Suburban News.

An Oxford township girl of 23 has nusked over 500 bushels of corn this fall. She certainly must be a husky young lady.

An Ecorse man fell forty feet the other day and still lives. He didn't fall on his own feet, either, but on one arm, which was considerably smashed.

Among the letters advertised at the Birmingham postoffice last week was one for Fred Been. It is no doubt "uncalled for," but we really must wonder if Fred is not a has-been. If not, it's queer where Fred has Been Africadote of Wellington.

At what time-the ancient rule that 'no children should be placed in the school whose parents have any estate in land to leave them, but only the children of poor men that want means to bring them up," was first departed from, is apparently not known; certainly this rule has been a dead letter for a very long period.

As boys on the Foundation, or Gown-boys, were educated, lodged, boarded and, partially clothed free of charge, besides receiving scholarships to the universities on leaving, nominations were paturally in great demand.

An anecdote is, indeed, told-that the Duke of Wellington when Prime Min ster complained that he had more requests for a nomination to Charterhouse school than for any of the civil and military appointments within his Control. Charterhouse school can certainly claim to have trained-and sent out a goodly number of scholars who have afterward made their mark in the world In the field of literature, more particularly Cold Carthus ans have disunguished themselves.
