EMERSON BUCKLEY WAS DROWNED

THREE YEAR OLD SON OF MR.
AND MRS. JOHN BUCKLEY.

Fell into Yerkes' Mill Pond Wednesday Forenoon.

A sad accident occurred in our village Wednesday forenoon, which has enlisted widespread sympathy for Mr. and Mrs. John Buckley who live near the Yerkes pond in the eastern part of town. Their little three year old son Emerson and one or two other children were playing near the dam and in some way the little Buckley boy fell into the water. His little companions were too frightened to give the alarm, and the child had probably been in the water nearly an hour before the body was recovered, which was not done until part of the water was drawn off the pond. Dr. Burgess was called but he had been extinct long before the body was taken out of the water.

ALMOST A HALLOWE'EN SURPRISE

GEORGE MCFARLAND'S.

Saturday Night.

Last Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. George McFarland had a Halloween surprise perpetrated on them which has been the subject of more interest and comment than has ever before been accorded here to any of the happenings of that season of general mix-ups and unexpected occurrences. Shortly after the passing of the 5:30 Detroit United Railway car a basket was noticed on the porch of the McFarland home by several members of the family, but each thinking it had been placed there by one of the others, no attention was paid to it except that Mr. McFarland shoved it along closer to the house. When some one finally got around to look into the basket, the situation may be imagined when it was found to contain a bright girl baby but a few hours old. The child, which of course had been given something to keep it quiet, had but little clothing on it, but that was of exceptionally good quality. A paper was attached to the babe's garments with the words in a woman's hand writing "I was born at twelve o'clock, October 31." The recipients of the little animated gift have decided to keep it. It is a very pretty child and scores of people have been to see the small waif, the number of callers one day having reached considerably over one hundred.

Library Benefit Entertainment.

The ladies of the library board have arranged with the Ideal Entertainers of Saginaw to give one of their fine shows here next week Tuesday evening for the benefit of the library treasury. The quality of the entertainment they give is well known here, as they gave excellent satisfaction when they exhibited in the Opera House two years ago under the auspices of the high school juniors. Their moving pictures were pronounced by all who saw them to be the best they had ever seen anywhere. It is hoped that Northville people will show their loyalty to so fine a local institution as the library by liberally patronizing the entertainment, which is sure to be more than worth the admission, as it is first class in every feature. Buy a ticket—or several of them—and help in a good cause as well as have a good time. Everybody in Northville is proud of our library and everybody wants it to continue and prosper. Don't forget the date—next week Tuesday night, November 11th.

Another Bargain.

We have still a few good dishes left which we give away—one with every purchase of one pound of Tea, Coffee or Baking Powder. Avail yourself of this opportunity.

PUTTING IT GENTLY.

He: "Yes, my dear young lady, when I was younger they used to call me the lady killer."
She: "Did they—the ladies—die of—er—fright?"

KING'S DAUGHTERS' ANNUAL.

Billed for Princess Rink November
11th and 12th.

The Annual Fair of the King's Daughters will be held in Princess Rink on Tuesday and Wednesday, November 11th and 12th.

The bake sale will begin at 10:30 Tuesday morning and will consist of all kinds of baked goods and a cheese donated by Hon. Fred M. Warner.

On the afternoon and evenings of both days there will be placed on sale, in fancy booths, comfortable, sofa pillows, handkerchiefs, aprons, fancywork, dolls' furnishings and home-made candy.

Wednesday evening there will be an entertainment consisting of local talent. On this evening an admission of ten cents will be charged at the door.

The public is invited to cordially respond to the efforts of the Circle in their work of relieving the needy.

Townsend Elected to Congress.

Charles E. Townsend for Congress from this district made a big run, carrying the Democratic county of Monroe by 669 and only losing

Who on Tuesday was elected Congressman by the largest majority ever given a Congressman from this Second District

Washtenaw by about 4. He carried Lenawee his opponent's own county by about 533 and Jackson by 1410. His total majority is about 4,000. In Wayne he ran away ahead of his ticket and carried the county by 1,100.

Woodman-Callaghan.

Hoyt L. Woodman of this place and Miss Georgia Callaghan of Lansing were united in marriage at the M. L. parsonage Wednesday afternoon by Rev. Mr. Shank. Mr. Woodman is cashier in the auditor general's office at Lansing and the bride is the only daughter of Russell Callaghan, one of Lansing's prominent opticians. After the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Woodman left for Detroit and Ypsilanti to be gone until today, when they will return to Lansing to reside while Hoyt is in the employ of the state.

Miss Bovee has handsome pillow tops, also pillows for same. Call and see them.

COMPARATIVE LARGE VOTE WAS CAST

FOUR HUNDRED AND SEVENTY-FOUR VOTERS

Were Out Here Monday—Farmers
Very Busy.

Although but 474 votes were cast here Tuesday yet it was a large vote as compared with other parts of the state. But very few voters escaped the vigilant eyes of the scouting parties of the two armies and if anyone failed to vote it was not because they were not looked after.

The Abbott voting machine was used and it proved very satisfactory and the vote was given out within a very few moments after the polls were closed.

Fred M. Warner led the ticket here as he did all over Michigan. Townsend 196 and Neal 263. Those were the highest men on the ticket. Bliss, Dickson and Hunt were the only republicans to receive any cuts to speak of. Gov. Bliss only received 97 majority here, and in nearly all the other towns in the county for some reason he ran much behind his ticket.

Marschner for county treasurer ran behind in the city, and because he and his managers neglected the country he lost that usually big republican vote and went down to defeat. The balance of the republican county ticket was elected. Northville was the only town where Mr. Marschner ran up with the ticket.

Arthur-Parmenter Wedding.

Miss Borridel Parmenter and Mr. Edwin Arthur were married Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's parents by Rev. O. M. Thrasher, in the presence of about thirty guests. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur will reside in Northville. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Parmenter, and has hosts of friends here who will wish her unbounded future happiness. The groom is an employee of the American Bell & Foundry Co. and formerly lived in Plymouth.

Neal Re-elected.

Mr. Neal returns to his seat in the state legislature as representative from this third district by a very flattering majority considering the unusually light vote cast. He is the only Republican representative elected in the county outside Detroit and ran ahead of his ticket throughout the district. Mr. Neal's majority is about 750.

Globe Cabinet.

Something new! Something grand! The new Globe Cabinet. Made entirely of metal, is air tight and vermin proof. A great labor saver and prevents waste. Come, everybody, and see for yourself.

CLAY KINGSLEY OF SALEM

HE AND HIS WIFE HAVE DIS-APPEARED.

Detroit Last Week.

SALEM, Nov. 5, 1902.—Staff Correspondent.—Considerable excitement has prevailed here during the last few days, since it became known that Clay Kingsley and wife, a well known young couple living in the west part of the township had suddenly disappeared leaving no word or trace as to their whereabouts. It seems Mr. Kingsley recently bought some cattle of Charles Merritt of Plymouth saying he would pay for them the next day.

In company with his wife, he drove to Plymouth as agreed, where it is said Mr. Kingsley drew $400 from the bank. Instead, however, of paying Mr. Merritt it appears they drove to Northville and left their rig at the barn, saying they would call for it the following day. This is the last seen of them as yet. It is supposed that they took an electric car from Northville some time during the night, but at latest reports no trace of them has been found. A neighbor, Isaac Savery, took the horse and buggy home for Mr. Kingsley's mother, who is nearly distracted over her son's strange disappearance.

Baptist Church Notes.

[By the Pastor]

Mr. Thrasher will exchange pulpits next Sunday with Rev. J. J. Crosby of Howell.

The Woman's Mission Circle will meet with Mrs. D. G. Barbour in the Randolph home next Wednesday at 3.00 p. m.

An excellent program and supper are being arranged by the ladies of the church to be held in the rink Wednesday, Nov. 19th.

Mrs. Thrasher's Sunday-school class is working on an experience social to be given some time this month. A good time may be expected. Don't miss it. Will tell you more later.

All are most cordially invited to attend the B. Y. P. U. Sunday evenings "God's Covenant and Ours" is the topic to be considered. Roy Clark will lead the meeting and he will greatly appreciate your presence.

Methodist Church Notes.

[By the Pastor]

The recent chicken pie supper given by the ladies netted $31.50.

The ladies Foreign Missionary society met at the church parlors Wednesday afternoon.

Assessments for Missions were made in Detroit last Monday upon all appointments in this district $100 was assessed to Northville.

An informal farewell reception was held in the parsonage parlors in honor of Vern Calkins Tuesday evening. He left for New York city on Wednesday. Over forty young people were present.

Next Sunday morning the pastor will preach upon "The Dark Side and Bright Side of a Preachers Life." In the evening the subject will be "PUSH" a sermon to young men as a prelude to this sermon a letter from Alexander McVittie, president of Detroit Ship Building Co. will be read. This letter was received in answer to the question, "Are the chances for young men to succeed now as good as formerly?"

Indian Cave in Connecticut.

Another large Indian cave has just been discovered in the woods on the farm of B. A. Anderson at Stanwich, Conn. It extends over 900 feet, with an opening at either end. Mr. Anderson has found in the cave arrow heads, pieces of pottery and part of a crude necklace or bracelet made out of different colored pieces of flint.

Spitzbergen Deserted.

Spitzbergen belongs to no country, and since the cessation of whaling, it is deserted, even in summer. There are deposits of coal and phosphates, but it does not pay to work them.

Europe's Highest Postoffice.

At Gornegrat, on the Zermatt mountain railroad, stands the highest post-office in Europe. It is over 9,000 feet above sea level.

Equal to the Emergency.

A Frenchman was engaged in translating an American novel, and came to a description of a man "hitching his horse to a locust." This staggered the translator, as he had never heard of the locust tree, but he was equal to the emergency, and in explanation stated that "sauter les" or grasshoppers grew to an immense size in the United States.

School Notes.

[By the Superintendent]

Additional decorations are noticed in the first grade room.

Our eighth grade has made but three tardy marks so far this year.

The B sixth and seventh grades handed in some very good compositions Friday.

Vern Calkins, class of '00, favored the high school with a visit last Tuesday forenoon.

School is closed today in order that the teachers may attend the Teachers' Institute at Detroit.

We expect to encourage our children in the act of making contributions to the poor on Thanksgiving day.

Ray Richardson and Budd Jones, members of the physics class, recently constructed a very neat wheel and axle for use in testing some of the laws of machines.

The fourth grade pupils have built a miniature palisade to assist in their study of colonial life. This is one of the preparations for the observance of Thanksgiving.

Our Board of Education recently arranged with the State Librarian for a set of the Pioneer and Historical collections. The thirty one volumes were received this week.

Miss Sanford, teacher of the Civil Government class, made use of the opportunity on election day and took her class to the polls to instruct them in the method and use of the voting machine.

Presbyterian Church Notes.

[By the Pastor]

The Presbytery of Detroit met in Detroit Monday afternoon.

The offering next Sunday morning will be for church erection and college aid.

The first division of the Ladies' Aid society met at the parsonage Monday evening.

The pastor was in attendance at the County Sunday-school convention at Wayne on Saturday last.

The subscription to the home mission fund may be paid at any time to the pastor or H. M. White.

Rev. W. H. Shannon of Wayne preached an admirable sermon in our church last Sunday morning. He was warmly greeted by many friends.

We are now studying our Sunday-school lessons in our mid-week meeting. All are cordially invited. No one is called upon to speak, but all are free to take part.

On Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 5th, a novel kind of a church party will be given at the home of one of the ladies of the first division. Further particulars and place later.

Next Sunday evening at seven o'clock the pastor will begin a series of sermons on "Success in Life," based upon information which has been kindly furnished by the business men of Northville. The first sermon will be entitled "Yokes in Youth," and will deal with the matter of early life and education. Young men are especially invited to these services.

It will do you good to see my Fall and Winter Samples, from the oldest and best house.

A Flower Without Roots.
On the mountains of California grows a very wonderful flower. It is a twining hyacinth, which climbs up some bush until it reaches the top, and after resting awhile to make sure it has a good hold breaks loose from its root and spreads out its lovely blossoms just as though it received nourishment from its roots.

One Northville lady has ceased to be skeptical concerning the funny stories of peculiar names in epitaphs since she read in a Detroit daily last week among the death notices the name of "Elsie Jubilee Cline." As might naturally be expected the child only lived a short time.

The periodically recurring dog poisoning misadventure is again abroad in Northville. This week's victims have been T. E. Murdock's little spaniel, "Chapple" and A. Gray's bird dog. The climate here would probably be quite warm for the murderer if the wretch could be discovered.

Mrs. Roy T. Smith of Colorado Springs, Col., formerly of this place has gotten decidedly ahead of her lady friends here by going west. A letter received from R. The Halloween social at the Baptist parsonage last Friday evening was very successful in view of the many other events occurring on the same date. A very pleasant social time was enjoyed.

The Northville and Plymouth telephone companies have completed a trunk line, according to the Northville Record. Nothing larger than a small hand sachel can be sent over it however—Adrian Press.

A game of foot ball is to be played this Friday afternoon at 3:30 on the golf grounds between Wayne and Northville gridiron talent. The Northville high school team has arranged a hop in Princess rink in the evening.

Forest Francisco was quite severely hurt Monday at Farmington in a runaway. The horse he was driving became frightened at an electric car and the driver and two children, who were riding with him were thrown out. The children were uninjured, but one of Mr. Francisco's legs was badly bruised and twisted.

The board of supervisors has adjourned and Supervisor Benton comes home with new laurels as an orator. He surprised some of the older heads by his arguments in favor of the incorporation of the villages of Ecorse and Ford. Benton was made chairman of both the sub and standing committees on equalization and was chairman of three special committees.

The handsome R. F. D. wagons in their bright new decorations attracted much attention Saturday morning as they stood in front of the postoffice waiting for the first consignment of mail from Northville to the neighboring farm communities. The usual variety of pro and con opinions as to the benefits to the towns from the system were expressed, but time will have to decide the question.

A large and enthusiastic meeting in the Opera House marked the closing of the political campaign here Monday night. Hon. Grant Fellows of Hudson and Prosecuting Attorney Ormond F. Hunt of Detroit addressed the meeting and were listened to with close attention as they expounded the issues of the day from their standpoint. Fine music was furnished by the Northville band and by Crocker's orchestra. C. C. Chadwick acted as chairman of the meeting, introducing the speaker in a neat and effective manner.

The hop given by the band boys last week was one of the nicest affairs ever held in Northville and was enjoyed by nearly one hundred couples, many being present from Plymouth, Farmington and other places. The music by Crocker's orchestra was exceptionally fine. There were 120 pieces and the good work they did received favorable comments from every one present, and it certainly was as pleasing as any orchestra that has been here upon previous occasions, not excepting even Detroit. Ike Crocker has reason to feel proud of his efforts along that line and the members of the orchestra have reason also to be proud of their leader, Mr. Crocker.

The fine new stairway "up the bank" on the town side of the Pere Marquette depot fills a long-felt want and is the subject of much favorable comment. If only people will keep out from in front of the stairs the change will be a great convenience and save much unprintable language.

The beautiful stage decorations at Plymouth during the Townsend meeting last Monday night were favorably commented upon in all directions. The stage presented a very beautiful sight indeed and it reflected much credit upon the artistic labor of Mr. Decker and Mrs. Pelton, who had the work in charge.

Mrs. P. C. Barbour's Bible Study Class held a very pleasant little Halloween party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James VanDyne Tuesday evening. A Halloween story was read by the teacher and many amusing games and tests of skill along various lines were other features. Several unique prizes were given and light refreshments served. The members of the class and their guests made a company of fifteen.

Charles Thurston of the firm of Thurston & Son has successfully passed the examination before the board of health and is now a licensed embalmer. A body prepared by a licensed embalmer for transportation, avoids a great deal of annoying red tape and it was to protect customers against such annoyance and trouble that Mr. Thurston has pursued the course and passed the required examination—Clare Sentinel.

At the home of Mrs. R. M. Johnson Monday evening, Nov. 10, from 7:30 to 9:30 the WCTU will give a reception to new members secured at the Gospel Temperance meeting Sunday Nov. 2. A short literary program will be given followed by the receiving of the new members by the WCTU form after which refreshments will be served. Each member, new and old, is urged to invite a friend to accompany her. All others interested in the cause of temperance will be welcomed.

A well known Northville gentleman recently demonstrated by actual count that when a man is fully dressed, including his overcoat, he is the possessor of twenty pockets. This is another flagrant example of unjust discrimination against the (so called) weaker sex. Woman doesn't even have one pocket as a rule—except the occasional infinitesimal apology for that useful receptacle which the manufacturer allows put in her coat—and when she insists on having one in her gown she can only discover it once in a while by the merest accident.

The musicale given by Mrs. Norine Merritt, which took the place of the Northville Woman's club and was held last Friday evening at the Library was very enjoyable. A large number of the members of the club and their guests were present notwithstanding several contemporary attractions and the fine music was greatly enjoyed. Mesdames L. H. Lapham and W. S. Jerome as pianists and Mrs. Merritt and Miss Norma Mathews as violinists did some very fine work as usual, and the singing of Mrs. Merritt of Pontiac was much appreciated as was that of Mrs. Cranston and Misses Clark, Crocker and Callahan, who assisted her so charmingly.

The Bed of the Ocean.

At the ocean's bottom at the depth of two miles there is absolute rest—not motion enough to destroy the most delicate organisms, not current enough to mix with them a grain of the finest sand—in the depths of the sea there are no abrading processes at work. Prof. Maury compares these still and silent waters to a "great cushion" to protect and defend the bed of the ocean from a continual wearing.

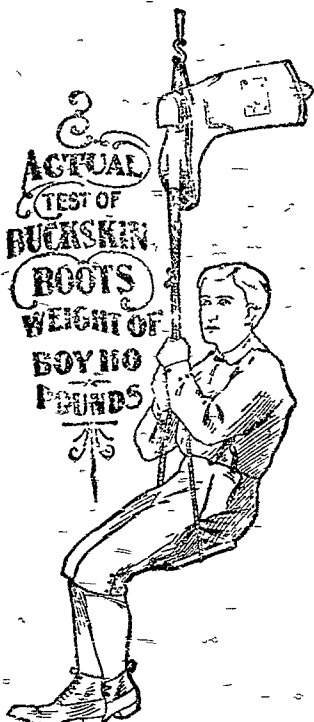

The Bean State.

Michigan has recently risen from third place to the rank of first with regard to its crop of dried beans. This nutritious and necessary food product is chiefly the product of three states—New York, Michigan and California. Massachusetts, notwithstanding its reputation as a consuming center, does not cut any figure in the production. The total annual crop of the United States is about 5,064,400 bushels, valued at $7,033,636.

Reports from various parts of Oakland county show the potato situation to be very discouraging. The crop was harvested under very bad conditions of soil and weather and the effect seems to have been disastrous to the keeping qualities of the vegetable, many pits that have been opened showing a hopeless state in their contents. Beans were also much injured the crop being neither good in quantity or quality, but what is left brings a big price as a matter of course.

Mrs. W. L. Cooley and Miss Mina Cooley of Pontiac and Miss Anna Ethier of Marquette visited Mrs. John Becker the latter part of last week.

Old People's Day will be observed in the Methodist church next Sunday afternoon at 3 p. m. Rev. Mr. Clark will preach the sermon. Everyone is invited to be present, especially the older people.

WOUNDED HEARTS REPAIRED

Wonderful Results from Recent Operations in the New Field of Research.

"Surgery of the heart" is in its infancy, yet some wonderful results have already been recorded. Nine successful operations with thirteen complete recoveries have been obtained out of a total of thirty-four cases thus far reported.

When it is considered that five years ago operations for heart wounds were almost unheard of, the progress thus far made in this branch of science is truly remarkable.

No less wonderful are the improved methods of treating affections of the heart without the use of the surgeon's knife. Unlike the surgeon, whose opportunities are few, the great specialist in heart disease has obtained his knowledge and skill by observing the effects of his treatments upon many patients. Dr. Franklin Miles has complete records of over 80,000 cases of chronic disorders, the great majority of which were complicated with heart troubles. From this great mass of material he has compared results, modified and improved upon his medicines until he can now foretell almost to a certainty just what effect his various treatments will have upon his patients.

I had sharp pains in my heart and it felt so hard that my whole body shook. A short course of treatment with Dr. Miles removed the last trace of heart trouble and I am now as well as I ever was. W. D. Birmingham, Owen, Wis.

I suffered from heart trouble and poor health for fifteen years, and finally my heart broke down. My heart fluttered and pained me constantly and my stomach and head distressed me greatly. Home physicians failed to help me but I was completely cured by Dr. Miles' Special Treatment. Mrs. Alice Baxter, Okaloosa, Ia.

All persons afflicted with heart head, stomach, liver or kidney troubles or nervous diseases of any kind should write for a chart and $4.00 free treatment. Address 201 to 209 State St., Chicago, Ill.

"When writing mention the Northville Record."

To Honor French Patriot.

The corner stone has been laid in Newport, R. I., of a monument to Charles Louis d'Arac De Ternay, admiral of France, who landed there with French troops in 1780 to aid the young republic. Admiral De Ternay died shortly after his arrival and was buried near where he disembarked.

STARTLING, BUT TRUE.

"It every one knew what a grand medicine Dr. King's New Life Pills is," writes Dr. H. Turner, Dempseytown, Pa., "you'd sell all you have in a day. Two weeks' use has made a new man of me." Infallible for constipation, stomach and liver troubles. 25c at Geo. C. Hueston's drug store.

M'Kinley Monument for 'Frisco.

Robert I. Aiken's design has been accepted by the McKinley memorial monument committee of San Francisco. On the monument is a colossal figure of the republic, with a bust of McKinley in bas-relief of stone.

ONE MINUTE COUGH CURE.

Is the only harmless cough cure that gives quick relief. Cures Coughs, Colds, Croup, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Pneumonia, Asthma, LaGrippe and all Throat, Chest and Lung troubles. I got soaked by rain, says Gertrude E. Fenner, Muncie, Ind., and contracted a severe cold and cough. I failed rapidly; lost 48 lbs. My druggist recommended One Minute Cough Cure. The first bottle brought relief; several cured me. I am back to my old weight, 148 lbs. One Minute Cough Cure cuts the phlegm, relieves the cough at once, draws out inflammation, cures croup. An ideal remedy for children. Murdock Bros.

Farmington News.

Will Webster is again suffering with rheumatism.

Mrs. Lyman Sprague has nearly recovered from her illness.

George Spencer of Midland visited his niece Mrs. Harry W. Moore last week.

Rev. George Thompson of Hanover occupied the pulpit of the Universalist church Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Pierce and Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Wilber spent last Friday in Detroit.

Mrs. C. M. Doherty visited her sick brother John McGee in Pontiac last week and found him no better.

Rev. Mr. Bolleis is the teacher of the German school, which was opened Monday in the school room in the new church.

Lots of people here are very indignant over the actions of hunters from Detroit who come on the electric cars, and make our Sabbaths hideous with the incessant banging of guns. Many residents insist that something must be done to put a stop to the annoyance.

Oakland county gave Waterbury Rep. for senator 1,050 majority, and but 55 for Bliss. It gave Sam Smith 1,350 majority, and Fred Warner for secretary of state, 1,560. Brewster, Dem., is elected sheriff by 250 majority but the republicans get the rest of the state ticket.

Gained Forty Pounds in Thirty Days.

For several months our younger brother had been troubled with indigestion. He tried several remedies but got no benefit from them. We purchased some of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and he commenced taking them. Inside of thirty days he had gained forty pounds in flesh. He is now fully recovered. We have a good trade on the tablets. Holley Bros., Merchants, Loug Branch, Mo. For sale by Geo. C. Hueston.

Interesting Visitors Disappointed.

Sir Edmund Barton, Lady Barton and other distinguished visitors from Australia, while on their way home from the coronation, stopped at Washington on Sunday for the express purpose of paying homage to the memory of George Washington. They were much disappointed to find that Mount Vernon, where the first president's remains lie, is closed on Sundays. As time did not permit of delay, they were compelled to leave without seeing the grave.

We A. Herren of Finch, Ark., writes:

"I wish to report that Foley's Kidney Cure has cured a terrible case of kidney and bladder trouble that two doctors had given up. For sale by Murdock Bros."

Meaning of Horse Power.

A horse power is the force required to lift a dead weight of 33,000 pounds one foot a minute. To find the horse power of an engine multiply the area of the piston in inches by the average steam pressure in pounds per square inch. Multiply the product by the travel of the piston in feet per minute and divide that product by 33,000. If an engine is rated at 73 horse power it will raise 33,000 pounds one foot seventy-three times in one minute.

A THANKSGIVING DINNER.

Heavy eating is usually the first cause of indigestion. Repeated attacks inflame the mucous membranes lining the stomach, expose the nerves of the stomach, producing a swelling after eating, heartburn, headache, sour risings and finally catarrh of the stomach. Kodol relieves the inflammation, protects the nerves and cures the catarrh. Kodol cures indigestion, dyspepsia, all stomach troubles by cleansing and sweetening the glands of the stomach. Murdock Bros.

First Aid to the Injured.

A novel apparatus to assist in rendering first aid in case of accidents has been tried in Paris. It is like a pillar letter box, and contains a folding stretcher, a few medicines, etc. In order to get at these objects it is necessary to break the glass, as when "calling" a fire engine. In this way the key of the case and access to a telephone inside communicating with the ambulance station are obtained.

Served with Andreas Hofer.

Hoggar Jaggle, who was drummer boy for Andreas Hofer in the war against the great Napoleon, celebrated his 102d birthday the other day at Vienna. He became attached to the person of the peasant general, when nine years old, attended him on all his battles and still remembers many of the heroes of that day, particularly Viceroy Eugene, Napoleon's beloved step son.

No matter how long you have had the cough; if it hasn't already developed into consumption, Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will cure it.

Girl Was Long-Headed.

A pretty Connecticut girl, who sent some reading matter to the soldiers in the Philippines, has captured a pair of shoulder straps, with a man under them, through her thoughtfulness of the men at the front. It always pays a girl to be good, and especially to the defenders of her country. Most any old time the defender of his country may become the defender of "just one girl."

Courts for Women.

It is proposed in France to establish a Court of Justice run by women and for women, to which may be carried all those cases concerning which the most learned men know nothing. This will relieve a man Judge, for instance, from determining questions as to fit in suits brought by dressmakers against their clients, and it ought to do away also with much expert testimony in such cases.

IN NORTHVILLE

Every Claim Is Backed by Local Testimony.

"If the reader wants stronger proof than the following statement and experience of a citizen here at home what can it be?"

Mrs. E. E. Vanatta, husband book-keeper in the Dubbar factory and living at 66 Randolph street, says: "I most assuredly think Doan's Kidney Pills a remedy of great merit. I was bothered for some time with a dull-aching miserable feeling in my back which to say the least was very annoying. In some way Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my notice and thinking if they did not do me any good they would not do me any harm I procured a box at Murdock Bros. drug store and began the treatment. I will cheerfully say this: I derived more benefit from them than any other remedy I ever used."

Price, 50 cents per box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name Doan's and take no other.

Wealth of South America.

The numerous islands of Patagonia archipelago are covered with evergreen forests capable of supplying immense quantities of valuable timber, while the mountain ranges, being of the same geological formation as those of Chile and Peru, are probably rich in mineral resources.

A STARTLING SURPRISE.

Very few could believe in looking at A. T. Hoadley, a healthy, robust blacksmith of Tilden, Ind., that for 10 years he suffered such tortures from Rheumatism as few could endure and live. But a wonderful change followed his taking Electric Bitters. "Two bottles wholly cured me," he writes, "and I have not felt a twinge in over a year." They regulate the Kidneys, purify the blood and cure Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Nervousness, improve digestion and give perfect health. Try them. Only 50 cts at Geo. C. Hueston's drug store.

Have Had Long Lives.

An exceptional case of longevity is reported from North Walsham, in Norfolk, England. There are living together in one house three ladies and a gentleman who recently, for the fourth time, participated in coronation festivities. They are all in the enjoyment of good health, and their respective ages are 85, 84, 84 and 83, a grand total of 336.

A big haul by highwaymen, substitutes and others who steal the good name and fame of Rocky Mountain Tea made famous by Madison Medicine Co. 35c—Murdock Bros.

Women at German Universities.

There are at present 899 female students at the German universities, as against 737 last summer. Of these Berlin has 370, Bonn 84, Heidelberg 70, Breslau 65, Leipzig 53, Freiburg 43, Göttingen 38, Königsberg 36, Straßburg 29, Halle 28, Munich 22, etc. Usually the number of "coeds" is larger during the winter semester than in summer. Thus, there were 1,262 "hearers" last winter and 1,029 in the winter half-year of 1900-01.

CURED OF PILES AFTER 40 YEARS.

Mr. C. Haney, of Geneva, Ohio, had the piles for forty years. Doctors and dollars could do him no lasting good. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured him permanently. Invaluable for cuts, burns, bruises, sprains, lacerations, eczema, tetter, salt rheum, and all other skin diseases. Look for the name DeWitt on the package—all others are cheap, worthless counterfeits. Murdock Bros.

A Railroad Without Victims.

On the Mexican National Narrow Gauge Railroad from Corpus Christie through Laredo to the City of Mexico, with its branches amounting to more than 1,200 miles of operated road, for more than 20 years no passenger has been killed. Yet this road climbs more mountains and turns more curves than any road in the United States.

ASLEEP AMID FLAMES.

Breaking into a blazing home, some firemen lately dragged the sleeping inmates from death. Fancied security, and death near. It's that way when you neglect coughs and colds. Don't do it. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption gives perfect protection against all Throat, Chest and Lung Troubles. Keep it near, and avoid suffering, death, and doctor's bills. A teaspoonful stops a late cough, persistent use the most stubborn. Harmless and nice tasting, it's guaranteed to satisfy by Geo. C. Hueston. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

Egg Consumption in England.

Eggs consumed in England during the past twelve months would, it is computed, fill upward of 40,000 railway trucks. Of these only one-third were English, and in consequence an enormous sum of money was sent out of the country that might be kept at home had those engaged in rural industries been alive to their opportunities, says Pearson's Magazine.

Horace Greeley's Wit.
A recently published pamphlet recalls the old dispute of two friends as to whether the word "news" was singular or plural. They telegraphed to Mr. Greeley the question "Are there any news?" and he promptly flashed back the answer, "Not a new."

May Find Cure for Leprosy.
The territorial board of health of Hawaii is to begin a series of experiments to determine the value of X-rays in the treatment of leprosy.

Don't forget the old man with the fish on his back. For nearly thirty years he has been traveling around the world, and is still traveling, bringing health and comfort wherever he goes.

To the consumptive he brings the strength and flesh he so much needs.

To all weak and sickly children he gives rich and strengthening food.

To thin and pale persons he gives new firm flesh and rich red blood.

Children who first saw the old man with the fish are now grown up and have children of their own.

He stands for Scott's Emulsion of pure cod liver oil—a delightful food and a natural tonic for children, for old folks and for all who need flesh and strength.

Who Pays the Printer?

When you go around from printer to printer getting bids on a job and then giving it to the lowest bidder, you get an indifferently good job—one with no particularly good points—one that sells no goods for you, then who pays the printer?

YOU DO.

When you pick out a good printer, giving him all your work, educating him to an idea of your needs, and paying a fair price for the work you get, your printed matter (when secured at the Record Printery) necessarily creates a favorable impression for you and for what you offer, and becomes a factor in selling your goods. Then who pays the printer? Your customer.

HE DOES.

MASTER and SLAVE

The supper ended, the three men, leaving the room, found standing under the veranda, hat in hand, a young quadroon of small stature and intelligent face. He was well clothed, and his manner was polite and humble.

"Well, Leon," said Oakfell, "this is a surprise. I should have thought after jockeying so skillfully for Mr. Quillebert today you would have been kept at home tonight to be exhibited to his admiring friends."

"He did try to keep me, Mr. Horace," replied Leon, "but I would not stay."

"What? You ran away, Leon? Do you not know the patrol law and the danger of your being out after dark without Mr. Quillebert's written permission?"

"I came away, Mr. Horace. I did not run away, and I know of the patrol law, but not offensively. I had to see you tonight, sir, and I have come to tell you my troubles and ask your advice and help. If I am wrong, you will tell me so, and I hope you will help me. I have always believed you to be the best man in this country, and I know you cannot do or aid a wrong. I beg that you will hear me." Tears rolled down his face, and his hands were held out beseechingly.

"I cannot refuse to hear you, Leon," said Horace. "Walk into my office."

"Mr. Horace, will Mrs. Wyle be so good as to be present when I tell you about myself? She has known me all my life. I want her to hear me. She may know more about me than I do not. Will she be so kind as to come into the office, Mr. Bunker?" turning to the overseer.

"I have no doubt she will," the latter said.

"Request your mother to do so," Horace said to Bunker. "and you, Leon, go to the kitchen and get supper. Come here half an hour from now."

"If you will excuse me, brother, I will go to my room. I believe the tragedy of 'Richard III' will interest me more than Leon's melodrama," Evariste said and mounted the stairway.

Oakfell lighted a cigar and awaited Mrs. Wyle and Leon in the office.

CHAPTER V. LEON'S QUEST.

"YOU desired my presence, Mr. Oakfell?" said Mrs. Wyle, entering the office, followed by a servant, who placed lights upon the table and retired.

"Yes, Mrs. Wyle, if you can spare the time to assist me in giving audience to Quillebert's jockey, Leon, who, in apparently great distress, entreats it," Horace replied.

"Indeed I am more than willing to do so," she said, resuming the large rocker. "For I have always felt there was something foully wrong in that Frenchman's treatment of the boy."

"Have you any personal knowledge bearing upon it?"

"I know a good deal about the beginning of it and am anxious to tell you all I can with certainty."

Leon appeared timidly upon the threshold and was bidden assuringly to be seated. He hesitated; but the invitation being repeated by Mrs. Wyle in a tone conveying something of command, he complied, first laying his hat upon a bench outside the door. He was manifestly agitated, embarrassed and apprehensive, and, though ample time was given him to open the conversation, he sat confused and silent.

"This interview is of your own seeking, Leon," said Horace, "and has been granted by Mrs. Wyle and myself. You ask for my advice and help. Whether either or both will be given must depend upon the character of your statement. Now proceed to tell your trouble without reserve, for we are kindly disposed to you, but tell it with absolute truth. You must not mislead me into action or speech by a falsehood. Give me facts only. Upon this condition I will advise to the best of my ability for your good and possibly assist you to make the advice effective. We are waiting to hear you."

"We are waiting to hear you."

With visible effort to repress his excitement Leon said:

"I cannot speak well like you, Mr. Horace, and some of the things I will tell you I do not at all understand. I know that until I was 10 or 11 years old I lived with Mrs. Wyle on the Lallande plantation, on Atchafalaya river. One day she sent me to Mr. Constant Quillebert's plantation to see my mother and get some presents from M. Constant, who was my godfather. He would not let me go back to Mrs. Wyle and has kept me on his place since."

Oakfell looked inquiringly at Mrs. Wyle, whose eyes responded a confirmation. Leon continued:

"M. Constant has treated me differently from the others on his plantation. I have never been put to field work. Up to the time I was 15 he made me stay about the house, and after that he put me in charge of his best horses. Now, as you know, Mr. Horace, I am his jockey and ride for him at all the races."

"And from what I hear you give him satisfaction in that capacity," Horace remarked.

"Yes, sir," said Leon, "except when he loses a race, and then he curses me for not punishing the horses. That I will not do, for I know they try their best, as I do mine. But he has never whipped me—the others, yes, my mother and all, for he is terrible. In a passion, but not me. My mother has said that I do not belong to him, that I am not a slave, that I am free, and he whipped her for telling me so."

"I am not a slave, that I am free, and he whipped her for telling me so," Leon said, though he never said anything to me about it. I do not understand it. Father Gibe, who christened me, has told me the same thing. But I cannot explain how it is. One day when I was crossing some houses on the ferry at Bayou du Lac M. Valsin Monillet said to me that he had heard M. Constant admit I did not belong to him or to anybody else."

"Can this have been true, Mrs. Wyle?" inquired Horace.

"I am not prepared to say no," replied Mrs. Wyle.

"Though I have feared to speak to M. Constant about it," Leon resumed, "I have always believed I am not a slave and have hoped that something would occur to put me in my freedom. But my hope has been today destroyed. All that cheered me has been denied. Please, Mr. Horace and madame, do not laugh at me and think me foolish for what I am going to tell you now. I am in love!"

He hung his head like a guilty child—"and my love has made me strong, obedient and patient. I love Odette, the maid of Mlle. Estelle Lallande, and she has said she would be my wife. She is a good, faithful, true girl. To me she is lovelier than the yellow jasmine, and the thought of her has kept me honest and cheerful and has made me kinder to my horses. Her mistress loves her and more than a year ago promised to set her free."

When I should be ready to marry her. But last night she met me weeping and broken hearted, for mademoiselle had informed her that she could not give her freedom, because the law had changed in spite of Mr. Horace's noble opposition so as to forbid the emancipation of slaves. I could not console her. It seemed as if this news took all my life away. Not a moment have I slept since. All the night long I walked up and down in the stables save when I rested my head on one of the horses and cried like a woman. But with the daybreak came a hope. I remembered that if I myself was not a slave I could buy Odette and make her free by taking her to a free state, and I determined to ask M. Constant to lend me the price of my bride, to be paid him in services in the stable and on the track as long as would be reasonable. Knowing how set he was on beating Judge Elgee's mare today and that he had bet heavy sums on the race, I made up my mind to win it for him even at the risk of my neck, so as to have his favor when I should ask him for the loan, which I would do before sundown if my mare kept her feet. He would not refuse then. I felt sure."

Again I cried, but from joy, and I danced with happiness, and I whistled like a mocking bird as I patted and rubbed Charlotte Corday and prayed to her to carry me out of my trouble. Belle Cheney has better points than Charlotte, and I trembled as I saw her leap to the stand. But when the word was given I leaped down and shouted, 'Odette' in my mare's ear. At the end of the track I saw not the post, but only Odette's sweet face. In the crowd's roar and yell in the last stretch I heard only the name Odette, and when I shot under the line I saw Odette standing with her mistress on the veranda of Father Gibe's house, waving her hand to me. After caring for the mare and kissing her forehead I went to Mlle. Lallande and asked her if she would sell Odette to me and at what price. She said she would for $100 and, laying her snow white hand on Odette's shoulder, added that she would give the price and something more to the bride as a dot on her wedding day. Odette kissed that little hand and, with a smile of happiness, expressed our thankfulness. Mine was then the lightest heart that ever beat in a poor man's breast, and I made my request to M. Constant on his return home. But, Mr. Oakfell, a knife run through my body could not have given the pain his answer did. His eyes almost closed and his face trembled with anger as he said: "You scoundrel! Why should you buy a wife? If you did, she would be my slave. Whatever you acquire will be mine." How so, M. Constant? I asked. "I am a free man. Like a mad dog he leaped at me, clutching me by the throat and screamed: 'You lie! You are my slave! If you ever dare again to deny it, I will lay the lash on you till you will wish you were dead!' And he flung me away from him with the vilest curses. Crushed and all but blind, I staggered to the stable and hid my face in Charlotte Corday's mane until my thoughts came back to me. Then, not knowing or caring whether I was seen, I went to Mlle. Lallande and informed her what had occurred. She said to me: 'Go at once to Mr. Horace Oakfell, the only real man of this country. Tell him I ask him to hear you and thwart the evil purpose of that wicked Quillebert. Mr. Oakfell has the true eye to see what is just and the brave heart to do it.' As I was leaving the yard I met M. Leonidas Lallande and asked him whether he would not buy me if I was M. Constant's slave, and he said he would think it over. I came directly here. I have told nothing but the truth. For the sake of justice, for the sake of Jesus, who, the priest says, was friendless as I am; for the sake of Mlle. Lallande, advise and protect me, Mr. Oakfell, and you, Mrs. Wyle, who were always kind to me and never had cause to chide me."

The poor fellow in his excitement had unconsciously risen at the close of his narrative and assumed an attitude of supplication eloquent in its naturalness and earnestness, and his two auditors looked from him to each other with expressions of astonishment and wounded consciences.

"A dreadful recital, if true," Oakfell said.

"Even the mercy of heaven must be stretched to cover such wickedness," was Mrs. Wyle's comment.

"Do you feel inclined to give me your recollection of this matter, Mrs. Wyle?" asked Oakfell.

"Yes, sir," she replied, "not only inclined, but eager to do so. When Leon was but an infant, Febeu Queyrouze owned the plantation adjoining Lallande's, of which my husband was the overseer. It was on those days that I first saw Quillebert, who visited Queyrouze on Sundays. It seems they had known each other in France. By the request of Queyrouze, Quillebert stood as godfather at the child's christening at Mansura by Father Gibe, who had but recently arrived in this country. Queyrouze was very fond of this child, but was greatly displeased for some cause with the mother, Olive, who, with her children, was his slave. The year the cholera was so bad—I think it was in 1833—on returning home from a visit to New Orleans he told his overseer, Belisaire Poydre, that he intended Leon to be free and directed that he be sent to me to be raised. The following day he died of the cholera. He had befriended my husband in a serious trouble, so that when, two days after his death, a nurse came to us with the child and a message from Poydre conveying the wish of Queyrouze we consented, and I took charge of the little one. Of course he was favored by us and never caused me to regret our action. As child and boy he was good natured, respectful and obedient."

"Queyrouze was a bachelor, and his helts lived in France. His will instructed Poydre to wind up his affairs, sell his property and deliver the proceeds to the heirs. This he did four years later. Quillebert bought Olive and her three other children. Leon was not included in the sale, but remained with me. Belisaire Poydre died of yellow fever in 1840. My poor husband was carried off by the same disease in 1843. About six months after my husband's death I received a request from Quillebert to send Leon to visit his mother and receive some presents from his godfather, and suspecting no trick, I did so. Leon did not come back. I wrote Quillebert a note asking why he detained him. He returned the verbal answer that the boy preferred to remain with his mother. This I did not believe, but I felt myself helpless and took no further steps in the matter. This is all I know of it. I do not pretend to understand the law, but I have always thought Leon was free."

At these last words Leon's face brightened, and he looked eagerly and anxiously to Oakfell.

"And my thought agrees with yours," said the latter.

"Oh, thank the good God!" exclaimed Leon, falling on his knees. "And you will secure and protect me in my freedom, Mr. Horace? You are white, you are rich, you are wise, you are powerful. Defend me from this man who enslaves me against law and justice."

"I will, poor fellow, to the utmost of my power," Oakfell promised. "And if I succeed in establishing your freedom I will lend you the money to buy Odette."

Leon wrung his hands in a paroxysm of joy, but could not speak. His gratitude, Mrs. Wyle, however, was moved to say, "God will be on your side in the fight, Mr. Oakfell."

"I can only prevail by the humanity and justice of our laws," said Oakfell. "Listen to me, Leon. I must proceed in this undertaking with deliberation. My course will arouse bitter opposition and bad feeling, which should not be provoked prematurely. Meanwhile you must be absolutely under my direction and pledge implicit obedience to my instruction, though it may involve suffering. It is proper that at the institution of your suit for freedom you should be under the apparent control of Quillebert. You must not be a fugitive when you sue for freedom. Therefore you must return to his plantation, though he may put the lash to you for being away tonight. Do not disclose that you have spoken to Mrs. Wyle or myself, though he should torture you to extort the confession, for if he learns that you have conferred with us I do not doubt he will kill you. Can you keep your counsel and ours and endure his cruelty until I send for you and give you further instructions?"

"Mr. Oakfell, I will take the lash and any pains he can put me to if I can gain my freedom and Odette, and neither whip nor fire can force from me one word about this meeting."

"Go, then," said Oakfell, "and be firm."

"God help me to be firm and to be grateful for your goodness and that of Mrs. Wyle," Leon replied and withdrew.

"What is all this, brother?" said Evariste, smiling and entering the office with noiseless step. "Are you holding abolitionist meetings and receiving messages by the grapevine line? Beware, for there is danger in that."

Oakfell explained fully the evening's incident, requesting Evariste's secrecy. "Certainly," said the latter; "I will be silent as the tomb. But indeed I warn you there is more peril in your undertaking than in a genuine abolition grapevine convocation. That fellow Quillebert is a devil incarnate. He is as venomous as an adder and as conscienceless. To deliver a thrust from behind or a shot in the dark is as easy to him as a gulp of absinth. He is a relentless hater and already has his evil eye on you as an American and as the champion of Estelle Lallande. Moreover, he has a following among the lowest fellows of this parish. Reflect before you draw the ire of such a rascal for the sake of a saffron jockey who never can be more than he is at this present moment."

"Evariste, your affection for me leads you to magnify the dangers and minimize the cause," Horace answered.

"You are perhaps young yet to weigh the considerations which have appealed to my conscience tonight. I feel that this disclosure has laid upon me a duty which it would be disgraceful and cowardly in me to shirk. I would assume it were the perils ten thousand times greater than those you imagine. But I do not wish you to be in the least troubled about it. Only sacredly keep what I have confided to you."

Evariste again promised, and good nights were spoken, but the lights in the office burned till the smallest hour of the morning.

CHAPTER VI. A HEART OF FEAR.

TWO items of Leon's recital lingered pleasingly in Oakfell's thoughts, Estelle's generous consent to sell Odette to her lover and bestow the price for marriage provision and her confident reference to him (Oakfell) as the one man of the parish able and willing to defend the weak against the injustice of the powerful oppressor. His admiration and self esteem were appealed to effectively, and he found himself wondering why he had not seen the grand daughter of Lallande during the past three years and whether the child he remembered could justify Evariste's rapturous description of the beauty he had met at Father Gibe's table. Her responses to the appeals of Leon bespoke her a person of superior qualities of character, tender sympathies, courage in high resolutions.

His truly chivalrous mind kept all women upon pedestals, and in his regard all possessed some of the sweet perfections with which his mother and Mme. Fidele were endowed. Yet, though he was keenly sensible of the attractions of the bayou belles and prairie lasses, he had remained heart free. Evariste had before repeated to him commendations spoken by the fair, and if they had fallen gratefully on his ear they had failed to stir his imagination, but the words of Estelle surprised and thrilled him. Such emotions defy analysis, and thus, without understanding why, he realized that the task he had from conscience imposed upon himself took a poetic color which it had wholly wanted but for her interest. He experienced no difficulty in deciding that he should without loss of time call on his gentle colleague, both to pledge his loyalty to the cause she had espoused and delicately warn her to reticence in the presence of her voluble grandfather, whose malleability in the masterful hands of Quillebert might otherwise become the fruitful source of mischief.

(To be continued next week.)

Not Hopeful of Success.
The minister of a rural parish, in Scotland, having neglected to pray for rain in time of drought, a deputation was appointed to wait upon him and remonstrate with him on the subject. After hearing what they had to say he replied, "Weel, weel, I'll pray for rain to please ye, but the feint a drap ye'll get till the change o' the moon."

The Grand Excelsior (South Lyon) is trying to bloom the local market to be by recommending warm (the subject) applications on short notice many very youthful "hot" fellows of that village who are courting in the semi-private of the back streets. Wayne is now among the enlightened villages. An acetylene plant is in operation there and the old street lamps—which have caused much profanity and many jokes, some of which were almost as feeble as the light the lamps sent forth—are but a dim memory. The installation of the new illumination was celebrated by a banquet at the Commercial House tendered by Mr. Shute, the patentee and manager of the lighting system, and he showed himself to be a shining light in the banquet business also. He did it up in such good shape that nobody even suggested a desire to "shoot the Shute," but as a finale to the celebration of the emergence of Wayne from the dark ages an evening trolley ride to Plymouth on the D. P. & N. was tendered the feasters. As a little side show the car went off the rails somewhere on the route and the erstwhile happy banquet speakers had a chance to make some more light remarks while they waited an hour and a half in the peaceful rural shades for a chance to proceed on their weary way.

Whitney's Opera House—Detroit.

It is not surprising that much attaches to the coming production in Detroit of the sensational melodrama by Owen Davis entitled "A Gambler's Daughter," as the piece has created a tremendous impression in other cities and has become one of the great hits of the season. It will be given at the Whitney Theatre next week and will undoubtedly play to packed houses. It is a very ingenious as well as interesting story of city life. The heroine's father is a prominent board of trade man who secretly maintains and conducts a gambling establishment on Michigan avenue. Some clever songs and new specialties are introduced in the performance.

BOWSER STARTS A FEUD

(Copyright, 1902, by C. B. Lewis.)

THERE are occasions when Mr. Bowser saunters into the shop of his family butcher to inform the man of meat and bone that he doesn't know his business and ought to go to work in a sawmill, and the butcher bristles up and demands to know:

"What do you know about this business? I might as well advise you to go driving on ice wagon."

Then they have it hot and heavy for a quarter of an hour. Mr. Bowser insists that the butcher does not know how to cut up a hind quarter, and the butcher retorts that Bowser never had a cook who knew the difference between a porterhouse steak and a real cutlet. Bowser walks out of the shop declaring that he will never buy another pound of meat from any such carpenter, and the butcher calls after him that he can go to Texas with his custom. In a day or two, however, all is peace and harmony again, and the amount of bone with the steak is a little larger. It is the same with Mr. Bowser's laundry, his cobbler and his grocer. If he didn't stir them up once in awhile, he wouldn't be Bowser, his family druggist is by no means forgotten as he makes his round. When the man first came into the neighborhood, Mr. Bowser took an early opportunity to tell and remark:

"You are supposed to know your business as a druggist, and I hope you do. This is no neighborhood for a man dunno—I dunno. You were gawping all around the store as you put it up, and it's only one chance in a thousand that you haven't worked something else in."

"Then you'd better leave it," the druggist would reply.

"I'll do nothing of the kind. If this turns out to be a blunder, up you go to a lamppost!"

"Bowser, you're a crank!"

"And you ought to be running a carpenter shop!"

Sometimes the druggist would hear nothing further of the mixture nor see Mr. Bowser again for a week, but on other occasions his night bell would be rung furiously at midnight, and upon pushing downstairs he would find Mr. Bowser and be greeted with:

"I told you you'd mixed poison with that cough syrup. You did! I have taken two doses of it and am almost in convulsions! If I don't have you dangling from a lamppost before you are an hour older, then my name isn't Bowser."

Then Bowser would rush off and leave the druggist to sweat and swear through the rest of the night, and he'd hear no more of the case for two or three days. It was at such times that Mr. Bowser had the best of it, but the druggist never failed to come back at him. If Bowser dropped in when there were three or four other people present, he'd be publicly saluted with:

"Good evening, Mr. Bowser; good evening. Just wait a minute, and I'll who puts up arsenic for quinine. You'd better turn a hundred prescriptions away than make one blunder."

"JUST WAIT A MINUTE—AND I'LL GET THAT HAIR DYE FOR YOU."

"I think I can run this business," replied the druggist with all proper dignity.

"Well, perhaps you can, but it will be well to keep your eyes open. I shall trade with you more or less, and if you make a blunder with me you'll find a man who'll follow you to your grave."

"You might take your custom elsewhere."

"But I don't propose to. This is a drug store and you are supposed to be a druggist. I shall get what I want in the drug line right here." The druggist decided that Mr. Bowser was an old crank and that the less he saw of him the better, and Mr. Bowser decided that the druggist needed to be taken down a few pegs. There was another drug store only a block away, but he would do all his buying at this one out of spite. It wasn't three days before he felt aguish and wanted some quinine, and he dropped in to say:

"If you think you can put up a quarter's worth of two grain quinine capsules, go ahead and do it, but don't ring in morphine or strychnine on me."

"For fear of mistakes you'd better go elsewhere," replied the druggist.

"I'll be hanged if I do!" shouted Mr. Bowser as he pounded on the counter. "You are either a druggist or not a druggist. You either know enough to put up quinine capsules or you don't. I stand on my rights."

The druggist took the bluff and put up the quinine, but as he closed the deal he couldn't help saying:

"There are folks in this neighborhood who seem to go with a crank."

"And there are druggists around here who want to laul in their horns if they expect to keep out of bankruptcy," replied Mr. Bowser as he walked out.

This state of affairs has existed for the last three years, and Mr. Bowser enjoys it and wouldn't have it otherwise. There are times when the laundry is locked up and when the butcher seems in a dangerous mood, but the drug store is always open and the druggist always ready to make a fair fight of it. Mr. Bowser has been determined to humble that druggist or perish in the attempt, and the druggist has been determined to maintain his independence if his sales fell off to a pound of camphor balls per week.

On occasions Mr. Bowser has dropped in for a gargle or a cough mixture, and as he received the bottle he would shake his head and soberly remark:

"May possibly be all right, but I get that hair dye for you. I've also got a new supply of your complexion powder. If you were only a widower now, you wouldn't look a day over sixty."

Then Mr. Bowser would turn forty kinds of red and white and swear in the whispered language of every nation on earth, and one had only to observe him to decide that the druggist had the better of it.

Fifty different times Mr. Bowser has entered that drug store with no other errand than to pick a fuss. His custom on such occasions is to wait up and down the store for three or four minutes and then suddenly turn on the druggist with:

"Well, how many men, women and children have you poisoned off today?"

"None of your business."

"Perhaps not; but if you ever poison one of my family it'll be some of my business, and don't you forget it."

"If the family numbered one less, it would be a good thing for this neighborhood."

"And there will be one less druggist above ground if you don't learn the difference between paregoric and laudanum."

Mrs. Bowser has talked and argued, but it has done no good. Mr. Bowser is a man who never gives up, and the druggist has an iron jaw. In most wars there is a truce or a rest now and then, but there is no let up in this. Neither of the men ever goes into winter quarters. A week ago a mutual friend conceived the idea of bridging the chasm, and he called upon Mr. Bowser first. He had begun to tell him that it was his duty as a leading citizen of the neighborhood to meet advances half way when he was interrupted with:

"Say no more, not another word. That man is too independent and he's got to be humbled. I'll make him come to time if it takes me ten years. Aye, I'll bring him low or perish in the attempt."

It was hoped to find the druggist more reasonable, but disappointment awaited the would be mediator. He had only mentioned the name of Bowser when the druggist held up his hands and shouted:

"Never! Never! That Bowser is an old crank and a durned mean man, and I'll make him get down and chew gum if it takes a hundred years to do it!"

BANKERS TO MEET.

Convention Whose Membership Represents $8,000,000,000.

When the twenty-eighth annual convention of the American Bankers' association is called to order by President Myron T. Herrick in New Orleans on Nov. 11, there will be assembled a body of men who represent in the aggregate over $8,000,000,000.

The association of bankers was organized in 1873, and since that time, especially in the last ten years, has exercised a great influence in the financial affairs of the country. To Mr. J. T. Hovewstein of Washington is accorded the credit of founding the association, which held its first meeting at Saratoga.

One of the reasons for the formation of the association was the necessity of co-operation in safeguarding against burglars, forgers and other syndicates who up to that time had caused heavy losses to many banking institutions.

Through the efforts of the protective committee of the association many of the big criminals have been put in prison and such a check has been put on forgery that this once profitable swindle is practically wiped out.

A fund is provided for the detection and prosecution of bank robbers and forgers, and when a member of the association is victimized in any way the protective committee puts detectives at work and never ceases its pursuit until the perpetrator is found.

Myron T. Herrick, the president of the association, is one of the best known bankers of the middle west. He is president of the Society For Savings of Cleveland, an institution that has deposits of over $35,000,000 and a surplus of $2,000,000. Mr. Herrick's success with the savings institution was largely due to his encouragement of small deposit accounts.

Mr. Herrick was a warm friend of the late President McKinley and was offered the post of ambassador to Italy, but was unable to accept for business reasons. He is a native of Ohio and is forty-eight years old. He studied law and was admitted to the bar, but gave up the legal profession for finance. He is interested in various other financial institutions and is wealthy.

A FAIR AUTOMOBILIST.

An American Countess Who Acts as Her Own Chauffeur.

The ladies of title and fashion in England have taken to automobile so enthusiastically that to acknowledge inability to manage a motor car is to put oneself outside the pale of social notability. One of the recent acquisitions to the ranks of the motorists is the American Countess of Criven. With her young son she is frequently seen in her car, which she drives with much skill.

Countess Criven is a daughter of Mr. Bradley Martin of New York, the famous millionaire who created such a sensation some years ago by the much talked of bill which was supposed to have cost more money than any similar entertainment ever did before.

Lady Criven, who was only sixteen when she married Lord Criven in 1893, has one child, Lord Uffington, born in 1897. She has always been a keen participant in outdoor sports of every kind.
