Pleased With the Baths. -

C. R. Benton starts for his home in Northville, Michigan, today, very much pleased with the baths and feeling fine. Mr. Benton was ap pointed by the late Gov. Pingree to the National Irrigation Congress held at Lincoln, Neb., in 1899, and last year he was appointed by Gov. Bliss as a member of the National

City. Mr. Benton was here for the baths thirteen years ago and made many friends; always the same jovial, soher and pleasant gentleman -Mt.

H. M. Nimmo Gives a Fine Write-up in Monday's Paper.

- "In an old storm-beaten, rickety frame building perched up in the very center-of so little hill near the heart of the town is an abode of mystery called 'the den. It is the rendezvous of A. M. Randolph and a is gained on one side through the woodshed. A kit of tools hes scatteredia motley confusion all about the shed, the smell of timber is strong: the floor is covered with thips and dust, the smashed window panes plugged with old rags-this last view being reserved for the observer from the in-ide-half the side of the shack on the outside being hidden from view or the bushes. Abutting the wood-hed is supother room of even smader area occupied by a large, greasy square piano, carefully closed, one leg supported by an old chair-the only chair in the room-the windows not broken so much, ad those in the woodshed. but quite notable-a can of muchine oil sitting on the window sill, the ceiling low and dusky, and the air not fresh. Through here the favored guest, is liurried to the sancture sanctorum immediately adjoining An old-fashloned shotgun, a lishing rod, a writing desk, a small stove, a bookense, a bed covered with rough blankets, a cuspidore; a trunk, some dishes and a suspicious fooking ten- there because everybody was, tired pot are a few of the things that and just in the mood to enjoy rest strike theeye on first glance Further and quiet Frankfort is a delightful observation reveal an arrray of articles of such varied shapes, value and Curlomty Shop Itself - Outside a sign reads, Rooms or house to reat." One man occupies a room, though

"Wisdom and profound doctrines on every subject ander the An are dispensed in 'the den' by the keeper thereof to ad the wiseners of the village. It is always 'Mister Rindolph' among the villagers, for the old man, now 72 years of age, is fespected by all for his intelligence and brightness and his ability to entertain is the result or long reading and studying He talks as difently and easily as a man or halr his years, and walks as sprightly, too The history of his country, ancient and modern, he is ever ready to quote, the scandals of the postoffice department at Washington and the high price of living in the twentieth century are equally interesting to him, the hible he has at his tongue's end and discusses it with avidity. For Mr. Randolph once preached the gospel. He voted for fremont for president, he sang with the glee club which performed at the reception in Detroit to Secretary Chase, the greenbacker. He ran a drug store in Northville for many years and now

"We didn't have so much when I was a la'.' mused the old man over a pipe of very pungent tobacco, 'and we were a garned sight more contented Nowadays every body wants to get rich and the temptation is so great that half the officiels will steal to get there. VICTIMS OF

THIS YEAR.

Stock association, held in Kansas and Hands Galore.

> Northville's record of -Independence Day acridents this year seems to have been rather out of proportion even for a Fourth which brought, an unusual number of casualties all over the country. No less than four of our local celebrat. ors came to grief through their desire to express their patriotic enthusiasm ın true American fashion bŷ making the largest amount of noise possible within very flexible limits.

The victim who was .bit the hardest by the echoes of 76 was Mac McMahon, an employe at the Ely factory, whose fun came to an abrupt conclusion very early in the morning of the glorious day by an rroneous-calculation as to how long if 'takes a giant cracker to do ousiness after the fuse is lighted. the unfortunate man's right hand was terribly mutuated, all of his nugers being forn off and a hole torn through the palm. McM dio. s an industrious and worth; gentle man and it seems a great pity that he should thus be cruppled for 1 thi migh a moment's circlessiess

The next most sections injury was mfligted on little Charlie Hittori sho was terribly butful in the face and eyes by the explosion of powder with which some children were playing Miss Bessie Langles narrowly missed being furt at the same time, fortunately escuping, however, with only a slight singsing of her hair. Charlie may tose the sight of one eye, though the doctor hopes to bring him out all right if no new complications set in The accident was caused by his tonehing a lighted piece of pank held between pain like a soldier

Another sufferer from too much amiliarity with explosives is Raymond Destutel, who tried the experliment of raminling the active principle of a dynamite cracker into a small cannon. The result left the youngster with a badly wounded hand, the end of one linger and the nail on another being missing and a bisl cut inflicted besides

An additional victim or patriolic ervorwas a young son of Hainey Roach.. The boy was severely burned on his face and hands by some kind of a premature explosion while trying to do he share toward the general jolliheation

ings there were of course innumerable slight casualties and any number of heirbreadth escapes, but by next Fourth of July all except those who have permanent reminders of just how they did it will have forgotten the danger and again become willing candidates for immolation on the altar of the great Annual

Dr. Miles Heart Cure Relieved and Cured.

I have no besitation in saying that Dr. Thave no hesitation in saying that Dr. Miles' Heart Cure is all that one can wish it to be. I was troubled with heart disease, for fifteen years. I have titled many different remedies but until I tried Dr. Miles' Heart Cure I could find no relief. I was subject to head ache's and had tried your Pain Pills' and they, were so effective! I thought your Heart Cure might help me. I would have attacks at times so severe that I would have attacks at times so severe that I would be stood blind for the time being. I saw an advertisement in the Sioux City paper in which a man-stated his symptoms which seemed to me to indicate a trouble similar to mine. I had a soreness in the chest at times, and in my shoulder, an appressive choking sensation in my throat and suffered from week and hingry spells. I was truly frightened at my condition and procured six bottles of Dr. Miles' Heart Cire. Since taking my first bottle I have nevertheen withered by any of the old disagreeable symptoms and now am well and consider my cure permanent."—Lewis Anderson, Kuhn, S. D.

In a lever or eager , haste he bathed and attired himself-for dinner, the imperturbable Hedrick assisting. One query filled the American's mind, wonder if I am to sit beside her." And then: "I have sat beside her! There cau never again be such delight!"

It was 7 o'clock before his rather un usual toilet' was completed. "See if they have gone to the diner, Hedrick, he seld to the manservant, who de-parted ceremoniously.

"I don't know why he should be so very polite," observed Lorry, gazing wonderingly after him c"I'm not a king. That reminds me. I must intromyself. She doesn't know me from Adam."

Hedrick returned and announced that they had just gone to the dining car were awaiting him there. He hurried to the dines and made his way to their table. Uncle Caspar and his niece were facing him as he came up be tween the tables, and he saw, with no little regret, that he was to sit beside the aunt-directly, opposite the girl. however She smiled up at him as he stood before them, bowing He saw the expression of inquiry in those deep, liquid eyes of violet as their gaze wandered over his hair.

"If you were a novel writer, Mr. Lorry, what manner of heroine would you choose?" she asked, with a smile tanfalizing that he understood instinctively why she was reviving a topic once abandoned His confusion was increased. Her uncle and aunt were regarding him calmly-expectantly, he imagined.

"I-I have no ambition to be a novel writer." he said, "so I have not made a study of heroines."

"But you would have an ideal," she pers.sted.

"I'm sure I-I don't-that is she would not necessarily be a heroine. Unof course, it would require hero-

"Tell them, Caspar, how alarmed we were," added soft voiced Aunt Yvonne. Grenfall was a silent, interested spectator. He somehow felt as if a scene from some tragedy had been reproduced in that briefest of momenia. Calmiy and composedry, a nair smile now in his face, the soldierly Caspar narrated the story of the train's run from or e station to the other.

"We did not miss you until we nad almost reached the other station. Then pour Aunt Yvonne askęd me where you had gone. I told her I had not seen you, but went mio the coach ahead to search. Well, when be read that message he said he would wait just twenty minutes. I asked him to tell me how you were coming to us, but he refused to answer Nour uunt and I went at once to the telegraph man and implored him to tell as the truth, and he said you were coming in a carriage over a very dangerous road Imagine our feelings when he said some people had been killed Jesterday on that very road.

"When your aunt and I returned to bis watch He said to me. In just three minutes we pull out. It they are not here by that time they can get on the best they know how. I've done all I can.' I did not say a word, but went to my section and had Hedrick get out my pistols. If the train left before you arrived it would be without its conductor.

"Then came the sound of carriage wheels and galloping horses. Almost before we knew it you were with us. I am so happy that you were not a min ute later."

There was something so cool and gram in the quiet voice, something so letermined in those brilliant eyes, that Grenfall felt like looking up the corductor to congratulate him. The dinner was served, and while it was being discussed his fair companion of the drive graphically described the expenence of twenty strange minutes in a shackledown_mountsin_coach.

Somenow the real bavor of romance was stricken from the ride by her can-did admissions. What he had considered-a romantic treasure was beingcalmly robbed of us glitter, leaving for his memory the blur of an adven-ture in which he had played the part of gallant gentleman and she a grateful lady. He, was beginning to feel ashamed of the conceit that had misled hill. Down in his heart he was saying, I might have known it. I did know it She is not like other women." The perfect confidence that dwelt in the rapt faces of the others forced into his wondering mind the impression that this girl could do no wrong

"And, Aunt Yvonne," she said, in con "the luck which you say is mine as birthright asserted itself. I escaped unburt, while Mr., Lorry alone possesses the pain and unpleasantness of our ride."

"I possess neither," he objected. "The pair that you refer to is a pleasure.

"The pain that a man endures for a woman should always be a pleasure,' said Uncle Caspar smilingly. 'But it could:not be a pleasure to him woman considered it a pain?' reasoned Miss Guggenslocker. 'He could not feel happy if she did not respect the pain."

"And encourage it:" supplemented Lorry dryly "If you do not remind me occasionally that liam hirt, Miss Guggenslocker. I am hable to forget it. To himself be added. "I'll never learn how to say it in one breath." "If I were not so soon to part from you, I should be four physician, and, hke all physicians, prolong your all-ment interminably," she said prettily. To my deepest satisfactions be said warmly, not lightly. There was noth-ing further from his mind than service flattery, as his rejoinder might imply. "Alas," he went or, "we no sooner meet than we part. May I ask when tou are to sail?" "On Thursday," replied Mr. Guggen slocker. On the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse," added his niece, a faraway look com-'We are to stop off one day, tomorrow, in Washington," said Aunt -Yvonne, and the jump that Lorry's heart gave was so mighty that he was afra.d they could see it in his face.

"My uncle has some business transact in your city, Mr. Lorry. We are to spend tomorrow there and Wednesday in New York. Then we sail. Ach, how I long for Thursday!" His heart sank like lead to the depths from which it had sprung. It required no effort on his part to see that he was alone in his infatuation was more to her than his existence. She could forget him and think of Thursday, and when she thought of Thursday, the future, he was but a thing of the past, not even of the present

'Have you always I ved in Washing ton, Mr Lorry?' asked Mrs. Guggen-

"All my life." he replied, wishing at that moment that he was Lomeless and free to choose for himself

"By the way, Mr. Gug-Guggenslocker, you say the conducto asked you for my name, and you did not know it. May I ask how you learned it later on?" His curiosity got the better of him, and his courage was increased by the champagne the old gentleman had ordered.
