AGAIN HONOR PATRIOT DEAD

PROGRAM TO BE OBSERVED IN NORTHVILLE THIS YEAR.

Orator of the Day Will be Judge
Murphy of Detroit.

The ceaseless onrolling days have once more brought near the time set aside for special honors to our patriot dead, and in accordance with their established custom the people of Northville will do all in their power to make the approaching memorial time a sacred service and an opportunity for the teaching and expression of patriotic principles.

On Sunday evening all the churches will, as has been customary, unite in the memorial service, which is to be held in the Baptist church, the pastor, Rev. S. F. Dimmock, delivering the address. The G. A. R. and W. R. C. will attend in a body.

The decoration day address on Tuesday, May 30, will be given in Princess rink at 2:00 p. m. by Judge Alfred J. Murphy of Detroit, who is well known as a brilliant young man and a fine speaker.

Details from the local Post will decorate the soldiers' graves in the outlying cemeteries in the forenoon as usual.

BANQUETED BRETHREN

Northville Masons Did So Monday Evening

Northville lodge, No. 186 F. & A. M., entertained Detroit lodge, No. 2 Monday night as a return courtesy for a visit to the latter some time ago and a "great old time" was the result as a matter of course. One hundred and forty of the brethren from the city came out for special entertainment from Farmington, South Lyon, Plymouth and Wixom made up, with the caterers a company of 150.

The ladies' work was done by the Detroit lodge, after which a luncheon was served to 270 people. Toasts followed and the company was further entertained by "All Right," the clever Impulse juggler of the Quaker Medicine Co., whose propertions are members of the Masonic order. A handsome silver trowel was presented to the entertaining lodge by the visitors from Detroit who expressed a flattering opinion of Northville hospitality.

Another Northville Boy Promoted.

Bert Wilkinson, who has been assistant electrician here ever since the installment of our electric lighting plant has secured an excellent position as superintendent of the electric lighting and water works systems at Ovid. The job, which brings Mr. Wilkinson a substantial increase of salary, requires a skilled electrician and it is a high compliment to Bert that he has been chosen to fill it. That he will do so most satisfactorily his many friends here have no doubt and are very glad of his good fortune, while regretting the necessity for his leaving Northville. His family will remain here for a month or two yet. Wellington Kator is to be the new assistant at the Northville plant.

SAD ACCIDENT

Mother of Two Northville Ladies
Killed at Milford.

Mrs. I. L. Haselroth of Milford, mother of Mrs. R. R. McKahan and Mrs. Joseph Chappell of this place, was instantly killed Monday by a gravel train on the Pere Marquette railway near her home. She was crossing the tracks and being extremely deaf probably did not realize that the train was near although she had seen it coming, but was watching for another from the opposite direction. She was 75 years of age and had lived in Milford and vicinity for 10 years. She had been a widow for many years and leaves no family except the two daughters mentioned, for whom relatives sympathetically felt here in their peculiarly sad bereavement.

Death of Mrs. George Rider.

Mrs. Frances Matt Rider, wife of Motorman George Rider of the D. T. R., a former resident of this place whose illness was noted in the Record last week died in Farmington Saturday afternoon. She was a member of the Northville Presbyterian church and also was a member of the Northville Woman's club during her residence in this village and leaves many friends here.

The funeral was held in Farmington Tuesday at 10 o'clock by W. S. Kight conducting the services. The body was brought here on the D. T. R. and taken to the Walker cemetery near Saker for interment.

A peculiar and pathetic feature of the burial was that there were two hearses in the procession one containing the body of Mrs. Rider's mother that had been placed in the vault here a short time ago to be left until the sick daughter should recover sufficiently to be present at the burial.

A number of Northville people attended the funeral.

Suburban News.

Pontiac is to have a lanning mill factory this summer, but it will not be as good a place to cool off in no weather as its name implies.

John Bennett of Hamburg has been a constable for 19 successive years. It might naturally be supposed that he'd be awfully tired of the office by this time, but of course he'd had most often enough to keep him contented.

A Plymouth bartender accidentally paid out a $5 gold piece supposing it to be a nickel, but was lucky enough to find out where it was before he had to make good the loss. He will be very careful after this how he handles out and in for half dimes.

South Lyon is the latest town in these parts to be burglarized. A hardware store and a drug store were broken into and revolvers, carrying knives and razors were the booty secured from the former, while from the medicine shop only the cash was taken. Luckily the design of the thieves tended toward kill and not cure, as they took weapons instead of pills, powders, plasters and poultices.

Methodist Church Notes.

(By the Pastor)

Preaching service Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. Union service to be coming in the Baptist church.

Our friends are requested to remember that there will be a cake sale on Saturday in the store of Mrs. Price. You may count on the baked goods being a lot.

We will speak to the ladies' their parents and all who wish to attend on Sunday afternoon at 5 p. m. The subject will be "Some things I saw and heard during my visit at the Industrial school at Lansing."

The responses thus far to our request for missions and other benevolences are quite encouraging. Some are responding quite liberally. A prompt return of cards properly filled and signed is earnestly requested.

The new stair carpet just placed in the church by C. A. Dolph's Sunday-school class looks beautiful. The class is to be commended for their thought and enterprise. It was needed and they supplied the need.

Rev. J. M. Snank of St. Ignace, a former pastor has kindly consented to preach for us on Sunday evening June 4th. You will not fail to greet him with your presence. You will be pleased and profited to hear him once more.

The Epworth Leaguers turned out in large numbers Sunday evening to hear Miss Cady of Wayne. She handled her topic well. She impressed us as a young woman of deep experience in the things of God. We wish there were more like her.

Ladies' Ready-to-wear garments at Mrs. Price's. Pretty shirt waists, corset covers, duck and linen skirts and fancy neckwear.

FLINT'S JUBILEE!

PROMISES TO BE AN EVENT OF UNUSUAL INTEREST

Handsome New Public Buildings to be Dedicated When the City is 50 Years Old.

Where are you going to spend your summer vacation? This thought gives everyone more or less concern and just as one of the little side trips you will take it would really be worth your time and money to visit Flint June 7th and 8th, when the Golden Jubilee and Home Coming will be celebrated.

Such elaborate plans have been evoked, such unusual arrangements have been made for accommodating the throngs which will go and the attractions are of such a splendid nature that it is more than likely that many of the people of this place and vicinity will join the parties headed Flintward on these days.

In the first place, Vice President Fairbanks will be present to deliver an address on the occasion of the laying of the corner stone for the handsome new postoffice which is to be erected in Flint. He will be accompanied by Mr. Justice Brown, of the United States Supreme Court, who will also deliver an address. It will be worth while to hear these two men alone and many persons will travel a long distance just to see them. In addition to the postoffice, a handsome $100,000 court house is to be dedicated a $25,000 Carnegie library is to be formally opened and it looks now as if a new $50,000 city hall would be added to the list.

Plans for entertaining the crowds are being carried out on an elaborate scheme and the city will supply in holiday attire every public building, every bus, house and every residence in the city will be decorated in recognition of the fiftieth anniversary of the municipality.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS

FOUR NEW ONES FIGURE IN FLINT'S JUBILEE IN JUNE.

Will Either Be Dedicated or Corner
Stones Laid For Them June
7 and 8.

The dedication of Flint on July 7 and 8 will, without doubt the most elaborate of the jubilee ever attempted by any city in the country. The municipality will be fifty years old at that time and being a strong health resort developed sort of a festival is proposed to mark the anniversary in a way that it will go down in history as having been celebrated fully worthy by the residents.

Four public buildings will be either dedicated or corner stones laid. A court house, city hall, public library and postoffice. This is a group of buildings which would add to the importance and beauty of any city. Nothing in the usual order and it is a good thing that they are all to be erected in Flint. They will be built by the city and will be a credit to the hands of the public. It is a good thing that they are all to be erected in Flint and it is a good thing that they are all to be erected in Flint.

Among the new buildings which have been started in Flint this summer is the new city hall, which is a grand and imposing building. It is a good thing that it is to be erected in Flint and it is a good thing that it is to be erected in Flint. It is a good thing that it is to be erected in Flint and it is a good thing that it is to be erected in Flint.

Slaves to Spring Catarrh Restored to Health by Pe-ru-na.

SPRING THE TIME TO CURE CATARRH.

Pe-ru-na Invigorates Mind and Body.

Hon. Wm. G. Hunter, Ex-member North Carolina Legislature, writes from the Census Office Building, Washington, D. C., as follows:

"The greatest family medicine ever discovered, in my opinion, which comes from experience, as well as observation, is Peruna.

"The most common affliction to humankind is a bad cold. Peruna drives it out of doors, wards off catarrh, invigorates, and gives fresh strength to mind and body. I give Peruna my unqualified endorsement."—Wm. G. Hunter.

Takes Pe-ru-na Every Spring.

Mrs. Tilly Marx, 421 14th St., Milwaukee, Wis., writes:

"I am pleased to endorse Peruna, as I found it very efficient in ridding my system of a severe cold and catarrhal trouble, after I had tried many other remedies without getting relief.

"I took Peruna for two weeks, when I was much better, and in two weeks more I was entirely rid of the cold and catarrh. I shall take it every spring as a tonic, as I found that it made me much better in every way."—Tilly Marx.

Miss Lydia Herziger, Grand Reformer of American Democrats of the residence, writes from New York, N. Y., as follows:

"I have used Peruna now for four years, each Spring and Fall, and it keeps me perfectly well and strong.

"I am able to continue working and do not have to take a 'three months' rest, as I used to do every year. This is a great comfort to me, as I was not able to afford such a long rest.

"I find that it is a great preventative for colds and coughs and soon rids the system of all disease and is an admirable medicine. I can honestly endorse it."—Lydia Herziger.

Mr. James A. Moody, Ex-president Board of Education, Mineral Co., Va., writes from 314 Massachusetts Avenue, N. E., Washington, D. C., as follows:

"My family have used Peruna for several years past with excellent results and I take pleasure in testifying to its superiority as a remedy for catarrh.

"Every spring if at dreaded disease will show up in my family and we always turn instinctively to Peruna to ward it off.

"It has never yet failed, and I never lose an opportunity of recommending it to my friends."—James A. Moody.

Spring Catarrh.

Almost every one has come to believe that spring is a season that brings derangements of the body dependent on blood impurities.

This belief is an old one, is nearly universal, and has arisen, not as the result of the teachings of the medical fraternity, but has been learned in the bitter school of experience.

Nervous Depression.

Depression of the nervous system at the approach of spring is a fertile source of blood impurities.

These are generally manifested in the form of nervous prostration, with irregular appetite and sometimes loss of sleep.

That Tired Feeling

That tired feeling, which is the natural result of the derangement of the system, is a sure sign of the impurities of the blood, which quickly dissipate the vitality of the system.

The Proper Remedy.

Peruna meets every indication and proves itself to be perfectly adapted to all their varied peculiarities. Peruna invigorates the system, rejuvenates the feelings, restores the normal appetite and procures regular sleep.

Do Not Delay.

Get a bottle of Peruna when the first languid feelings make themselves apparent in the spring. Take it according to the directions on the bottle. Continue this treatment through the first months of spring.

This course of treatment is no experiment. It is as positive in its results as any fact of science can be.

A Spring Tonic.

Almost every body needs a tonic in the spring. Something to bridle the nerves, invigorate the brain, and cleanse the blood. That Peruna will do this is beyond all question. Every one who has tried it has had the same experience as

Mrs. Winnifred Power, an artist, who, in a recent letter from 246 7th St., Portland, Ore., says:

"I am pleased to speak a good word for Peruna, as I found it an excellent tonic and spring medicine and very effective in ridding the system of cold and catarrh.

"About two years ago my system was all run down in the spring and I thought I would try and see if Peruna would be of any assistance in bringing back my health and strength.

"I found that it was splendid and, all the medicine that I needed. In a little over a month I was well and did not need to take any more medicine.

"I shall recommend it to every one in need of a tonic, and know that I have only to take a few doses of Peruna when I feel run down and I will soon be over it."

Nature's Assistance.

Spring is the best time to treat catarrh. Nature renews her strength every year. The system is rejuvenated by spring weather. This renders medicines more effective.

A short course of Peruna, assisted by the balmy air of spring, will cure old, stubborn cases of catarrh that have resisted treatment for years.

A Word of Advice.

To those who have been afflicted with chronic catarrh we wish to say that the spring season affords you a splendid opportunity to get rid of your disease.

It may be you have been afflicted for several years; you may have tried different remedies. Perhaps you have become discouraged.

Now Is Your Opportunity.

This failure was during the winter months. But now is your opportunity. Nature comes to your assistance at this season.

Just remember a little and you will find you are not the quivering wretch you have been in the winter months. Give your catarrh a chance to be destroyed by

A Typical Case.

Geo. M. Fillmore, late 1st Lieut. 3rd U. S. Artillery, writes from 909 L St., N. W., Washington, D. C., as follows:

"I brought forward from winter into spring sickening case of catarrh which was making existence miserable for me, until I was induced to try a bottle of Peruna.

"An immediate improvement gave me hope, if not relief. I kept up taking Peruna and it has so strengthened and relieved me that I am now confident of a cure. I heartily endorse Peruna for catarrhal affections and as a tonic for their weakening effects."—Geo. M. Fillmore.

A short course of Peruna now will be just in time. During the month of April you will find the strategic time to rid yourself of chronic catarrh, one of the most persistent, stubborn diseases in the whole list of human ailments.

After you have tried it you will see Peruna is the best of the best spring medicine you have ever used.

A great many years of extensive trials of this remedy in this class of derangements have demonstrated that there are no failures.

Thousands of Testimonials.

Thousands of cases might be quoted in which Peruna has rescued people from the ravages of spring catarrh, and put them on a good, solid foundation of health.

We can give our readers only a slight glimpse of the vast array of unsolicited endorsements Dr. Hartman is constantly receiving. No other physician in the world has ever published a volume of enthusiastic letters like this.

If you do not desire prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case. He will be pleased to give you a valuable advice gratis.

Address: Dr. Hartman, President of the Health and Sanitation Commission, Columbus, Ohio. All correspondence held strictly confidential.

Good Roads.

An item of large importance connected with the work of the present legislature and one that will be expected to increase in value as the years go by is the passage of the bill through which Michigan is formally and officially, committed and connected with state highway improvement. As completed and placed before Governor Warner the state highway improvement bill will require an appropriation of sixty thousand dollars from the state treasury for the next fiscal year, and further payments to the amount of one hundred and ten thousand dollars for the following year, but it is confidently expected that returns in value such as the state directly or indirectly receives from its participation in highway improvements. That feature of the bill which provides for an annual road institute in each county where town and county highway officers will, together with the state commissioner, discuss ways and means of road improvement and plans for best methods of cooperation is one that will make for activity and give

NORTHVILLE.

Will Not Suit Everybody.

Middleton will be expected to enter upon a primary election experiment with a legal provision to that end, and finally provided the subject had been actively discussed in a general way from Houghton to Monroe. Some of the legislators have indicated almost every possibility and to be bill is unimpaired. It is to be expected that there will be a number of bills of this nature to make a fair test of the principle of direct voting as compared with caucus and convention procedure must be given. How it will be utilized is a matter for practical experience to decide.

Railroads Must Pay.

The question as to whether or not Michigan legislation has been directed or controlled by the railroads, as has been charged by democratic campaign leaders and participants finds a complete answer in the decision of the federal court through which millions of dollars are to be added to our state's primary school funds at the expense of the alleged favored railroads.

Indian Style of Beauty.

A flat, retreating brow and flat features are not admired by men in civilization, but there are many people who consider this a desirable mark of beauty. Hence they spent many years with the American Indians, and declare: "Ask a no. hern Indian what beauty is and he will answer a broad, flat face, small eyes, and four or five broad back lines across each cheek, and a check bone a few forehead and a broad chin."

Renewed Effort.

"The snorer grows toward the saint as he tries and fails and tries again from day to day."—W. C. Gannett.

Pessimist's Strong Point.

The best thing about the pessimist is his frequent inconsistency.

SIMPLE WALL DECORATIONS.

New Material and New Ideas for the Decoration of Homes.

The styles of home decorations have completely changed in the last few years, and it is pleasant to say that they have changed for the better. Time was when we hung monstrous patterns, printed on paper against our walls, and considered them more or less pleasantly. It would hardly be fair to say that we considered them beautiful or artistic. But they were the vogue and were put on. The time has come when, with our better methods for interior decoration, better effects can be secured.

In wall coverings, whether they be of paint, or of kalsomine, or of Alabastine—whatever the material used to cover the wall—the thing desired is that which has the greatest covering power as well as permanency and beauty of color. Alabastine, a wall covering ground from Alabaster rock—this means a hard white rock—is the best covering for a wall.

The most beautiful wall decorations in the world are those which are laid on after the wash. The mural designs in our large public buildings, and the frescoed designs in the large cathedrals and churches, have a permanency and an art of which wall paper is but a cheap imitation. These mural schemes and frescoed designs can be brought within the reach of the every day home. They can be done with Alabastine which is permanent in its coloring. It does not rub off, and it has the soft effect of pastel.

A great many people defer the redecoration of their rooms not only because of the expense but because of the discomfort of it. With Alabastine there need be no discomfort and there can be no expense. For all that is needed is to lay a sheet of canvas on the floor. The painter comes in with a bucket, makes the solution and simply brush it on the wall. This is all there is to it, and the room is perfectly clean and thoroughly renovated.

Let it be a wall in either of the rooms in your home that is to be decorated.

BATTLEFIELDS LITTLE CHANGED

Country Over Which Raged Conflicts That Made History Remains To-Day Much as It Was In Civil War Days

The battlefields of Bull Run have undergone little change since the civil war.

Catharpin creek, Young's Branch, Cub run and Rocky ford are still pouring into Bull run, and that historic stream rolls sluggishly from the mountains to Aqua creek.

There are the same open fields and stretches of woods shown on the topographical maps used in 1861 and '62.

Sudley Springs and Groveton are no bigger hamlets than at the time of the battles; Centerville has rather shrank than grown, and Haymarket, on the Sudley road, which was a group of three or four houses, has disappeared.

Manassas from a mere hamlet at the junction of the Orange & Alexandria railroad and the Manassas Gap railroad, has become a small village, and is the seat of Prince William county, whereas Brentville had that distinction in America's heroic age.

The bells of Sudley meeting house and Centerville church ring out every Sunday, and old men pray there who listened to the firing saw glimpses of the struggles, carried water to the wounded and helped bury the dead.

which figured so conspicuously in the Fitz-John Porter case, is standing.

Mrs. Dogan, through whose farm runs the railroad cut where Porter, Sigel, Reynolds and King fought to dislodge Jackson on Aug. 30, 1862, is still living at Groveton. She is 87 years old and hearty. She likes nothing better than to tell of the red, gum scenes of war.

The fields in that bloody square bounded by Centerville on the east, Groveton and Gainesville on the west, Sudley on the north and Manassas on the south, are as a rule, still tilled by the families who worked them when Prince William and Fairfax counties stood under the tread of armies and the crash of guns.

It is believed that most of the bones of the men slain at Blackburn's ford, July 18, 1861; Bull Run, July 21, 1861; Stone bridge and Gainesville, Aug. 27 and 28, 1862, and Groveton and Sudley, Aug. 29 and 30, 1862, have been exhumed.

Those recovered from the Federal positions were removed to Arlington, where many hundreds are heaped under the monument to the "Unknown," near the "cut,"—the place of greatest slaughter, were not given sufficient burial. Earth was simply shoveled over the poor corpses where they lay. The first heavy rain washed away the earth and exposed the remains. This statement is made on authority of Mrs. Dogan, who, ordered from the field by Jackson's men as the fighting began, returned to her farm before the removal of all the wounded—or the burial of the dead.

Reminders of the fighting are ever coming to light. Hunters often come upon skeletons in woods far from the field. These are the bones of men who, wounded, struggled off and died. With each spring plowing bones of men and horses, buckles, canteens, bayonets, gun barrels and buttons are upturned. Around some of the farm houses are big piles of solid shot and broken shell. Tons of this battlefield iron have been collected and sold as scrap-iron. Nearly every farmer in the neighborhood has a collection of swords, guns and bayonets gathered from the field.

When the Groveton monument was dedicated three years after the last

Those churches were hospitals during and after both battles.

A shot from a Union battery, which made a breach in the walls of Sudley meeting house is preserved by a member of the congregation.

Bethel church, which was Fitz John Porter's headquarters when he lay behind Dawkin's branch on Aug. 28, 1862, has been removed four miles south of its old site, but the foundation stones may be seen by those who will enter the thicket of undergrowth that obscures them.

The Henry house, the Chinn, Dogan and Matthew houses, destroyed by shells, were long ago restored on their first foundations and are to day as they were in '61.

The Stone house still stands at the crossing of the Warrenton pike and Sudley road, and until recently was occupied by a Virgin farmer, who as a cavalryman under Stuart fought over the fields around the house.

The first shell thrown from Tyler's division when the fight opened at the Stone bridge, is still there. So, too, the Van Pelt house, damaged by the Robinson house, and Robinson, the old negro who dwelt there when Hunter and Heintzman drove Bee, Bartow and Evans from the heights north of the pike to those on the south, dwells there to-day.

The Lewis house Johnston's headquarters, is still occupied by Mr. Lewis, and the Hampton Cole house, and many other hundreds are buried in individual graves marked with a little slab also inscribed "Unknown."

Bones dug from the Confederate positions in the first battle are interred under a red sandstone shaft at Manassas, five miles south of the central fighting ground. This shaft is inscribed "Dedicated by the Ladies' Memorial Association of Manassas on August 30, 1874, to the Heroes of Virginia and Her Sister States, Who Yielded Their Lives on July 18 and 21, 1861 and August 29 and 30, 1862 in Defence of the Confederate Cause."

Close by the Henry house there is a rude Union monument erected "In Memory of the Patriots Who Fell at Bull Run. Erected June 10, 1865."

In a bit of cedar woods by the railroad cut at Groveton there is another little Union monument "In Memory of the Patriots Who Fell at Groveton August 28, 29 and 30, 1862."

There is no Confederate monument on the battlefield.

Bones taken from the Confederate lines of the second battle are buried on a knoll at Groveton.

As the positions of the armies of ten overlapped, it is safe to believe that northern and southern soldiers are mingled at Arlington and Manassas.

Identification of the bones at Groveton was not difficult, for while the Confederate dead were buried in deep trenches, the Union soldiers who fell in battle, the fields were still thickly strewn with weapons and articles of soldiers' equipment.

The line of railroad bed (the road was never finished) along which Jackson formed from Gainesville to Sudley is well preserved, though overgrown with pine and cedar.

Earthworks around Manassas and Centerville clearly mark the camps of Beauregard and McDowell. There are no earthworks on the fighting ground. None was built.

On the Henry farm stakes have been driven to mark where Col. Cameron of the 79th New York and Gen. Bee were killed, where Rickett's battery was cut to pieces and where Wade Hampton was wounded. In a dense woodland off the field two bits of board tell that Gens. Wilcox and Kirby Smith were shot there.

A rail fence stands just where the rail fence stood along which Jackson's brigade was drawn up when Gen. Bee gave Jackson the soubriquet of "Stonewall."

The place on the Chinn hill where Col. Fletcher Webster, son of Daniel Webster, was killed in the second battle is pointed out by the people who live there.

What "Etc." Means.

An English schoolboy was asked what "etc." meant. "It is a sign used in writing to make people think you know more than you do."

THE MODERN FARMER.

How He Lives, as Compared With Fifty Years Ago.

he farming life of to-day, as contrasted with that of fifty years ago, is a paradise of comfort and convenience. The lonely loghouse, remote from market and devoid of advantages that a half cycle of time has made possible, would scarcely appeal to the present day farmer.

The twentieth-century soil tiller has practically all the modern comforts. His mail is delivered daily. He has telephonic connection with the buying and selling world, affording the best opportunities for marketing to advantage. His home is of recent architecture, constructed of wood, brick or stone, and well furnished. He has modern plumbing and modern heating, and with the advent of acetylene gas, he has modern lighting. At night his home is as attractively illuminated as that of his city brother, for it is a suggestive fact that "acetylene for country homes" has so appealed to the farmer, that of the 80,000 users of acetylene gas in the United States, the farmer is one of the largest of all classes. Ever seeking the best, he has not hesitated in availing himself of this new light.

The continued growth and progress of this great country, ever a cause of wonderment, has no greater exemplification than evolution on the farm. Already the farmer is becoming the most envied of men—the freest, the healthiest, the happiest!

Spain's Iron-Bound Beach.

"Everywhere that I have seen it, the coast of Spain is an iron bound beach with a rough sea breaking" writes a traveler. "Whether on the Atlantic or the Mediterranean shore, whether on the Biscayan or the Andalusian coast, there seems to be a heavy surf booming along the Spanish beach. Here on the extreme north there were the same somber mountains that we had once seen when coasting between Gibraltar and Marfelles, here we saw the same stern landscape and the same gaunt cliffs crowned with watch towers, and colored like the cliffs and seeming to be stony growths out of the rocks themselves."

A Fable.

"The danger of sensational journalism is many," observed the philosophical fly, "and yet it suits the taste of some persons to the extent that it becomes a positive epidemic with them. Now, there's my brother," he continued, pointing to a struggling, buzzing, unfortunate, "he's no badly stuck on that yellow sheet that he's all tangled up and gone! I now which end he's on!" Soy Bean Cheese.

The municipal laboratory of Paris has been extending the experiments made by Dr. Vogel, who has manufactured a very succulent cheese from the small Chinese bean known as "soy beans." The doctor finds that the pulp of these beans contains many of the essential qualities, and that the resulting composition is both nourishing and pleasant to the taste.

GREAT CHANGE

From Change in Food.

The brain depends much more on the stomach, than we are apt to suppose until we take thought in the matter. Feed the stomach on proper food easy to digest and containing the proper amount of phosphates and the healthy brain will respond to all demands. A notable housewife in Buffalo writes:

"The doctor diagnosed my trouble as a nervous affection of the stomach. I was actually so nervous that I could not sit still for five minutes to read the newspaper, and to attend to my household duties was simply impossible. I doctored all the time with remedies, but medicine did no good.

"My physician put me on all sorts of diet, and I tried many kinds of cereal foods, but none of them agreed with me. I was almost discouraged, and when I tried Grape-Nuts I did so with many misgivings—I had no faith that it would succeed where everything else had failed.

"But it did succeed, and you don't know how glad I am that I tried it. I feel like a new person, I have gained in weight and I don't have that terrible burning sensation in my stomach any more. I feel so strong again that I am surprised at myself. The sweet noises that used to irritate me so, I never notice now, and my mind is so clear that my household duties are a real pleasure."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason.

Now why was this great change made in this woman?

The stomach and the brain had not been supplied with the right kind of food to rebuild and strengthen the nerve centers in these organs. It is absolutely folly to try to do this with medicine. There is but one sure way and that is to quit the old food that has failed and take on Grape-Nuts food which is more than half digested in the process of manufacture and is rich in the phosphate of potash contained in the natural grain, which unites with albumen and water—the only three substances that will make up the soft gray filling in the thousands of delicate nerve centres in the brain and body. Grape-Nuts food is a sure road back to health in all such cases.

RAILROADS AND PROGRESS.

In his testimony before the senate committee on interstate commerce at Washington on May 4, Prof. Hugo R. Meyer of the Chicago university, an expert on railroad management, made this statement:

"Let us look at what might have happened if we had heeded the protests of the farmers of New York and Ohio and Pennsylvania (in the 70's, when grain from the west began pouring to the Atlantic seaboard), and acted upon the doctrine which the interstate-commerce commission has enunciated time and again, that no man may be deprived of the advantages accruing to him by virtue of his geographical position. We could not have west of the Mississippi a population of millions of people who are prosperous and are great consumers. We never should have seen the years when we built 10,000 and 12,000 miles of railway, for there would have been no farmers west of the Mississippi river who could have used the land that would have been opened up by the building of those railways. And if we had not seen the years when we could build 10,000 and 12,000 miles of railway a year, we should not have to day east of the Mississippi a steel and iron producing center, which is at once the marvel and the despair of Europe, because we could not have built up a steel and iron industry if there had been no market for its product.

We could not have in New England a great boot and shoe industry; we could not have in New England a great cotton-milling industry; we could not have spread throughout New York and Pennsylvania and Ohio manufacturing industries of the most diversified kinds, because those industries would have no market among the farmers west of the Mississippi river.

And while the progress of the country, while the development of the agricultural west of this country, did mean the impairment of the agricultural value east of the Mississippi river, that ran up into hundreds of millions of dollars, it meant incidentally the building up of great manufacturing industries that added to the value of this land by thousands of millions of dollars. And, gentlemen, those things were not foreseen in the 70's. The statesmen and the public men of this country did not see what part the agricultural development of the west was going to play in the industrial development of the east. And you may read the decisions of the interstate-commerce commission from the first to the last, and what is one of the greatest characteristics of those decisions? The continued inability to see the question in this large way.

The interstate-commerce commission never can see anything more than that the farm land of some farmer is decreasing in value, or that some man who has a flour mill with a production of fifty barrels a day is being crowded out. It never can see that the destruction or impairment of farm values in this place means the building up of farm values in that place, and that that shifting of values is a necessary incident to the industrial and manufacturing development of this country. And if we shall give to the interstate-commerce commission power to regulate rates, we shall no longer have our rates regulated on the state-subsidized basis on which they have been regulated in the past by the railway men, who really have been great builders of empires, who have had an imagination that rivals the imagination of the greatest poet and of the greatest inventor, and who have operated with a courage and daring that rivals the courage and daring of the greatest military general. But we shall have our rates regulated by a body of civil servants, bureaucrats, whose besetting sin the world over is that they never can grasp a situation in a large way and with the grasp of the statesman, that they never can see the fact that they are confronted with a small evil, that that evil is relatively small, and that it cannot be corrected except by the creation of evils and abuses which are infinitely greater than the one that is to be corrected."

Danger in Painted Toys.

Do not buy painted wooden toys for the children. During our early years of life we closely resemble the lower animals in bringing everything to the test of taste. The writer distinctly remembers trying to swallow marking ink. Some toy manufacturers state that the colors they use are harmless. Well, without being unkind, one may say that the insides of the little children can very well dispense with paint. White wood is capital. It cannot poison.

JOAN OF THE SWORD HAND

By S. R. CROCKETT, Author of 'The Raiders,' etc.

CHAPTER VIII.

Prince Wasp.

"So," he said, as he faced the secretary, now somewhat compositely stilled, Johann, Count von Leon, "so young-sprigald, you think to court a foolish princess. You play upon her with your pretty words and graceful compliments. That is an agreeable relaxation. Only—you have in addition to reckon with me, Ivan, hereditary Prince of Muscovy."

"And with a sweep of his hand across his body he drew his sword from its sheath. The sword of the young secretary came into hand with equal swiftness. 'Follow me, Count von Leon,' said the prince. 'And with his life and springs walk the Prince of Muscovy passed again into the alleys of the rose garden till he reached the first open space, where he turned upon the secretary. 'We are arrived,' he said, 'our business is so pressing, and will be so quickly finished, that there is no need for the formality of seconds. Though I honor you by crossing my sword with yours, it is a mere formality. I have such skill of the weapon, as I dare say you have told me, that you may consider yourself dead already. Guard!'

But Johann Pymont had been trained in a school which permitted no such windy preludes, and with the fencers' smile on his face he kept his silence. His sword would answer all such boasts, and that in good time. And so it fell out. From the very first crossing of the swords Prince Wasp found himself opposed by a quicker eye, a firmer wrist, a method and science infinitely superior to his own. His most dashing attack was repelled with apparent ease, yet with a subtlety which interposed nothing but the most delicate of guards and parries between Prince Ivan and victory. This gradually infuriated the prince, till suddenly losing his temper he stamped his foot in anger and tumbled upon his foe with the true Muscovite fire. But lo! the blade was turned aside, the long delayed answering thrust glittered out, and the secretary's sword stood a couple of hand breadths in the monster's shoulder. The prince staggered, cited out some unintelligible words in the Muscovite language and pitched forward slowly on his face among the trumpet leaves and blown rose petals of the palace garden. The secretary grew paler than wax, and ran to lift his fallen enemy. But all unseen, other eyes had watched the combat and from the door by which they had entered, and from behind the trees of the surrounding glade, there came the noise of pounding footsteps and fierce cries of 'Seize him! Kill him! Tear him to pieces! He has slain the poor prince, the friend of the people! The Prince Ivan is dead!'

The secretary eyed this untimely horde with haughty scorn and his fearless attitude as he stepped his stained sword through his snarling chief and threw the line away, but something to do with the fact that the rabble halted at the distance of half a dozen yards and for many minutes contented themselves with hurling oaths and imprecations at him. At last they did come on not all together, but in irregular, undisciplined rushes Johann's sword streaked out this way and that. There was an answering cry of pain, a turmoil among the assailants as a wounded man whirled his way backward out of the press. But this could not last for long. The odds were too great. Then suddenly came a voice. 'Back on your lives, dogs and traitors! Ger-ward thrust of their friends. Still the ring narrowed, and the pair of gallant fighters would doubtlessly have been swept away had not a diversion come to alter the face of things. Out of the gate which led to the wing of the palace occupied by the Princess Margaret burst a little company of halberdiers; at sight of whom the crowd gave suddenly back. The Princess herself was with them. 'Take all prisoners, and bring them within,' she cried. 'My brother is from home, of you dare not thus brawls in the very precincts of the palace!'

And at her words the soldiers advanced rapidly. A further diversion was caused by the Sparhawk suddenly clearing a way through the crowd and setting off at full speed in the direction of the river. The Princess and her guard were left with only the secretary and the unconscious body of the Prince of Muscovy. 'Strah,' she cried severely to the former, 'is this the first use you make of our hospitality; thus to brawl in the street underneath my very windows with our noble guest the Prince Ivan. Take him to my brother's room, and keep him safely there to await our lord's return. We shall see what the Prince will say to this. And as for this wounded man, take him to his own apartments and let a surgeon be sent to him.'

So, merely detailing half a dozen to carry the Prince to his chambers, the captain of the guard conducted the secretary to the very room in which an hour before he had met the brother of the Princess. Here he was confined, with a couple of guards at the door. Nor had he been long shut up before he heard the quick step of the Princess coming along the passage-way. 'So,' she said, as soon as the door was shut, 'you have killed Prince Wasp?'

"I trust not," said the secretary, gravely. "I meant only to wound him, but as he attacked me I could not do otherwise than defend myself."

"But," cried the Princess, "I hope you have killed him. It will be good riddance and most like the Muscovites will send an army—which with your assistance to help us, will make a pretty fight. It comes him right, at all events, for Prince Wasp must always be throwing things into my way."

The law, she continued, "The Prince Ivan is in high favor with my father and mother and I will be well that you can do no more in regard to the present matter. But I will tell the Prince Wasp will die or he will recover. In either case the man will blow over. Then you will come back to teach me more foreign customs."

She snatched and held out her hand. Johann kissed it, perhaps without the fever which might have been expected of from a black youth. It was only by favor of the lady's friend that the secretary was allowed to see her. 'To-night,' she went on, 'there will be a boat beneath the window. It will be manned by those whom I can trust. A ladder of rope will be thrown to your chamber. By it you will descend into the river with a good horse and a sufficient escort you can ride across to Muscovy—no to Konberg, which I favor, and let Joan of the Sword Hand take her share of the Princess Margaret, send you to her!'

She went to the door and with her fingers on the handle she turned her head about with a pretty, wistful expression. 'I am so glad you slung the Wasp. I love you for it!' she said. At seven it grew dark, and at ten all was quiet in the city. The river rushed swiftly beneath, and the noise of it, as the water lapped against the stone foundations of the summer palace, helped to disguise the noise of oars, as the boat a dark shadow upon greyish water, detached itself from the opposite shore and approached the window from whose open cagement Johann Pymont looked out. A low whistle came from underneath, and presently followed the soft, reeling whirr of a coil of rope as it passed through the window and fell at his feet. The secretary looked about for something to fasten it to, and finally decided upon the iron wreights of the great desk at which the Prince had stood earlier in the day. No sooner was this done than Johann set his foot on the top round and began to descend. The boat seemed very far away, a mere spot of blackness upon the river face. But presently, and while making up his mind to practice the gymnastic of rope ladders quietly at home, he made out a man holding the ladder, while two others with grappled boat hooks kept the boat steady fore and aft. A shrouded figure sat in the stern. The secretary was handed from one to the other of the rowers till he reached the shrouded figure in the stern. 'Draw this about you, Count' a low voice whispered, and in another moment Johann found himself under the shelter of one cloak with that daring slip of nobility, the Princess Margaret of Courland.

They touched the shore almost at the place where the Sparhawk had landed in the morning when he escaped from the city rabble, and a stone's throw further up the bank they found the horses waiting, ready captioned for the journey. So soon as he had distinguished the slim figure of the secretary landing from the boat the Sparhawk appeared on the crest of the hill. "Good-bye! For the present, good-bye, dear Princess," said Johann, with heart in his voice. "God knows, I can never thank or repay you. My heart is heavy for that. I am unworthy of all your goodness."

"Let there be no talk of parting except for the moment," she said. "God, you are my knight. Perhaps one day, if you do not forget me, I may be yet far kinder to you!" "And with a kiss and a little sob the Princess sent her lover, more and more downcast and discouraged, by reason of her kindness, upon his way. So much did his obvious depression affect Margaret of Courland that after the secretary had reached the top of the river bank, she suddenly bade the rowers wait a moment before casting loose from the land. "Your sword! Your sword!" she called aloud, rising any haster in her eagerness; "you have forgotten your sword!" Now it chanced that the Sparhawk had come up with the little party of travelers. "Do not trouble, I will bring the sword," he said to Johann, with his usual lapetosty, and without a moment's hesitation he flung himself down the bank. The Princess had leaped manly ashore, and was standing with the sheathed sword in her hand. When she saw the figure come leaping down the bank she saw the public hand, she gave a little cry, and, dropping the sword, she threw her arms impulsively about the Sparhawk's neck. "I could not let you go like that—without ever telling you that I loved you to folly. I am in the whippersnapper, while the youth stood perturbed with a good amount of money round or motion. I will never more but you—nothing! Prince Ivan is another! A woman should not love a man that has been a prince but a princess may become the next day not a prince."

"And what said you?" asked the secretary of his companion as they rode to their boat through the mist of the river. "Why I did nothing. I was not needed," quoth the Duke Johny. "She kissed me?" "The Duke slung his shoulders in the dirt. "Will I make what the gods send," he replied. "She was a pretty girl and the Princess' ship made no difference in her kissing, so far as I could see. I serve you to the death, my lady! Unless, why if a Princess loves me by the way, why I am ready to endure to the limit of her desires!" "You are an accommodating youth," sighed the secretary, and forthwith returned to his own melancholy thoughts. (To be continued)

Business Is Business. A story is told of a man in Arkansas town who, in addition to his being president of the local board of aldermen was also the proprietor of the best hotel in the place.

It appears that a visitor from the east one day remarked to this man that the town might be made a good deal healthier if a certain large swamp near by were drained. "W-a-l!" drawled the politician and hotel man "all my boarders says the same thing. In my position as president of the board of aldermen I'd shortly advocate the improvement in a minute if it wasn't for my son."

"Why," exclaimed the easterner in surprise, "why should your son object?" "W-a-l, stranger," replied the Arkansas mar, "he runs the drug store."—From Harper's Weekly.

The Coffee He Smuggled In. Some years ago a deputy collector of Uncle Sam's held an office down on the northern border of Maine. Late one fall, after a busy season keeping tabs on the smugglers, the deputy received a call from one of the boys around town, who informed him "on the quiet" that a certain man living some ten miles back in the country straggled in 150 pounds of coffee the night before. Tired as he was, the deputy hitched up his team, and arrived at the farmer's place just before dark. The deputy told him what he had heard, and the farmer admitted that he still had possession of the goods. Inviting him into the house, the farmer introduced the deputy to his wife, whom he had married in Canada the day before. Her maiden name was Coffee, and she weighed 100 pounds.

CHARACTER TOLD BY SHOES.

Wearers' Defects and Virtues Plainly Manifested. A certain shoemaker is a firm believer in "shoology." He says: "Worn shoes go ahead of the art of fortunetelling from the lines of the hand. In one shoe, for instance, I see irresolution, changeableness, inclination to slovenliness and occasional fits of ill-humor. "Show me any person's footgear after two months' wear and I will describe the character of the person. "If the soles and heels are worn evenly, then the wearer is a resolute, able business man, with a clear head, a trustworthy official or an excellent wife and mother. If the sole is worn on the outside, the wearer is inclined to adventurous, uncertain, fitful deeds, or, if a woman, to bold, self-willed, capricious tricks. "The sole being worn on the inner side shows hesitation and weakness in a man and modesty in a woman."

BABY CAME NEAR DYING. From an Awful Skin Humour—Scatched Till Blood Ran—Wasted to a Skeleton—Speedily Cured by Cuticura.

"When three months old my boy broke out with an itching, watery rash all over his body, and he would scratch till the blood ran. We tried nearly everything, but he grew worse, wasting to a skeleton, and we feared he would die. He slept only when in our arms. The first application of Cuticura soothed him so that he slept in his cradle for the first time in many weeks. One set of Cuticura made a complete and permanent cure." (Signed) Mrs M. C. Vandland, Jasper, Ontario.

Hot air is always succeeded by a cold wave. ALABASTINE. Alabastine produces exquisitely beautiful effects on walls and ceilings. Easy to apply, simply mix with cold water. Better than kalsomine, paint or wall paper. It is not a kalmine, it is a sanitary, permanent cement coating, which destroys germs and vermin, never rubbing or scrubbing. Kalsomine mixed with either hot or cold water soon rubs and scales off spilling walls clothing and furniture. They contain glue, which decays and nourishes the germs of deadly disease.

LIVING TOO HASTILY

AMERICAN WOMEN BREAKDOWN. Irregularities and Female Derangements Result—Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Owing to our mode and manner of living, and the nervous haste of every woman to accomplish just so much each day, it is said that there is not one woman in twenty-five but what suffers with some derangement of the female organism; and this is the secret of so many unhappy homes. No woman can be amiable, light-hearted and happy, a joy to her husband and children, and perform the duties incumbent upon her, when she is suffering with backache, headache, nervousness, sleeplessness, bearing-down pains, displacement of the womb, spinal weakness or ovarian troubles. Irritability and snappy retorts take the place of pleasantness, and all sunshine is driven out of the home, and lives are wrecked by woman's great enemy—womb trouble.

Read this letter. Dear Mrs. Pinkham—I was troubled for eight years with irregularities which broke down my health and brought on extreme nervousness and despondency. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound proved to be the only medicine which helped me. Day by day I improved in health while taking it until I was entirely cured. I can attend to my social and household duties and thoroughly enjoy life once more. As Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made me a well woman without an ache or a pain.—Mrs. Chester Curry, 42 Sarasota Street, East Boston, Mass.

MISS MILDRED KELLER.

RESTORED TO HEALTH. THANKS TO PE-RU-NA. Friends Were Alarmed—Advised Change of Climate.

Miss Mildred Keller, 719 18th street, N. W., Washington, D. C., writes: "I can safely recommend Peruna for catarrh. I had it for years and it would respond to no kind of treatment, or if it did it was only temporary, and on the slightest provocation the trouble would come back. 'I was in such a state that my friends were alarmed about me, and I was advised to leave this climate. Then I found Peruna, and to my great joy found it helped me from the first dose I took, and a few bottles cured me. 'It built up my constitution,' I regained my appetite, and I feel that I am perfectly well and strong."—Mildred Keller.

We have on file many thousand testimonials like the above. We can give our readers only a slight glimpse of the vast array of unsolicited endorsements Dr. Hattman is receiving.

Only Half a Baby. A man who has recently traveled in Ireland says that in a poor little cottage of two rooms he saw a married couple and seven children. Hearing a baby cry, he asked to see it, and explained that he took an interest in babies, having one at home. The infant was produced for inspection, and the mother asked, proudly: "Is yours as big as that, sir?" To which he replied, "I think it is a little bigger." Instantly the instincts of the mother were roused, and, tossing her head, she said, "So well it might be, that's only half of ours, the other half is with God. We had twins."

KNEES STIFF, HANDS HELPLESS RHEUMATISM NEAR HEART. Mrs. Van Scoy Experiences Dangerous After Effects from Grip and Leans Value of a Blood Purifier.

The grip leaves behind it weakened vital powers, thin blood, impaired digestion and over-sensitive nerves—a condition that makes the system an easy prey to pneumonia, bronchitis, rheumatism, nervous prostration, and even consumption.

The story told by scores of victims of the grip is substantially the same. One was tortured by terrible pains at the base of the skull; another was left tired, faint and in every way writhed from anemia or scantiness of blood; another had horrible headaches, was nervous and couldn't sleep; another was left with weak lungs, difficulty in breathing and acute leardipia. In every case relief was sought in vain until the great blood-builder and nerve-tonic, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, was used. For quickness and thoroughness of action nothing is known that will approach it.

Mrs. Van Scoy makes a statement that supports this claim. She says: "I had a severe attack of grip and, before I had fully recovered, rheumatism set in and tormented me for three months. I was in a badly run-down state. Soon after it began I was so lame for a week that I could hardly walk. It kept growing steadily worse and at last I had to give up completely and for three weeks I was obliged to keep my bed. My knees were so stiff I couldn't bend them, and my hands were perfectly helpless. Then the pains began to threaten my heart and thoroughly alarmed me.

"While I was suffering in this way I chanced to run across a little book that told about the merits of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The statements in it impressed me and led me to buy a box. These pills proved the very thing I needed. Improvement set in as soon as I began to take them, and it was very marked by the time I had finished the first box. Four boxes made me a well woman." Mrs. Laura M. Van Scoy lives at No. 20 Thorpe street, Danbury, Conn. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are equally well adapted for any other of the diseases that follow in the train of grip. They are sold by all druggists.

The prince staggered.

men to the rescue! Danes, Teu-s, Northmen to the rescue!" Following the direction—of the sound, Johann saw a young man drive through the press his sword bare in his hand, his eyes glittering with excitement. It was the Danish prisoner of the guard-hall at Kernsberg, that same Sparhawk who had fought with Werner von Orseln. The secretary placed himself back to back with his ally, and their two bright blades waved every way. A second time the courage of the crowd worked itself up, and they came on. Those before would have gladly fallen behind but could not for the fear-
