Contributions to this column are earnestly solicited. If you are visitors or are visiting elsewhere drop a line to the editor in the Record office Box in the postoffice.

Charlie VanValkenburg has returned from a visit in Buffalo.

Mrs. Jane Walter visited Miss Lena Penley in Pontiac last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Hob Verbes visited friends in Farmington Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Bark of Wyoming visited Northville friends Tuesday.

Mrs. Jerome is entertaining her sister-in-law Mrs. Warner of Detroit.

Mrs. Wm Irish of Farmington spent Tuesday with Northville friends.

Mrs. Harry Root of Detroit visited Northville friends Saturday and Sunday.

Misses Mabel Erickson and Eleaorah were home from Detroit over Sunday.

A. E. Kellar and daughter Mayne spent Wednesday with friends in Detroit.

B. H. Linn of Wales N. Y., is the guest of his brother, C. M. Joslin, this week.

George Newman in Philadelphia has returned home after a short visit with friends here.

Mrs. Abel Blair of Lawson has been the guest of Northville and Novi friends this week.

Mr. and Mrs. William LaBar of Ludington visited the former's sister, Mrs. Wm. Walter, this week.

Mrs. E. A. Clark has received a visit this week from Miss Withers, a well known New York artist.

Rev. and Mrs. Jerome were called to Pontiac this week to attend the funeral of their friend, Mr. Broad, who dropped dead in Detroit a few days ago.

W. B. Hancy of Hayts Corners, N.Y., has been spending part of this week with Mr. Neal. The gentlemen were schoolmates 25 or 30 years ago in "York State."

Mrs. Charles Gardner is visiting at the home of her parents in Grand Rapids, the occasion of the visit being the marriage of her youngest sister, Estine, which takes place during her stay there.

Mrs. A. S. Parsons left yesterday for a few days' visit with old friends in Corunna and Oyosso. Mr. Parsons expects to start tomorrow to join in the visit and return with Mrs. Parsons next week.

PREPARE FOR LONG FASTS.

Nature Takes Good Care of Animals That Hibernate.

A large number of species of animals undergo more or less prolonged and continuous fasts during the period of their winter or summer sleep. During such slumbers the more active functions of the body are to a great extent suspended, while those that are carried on act slowly and entail comparatively little waste of tissue and energy. Moreover, before the period of the winter torpor or hibernation takes place, many animals, such as bears, accumulate large stores of fat on various parts of the body, which suffice to supply all the waste entailed by the respiratory function during the period in question. Fat is also accumulated by the mouselemones of Madagascar previous to the summer sleep, or aestivation, and is used up in a similar manner, their summer sleep being undertaken for the purpose of avoiding the season of great heat and drought, when food is difficult or impossible to procure.

Impossible to foresee an accident.

Not impossible to be prepared for it.

Dr. Thomas Electric Oil, monarch over pain.

Mrs. Geo. Galbraith to entertain Mrs. Rue of Kansas this week.

Mrs. Thomas Banks of Detroit called on Northville friends Wednesday.

Mrs. Dimmock of Cleveland has been a recent visitor at the home of her son, Rev. S. F. Dimmock, and wife.

Mrs. May White made a brief visit at home on her way to Fenton as the nurse in a surgical case, Wednesday.

Mrs. Newman of Philadelphia is spending a week or two with Mrs. Ella White and other Northville friends.

Mrs. John Tinham of Alpena and Mrs. J. W. Barnhart of Grand Rapids have been visitors this week at the home of their father, A. V. Randolph.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer VanLeuren of Mt Clemens have been guests of Mrs. VanLeuren's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Palmer, part of last week and this.

Mrs. Wm. Pendore and daughter, Mrs. H. H. Harmon, came home from Michigan Center Sunday. Mrs. Harmon returns there the last of this week.

Miss Zenobia Evans of Barry, Ont., a stenographer in the offices of the Gazette of that city, is visiting at the home of her uncle, DeC. Evans, and family.

Whitney's Opera House—Detroit.

Lincoln J. Carter's latest melodrama, "Too Proud to Beg," will be seen at the Whitney next week. The story is an interesting one and is in the hands of some clever players. An acrobatic turn is the only specialty in the play performed by the wonderful Boyolian children. A large vocabulary of adjectives is required to give an estimate of their ability. Matinees daily except Wednesday.

Lyceum Theater—Detroit.

"Sis Hopkiss comes to the Lyceum Sept. 26 for a week's engagement with Miss Rose Melville in the title role. This is the sixth season Miss Melville has been playing the role and she shows her audience the many sides to the character of "Sis Hopkiss" in so quaint and faithful a manner that it seems as if the story were real and the funny little girl experiencing all the pleasure of her enjoyment and all the pangs of her sorrows. Until the Wednesday and Saturday matinees Northville's annual chimney sweep held the center of the stage in town Saturday, doing musical and acrobatic stunts in the intervals of removing the accumulations of "soot" from the various chimneys included in his local itinerary. His audience, mostly of the younger generation, was very appreciative.

Northville looks like a political picture gallery now days. Windows, telephone poles and every other available place have blossomed out with pictures of candidates for the various state and county offices. The faces are all good looking ones, too, as well as intelligent, and it appears as if the offices are bound to be well filled whichever of the aspirants shall get them.

That Northville people have a taste for high class entertainments is evidenced by the many expressions of approval in regard to the lecture course arranged for by the Library association for the coming winter. The ladies are working hard to make the course a financial success for the library as well as an intellectual treat for the citizens, and should be encouraged in every possible manner. The opening number is to be given October 24.

The ladies of the Methodist Aid society perpetrated a real surprise on Rev. and Mrs. Shank yesterday, inviting the women of the church laden with good "vittles" to the parsonage in the afternoon and the "men-folks" to supper in the evening.

It is superfluous to say that it was a "good time" for all concerned. Mrs. Shank was presented with some pretty pieces of hand painted china and a purse of silver.

A large and handsome copy of Froissart's Chronicles of England, France and Spain has been presented to the Ladies' Library by Asa M. Randolph—Northville Record. The binding of the book will be just as good 20 years hence as now, save for the dirt that may attach to it. If it were one of Mary J. Holmes' novels it would have to be rebound in three months.—Adrian Press.

By order of the recent annual M. C. conference at Adrian, Rev. J. M. Shank is to be transferred from Northville to St. Ignace, and Rev. G. Stevens of Plymouth has been assigned to the Northville pastorate. During their two years residence here Mr. and Mrs. Shank have made a host of warm friends, not only in their own church but in the community at large and they will be greatly missed by the residents of our village when they leave for their new home in the northern peninsula, where they go accompanied by the best wishes of all who have known them here.

THE DAUGHTER'S MISTAKE.

BY HELEN FORREST GRAVES

HERE, put away the things, I'm tired to death!" Theodore Evelyn tossed her faded ball bouquet on one side, and her white muslin open cloak on the other, while she herself sank with an air of utter weariness upon a sofa drawn in front of the fire.

She was a tall, brilliant complexioned blonde, with big blue eyes like a doll's, golden hair, and a lovely red mouth that put you in mind of a cluster of dead ripe scarlet cherries, and her dress was of white, invisible tulle, looped up by bouquets of blue forget-me-nots, and finishing blue ribbon.

Mrs. Evelyn stood prettily by piecing up the flowers, folding the opera cloak with the snow-white lining on the outside, and fixing the fire that it might blaze up with a little energy.

"Will you have a cup of tea, love before you go to bed?" she asked, with a smile.

"No, I won't," answered the young lady, merrily. "Thank goodness, I'm not such a bundle of whins as you are, mamma. Why don't you take out my trinkets, instead of staring after them?"

"I didn't know you were ready, dear," said the mother, advancing with nervous bustle.

"There," ejaculated Theodore firmly, "you've torn my dress train with your clumsy feet! I've a great mind not to let you come near me."

"I'm very sorry, I do," apologized the most matron, turning red and pale as she began to take down the important trains of Theodore's golden hair.

What could she do? It was very important that the girl should always look the only blonde didn't it tell her secret?

She had a brief moment's gloom. Then, with a quick smile, she took a few steps of boldness which the beauty of the room seemed to encourage, and went over to the bright window, where the light from the lamp on the sill made a golden glow.

"I'm afraid I'm not good enough for you, Mrs. Evelyn," she said, with a faint smile.

"Yes, I am," said Mrs. Evelyn, with a smile. "I'm not good enough for you, but I'm good enough for me."

"I'm afraid I'm not good enough for you, Mrs. Evelyn," she said again, with a faint smile.

"Yes, I am," said Mrs. Evelyn, with a smile. "I'm not good enough for you, but I'm good enough for me."
