Obituary

John J. Thompson was born in the township of Grand and Livingston county, N. Y., March 19, 1849. He was the son of John and Margaret Thompson and was one of a family of thirteen children of whom one sister, Margaret, wife of Mr. M. H. New York, is the only survivor. His youth was spent on a farm, where he worked summers and attended district school, winters, furthering his limited education by the light of a tallow candle. He applied himself so diligently that at the age of nineteen he commenced teaching school near Mt. Morris, New York, continuing that profession for two years, when he began working his father's farm, remaining there until his marriage in 1875 to Miss Lucinda A. Bowen of Solville, Livingston county, N. Y.

In 1880 he came to Michigan with his wife and three children, of whom Mrs. E. G. Frazier of Connetquot, Pa., and L. L. Thompson of Northville are now living. He first purchased the farm five miles west of Northville on the Base line now occupied by the widow of the late Harry Chas. He had lived here but three months when his wife died leaving him with three small children.

In October 1882 he married his second wife, Miss Isabel Duncan, of South Lyon. This marriage gave him six children, five of whom are living, Robert, Wallace, Byron and Ida Thompson and Mrs. Charles Whipple. The mother died March 24, 1895.

October 20, 1898, he married Mrs. Bessie Banks of Wyom who survives him. The seven children of the deceased were all present at his funeral which was held from the home just west of town Sunday afternoon, Rev. W. S. Jerome of the Presbyterian church officiating.

State Fair at Pontiac

From present indications the State Fair to be held at Pontiac Sept. 12-15 will be larger and better in all departments than ever before. Extraordinary efforts have been made by the management to obtain "the best of the best" for the exhibits and, if we may believe their claims, the fair this year will surpass last year's record breaker. Extensive improvements have been made on the grounds and 1,000 seats added to the grand stand which, though having a normal capacity of 1,000, was found inadequate to take care of the crowd. A competent staff of attendants will be in charge and the visiting public may feel assured that their accommodation will be looked after.

Presbyterian Church Notes.

By the Pastor
Preparations have been begun for the proper celebration of the 75th anniversary of the church on Nov. 25. Large congregations attended our daily services last Sunday. The Sunday school passed the hundred mark in attendance setting a good example for the new year.

Methodist Church Notes.

By the Pastor
Our annual conference convenes at Adrian next week Wednesday. The subject of the session Sunday morning will be "Christ's Presence in the Evening." Being a Real Christian is Less Difficult than Hiding the Lack of It.

In view of all the pastor would be happy to see the entire church and congregation present Sunday morning and to shake hands with all at the close of service.

Next Sunday will be the last Sabbath of the year, and possibly the last Sabbath of the present pastorate. Methodist machinery is liable to move any pastor at any year.

Baptist Church Notes.

By the Member
Our pastor will conduct the usual services next Sunday.

The talk given by Mrs. Ashmore from China was enjoyed by a large audience last Sunday morning.

On account of there not being a quorum present the business meeting of the B. Y. P. U. was postponed until next Wednesday evening to meet with Miss Norma Matthews.

This Friday afternoon we celebrate the birthdays of two of our esteemed members, Mrs. Jane Hinman and Mrs. Charles Elliott, at the home of Mrs. Hinman. All members of the church and congregation are cordially invited to be present.

An English View of the Jews.

It cannot be denied that the Jews, as a general rule, make excellent citizens. Lord Beaconsfield (a somewhat partial witness, perhaps) said that they were "a living and the most striking evidence of the falsity of that pernicious doctrine of modern times, the natural equality of man;" that all their tendencies were conservative, and lay in the direction of religion, property and natural aristocracy.—Macmillan's Magazine.

Suburban News.

Rochester has "a new mens' store." The new woman will not set much store by it.

An advertiser in the Pontiac Independent wants to know the whereabouts of "a dark cat," but there is probably no racial anatomical question involved in the inquiry.

An Orion boy discovered a forpedo on the railroad track and hit it a lusty whack to find out what it was for. He will not try any more experiments until he gets well.

A Trenton minister preached last Sunday on the subject "Fighting the battles." He evidently is not opposed to slim wickets, but if he doesn't look out he will have the health culture people after him.

Ypollant ladies have been working for a long time trying to establish a public rest room for women but have not yet succeeded. By the time the promoters get it ready for use they will need it as badly themselves as anybody can.

Mr. Crenkuch is the pitcher of the Vlnewood ball club and pitched a shut-out game against Wyandotte. We wouldn't give a cent for such a name. We can't pronounce it and guess he was not born in this country.—Adrian Press.

Ophaw. You ought to be able to pronounce anything of us that.

An Orionville baby swallowed a whole bottleful of soothing syrup the other day but the effect was anything but soothing to the whole family and a doctor had hard work to keep the kid from going to sleep permanently. This is another illustration of the dangers of the bottle.

It is generally supposed that the woman's club is a comparatively new institution but Birmingham has a club of ladies which celebrated its fiftieth anniversary last week. Six of the original members still belong to the organization, which has a limit of twelve and certainly dozen have many rivals in point of long continued existence.

They may not exactly have money to burn over at Farmington but they have it to eat. At least, a young man who went out there from Detroit last week found it so plenty that he swallowed a big silver dollar. After rashly adopting such a peculiar and expensive form of diet, he was afraid he would die it seems so was taken to a Detroit hospital for treatment. He should have immediately sent, instead, for Stearns of the Adrian Press, who would have been delighted to confer with a man having a throat capacity sufficient to enable him to swallow 16 to 1 currency with such ease, and who would quickly have convinced the swallower that it would not hurt him a bit.

Allen, the Stove Man.

F. A. Palmer of Flint gives a Phonograph entertainment in the Methodist church this evening. Ten cents admission.

HENRY L. NICHOLS

Died Very Suddenly Here This Morning

Henry L. Nichols, a well known Northville citizen and an old soldier, died very suddenly at 2 o'clock this morning at the home of his brother Morris with whom he lived. He was 76 years of age.

Gala Day at Belleville.

All roads will lead to Belleville Saturday, October 8, when the "Gem of the Huron" will celebrate "Wayne county day." The business men and citizens generally have taken hold with a vim, and there will be sports and games galore. A patriotic concert is to be given at 9 a. m. by the school pupils, and the floral and grain parade will be worth seeing, while "On the Pike" will be of interest to everybody.

The ladies of Grace Episcopal church are to serve a New England dinner in the town hall. This active little village on the banks of Lake Coomer is hustling to make the day an event in its history.

WAGE EARNERS AT THE FAIR

Prominent Men Planning to Help Workers See the Great Exposition.

Wage earners of America are to see the World's Fair by tens of thousands under the auspices of the National Civic Federation. A new bureau of the Federation has just been established at St. Louis upon the World's Fair grounds. Back of the movement are Grover Cleveland, David R. Francis, Andrew Carnegie, Cornelius N. Bliss and others. Plans are making to have a vast number of the wage earners of the United States see the World's Fair, the most glorious spectacle of the age and the most influential factor in the education of the American citizen.

The bureau is in charge of Mrs. Gertrude Peck, secretary of the Federation's welfare department, of which Mr. H. H. Ireland, head of the street railway system of New York city, is chairman. The bureau headquarters is in the east end of the Palace of Transportation, on the ground floor. The Exposition management is in hearty accord with this movement on the part of the Federation to induce the large manufacturers and other employers of labor to provide ways and means for the wage earners of America to visit the Exposition. President Francis is displaying personal interest in the undertaking by affording the Federation every facility for the consummation of its efforts, and in this connection he has directed Theodore H. Hodge, assistant to the secretary, to co-operate with Miss Beck, and Ralph M. Easley, chairman of the Federation's executive council in every possible way.

The Exposition management is also equipped this bureau with clerical assistance and a full supply of World's Fair literature. The bureau will be used as headquarters for all wage earners coming to the Exposition under its auspices. The aim of the Federation is to make it feasible for the largest possible proportion of wage earners to visit St. Louis and see the World's Fair. It will see that they are met at the depot by responsible persons and conducted to suitable lodgings, where they will be treated fairly.

There will also be furnished, free of charge, appropriate itineraries indicating the points of interest to be seen within a limit of one week which is about the average time each party will spend here. It will also indicate the objects of special interest to various craftsmen in their particular lines, so that they may devote as much time as possible to the objects of peculiar interest to them. These and many other efforts will be made to help all wage earners to enjoy the benefits of this great Exposition comfortably and at an expense within their means.

Too Much Experience.

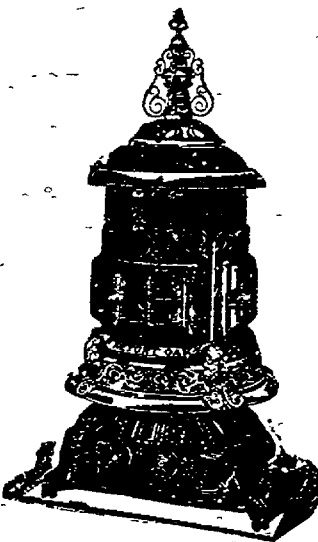

"No, my boy," said the old gentleman, "I shall not make you my bookkeeper, although you are to have a place in my office. As a bookkeeper you are just a little too expert for me, for I learned what you can do with figures by studying the expense accounts you sent me while at college."

Water of the Mediterranean.—Most of the Mediterranean is over a mile deep, but if its surface were lowered only eight hundred feet it would be separated from the Atlantic at the Strait of Gibraltar, and divided into two seas by a land connection between Sicily and the African coast of Tunis.

THE NEWS OF THE WORLD

KUROPATKINS MAD FLIGHT.

Russians Go Through Mukden, Pursued by the Japanese.

London, September 6.—Russia's Manchurian army under Gen. Kuropatkin seems to be thoroughly beaten and in full retreat before the victorious Japanese under Field Marshal Oyama. Not only have the Russians fled from Liao Yang, finally leaving Port Arthur to its fate, but it looks now as if they must abandon Mukden too. According to advices from Mukden received last night and this morning, the authorities see that point would not be likely to prove tenable and the evacuation has been planned and will begin within a day or so.

This evacuation of Mukden means the abandonment of the whole of southern Manchuria and the retirement of the Russians to their final Manchurian base, Harbin, 400 miles north of Mukden. Such a move might readily prove disastrous as the Russian soldiers are in no condition to make such a march except in the earliest of stages, and according to present indications they would be compelled to conduct the retreat fighting rear guard battles the greater part of the way. As a result it is generally believed that should Kuropatkin be able to make Mukden without another serious reverse, but a shattered remnant of his magnificent force should ever reach Harbin. So far as the Japanese are concerned, the evacuation of Mukden would mean commencing winter quarters for them the control of a double track railway and with everything in favor of strengthening their position by reinforcements and supplies, and the most thorough preparation for the proper use of the campaign when the hard winter's past.

Record Crop of Apples.

Reports of the apple crop received at New York by large dealers indicate that the American yield will be about 30 per cent more than last year and 14 per cent above the average for the last 10 years. Some dealers estimate the output at 70,000,000 barrels.

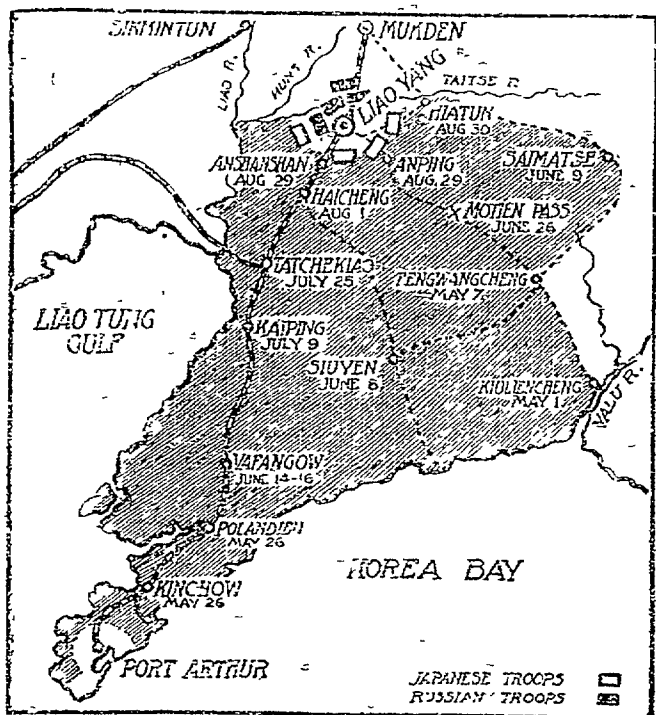

New York state is among the largest apple producers in the east. It is estimated that its crop will be 17 per cent larger than that of last year. Exports of apples last year were valued at $28,237,294, but crop conditions in Europe this season are reported good and the demand possibly will be less.

MAP SHOWING EXTENT OF TERRITORY WON BY THE JAPANESE IN MANCHURIA

The map shows at a glance the extent of territory in Manchuria won by the Japanese since the battle of the Yalu May 1. All the shaded region from the mouth of the Yalu in the east down to Port Arthur and eastward of the Liao river to a point opposite Liao yang has been conquered since the war began. The location of the towns and places at which the principal battles have been fought and the dates of the engagements are also given. The second army (Oyama's command) was partly landed at Pitsung May 5 and 6 and another division at Kanchow May 25 while Nodzu's force, known as the third or Takushan army, began landing on Manchurian soil on the 19th of May.

The capture of Vih. Assumption and 100 government troops by Paraguayan insurgents is reported. An attack on the capital is imminent.

KURCPATKIN HAS REACHED MUKDEN

Bulk of Retreating Army Also Said to Be Near That City.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 7.—From the latest advices received by the war office the authorities now believe the danger of Field Marshal Oyama cutting off Kuropatkin's forces has practically passed. According to their calculations the whole Russian army should reach Mukden. Gen. Kuropatkin and Kuropatkin have been marching northward along parallel lines, both armies being greatly hampered by heavy roads, the Japanese in a rough region and the Russians along a flat country, but embarrassed by the high Chinese corn, which prevented marching on the side of the main roads. No difficulty is being experienced at the Hun river, a few miles south of Mukden, where bridges had been provided for crossing the stream. There has been constant fighting at the Russian rear and along the eastern wing, but so far as known by the war office nothing of importance has occurred since the retreat began.

The general staff naturally is reticent about Kuropatkin's plans, especially whether he intends to stop at Mukden. His decision probably will depend upon the intentions of the Japanese. Continued preparations will probably be made to evacuate Mukden and there is considerable evidence that Kuropatkin, if compelled to go north, will make a stand at Liao yang, where the Russians suffered last year. The line is 40 miles north of Mukden. At this point there is a narrow gorge, with the Liao river on one side and mountains running almost down to the railroad on the other. Steps are being taken to guard against possible attempt to cut the line there.

Most Productive Land Not Always the Most Valuable

It sometimes happens that the value of a piece of land cannot be told by its productivity. Two farms may lie side by side and one may be producing excellent crops from year to year and the other, of exactly the same kind of land, may be producing half as much. The buyer would naturally choose the first one rather than the latter. But in doing this he might make a mistake. Mr. W. J. Thompson was recently mentioning this matter to the writer. He had inspected two such farms in Canada, and said that if he were going to buy either farm he would take the one that had been producing the smaller crops. The reason for this was, easy to understand. The soil was the same on both farms. But the first farm had been in the hands of a careful and ambitious cultivator and he had drained his land and placed it in a condition where it could be used to produce the maximum crops. And for a generation he had been producing these big crops. This meant that the supply of available plant food in the soil had been constantly drawn on, while in the adjacent farm the supply had been drawn on to only half the extent it had on the other farm. There was then in the soil of that so-called "poor farm" a very much larger supply of fertility than there was in the so-called "good farm." It was merely a question of mechanics, that is, the proper drainage of the soil and its proper tillage afterward. All of our readers will see the force of this reasoning. It is only another illustration of the fact that "things are not what they seem."

In riding through a section of Illinois one farm was passed where the crops were simply luxuriant. The wheat stood five feet high and other crops were in proportion, all of them being much better than they were in the surrounding regions. It was evident that the land on that farm was remarkably rich and that the physical structure of the soil must be about perfect. A resident of that locality smiled when the matter was mentioned to him. He replied that the crops on that farm were very good, as the farm was for sale. Inquiry brought out the information that the agent had the farm for sale had proved to be very successful in the disposing of farms at good prices. The practice was to buy a farm and in the spring put on it large quantities of quick working fertilizers, generally of the acidulated and or some nitrogenous material of nitrogen was added. The result was that for one year the crops would be magnificent, as the man would afford to put on more than it would pay to put on under ordinary farming conditions. When the crops were so thin but he brought to see the farm the people that he had in mind as prospective buyers. He could say to them that he wanted them to see the crop actually growing, which would appear a very fair way of doing. But it was he had sold numerous farms and made most excellent profits. Of course the buyers supposed that the land was fertile, these crops from the fertility naturally in it. In a year or two after purchase the buyer finds out that his land for some reason is losing in its ability to produce crops. Again we say that because it is seen actually bearing heavy crops is not a positive proof that it is the most valuable land to buy.

The Brook in The Pasture

In the summer time is the season when the true value of the pasture brook may be gauged, as at this time of year all streams are low. There are brooks that are a help to the pasture and an increase of its efficiency, and there are others that are a constant menace to the health of the stock. There are streams that come from long distances and run past hundreds of farms and there are others that gush out of the hillside fresh and cool. But at this time of year the color of the water will indicate much as to the value of the stream. It is desired to have water in the brook that is clear, that has practically no color at all save what it catches by way of reflection from the sky above it or from the green of the trees that border it. There are many brooks that at this time of year have much color in them, and this is proof that they are being fed from the leachings of peat bogs or marl beds. In a word, this is swamp pollution. The swamps are supposed to be very rich in malarial producing bacteria and to what extent these are carried to the stock in the water we can not know. The farmer that has such a brook will do well to prevent his animals from drinking the water. Some have recommended the draining of the bogs and swamps that furnish water for brooks of this kind, but it is far easier to dispose of the matter in some other way. If the swamp has to be drained anyway to make the land serviceable, there is no objection to its being drained, but otherwise the cost of the remedy is greater than the results of the remedy are valuable. The brook that originates on the farm or near the farm, so that its origin may be known, and at this time of year produces only clear water, is a safe place for the cattle and other stock to drink, provided they can not wade into and pollute its waters. Fencing these brooks is the only way to make them serviceable; otherwise the stock will surely wade into them in hot weather and make a quagmire out of the part to which they have access, unless, indeed, the water is too shallow for this to be an attraction to the animals. We have seen places arranged at such brooks where the stock could approach and drink. A big trough was erected and into this the water ran from a spout from an aqueduct that tapped the stream some distance above the point where the trough was placed. How far above this may be, depends on the fall of the bed of the brook. The trough should be located near the brook so that the overflowing water may run back again into the brook. If the trough is erected in another place, from which the water can not flow directly back into the brook, a miry place will be created, which will be a source of discomfort to the milker that has to clean the tails and legs of the cows before milking or to the man that has to clean the feet of the horses. We have spoken of fencing, but if the brook is a small one, this will not be necessary, except in places here and there where the water is deep enough to prove an attraction to the cows. Many times such places may be obtained by digging a narrow channel in the center through which the water will flow. As the amount of water passing through a small brook in summer time is not large, except in times of freshet, a small channel of this kind will remove the trouble. When the weather gets cool the cows will not care to stand in the water. The provision has to be made against this only in summer time. Where the brook or stream is large there is an other way in which the stock may be kept from polluting it, and that is by having the pasture divided by a fence, the brook being in one of the divisions. One part may be used in spring and fall and the other in summer.

Fruit Juices and Cold

It has often been asked if one kind of fruit would stand the cold better than another kind and the answer has generally been that there was little difference. That answer still remains good. However, fruits do differ considerably to the point at which they freeze. Two grapes seem to stand more cold than any other common fruit, if we can judge by the tendency of the juices to resist cold. But why the tendency in some plants should have greater resistance ability than the succulence in another we do not know, but they have such resistance ability is certainly a fact. Nature has it so that there has been considerable investigation done that has led to the discovery of the power of sugar and pectin, peaches, plums and grapes. Pectin is a chemical substance that has been found to be quite effective in making fruit juices resist cold. It has a tendency to form a thick layer around the fruit cells, and this layer resists the action of the cold. It is this layer that makes the fruit juices resist cold. It is this layer that makes the fruit juices resist cold. It is this layer that makes the fruit juices resist cold.

A table of class was placed in a mixture of pounded ice and salt and in it three was placed the thermometer surrounded by the ice to be tested. In each case the temperature fell till the juice began to congeal, as was indicated by the appearance of flakes of ice in the juice. Then the temperature remained stationary till the whole quantity of juice had congealed. After that the temperature fell further. This temperature, which was stationary for the time the freezing process was going on, may be taken to be the one at which the juice of each fruit freezes. A check was made to this by noting the point at which the frozen juice melted and it was found to be approximately the same as that at which it congealed. The juice of apples froze at 29.5, plums 29.8, peaches 29.66, grapes 27.36, pears 28.88, quinces 29.12. It will be noted that grapes were thus shown best able to resist cold and that next to them pears were the most resistant. Plums were the least resistant.

These results show how far our opinions are away from the facts on such matters. It has been supposed that the more juice a fruit had in it the quicker it would freeze, and that the fruit with the harder flesh were more apt to resist the coming of the cold. But it is apparent that the mere percentage of water in a fruit does not control its susceptibility to cold, but some other quality possibly its saccharine content does. It would be interesting to know if all varieties of apples, grapes and other fruits have the same resisting ability. It will be still more interesting to learn what is the chemical constituent that has the most effect in checking the crystallizing due to the presence of a low temperature. Once that is found out we may be able to breed into fruits the element that helps them to resist cold. It may be found that the quantity in which a certain element is found in fruit determines whether a fruit shall belong to the sub-tropical or to the temperate zone.

Will Serve the State Well.

The republicans of Michigan have in Hon. Fred Warner a clean and capable candidate for governor. He has had ample experience in state affairs, and, when elected, will serve the state well. He is a successful business man and always does things in a business way. He has a streak of independence that will be valuable to him as governor, and possesses a valuable amount of horse sense.

Mr. Warner will, before campaign is over, impress the people with his strength and sincerity of purpose. He stands for republican principles, for honest government, for integrity in public officials and for economy as far as it is consistent with the rapid growth of the state.—Sault Ste. Marie News.

Named from the Pulpit.

Stones Smith once dared St. Archibald Macfie, all to come and hear him preach at St. Paul's cathedral. "If you do I shall name you from the pulpit," he said. Underneath his threat, St. Archibald went to St. Paul's. After Sunday service had entered the pulpit he looked him in the face and was then seized with a wonderful fit of sneezing—Archibald sneezed after which he proceeded to deliver an excellent sermon.

NERVOUS PROSTRATION CURED BY PE-RU-NA.

HAL P. DENTON.

Mr. Hal P. Denton, Chief Department of Publicity and Promotion of National Export Exposition, writes:

Philadelphia, Dec. 29, 1899. The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O. Gentlemen:—Toward the latter part of August I found myself in a very much run-down condition. I suffered particularly from catarrh of the stomach, aggravated no doubt by the responsibilities and worry incident to the exploitation of a great international exposition. What I ate distressed me and I would lie awake at night "thrashing over" if I may use that expression, the affairs of the previous day.

"My family physician said I had nervous prostration and recommended a sea voyage. I gradually grew worse. A kind friend whom I had known in Ohio recommended Peruna. Though skeptical, I finally yielded to his advice. After using one bottle, I was much improved and with the fifth bottle came complete recovery. I am in perfect health to-day and owe everything to Peruna."

Very truly yours, HAL P. DENTON.

Babbitt and family were pleasantly surprised last week by a discovery—or rather being discovered by—some very desirable relatives whom they were not previously aware of possessing the family having for many years lost sight of the branch to which the visitors belonged. One cousin, M. S. Ellen Carpenter, of Providence, R. I., visited at the Babbitt home last week, and later came back again from Detroit, accompanied by another cousin, Daniel Strange, of Grand Lodge, the well known writer on political economy, author of "The Farmers' Manual" and other works. Mr. Babbitt had known Mr. Strange by his literary and political reputation, but strangely enough did not know until now that they were in any way related to each other.

TWO RESCUES

BY STEFAN BARSONY

It was near midnight, when the telephone in the castle of Zsaby began to ring sharply and excitedly. Baron Sebastian Petrovics, the owner of Zsaby, had not yet retired, but was deep in a book. He hurried to the telephone. "Hello! Petrovics. What can I do for you, countess?"

An excited female voice, the sobbing of which betrayed only too plainly that something had happened, replied: "Are you there, baron? Thank God, you are at home. Please come over at once; burglars are breaking into the house!"

"I will come immediately," the baron shouted into the telephone. "Bolt the doors, and let no threats prevail upon you to open until I am there. I shall take care of you in ten minutes! Be brave, countess!"

He did not wait for the answer, snatching his hat, revolver and sword he rushed out of the room, leaving himself on his horse and called to his men: "Follow me as fast as you can!" He spurred his horse and galloped toward Gyongy.

Gyongy was the property of Countess Gulcsay, separated from Zsaby only by a narrow strip of woodland. The owner of the two castles led a retired life, the baron, however, for his finances did not allow him to continue the extravagant life he had led in his youth. The countess, from a hatred of people which had indeed led her to take refuge in this secluded spot, her marriage had not been a happy one, and her husband's conduct had made the life of a man hateful to her. It was only a matter of time before she would have been driven to the same fate as her husband. She had no friends, and her only comfort was in the knowledge that she was doing good to the poor. She had a small fortune, and she was using it to help the poor. She had a small fortune, and she was using it to help the poor. She had a small fortune, and she was using it to help the poor.

Once he had reached the countess's castle, he found her in a state of great excitement. She had just received a letter from her husband, and she was very angry. She had just received a letter from her husband, and she was very angry. She had just received a letter from her husband, and she was very angry.

But it was not the letter that was the cause of her anger. It was the fact that her husband had been so long away from home. She had just received a letter from her husband, and she was very angry. She had just received a letter from her husband, and she was very angry.

The young woman smiled and made no objection. The act was a great one, and she was very happy. She had just received a letter from her husband, and she was very angry. She had just received a letter from her husband, and she was very angry.

One day, the week before the mistress of Gyongy was in very bad humor, and even replied to her companion, "My dear Csongay," she cried,

"Hello!"

"Hello!"

"Hello!"

"Hello!"

"Hello!"

men seemed to have lost their heads. For answer the baroness, flushing with pride, held out her arms to her husband, who smiled and said, pointing to his wet clothes: "Wait a minute, dear, until I have changed my things."

— Mine von Csongay looked triumphantly at the baroness, as if to say: "You see, he is a hero, after all!" From the Hungarian of Stefan Barsony

HOW TO MAKE FRIENDS.

Be interested in Them, but Never Show Curiosity.

If you would have friends, be interested in them.

There is a difference between interest and curiosity. Never be curious.

Interest asks nothing, but is glad of others' joys and sorry for others' misfortunes. Curiosity seeks to find more than is written upon the surface, seeks it for the purpose of distribution for innocent slander.

One's friends like one to be interested. They detest one who is curious.

To be interested in those one meets needs but to wish them well.

To see the best of those about us will cause us to wish them well.

To our well-wishers we pour out our joys and sorrows. They are interested. They understand.

The interested friend always understands. The curious acquaintance never sees through motives. The curious one is blinded by his own interpretation of causes and his prejudiced view of results.

Don't, therefore, seek to know what is hidden. If your friends conceal something from you he has a reason for doing it. Prove your interest and your lack of vulgar curiosity by trusting him in spite of the concealment.

Those who are truly interested and never curious are surrounded by friends.—Detroit Tribune

William Penn's Grave.

I notice that one or two of your correspondents seem concerned about the condition of William Penn's grave. Having, while in England during the summer of 1902, visited Jordans, Meeting House and burying ground where the remains of William Penn lie, I can assure that the grave was in a respectable condition, and the remains of William Penn and his wife, Isaac Pennington, were in good preservation.

Names That Are Hoodoos

If one should be so bold as to characterize the superstitious sailor as silly he would at once declare that there is sufficient reason for his belief and would proceed to prove that war vessels named after stinging and venomous things have been unlucky, and that the country should not be so indifferent to the men who follow "a life on the ocean wave" as to organize a mosquito fleet.

That Snake is regarded as an unfortunate name for a vessel is shown by the fact that two of that name have been lost, one in 1781 and the other in 1847; but no vessel bearing that name is known to exist now. Serpent, which is only a substitute name for Snake, is an unlucky one also, for the one wrecked in 1892 was the fourth British war vessel of that name to meet the same fate. Viper has been an unlucky name in the British navy. The first one was wrecked in 1780, but the Admiralty would not swerve, and so kept the name on the list, each vessel meeting its doom, and the fourth was lost only recently. The French navy has also been unlucky with vessels so named. The Viper, used in the British service after she became a prize from the French, was lost in 1793. The second was lost a year later, the third in 1797 and the fourth was recently lost in a collision off Guernsey.

The Cobra, another British war vessel, was lost recently at the same time as the Viper. Among other vessels similarly named and which met fates other than in battle are the Rattlesnake, in 1781; the Alligator, in 1782; the Crocodile, in 1783; the Adder, in 1846; three Lizards, two Dragons, and one Basilisk. All of these were of the British navy. The list could be made larger by citing the records of other navies.

The Norsemen, who were so fond of naming their vessels against the laws of superstition and using hideous heads of dragons and reptiles on their high prows, were less unfortunate, and these did not meet with frequent disasters. They did have a belief, however, that it was unlucky and a sacrilege to select such a name as did Lord Dunraven for his first yacht to challenge for the America's cup, the Valkyrie. And this belief was strengthened when she was sunk by the Salamis. The second challenger, with the same name, gave trouble, and she was broken up after only a short existence.—Navy League Journal.

Given a Jammy Sentence

Capt. Krech of the Hamburg-American line's steamship Graf Waldersee was called upon during the trip to pass sentence upon a thief caught stealing aboard the vessel. His manner of conducting the case and his judgment were commended by all the passengers.

Several steerage passengers on the earlier days of the trip frequently missed food and sweetmeats which they had taken aboard, and nothing was known of the culprit until one day a woman, going to her bunk, found a little, flaxen-haired girl busily engaged in emptying a pot of jam which had been concealed there. The little one had the jam plastered all over her face and hands and in that condition the woman who discovered her led her to the chief steward. He in turn took her before the captain on the bridge.

Many of the passengers, seeing the little girl being dragged before the captain, gathered about to learn the cause of the trouble. Capt. Krech, who on his ship, like other captains, is judge, jury and court of appeal, listened to the charges with a stern look. Besides "learning" that the little girl had taken the jam, he also learned that her father and mother were poor and could not provide any sweetmeats for her. When the case had been presented Capt. Krech thought over the evidence for a time and, as the girl was caught with the evidence all over her face and hands, he pronounced her guilty.

"This is a very serious case," he said, "and must be dealt with accordingly. The penalty for the first offense is imprisonment. For the second it is spanking, and for the third it is hanging or exclusion from America. But the facts in this case are such that I shall have to be more severe. I therefore sentence you to eat the best jam this ship can produce every time you feel like it. The jam will be supplied by the steward."

The little girl could not understand the meaning of all the talk, but when the steward brought forth a big pot of jam, as ordered, she gave the captain a pretty little smile and marched off with it. From that time on her face was never clear.—New York Times

Motive Power in China.

From time immemorial the Chinese have depended upon draft animals and man power for transportation by land. The wheelbarrow and the clumsy bullock cart are still used and it is no uncommon sight to see a "freight train" consisting of barrows, with men pushing at the heavy handles and each man's wife, walking ahead, pulling bravely at the load. Railroads are coming in slowly. Between Canton and Fuzhou are a number of the little old locomotives that did good service for so many years on the elevated railway lines in New York city. These locomotives, by the way, are now pretty well scattered all over the habitable globe.

Danced on Raft in Salt Mine.

A famous salt mine dance was given at Wieliczka, Austria. One of the most singular features was a great raft, which was made to float on the surface of an underground lake in the mine. On this the dances were conducted, some 200 persons being present. The place was illuminated by torches, and the splendor and impressiveness of it all may be imagined.

Old Man's Secret.

Alpena, Mich., Sept. 5 (Special).—Seventy-five years of age but hale and hearty is Mr. Jerome K. Fowler of this place, and to those who ask the secret of his splendid health he gives the good advice "Use Dodd's Kidney Pills."

When asked for his reason for so strongly recommending the "Great American Kidney Remedy," Mr. Fowler related the following experience: "I recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills because they cured me of Diabetes. I suffered with my kidneys for a long time and suffered terribly from those Urinary Troubles that are so general among aged people."

"Then I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills and eight boxes of them cured my kidneys, regulated my water and made me feel like a hearty young man."

Dodd's Kidney Pills make the old feel young because they make sound kidneys. Sound kidneys mean health and health is the other name for youth.

Burdened With Big Names.

Pity the babies of a presidential year. Through life they will have to stagger under the burden of names other men have made famous, and they can neither live up to them nor live them down. It is like a brand of nonentity stamped upon those who otherwise might have lived peacefully in respectable mediocrity among thousands of their unmarked fellows.—Baltimore American

Where Buttons Are Made.

Glass buttons are chiefly made in Bohemia, where children are largely employed. Pearl buttons are almost exclusively a Viennese product, but art buttons are made chiefly in Birmingham, which is also the seat of the metal button trade. The most extensive kind of button manufacturing is that of the Paris and Berlin varieties.

BUILDING FOOD

To Bring the Babies Around.

When a little human machine (or large one) goes wrong nothing is so important as the selection of food which will always bring it around again.

"My little baby boy fifteen months old had rickets, then came brain fever, and no sooner had he got over these than he began to cut teeth and, being so weak, he was frequently thrown into convulsions," says a Colorado mother.

"I decided a change might help, so took him to Kansas City for a visit. When we got there he was so very weak when he would cry he would sink away and seem like he would die."

"When I reached my sister's home she said immediately that we must feed him Grape-Nuts and, although I had never used the food, we got some and for a few days gave him just the juice of Grape-Nuts and milk. He got stronger so quickly we were soon feeding him the Grape-Nuts itself and in a wonderfully short time he fattened right up and became strong and well."

"That showed me something worth knowing and, when later on my girl came, I raised her on Grape-Nuts and she is a strong healthy baby and has been. You will see from the little photograph I send you what a strong, chubby youngster the boy is now, but he didn't look anything like that before we found this nourishing food. Grape-Nuts nourished him back to strength when he was so weak he couldn't keep any other food on his stomach." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

All children can be built to a more sturdy and healthy condition upon Grape-Nuts and cream. The food contains the elements nature demands, from which to make the soft gray filling in the nerve centers and brain. A well fed-brain and strong, sturdy nerves absolutely insure a healthy body.
