SAFE BLOWERS IN NORTHVILLE

POST OFFICE ENTERED AND SAFE
DYNAMITED.

Job Done in Small Hours of Wednesday Morning.

Much excitement was rife in our village when it was learned that the post office had been entered by burglars and the safe blown up, in the small hours of Wednesday morning. The explosion was heard by several persons at 2:30 o'clock, and among them Nightwatchman Blackburn, who was over on Main street a block away. He at once hastened in the direction of the noise, and found two men at the post office who held him off with a revolver from approaching near enough to identify them. While he was gone to summon Marshal Taft by phone, the burglars disappeared, probably hearing the night zone in the central office near by. The post office safe was blown open, but the operators only succeeded in getting at the outer compartments, which makes the job look amateurish. The money, not a large amount, and $500 worth of stamps were in the inner part.

The stove near the safe was considerably wrecked and quite an amount of glass in the boxes broken by the force of the explosion. The building was entered by forcing the lock of the front door. A hammer, sledge and other tools were found, but there is no clue to the thieves as yet.

Monday night several stores in Farmington were broken into, but whether by the same gang or not is merely conjecture. The damage to the post office building was about $15 or $20. There was a burglar insurance on the safe.

WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

Ideal Weather and Big crowd for Sunday School Picnic.

The union Sunday school excursion and picnic to Belle Isle Tuesday was a pronounced success from all points of view. To begin with, the weather department furnished its very best and the day was perfect, leaving nothing to be desired in that line. Of course there was a crowd, but that was what was wanted and every body was good natured and consequently happy. The 35 tickets sold here probably represented at least 400 persons, including the small people who didn't have to have tickets and it took a special train of eight coaches to convey the merry crowd to Detroit. There were no mishaps to mar the day and altogether it was one of the most successful Sunday school outings as well as one of the largest excursions that ever started from Northville.

The vault, which is severely simple and massive in outline, was erected by Mr. Neal as a memorial to his wife, who died in March. It is of cut Berea limestone with interior finishing of shaded white marble, the floor being tiled in white and black marble. The bronze gate at the entrance holds within its graceful tracery the name "Jennie," engraved in facsimile from Mrs. Neal's own signature, with a bronze wreath surrounding it. The tomb occupies a commanding site in the cemetery, near the entrance drive, and when the ornamentation of the lot with grass, flowers and shrubbery shall have been completed it will be indeed a beautiful resting place for all that is mortal of the loved and lost. History of Northville Presbyterian Church.

An Interesting Sketch Compiled by the Pastor,
Rev. W. S. Jerome.

Read at Its Seventy-Fifth Anniversary---Only
20 Pastors in All that Time.

At the time of the celebration of the 75th anniversary of the Northville Presbyterian church, last November, it was intended to immediately publish, by request of a number of our prominent people, the historical sketch given at the meeting, November 25, 1904, by the pastor, Rev. Wm S. Jerome. Circumstances, however, prevented doing so until now, and we are pleased to give the first installment this week.

The first Presbyterian Church of Northville, Wayne County, Michigan, was organized Nov. 28, 1829 as the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth. The name was changed to Northville March 4, 1859.

The anniversary was on Sunday, Nov. 27. Mr. Jerome giving the historical sermon in the morning. Rev. W. T. Jackson of Detroit preached in the afternoon. In the evening addresses were made by the Baptist and Methodist pastors of the village. Letters were read from absent friends, and papers and addresses were given by several members of the church. Some of these are given in this pamphlet.

THE DAYS OF OLD

By Rev. Wm S. Jerome

Remember the days of old,
Consider the years of many generations.

This is something we do not often stop to do in this busy age. We are in too great a hurry to think much about what is past, especially if it be long past. Yet our security for the present and our hope for the future depend largely upon our remembrance of the past. The story of the past is history, and history, as has been said, is God teaching by example. The present springs from the past and can only be understood and appreciated when taken in connection with what preceded it and prepared for it. The greater our progress, the higher our civilization, the more need of knowing how we came to the position which we occupy. It was well for the Hebrew people in the days of Moses, to "remember the days of old," much more is it needful for us, in this twentieth century, to keep in mind our past history and to consider its lessons. To-day we meet to consider one of the events of the past, the organization of this church. Seventy-five years ago the pioneers of Oakland and Wayne counties organized the church which continues to this day.

At this early time Michigan was simply a territory. The governor was that stern old hero and patriot, Gen. Lewis Cass. It was not until 1837, nine years later, that it became a state being the thirteenth received into the national sisterhood.

The first settlers in Oakland county arrived about 1818, and from that time on the tide of immigration swelled with every passing year. The usual route of the immigrants was by schooner, or the steamer "Walk-in-the-Water," from Buffalo to Detroit. From Detroit, then a small village they found their way as best they could through the forests to their future homes. There were no roads, and marked trees were the only sign posts. At this time there were but two or three buildings on Woodward avenue, Detroit, above Jefferson avenue. Where the old Detroit postoffice now stands was a corn field. The forest was cut back about half a mile from the river, and in the woods the wolves held their nightly jubilee.

These were the days of small things, of daily toil and manifold privations. As an Oakland county man said--these were times that tried men's souls and their stomachs also. The man who cleared the court house lot in Pontiac received 50 cents a day for his work. He and others worked for weeks upon mush and milk. A pound of tea or ten pounds of sugar would last a year, or was made to do so. The first houses were of logs with often only a blanket for a door. It was in such a house that this church was organized, and in such its members lived for many years.

Gen. Cass was right when he said in the United States Senate, that it required more true courage to settle and improve a frontier country than it does to face an enemy on the field of battle. Every new country has its battles of the wilderness.

On April 18, 1826 the families of Joseph Yerkes, Wm. Yerkes and Thomas Pinkerton, sixteen persons in all, left Seneca county, New York, on their journey to Michigan. The trip to Buffalo was made in wagons, taking four days. Then a sailing vessel carried them to Detroit, ten days being required for the voyage. A three days' drive through the woods finally brought them to their new home, where they arrived on May 14.

A few facts will give an idea of the conditions of those early days. The first postoffice was located on the farm now occupied by Daniel Rogers. John Gould was postmaster. After him came Dr. Emery. At this time the early receipts of the office were about $15. The mail was carried from Pontiac by way of Farmington, on a pony ridden by a small boy and making the trip once a week. The postage on an ordinary letter was 25 cents, to be paid by the person receiving it.

The first frame dwelling house in Northville was built by William Dunlap in the fall of 1831, on the corner of Center and Randolph streets. The next house was built by J. M. Mead on the corner of Main and Center streets.

The first school was taught by Elizabeth Yerkes in a log hut on Wm (Continued on Page 5)

STILL ANOTHER

Hold-up Last Night On Main Street.

Robbery has been rife in Northville this week. Last night soon after midnight Ben Volgt started to go out in the country to make early connections with a threshing job and as he was going west on Main street, near the Miller market two men jumped from the alley and with a revolver as a persuader compelled him to submit to a search. Luckily they got nothing, as he had taken the precaution to conceal his money in his hat before starting on his lonely walk. When he reached the school yard, he saw two more men, so went back and noticed Marshal Taft, who at once started out with him. After quietly watching for a while they located two men on the M. L. train, and immediately opened fire on them to the extent of four shots, but with no apparent effect, as the fellows succeeded in escaping. Two strangers who were seen here this morning are being subjected to close watching, but probably are not the guilty parties, or they would not have remained here after the hold-up.

He says it was the most remarkable sight he ever witnessed.--Rochester Era.

Some Other Way.

The secretary of the democratic state central committee is quite persuaded that W. N. Ferris, democratic candidate of last year, would be the most desirable democratic candidate for governor next year. That may be true, but the peculiar campaign made in behalf of W. N. Ferris last year cannot be repeated in Michigan next year. It cannot be stated again that Fred M. Warner is controlled by a few politicians or any number of politicians, or that he would have no will of his own and would be subject to railroad dictation. Many republicans were persuaded to vote against Mr. Warner last November because of the weak and incompetent individual the republican candidate was pictured to be by the supporters of W. N. Ferris. The people of Michigan now believe Governor Warner to be a straight-forward, honest man, with a will of his own, and intelligent experience with which to direct it. There are probably not one hundred people in the entire state who now believe one-half of the statements made throughout the campaign of last year in opposition to Mr. Warner. Mr. Ferris will have to get voters in Michigan next year against Governor Warner because of his own merits and the merits of the party he will represent, and not because of many of them last November.

THE RICH AND THE POOR NEED PE-RU-NA.

Mr. Geo. A. Hughes.

"Pe-ru-na Is the Medicine for the Poor Man,"—Geo. A. Hughes.

CATARRH assumes different phases in different seasons of the year. In the early summer systemic catarrh is most prevalent. That tired, worn-out feeling in nine cases out of ten is due to a catarrhal condition of the mucous membranes.

Mr. Geo. A. Hughes, 808 Mass. Ave., Indianapolis, Ind., writes: "Peruna has done me more good than anything I have ever taken. I am forty-five years old now, and feel as good as I did at twenty. I was very thin and run down, but Peruna acted just right in my case. I am a carpenter and sometimes need a tonic. Peruna is the medicine for a poor man."—Geo. A. Hughes.

A Congressman Uses Pe-ru-na in His Family.

Hon. Thos. J. Henderson, Member of Congress from Illinois, and Lieutenant in the Union Army for eight years, writes from the Lemon building, Washington, D. C., as follows:

"Peruna has been used in my family with the very best results and I take pleasure in recommending your valuable remedy to my friends as a tonic and an effective cure for catarrh."—Thos. J. Henderson.

Peruna cleanses the mucous membrane and cures the catarrh wherever located.

Many Suffer With Catarrh and Don't Know It.

The Phase of Catarrh Most Prevalent in Summer is a Run Down, Worn Out Condition Known as Systemic Catarrh.

There are no remedies for catarrh just as good as Peruna. Accept no substitutes.

Wine of Cardui Cured Her.

218 South Prior Street,
ATLANTA, GA., March 21, 1903.

I suffered for four months with extreme nervousness and lassitude. I had a sinking feeling in my stomach which no medicine seemed to relieve, and losing my appetite I became weak and lost my vitality. In three weeks I lost fourteen pounds of flesh and felt that I must find speedy relief to regain my health. Having heard of Wine of Cardui, I sent for a bottle and was certainly very pleased with the results. Within three days my appetite returned and my stomach troubled me no more. I could digest my food without difficulty and the nervousness gradually diminished. Nature performed her functions without difficulty and I am once more a happy and well woman.

HISTORY OF NORTHVILLE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Barrow's farm. There were ten scholars. This was in the summer of 1827. About 1829 a school house was built on the corner now occupied by Mr. Eatherly, and in this the infant church often met for worship. The next school house was the stone building on Atwater street, which was recently torn down. This also was used for church services, before the building of a house of worship. Rev. Jas. Dubuar, in a sermon preached on January 24, 1875, gave a sketch of the history of this church, which contains many interesting facts. He said:

"The history of this church with respect to its origin, is intimately associated with that of the Second Presbyterian Church of Oakland County, or what is commonly called the Farmington Church. The Presbyterians and Congregationalists who settled, as early as 1825, in the southern portion of Oakland county, and perhaps a family or two in the north-west part of Wayne county, united in a church organization, in the fall of 1825. Its members living remote from one another were accustomed to meet for public worship, for several years, at two different points, the minister or missionary supplying them dividing his labors between the two places. One of these preaching stations, was in the territory now within the bounds of this church. As the population of the region embraced in the towns of Novi and Plymouth was rapidly increasing, a number of members of the Farmington Church living in those towns thought that the cause of Christ would be promoted, and at the same time their own convenience consulted, by the organization of another Presbyterian church."

The following is the original record of the founding of the church. "Nov. 28, 1829. 'Agreeable to notice, the members of the Second Presbyterian Church of Oakland County, or Farmington Church, held a meeting at the house of Joseph Yerkes, within the bounds of said church, for the purpose of organizing a new church by dividing the Farmington Church."

"Present, Rev. Erie Prince, moderator, Sein A. L. Warner and E. W. Ingersoll, elders. "Opened with prayer. "The following persons, Joseph Yerkes, Erastus Ingersoll, James Purdy, Hiram S. Fuller, John Yerkes, Elizabeth Purdy, Caroline Prince and Mary Yerkes, requested letters of dismission and recommendation for the purpose of forming a new church. The request was granted, and the clerk was directed to give the letter in joint form. And after the above named persons received the above named letter, they voluntarily organized themselves into a church by the name of the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth. The Rev. Erie Prince to superintend."

The Confession of Faith and Covenant recommended by the Presbytery of Geneva, New York, was adopted. James Purdy and Hiram S. Fuller were elected elders, and James Purdy deacon. The first meeting of the session was at once held, and Henry Barlow and wife, Grace Barlow, were received by letter, and Mr. Barlow at once elected an elder and clerk of session. Joseph Yerkes was chosen treasurer, and the infant church had begun its career. The next day, Sunday, November 29, the Lord's Supper was observed by the church for the first time.

"But six families were represented in the first members of the church, and not more than ten families considered themselves as belonging to the congregation. There were probably living in the territory now comprised in the towns of Novi and Plymouth (Northville) 30 families, embracing about 150 people. There was then no other regular church organization in these two towns."

The Baptist church in this village was organized in 1833, the Methodist church in 1834, though they held meetings as early as 1829. So far as I have been able to ascertain, this was the ninth Presbyterian church organized in Michigan. The First Church, Detroit, was organized in 1816, as the First Protestant Society, but did not become a fully organized Presbyterian church till later. Monroe was next in January 1829, then Pontiac, February, 1824, Farmington (now extinct) 1825, Ann Arbor, August, 1826, Tecumseh, 1828 and Ypsilanti, July 1829. There was also a church at Dixboro, organized at an early day. This and the Farmington church are now extinct. Monroe and Tecumseh belong to another Presbytery. The Northville church now ranks fifth on the roll of the Presbytery of Detroit, and seventh in the Synod.

The first meeting to organize a society and elect trustees was held in the school house on Atwater street on February 17, 1829. At that meeting a constitution was adopted, the first article of which was as follows:

"This society shall forever be known by the name and title of the First Presbyterian Society of Plymouth, the object of which shall be to aid and support the gospel and its ordinances as summed up in the Directory of the Presbyterian Church in the United States."

The first trustees elected were Hiram S. Fuller, Hiram S. Fuller, S. Bradley, Hiram Yerkes and Wm. Dunlap.

They were at once authorized to erect a church building, at the village of Northville, the site of the house to be 4 by 20 feet and to cost about $300, including a fence for the lot.

On Feb. 17 they received the gift of the present site from D. L. Cadz, and in November, 1830, the church entered their own house, which cost $310. This was a wooden building and a new standing on Oak street being used as a dwelling house.

At the annual meeting of the society, held on Jan. 6, 1831, it was unanimously resolved to build a new house of worship. In six weeks the needed funds had been contributed and in 1830 the present house was dedicated. Rev. John C. Lord, D. D., of Buffalo, N. Y., preaching the sermon. It cost about $3000.

In 1872 it was voted to repair and remodel the church, and on Oct. 31 of that year it was rededicated, Rev. Wm. Hogarth, D. D., of Detroit, preaching in the morning and Rev. A. T. Pierson, D. D., of Detroit, in the evening.

In 1840 the church was called upon to meet the questions which had caused the disruption of the Presbyterian Church in 1838. The Presbytery of Detroit with which the church was connected had approved the course of its commissioners in joining the New School body. The Michigan churches were largely in sympathy with the New School movement. But this church voted to unite with the Old School branch, and until the reunion in 1870 it continued in that relation. This action was not taken without opposition, and two protests were presented, signed by Jesse Cram and Jeremiah Phillips and Harvey S. Bradley. Twelve members finally withdrew and organized a New School church, and built the house now occupied by the Ladies' Library. Of this church, Rev. Sylvester Cochran was the first and only pastor. The society connected with the church was organized Jan. 21, 1845, and held its last meeting Jan. 16, 1849. The first trustees were Harvey S. Bradley, Daniel Pomeroy and Aaron Norris. Other members were Jesse Cram, Amos Mead, Geo. H. Wilcox, Samuel Clark, Stephen Robson, Horace Bradley, David Clarkson, Henry P. Bradley, Hezekiah B. Clark, James T. Chittenden, Edwin H. Jones, Susannah Wilson, Alonzo Plimstead, Jeremiah H. Phillips, Margaret Wm. and Samuel Williams.

So far as known, all afterwards returned to the old church, except a few, who joined the Congregational Church at Salem. Harvey S. Bradley was an elder in this church for many years until his death.

During its 75 years of existence the church has had 20 pastors and supplies. For eight years the infant church united with the Farmington Church in the support of the pastor, but in 1837 it took the forward step of securing a pastor of its own. Rev. E. B. Emerson was the first to thus serve the church. His salary was $380. Of all those who have ministered to the church Rev. Jas. Dubuar had the longest pastorate, serving at two different times, 20 years in all.

Of former pastors, the oldest living is Rev. A. J. Buell, who resides in Oakland, California. He was pastor from 1869 to 1871.

In 1842 the first offering was made for foreign missions.

I am unable to learn the date of the organization of the Sunday School. It was evidently in existence from a very early day, and Hiram S. Fuller was the first superintendent, so far as known.

The church has enjoyed several seasons of revival. The first occurred in 1839, Rev. Wm. Parker being the evangelist. Other large additions were made during the years 1857 and 1858, when Mr. Dubuar was pastor, and also during the pastorates of Rev. Wm. T. Jacques and Rev. J. M. Belding.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the church was organized April 6, 1873.

Among the influences that have made this church is that of Christian ancestry. The first settlers in this region were men of Christian character, and they put an impress upon the new community which it has never wholly lost. Nor must the good women be forgotten. "The man may build the house, but the woman makes the home. All that the fathers endured in those pioneer days the women also endured, and perhaps, as was said of the Puritan mothers, they had a harder time, for they had to endure the Puritan fathers also!"

And the good women who helped to make the home, helped to make the church. By diligence in the household, by careful training of the young, by helping in every good work, the women have helped to build their church. The later developments of women's work are not known to the pioneers, but without societies or organizations they did diligently and lovingly their duty.

The elders, the deacons and the trustees have helped to build this church. The roll of stalwart men who have served as officers of the church or society is a long and honorable one. The names of Yerkes and Bradley, of Griswold and Johnson, of Covert and Swift and many others, will long be remembered for their faithful and varied service. This church has always been largely represented in the prominent families of the community and has been favored with the services of many good and faithful men. The Sunday School superintendents, the officers and teachers, have helped to build this church. The school has always been the nursery of the church, and with other organizations for the young has contributed its full share to its strengthening and upbuilding.

Owing to the fact that one man cannot possibly be everywhere at the same time, Northville's need of a police force is now more than ever apparent.

Northville was very quiet Tuesday on account of such a large proportion of the population attending the union Sunday School picnic excursion to Detroit and Belle Isle.

Governor Warner's private secretary, Major Loomis, is ill with typhoid fever at his home in London and at the governor's request Mr. Seal, who has been acting as assistant secretary, is taking Mr. Loomis' place in the executive office.

A number of the boys around town Saturday night were amusing themselves by taking electric shocks from one of the poles on Main street near the Star laundry. One or two small punctures asserted that they were knocked over by the strength of the "treatment."

A merry party of about twenty Northville girls drove out to Miss Oril Chapman's home north of town Saturday afternoon to attend a surprise party given by Mrs. Chapman for Miss Florence Curtiss, who was visiting there. The occasion proved a very delightful one for all.

The Northville Woman's club calendars for 1905-6 have just been issued by the Record Printery and are now in the hands of the chairman of the program committee, Mrs. Parsons, for distribution. The little books are very artistic and pretty, and as appropriate as possible to the club topic for the year—Japan—being printed on soft Japanese paper with heavy covers to correspond.

A lady who formerly lived in Northville and who is now visiting here, has evolved the following, suggested by some of the names familiar and unfamiliar to her in this vicinity: "A man May Neat at the shrine of beauty and yet be a Freeman. You can Cook a Had-dock but Hammond eggs are a Goodell better. Some cannot Cork a jug with a Pickell, but McKahan Barley is good but we Lyke corn with a White Cobb. We are bought with a Price no matter what the Parsons say. The rain made the Brooks overflow their Banks and the Waters came down in Torrance. Any one Benton having Holmes can secure a few fields in they Wright soon."

Dear Gus—I have solved the mother-in-law problem, just give her regularly Holsther's Rocky Mountain Tea. It will make her healthy, happy and docile as a lamb. 75 cents, Tea or Tablets.

In spite of the heavy shower during the afternoon, the W. R. C. picnic at the pleasant home of Mrs. W. H. Ambler Friday was one of those extremely delightful gatherings for which the Corps is so justly famous. Although most of the afternoon had to be spent indoors or on the spacious porches, flitch, fun and visiting made the time pass enjoyably. Tables had been arranged on the lawn, and after the rain was over, a liberal supply of canvas and carpeting was produced and the jolly crowd of over thirty ladies sat down to a supper the elegance and variety of which defies description.
