NEWS FROM THE STATE CAPITOL

JUDGE DONOVAN'S NEW DIVORCE LAW INTRODUCED.

Bill to Save Children From Walking to and from School.

Rep. Ashley of Detroit has introduced Judge Donovan's new divorce law bill which is aimed to make separation by law a bit harder than at the present time.

The usual bi-annual anti-slot machine bill will soon be on hand as is indicated by the fact of the presentation of a long petition from citizens of Adrian, where only wire fences and mail boxes are made. They want the law amended so the machines may be seized and destroyed.

A bill introduced last week provides that all veterans of the army and navy may be licensed to peddle without the payment of license money.

A bill of Rep. Reid calls for the amendment of the general school act to provide for the use of a certain per cent of the school moneys to pay for the transportation to and from school of children in the rural districts. In Michigan, as in a number of other states, the experiment of carrying the children to the district school has been tried it is said with signal success in sparsely settled districts, where the children would otherwise be forced to walk a long distance.

Senator Simons has introduced his measure to make the desertion of a wife or minor children by a husband a felony instead of merely a misdemeanor. If it passes it will make things very interesting for some people who desert their families as sort of an amusement.

A bill has been introduced to provide for the locating, establishing and maintaining of a state normal school in the western part of the state and to make an appropriation of $40,000 for the same.

Rep. Powell has a bill which passed will insure every citizen of the state of Michigan the privilege of having his grave cared for so long as the state of Michigan endures and has such officials as county treasurers. It provides that any person during his lifetime or by his will may deposit with the county treasurer any sum of money from $50 to $200 for the care and maintenance of his grave. This fund shall be kept in trust by the county treasurer and may be invested by him, the interest to be used upon the grave. The funds in which these money are to be deposited are to be known as cemetery funds.

The present legislature will be asked to make an appropriation for the St. Louis exposition for a Michigan building and for the purpose of making an exhibit in keeping with the state and products. The exposition opens next year and it is said it will be much larger than the World's Fair at Chicago.

He was a brother-in-law of Mrs. A. J. Welch of this place and of Dr. E. A. Chapman of Walled Lake and Frank and Judd Chapman of Novi. FOURTH ANNUAL SESSION SAT-URDAY, JAN. 31ST.

Meetings and Banquet in Methodist Church.

The fourth annual session of the Wayne County Teachers' association is to be held in the Methodist church here next week Saturday, and all indications as well as precedent point to an instructive and enjoyable meeting. The way the pedagogues were entertained here before has been referred to by the county commissioner in very complimentary terms, and there is no danger that Northville will fail to keep the record good.

The first meeting will open at 1:30 p. m. local time and several interesting topics are arranged for the afternoon assigned to competent speakers, to be followed by discussions which are sure to be profitable to listeners and participants. The afternoon meeting will be followed by a banquet at which Supt. Martin will preside as toastmaster.

The feature of the evening is to be the free address by Prof. W. N. Ferris of the Ferris Institute, Big Rapids. Attractive musical numbers are slated for both afternoon and evening. Northville is well represented on the program, as are Plymouth and Wayne also.

These institutes are proving of immense value to teachers and schools, and the meeting here will no doubt be a source of a great deal of profit and pleasure to both guests and entertainers.

CLUB'S OUTING

HAD A FINE TIME AT LANSING
THIS WEEK.

Were Royally Entertained All Along the Line.

The Eastern Michigan Press club's outing to Lansing on Monday and Tuesday was enjoyed by forty editors and their wives who left Detroit Monday afternoon. After establishing themselves the club went to the supreme court room, where they had a number of impromptu speeches. Later in the afternoon they were received by Gov. Bliss, the supreme court and state officers, in the executive parlors. After mixing with the legislators during the evening, they filed down the back stairs from representative hall and into the state department, where Secretary Warner cut one of the cheeses of his own make, and served it with wafers and punch in enjoyable style.

At 10:00 o'clock Tuesday they took a car for the Industrial school where they were entertained at lunch at noon by Supt. and Mrs. St. John and were treated to some excellent vocal and instrumental music by the pupils of the school. Later they visited the Agricultural college and were royally entertained by the faculty there and were served with a dainty lunch in the Women's building.

The party left on the 7:00 p. m. train for Detroit happy and tired but still voting that it was the most enjoyable outing in the club's history.

The club were carried to and from Lansing in one of the Pere Marquette's beautiful parlor cars by courtesy of General Passenger Agent Moeller of that company who generously placed the car at the club's service.

OAKLAND'S PEAT BEDS

Supposed Great Supply in County of Lakes.

Oakland county people are much interested in one phase of the discussion of the future fuel question, and that is the probability that the peat deposits of Michigan will at no distant period be an important factor in the solving of the problem mentioned.

Oakland county has 400 lakes and to be geologically logical there should be an inexhaustible supply of peat somewhere around and among all those bodies of water. Many men of good judgment are of the opinion that there is an immense quantity of the product in the county and that within a few years its marketing will develop into an important industry.

Peat is "a substance of vegetable origin, consisting of roots, fibers, moss, etc.," in a state of decomposition due to saturation by water for a few ages more or less and forming an elastic bog, and is known to exist in many places in this county of lakes. The only question is whether there is enough of it in this particular region to warrant the establishment of the necessary plants for putting it into marketable shape.

In an article on the subject the Pontiac Press says: "Throughout the state the impression is general that the peat industry has come to stay and that Michigan will be able to supply her own fuel for ages to come from the Peat beds, which are now supposed to be valueless. Many a farmer will realize a handsome fortune from the bog lands which are now considered a nuisance."

Brother Stearns on Card Playing.

Last Sunday evening Rev. Stearns' topic was "The Modern Card Table." His discourse was along lines of church theorists, that card playing is of itself an evil, the same as assault and battery, or stealing goods. He makes the mistake of false premises, and holds cards an evil "ab initio" and card playing so much of a sin, as to be inconsistent with true christianity. Now so long as a class of men are permitted to say what constitutes true christianity, and they assert that card playing is an evil in their code of religious ethics why there's no use of arguing the matter. If a sect can say that any person who chews tobacco or smokes a cigar cannot be a christian, then there is no need for argument. They could declare the use of coffee, in conflict with christianity. We can simply say in response to pastor Stearns' remarks, that no one is worse because he or she plays cards, drinks coffee, smokes cigars, or eats cabbage. The act is not inconsistent with christianity in its truest, fullest, broadest sense. None of them would be less a christian, if he played whist or pedro, not a whit. It is the abuse of indulgences that is to be criticised. We are not willing to concede that the language of the brothel and of the saloon, is the language of our refined people in this city who in their lovely homes pass the evenings at cards. The memory of a sainted mother whose whole life was an open book of pure womanhood, and in whose heart never came a thought of evil, of a wife whose beautiful life never gave chance for criticism, of an octogenarian father, who enjoyed cards for sixty years, with never indulging in an oath, a drink, a bet or an improper word, leads us to resent the charge that there is a bad influence resulting. And the knowledge that the most prominent, cultured, upright, refined, pure and moral women of our city, and the leading, honorable, successful business men, enjoy cards at home and at social gatherings, is a full answer to all charges brought against cards as demoralizing or degrading. Gambling is not a result of cards. It can come with dominoes, checkers, marbles, pins or football. It is the gambling that is wrong not card playing. Two ministers can drink lemonade, by using a straw. There is no harm in it. But one can wager that he can finish soonest. It's the betting that's wrong, not straws or lemonade. We make this claim, that a man or woman is none the less a follower of Christ or of the christian religion, because of the recreation or pleasure derived from playing cards. And any religion that drives amusement out of human life, is not worth having or preaching. The ten commandments cover about all that Almighty requires of mankind. In life eternal with Him who created them. It is not mete for us to try and improve on, or to Divine edicts—Adrian Press.

A LUSTY SEA CAPTAIN

Every town has its Munchausen, and every forecaster has its liar, but the father of them all was Jeff Weller, cook of the good ship Trident, Captain Kellogg, plying between South street, New York, and the West Indies. Said the captain:

"Weller was capable of some of the most artistic lies-in or out of Shakespeare, and if he'd had half a chance his pet sea serpent story alone would have made him famous in literature. 'When I made my first ocean voyage, somewhere between Madagascar and the Golden Gate, he'd say: we all woke up one morning, with the ship a-rollin' as if she'd roll her sticks out at every lurch. Goin' on deck, we saw a serpent a-crawl in over it, an' 'pon me soul, sir, 'twas so big it took six hours to get across the deck.'"

During Attacks Of Heart Failure. Would Appear To Be Dead.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure Relieved and Cured.

"I have no hesitation in saying that Dr. Miles' Heart Cure is all that one can wish it to be. I was troubled with heart disease for fifteen years. I have tried many different remedies but until I tried Dr. Miles' Heart Cure I could find no relief. I was subject to headaches and had tried your Pain Pills and they were so effective that I thought your Heart Cure might help me. I would have attacks at times so severe that I would be stone blind for the time being. During these spells I would be to all appearances dead. I took the medicine strictly as directed and I am truly happy to say that I am completely cured. I advise all that are troubled with heart disease to take Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure at once. I write this and give my name to my fellow sufferers."—S. E. Purdy, Atkinson, Nebraska.

"I first felt the effects of a weak heart in the fall of 1896. I saw an advertisement in the Sioux City paper in which a man stated his symptoms which seemed to me to indicate a trouble similar to mine. I had a soreness in the chest at times, and in my shoulder, an oppressive choking sensation in my throat and suffered from weak and hungry spells. I was truly frightened at my condition and procured six bottles of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. Since taking my first bottle I have never been bothered by any of the old disagreeable symptoms and now am well and consider my cure permanent."—Lewis Anderson, Kuhn, S. D.

BILLS ARE COMING IN

Sixty Have So Far Been Introduced in Both Houses of the Legislature.

ROUTINE OF ELECTING SENATOR

Concurrent Resolution Opposing Reciprocity with Cuba Withdrawn—The Junket.

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 20.—The two houses are now down to business, the standing committees having been announced by the presiding officers last week, so that the necessary machinery for caring for whatever may be dumped into the legislative hopper is now at hand. The indications are that the usual amount of local legislation, practically all of which ought to be kept away from the legislature entirely, will be rounded up to occupy the attention of the solons. Thus far some sixty bills have been introduced in the two houses, and nine-tenths of them are purely local in their application. The time may possibly come when the people of the state of Michigan will consent to a change in the constitution which will leave this local legislation to the legislative bodies of the respective localities where it properly belongs, and thus cut the sessions of the state legislature squarely in two. Even as it is, only the representatives of the respective localities which these measures affect pay the slightest attention to these bills, but the expense entailed by them is increased wonderfully by the present system.

Vote for United States Senator.

Today the members of each house will, in accordance with the requirement, vote for United States senator. Today's vote will be taken in each house separately, the provision being that it shall be so taken on the second Tuesday of the legislative session. Tomorrow at high noon the two houses will meet in joint convention and the senators and representatives will cast their votes for their choice for this high office. This will complete the requirements, and General Russell A. Alger will then have been formally elected senator for the unexpired term of the late James McMillan.

It is altogether likely that the legislature will adjourn this week for ten days. This is to enable the two houses, or the committees thereof, to visit the various state institutions. In my first letter I predicted that the legislature would go back to the old plan of having a so-called junket, and it was returned to by unanimous consent. Experience having taught those who succeeded in having it abolished two years ago that it is a saver of both time and money. This junket will take place much earlier this year than in previous sessions, the desire of the presiding officers being to have this necessary business out of the way at the earliest possible moment.

Favors Anti-Cigarette Law.

Mrs. Lucy Page Gaston of the anti-cigarette league of Chicago was here last week and interviewed a number of legislators with a view to having the anti-cigarette law of Tennessee enacted in Michigan. This law provides fine and imprisonment for making, selling or bringing into the state any cigarettes. It is understood that Senator Westover will introduce the bill in the senate and that both the executive and educational departments of the state will give it their moral support at least.

If the recommendations of the state court of mediation and arbitration, which were made to the legislature a few days ago, are adopted there will be enacted a law which will require the chief executive of each city and village in the state to notify the court promptly of all labor troubles within their respective jurisdictions, so that the court may tender its services in effecting a settlement. The court does not believe in compulsory arbitration, deeming it an infringement of the constitutional rights of the individual. I believe the assertion is warranted that the powers of this court ought to be enlarged, or the court should be abolished. At present it is just about as useful as a fifth wheel to a wagon, and no more. For a number of years previous to the election of Governor Pingree successive executives paid no attention to this law, and purposely so. I do not appoint members of this court, and I do not consider it my duty to do so. I do not consider it my duty to do so. I do not consider it my duty to do so.

whose district a best sugar factory is located, last week offered a concurrent resolution opposing Cuban reciprocity. The resolution was laid over one day under the rule, and when it came up for action its introducer had it tabled, explaining that "they were getting together down at Washington."

A determined effort will be made to have the game laws amended this year, the present session being no different from its predecessors in this regard. One of the unaccountable things about the enactment of laws in Michigan at least is that every session for the last quarter of a century sportsmen of Michigan have after weeks of effort, secured just exactly the changes in the law they desired, only to bob up at the beginning of the next session with a long list of proposed amendments that must be made if the game is to be preserved and rights of the hunter protected. Just why these laws never remain satisfactory over night has yet to be demonstrated. This session is no exception to the rule, and the discussion of needed changes has been on in the newspapers of the state for several weeks. Numerous sportsmen having expressed their views on the subject. Just what changes will be finally incorporated in the form of bills remains to be seen.

Ban on High-Power Guns.

Senator Burns of Grand Rapids has drafted a bill for early introduction which has for its object the prohibition of the use of high-power guns in hunting deer. Ever since these guns came into use the number of persons killed by stray bullets in the woods has annually increased, and it is in the hope of decreasing these fatalities that the Burns measure will be proposed. The introducer says he has found upon investigation that nearly all hunters kill deer at a distance of from four to five rods, so it is not necessary for sportsmen to use guns that will carry balls a mile or more. The bill will also prohibit the use in the woods of Michigan of explosive stronger than ordinary gunpowder.

Must Keep Their Eyes Open.

It is evident that the ways and means committee of the house and the finance and appropriations committee of the senate will have to tend to their knitting sharply if they succeed in keeping the appropriations of the present session below those of two years ago. There is no doubt that the appropriations to be asked for will materially exceed those of 1901, but, of course, all that is asked is not always given. One of the items to be asked for, it is understood, is $150,000 for the Michigan exhibit at the St. Louis exposition. Advocates of this appropriation are already on the ground, but whether they are willing to compromise on a smaller sum has not yet developed. There will be some opposition to as large an appropriation as the sum mentioned.

Under the present law the primary school fund, into which goes the entire revenue from specific railroad taxation, is distributed on the basis of the number of children of a school age, between 5 and 20 years, in the respective municipalities. This is considered an inequitable distribution by some for the reason that a township or city may have a large number of such children within its borders, whereas an unusually small number of them actually attend school. A bill will be introduced for the purpose of making this distribution on the basis of the number of children who attend school.

Murder of McKinley Recalled.

An echo of the assassination of President McKinley was heard in the house this week when Representative Powell of Iowa introduced a bill providing capital punishment for one who, within the borders of this state, murders a president of the United States or any member of his cabinet. Election is "he made of death provided. The bill stipulates however, that the jury may determine whether solitary confinement for life or death shall be the penalty.

Two years ago the legislature provided a mill tax for the support of the agricultural college, and on the basis of the present equalized valuation of the state this tax produces an annual revenue of about $100,000. As the years go by this revenue will increase with the increasing value of the state. This revenue is much greater than the college received in previous years from the legislature, and in his recent message Governor Bliss expressed the opinion that the present revenue is too great. Friends of the college, however, and this does not mean that the governor is its enemy by any means, will oppose any measure which seeks to lower the rate.

One of the bills thus far introduced provides an appropriation of $60,000 for a monument in honor of Michigan soldiers who died in Andersonville prison.

Design for Soldiers' Monument.

The state commission appointed by authority of the last legislature to select a design for a soldiers' monument to be erected in this city selected a design some weeks ago and recommended that the legislature appropriate not to exceed $250,000 for this purpose. There is little probability that this appropriation will be made. While all agree that this would be a grand recognition of the Michigan soldiers living and dead and a recognition that will some day be made, they are apparently equally of the opinion that there is more urgent need just at present in more directions. The imperative necessity for either enlarging the state house or erecting a new office building for the accommodation of certain state departments is conceded by all, and it is highly probable that both the soldiers' monument project and the plan to erect a home for the governor will have to stand aside this year.

AFTER THE BAD ONES

BILLS TO WEED OUT CHATTEL MORTGAGE SCHEMERS.

ALGER'S VOTE OF BOTH HOUSES STOOD 113 TO 10.

LONG GRIST OF BILLS UP FOR CONSIDERATION.

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 22.—Acting Governor Fuller performed the ceremony at high noon Wednesday of declaring General Russell A. Alger elected United States senator by a vote of 113 to 10 of both houses. The joint session was a perfunctory affair of about ten minutes' duration. Senator Simons, in behalf of the Detroit delegation, wired General Alger apprising him of the declaration of the joint convention.

Mr. Colby in the morning introduced the Detroit Municipal league bill which has already been laid before the senate by Senator Simons.

The committee on elections yesterday afternoon recommended that the Wayne and Kent counties primary election bills be referred back to the senate, and printed for the use of the committees.

The chattel mortgage sharks are in for a bumping before many moons. Senator Simons and Representative Denby have already agreed on a bill which they have laid before their respective houses. Senator Scripps yesterday noticed a bill for the incorporation and regulation of small loaning companies, while still another measure was presented to the house by Representative Shea of Detroit, by which all mortgages, notes, contracts of debt, loans, etc., on which more than the legal rate of interest of 7 per cent is charged, shall be declared null and void.

Representatives are beginning to get leary of lightning express legislation, and a Berrien county school district bill, which passed the senate Tuesday, was held up and referred to committee. A resolution offered by Representative Colby of Detroit, expressing it as the sense of the house that hereafter no local measures shall be passed without previous reference to committee, unless the introducer can satisfactorily explain the necessity of immediate action, was adopted.

The taxation of all classes of water craft by 3 cents per net ton, all collections to be turned into the state treasury, and exemption from all other county or state taxation, is the object of a bill offered by Representative J. H. Read of Copehish.

Mr. Denby will shortly present another bill amending the general acts to allow business corporations to be formed "for any lawful purpose," instead of being restricted as at present. He will also ask that the minimum requirement of capital be lowered from $5,000 to $1,000.

Miss May Page Gaston addressed the house on the evils of the cigarette habit for ten minutes in the morning.

The St. Louis fair commission project is taken care of in Representative Seoley's bill, though he specifies no amount in his appropriation clause providing for Michigan's exhibit. Friends of the measure, however, want to have about $75,000 paid out.

The senate and Governor Bliss may not be so far apart on the appointment of game warden than would at first appear from a bill introduced into the upper house Wednesday by Senator Donerty, the Bliss leader. The bill makes it necessary for the governor to submit to the senate for confirmation the name of his appointee for fish and game warden. If the governor felt disposed to veto the measure it would take a two-thirds vote of the senate to pass it.

Senator Lockerby's bill to provide for the reception and retirement of crippled children between 12 and 14 years at the Coldwater state school, carries with it an appropriation of $25,000 for the erection and maintenance of two children's buildings.

Senator Brown didn't flinch any honor from Senator Westover by introducing an anti-cigarette measure. Brown's bill does not interfere with original packages of cigarette trade in that form is a part of interstate commerce. Westover has another measure to establish a license system in the cigarette business. Miss Gaston prefers Brown's bill as it goes farther.

Senator Doherty is preparing a bill appropriating $175,000 for a home for epileptics, which he hopes to locate near Saginaw.

Prisoner and Guard Missing.

Fort Wayne, Mich., Jan. 22.—Two familiar faces are missing at Fort Wayne. Sentry Driscoll of Company F had the guarding of Prisoner George Davenport. Davenport was assigned as helper to the garrison plumber and Driscoll's stunt was to follow them both about with a loaded gun. Some time during yesterday afternoon the prisoner escaped, and stranger still, it is alleged the sentry deserted his post. The question now baffling the authorities at the fort is whether or not the two men agreed to skip together.

Memorial to Professor Lodeman.

Ypsilanti, Mich., Jan. 22.—Memorial exercises in honor of the late Professor August Lodeman, head of the department of modern languages, were held in Normal hall Wednesday, the hall being crowded with students and citizens. The principal address was by Daniel Putnam, the venerable professor of psychology and pedagogy.

Farmers Worked the People.

Albion, Mich., Jan. 22.—It is reported from reliable sources that farmers living between this city and Marshall have been buying coal in this city, taking it to Marshall and selling it at a large advance in price.

Morally but Not Physically Myopic.
Some people evidently not of the best moral "sight" have been visiting Henry Bullen's henery and helping themselves to Hen's carefully cultivated hens, ducks and even roosters. He has shot a couple of times in the air to frighten, but now he says from this on they want to keep their coat tails down.—Lisbon Comet.

Profits by Sense of Smell.
There is in Buffalo a young Irishman who possesses such a keen sense of smell that he draws a large salary from the Buffalo Gas company as an expert leak hunter. Recently he located a leak in the city hall that other men had unsuccessfully sought for eight years.

Child Eats Strychnine.
Rufus Carris, Jr., 2 years old, climbed on a pantry shelf at his home near Keota, Ia., and not finding either fly paper or concentrated lye at hand, had to content himself with a dozen two-grain tablets of strychnine, topping off with a bite out of the lid of the box.

Result of Australian Drought.
The drought in Queensland, Australia, has been responsible for a curious accident recently. The leaders of a great flock of sheep scented water and instantly the whole flock stampeded for the water hole, with the result that in the narrow gully hundreds were trampled to death.

School Notes.

[By the Superintendent.]

Excellent drawings made by the second grade illustrate some things seen at home.

The weather chart kept by the second grade is a source of education and interest in their study of meteorology.

Last week the first grade pupils went out on the yard with their teacher and built snow huts in imitation of those used by the Eskimos about whom they were studying.

Programs for the Teachers' association have been printed by the Record; they are very neat and tasty and the work speaks volumes for the office and man in charge of that department.

About a year ago bound pamphlets issued by the State Board of Health and giving valuable information regarding the prevention and treatment of contagious diseases, and the manner of disinfecting the premises were sent out from the school at that time we tried to supply every family who cared to receive a copy and we still have a few more left which we would be pleased to send to families who desire them.

If parents, who are keeping children at home on account of whooping cough, will confer frequently with teachers, where it can be done without conflicting with the orders of the health officer, it will enable them to keep their children in touch with their lessons and possibly prevent failures at the end of the year.
Considerable school work can be done at home, especially in the first and second grades. Those who have older children in school may arrange to get the outline of the work daily from the teachers.

The Wayne Co. Teachers' association meets in Northville next week Saturday, the 31st. All the sessions will be held in the M. E. church beginning at 1:30 p. m. As a part of the program Mrs. M. E. Kern of our village schools will present the subject of "Primary Reading" and illustrate her work by a class exercise.
We hope that, besides teachers,
there will be many parents present and that all will feel free to take part in the discussion which will follow. Supt. E. F. Gee of the Wayne schools will present the subject, "Arithmetic in the Grammar Grades, What and How," after which Miss Sanford, preceptress of our high school will lead the discussion. The important subject, "Relation of Teacher to Parent from Parents' Point of View," will be presented by P. B. Whitbeck, Pres.
of Plymouth's Board of Education, after which C. C. Chadwick of Northville will lead the discussion.
"Round Table Talks" led by Commissioner E. W. Yost follow with the focal subject "Pleasant School Rooms." The afternoon program will close at 4:15 to allow those who cannot remain to the banquet and evening lecture to take the 4:15 or 4:30 car. At five o'clock the ladies of the M. E. church serve supper, after which the enjoyable toasts will be given. At 7:30 Prof. W. N. Ferris, president of the Ferris Institute of Big Rapids, will deliver a free lecture on the important subject, "The Building of a Man." Special music has been provided by the Ladies' Quartet. Few men in the state can please an audience as can Prof. Ferris.
We hope there will not be standing room left, but that all may hear him.
Every teacher, parent, members of school boards and young people are especially invited to all of the program.

VEST OF MISSOURI.

PERSONALITY OF THE SENATOR WHO IS SOON TO RETIRE.

Brilliant as Orator and Wit and a Forceful Debater—Noted as a Story Teller—His Experience as a Soldier—A Man of Many Moods.

Senator George Graham Vest of Missouri, who on March 3 next will retire from the United States senate, in which he has been a force since 1879, has been in public life since 1869 and is one of the two surviving members of the Confederate senate that sat in Richmond in 1863.

For many years Senator Vest was regarded as the best equipped debater on the Democratic side and one of the best in the senate. For several years Senator Vest's health has been failing, and his voice has been seldom heard. On the rare occasions when he has spoken the fire of the senator's earlier days has been lacking, and his physical weakness and feeble voice make his efforts seem a reminiscence.

Vest is not the oldest man in the senate, having been born in 1830, but he is near it. There have been few greater orators in the senate than he and none who was a greater master of invective. Vest has been one of the best story tellers the senate has ever known, and many good stories that have appeared in print originated with him.

When Vest was a member of the Confederate States congress, he became aware that sentiment in Missouri was being aroused against him by the assertion that he preferred the life of a legislator to that of a soldier. He thereupon shouldered a musket and went to the war.

The first battle in which he was engaged the Confederates lost, and Vest was retreating from the field when he met a soldier from his own district.

"Jim," he said, "you see what I am doing?"

"Yes," said the other.

"Now, Jim," said Vest, "I want you to go back to Missouri and tell them there that you saw me fighting for my country. Tell them, Jim, that you saw me in a battle yourself."

Jim said he would go as he was bid and started on his way.

"Oh, Jim," Vest called after him, as a new thought flashed into his mind.

SENATOR GEORGE GRAHAM VEST OF MISSOURI

"When you tell them you saw me in a battle you can add, if you want to, that if I keep my health and have an ordinary run of luck no living man will ever see me in another."

Vest, like all men of imagination is a man of moods. There are times when he is absorbed in thought, and then he is taciturn. It is related that one day the late William B. Hatch, who entered the senate, went over to consult the senator and found him in a fit of abstraction, moody and taciturn. Hatch had about as much imagination as a broomstick.

Hatch got no satisfaction from Vest and so went tearing back to the house, scattering explosives on the way. Some Missouri people got hold of him and told him that Vest would be all right next day and to go and see him when he was in the vein. Hatch did so and came back delighted. There was a discussion as to the occasion of Vest's moods, and one of the party said it was his imagination.

"Imagination be hanged!" roared Hatch. "It's his liver. That's all the matter with him. Let him send for some good Kentucky bourbon whisky and he'll be all right."

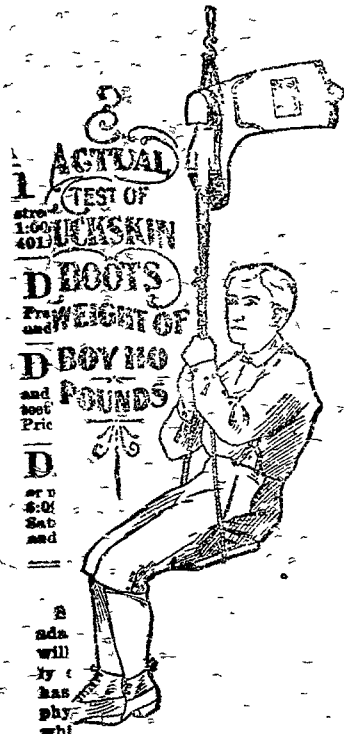

Of those whom Vest found in the senate when he entered it in 1879 only Hoar, Allison, Jones of Nevada, Cockrell and Morgan remain. Cockrell and Allison will die in harness, and one of the other of them will have the record for length of service in the United States senate and a record that will hold for a century. In this company, however, Jones of Nevada also is included.

Senator Vest is a native of F. but has lived in Sweet Springs since 1853. His retirement is because of his old age. He will leave a vacancy being hard to fill and will be a holy confederate, with whom heep, Nicolar.

Will Send $4.00 Free

To Each Reader Franklin Miles, M. D. L. L. B., the Wealthy Chicago Specialist, Will Send $4.00

Worth of His New Individual Treatment Free.

That Dr Miles is one of the most successful and reliable of physicians is proven by hundreds of testimonials from well known people. One patient cured after failure of eleven Grand Rapids physicians, two after having been given up by six or seven Chicago physicians, another after nine of the leading doctors in New York City, Philadelphia and Chicago failed. Thousands of testimonials sent on request

The late Prof J. S. Jewell M. D., editor of the Journal of Nervous and Mental Diseases, published as Chicago, advised Dr Miles to publish means publish your surprising results "Prof J. P. Ross, M. D., President of Rush Medical College, wrote in 1874: Dr Miles has taken two courses of my private instruction in diseases of the heart and lungs"

Col. G. E. Parker, Ex-Treasurer of South Carolina, says: "I believe Dr Miles to be an attentive and skillful physician in a field which requires the best qualities of head and heart" Col. M. A. Tucker, late General Manager of N. Y. L. E. & W. system of railways, says: "Dr Miles' success as a physician has been phenomenal" Col E B Spleman, of the 9th Regulars, U S A, San Diego, Cal. says: "Your Special Treatment has worked wonders when all else failed I had employed the best medical talent and was spent $2,000"

When an experienced and wealthy physician offers to prescribe free $40,000 worth of treatment for diseases of the heart, nerves, stomach or dropsy it is conclusive evidence that he has great faith in his skill. And when hundreds of prominent men and women freely testify to his unusual skill and the superiority of his New Individual Treatment, his liberality is certainly worthy of serious consideration.

The Doctor's new system of treatment is thoroughly scientific and immensely superior to ordinary methods

As all afflicted readers may have $4.00 worth of treatment especially prescribed for each case, free with full directions, we would advise them to send for a Copylighted Examination Card, at once. Address Dr. Franklin Miles, 201 to 209 State St., Chicago, Ill.

SPEAK OUT

The Searchlight of Publicity is Pleasing Northville People.

Publicity is what the people want. Let the public speak on the subject. There has been too much claim too little proof. There is only one kind of proof for a Northville citizen, the experience of people we know. When friends and neighbors endorse no question about such evidence. Thus kind of proof backs every box of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is a case of it:

Mrs. J. Palmer of Andy street, husband employed in the Lumber Yard, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills were used in my family some time ago, for backache and other symptoms of kidney trouble and they proved to be all that is claimed for them, for in a short time the annoying back ache was a thing of the past and the other symptoms of disordered kidneys disappeared. I am pleased to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. They are a wonderful medicine and one that everybody should know about."

Just such emphatic endorsement is plentiful in Northville. Call at Murdoch Bros' drug store and ask them what their customers report. For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Wilbur Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U S. Remember the name, Doan's, and take no substitute.

Binding of Books.

Books should be properly bound. To deck Milton out in fine apparel is mere foppery. Like a beautiful woman, he does not need it, and it confers no distinction on either. When to gild and when not to gild; when to be severe and when to be splendid; which authors to dress in plain attire and which to dress in purple and fine linen is a test of taste and of fine discrimination.

Dislocated Her Shoulder.

Mrs. Johanna Soderholm of Fergus Falls, Minn., fell and dislocated her shoulder. She had a surgeon get it, but it was quite sore and pained her very much. Her son mentioned that he had seen Chamberlain's Pain Balm advertised for sprains and soreness, and she asked him to buy her a bottle of it which he did. It quickly relieved her and enabled her to sleep which she had not done for several days. The son was so much pleased with the relief it gave his mother that he has since recommended it to many others. For sale by Geo. C. Hueston

NOTED EDUCATOR DEAD.

Austin George of Ypsilanti Succumbs to Heart Disease.

Ypsilanti, Mich., Jan. 21.—Professor Austin George, superintendent of public schools, died Tuesday of heart trouble, aged 61 years. The public schools were at once dismissed.

The shock to the people of Ypsilanti was very great. Professor George had always been intensely active in educational affairs throughout the state. He was born at Litchfield, Mich., in 1841. He attended the union school at Jonesville, graduated from the Detroit commercial college in 1858, and entered the normal school, graduating in 1863. In 1862 he helped greatly to organize Company E, Seventeenth Michigan Infantry, went to the front as company clerk and participated in the battle of South Mountain. He was very prominent in Grand Army circles, and last year was regimental president of the Seventeenth Michigan Infantry.

In 1863 Professor George became principal of the Kalamazoo high school, in 1864 he studied history and law at the University of Michigan. In 1872 he held the chair of rhetoric and literature in Kalamazoo college, next year becoming superintendent of the Kalamazoo public schools, holding that position till he became professor of rhetoric and literature in the State Normal school at Ypsilanti in 1879. In 1882 he became director of the normal training school.

He was progressive and a pioneer in educational lines. Probably no man was in closer touch with all the schools in Michigan.

At the time of his death he was superintendent of the schools of Ypsilanti.

In 1868 he was united in marriage to Mrs. Sarah Williams of Kalamazoo. She and six children survive him.

GRAND CHAPTER, R. A. M.

In Session at Detroit—Over 400 Visitors Registered.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 21.—The largest attendance in its history was recorded at the fifty-fifth annual convocation of the grand chapter of the Royal Arch Masons when the session opened at the Masonic temple on Lafayette avenue yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Over 400 delegates and visitors registered from the 135 chapters located all over Michigan.

Charles L. Stevens, Ypsilanti, grand high priest, read his annual address, in which he commented upon the very prosperous condition of the order in Michigan, and of the large increase in the membership. He recommended that 10 cents per capita of the annual dues be devoted to the maintenance of the Masonic home at Grand Rapids, and later the recommendation was adopted.

Grand Treasurer Emerson M. Newell of Fenton reported receipts for the year amounting to $10,237.68. A balance of about $3,000, added to $4,000 on hand, swelled the surplus to $7,000.

Among the measures adopted at the session was a law relative to limits, the existing one being changed to correspond with all the provisions of the blue lodge.

Will Be Tried by Jury.

Port Huron, Mich., Jan. 21.—In the suit brought by the supreme tent K O T M, against the Port Huron Savings bank, in which plaintiff seeks to recover $50,000 alleged to have been converted by its treasurer, Charles D. Thompson, who was also assistant cashier of the bank, to cover up his shortages, the attorneys for the plaintiff moved to have the case decided on the appointment of three referees under an old statute. Judge Law has denied the motion for the reason that it would practically bar the defense of the right of trial by jury.

Guilty of Blackmail.

Flint, Mich., Jan. 21.—As had all along been expected, the jury in the case of Joseph W. Stockwell, charged with obtaining the signature of Jacob Raquet of Saginaw to a note for $3,000 by false pretenses, brought in a verdict of guilty. The maximum penalty is ten years. Stockwell never denied getting the money from Raquet, but claimed that he and the others acted as attorneys for Rose Taylor, who alleged Raquet had gotten her into trouble. They asked Raquet first for $3,500, but compromised on $3,000.

Brunke Murder Trial Begins.

St. Joseph, Mich., Jan. 21.—After consuming a day and a half in selecting a jury, the case of Harry Brunke, charged with the murder of Lee Shearer, was taken up Tuesday afternoon. The case was taken up by the prosecution, and two witnesses, Clarence Evans and John Lein, who were with Shearer on the afternoon of the murder, were examined, but gave little information. An effort was made by the defense to impeach the testimony of Lein.

CHAPTER XVIII.

DURESS.

DESPITE the protest and entreaty of Estelle the feeble invalid responded to the summons of Quilbert to a meeting at the old cabaret. He dared not disobey, though the journey was made with pain of body and mental misgiving. He had vaguely connected Estelle's last visit to his house with impending catastrophe, for Estelle had since been more depressed, more reticent and even more tenderly solicitous in her watchfulness over him, but he feared to question and was left in ignorance of what had occurred. At the cabaret he was ushered by Dede into the familiar rear room, where Quilbert and Evariste awaited him at the balze covered table. Evariste was smoking a fragrant Cuban cigar. One glass and a bottle were before Quilbert, who was doggedly drunk. Latiois was received with ominous coldness. No glass was offered him. He lacked courage to ask for one.

"Leonidas, settling day has come," said Quilbert, with brutal abruptness, terminating an embarrassing silence. "What? How, Constant?" Latiois asked, shaking as if with an ague. "What? Your indebtedness to me. How? In money. Pay me the money."

"Now?" "Yes, now. It is past due. You have had more time than I ever asked of a creditor."

"But the notice is so short, Constant." "So is my time, Leonidas." "My debt is large." "I know that, to my sorrow." "I have not the money." "Get it." "Within what time?" "Thirty days." "Impossible."

"Then the property must answer." "Oh, Constant, my friend, spare me!" groaned the unhappy man. "Leonidas, my very dear friend, I have not time. My other dear friends, Americans and Christians are pressing upon me inducements to return to France which really I cannot resist. We are getting old, you and I just think of it, I am older than you! I may not live to come back to this paradise, and therefore my affairs here must be closed up just as if I meant not to come back. I really have not the time to spare you, Leonidas." Quilbert appeared to enjoy the pangs of his victim as much as he did the rum, which he quaffed at shortening intervals, his insolence increasing with each potation.

"Are you serious, Constant, and will not pity for my grandchild move you?" "I never was more serious in my life, and nothing but death can move me. At present, Leonidas, I enjoy perfect health."

"My God! My God! My poor Estelle must suffer want and have her head in shame for my disgrace. And there is no escape, no hope." The old man's head was lowered, and his shaking frame rocked to and fro. "There is hope, there is escape" in emphatic tone said Leonidas, whose silent presence had been forgotten by Latiois in his distress.

"Where? By what means?" cried the latter, looking up with wonder and wistfulness in his haggard face. "Estelle can save you," Evariste replied.

"Estelle? My Estelle? Explain, my dear young friend."

"Be calm, monsieur, and I will make my meaning plain to you." Evariste exemplified his advice, being as unperturbed in manner and free from excitement in speech as if he were discussing persons and affairs remote from his own interest. "In the course of business with Quilbert I have become possessed of a portion of your obligations—namely, some of your notes, your granddaughter's procuration to you to contract debts for the maintenance of her property and authorization to cancel her mortgage against you so as to give first rank to the security I hold. M. Quilbert has determined to leave this country very soon, and I appreciate the necessity for haste. There must be mutual accountings between him and me to adjust finally our joint ventures during the past four years, some of which have been quite heavy. As your notes and their securities held by us two are in the main concurrent, if he forecloses I shall be compelled to do likewise. I understand, of course, you have not the means of payment. The sale or surrender of your property and your granddaughter's must follow pressure. Now, I will purchase all your obligations which M. Quilbert has and deliver them, together with those which are in my hands, to you, making you a debtless, solvent man and reinstating your granddaughter's estate on one condition."

"And that is, monsieur?" "That Estelle becomes my wife within a month. You now understand that Estelle, and she alone, can save you." Evariste concluded, as he had begun, smiling coldly, deliberately, precisely. "Are a prince in generosity, my dear friend. I am overwhelmed by your unselfishness. You give me life, peace and health, and in return I can give you only an old man's thankfulness." Latiois in a transport of grat-titude rose and started to embrace Evariste, but in sheer weakness reeled and would have fallen to the floor had not the young man caught him and returned him to his chair. "Collect yourself, monsieur. There is no occasion for demonstration," said he dryly. "Do you promise Estelle's consent?" "Certainly I do," he replied, half weeping, half laughing. "She, dear child, will be honored and overjoyed, and she will be as grateful as I am. To save her grandfather and become the happy wife of the noble and great-hearted M. Oakfell. Ha, ha, ha, ha! Oh, I promise, I promise her consent."

"Attend, monsieur. This is Wednesday. On Saturday next at 4 o'clock I will call on Mlle. Latiois and ask her hand in marriage. Her answer will decide the matter we have discussed today."

"Will you not come in time to dine with us?" said Latiois almost affectionately. "No; that can await her answer," Evariste curtly replied. "Never fear the answer, M. Evariste. It will be as you wish. Is all this agreeable to Constant?" "It is. He wants his money, that is all. Eh, Quilbert?"

"Honor!" quipped the latter, waking from the torpor into which he had suffered the rum to sink him since he had been left out of the conversation. "Then," said Latiois, "let us drink to unity, peace and happiness for us three."

"No," Evariste objected, "you must not drink until this matter is concluded." "I will do the needful drinking, Leonidas," said Quilbert, telling his glass "You make sure of Evariste's bride."

"Well, my kind friends, I must go to my grandfather. I am grateful and happy." Neither accompanied him out of the room. Dede assisted him into his buggy, gave him the reins started the horse homeward and stood in the doorway gazing after him and wondering by what miracle it was that he left the cabaret sober.

How long the buggy and patient horse had stood in the shade of a spreading umbrella china tree beside the home gate was not known. A passerby, receiving from the proverbially polite old man no acknowledgment of his salute, looked attentively into his face and discovered that Leonidas Latiois was unconscious, though sitting erect on the buggy seat, holding the reins loosely in his hands. The household was alarmed, and he was tenderly lifted and conveyed to his chamber. The breathing was deep and regular, the limbs were warm and mobile, but a heavy sleep seemed to have settled upon him, from which he could not be awakened. Dr. Tougare, the family physician, after vain experiments with black coffee, limited his treatment to such medication as would sustain the patient's strength and trusted to nature and perfect rest for the restoration of the mental faculties, strictly enjoining absolute quiet. Thus for days the stricken man lay mute and almost motionless, rousing only sufficiently to receive nutriment, and no word had escaped his lips when the day and hour arrived, so faithful to him and his ward, set by Evariste for the visit of weal or woe.

CHAPTER XIX.
CASSANDRA SURVIVES TROY.

THE midday meal had been eaten, coffee had been served on the veranda to Estelle and Father Grhe, whom she had persuaded to prolong his duty call at the afflicted home. Suffering was depicted in her face, but also the meek resignation of the martyr. The priest, whose breadth of girth had grown in the pinching times of war, but whose hair had thinned and was whitening, inhaled the smoke of perique from a long pipe with evident satisfaction, though a look of protest seemed to have settled upon his benignant countenance. Odette, matured and grave, sat on a cushioned block outside the gate, listlessly looking up and down the deserted road. The warm languor of spring was in the air, the hum of tropical noon was on all the scene.

"My child," said Father Grhe, "the life of a discolored Carmelite nun is one of unattainable severity. It is but a breathing death. Her cell is in fact a grave, her convent a cemetery. More than figuratively, she is dead to the world. She can scarce be called a shade of her former self, hunched by hind walls and grates, barefoot, shorn, her sight riveted to the ground, subsisting on crusts dogs would scarce eat. Were I pope the order should be abolished. Think of some other—a Sister of Charity, a Little Sister of the Poor, a Sister of the Sacred Heart. Any of these serves God by serving his children in the world—he made for them."

"It is your tender heart, father, which counsels," she replied, "and it cannot fully know the needs and cravings of my spirit. To mingle with the world even on pious errands must always remind me in some degree of what I have lost, of what I have suffered. Forgiveness of wrongs, forgetfulness of sorrows, absorption in God the Consoler, will soon come in the cell of the discolored nun. And it may be there my soul will soon be chastened and released."

"I fear it is the latter hope which most recruits the order," sighed the priest. "Let not the subject disturb you further for the present, father," she said. "For I will stay by my poor grandfather to the end, as I promised, and possibly then I may be able to see as you do. Will M. Quilbert, you think be cruel enough to disturb grandpère while he is so ill?"

"Cruel enough, yes, but scarcely bold enough to risk the indignation of the people." "And can you believe M. Evariste will fulfill his threat of coming here again and repeating his demand upon me? Can you believe he will after what I said to him, as I have told you?" "I fear he will have the hardihood and meanness to do so. Whatever of manhood and generosity he may have had in former years seems to have been educated out of him by his tutelage to Quilbert," answered Father Grhe, with a bitterness for which he atoned that night with 30 Ave Marias and three readings of the daily office.

"Then, I pray you to stay here, father, as late as you can. I will not ask you to be present at the dread interview, but I shall have courage from knowing you are near."

"Fear not, daughter. I will remain." "Oh, I wish it was over," she whispered, shuddering. A shrill scream at the gate startled both to their feet to see Odette dart down the road like a bird of flight.

"What can have happened to the girl?" exclaimed Estelle, alarmed. "Stay here. I will go and see," said the priest, and he hurried hatless along the gravel walk to the gate and out into the road.

A strange sight met his gaze. The primitive mail coach from Red River Landing, on the Mississippi, with its leather curtains down and drawn by two lean and weary ponies, was approaching. It was surrounded by a score of men on horseback and afoot, crowding past each other and eagerly peering through the front and the sides of the ancient vehicle, all speaking at once, so that their excited voices produced an unintelligible hum. Odette, with her arms round his neck, appeared to be dragging a handsome dark man, whose arm was about her waist, toward the coach, entreating wildly.

"Make him get out! He must get out! Do not let him go by! Help him down! Lead him in! He must not go by!" Father Grhe rushed through the group, threw aside the curtain, looked within and felt back a step, his face radiant with ecstatic astonishment. Raising his eyes heavenward and spreading his open palms, he said solemnly: "Blessed be the name of the Lord now and forever!"

Instantly every head was bowed and reverently bowed, and from amid the old schoolmaster, came the response: "From the rising to the setting sun blessed be the name of the Lord!" Seizing the bride, the priest pulled the unwilling beasts to the gate, tore off the curtain and extending his arms within, said: "Come, your duty stops you here. The merciful and mysterious God has sent you. Come!"

In affectionate embrace he tenderly lifted from the coach a frail figure clad in faded, threadbare gray. The left arm clung to the priest for support; the right lunged from a drooping, shrunken shoulder. The dark man stepped quickly to the maimed side and passed one arm about his body. As the emaciated face turned in mute and kindly recognition a hoarse shout of joy and welcome went up from the men on horses and echoed far into the still forest. At a sign from the priest the company halted at the gate while he passed in with his tottering burden and preceded slowly up the path Odette ran to Estelle, who stood on the veranda bewildered, and, seizing her hand, said:

"Come, my mistress, but be calm. Come, my mistress." "What does it mean, Odette?" asked Estelle, trembling from head to foot. "Come, my mistress, but be calm. Come, come!" Odette repeated and led her down the walk.

As he drew near the man in gray raised his head and disengaging the unwounded hand held it out to her and said: "Estelle, sweet angel, come!" She threw a quick, intensely searching look into the pallid face smiling through pain and in an instant was on her knees kissing the thin hand that closed upon hers.

"My love, my hope, my life! Oh, how wonderful and good is God!" she sobbed. "The Lord lifeth up them that are cast down, the Lord loveth the just," exclaimed the priest, down whose cheeks great tears of joy were coursing, and led his charge to the veranda.

The return of Horace Oakfell seemed a veritable resurrection of the dead. But there was no miracle. It was all explained by the story of Leon, who told it at Oakfell's request and told it with modesty and self negation rare in heroes even of less merit.

"Mr. Horace fell by the spring at Perryville just as at the same moment a shell burst above him and a volley

"Estelle, sweet angel, come!" was fired from the stone fence. I was behind and saw him fall. I was not hit, but fell, too, for I was in the service, only for him and determined to leave him above ground and if they buried him to know where to find his grave. I felt his chest moving and found he was breathing. The southern soldiers were early driven from the neighborhood of Springfield. I bathed Mr. Horace's face and neck with water and wound my shirt about his shoulder, which had been torn away by a mine ball and a piece of the shell. He has no right shoulder now. The battle was over before sunset, and when the Union soldiers came to bury the dead and carry off the wounded he had opened his eyes, but could not speak or move. A sergeant said he would be before morning, and it was of no use to take him from the field, but I begged and implored them not to leave him, and a captain ordered him to be moved to the rear. With others he was hauled in an open wagon to Bardonia and put in a big Catholic college, which was turned into a hospital. They said I had nothing to do with secession and was not a prisoner, but I walked behind the wagon and saw him laid on the floor, with hundreds of the wounded of both sides. They let me wait on the poor man, and I attended to Mr. Horace through the six months they kept him there. Then they sent him to a hospital at New Albany, in Indiana. I managed to follow and got employment in the hospital kitchen. They never did take the little pieces of broken bone from his shoulder, and his wound did not heal. But we got so that he could sit up, and they sent him to the Rock Island prison. It took me a long time, but I worked my way there, and though I could not get inside the wall, I heard he was still alive. I got a place as waiter in a little hotel and kept pretty well posted about the dispositions made of the prisoners.

(To be continued next week.)

A Wonder. Philadelphia claims to possess the most marvelous specimen of needle work in the world. It is a tapestry measuring twenty-seven feet in length and thirteen feet six inches in width. The groundwork is silk, and it is superbly embroidered with figures telling the history of America from the landing of Columbus until 1892. A Polish artist was engaged six years on the work.

Rich Unstarred Woman. Maria Schemmer, a St. Louis woman, unable to read or write, died the other day, leaving an estate valued at $200,000. Her principal heirs are William H. Ulrich, living near Racine, Wis., and Edward W. Meyer of St. Louis. Miss Schemmer signed her will with an "X," but it is duly attested and has been admitted to probate without question.

Skilled Woodmen. In the South Sea islands tree-felling contests are of such importance that specially made axes are imported for the work from America. So skilled are these woodmen of the South seas in felling timber that a dozen blows on the trunk of a tree will show but the one gash, as though done by a single blow of mighty power.

Newspaper for Nervous People. There is talk in Austria of establishing a newspaper especially for nervous persons in which accounts of catastrophes will be treated in a soothing style. This will give a new color name to journalism. If it is "yellow" to jar sensitive nerves it may be considered "gray" to leave them undisturbed.

Japanese Christians Quarrel. Japan Christians belonging to the Greek church have seceded and established a church and holy synod of their own. They did not like being under the orders of the Russian holy synod or the local Greek bishop, Nicolai, whom they have been urging in vain to resign.

A LIFE AT STAKE. If you but knew the splendid merit of Foley's Honey and Tar you would never be without it. A dose or two will prevent an attack of pneumonia or a gripe. It may save your life. For sale by Murdock Bros.
