A Story of an Easter Offering By WALTON WILLIAMS

It was Palm Sunday. The first of the balmy spring days had come, and the lilac buds were bursting...

"So you think, Ned," said the girl "that you must give up your studies at the seminary and your plan of becoming a clergyman."

ing you. Have you come to a decision as to what you will do? "No, we are not certain as yet..."

The young man left the church and joined James Keith who was waiting for him at the door. As they walked toward home, Edward gave her the substance of his conversation with the minister...

"I will do both for a week and one forever. Nevertheless I am sure I shall not go back to the seminary."

RED CROSS IN JAPAN

TREMENDOUS GROWTH OF THE SOCIETY ORGANIZED IN 1877.

How Popular Interest in the Work is Stimulated—Empress Haruko a Liberal Patron—Russia's Society the Richest in the World.

The Red Cross societies of both Japan and Russia are not surpassed by those of any other nation, that of the latter country being the richest in the world, having at the present time several million dollars in its treasury. While the Japanese society has not so large a bank account, it is amply supplied with funds and in point of membership and enthusiasm in the work easily stands first.

The Red Cross Society of Japan is the noblest of the many charitable institutions that have sprung up in the land of the mikado since it burst its bonds of exclusiveness and opened its doors to the outer world, and in no other country have efforts to minimize the horrors of war met with such unparalleled success as among the Japanese.

During the insurrection of the south west provinces in 1877 a society having for its object the relieving of the wounded and sick, on the field of battle came into being. It adopted the name International Society of Benevolence. After the rebellion was crushed the society decided to form a permanent organization and prepare for small emergencies. When the imperial government recognized the utility of the society in relieving the suffering of the wounded and sick in the field of battle, it was chartered by the Red Cross Society of Japan.

Since the outbreak of the Russo-Japanese war the society has done more to relieve suffering than in any other year. This is a contribution in a great degree to the example set by the mikado and the empress of Japan. The reigning family has a deep interest in the Red Cross work and contributes liberally to the funds of the society. An imperial prince is always its honorary president and the empress takes an active part in its work. She is a frequent visitor to the headquarters of the society and to the Red Cross hospital.

Popular interest is further stimulated by annual gatherings of the mem-

Co-operative Dairying.

Co-operative dairying is directly responsible for an increase in the value of Danish butter exports from about $5,000,000 to over $29,000,000. The first Danish co-operative dairy dates from 1882. Now there are 1,037 co-operative dairies in Denmark, comprising some 149,000 members and receiving milk from 57,000 cows or more than four-fifths of the total number of cows. The average price received for butter is 23 1/2 cents a pound.

hers from every part of the empire. These meetings are usually held in one of the public parks of Tokyo, and the attendance is seldom less than 200,000. Lectures illustrated by magic lantern pictures are given by medical men and attract much attention.

The headquarters of the society are in Tokyo and consist of a number of buildings containing the administrative offices, storerooms and various other departments. The amount of hospital supplies kept at headquarters is enormous. Within a day or two the Japanese Red Cross society can load a hospital ship or railroad train without the least confusion. Surgeons and nurses are ready at all times, and the arrangement of the hospital stores is so systematic that they can be moved at an hour's notice. The surgeons and

A GEORGIA JUDGE WAS ALARMINGLY AFFLICTED WITH CATARRH OF THE LUNGS. CURED BY PE-RU-NA.

JUDGE DURHAM, OF GREENSBORO, GEORGIA.

Catarrh of the Lungs the First Stage of Consumption.

So All Medical Authorities Agree.

Judge Durham, a well-known local Judge of Greensboro, Ga., had an experience with Peruna well worth reciting. A report had become current among the judge's friends that he was threatened with consumption. It was feared for a time that Georgia was to lose one of its most prominent and influential citizens. It was also reported that the judge had failed to get any relief from any of the medical aid at his command, that he had made use of the most widely known remedy, Peruna, and made a prompt recovery. The affair created quite a sensation in medical circles especially, and the many friends of Judge Durham were not only exceedingly gratified at his recovery, but were enthusiastic in their praises of the remedy that had brought him relief.

The following written statement from the judge himself set forth the facts:

Greensboro, Ga., March 3, 1900.

"Some time ago I contracted a severe cold which settled on my lungs and in my head. I tried many remedies, all of which gave me no relief. I concluded that my case was a catarrh of the head and lungs, and seeing Peruna so highly recommended I began using it, experiencing the very best results from the first bottle.

A reward of $10,000 has been deposited in the Market Exchange Bank, Columbus, Ohio, as a guarantee that the above testimonial is genuine; that we hold in our possession authentic letters certifying to the same. Every one of our testimonials are genuine and in the words of the one whose name is appended.

"I continued using Peruna for a short while, and have never felt the least symptoms of catarrh since. Peruna is certainly a good medicine, and deserves the highest praise which is given it by the general public."

Judge Durham has been Secretary and Treasurer of the city of Greensboro, Ga., for the past three years, and has been a local judge for ten years.

Bread Consumption.

There are three roads which lead from health to consumption. Over one of these roads pass all of that great multitude of people who die every year of consumption. Each route begins with health and happiness and ends with disease and death.

First road: a slight cold—neglected—settles in the head or throat—chronic catarrh—extends to the lungs—consumption—death.

Second road: a slight cold—neglected—settles in the lungs—cough gradually growing worse—consumption—death.

Third road: a cold—neglected—settles in the throat—hoarseness—short breath—consumption—death.

Thousands have just started on one of these roads, all of whom could be easily cured by Peruna. Thousands more are half way to the fatal end of one of these roads—who are still curable by a course of treatment by Peruna. Yet other thousands are near the end whose last days could be made bearable and hope of recovery more probable by commencing Peruna without delay.

Seventy different animals were trained before six feet in water and would live together in harmony and do their master's bidding. Seven of these ponderous fellows work in the ring together at the same time and contribute a most interesting specialty.

Whitney's Opera House—Detroit.

Lincoln J. Carter's "The Two Little Waifs" at the Whitney all next week does not depend on sentimental phrases or blood curdling situations. This is true particularly of the dual role, who impersonates two women in widely different walks of life throughout the performance, changing from one to the other several times in a single act, some of the transformations being rapid and requiring great skill. Sunset and moonrise scenes with drifting cloud effects, lighted buildings and show windows and a snow-storm are among the principal scenes.

endeavor to get as close as possible to the Chapel of the Sepulcher, where heaven was to manifest its power. On each side of this chapel there are openings for the fire to issue forth, on the right hand for the Greeks and on the left for the Armenians. Toward these openings all arms were eagerly outstretched. The pilgrims waited breathlessly for the fire to appear so as to light their tapers from it and thus receive the sacred fire first hand. They consider that there is special merit in securing the fire direct from the interior of the sepulcher. For the privilege of standing close to the apertures high sums are paid.
All the windows and even the small balconies round the cupola were filled. Murmurs and shouts resounded through the building. We could hardly realize that we were in a place of worship. The people before us seemed more like those preparing for an insurrection than for a religious ceremony. The vast crowd of pilgrims which surrounded the chapel was divided by an open space formed by two circles of soldiers. About noon an excited group of Arabs broke through this passage and rushed wildly round the sepulcher several times, crying to the fire to descend from heaven and save them. For two hours they kept up this performance. Group succeeded group in this mad race. Some were dressed in sheepskins and others in their ordinary plain white shirts. Most of them were bare armed and barelegged. A bugleman went ahead of this strange procession, clapping his hands, to which they all responded in wild cries in Arabic, the chief words of which seemed to be "This is the tomb of Jesus Christ! God save the sultan!" At last the "bishop of the fire" gave

When Eastertide Comes

OUR word "Easter" is but the Anglicized form of the name of the British goddess of spring, and all our regard for Easter, aside from that based on religion, rests on the fact that in our northern hemisphere it ushers in the spring.
So comes Easter to stand for the rejuvenation of man's soul and body and the brown old earth as well as for the highest religious hope.
Possibly from the same grand original cause the blood of man runs warmer when the sap begins to flow in the tree and he breathes in a new vigor from the springtime breeze.
A good poet tells us that when man is young his fancy at that season turns to thoughts of love, perhaps in obedience to the same tacit command heeded by the wanton lapwing and the red breasted robin.
Be he old or young, the season inspires him with new hope. It must be he sees all that was dead live again, and, whether he knows it or not, it is this sight that inspires him with new courage. That nothing is lost, that no effort of his can come to naught, is the message taught him and the sermon preached by every oat blade sprouting by the wayside, by the flower blooming in the crevice of the rocks.
No matter how desperate his circumstances...

AN EASTER FANTASY.

the signal for the service to begin. A chant was heard in the distance. Out of the forest came a long procession of monks and nuns dressed in silver robes and of process carrying lights and banners was to proceed slowly marching round the sepulcher. The solemn chants of the monks were swifter, more intense, than the old yells of the village pilgrims.
The service of the fire now took of his cup and water and entered the sepulcher. The great miracle was about to take place. A bright flame suddenly appeared inside the sepulcher. The men standing nearest the opening inserted their tapers and drew it out alight. Cries of joy arose on all sides. With frantic eagerness the pilgrims pressed closer and closer to light their tapers, stumbling over each other in their excitement. They were nearly beside themselves for joy. From hand to hand, from taper to taper, the light was spreading in a marvellously rapid manner till very soon the whole building was one blaze of light.
Thick clouds of fragrant incense gave a misty appearance to the surroundings, and through this mist thousands of tiny lights appeared. Shouts of rejoicing continued to resound throughout the church. The bishop came out of the chapel. Immediately four stout priests lifted him in triumph and carried him to his own sanctuary.
Three wealthy Armenians who had bought the privilege of standing close to the opening were the first to rush out of the church with ten lighted lamps. An avenue through the crowd had been kept clear for them to pass, and they quickly carried their lights to their own churches. Mounted horsemen also galloped off with the sacred fire to light the lamps in all the Greek churches round Jerusalem. Others ran barefooted for long distances in the country to do the same thing in the monasteries and convents.

stances in the weekless of a few weeks before, he cannot deny himself the cheer that comes of full reliance on the power which is working the sublime miracle of putting a single snail on a bud.
"Truth crushed to earth will rise again." In that is the comfort of the zealot, the reformer, even though the Easter see him go to his grave for his principles. He sees the divine assurance in the resurrection of every buried seed that—
Ever the right comes uppermost, and ever is just the core.
The Jews' Walling Place.
To Mohammedans and Jews the most sacred spot in Jerusalem is the temple, a vast inclosure nearly a mile in circumference. The principal building is the Dome of the Rock—often, though erroneously, termed the Mosque of Omar—which stands in the very center of the temple and covers the sacred rock whence, according to Moslem tradition, Mohammed ascended into heaven. The point where the Jews gather is beneath the western and outer wall, known as the Jew's walling place. Here every afternoon numbers of Jews may be found swaying their bodies to and fro or pressing their foreheads against the stones, while with tears running down their cheeks they murmur Jeremiah's words of lamentation.
An Irish Easter Custom.
A queer custom, probably descended through the coming of Christianity from the Roman custom of making gifts, exists in Ireland. When people meet on Easter Sunday morning one says:
"Me Aisther eggs on ye?"
The answer is, "That ye musht get." But no meaning whatever is attached to the words nowadays. Probably in ancient times the one who first asked for the eggs had to get them.
