CLOSING DAYS OF SCHOOL YEAR

COMMENCEMENT DUTIES AND PLEASURES NEARLY OVER

Seven Young People Received Diplomas Last Night.

Commencement time which means closing time, with its pleasures, partings and responsibilities, is almost over and seven more of the young men and women of our village and vicinity have received the precious ribboned rolls of paper, that may mean so much or so little, according to the degree of faithful work in the past and hopes and ambitions of the future which they represent. Whether they are to be stepping-stones to high attainment, stereotyped incidents of uneventful lives or merely reminders of wasted opportunities, only the coming years can disclose. Just how the atmosphere of present success with its gifts and congratulations makes the outlook seem all in rose color. Let us hope these rosy clouds may be dissipated only in the clearer light of honorable achievement, whether in great or small duties as the future unfoldings of environment and character shall determine.

On Sunday evening the first of the annual observances of commencement took place, when the big laureate sermon was preached by Rev. W. S. Jerome in the Presbyterian church. Although the evening was so oppressively hot that the building was not overcrowded as is usual on these occasions, quite a large audience listened to the discourse, which was an earnest plea to the young graduates—as well as to everyone present—to use for the good of humanity whatever talents or education had been given them. Instead of selfishly regarding individual advancement and profit as the purpose of all effort and attainment. The sermon was thoroughly practical and to the point, as well as particularly appropriate to the occasion. The music by the choir of ladies' voices was especially fine.

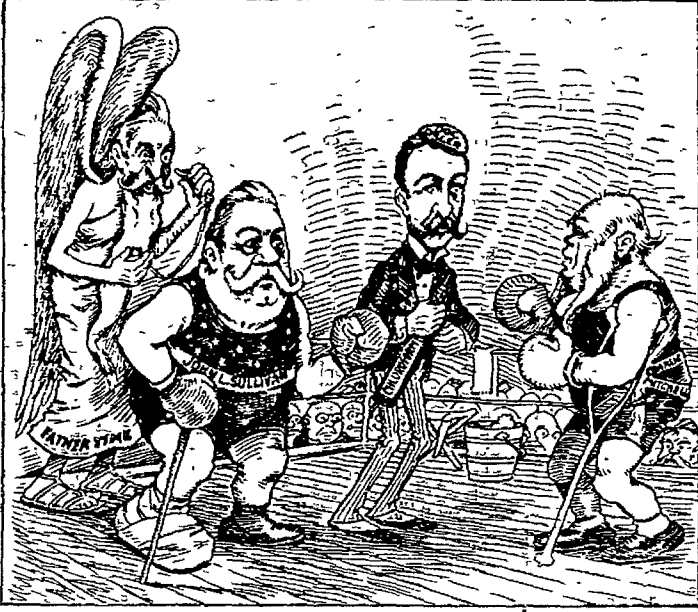

Wednesday evening the class day program was given in the Methodist church, which was prettily decorated with plants, flowers and the class colors, red and white, with the motto, "Vincent Qui se Vinct." In the same colors above the platform. The members of the class are Misses Pearl Little, Eva and Katherine Hubbard, Ella Power and Mabel Harrington and Messrs John Nelands and Ralph Gibson.

The program opened with organ music by Mr. Finham, followed by the invocation by Rev. Sidney F. Dimmock and music by the high school chorus. Mr. Nelands gave the salutatory in a very pleasing manner. Miss Harrington told the story of Joan of Arc and Miss Katherine Hubbard spoke on "Epochs of Our National History" after which Miss Luchner gave a vocal solo in her usual charming voice and style.

Miss Power's subject was the class motto. Miss Little "Heroines of Shakespeare," and Mr. Gibson's "The Wizard." All the topics were interestingly and ably presented, and all delivered with credit to the respective speakers who were all warmly applauded. Miss Eva Hubbard was valedictorian and filled the position admirably, winning enthusiastic applause.

The program closed with music by the high school chorus, which deserves special mention. The "Waltz Song" and the "Bridal Horns" were particularly pretty. The work of the chorus and the accompanist, Guy Filkins, was done with a precision and expression highly creditable to the pupils as well as to their efficient musical instructor, Miss Manquita Wallin, and was very pleasing to the audience, eliciting many complimentary remarks.

Thursday evening another large audience assembled in the Methodist church to listen to the class address by Rev. R. L. Waggoner of Tiffin, O. The speaker handled his topic, "Life and Laurels," with signal ability and drew from it many instructive thoughts and valuable lessons. The diplomas were presented to the seven graduates by L. A. Babbitt in the peculiarly appropriate and graceful way in which he so well knows how to perform that duty.

This evening the eighth grade promotion exercises are to take place in the same church. This part of the commencement week program is always looked forward to by Northville people with almost or quite as much interest as the graduating exercises themselves and is invariably one of the prettiest of all the functions of the school closing time. The class numbers twenty-one and it is a fact worthy of mention that only one break in its ranks has occurred since the fourth grade, the one vacancy being made by the death of little Margie Carpenter.

Stevenson's Love Toast.

A beautiful testimony of one's home loves was paid by Robert Louis Stevenson at a Thanksgiving dinner in Samoa.

"There, on my right," said Stevenson, replying to an unexpected proposal of "The Host," "sits she who has but lately from our own loved native land come back to me—she to whom, with no lessening of affection to those others to whom I cling, I love better than all the world besides—my mother. From the opposite end of the table, my wife, who has been all in all to me, when the days were very dark, looks to-night into my eyes—while we have both grown a bit older—with undiminished and undiminishing affection."

Dean Family Reunion.

A jolly crowd from Northville stepped on the car Saturday morning at the Smith road in Redford and were met by Eugene Smith and driven in his farm wagon to his residence a mile away, where a similar load from Detroit had preceded them, making, with the other guests, a company of 31 assembled with Mr. Smith and family on their spacious lawn. The occasion was one of the many pleasant gatherings of the Dean clan of the nine children whose parents settled in Livonia in 1834, five are now living and four of them were present, their ages being 75, 73, 70 and 63. Wm. D. Dean and Chas. Dean, cousins, were present. The rest by birth or marriage were members of the Gabriel Dean family. Of the grandchildren, 17 are living, of the great-grandchildren 19 and of the great-great-grandchildren 1. After a bountiful dinner, the afternoon was spent in social visit and old-time reminiscences, which all enjoyed. All voted the day and occasion all that could be desired. H. M. W.

Three Heat Plan at Blue Ribbon Meet.

As the time approaches for the "Blue Ribbon Meeting" Secretary Walter J. Snyder is besieged with inquiries concerning the three heat plan which has been adopted by the "twentieth century" track. From all quarters letters are received complimenting the Detroit Driving Club for progressiveness in adopting a plan which insures clean, honest racing, from which spirited contests are sure to result. Some have the impression that a winner of a heat retires from the race. Instead a horse remains in a race until the finish unless distanced. The object of the three heat plan which is really nothing more than a new plan of distributing the money and insuring a race to be finished at a certain time, is to compel every driver to try for each heat. It is a sort of guarantee that no "having up" of heats will be the rule. Instead of encouraging a horse to be laid up by paying him, the new plan discourages it, because he must be in the money division each heat in order to win money. In other words, a horse is paid to win not to lose. Thus it can be seen that it pays to win, which will result in racing, such as the public pay to see and demand.

Trying Chinese Bride's Temper. On the day of a Chinese marriage uninvited friends and neighbors, or even perfect strangers, are allowed to come in and see the bride and they may make any remark about her, or to her, they please, says the Boudoir. Sometimes things horribly rude and disgusting are said.

To try her temper a man will say, "Fetch your husband a cup of tea!" If she does so, all will say jeeringly: "What an obedient wife you are!" If she sulks and does not go as she is told they remark: "That is a pretty vixen with which to begin married life. We cannot congratulate you on that tartar," and other words to similar effect.

Try on the poor thing is made to stand on an inverted cup to show how small are her feet.

Suburban News.

Belleville has attained the honor of incorporation and held its first election and now has "village dads" of its very own.

Said one of the Record's exchanges last week: "Mr. and Mrs. _____ became the proud parents of twins Tuesday. Later—one of them has died." We are still wondering which one of the family it was.

"Our village is at its best now. Come out and see the fountains play, the roses bloom and the cowslip—Birmingham Eccentric.

Yes, and hear the trees bark when the horse dies and the cabbage is grown.

During a thunderstorm near Orion last week lightning struck a clothes line, ran along its impromptu conductor for 20 feet, then down a tree to a dog chain along which it flashed and killed the dog at the end of the chain in considerably less time than it takes to tell it. Everyone who knew of the peculiar incident was quite struck with it—especially the dog.

There seems to be no limit to Pontiac's aspirations. The latest is in the form of a tentative proposition for a permanent street fair—sort of a Coney Island affair. If our ambitious Oakland county capital could only manage to bring a hunk of the Atlantic ocean over there the scheme would be a sure thing. All the difference between the idea and the reality is that one's a notion and the other's an ocean.

The recent overflow and subsidence of the Huron river over in some parts of Livingston county left so many big carp stranded in the low-lying fields that the inhabitants have been capturing and selling the fish by the barrel full for future use. This is the most unique crop the farmers there have ever "raised" on their land, and they couldn't even wait for the unexpected harvest to get ripe.

WHY CALLED "BUCKET SHOPS."

Small Trading Places Were Thus Referred to in Derision. "Bucket shops" were called bucket shops because when they were first started in Chicago the only article dealt in by the small speculators to any extent was wheat. The legitimate brokers would not handle an order for not less than 5000 bushels and a lot of places sprung up where men could speculate on as small capital as $1, and this class of speculators were spoken of contemptuously as buying and selling wheat by the bucket. Hence shops where a small business was conducted in a day on a margin became known as bucket shops and the term was eventually applied to all brokerage in stock and grain where the amounts dealt in were smaller than legitimate needs of brokers would handle and more particularly to places where there were really no legitimate transactions, but the proprietor and his customers simply bet on the market, the proprietor allowing the customer to take either arc of the ball in consideration of a commission which was in reality his percentage in the game.

The "Jersey Giant"

And it chanced that on a summer day a Jersey "skeeter," tiring of his native land, started out to seek his fortune. He traveled many weary miles until at last he came to a place called Michigan, where the skeeters gazed upon him with awe and admiration because of his great size. He was dubbed the "Jersey Giant," and immediately secured employment with a bug and "skeeter" museum which was given in a tent of gauze woven by Spinnerette, the spider. He related many strange tales upon his return, but his reputation for veracity was not of the best and they were given little credence by the historians of that period—From the "History of the 'Skeeters,'" A. D. 1805—Detroit Tribune.

Women's Charms Listed in Book. The Cingales, Dr. Harvey says, have decided views on woman's charms; they have written a book on this subject. They refuse to call a woman beautiful unless she has the following characteristics: Her hair must be voluminous like the tail of a peacock, long, reaching to the knees and terminating in beautiful curls. Her nose must be like the bill of the hawk and her lips bright and red like coral; her neck must be large and round—and her waist narrower and tapering.

Catholic services will be held in Chadwick's hall Sunday morning at eight o'clock.

Northville was quite well represented in the audience at the big circus in Detroit Monday.

The W. R. C. will have initiation services at its next regular meeting, taking in two new members.

Christian Science service Sunday morning at 10:10 o'clock in Library hall. Subject "God". All are cordially invited.

Miss Stella Angell, a graduate of the Northville high school two years ago, was poet of the graduating class at the Ypsilanti Normal this week.

The cement floor which has been put in the large porch of F. S. Harmon's new house is a decided novelty here. It looks very nice as well as substantial.

A C. Harmon flies a pear tree which has commenced blossoming again, although the fruit on the tree has already attained nearly a third of its usual size.

Nineteen W. J. C. ladies met at Mrs. W. H. Ambler's last Friday afternoon and went from there to the cemeteries to decorate with flowers the graves of their deceased members.

As announced last week the ladies of the Baptist church will sell baked goods of all kinds—except poor kinds—at Mrs. Price's store, corner Center and Main streets, tomorrow—Saturday.

The Kings Daughters held their last regular meeting for the summer at the home of the president, Mrs. J. B. Tinkham, Tuesday evening with a large attendance. A banquet was served and a very pleasant social time enjoyed.

FOURTH OF JULY ATTENTION—Next Sunday is our Memorial day. You are earnestly requested to meet at the hall Sunday morning, June 25, at 9:30 o'clock to attend divineservice in the Baptist church.

By Order of CHIEF RANGER Russell Fuller of the first grade and Edwin Johnson of the third grade are pupils of the Northville school who have the proud distinction of having been neither absent or tardy during the year. These little fellows are beginning early to make a desirable record.

The "Old Dairy Homestead" company has been persuaded to put the above mentioned play on at Plymouth next week Thursday evening under the auspices of the Presbyterian Ladies' Aid of that place. Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Tinkham are to furnish the music.

The Ministers' and Laymen's Evangelistic League of the Wayne Baptist association is in session today and tomorrow at Milford. This evening Rev. Sidney F. Dimmock of the Northville Baptist church is to preach the sermon, and tomorrow afternoon Mr. Ballard, also of this place, is to assist in one of the discussions.

Northville has been fairly rioting in magnificent roses this week, the grounds of almost every residence showing one or more varieties of the queen of flowers, many having a large number of different kinds. Our village might be appropriately called a garden of roses when the beautiful blossoms are in their fullest prime as they have been for a few days past.

Another inconvenient phase of the standard time-in-name-only situation comes to light (no pun intended) in connection with the electric light service. The rather inconsistent fact that the municipal illumination is shut off at the same old time as before frequently develops some rather awkward circumstances for patrons whose timepieces are set by the official time of the village. For instance, people coming home from Detroit on the 11:30 car are lightless before they get home and when they get there they have no light to use unless they happen to possess a lamp.

W. L. Ambler is now prepared to furnish packed ice cream in quart pails Sundays at 25 cents, if ordered before 11 o'clock a. m.

Tired out, worn out woman cannot sleep, eat or work, seems as if she would fly to pieces. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea makes strong nerves strong nerves and rich blood. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets. Murdock Bros.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer VanLerven have assumed proprietorship of the Novi hotel—business recently purchased of M. F. Stanley.

A number of Northville folks have taken in—or been taken in by, according to the way they looked at it—the street fair in Plymouth this week.

Little June Telton of Detroit, formerly of Plymouth, who has many friends here, has signed with the famous actor, David Belasco, for a long engagement.

Sunday was the hottest June day in Michigan in ten years, according to the weather bureau records and the hottest June day in New York for twenty years.

There will be Episcopal services in the W. C. T. U. hall next Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, standard time. The celebration of the Holy communion will also take place.

MADE NEST IN BEARD.

Mouse Took Great Liberty With Miner in Alaska.

A mouse may naturally be a "timid beastie," but at times it shows an audacity which borders on the impudent. A traveler in Alaska brings home this experience of his Klondike wanderings.

The teller of the story passed a long, cold winter at Cape Nome. He and his companions had, for a year or more, let their beards grow, as a protection for their throats and chests.

One night when all were asleep, the man in question was awakened by a light patting on his face. The cold was intense, and not caring to move unless it was necessary, he lay still. Again the light touches on his cheek. He put up his hand and his fingers closed on a tiny mouse tangled in the meshes of his beard. A companion, roused by the involuntary exclamation, lighted a candle and investigated.

The mouse had selected the beard as a warm and comfortable spot for a residence. It had burrowed out a nice, round nest, and when caught was engaged in dropping beans pillooned from the nearby larder, into the receptacle thus made. Youth's Companion.

THIS DOCTOR WAS OUT.

Incident in a Night Practitioner's Experience Told by Himself.

A prominent physician in Baltimore recently perpetrated a whim at his own expense. It was late at night. The doctor had lost his night key, the door was locked, he was cold from a long ride, and the more he raved the hell the more the suspicion grew in his mind that someone had chloroformed the entire household.

Finally however, his sister was aroused by a long ring of the bell. Naturally she thought that there was someone at the door who wished to see the doctor, and that, as the doctor was out, she would herself have to answer the summons, since the caller would keep her awake for a long time. So, hastily throwing a loose gown over her nightdress, she hurried to the door.

Opening the door the least bit, in order not to present her dishabille to an intruding eye, she shouted through the crack in a tone of sleepy impatience, "The doctor's out," and was about to close the door when the physician thrust one foot through, at the same time exclaiming: "Yes, I know the doctor's out, but he wants to get in."—Harper's Weekly.

THESE WERE SMART FOXES.

They "Spelled" Each Other and Fooled a Pack of Hounds.

I have a near neighbor who is a close and intelligent observer of the ways of wild animals and a truthful and reliable man, says a writer in the New York Times. He says that on one occasion he witnessed a fox chase in Maryland, standing on one side of a very high hill, while the dogs and fox were across a deep gulch about half way up on the side of another high hill, for a good deal of the time in plain view.

As the chase proceeded he noticed a second fox seated on a log and apparently interested in the outcome. After some time as the dogs were heard approaching, this fox ran down at right angles to the direction they were coming and met the running fox and took his place ahead of the hounds while the third animal sprang to one side and trotted directly up the hill and seized himself on the log for a rest.

The fresh substitute then led the dogs a lively chase for a long circuit and finally the pack again were heard approaching. This time for No. 1 was fresh and ready and ran down and met his fatigued brother and put himself before the dogs, while No. 2 went back to the log and took a breathing spell. This procedure was kept up for probably two hours.

The guarantee we give to refund the money to any one using Calumra Solvent without benefit, is something to be envied of the treatment of serious and dangerous kidney and bladder diseases.

Calumra Solvent's wonderful power to cure diseases of the kidneys and bladder is the happy result of the efforts of that skilled physician and surgeon, Dr. David Kennedy, to make a medicine that would dissolve and expel from the system stones, gravel and uric acid. In this way, Calumra Solvent not only cures the disease but also removes all its bad effects. It is not a potent medicine, but a prescription used by Dr. Kennedy in his private practice with an amazing success.

Calumra Solvent has been a particularly successful agent that almost invariably cures, and we run it for our own satisfaction as well as the interest of our respective patients, at a small cost to you. Do not delay. Write us at once for $1.00. T. E. CALUMRA COMPANY, NEW YORK, N. Y.

The Prince of Courland turned an angry countenance upon his friend, but the keen-witted Muscovite looked so kindly and yet so sadly upon him that after a while the severity of his face relaxed as it had been against his will, and with a quick gesture he added, "I believe you love me, Ivan, though indeed your words are no better than red-hot pincers in my heart."

"Love you, Louis?" cried Prince Ivan. "I love you better than any brother I have, though they will never live to thwart me as yours (I warn you—better even than my father, for you do not keep me out of my inheritance!"

Then in a gayer tone he went on: "I love you so much that I will please my father's whole army to help you, first to win your wife, next to take Hohenstein-Kernsburg and Maentfeld. And after that, if you are still ambitious, way—to Plassenburg and the Wolfmark, which was the Executioner's Son holds. That would make a noble kingdom to offer a fair and willful queen."

"And for this you ask—?"

"Only your love, Louis—only your love! And, if it please you, the alliance with that Prince of your honor able house, of which we spoke just now."

"My sister Margaret, you mean? I will do what I can, Ivan, but she is so willful. You know she is willful! I cannot compel her love!"

The Prince Ivan laughed. "I am not so complaisant as you Louis, nor yet so modest. Give me my bride on the day Joan of the Sword Hand sleeps in the palace of Courland as its princess, and I will take my chance of winning our Margaret's love!"

CHAPTER XII.

Woman's Willfulness.

Joan rode on, silent, a foreboding look on her face. Behind her, Duke Maurice von Lunar had his eyes fixed on her face, and she was not at all ignorant of the fact that she was being watched. She was not at all ignorant of the fact that she was being watched. She was not at all ignorant of the fact that she was being watched.

Soon Castle Kernsburg floated up like a cloud before them above the blue and misty plain. But no word spoke from that purple shadow but a thin shape as stately and dark as a shadow, and she could not see her own face. Joan lay back in the saddle upon the top of her plumed helmet, and the tower she had just seen.

"You of Hohenstein!" said the Duchess in a clear far-reaching tone. "You have followed me, asking me of why or wherefore. I have told you nothing yet is an explanation due to you."

It is the will of Joan of the Sword Hand! It is enough! repeated the four hundred lances, like a class that learns a lesson by rote.

A lump rose in Joan's throat as she tried to shape into words the thoughts that surged within her. She felt strangely weak. Her pride was not the same as of old, for the heart of a woman had grown up within her—a heart of flesh. Surely that could not be a tear in her eye? No, the wind blew shrewdly out of the west, to which they were riding.

"I thank you, noble gentlemen," said Joan. "Now, as you say, let us ride into Kernsburg."

"And pull down that flag!" cried Maurice, pointing to the black Court-

Lay waiting on the slopes of the Jagernbergen.

land Eagle which flew so steadily beside the coronated lion of Kernsburg and Hohenstein.

"And pray, sir, why?" said Joan of the Sword Hand. "Am I not also Princess of Courland?"

From woman's willfulness all things somehow have their beginning. To woman's wantings may be traced all restraints and judgments from the sword flaming every way about Edengate to the last merchant declared bankrupt and "dyed" upon the exchange flags of Hamburg town. Eve did not eat the apple when she got it. She hastened to give it away. She only wanted it because it had been forbidden.

So also Joan of Hohenstein desired to go down with Dessauer that she might look upon the man betrothed to her from birth. She went. She looked, and within her there grew up a heart of flesh. Then, when the stroke fell, that heart arose in quick, untempered revolt, and what might have issued in the dull compliance of a Princess, whose whole life was settled for her became the imperious revolt of a woman against an intolerable and loathsome impossibility.

So in her Castle of Kernsburg Joan waited. But not idly. All day long and every day Maurice von Lunar rode on her service. The hillmen gathered to his word, and in the courtyard the stormy voices of George the Hussite and Peter Balta were never far off. The shepherds from the hills went to and fro, marching and countermarching, wheeling and charging, pouring musket and thrusting pike till all Kernsburg was little better than a barracks.

But there were two, at least, within the realm of the Duchess Joan who knew no drawbacks to their joy, who rubbed palm on palm and nudged each other for pure gladness. These (it is hard to say) were the military attaches of the neighboring peaceful State of Plassenburg. Yet they had been specially cautioned by their Prince Hugo, in the presence of his wife Helene, an hereditary princess, that they were most carefully to avoid all international complications. They were on no account to take sides in any quarrel. They must do nothing prejudicial to the peace neutrality, and universal amity of the Star and Princessdom of Plassenburg. Such were their instructions.

They promised faithfully.

Yet these two soldiers of fortune lay waiting on the slopes of the Jagernbergen talking over the situation. "A man surely has a right to his own wife," said Jorian, taking for the sole of argument the conventional side.

"Narcis Possen, Jorian!" cried Boris, raising his voice to the indignation point. "Clotted nonsense! Who is going to keep a man's wife for him if he cannot do it himself?"

"The trouble is, that so far the fact is necessary to do any one's wife," said Jorian.

"That also is nonsense," said Boris. "Who is to keep a man's wife for him if he cannot do it himself?"

"I have just chosen," said Jorian.

"Then they can't whiggle it to you!"

"Partly, to his feet and looked long and hard at his hand. Very far away there rose from the level green plain first one tall column of dense black smoke and then another, till in fact as they could see to the left the plain was full of them.

"Gladly!" cried Jorian, "they are burning the farms and herds, you see. The Muscovites are not! These are Cosack fires. Bravo! We shall yet have our big boys with his axe! He will never enter the bar so near his borders!"

"Let us go down," said Boris, "or we shall miss some of the fun. In two hours they will be at the fords of the Alla."

"What do you here? Go back!" shouted Werner von Orseln, who with his men lay waiting behind the flood-banks of the Alla. "This is not your quarrel! Go back, Plassenburgers!"

"We have for the time being demitted our office," exclaimed Boris. "The envoys of Plassenburg are at home in bed, sick of a most sanguinary fever. We offer you our swords as free fighting men and good tools. The Muscovites are over yonder. Lord it think that I have lived to forty-eight and never yet killed even one bearded Russ!"

"You may mend that record shortly to all appearance, if you have luck!" said Von Orseln grimly.

Now this is the report which Captains Boris and Jorian, envoys (very extraordinary from the Prince and Princess of Plassenburg to the reigning Duchess of Hohenstein, made upon their return from the fords of the Alla, to their home government.

Jorian, being of the rotund and complaisant faction—acquired in the proposal that he should do the writing. But as he never got beyond, "To our honored Lord and Lady Hugo and Helene, these—" there needs not to be any particularity as to his manner of acting the scribe.

Then he remembered that he knew where a secretary was in waiting. He would go and borrow him. Jorian entered their bedroom with a beaming smile, and the secretary held by the sleeve to prevent his escape. Both felt that the report was as good as written. It began thus:

"With great assiduity (a word suggested by the secretary) your envoys remembered your Highnesses' princely advice and command that we should involve ourselves in no warfare or other local disagreement. So when we heard that Hohenstein was to be invaded by the troops of the Prince of Courland, we were deeply grieved.

Nevertheless, judging it to be for the good of our country that we should have a near view of the fighting, we left our arms and armor behind us, and went out to make observations in the interest of your Highnesses' armies.

"I am told that you get bigger fees," said the New Yorker, "than any other attorney out your way."

"Which reminds me of one of Mr. Lincoln's stories," answered the Ohioan. "When he was a boy one of his mother's neighbors was so poor as to excite the pity of all those who knew her. She had a world of children, and it was said of them that they never had enough to eat. When young Abe was trudging schoolward one morning he met one of the boys. His heart melted at the sight of the gaunt and hungry appearing lad, and quickly his hand went into his luncheon basket and drew forth a ginger cake. He broke it in twain and the boy gobbled it up. He gave him the other piece, and that went down the boy's throat in one gulp.

"You like ginger cakes, don't you?" inquired Abe of the widow's boy.

"I do," was his answer, "I like 'em more and gets less of 'em than any boy in Sangamon county."

"And that is my story," continued the senator. "When I practiced law I liked big fees, better than any one on earth, and got fewer of them than any other lawyer out my way."

Making a Sure Thing of it.

"We found the soldiers of the Duchess Joan waiting at the fords of the Alla, which is the eastern border of their province. There were not many of them, but all good soldiers. The Courlanders came on in myriads, with Muscovites without number. These last burned and slew all in their path.

The men of Hohenstein being so few and those of Courland with their allies so many, the river was overpassed both above and below the fords. Whereupon I pressed it upon Werner von Orseln that he should retreat to a place of greater hope and safety, being thus in danger on both flanks.

"This Werner von Orseln had fought all the day, and though most recklessly exposing himself, was still unharmed. His armor was covered with blood and black with powder after the fashion of these wild hot bloods. His face also was stained, and when he spoke it was in a hoarse whisper. The matter of his discourse to us was this: "I can do no more. My people are dead, my powder spent. They are more numerous than the sea sands. They are behind us and before, also outflanking us on either side."

"Then we advised him to set his face to Hohenstein and with those who were left to him to retreat in that direction. We accompanied him, bearing in mind your royal commands, and tried to do all that in us lay to advance the interests of arms."

"In this manner the remnant of the soldiers of the Duchess Joan reached Kernsburg in safety—a result which we flatter ourselves was in much due to the zeal and perseverance of your envoys as to the skill and bravery of Werner von Orseln and the soldiers of the Duchess."

"And your humble servant will ever pray for the triumph of peace and concord and also for your undiminished reign to your Highnesses through countless years. In token whereof we append our signatures and seals."

"BORIS
"JORIAN"

"Is not that the somewhat over-stated about peace and concord and a fourth?" asked Jorian anxiously.

"Not a whit—not a whit!" cried Boris. "Our desire to promote peace needs to be put strongly, in order to carry persuasion to their Highnesses in Plassenburg. In fact, I am not sure that it has been put strongly enough!"

"I am troubled with some few doubts myself," said Jorian, under his breath.

And as the secretary jerked the ink from his pen he smiled.

ONE OF LINCOLN'S STORIES.

Senator Foraker Uses Anecdote to Draw a Parallel.

Before Senator Foraker was elected to the office he now holds he practiced law in Cincinnati, says the New York American. It is said of him that his fees were larger than those of any other attorney in Ohio. It is generally known that he is a poor man so far as earthly possessions go. Senator Platt, of New York, asked him not long ago why he held himself down to a $5,000 job, whereas if he confined himself to legal practice he could grow enormously rich.

"I am told that you get bigger fees," said the New Yorker, "than any other attorney out your way."

"Which reminds me of one of Mr. Lincoln's stories," answered the Ohioan. "When he was a boy one of his mother's neighbors was so poor as to excite the pity of all those who knew her. She had a world of children, and it was said of them that they never had enough to eat. When young Abe was trudging schoolward one morning he met one of the boys. His heart melted at the sight of the gaunt and hungry appearing lad, and quickly his hand went into his luncheon basket and drew forth a ginger cake. He broke it in twain and the boy gobbled it up. LIVE STOCK

Mating Mares Intelligently.

It is of vast importance to breed the mare to the right horse, and we would strongly advise leaving her unbreed unless the right horse can be found. "And what is the right horse?" it may be asked. The answer is that the right horse to choose is the one that is of pure blood, of that blood which predominates in the mare. Most mares have some pure blood in their composition, and the owner should determine what blood predominates and then breed her to a stallion of pure breeding of the breed represented in the mare. By so doing the resultant foal will be purer than the dam in that blood, and if a filly is the result she should in time be bred to a stallion of the same breed as her sire, and so on persistently in a right line until all of the scrub or ordinary blood is bred out and that of the pure blood is made the only possession of the animal.

Five top crosses in this method of breeding will practically establish purity of blood, but the work should not stop there, and a few more top crosses in the same direction will produce the breed-potency possessed by animals long bred pure. Had this idea been followed in our breeding operations for the last fifty or sixty years the country would be all of practically pure bred animals graded up from ordinary stock by persistent and intelligent use of imported or home-bred pedigreed stallions. As it is, all sorts of mixtures have been made, and the resultant stock is a conglomerate of all breeds and a representation of none. The time has come to stop this foolishness in breeding, and the work on every farm should start this spring by the intelligent mating of the mares.

The trouble in the past has been that the mare owner would not go to the trouble of finding the proper stallion for his mares. He might desire to breed to the right one, but could not find him readily, so used the first one that came along or the cheapest best to be found. He possibly started grading up by using a Percheron stallion upon his mares and used that breed until it had no representative in that district. Then he used a horse of different blood and even upon his grade fillets. The result could be that the grade was altered and the new one was a retrograde—a step back to scrub stock and in no way an advance over the first stock used. This sort of work should not be done this year.

Find out where there is a stallion of the right blood and take the mare to him, even if it takes time and money to do so. The result in the long run will be profitable. If the same course is pursued each year until five or six top crosses of the same blood are put on. And do not breed even to the horse of right blood unless he is sound and a good individual of his kind. We want to see farmers boycott all scrub, grade and unsound stallions, and if they will do so for a few years such horses will of necessity become a thing of the past. And do not breed an unsound mare. To-day every mare owner should understand that any old mare is not good enough to breed from. Many have fallen into the error of imagining that a mare that is no longer fit for use on the farm by reason of some disease or another is still fit to breed from. This absurdity has filled the country with unsound or badly formed horses and it is high time to eliminate all unsound stock from our breeding operations.

Then there is another point of importance at this time of the year, and that is to insist upon the stallion owner showing the registry certificate for his horse. If he has duly recorded his stallion he will have and can show a certificate signed by the president and secretary of the stud book association for the breed to which the horse is said to belong, and if he has purchased the horse from some man other than the original breeder or importer he should be able to show a duly signed certificate of transfer from the stud book secretary. There is a great deal of fraud in the standing of stallions for public service, and no man's word should be taken as regards breeding when it is possible to have him corroborate his statements by exhibition of the certificates we have mentioned. The time will come when the stallion owner will also have to show a certificate from a qualified veterinarian showing that the horse is sound.—A. S. Alexander in Farmers' Review.

Light Retards Fattening.

Some may be surprised to learn that animals lay on fat more rapidly in the dark than in the light, though on the whole, darkness is detrimental to the health of animals. When animals are kept in a dark room they use less oxygen and cast off less carbonic gas. Otherwise the carbon in form of fat is then left in the body to increase the amount of fat or the body, which is constantly being added to by the changing of carbohydrate food into fat. In some experiments made in Europe it was found that animals added about 25 per cent more fat when kept in the dark than in the light. The dark, however, stops the development of the skeleton, and the frame generally. The amount of protein consumed is not appreciably affected by darkness or light.

"Nerve" No Longer Has Exclusively Medical Significance.

Sir Frederick Treves, the celebrated English surgeon, asserted that the Japanese "have no nervous system" and that "nerves," as western nations know the term, is untranslatable in Japan. This invites a reference to the significant history of the words "nerve" and "nervous." A "nerve," by derivation from Greek and Latin and by earlier English use, is really a sinew. When Pope speaks of "nervous arms" he means "strong arms." "Brawny arms" of the village blacksmith; and this sense survives metaphorically in a "nervous style of writing," which is very different from a "neurotic" one. Shakespeare used "nervy" in the same sense. But now that "nerves" no longer mean sinews, "nervous" in the common use has almost reversed its old meaning. In Dr. Johnson's time "nervous" in the modern sense was still only "medical cant." Now men of "nerve" are very different from men of "nerves."

Pennsylvania Superstition.

If an infant is weak and does not grow satisfactorily it must be measured for the "undergrowth," according to a superstition in some Pennsylvania Dutch communities. A dowry doctor, usually a woman, will strip the child, measure it with a string the same color as its hair, say some "words," bury the string in a secret place and repeat the performance three times. The child will get well. There are dozens of children in one Pennsylvania Dutch community that were measured in this way and now pointed to as examples and proof of the efficacy of the method.

Advice From a Bishop.

A story, which may not be without its application locally in these days, was told at a meeting in England the other night at the expense of the bishop of Manchester. When the bishop was in Australia he was approached with the request to appoint a day of prayer and fasting in view of a prolonged drought. The bishop, who was a man of works as well as faith, replied: "If you prayed less and dammed more it would be a great deal better for you."

FOOD IN SERMONS.

Feed the Dominie Right and the Sermons are Brilliant.

A conscientious, hard-working and eminently successful clergyman writes: "I am glad to bear testimony to the pleasure and increased measure of efficiency and health that have come to me from adopting Grape-Nuts food as one of my articles of diet."

"For several years I was much distressed during the early part of each day by indigestion. My breakfast, usually consisting of oatmeal, milk and eggs, seemed to turn sour and failed to digest. After dinner the headache and other symptoms following the breakfast would wear away, only to return, however, next morning."

"Having heard of Grape-Nuts food, I finally concluded to give it a fair trial. I quit the use of oatmeal and eggs, and made my breakfasts of Grape-Nuts, cream, toast and Postum. The result was surprising in improved health and total absence of the distress that had, for so long a time, followed the morning meal. My digestion became once more satisfactory, the headaches ceased, and the old feeling of energy returned. Since that time, four years ago, I have always had Grape-Nuts food on my breakfast table."

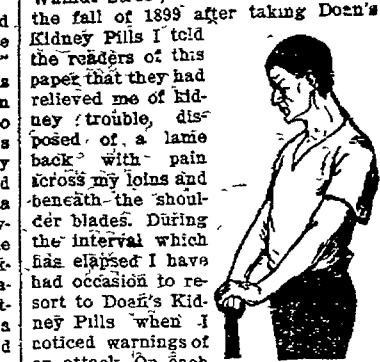

"I was delighted to find also, that whereas before I began to use Grape-Nuts food I was quite nervous and became easily wearied in the work of preparing sermons and in study, a marked improvement in this respect resulted from the change in my diet. I am convinced that Grape-Nuts food produced this result and helped me to a sturdy condition of mental and physical strength."

"I have known of several persons who were formerly troubled as I was, and who have been helped as I have been, by the use of Grape-Nuts food, on my recommendation, among whom may be mentioned the Rev. _____, now a missionary to China." Name given by Postum Company, Battle Creek, Mich.

ALL DONE OUT.

Kidney Pills I told the readers of this paper that they had relieved me of kidney trouble, disposed of a lame back with pain across my joints and beneath the shoulder blades. During the interval which has elapsed I have had occasion to resort to Doan's Kidney Pills when I noticed warnings of an attack. On each and every occasion the results obtained were just as satisfactory as when the pills were first brought to my notice. I just as emphatically endorse the preparation to-day as I did over two years ago."

MADE NEW STRENGTH

QUICKER THAN DOCTOR'S TONICS, SAYS TYPHOID PATIENT.

Young Lady Left by Fever in Very Weak State Ever Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with Gratifying Results.

After a fever, such as typhoid or scarlet, has run its full course the patient remains the recovery of strength. The tonic that will most rapidly increase the red corpuscles in the blood is the one that will most quickly restore color to the pale cheeks, strength to the weak muscles, and elasticity to the sluggish nerves. So far nothing has ever been produced superior to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for this purpose.

Miss Mulendorf had been ill with typhoid fever for fourteen weeks, she had a good physician who carried her safely through the critical stages. When he left, nothing remained to be done except to build up her strength, which was very feeble, and he gave her some prescriptions for that purpose. Here, however, she met with disappointment.

"I took the doctor's tonics," she says, "for two months after I had recovered from the fever, but they did not do me the good I looked for. My strength came back so slowly that I scarcely seemed to be making any progress at all. Just then I read in a book thrown in my yard some striking testimonials showing what wonderful blood-builders and strength-givers Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are. I got a box of them soon after that and after I had taken only about half of them I could see a very great improvement in my condition. When I had used up two boxes, I felt that I did not need any more medicine. I have remained strong ever since."

Miss E. B. Mulendorf lives at No. 1501 Park street, Quincy, Ill. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best remedy to use in all cases of weakness, from whatever cause the system may be run down. In cases of debility due to overwork they minister fresh strength and overcome nervous symptoms. They are a specific for anemia or bloodlessness. They are particularly helpful to girls on the verge of womanhood. They meet all the requirements of the period known as the change of life. They correct spry languor. They strengthen weak digestion and rouse up sluggish organs. No other tonic combines so many virtues. All druggists sell them.

"I was delighted to find also, that whereas before I began to use Grape-Nuts food I was quite nervous and became easily wearied in the work of preparing sermons and in study, a marked improvement in this respect resulted from the change in my diet. The Knowledge Was Mutual

The desire of some of the illiterate to claim acquaintanceship with noted men is illustrated by an amusing story told of James Whitcomb Riley. Down in a remote section of a southwestern state is a little town which no railroad approaches nearer than thirty-two miles. The news of the world is worn out and probably died by the time it reaches there, and the little town makes no news for itself. There has been, however, at least one event in the annals of the place. That was when a new bank was started. It was only a branch bank, but that did not dim its luster, or novelty in the eyes of the citizens.

Nervous Women

Their Sufferings Are Usually Due to Uterine Disorders Perhaps Unsuspected

A MEDICINE THAT CURES

Can we dispute the well-known fact that American women are nervous? How often do we hear the expression, "I am so nervous it seems as if I should fly," or "Don't speak to me." Little things annoy you and make you irritable; you can't sleep; you are unable to quiet and calmly perform your daily tasks or care for your children.

Nothing will relieve this distressing condition and prevent months of prostration and suffering so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Mrs. M. E. Shotwell, of 103 Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes: "I cannot express the wonderful relief I have experienced by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I suffered for a long time with nervous prostration, headache, loss of appetite, I could not sleep and would walk the floor almost every night."
