PRETTY PROGRAM FRIDAY EVENING

FINAL ENTERTAINMENT OF A BUSY WEEK.

Elghth Grade Exercises Attended By Large Audience.

More people than could be accomodated with seats were present at the eighth grade promotion program Friday evening in the Methodist church, the audience being the largest attending any of the functions of commencement week.

The class of twenty-one members gave a long and very interesting program, all filling their places with signal ability and receiving many compliments for individual as well as collective work. Every one did so well that special mention of any would be unfair, aside from the fact that the list would be too long, were each to be given the commendation deserved

The seventh and eighth grade chorus added much to the pleasure of the occasion by their very nicely rendered music and altegether the entertainment, was, as anticipated. one of the prettiest of the graduation season, decidedly a trodit to the teacher the class and the s book

> The total damage to the fram will come to $50,000. But there are other items in the list which bring the total cost of the disaster to a high figure.

The railroad men make the statement that personal injury claims and death claims will cost the road about $200,000 They also figure that the ad verse advertising to the road will amount to not less than $100,000.

In addition, there is the cost of the freight shed and its contents, which will add $5,000 to the damage The refunding of the fares charged on the train will add $2,000. These, with other things incidental to the wreck, will bring the total cost of the disaster up ro $400.000.

ADDS TO SPLENDOR

MEN OF BUSINESS RECOGNIZE ADVANTAGES OF ACETYLENE.

Famous Summer Hotel, the Grand Union of Saratoga, Has Installed This Best of All Artificial Lights— Increased Comfort and Health.

Saratoga, June 27.—The very name, 'Saratoga," brings to every mind health-giving springs, unsurpassed hotels and beautiful drives. It has been for many years the Mecca for all who admire nature, enjoy good living, and are searching for health, or are simply taking a va

The Grand Union, the largest summer hotel in the United States, set among green trees with its long wings enclosing a court with fountains and flowers, grass and trees, music and light, is throughout the season throng ed with guests. With the progressive spirit always shown by its management, the Grand Union has again add ed to its attractiveness by introduc ing acetylene gas to make still more brilliant the evening hours. The genial proprietors believe in furnishing their guests with the best of everything, and now, after investigating and finding that Artificial Sunlight can be had, they have installed a complete acetylene gas plant to produce it, and have connected upwards of six thousand acetylene burners in and about the house and grounds to this little gas plant."

Like many discoveries of recent years, which are coming into popular! tayor, acetylene, one of the most recent, is very samply produced. It is adapted for use wherever artificial light is, needed and the necessary apparatus can be understood and operated by anyone.

The generator in which Acetylene is-produced by the automatic contact of carbide and water might be termed a gas plant, as it performs all of the functions of a city gas plant. The acet-ylene generator can be purchased for a few dollars and in any size, from one adapted to furnish activlene to ten or a dozen burners for a cottage, up to the large but still simple machine such as is now furnishing Acetylene for six thousand burners in the Grand Union

Outside of large cities the use of Acetylene is quite common. The owner of the country home now demands running water, gas and other conveniences which a few years ago were considered as luxuries, and acciylenc gas has met his require ments, and gives him a better and cheaper light than is ordinarily fur nished in cities

It is well known that rooms lighted with Acetylene are more comfortable Lecause cooler, and more healthful because the nir is not viriated

This great stock medicine is a money saver for stock raisers. It is a medicine, not a cheap food or condition powder. Though put up in coarser form than Thedford's Black-Draught, renowned for the cure of the digestion troubles of persons, it has the same qualities of invigorating digestion, stirring up the torpid liver and loosening the constipated bowels for all stock and poultry. It is carefully pre-pared and its action is so healthful that stock grow and thrive with an occasional dose in their food. It cures hog cholers and makes hogs grow fat. It cures chicken cholern and roup and makes hens lay. It cures constipation, distemper and colds in horses, murrain in cattle, and makes a draught animal do more work for the food consumed. It gives animals and fowls of all kinds new life. Every farmer and raiser should certainly give it a trial.

It costs 25c. a can and saves ten times its price in profit.

CHAPTER XIII.

Joan Stands Within Her Danger. So soon as Werner von Orseln re turned to Castle Kernsberg with news of the forcing of the Alla and the overwhelming numbers of the Muscovite hordes, the sad-eyed Duchess of Hobenstein became once more Joan

The invading army must have numpered thirty thousand, at least. There were, all told, about two thousand in Kernsberg. Von Orseln, indeed, could easily have raised more. Nay, they would have come in of themselves by hundreds to fight for their Duchess, but the little town could not feed

When Werner von Orseln and Peter Balta met the invader at the fords of the Alla, Maurice von Lynar and Alt Pikker had remained with Joan, nom! mally to assist her dispositions, but zeally to form, a check upon the impetnosity of her temper.

Now You Orseln was back again.

The fords of the Alla were forced, and the fighting strength of Kernsberg united itself in the Eagle's Nest to make its final stand Aloft on the highest ramparts there was a terrace walk which the Sparhawk much affected, specially when he was on guard at night. It looked towands the east, and from it the first glimpse of the Courtlanders would be obtained.

Presently the chief captain's step was heard on the stone turnpike. "Ha. Sparhavk," he cried, "this is sold cheer' talked comfortably in hall, with a maker of mead at one's elbow?"

T wanted to speak with you on a matter we cannot ment on elsewhere, said Maurice von L) nar.

"How long can we hold out if they lorsiege us?"

Two months, certainly-with luck, "And what of the Duchess Joan?"

persisted the young man.
"Why, in the same time she will be dead or wed!" said Von Orsein, with Marrice von Lynar Jeaned forward wards his chief captain and whispered a few words in his ear.

"Ah!" he said, and nodded. Then, cafter a pause for thought, he added, That is none so ill thought on for a beardless younker! I will think it over, sleep on it, and tell you my opin Non to-morrow! At any rate," the chief captain growled to himself, "you have a pretty part set for me. I may forthwith order my shroud. I shall mever be able to face my lady again!

The Duchess Joan was in high spirits. It had been judged necessary, consultation with her chief officers, liberty of Joan of Hohenstein."

them. Joan and her chief captain rode on ahead, Von Orseln glancing keenly about him, and Joan riding free and careless, as in old days when she overpassed the hills to drive a prey from the lands of her father's enemies.

It was grey morning when they ame to a goatherd's hut at the top of the green valley. Already they had passed the bounds of Hohenstein by half a dozen miles. The goather? had led his light-skipping train to the hills for the day, and the rude and chaotic remains of his breaklast were still on the table. Boris and Jorian cleared these away, and, with the trained alacrity of seasoned men at arms, they placed before the party a breakfast prepared with speed out of which they had brought with them and those things which they had found to their hand it foraging in the cottage of the goatherd-to-wit, sliced neats tongue dried in the smoke, bread of fine wheat which Jerian had carried all the way in a net at his saidle bow. Boris had charge of the wine skins, and upon a shelf above the door they found a great butter pot full of freshly made curfied goats very delicious both to tasts and

Of these things they ate and drank largely, Joan and You Orseln being to-gether at the upper end of the table Boris and Jorian had to alt with them, though much against their wills, being (spite of their sweethearts) more accustomed to the company of honest men at arms than to the practice of dainty outling in ladies society boon Ican of the Sward Hand tore to her feet, for the exmen at arms had few words to say.

"Let us now mount and gide home ward," she said, There are no enemy to be found on this northerly road No shall be more fortunate upon another occasion."

Then Werner von Graein reried himself for a buttle more secrets than any he had ever fought at the olbow of Henry the Lion of Holica

"My lady," be said standing up and hera eleven men ako lovo you far almose their lives, of whom I am the Two others also there are, who, though not of our nation, are in simple caracterists, not necessary. You back We have come out, not to must take ten good men and ride wake a reconnaissance, but to put north, far north, even to the edges of your Grace in a place of safety fill the storm blows over."

The Duchess had slowly risen to with a few trusts fellows to her feet with her hand on the sword her, she will be safe till the which swung at her belt.

"You have sudden'y gone mad, Wer-"But how," said Von Orsein, medi- ner!" she said, 'let us have no more the maiden Castle, the Eagle's Nest of Hohenstein, into the hands of our ene-

'Nay," said Von Orseln, looking steadily upon the ground, "that will we not do. Kernsberg is in good hands and will aght bravely. But we cannot hold out with our few folk and scanty provender against the leaguer o thing thousand. Nevertheless we will not permit you to sacrifice yourself for our sakes or for the sake-of the women and children of the city."

Joan drew her sword.
'Werner von Orsels, will vou obey me, or must I slay you with my hand?" she cried.

The chief captain yet further bowed his head and abased his eyes. "We have thought also of this," he made answer. "Me you may kill, but those that are with me will defend themselves, though they will not strike one they love more than their lives But man by man we have sworn to do this thing. At all hazards you must abide in our hands till she danger is overpast. For me (this be added in a deeper tone), I am your immediate officer. There is none to come between us. It is your right to slay me if you will. Mine is the responsibility for this deed, though the design was not mine. Here is my sword. Slay your chief captain with it if you will. He has faithfully served your house for five-and-thirty years. The perhaps time he rested BOW."

And with these words Werner von Orseln took his sword by the point and offered the hilt to his mistress. Joan of the Sword Hanc shook with mingled passion and heiplessness, and her eyes were dark and troubled. "Put up your blade," she said, striking the hiit with her hand: "if you have not deserved death, no more have I deserved this: But you said that the design was not yours. Who, then, has dared to plot against the Werner looked up hopefully. He thought he had pleaded his cause well. "Traitor! supplanter:" cried Joan indignantly; "this Dane in my place!

Hurrah for the Fourth

Hurrah for the Fourth of July! With its deafening racket and noise; When mothers instinctively sigh. For the safety of reckless small boys When Johnny awakes with a yell, And drags forth his cast-iron gun, Whose boomings uproariously tell He is wading knee-deep in the fun.

Hurrah for the Fourth of July. And the rattle of fife and of drum! When we know from small Willie's sad cry, He is minus a finger or thumb; When mothers, behind-darkened doors, Keep cotton plugged into their ears To shut out the thunderous roars And are filled with forebodings and fears.

Hurrah for the Fourth of July! When the surgeons are all feeling gay, And with lottons and arnica try To respond to the calls of the day. When dynamite crackers get in And furnish their quota of harm. And we learn in the murderous din That Tommy is minus an arm:

Hurrah for the Fourth of July! When Johnny to add to the fun, And with foolish desire to die, Looks into the mouth of his gun. Oh, well that the funeral man Has methods which he can emply And in some sort of decency can Straighten out what is left of the boy!

Burrah for the Fourth of July! The glad day is now drawing near; There's a lurid, red glare in the sky, The booming we faintly can hear. Prepare for the dangers that wait, For the noise we will hear by and by, For the racket the kids will create-Hurran for the Fourth of July!

Some Famous Sayings

WASHINGTON.

(In his address to the Governors of the States, June 8, 1783)

There are four things which I hum bly conceive are essential to the wellbeing, I may even venture to say to the existence of the United States, as

First, an indissoluble union of the stitles under one federal head. Secondly, a sacred regard to public

Thirdly the adoption of a proper peace establishment, and,

Pourfuly, the prevalence of that pa cific and friendly disposition among the people of the United States which will induce them to forget their lo cal prejudices and policies, to make I shose mutual concessions which are "Smokeless poweer" is a class requisite to the general prosperity, terest of the community.

Extract From Letters Written by Famous Statesman.

The basis of our government being the opinion of the people, the very first object should be to keep that right, and were it left to me to decide whether we should have a government without newspapers, or newspapers without a government, I should not hesitate a moment to prefer the latter. But I should mean that every man should receive those papers and be capable of reading them.-In a letter to Edward Carrington, dated Paris, Jan. 16, 1727.

I am for a government, vigorously frugal and simple, applying all the possible savings of the public revenue to the discharge of the national debt: and not for a multiplication of officers and salaries merely to make pardisans, and for increasing by every device, the public debt. on principle of its being a public blessing I am for free commerce with all nations; political connections with none, and little or no diplomatic establishment. -To Elbridge Gerry, Jan. 28, 1799. of the good times possible on this day In Manila all the business houses are draped with starry bunting and the Stars and Stripes, and even the boats in the harbor are decked with "Old Glory." Towering arches of bamboo, are erected in the streets and strung with flags and portraits of our national heroes. In the smaller Philippine towns, where flags cannot be had, these arches are often made of cotton cloth and decorated with wreaths and suitable inscript ons .-never to suffer Europe to meddle with Woman's Home Companion.

STONE IN PERPETUAL MOTION.

What Would Happen to Projectile. Dropped Through the Earth.

Most of us have probably-speculated, at one time or another, what would happen if a hole were bored right through the earth and one were to drop a stone into it, and F. R A. S. now eves his views on this puzzling question, "The stone," he says, "would fall with increasing speed to the center of the earth, where it would have attained a speed of nearly 300 miles a minute. Its momentum would carry it at a constantly reducing speed through the remaining half of its journey until by the time it appeared at the antipodean end of the hole it would have come to a standstill. It would then begin to drop again, and would per-torm exactly the same journey on its return to the starting point. Thus it would continue to travel backward and forward from one end or the earth to the other practically forever."-Lon. don Tit-Bits
