GEORGE YERKES FOR CIRCUIT JUDGE

FORMER FORTHVILLE BOY WILL TRY FOR IT.

Will Be a Candidate at the Spring
Primaries.

Interest is already beginning to be manifested in the spring primaries for the nomination of circuit judges. In this connection it is noticed that among the names being most prominently mentioned is that of George B. Yerkes of Detroit, a former Northville resident and the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Yerkes of this place.

Mr. Yerkes is 40 years of age, just in the prime of life when men of judgment are at their best. He graduated from the State Normal school in 1885 and from the law department of the U. of M. three years later, soon afterward moving to Detroit where he has since been engaged in the practice of law with Edmund F. Haug, a professor in the Northville schools some years ago and for whom Mr. Yerkes had formed an attachment while the former was teaching here.

The country part of Wayne county, which is now called upon to pay one-fourth of the county's tax, has never been represented upon the bench and the nomination of the gentleman in question would be about as near a recognition of that end of it as could be brought about. Mr. Yerkes is an attorney of recognized ability and he is particularly well fitted for the honorable position. He is a host of friends in Detroit as well as in the country and the prospects of his nomination at the hands of the republican party seem to be very flattering indeed.

He was chief census enumerator for the city of Detroit during the taking of the state census this summer and his business-like management of the work won for him many compliments from Governor elect Warner and his department of state.

Suburban News.

Taxes are ripe.—Ex. But not nearly all gathered. Oakland county beets are testing from 3 to 7 percent higher in saccharine qualities this year than usual. The sweet beets beat in that industry.

The Birmingham Eccentric man had a good square meal—of, was it a long one? the other day. A neighbor presented him with a venison dinner. Dear deer!

The Oxford Leader last week had an elaborate "obituary" of "A T. Gobbler" who died "from the effects of a blow in the neck." Did the Leader man hatchet up himself, or has somebody been a stuffin' him?

A citizen of Elm is the latest in this part of the country to be "husked" into a corn shredder. His right arm was "shredded" to a finish the other day in one of the infernal machines mentioned. Some people think hunting is preferable as it is more likely to do a thorough job.

A one-armed man from Fenton was recently arrested in Detroit and given "$15 or thirty days" for carrying a concealed weapon. And the poor fellow didn't have any more arms at that than nature intended! Verily, the ways of justice are oftentimes inexplicable.

William Martin, of Ingham county, aged 81, and weighing 275 pounds, rolled over in bed lately and broke his arm as his weight came upon it. The humorist was broken, but the old gentleman couldn't see anything humorous about it.—Adrian Press.

Well, after all it was rather a joke on William, wasn't it?

A letter was advertised last week in the Hudson postoffice for "Horse Lowe." He should gallop in and tell Postmaster Lawrence to trot it out.—Adrian Press. Maybe he can't range it.—Northville Record. It would make anyone sulky to keep track of such a string of horsey puns, let alone looking the winner of such a Lowe letter.—Oxford Leader.

Go! Andy Carnegie has put in $5,000 more for the Howell library, and the building which was partially finished and then abandoned by the contract or will now be completed.—Fenton Independent.

Howell Andy like it if this occurrence should inspire similar hold ups in a lot of places where he has been having pre-mortem bibliographical monuments set up!

See Hueston's window for Hand Painted and Austrian China.

Girls Had Banquet.

The twenty-four girls employed at the Fisheries station here held a little jollification Wednesday by serving a banquet at the noon hour. A few guests were invited including Supt. Clark, who "stood treat" in the form of a generous supply of chocolate creams. Mr. Clark provided the entertainers with tables for their "lay out" and everybody immensely enjoyed the pleasant occasion. A hue picture of the group was taken by M. A. Porter, which will appear in a later issue of the Record.

Smitherman-Greene.

Robert Smitherman of Commerce and Avis Greene of this place were quietly married at the home of the bride by Rev. Wm. G. Stephens Wednesday evening. They will reside in Commerce.

The Opportunity.

Apparently there is a good opportunity now open in Northville for the profitable investment of capital and there is plenty of money lying idle, or at most drawing but a small rate of interest, in the village that ought to be looking for a chance of the kind. Two desirable vacant factory buildings near the depot are at the disposal of any organization at a price not exceeding one-half the real value and all that is needed is some enterprising man, or set of men, to set the ball rolling by organizing a company to manufacture some salable articles. As the Record said a few weeks ago it has been demonstrated that the Northville Telephone company was a good investment, the American Bell & Foundry Co. has been paying handsome dividends for two years and the Globe Co. Ltd. is now on the road to success, and the indications are that within a very few years that company will be the best payer in the village. It is anticipated that the bottom of all these enterprises and business opportunities and investment for the money in the village is a very good one. An opportunity for investment in an industrial plant is also available and profitable. The village is a very good one for investment in an industrial plant.

Lights on Porches.

The idea of free electric lights on porches, as adopted by the Edison Rapids city council looks like a good proposition. It would not only add greatly to the beauty of the streets, but in the same way it would light a village in such a manner that only upon real dark nights would it be necessary to turn on the arc light circuit. Mayor Burnett thinks the idea a good one and several members of the Northville council like the looks of the proposition very much. In all probability nearly every corner of electricity in Northville would be glad to have a light burning on a porch providing there was no expense attached to it and if the expense of the wiring would not be too much it might be quite a good scheme for the council to some time consider.

SIMPLE TEST FOR EGGS.

Method Used in Germany Said to Be Infallible. A new and simple method for testing eggs is published in German papers. It is based upon the fact that the air chamber in the flat end of the egg increases with age. If the egg is placed in a saturated solution of common salt it will show an increasing inclination to float as the long axis vertical. A scale is attached to the vessel containing the salt solution so that the fact of the floating egg toward the horizontal can be measured. In this way the age of the egg can be determined almost to a day. A fresh egg lies in a horizontal position at the bottom of the vessel, an egg from three to five days old shows an elevation of the flat end so that its long axis forms an angle of 20 degrees. With an egg eight days old the angle increases to 45 degrees, with an egg fourteen days old to 60 degrees, and with one three weeks old to 75 degrees, while an egg a month old floats vertically upon the pointed end.

Lyceum Theater—Detroit.

In Hal Reid's new musical drama "The Street Singer," which Forester & Mittenthal bring to the Lyceum for a week commencing Dec. 11, there are many remarkable character studies of New York manhood and womanhood. The love interest in the drama is very strong and the scenery is described as being of great beauty and completeness, embodying new and novel ideas in stage craft.

Whitney's Opera House—Detroit.

At the Whitney next week is Theodore Kremer's successful melodrama, "No Wedding Bells for Her," one of the genuine novelties of the season. Its scenes are laid in and near Wilkes-Barre, Penn. in the heart of the great coal mining district. The "atmosphere" of the coal region has been preserved to a remarkable degree. One of its striking scenes is a marvel of stage mechanism showing the entrance to the deep cavernous shaft.

Example of Incurable, Yet Curable, Deafness. Referring to the incurable and bitter attacks of deafness, Stanley and other experts are to meet. A. J. Morrison, of the Lyceum in Scranton's message, I remember one evening in an office we were talking together of a deaf man who was well known for his deafness and self-importance. He said when I returned from England I had met one of the deafest of deaf men. After my return from my second expedition, I had seen the deafest man I had found in the Kingdom. When I had found the deafest man in the Kingdom I got three letters but I had not time to read them. The whole world is full of deaf people. CHARITY HOSPITALS AND NURSES

RELY ON PE-RU-NA TO CURE COUGHS, COLDS, GRIP, CATARRH.

Charitable Institutions All Over the United States and Canada are curing their Patients of Catarrhal Ailments With Pe-ru-na.

A Letter From Detroit.

Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio: Dear Sir:—The young girl who used the Pe-ru-na was suffering from laryngitis, and loss of voice. The result of the treatment was most satisfactory. She found great relief, and after further use of the medicine we hope to be able to say she is entirely cured. —Sisters of Charity.

Pe-ru-na of Great Service.

Another recommendation from a Catholic institution in one of the Central States reads as follows: "A number of years ago our attention was called to Dr. Hartman's Pe-ru-na, and we have used it with wonderful results for grip, colds, coughs, and catarrhs of the throat."

For Grip and Winter Catarrh especially it is of great service to the patients of this institution.

WONDERFUL RESULTS EXPERIENCED—PE-RU-NA A FAVORITE MEDICINE.

From a Catholic institution in Ohio comes the following recommendation from the Sister Superior: "Some years ago a friend of our institution recommended to us Dr. Hartman's Pe-ru-na as an excellent remedy for the influenza of which we then had several cases which threatened to be of a serious character. We began to use it and experienced such wonderful results that since then Pe-ru-na has become our favorite medicine for influenza, catarrh, cold, cough and bronchitis." —Sister Superior.

In every country of the civilized world the Sisters of Charity are known. Not only do they minister to the spiritual and intellectual needs of those with whom they come in contact, but they minister to their bodily needs. They are as skilled as trained nurses in their treatment of diseases and are looked upon as patients' friends of good cheer by countless patient sufferers.

Praise From Canada. Another prominent Canadian institution writes: "We are happy to tell you that Pe-ru-na has given us satisfaction. Three patients have tried it, one sixty-eight years old, Bronn Dupuis, afflicted with catarrh, is much relieved, more than he has been for a number of years."

SQUIRE JOIN A TALE OF THE CUBAN WAR BY ST. GEORGE DATHBORNE

Senor Roblado has no longer his hand upon the throttle valve controlling his emotions, which, up to this moment, have been kept in wonderful control, considering his fiery nationality. The barrier is swept down by that fierce rush of the tide, and as he hisses across the table, his usually suave countenance takes on the expression of a fiend.

The crisis is at hand. Thanks to his long training, Jack knows just how to meet such an emergency. He has one elbow resting on the table, and supports his head carelessly with his hand.

"What light that be, senor?" he smiles.

"Revenge. A Spaniard never forgets an injury. I have lost a fortune, it may be, but in return I mean to have your life."

With these words the fiercest Castilian suddenly produces a revolver, and presents it at the head of his companion. It is so close that Jack can look into the chambers and see the leaden messengers snugly ensconced, and awaiting the signal to go forth. He sees something more.

"Ah! you do not flinch. You are a man of nerve; but that shall not save you. See the clock rounder is about to strike the halfhour. When it sounds I shall fire. This day which has seen the charming Jessie a wife shall also see her a widow," and his manner declares that regardless of consequences Roblado is bent on revenge.

"An, senor, you have been in America, in Cuba, and learned of these ways; but there is one thing you seem to have forgotten which no cowboy in Texas ever omits—that is to put back the hammer of your gun before you shoot."

The Spaniard gives a cry of bitter exclamation, and draws his arm to temper the fault, when Jack's foot flies up from the side of the table and the pointed toe of his boot comes in contact with Roblado's. The result is a revolver which falls from the apartment.

A snarl of rage from the foreigner, and then a terrible exclamation, as his voice that has an effect on Roblado, though in all probability he is not heard, but in the secret of his heart, he is sure that the Spaniard is a fool.

Roblado is not a man who throws his words from him in a haphazard way. He is a man of nerve, and he is a man of power.

Now, senor, let us have an understanding. I shall put my foot to you, and you shall put your foot to me. I shall be your enemy, and you shall be my enemy. I shall be your enemy, and you shall be my enemy.

A sparkle of emotion has been kindled in the eyes of the Spaniard, he has added to the combat that after all, when the time appears to be his, he will win, and win his life.

She is in his power—she has been in his possession for her and will do what he says.

You seem to run this game as you see fit, senor. I tell you, I will not be your property in the way of this. I will be your property in the way of this.

Of course you realize that I hold the suit by indenture, and I am not in a position to claim the whole estate. A portion will eventually fall to the lady in the case, but some time must elapse before this can be done. In the meantime, senor, I would like to contribute to the support of my wife.

The Spaniard smiles coldly. As he realizes the power of his ore trump card, his old cunning returns, though now reinforced by a desperate hatred for this man, who has played with him as a cat does with a mouse. He can never forgive such humiliation.

"Anything reasonable until she comes into her own. As I am forbidden to see her by the terms of our agreement, I shall have to deal through you, as her agent."

"Will you draw me a check for ten thousand pounds now?"

don't work, my dear senor. A thousand would see you through in good shape until matters can be arranged. This is no blackmailing game."

"Did I say ten thousand? I meant twenty, on it might be thirty," pursues Roblado, vindictively.

"You jest, surely?" "Ah, you refuse. She shall know how much you care for her comfort. Ten thousand—a mere pittance, sure—a truce from your abundance. But I do not depend upon your generosity to live. For Dios! I have other means. We can wait until she comes into her own—yes, wait, in the sun-kissed isle beyond the sea, where the cold winds never freeze the warm blood of a Spanish gentleman."

"Jack hardly hears the last of his chatter. One sentence has riveted his attention, and caused him considerable alarm."

"You speak of quitting Great Britain—of going to the isle across the sea. Surely you do not mean Cuba, senor?" he asks.

"Why not? My interests lie there, and my first wife is buried in Havana. Yes, I surely mean Cuba," retorts Roblado, glad to see he has given his opponent a thrust.

"That fever-racked war-tossed country—Taste her there at this time! You must not."

"Senor, I smile. Am I your vassal that you should use such language to me? I go where I please, and when I please. A Spanish gentleman does not take his orders from a Yankee."

"But Jesse, I will not permit—" "You cannot prevent her accompanying me on our own free will."

his things into a traveling bag with the help of Ah Sin, and back to the office on time.

He has his tickets purchased, and enters a carriage with Ah Sin and the luggage just as the prompt signal is given and the train moves.

The ride is uneventful. Reaching Glasgow, a cab is taken to the hotel, and Jack seeks rest, having left word in the office that any message arriving is to be brought to him at once, for he believes the mission of the artist to this city on the Clyde is to sail on an Anchor Line steamer for New York, whence Cuba may be reached.

Another day and no word. How heavily time drags! He lounges about the hotel, making short pilgrimages abroad, for it is possible that those he seeks escape him in Jamaica street he surveys the crowd and wanders into Argyle street, his eyes ever on the watch for the face that is always in his mind.

Among such crowds the chances of seeing a particular person are slender indeed.

Ah Sin says nothing, but he, too, keeps a bright lookout. And at noon no word. Jack grows restless. Can it be possible his shrewd agent has lost track

"Ah! Senor Jack, who laughs now?"

DINNER WITH THE DUKE.

Boy of Ten Spent Pleasant Time With Great Soldier.

Never was the Iron Duke more gracious than on that day when the boy Kendall, son of his grace's valet, spent with him, greatly to the lady's surprise.

"We dine at 1 o'clock, sir," the youth had answered.

"And a very good hour," Wellington had replied. "I did so when I was at school. Well, I have ordered an early dinner."

So his grace and the boy of 10 sat down alone, much to the alarm of the valet, who thought the end of all things was near.

After grace the duke told the lad that he had ordered several things to be brought, and would help him to each. "For," he added, "I know little boys like to taste all they see."

During the meal the duke talked constantly and always kindly. Dinner ended, his grace shook hands with Kendall and made him good by.

"Be a good boy and do your duty. Now you may go to your father."

Mrs. L. C. Glover, Vice-President Milwaukee, Wis., Business Woman's Association, is another one of the million women who have been restored to health by using Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I was married for several years and no children blessed my home. The doctor said I had a complication of female troubles and I could not have any children unless I could be cured. He tried to cure me, but after experimenting for several months, my husband became disgusted, and one night when we noticed the testimonial of a woman who had been cured of similar trouble through the use of Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound, he went out and bought a bottle for me. I used your medicine for three and one-half months, improving steadily in health, and in twenty-two months a child came. I cannot fully express the joy and thankfulness that is in my heart. Our home is a different place now, as we have something to live for, and all the credit is due to Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound. Yours very sincerely, Mrs. L. C. Glover, 614 Grosvenor St., Milwaukee, Wis."
