FERRIS DREW BIG CROWD

OPERA HOUSE WAS FILLED TO HEAR HIM.

Neighboring Towns Were Well Represented.

There was a big crowd in the Opera House Friday afternoon to hear and see Candidate Ferris, the democratic nominee for governor. In the crowd were many ladies and all the neighboring villages were well represented. There were also many republicans in the crowd anxious to see and hear the man of whose perfections so much has been said.

L. A. Babbitt of the State Savings bank presided in a pleasing manner and introduced the speakers. Judge Cahill told why he had dropped since the republican party had been so corrupt.

Mr. Ferris gave a sarcastic and witty talk of more than an hour's duration and lambasted the republican machine and told how corrupt caucuses and conventions were—except of course the one at Grand Rapids where he was nominated. He said direct nominations would not be a cure for all evils but it would kill the machine.

He advocated the election of tax commission by the people and said in the event of his election as governor he could not appoint a democrat member of the commission unless he had a democratic senate with him.

Mr. Ferris did not mention the names of any of the democratic candidates for state or district officers nor did he mention the name of Parker or Davis, who are presumably running for president and vice president of the United States. He advised his audience to look both tickets over and without regard to party to vote for whom they considered the best man.

The audience was not overly demonstrative but they were interested in what he had to say and his reception was cordial and he was given close attention.

Upwards of 500 persons were present. It being one of the largest gatherings ever in attendance at a political meeting in Northville. The Plymouth band played up some most excellent music for the occasion.

Shade-Jackson.

A very pretty wedding took place Wednesday evening at the home of Mr and Mrs Horace Jackson when their eldest daughter Grace was united in marriage to Mr. Christian Shade of Saginaw. The bride was neatly attired in white wool tulle with trimmings of lace and applique and carried chrysanthemums. She was attended by her sister Bessie and the groom by Oscar Boddy of Carsonville. The ceremony was performed under an arch formed from branches of the maple, the tempered harmony, the rich variety of shades of the autumn leaves was beautiful indeed. The bride received quite a number of useful presents. After the young couple had received the congratulations of their friends the company sat down to tasty and well prepared refreshments. Guests were present from Detroit, Flint, Saginaw, Manchester and Grass Lake. Rev. W. G. Stephens tied the knot.

LIBRARY LECTURE COURSE

First Number Next Monday Evening, October 24.

The initial entertainment in the lecture course which the trustees of the library have secured for our village occurs next Monday evening in the library. On that date Dr. John P. Brushingham of Chicago will speak on "His Majesty, The American Citizen," a subject selected by the local managers as especially fitting on the eve of both our national and state elections, although it is not in any sense a political speech—except in the best and highest sense. Dr. Brushingham is pastor of the largest and wealthiest church in Chicago, and is classed among the best platform speakers in America. His lecture is certain to be an intellectual treat far above the average.

The second number will be the Lyceum Ladies' Concert company of Chicago, Nov. 17, a quartette of young singers who win enthusiastic approval wherever they are heard. The other attractions are, Dec 5, Captain Snow, storyteller and impersonator; Dec 27, Stewart and Garrettson, magician and musician; Jan 18, Prof. Lewis Williams, who demonstrates electrical science by complete apparatus in the most instructive as well as amusing manner. On Feb. 17 comes a troupe of six colored jubilee singers, the Gladiators, whose evening will be one of the greatest treats ever given the people of Northville, and the course closes with a lecture by the gifted speaker John Jay Jewels who to quote an admirer—"sweeps the gamut of human emotions with a master hand." Every intelligent family in our village should be represented on the list of season ticket buyers.

Mrs. Simonds Died Sunday Night

Agony has death invaded the ranks of our older residents, one of the most highly respected of whom, Mrs. Hannah Mangus Simonds, passed away at her home about eight o'clock Sunday evening, at the age of nearly seventy-five years. She was the widow of William G. Simonds, an esteemed former citizen of this place who died twenty years ago. They were married in Geneva, N. Y., in 1838, coming to Michigan and Northville in 1869.

Mrs. Simonds' birth place was Fayette, Seneca Co., N. Y. She leaves two daughters, Mrs. Frank Hammon and Mrs. Della Simonds of Pittsburg, Pa., to mourn the loss of a devoted and dearly loved mother.

The funeral was held from the home Tuesday afternoon, Rev. W. S. Jerome of the Presbyterian church officiating.

Reception to Rev. Stephens.

A public reception to Rev. W. G. Stephens and family will be given in the Methodist church this (Friday) evening at eight o'clock. Addresses of welcome on behalf of the various departments of the church will be given by different ones as well as greetings from the other churches. "The Jolly Trio" of Detroit mandolin players will furnish music.

Card of Thanks.

We sincerely thank our friends and neighbors for kindness and assistance during the sickness and death of our mother and for the beautiful flowers.

NORTHVILLE MILLING CO.

Mrs. F. V. Coates cordially invites all to her millinery opening Friday and Saturday, Oct. 21 and 22.

THE PRIMARIES ON WEDNESDAY

TOOK UNTIL 4:00 O'CLOCK A. M. TO COUNT 'EM.

Only 312 Votes Were Cast Out of the 700.

Northville people have had their first taste of county primary direct voting. There were 312 votes cast, about 245 being republicans and democrats, many democrats undoubtedly confining their votes to the republican side of the ballot. Only eight or ten ballots were thrown out. Judge Durfee, who had no opposition led the ticket with 212 votes, with Benton a close second with 210.

The tellers were kept busy until four o'clock Thursday morning counting the ballots and they were a tired and hungry lot.

The total expense of the primary here is estimated at $60 and for the whole county it is said it will be in the neighborhood of $22,000. Of course a large part of this money will be well expended even at that.

The game warden evidently is not very strenuous in the discharge of his vocation out that way.

Verily, the way of the State Agricultural society is beset with grave difficulties. The latest site selected is now strenuously opposed on the ground that it is directly opposite Woodlawn cemetery, and this just when the Detroiters are almost persuaded to begin coffin up the requisite cash. The objectors are afraid somebody might be inconsiderate enough to die during fair time and thus cause an incongruous mixture of fair and funeral.

It's dangerous—for tramps—to eat roast turkey around Plymouth. Four young hoboes recently helped themselves to a couple of fat fowls. Thanksgiving birds to roast by their campfire between here and Plymouth and now two of the would-be turkey eaters are in the workhouse and two in the industrial school at Lansing. Report does not say what became of the turkeys which the wearys had all prepared for cooking.

The Farmington Ladies' Union has offered a prize for the homeliest baby at its baby show tomorrow afternoon. A knife, fork and spoon are the premium in that class, but no fond maternal parents are as yet tumbling over each other to make entries and it is quite probable that none will be made in that department. If the judges are obliged to select the winner of the above-mentioned table ware from the whole bunch, regardless of classification, efficient police protection should be instantly available whenever the decision is announced and complete arrangements made for surreptitiously getting the said judges to a place of safety on short notice.

A pretty home wedding took place at high noon Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Smith when their daughter, Miss Hazel Coates, was united in marriage to Mr. Frank Hosner, by Rev. C. D. Berry of the Baptist church. A large number of useful and beautiful presents were given the young couple, and an especially elegant dinner was served after the ceremony.

Mrs. Eliza Lypps Sessions was born June 24, 1821, at Colchester, South Ontario, Canada, and died Oct. 9, 1904. She was married to Jeremiah Sessions May 6, 1831. To them was born one son, Alonzo Sessions, who survives the mother. She was a family of seven children, three brothers and two sisters, all now living. Mrs. Sessions was of a quiet unassuming nature, but strong personality, and a genial and unselfish temperament. Her patience and resignation in her sickness were most beautiful. Her mental powers were preserved to a remarkable degree almost to the last. May the blessing of the faithful abide upon her. "She hath done what she could."

Can You Eat?

J. B. Taylor, a prominent merchant of Christman, Tex., says: "I could not eat because of a weak stomach. I lost all strength and ran-down in weight. All that money could do was done, but all hope of recovery vanished. Hearing of some wonderful cures effected by use of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure, I concluded to try it. The first bottle benefited me, and after taking four bottles, I am fully restored to my usual strength, weight and health." Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat and cures. Alluring Models in Fall Wraps. There can hardly be said to be any distinct fashions for either house dresses or ball gowns for the autumn months, but rather advance winter styles are worn for what few informal affairs there are during the day—and, needless to state, a ball is almost unheard of in October as is a snow-storm in August. It is then more with outdoor costumes—tailor suits, cloaks, wraps and hats—that one has to deal at this time of year, and most alluring are all the models in long coats and jackets now to be procured. This year the separate wrap forms more than ever an all important part of a complete outfit, and three, four, five or more handsome wraps, are considered by no means an unnecessary or extravagant number of "expensive" cloaks to be possessed at once. One reason for this is that the gowns today are made up in such bright and varied colors that the wrap must either tone in most perfectly with some color scheme employed or else match exactly the shade of the dress. White cloaks are still smart, but are not seen in such numbers—for which we should really be thankful—as last year. A dark red, cream or a handsome black pearl de soie or brocade cloak can also be worn with a quantity of different shades, but as can easily be seen one tries very shortly of an all white or all black wrap unless there be some garments with which it may be worn interchangeably to relieve the monotony.

New and Novel. A large-line chiffon cloth waist, trimmed with white velvet flowers on brodered in silver threads, would have much beauty added to it by being worn with a picture hat of white chiffon cloth and velvet, the high crown encircled with a wreath of the white velvet flowers and a cluster of tangerine and white ostrich tips caught at the left side, while the brim should concealingly flare. Picture hats being the high rowa wound with stuffed ribbons have a soft and pretty touch given them by introducing the tips of lace for the wide brim. Very many of the prettiest dress hats are trimmed with either a long shaded ostrich plume, a long ostrich plume or a very long ostrich plume. White and blue cloaks are very smart in style with a long white or black feather for the trimming, which allows of the same pretty decoration of perhaps bell color, which in one way or another appears in the gown with which the hat is worn.

Bows Are Growing in Size. Bows for young girls and hair ornaments for their mothers seem to grow in size. Little girls wear two large bows, one on the top of the hair, where it is drawn to a point, and one at the nape of the neck. Butterfly bows which require a yard at least are in high favor and also in effects are worn by older girls who have plenty of hair. Sprays of flowers developed from chiffon make a pretty ornament for the evening.

For Young Girls. Loose coats with plaited skirts make exceedingly attractive costumes for school and similar occasions and are in the height of fashion. This one is made of cheviot in shades of brown and tan and is simply finished with stitchings in tailor style. The coat is very generally becoming to girlish figures and includes bell sleeves that always are desirable, while the skirt is gored and fluted. The quantity of material required for the medium size is for coat 3 3/4 yards 21 or 2 yards 44 inches wide; for skirt 6 3/4 yards 27 or 3 3/4 yards 44 inches wide. Cloth Gowns Appear. Cool days bring forth light weight cloth gowns. A new model seen recently has a skirt which has on the back and on the sides a round yoke, to which the skirt proper is shirred, with the exception of the front breadth, which consists of two flat plaits turned toward each other. These are fastened from the waist line to a third of the length of the skirt by means of crystal buttons and loops of white silk braid. The same motif appears on the pointed belt. A bolero hangs over the hips, but is shirred into the figure at the edges and has a deep collar of English embroidery. The sleeves are full puffed which fall below the elbow, where they are gathered into a band trimmed with loops and buttons. The back is not light and falls over an undersleeve of English embroidery. One of the New Waists. Blouse effects below the waist are becomingly becoming to most figures and are entirely fashionable.

HER Husband's Advice

In the beginning Sylvia had complained to her husband one evening as he slipped on his top coat...

"As a woman, Sylvia, you're a poem," replied Mr. Browne, picking up his stick. "As a man, you'd be a faine cat..."

Mrs. Browne was very unhappy and miserable in spite of this uplifting announcement. One morning at breakfast...

"Jack," she began, gulping down her cherry, "I want your advice about something. A girl I love is in trouble, and I don't know exactly what to tell her to do..."

"Well, Sylvia, what about your friend?" Her husband's voice fetched her back to the matter in hand. She hesitated, pushed her muffin aside, drew a deep breath and plunged.

"Why, Jack, she's married, you see, and she's utterly miserable. Her husband and she have scarcely a taste in common. She's really going to leave him, I think; but she's asked my advice."

"He's a heart I suppose?" commented Mr. Browne, meditatively balancing a fork on his finger. "Kneecaps..."

her up against the furniture—no? He drinks, then?" "No—on, no!" Sylvia's tone gave the impression that any of these things would have been insignificant trifles.

on her) "Besides, you see, there's another man who loves her in the way she wishes to be loved, and so they're going to find happiness together and snap their fingers at the world's conventions."

Sylvia had risen from the table, and now hung herself with an air of dignity, defiant bravado on a couch in the corner. Mr. Browne, began stroking that firm chin of his in a way that signified nothing to his wife, but even the clerks in his office knew it to be a sign of deep perplexity.

"And that's what you want my advice about?" he said slowly, at last

"Well, dear, feel your friend if it is a woman who is in trouble, who is about dropping their head at the world's conventions..."

"To be sure, Sylvia, if your friend's head were a best, or better, or no, or didn't hurt her, she no! I get a divorce in conventional order for myself, I'm not in for divorces, though, that's a matter of taste, maybe. But if she loves him and runs off with another man—why, do you realize what that would mean to a real woman?"

"That for the future her friends must be among a set of people who remain as what she is meant called, that the man for whom she sacrificed everything couldn't sacrifice enough for her to point out to her that duty was stronger than love. Love isn't everything, dear."

There was a certain big, caressing tone in his voice which unconsciously made Sylvia hark back to the old honeymoon days before she had discovered that marriage with him was a mockery. She looked out her handkerchief, a ridiculous out of lawn and lace, and touched her eyes furiously.

"That's from the world's viewpoint," he continued. "Then, there's the husband. I judge from what you say he isn't wholly a rum bloke. Perhaps—even if he isn't very fine, poetic fancies—perhaps he also realizes that he loves the woman he loves. Maybe he does love her in spite of a blunt, ordinary brusqueness. Maybe he thinks all day at the office, if it is or that deal goes through, it'll mean more family luxuries for her. Maybe he hurries home after business hours so that he can put on his dinner clothes, knowing that passes for fastidious tastes and makes him a bit more congenial to her. Perhaps, even if he does pick up his newspapers, and doesn't read poetry to her, is a kind of paradise merely to have her in the room with him. Some men are made like that, you know."

There was another further mop with the ridiculous little handkerchief. Why did her husband's voice, when it was tender, always have that mastery over her? "And some evening," pursued that masterful voice, "when he has hurried home, perhaps he finds placed to one of his lies a note saying it's all been a mistake; that at last she's found a man 'congenial' to her and has run off with him. And while the cook, all unsuspecting is about to serve the dinner for two, he stands there cold and stunned—turned out of paradise! The worst of it is," Jack added, beginning to pace slowly up and down the room, "the worst of it is, he'll never get rid of the reproach that if he hadn't married her, and let her make this mistake, she might always have been as white and pure as a swan." Silence

"So you advise me to—tell her that—?" there was a queer little catch in Sylvia's voice; she could get no further.

"Yes, dear," came her husband's voice, tenderly. "Tell her that perhaps she made a mistake in thinking it's all a mistake. A fellow's not as big as a woman's first ideals of him are, but he's usually bigger and better than she thinks when she's disillusioned."

Sylvia had buried her face in the sofa cushion and was sobbing outright now. Her husband crossed the room and, sitting beside her, began to soothe the little curls and tendrils of her hair.

"Sweetheart," he said, choking a bit, "tell her to love and be patient with her husband, as you love and are patient with me. You do love me?" wistfully.

"Don't I, though?" cried Sylvia, joyfully, throwing her arms about his neck and smothering him with neglected kisses. "And you certainly know how to give advice, Jack!"—Yes La Wee, in New York Press.

"NEW" POTATOES A FRAUD. Westerner Said to Make Much Money by Shrewd Trick.

"The wooden nutmeg of Connecticut was the first imitation food," said a grocer, "and then came the mean Bostonian who dried snow and sold it for salt. This year we have an imitation new potato."

"A Westerner put the imitation new potato on the market, and they say he has made about 80 per cent profit out of it. I am speaking seriously now, mind. Of course it was in a joking way that I alluded to the nutmeg and the salt."

"The Westerner, to accomplish his deception, plants on toward the end of the summer a crop of late potatoes of a kind that keep well. These ripen and are dug up just before the first frost. They are sorted, and all the bad ones are thrown out. Then the rest are buried in a field."

"The crop lies buried, preserved from a harm under the soil, till early spring. About two months before the first genuine potatoes have appeared it is dug up."

"A great bag of a solution of lye is prepared and in this bath the potatoes are dipped. When they emerge from their lye bath their skins are pink and soft, and their flesh is hard and firm in a word they are to all appearances new potatoes, and they would deceive anyone."

"There are many imitation foods, the grocer added. We have imitation butter, imitation sugar, imitation coffee and imitation tea. I don't know any more of these frauds, though I should be glad to detect an imitation new potato."

TALK ON ADVERTISING

By C. W. Post to Publishers at Banquet at Battle Creek.

The sunshine that makes a business plant grow is advertising. Growing a business nowadays is something like growing an apple tree. You may select good seed, plant it in good soil, water and work with it, but the tree will not produce fruit until another and most powerful, energizing and life-giving element is brought to bear. You must have sunshine and lots of it. Can you expect to ripen apples in the dark? Can you expect to grow a profitable business plant nowadays without the sunshine of public favor produced by advertising?"

This Postum plant is a good illustration of that law. It seems but a short time ago when I put a few men at work in the carriage Loue of the barn you have seen to-day where we began making Postum coffee.

"The seed they planted less than 9 years ago was a few kind of apple seeds and it was not altogether certain how the people would like the apples. We did our work thoroughly and plenty of it. We knew we had a good apple tree of the quality but how to develop our work and turn the apple tree into a productive and profitable tree was another question.

It needed sunshine and the kind of sunshine that is spread by the newspapers and magazines. It is an absolute certainty that without the publicity this enterprise in other words, the sunshine, the success never would have occurred.

You have seen to-day factory buildings—thirteen or fourteen in number—covering many acres of ground employing an hundred of our people producing food and drink in an aggregate of four million packages per year which goes to every civilized country on the globe, and the entire enterprise is less than 100 acres of ground.

THIS WOMAN KNOWS WHAT ONE OF THE SEX DISCOVERED TO HER GREAT JOY. Mrs. De Long Finds That the Indescribable Pains of Rheumatism Can Be Cured Through the Blood.

Mrs. F. M. De Long, of No. 10 West Broadway, Cornell Bldg. in New York, found herself suddenly attacked by rheumatism in the winter of 1896. She gave the doctor a chance to help her, which he failed to improve, and then she did her own thinking and experimenting on her own. She was so successful that she seems it her duty to tell the story of her escape from suffering.

"My brother-in-law," she says, "was enthusiastic on the subject of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for a purifier of the blood, and when I was suffering extreme pains in the joints of my ankles, knees, hips, wrists and elbows, and the doctor was giving me no relief, I began to reflect that rheumatism is a disease of the blood, and that if Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are so good for the blood they must be good for rheumatism and worth a trial."

"I was in bed for the time, suffering with pain that cannot be described to one who has never had the disease. It would concentrate sometimes in one set of joints. When it was in my feet I could not walk; when it was in my elbows and wrists I could not even dress the clothes over my body. I had suffered in this way for weeks by one I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Two weeks after I began with them I experienced relief and after I had taken six boxes I was entirely well. To make sure I continued to use them about two weeks longer and they stopped altogether. For several years I have had no reason to use them for myself, but I have recommended them to others as an excellent remedy."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills furnish the blood with all the elements that are needed to build up healthy tissue, strong muscles and nerves, capable of bearing the strain that nature puts upon them. They really make new blood and cure all diseases arising from disorders of the blood or nerves such as scurvy, neuritis, partial paralysis, locomotor ataxia, St. Vitus' dance, nervous prostration, anemia and all forms of weakness in either male or female. They are sold by all druggists.

Urban Population Grows. Half a century ago little more than one-half of the population of England lived in towns. To-day the rural population is only one-fifth of the whole.

"Some thoughtful man might say that if what you manufacture has merit, once you get a trade established people will continue to purchase, even if the advertising is stopped, but to act on that conclusion would be a fatal mistake, for there are always bright men on the lookout to steal your apples, and if you give them the chance they will come in and take the fruit, sure. Right here let us drive a nail, not a shingle nail but a forty penny spike. Your article must have merit, far and away beyond the ordinary unadvertised thing. It should be the very best, that human intelligence and ingenuity can produce. Then you have a foundation to build upon that will not slip out from under when the building grows heavy. There are persons ignorant enough to believe that a poor article can be advertised into a success. It cannot, and any one who tries the experiment will pay heavily for his experience. Critically examine any well known and advertised article that has been years on the market and it will be found to possess exceptional merit. In ancient days newspaper publishers, considered an advertisement an evil but a necessary evil, and that it should be hidden away as carefully as possible, so that no one would discover that the paper was trying to make a little money by inserting public announcements. A paper run that way to-day would fail.

The most successful exponents of the new plan of doing business with ink and paper are using every possible means to make the announcements attract a and caught after by the reader.

It is safe to say that thousands of women read the newspaper—not the magazine part, but the paper containing the columns of bargains in advertising sheets, yes, even, planes found in, and for the table, etc.

You have been advised to get the Best Food for the purpose of viewing one of the most important matters in the world, to look over a paper, but you will not be disappointed, and a chance to have a good opportunity to see one of the most interesting and profitable things that have ever been put into the world.

No Hurry. A carefully selected article in a copy of London who can find a London said, "Yes, my dear friend, now is a good time to be drawing in the water that will give you a lot of the best food."
