FRANK LEWIS GETS PENSION

UNCLE SAM DID RIGHT THING BY HIM.

Thirty Dollars a Month for Balance Of His Life.

The many friends of Frank Lewis will be glad to learn that the U. S. government has recognized his services and on account of the disabilities resulting therefrom has granted him a pension of thirty dollars a month.

Sergeant Lewis' war record was so exceptionally good that when Senator Burroughs and Congressman Smith became interested in his case through the efforts of the representative from this district they took it up with such effectiveness as to procure special action on the part of the pension department at Washington with the result that on last Friday evening Frank received a voucher for $248 back pay and at the usual time will receive his $90 check for his first three months' pension.

Frank will also be given an allowance for the purchase of an artificial limb in the place of the one amputated last February, but we regret to say that the condition of the leg is such that he cannot yet use an artificial one, as the disease—tropical ulcers—which caused the loss of his leg has left it in a condition which makes it very obstinate about healing. However, it is hoped that this may be successfully accomplished after a while so that Frank can once more see how it seems to walk without crutches.

SERGEANT FRANK LEWIS

As has been before stated by the Record, the officers of Sergt. Lewis' regiment speak of his conduct as a soldier in the highest terms and have officially stated that he determinedly took part in active service when not fit for duty and even when he had been ordered to the hospital. He nearly died from fever in the south during his first enlistment, but being disappointed about participating in the Cuban war he re-enlisted as soon as possible and went to the Philippines, where he saw enough active service to make up for lost time. He was twice wounded, once across the face and once through the leg, although the ulcers did not come from the wound, but were a result of the action of the climate on the system and caused much suffering and frequent deaths among the soldiers.

Says It's Deserved Compliment.

The return of F. S. Neal to his seat in the next legislature from this district is a deserved compliment to that gentleman. He is the only republican representative to be re-elected in the county outside of Detroit. And the fact that he ran ahead of his ticket in nearly every precinct throughout the district shows that the people have confidence in him. His majority is nearly 800.—Trenton Times.

Union Thanksgiving Service.

The usual union Thanksgiving service will be held at the Baptist church on Thursday of next week, Nov. 27th, at 11 a. m. Rev. W. S. Jerome will preach the sermon. The service will begin promptly at 11 o'clock and will be one hour long. All are cordially invited.

GOES UP FOR 90 DAYS.

Charles Missener Refused to Support His Young Wife.

Charles Missener was up before Judge Webster Tuesday on a disorderly charge preferred by his wife for non-support. He refused to give $300 bond to keep the peace and contribute $3 a week for his wife and child's support. He also declined to pay $30 for 13 weeks' support and the judge gave him a taste of the law and he will try 90 days in the Detroit House of Correction. Missener has been working in Novi for some time past while his young wife and child have been living with her sister in this town. She was formerly Mary Jonas.

Lively Foot Ball Game Saturday.

A hotly contested and consequently interesting game of foot ball was played on the grounds of the Northville Golf club Saturday afternoon between the Northville "High School" team and "Bishop's Prides" of Wyandotte. The visitors were game to the last, but the Northvillians were too much for them and came out victorious by a score of 16 to 0. "Chick" Evans, one of the star players of the home team, was the first man to require the services of a physician. His collar bone was broken in one of the "scrimmages" of the first half, but after very composedly walking up to Dr. Turner's office and getting it fixed up, he pluckily returned to the grounds to see the game out.

John Joslin was also a "victim" and was a candidate for artificial respiration when rescued from one of the "jam piles," but was able to keep in the game to the finish.

W. R. C. Annual Inspection.

A. M. Harmon W. R. C. held its annual inspection at G. A. R. hall Wednesday afternoon with Miss Lydia C. Hopkins of Detroit, president of the department of Michigan, as inspecting officer. Miss Hopkins expressed warm approval of the work of the corps and commended the efficiency displayed in all its departments. A dainty supper was served at the close of the work and a pleasant social hour enjoyed. There was a large attendance of the members and besides the department president visitors were present from Detroit, Milford, Newburg and Plymouth, making a company of over forty.

Each Sabbath morning printed slips containing ten questions upon the chapters to be read the succeeding week will be distributed to the congregation. The answers to these questions are to be given the respective secretaries. A term consists of ten weeks, having 100 questions covering 70 chapters. Each week's reading will form a study occupying a portion of the Thursday night service. Every correct answer gains a credit of one to the section where the writer resides, and each attendance at the Thursday night service gains a credit of five. The secretaries are to keep a record of credits, and at the close of each term the winning section is to gain such reward as will be hereafter made known. Next Sabbath morning the first set of questions will be given out. The subject of the sermon will be "The Bible—the Sure Storehouse of Truth."

Sunday School Association.

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 19.—The forty-second annual convention of the Michigan State Sunday School association commenced here Tuesday, with nearly 800 delegates in attendance. Mrs. G. L. Fox reported that there are thirty-four county superintendents of junior work in the state, and at present nine primary unions. William H. Strong, superintendent of the home department, reported eight home departments and a hopeful outlook for the future. One of the features of the convention is a large chorus choir under the direction of Professor E. O. Excell of Chicago. A song service precedes each session of the convention. Last evening addresses of welcome were made by Rev. W. H. Pound of Plymouth Congregational church, on behalf of the churches and people of Lansing, and H. R. ## ANOTHER PIONEER PASSED AWAY.

WM. PURDY YERKES DIED AT 8:20 LAST NIGHT.

Was Once Judge of Probate for the County of Wayne.

Judge William Purdy Yerkes died at his home in this village at 8:20 last night. The funeral will be held from the late home Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Deceased was a brother of Robert and Charles of this place, George of Novi and S. A. Yerkes of near Owosso. He was one of Northville's best known and most prominent citizens.

William Purdy Yerkes was born in Seneca county, State of New York, October 23, 1820. His parents were William and Hester Dennis Yerkes. In the month of May, 1836, they emigrated to Michigan and settled in Oakland county, one and one-half miles northeast from the present site of Northville. From the new home in his adopted territory the boy looked out upon a forest so dense and all pervading that it threatened the frail roof which sheltered friends, his parents, his sister and three brothers beneath its welcome cover. By these accidents of time and place he became enrolled among that band of pioneers before whose steadily repeated blows the woodlands melted away giving place slowly but safely to cultivated fields and comfortable homes. His early education was gained in the log school houses of his neighborhood, supplemented by several terms of school in a select school at Northville.

In 1843 he entered the law office of George and Moses Wisner at Pontiac, passed his examination and was admitted to the bar in 1846. He at once commenced the practice of law in Northville, where in 1851 he was married to Sara E. Cady, daughter of Daniel E. Cady, Esq., of the same place. Four years later he moved to Detroit opening a law office in what was then called the Rotunda building, opposite the old postoffice.

In 1860 he was elected probate judge of Wayne county for the term of four years. In 1865 he returned to Northville, where amidst the scenes of his boyhood he spent the remainder of his life, busy with the care of his farm until advancing years disqualified him from labor. On December 22, 1896, his loving and devoted wife was claimed by the "last great enemy." From the effect of her death he did not recover, living in quiet seclusion until he passed away.

Mr. Yerkes had an active and inquiring mind and in the years of his earlier life was known as a ready debater, and both on the platform and in the courts of justice his forcible and convincing oratory is well remembered.

Like a Search Light in a Tunnel.

The election returns indicate that the voters of Michigan are about ready to cut loose from barrel campaigns for governor and nominate some candidate who has qualifications besides a plethora of pocketbook. On the face of the returns the name of Fred M. Warner, present secretary of state, looms up like a searchlight in a tunnel.—"Soo" News-Record.

Jealousy Likely His Motive.

Owosso, Mich., Nov. 19.—Sylvester Stevens, who was so badly pummeled by Calvin Linder at the farmhouse of Mrs. George Snyder, near Shattsborg, Sunday, is dead, and Linder is held to answer the charge of murder. Mrs. Snyder's husband left her some time ago, and it is now claimed that both Stevens and Linder aspired to her favor. In fact, it is said that just before the fatal fight, the former had proposed that they run away together. This she told Linder after Stevens had gone down cellar, and the prisoner says he went down stairs to "do him up."

Up a Tree For Two Days.

Houghton, Mich., Nov. 19.—E. C. Goodrich of this city was hunting with a party of friends near King lake, below Nestoria. He became separated from the rest of the party and became lost in the woods. Toward dark he heard the cry of wolves and was forced to take to a tree. There he remained all night. In the morning the wolves left, and he descended. All day was spent in wandering around in search of a trail, and toward dusk he struck one which led him to the rail road track. He finally reached camp after being nearly forty-eight hours without food or water.

Liabile to Paralytic Stroke.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Gave Me New Life.

This is to certify that I have used Dr. Miles' Remedies quite extensively, especially the Restorative Nervine, which has done wonders for me. Six years ago I had nervous prostration and again three years ago, at which time I began taking Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. I kept taking it for six months and have taken an occasional dose during the last two years. I am practically a new man and feel that I have been given a new lease of life. I used to have very bad attacks of stomach trouble and since using the Nervine I can eat most anything I want with impunity. I was examined in Omaha by a noted German doctor three years ago. He told me I was liable to a paralytic stroke any moment; that my whole left side was badly affected. That was just before I began taking Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. My work for two years and a half has been very trying on my nerves. I am a presiding elder, traveling my districts at the rate of ten thousand miles a year, preaching on an average of five times a week, besides many business meetings, and the multitudinous cares of my work in general. Thanks to Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine I have been gaining in flesh despite this hard work until now I weigh a hundred and ninety-six pounds, nearly twenty pounds more than in all my life. I preach Nervine wherever I go to those afflicted with nerve, heart or stomach trouble. Rev. M. D. Myers, Presiding Elder, Free Methodist Church, Corcoranville, Ind. All druggists sell and guarantee. ## NEW YORK NEXT YEAR

DECISION OF NATIONAL GRANGE
ERS FOR THEIR MEETING.

MUCH OPPOSITION TO THAT EDUCATIONAL REPORT.

MICHIGAN GRANGE HAS BEEN INCREASED BY 6,000.

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 20.—With but today in which to work, the National Grange has settled down to business. Committee reports are being churned out, but not one has not been expected to rival that of the committee on education for feeling aroused. The whack at agricultural colleges is still the largest theme in conversation, and the members, fearful of having incited antagonism, are hastening to smooth things over. They point out that, after all, it was but a committee report, and that it was not intended for publication.

The fateful report was yesterday shoved back to the committee, not to have a change of heart, for the body is nearly unanimous on the sentiments expressed, but to have the rough edges lopped off its uncompromising language.

Master Horton of Michigan wishes to see the agricultural college of this state vindicated from the sweeping charges made by the report. "The condemnation of agricultural colleges does not in any degree apply to me," he declared.

The furor created by the introduction and publication of the drastic report on education by the National Grange committee, headed by Chairman Walcott, having reached the high tide mark, Chairman Obadiah Gardner of the committee on foreign affairs struck a note against militarism and spread-eagleism that caught the fancy of the national body in the session yesterday afternoon.

Gardner's report is strong, as coming from a conservative body, and covers all the international problems of the day in a forceful manner. The shipping merger is denounced and the Rooseveltian Monroeism is lauded, as is John Hay's philippic on the trans-Carpathian Jew.

The next fight came on the choice of a place of meeting next year. Connecticut, Missouri and New York wanted to act as hostess for the next meeting, and New York was finally chosen.

A resolution was adopted providing for an adjournment of the present meeting not later than 11 a. m., Friday.

Michigan has added 6,000 new members of the grange during the past year, according to the comprehensive report made yesterday afternoon by State Master George B. Horton. During the past year 104 new granges were organized, Michigan being far in the lead. Conclusive proof was furnished by the report that the Patrons of Husbandry are growing in popularity in this state by leaps and strides. The report further shows that the receipts for the year will exceed $15,000. The percentage of trade contracts will bring these resources up to $18,000.

"Our grange work and its promotion we have striven to consider and establish as a business firm would advertise its wares as fast as new markets are secured," reads Master Horton's report. "It will give us increased courage and enthusiasm to have the National Grange with us. To show the people of the state the general personal and character of the National Grange can but arrest the attention of thoughtful people and secure a favorable decision from the best men and women in whatever calling Godspeed the work of the National Grange, is the benediction of the 30,000 patrons who are so highly honored by our presence."

Beck Given a Life Sentence.

Menominee, Mich., Nov. 20.—Joseph Beck, the self-confessed murderer of ten-year-old Julia Wozniak, Sept. 28, pleaded guilty in the circuit court yesterday morning and was sentenced to life imprisonment at hard labor and solitary confinement in the branch state prison at Marquette by Judge Stone. The prisoner showed no emotion during the trial, which only took twenty minutes. The testimony of Chief of Police English, Drs. Hicks and Grignon was taken. When asked if he had anything to say, Beck replied "No." Judge Stone then pronounced him guilty of murder in the first degree.

Powder Explosion Kills Two Men.

Ishpeming, Mich., Nov. 20.—The premature explosion of a box of giant powder in the Lake Superior Hematite mine Wednesday morning caused the death of Nels and Matt Makki, Finnish miners, working in the sub-level below where the powder was being warmed. The explosion caused the timbers to fall shutting off the workmen's avenue of escape. Tony Walala, a timberman was overcome with smoke, but he will recover.

SHOT THROUGH THE HEAD.

Farmer Near Standish Victim of Deer Hunter's Rifle.

Alpena, Mich., Nov. 20.—John Watson, aged twenty-seven, a farmer of Standish, was shot through the head and instantly killed at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon, on the north branch of Thunder Bay river, in Long Rapids township, this county, while hunting deer. Watson was standing on a stump about three feet high sighting for game, while his companion, Jerome Miles, stood a few yards distant. Miles states that he suddenly saw a man in a small clump of bushes about twenty-five rods distant on the river bank raise his gun, and before he could shout a warning, shot Watson through the head. Without waiting to see what effect his shot had the unknown hunter quickly disappeared and, crossing the river at that point, has not been heard of since. Miles states that there was no reason to mistake the man for a deer, as there was nothing to obstruct the view between the two men.

State Sunday School Officers.

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 20.—The attendance upon Thursday's session of the State Sunday School association was large and the program was very entertaining and instructive. At the morning session the reports of the officers were read. H. H. Simpson, treasurer, reported that the receipts of the year were $4,789.80, and the cash balance $122.86. The resources, principally from pledges, amount to $652.77, and the liabilities aggregate $1,223.75. In the afternoon Marian Lawrence secured pledges for a goodly sum. The report of the nominating committee, which was adopted, named the following officers for the ensuing year: President, E. L. Wright of Hancock; vice-presidents, P. C. Beiser, Grand Rapids; W. A. ## Little Girl Fatally Burned.

Ypsilanti, Mich., Nov. 20.—An attempt to start a fire with what she supposed was kerosene resulted in the fatal burning of Florence Preston, the nine-year-old daughter of Josiah Preston, Wednesday afternoon. The girl poured a quantity of gasoline upon some kindling in a stove and struck a match to light it, when the gas exploded, setting her clothing on fire. The terrified child rushed shrieking out of doors only to fall exhausted upon the ground, with her body burned from head to foot and her clothing so charred that it fell completely away when she was tenderly raised and carried to a neighboring house. The sufferer has been made as comfortable as possible, but she is still in frightful pain and cannot possibly live.

His Hanging Strap Broke.

Menominee, Mich., Nov. 20.—George Murray, a prisoner in the Menominee jail, attempted suicide by hanging, but was unsuccessful because of the weakness of a strap. The inmates of the jail heard a noise in Murray's cell, and on going there saw Murray lying on the floor with the strap around his neck, the broken end fastened to an iron bar of a window. The strap was removed from the man's neck and he apparently suffered no ill consequences. Murray was later adjudged insane.

RECORD IN FATALITIES

REMARKABLE LIST OF DEAD AND MISSING AT "SOO."

REMAINS OF UNKNOWN MAN
FOUND IN A GARRET.

MAN SHOT AND KILLED WHILE HUNTING.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Nov. 19.—Two unknown bodies found, one hunter shot, and one man reported missing, is the record of Sault Ste. Marie for the first two days of this week.

Monday morning it was reported to the police that Lee Johnson, a young man employed by the Algoma Central railroad, had been missing since Monday night of the week before.

About 1:30 Monday afternoon E. D. Cumberworth, a plumber in the employ of the Ferguson Hardware company, went to the new residence of Dr. E. H. Webster on Chandler Heights for some tools which he had left there the week before while plumbing the house, which is not yet finished. He went into the garret and there found the dead body of an unknown man, who had evidently gained admission through one of the windows, which were covered with canvas, the canvas in one of them being torn out. On his person was found a hypodermic syringe and one arm was well pitted with marks by the use of the needle. Memoranda found on his person make it seem probable that his name is Dr. Murdoch. An employment agency had the name Mike McGraw on its books and the keeper said that this was the same man who had given it, and whom he had sent to Eckerman to work in the camps there. At Eckerman it was stated that the man did not appear to be accustomed to hard work and had said that he was a doctor and had treated several of the men there.

Early Tuesday morning Thomas Lindsay of the "Soo" was in the woods near Welsh when he came across the dead body of an unknown man with no marks of violence about him and nothing to show who he was. The man had evidently not been dead long, but who he is and how he met such a fate is still a mystery. Tuesday afternoon word was received at the Soo that one of a party of hunters had been shot and killed near Trout lake. A lone hunter, finally coming upon two others, mistook them for deer and fired, killing one instantly and missing the other by a matter of inches.

Elevator Crushed Out His Life.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 19.—Henry Braasch was instantly killed about 11 o'clock yesterday in the plant of the Williams Bros. company, pickers and preservers, at Grand River and Humboldt avenues. Braasch was coming down in the elevator with a truck on which were a couple of barrels. When about four feet above the ground floor the elevator stopped and could not be dislodged. Braasch stepped off the car and discovered that a projecting piece of iron had caused the elevator to catch. He procured a stout piece of scantling and carelessly stepped in underneath the car and gave the iron screw a smart blow. Suddenly the oil structure slid out of the way and the elevator immediately dropped on Braasch, crushing out his life.

Judge Carpenter Takes His Seat.

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 19.—Judge Carpenter took his seat on the supreme bench Tuesday morning in the presence of an unusually large number of attorneys from various sections of the state. Henry A. Mandell's commission as judge of the Wayne circuit court to succeed Judge Carpenter was also mailed to Detroit by Governor Bliss. A majority of the supreme court joined in an opinion yesterday sustaining the constitutionality of the law enacted by the last legislature incorporating a school district in the village of Jerome, Hillsdale county. There was a bitter fight over this measure before the legislature and it was attacked in the court principally on the ground that it violated the principle of local self-government.

Sheep Robbers Jailed.

Adrian, Mich., Nov. 19.—Ed Capp and Jim Cassool, alleged sheep robbers, were landed in jail here by Sheriff Shepherd. The pair were under arrest for several days in Ohio, but the alleged wholesale stealings were greater in Michigan than in Ohio, so the latter authorities delivered the prisoners to Shepherd. The plan of the men seems to have been to drive along and take two or three sheep out of different flocks. They had a farm in Medina, where the plunder was rounded up, then shipped to Toledo after being butchered.

Supreme Court Opinions Filed.

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 19.—The following opinions were filed by the supreme court Tuesday.

Affirmed: Toombs vs. Stockwell, Wolff vs. Alpena National Bank Hunt vs. Township of Lincoln.

Reversed: Bellows vs. Crane Lumber Co., Plant vs. Wadock Township of Rionia vs. Chitts, Trotter vs. Tousey.

In attorney general ex rel. Hies vs. Lowrey, affirmed in part and reversed in part. Mandamus was denied in McLaughlin vs. Donovan, circuit judge.

Literally Ground to Pieces.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 19.—An unknown man was literally ground to pieces under the wheels of a street car last evening near the corner of Columbia and Hastings street. The head was cut off as was the left arm, the right arm and right leg crushed, and the left leg almost cut off the bones protruding through the flesh and protruding every bone in his body broken. No one actually saw the accident and partial, as to how it happened, a messenger.

Many Women Students Graduate.

The graduating classes at leading colleges for women in the United States have been unusually large this year. Wellesley gave diplomas to 150 young women, the largest class in its history, while Radcliffe attained the same distinction, conferring the bachelor's degree upon 100 students.

Who Pays the Printer?

When you go around from printer to printer getting bids on a job and then giving it to the lowest bidder, you get an undifferentiated good job—one with no particularly good points—one that sells no goods for you, then who pays the printer?

YOU DO.

When you pick out a good printer giving him all your work, educating him to an idea of your needs, and paying a fair price for the work you get, your printer matter (when secured at the Record Printery) necessarily creates a favorable impression for you and for what you offer, and becomes a factor in selling your goods. Then who pays the printer? Your customer.

HE DOES.

"Ha, little Gasconne, what a picture—the forest, the meadows, the hills, the nut brown maid with twinkling feet and blushing cheeks—Father Grhe has no painting in his church at Mansura to match this one in my church, the great church of nature."

"M. Constant," she cried, "it is not nice to creep out of the bushes at one like this! Go away—at least until I can put on my stockings and shoes!" The flush in her face was for surprise, but the sparkle in her black eyes was not for offense.

"I will not budge an inch," he said, "so come out, my nymph, for I want your aid."

"Glad to be of service to you, M. Constant, but I will not stir a step till you are out of view," said Laure, with a resoluteness which he saw it was useless to combat. He knew she would stand there like a statue until the stars came out if her demand was not complied with.

"And how long shall I be kept out of view, my empress?"

"When I am ready," she replied, "I will sing—"

"Soldier, soldier, marry, marry me!"

"But that will bring every gallant within hearing of your siren voice," said Quilbert, "and I crave a secret conference with you."

"Then I will sing so low that only the Chevalier Constant de Quilbert shall hear," she said, with a mock air of loftiness.

"I'll abbreviate the banishment of your languishing knight as much as you can, for—"

"I have little to say—"

"Quick, dear, quick!"

rejoined Quilbert and rode back into the forest.

Laure stood motionless until she could no longer hear the sound of the horse's feet, then, peering searchingly into the thick undergrowth behind which her visitor had disappeared, she tripped lightly out of the water and, dropping net and basket, seized her shoes and hose. With the nimbleness of a doe she sprang behind a huge cypress tree and the concavity of its trunk converted into a toilet, where, drying her feet with grass and leaves, she was quickly shod. Taking her hat from the palm-tree spike on which it hung, she adjusted it fetchingly upon her head and, stepping out, took up the net and leaned lightly upon it as a staff. Verily she looked the sylph beauty of the poets as in rich contrast she sang.

"Soldier, soldier, marry, marry me!"

Quilbert could not have been far distant, for the line was hardly finished when he emerged from the bushes, having tied his horse to a tree.

"What a change, my little actress, from the bewitching to the bewildering!" he said.

"I do not like to hear an old man talk so, and young men never say such things to me," she complained.

"Be potent, Laure. You will hear enough of that sort from acceptable lips. Now, little one"—Quilbert had suddenly become grave—"listen to some serious talk, for I am troubled. Will you do me a friendly turn? It is not for nothing I have at home a beautiful little watch made at Havre, inlaid with rubies and diamonds. If what I wish is accomplished, that watch shall nestle beneath the satin belt you will wear at the next ball."

"M. Constant, surely I need no bribe to serve you. I am already under more obligation than I can ever discharge."

"Nonsense, child. I do not mean to bribe you, but I do mean that no one can ever confer a benefit on Constant Quilbert without being the gainer thereby."

"What is it you desire me to do?"

"It is this: My jockey has been very sick since he was whipped for running away. Some think he will die. That incompetent De Roux does not know how to handle the case. Oakfell, who is thought to be paid by the abolitionists, is in an underhand way seeking to arouse public sentiment against me and has already excited old Latolais's shallow-headed granddaughter, who has said some bitter things to the priest Grhe and others. She has the notion that the swaggering American is looking hot, and she struts mightily."

"A double-faced thing!" exclaimed Laure indignantly.

"Should Leon die," continued Quilbert, "it is thought Oakfell will urge a popular demonstration, maybe a procession. I would avoid all this. If Leon recovers, I will pay back the conspirators with interest."

"Estelle, too?" demanded Laure.

"If she gets in the way, she shall have her share," he answered.

"Then what can I do?" she asked, with a satisfied air.

"This—persuade your grandmother to give you the cure for Leon."

"Oh, M. Constant! I fear your unfriendliness to the church will prevent."

"How? Does any one here give more to the priests and the convents than I do? But that is not to the point. I am not sick. The cure is for Leon. Besides, I am your friend, Laure, and your enemies are my enemies."

"Must you have it today?"

"At once. There is not one minute to spare. If Leon is not better by tomorrow morning, he will not live the week out."

"I will try," Laure consented after short reflection.

"Take this; it may help your argument," said Quilbert, handing her a shining double eagle goldpiece.

"Back into the bushes, then, till I return," said she.

Quilbert did as he was bidden, and the girl walked rapidly to the cottage. The half hour of her absence appeared to him all but interminable, and it was as one freed from long imprisonment that he sprang from the matted vines and brush when she stopped beside the tree holding her hands behind her and sang:

"Soldier, soldier, marry, marry me."

"Well?" he exclaimed.

"She was very unwilling," said she.

"But?"

"I got it," she anticipated his question. "Here it is." And, holding forth her hands, she exhibited in one narrow band of snow white cloth about ten inches in length made of unspun cotton fiber beaten and pressed while saturated with water. The other held a roll of the cured skin of a garfish, in which the cotton strip had been incased.

Grandmother raised this cotton in the garden from seed obtained in Egypt by her brother, who was a soldier of the emperor. She had every bell taken from the stall as it opened and carried to her room. With her own hands she picked the lint muttering prayers and crossing himself all the while. She soaked and pressed it with her own fingers and I am sure she put a prayer between every two layers. She says that if before 9 o'clock tonight this holy fillet is laid over Leon's eyes and temples he will get well."

"Pretty one for a Jeanne d'Arc," gave me the fillet," Quilbert eagerly demanded.

"Take it and win," said Laure.

"And share the spoils of victory with my little lieutenant," he added, rolling the strip and replacing it in the fish-skin. In an instant his horse was heard bounding through the dry swamp.

Another sound of horse's feet fell up on Laure's ear, and she ran to the skirt of the wood to receive a most elaborate bow from the exquisite Evariste Oakfell as he cantered along the opposite bank of the bayou and to catch the notes of his fine tenor voice caroling:

"Soldier, soldier, marry, marry me!"

Her heart-beat wildly with a delight she could scarce explain, but was suddenly still by the thought that Evariste may have seen Quilbert, heard her signal to him and construed their meeting as she would not for the world have him construe it.

The gait of Quilbert's steed was not lowered from a run until, throbbing and covered with foam, he was halted at his stable. Quilbert took no chances with the clock, but at once proceeded to the cabin where lay the emaciated, sinking, faintly breathing jockey. Producing the gleaming fillet he stretched it over the closed eyes and sunken temples of the seemingly dying man and on their lives charged the awed negroes in attendance to see that there it remained till morning.

Leon slept fitfully through the night. At break of day he awoke from delirium, Odette and freedom to consciousness; Quilbert and shackles.

CHAPTER VIII ARTICLE 3510.

THE cooling air of November had checked the fruiting of the cotton plant and quickened the sweetening of the sugar cane. The harvesting of the one was ending, of the other about to begin, when a small company came together at "L'Esperance" upon Oakfell's invitation. Though not numerous, it reliably represented the best sentiment of the parish—Baldouine and Brulleton from lower Bayou des Glaces, Milleschaze and Colmesotte from Bordono and Moreauville, Jewett and Fyrrth from Baroux Boeuf and Tuffpower, Bizet and Dufosse from Cocoville, Valsin Mouillet from Bayou de Lac, Father Grhe from Mansura. A truly satisfying dinner, topped by venison and mallard ducks, had maintained the good fame of the Oakfell board, and the servants being withdrawn by Mrs. Wyley, guests and host, over their coffee, considered the case of the jockey Leon.

Briefly and clearly Oakfell stated the result of his examination of the law and the facts. In proof of Quilbert's guilty knowledge that he had not even the shadow of a claim of ownership, he read this extract from a certified copy of the deed signed by him and Poydore, the agent of the heirs of Queyrouze: "The oldest son of the said negress Olive, called Leon, is not included in the present sale, a condition without which the present sale would not take place and is void if the purchasers disregard it." And, as establishing Leon's right to freedom, he cited the article 3510 of the civil code:

"If a master suffer a slave to enjoy his liberty for 10 years during his residence in the state or for 20 years while out of it, he shall lose all right of action to recover possession of the slave unless the slave be a runaway or fugitive."

"This provision of the law," said

Oakfell, "the distinct exception in the act of sale and Quilbert's perjury in entrapping the unsuspecting boy have determined me, gentlemen, to institute suit in behalf of Leon for freedom, and I have felt that I should declare my purpose to those friends and neighbors whose judgement and esteem I value most."

All looked to Baldouine, who after a moment of silent thought confidently spoke their response.

"Your resolution increases our respect for you, Quilbert is a shameless demoralizer, an evil influence in the community. His chief-gains have notoriously been from gambling and usury. His instincts are low, and his practices are scandalous hurtful to our young men—This theft of a man from himself is the crowning disgrace he has put upon our parish. In undertaking to thwart and rebuke him you do a true service to the good people of Ayvoles. Mr. Oakfell, and shall have the support of all of us here."

"No only our support, Mr. Horace," exclaimed Valsin, "but our protection also."

"The danger is not to me, but to Leon. Oakfell replied, 'I fear that Quilbert will kill him outright in the rage into which the law will throw him.'"

"Then," said Fyrrth, whose presidency over sessions of the Lynch court in the early days of the state had made his name a dread to evildoers and whose countenance testified a terrible courage, "he must in advance be warned that he cannot live 12 hours in Ayvoles afterward, and I suggest the priest as the proper person to notify him. Do you object, sir?" addressing Father Grhe.

"I do not," replied the latter, and the party dispersed.

As prearranged by Oakfell, the sheriff, charged with the service of the legal processes, called at the house of Father Grhe, and the latter accompanied him on the visit to Quilbert. They found him at a sharp bend in the public road skirting the Bayou Rouge, seated upon his horse and conversing with Laure Lunau, sole occupant of her grand mother's exaggerated buggy to which was harnessed the colossal mule. Coming suddenly upon the two, they saw the girl quickly snatch from Quilbert's hand a small watch and long golden chain and furtively bestow them under the seat of the vehicle and were amused at her confused efforts to recover the looted reins and drive on before they spoke.

"I say do not be disturbed at this interruption of your tete-a-tete, mademoiselle," said the sheriff, doffing his hat. "I have to deliver these papers to M. Quilbert and be off, with apologies for the intrusion." And he handed the documents to Quilbert, who received them mechanically, without so much as looking at the large written characters indorsed upon them.

"Before reading those papers, M. Quilbert, allow me to speak with you," said Father Grhe, riding near him and in an undertone communicating the particulars of the meeting at "L'Esperance" and the warning in the words of Fyrrth.

In the struggle to suppress his anger Quilbert's face was that of a demon. It became knotted with swollen veins, his bloodshot eyes glared like a bated brute's, his heavy lips, though tightly pressed together, shook like storm swept waves of a muddy stream, and his fingers convulsively worked the papers they clutched into a crumpled and shapeless lump. Father Grhe turned his eyes away from the revolting spectacle, but Laure gazed upon it fascinated.

"The cowardly creoles join the bullying Americans in threatening a Frenchman with lynch law, and you, monsieur prestre, are their herald, eh? That is the case?" at length Quilbert muttered hoarsely.

"It will only aggravate the situation to use insulting adjectives," answered Father Grhe. "These citizens have but adopted a heroic mode of forestalling a possible and deplorable outcome of an appeal to the law in human ty's cause, and I have borne their message in the hope of preventing two murders. Mlle. Lunau, you seem to have the confidence of M. Quilbert." He accompanied these words with a significant look at the girl. "Advise him against his dangerous impulses."

Her face was instantly aflame, and her eyes became orbs of wrath, but she made no audible reply nor returned the bow of the priest and sheriff as they rode away.

"You see, my little Gasconne," said Quilbert, "what flows from a combination of maudlin hysteria of the Estelle Latolais type and abolition ambition and avarice of the Oakfell brand."

"The Horace Oakfell brand, you mean," Laure retorted sharply. "If Evariste, I am sure, has no part in these doings."

"So, so?" mused Quilbert aloud, as if detecting something, yet doubting whether the discovery pleased him. "Not M. Evariste, eh? Ah! Well, let us see. Estelle, yes, Oakfell, yes, but not M. Evariste, no? She has lost her reason on Oakfell, but not M. Evariste, eh? And I have thought he was praying at her church!"

"Not so. I do not believe a word of it," snapped Laure.

"Not I now. I must have been misled by the frequency of his visits at the Latolais house." Observing that Laure's vocation was approaching the limit of restraint, he adroitly gave his comments another direction. "My hatred of the one made it too easy for me to be unjust to his half brother. I should have remembered that Evariste has French blood. His grandfather was a grand rascal of '93. Estelle's great-grandfather was a grand gentleman of '80. There should be more pious sympathy between him and the true Gasconne maid than between him and the smirking descendant of a supercilious and skipping emigre. We may have a friend in the enemy's camp."

"But the warning must be heeded," Laure said.

"For the present, yes," Quilbert reluctantly assented, "but my day will come."

"If you prudently employ those days which lie between?"

"You know my race."

"Yes."

"That is enough." And with a stinging blow of the whip Laure started the big mule into a swinging trot toward the junction of the bayous. Reaching the point where the road cut the levee and wound down a soft steep bank to the narrow bridge at the crossing, she helped Evariste on the other side riding briskly out of the swamp from the direction of the prairie, and, though she could well have passed over the stream before him, she chose to halt at the water's edge and await him, unseen from the grandmother's cottage. He had not observed her when he emerged from the forest, nor was he aware of her presence until he had begun the descent of the almost sheer declivity with apparent recklessness but with just confidence in the sure footed beast that bore him. Checking his horse at the bridge's approach and saluting Laure languishingly, he said:

"Apres vous, mademoiselle."

"No, M. Evariste, pass over to this side. I have something to say to you," she replied, and in a moment he was at her buggy's wheel.

"Tell me," said she, "what is the meaning of this persecution of M. Constant? Is it neighborly? Is it not abolitionist?"

"I have no part in the business, he here me," he answered. "It is not the sort of thing to interest me. My brother affects philosophy, humanitarianism, altruism and other isms which appeal to his emotional nature, but which have no claim for me, and it seems he has undertaken the affair as a knight of old would sail forth to chop the head off a dragon."

"To win a fair lady?" Laure furnished the conclusion from her reading of the Trouvailles in the old books sent to her grandmother by the brother who had served the emperor in Egypt.

"I do not comprehend, mademoiselle," said Evariste. "Who can be the fair lady of this exploit?"

"Estelle Latolais." She shot the name at him intently watching his face. It flushed he replied. Put, forcing a smile he answered.

"You are but guessing, mademoiselle. Horace has not seen Mlle. Latolais since she went away to the convent near four years ago."

"It is you who guess and badly. The grandchild of the doctress needs not to guess. Attend to me. The night Leon ran away he went to your brother sent by Estelle, with her request that he would procure the rogue's freedom. At the very moment M. Constant was leathering the wretch as he deserved your brother was pressing the hand of Estelle Latolais passionately in his and pledging himself to the scheme for her sake."

"How can you have knowledge of these things?" His eyes and voice betrayed agitation.

"How can you be ignorant of them who see your brother every day and the lady but little less often?" She saw her advantage.

"This is no answer, mademoiselle," he said peevishly.

"If I could feel under duty," said Laure, sighing, and, catching a warmer look in the young man's eyes, she added with an air of trusting frankness: "But I will tell you, M. Evariste, how I know, for, though I have not convent education and accomplishments, I am not one to smile and conceal, pretend and deceive. Know, then, that old Olive, Leon's mother, comes frequently to my grandmother and to her has told these things as she learned them from Odette, the maid of Estelle. They are true. No one dares be to the doctress."

"Probably I thank you, mademoiselle. Good night." To a young man raised his hat with a slight bow as he tightened the bridle with his left hand.

"Pat!" exclaimed Laure as it stayed him; then, suddenly changing her purpose, amiably repeated "Good night, monsieur," and, crossing the bridge, tossed slowly upon one bunk, while Evariste's horse bounded up the other like a chamois over an Alpine wall.

(To be continued next week.)

A skeleton was unearthed over in Lyon the other day by a man who was digging gravel for road work, and the matter is a subject for touch grave discussion. No one will as yet undertake reason for its being there.

Farmington people gave one of their ministers a "pound social" last week and in speaking of the affair the Enterprise remarks that the family will be "living on the fat of the land for some time." Evidently somebody was extravagant enough to include pork in the collection.

A "Jack the lugger" had been terrorizing (?) the ladies of Oxford, but one of them discovered that the supposed man wore corsets and then the fun was all stayed. The mystery is how that "victim" ever found out about the stays unless she reciprocated the bogus man's fervent embrace.

The party or parties who have been stealing wood from the editor's wood pile had best watch out or they will find it a pretty deal steal—Wayne News Letter.

That's right. Load up those Wayne cannon and lay for 'em. Anybody who would steal wood from an editor this year ought to be annihilated.

The state school for deaf mutes at Flint has a crew football eleven who go out into the country occasionally and clean up on some of the "Itube" organizations, or vice versa, but they don't say much about it when it's either way, and the remarks of the other fellows don't disturb them any.

Prosecutor Rockwell of Pontiac has instituted a crusade against the loafers of that city who hang around street corners and make offensive remarks when women are passing. One arrest has been made and others will follow if necessary. No loaf will be allowed around that burg hereafter except the well bred loaf, although no one but a doagm head would commit the offense anyhow.

Several persons in this village have purchased hatchets lately. We wonder if Carrie Nation is getting up a company of zouaves for the purpose of cutting down cherry trees in the vicinity.—Dearborn Cor Wayce Review.

We cannot tell a lie, so we can't say we ever heard that cutting down trees was characteristic of Zouaves, or that raising companies of Zouaves was characteristic of Carrie Nation. S posed she was more apt to raise a disturbance or raze saloons.

A prima donna of the Sultan of Sulu company swallowed a small Swiss watch while asleep. The watch was missed. Later there was a riot in the prima donna's department of the interior. An X-ray machine showed the watch, running through her anatomy. She had a great time on the inside—Adrian Press.

Hope the accident didn't cause enough lost time to wind up her engagement, but really it must have been a case where the lady had an open face or it couldn't have happened.

The Wyandotte Herald rather scores the people of that city because although 1,000 of them bought tickets for an ice cream and cake social given by the Michigan Akali band a while ago, scarcely any body attended a grand concert under the auspices of the same organization last week. The band ought not to blow about that. After all people's tastes may not be solo, even if they do like better to eat sweet productions than to hear them, and preter the horn of plenty to the one of brass. Anyhow maybe their tooters will teach 'em better after a while.

Commenting on the statement that Northville's R. F. D. carriers "cover their routes of 25 miles in eight hours" the Fowlerville Review says: "Think of it, 25 miles in eight hours. They must use oven in that country. One of our rural carriers makes his route of 26 miles on the average of five hours and sometimes makes the trip in four hours." Hm! well, this country is one of the most thickly settled in Michigan, don't you know? Our carriers have a whole lot of places to stop at. This isn't a back woods region like the country around Fowlerville, not by any means.

Wonderland Temple Theatre—Detroit.

The bill that Manager Moore of Wonderland and Temple theater has booked for next week is headed by one of the greatest acts that has ever been sent to this country from Europe. In addition to this great novelty there will be ten other of the foremost novelties in vaudeville.

Whitney's Opera House—Detroit.

"Spotless Town," Gus Hill's latest production, will be seen at the Whitney Theatre all next week with a powerful company of jolly farceurs who have been public favorites in this line of amusement for some time. "Spotless Town" is one of the funniest of Mr. Hill's very funny offerings and has, besides fun and humor, lots of the best music and mechanical effects of remarkable character. Matinee each day except Wednesday.

Lyceum Theatre—Detroit.

Wilson Barrett's remarkable historical drama, "The Sign of the Cross," which has won the approval of priests, clergymen and the large class of persons known as "non-theater goers" quite as much as of the regular patrons of the playhouse, comes to the Lyceum Nov. 23rd. The company is under the management of Fred G. Berger, who has bought the sole rights of the piece for the United and is the only organization presenting the piece in this country. There will be the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees and a special performance Thanksgiving afternoon.

Where Earthquakes Are Felt. Comme, in Perthshire, feels earthquakes more frequently than any other part of the British Isles. England's earthquake center is in East Essex.

A Timely Suggestion.

"Now that winter with its bad weather is with us I would advise every family to provide themselves against sudden attacks of coughs and colds by keeping at hand a good cough medicine like Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which is the best among the many preparations for these ailments that I have on my shelves," says Mr. L. C. Neaville, the well known and popular druggist of Pittsboro, Ind. "I recommend this remedy and guarantee it to be without an equal for coughs and colds, also as a preventative and cure for croup." Buy it now. For sale by Geo C Hueston.

Mushrooms as Food.

It would cost a man $30 a day to live on mushrooms. On the other hand, 10 cents would buy sufficient flour to supply him with enough food to enable him to continue at hard work.

ASLEEP AMID FLAMES.

Breaking into a blazing home, some firemen lately dragged the sleeping inmates from death. Fancied security, and death near. It's that way when you neglect coughs and colds. Don't do it. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption gives perfect protection against all Throat, Chest and Lung Troubles. Keep it near, and avoid suffering, death, and doctor's bills. A teaspoonful stops a late cough, persistent use the most stubborn. Harmless and nice tasting, it's guaranteed to satisfy by Geo C Hueston. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

Discovery of V-lue. Artificial woodwork will probably soon be made on a large scale, as a process has been discovered for forming sawdust into a solid substance more durable than mahogany or ebony and capable of quite as brilliant a polish.

Itchiness of the skin, horrible plague. Most everybody afflicted in one way or another. Only one safe never failing cure. Doan's Ointment. At any drug store, 50 cents.

A POLICEMAN'S TESTIMONY.

J. N. Patterson, night policeman of Nashua, Ia., writes: "Last winter I had a bad cold on my lungs and tried at least half dozen advertised cough medicines and had treatment from two physicians without getting any benefit. A friend recommended Foley's Honey and Tar and two thirds of a bottle cured me. I consider it the greatest cough and lung medicine in the world." For sale by Murdock Bros.
