specia-

He had ever witnessed. Miss Thomas was justly proud of her hair. She had often been accused of bleaching it, but she had the satisfaction of knowing that it was not only natural, but that its tint could not be counterfeited by all the chemicals in the world, and Lisle studied it in amazement. He believed that if it were permitted to fall to its full length it would have reached to the ground, as indeed it would, or very nearly so. He thought it must be very heavy to carry around, and he wondered if she slept with it that way. While she studied her hair the anger in her face died out altogether and gave place to an expression of genuine amusement.

"This is the first time," she said presently. "The very first time, in all my life that I ever posed as a curiosity. I rather like it. Go on. I am sorry that I did not think to provide myself with a catalogue. Perhaps, though, I can assist you verbally. What are you looking at now—my boots? They're two, manufactured by Smith & Brown, Main street, Kansas City; quality, of the finest; shape, the latest; style, unexceptional, finish, superb; handsome and warranted; price, $7.50. What now? Look at them closely; I wear five feet, my how cold your hands are! They're like ice. See how warm mine are. Oh, the rings! Did you think they were yours? They slip off and on—so. One of them—this one—is an engagement ring, but I shan't marry the man who put it there. How old are you, Mr. Maxwell—more than 7?"

"I am 18." Lisle still kept his eyes fixed upon her, changing his gaze from point to point in search of new surprises and further marvels. He was mentally comparing her to himself, and he thought that there were many points of similarity which he had not at first discovered; also that they were decidedly unlike. To him she was a human paradox.

"Are you really?" she exclaimed. "I should have said that you were much younger. I am 18, too, but then, you are only a boy. That accounts for the difference. Boys don't amount to much."
"I have been taught that women do not repel Lisle gravely."
"That comes of having a woman later for a father. It's awfully stupid of him. It will be all the worse for you when you find out what women really are. They'll lead you a dance. Oh, how I would like to have you in Kansas City! Shall I turn around? Would you like to study my back?"
"If you please."
"Well, I never! There, how do you like that?"

Her figure, though slight, was what any man would have pronounced bewitching, but it did not so impress Lisle Maxwell.

"I do not think that I like it," he said reflectively.

She wheeled around with a suddenness that startled him, but she only stared. "For once she had not words with which to express her sentiments. "Do you wear a wooden jacket beneath this one?" asked Lisle, touching her waist gingerly with the end of one of his fingers.

She burst out laughing then—just a low, rippling laugh that was full of melody and so repetitive with amusement that Lisle smiled back at her.
