FATAL ACCIDENT

TUESDAY NIGHT

CLIFFORD MANGLED BY D. U. R. CAR.

Lying on Track in Supposed Intoxicated Condition.

Clifford, a farm-laborer formerly of the Henry German east of town, was instantly killed Tuesday evening by the east-bound car between Farmington and Penceville. The unfortunate was supposed to have fallen or been on the track while intoxicated. He was dragged about 100 feet before the car could be stopped, nearly every bone in the body broken and the head completely cut in two. The body taken to Harry Weaver's undertaking rooms to be prepared for burial and to await the results of the coroner's inquest. Relatives who might wish to attend to his burial should do so by Friday.

Village Election

The annual village election is near at hand and the people should begin to think about who they will have or perhaps who they can get would be more proper—to govern the affairs of the village for another year.

Under the present administration the village has been carefully managed and it is to be hoped the same men can be induced to again do so. Mr. Harmon has made an excellent record and has had valuable assistants in Aldermen Richardson, Mills and Cattermole whose terms now expire.

With T. E. Murdoch as clerk and Mr. Babbitt as treasurer and Mr. Gurr as assessor, completing the list, the affairs of the village will be in safe hands if all are re-nominated. Election occurs March 17.

Auction Sale.

On Saturday, February 24, George Baker will have a sale of horses, cows, hogs, poultry, farm and city furniture, corn, oats and hay and numerous other things on the premises on a piece of town. The sale is to commence at one o'clock sharp, with John F. H. as auctioneer. Apply to Agents.

HARVARD IS IN A POSITION TO KNOW.

He withdraws from football because the game is too rough.

Township Politics.

The political situation of the township seems to indicate at present that there will be but one candidate in the field for supervisor on the democratic ticket, the present incumbent, C. A. Sessions. The party may put up a candidate for the township, but no names have yet been given out in that connection.

On the republican side Martin Sloan has been mentioned as a possible candidate for supervisor and W. T. Gurr is said to be an aspirant for the nomination.

For the township clerk the names of W. P. Johnson and S. W. Knapp have been suggested, and for clerk or Frank Carothers will probably have no opposition.

The Alma Mineral Springs.

Those afflicted with diseases of the stomach, kidneys, bladder, rheumatism, gout, skin, liver and nervous system will find the waters of the Alma Springs a sure cure. The springs are located on the road between Detroit, Toledo and Pontiac and are open to the public. Apply to Agents.

Baptist Church Notes.

(By a Member)

It is very pleasing to note that 28 were present at the Juniors' meeting Sunday afternoon.

The subject of the sermon Sunday morning will be "Saved to Serve," and in the evening the pastor will give the twelfth in his series of sermons on the Lord's prayer.

Mr. Dimmock has organized a Bible study class for the benefit of the young converts, meetings to be held in the church parlors on Tuesday evening of each week. There was an attendance of 23 at the first meeting, although the evening was very stormy. All who wish to come are cordially invited to attend these meetings.

Presbyterian Church Notes.

(By the Pastor)

The subject of the Sunday evening sermon will be "Judges the Train." The communion next Sunday morning will answer the question "Are Christ's teachings to be taken literally?"

The pastor preached in Westchester church Detroit last Sunday morning, Rev. H. W. Cary supplying the pulpit here.

The treasurer of the Ladies Missionary Society wishes to announce that the books will close for the Missionary year early in March. A few ladies are in arrears with their dues and if these will kindly communicate with the treasurer before March 1st it will save her the trouble of sending "reminders." She wishes to acknowledge with gratitude the thoughtfulness and promptness of the many who have made her work so delightful.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary society was held at the home of Mrs. Jas. Debuar on Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Wheeler, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Chas. Debuar and Mrs. Jerome were re-elected as president, vice president, secretary and treasurer respectively. Mrs. Gladstone was elected literature secretary in place of Mrs. S. W. Knapp who resigned. The treasurer reported 70 contributors, with total receipts for the ten months of $132.00.

Every lady in the church and congregation will soon receive an invitation for the new year's work in the shape of a little package of envelopes. Any voluntary offering from one cent per week (or five cents per month) will make one a member and will be thankfully received. In union there is strength. Let all come up to the help of the Lord against the mighty. The next meeting (the last of the fiscal year) will be held at Mrs. T. G. Richardson's on Tuesday March 13th. Tea will be served by the Northside ladies.

Methodist Church Notes.

(By the Pastor)

Some of our friends who have been quite ill are now said to be recovering. For this we are thankful.

Public worship next Sunday as usual. Subject for the evening "The Laymen's Place in the Work of the Church."

The Ladies' Aid which met at Mrs. W. H. Hutton's last Tuesday afternoon was largely attended and considerable important business was transacted.

We were pleased to welcome into church fellowship by church letter last Sunday morning Mr. and Mrs. A. Balden. We hope that this union formed will be mutually pleasant and helpful.

We spent a very pleasant evening last Friday with our former friends at Plymouth. The have just completed a very commodious and up-to-date new parsonage and the pastor is now settled there.

The Sunday school scholars of Mrs. Cobb's class presented to the church last Sabbath a large and beautiful Margaretta plant in full bloom. We appreciate their kindness and are gratified to notice the interest thus shown towards the church. May it continue to grow as the years roll on and through the instruction there given we hope that they may develop into efficient Christian characters.

Suburban News.

Plymouth local talent has a play on the boards entitled "All Tangled Up." Some Plymouth people have often been that way when they weren't in a play.

Indoor ball is the popular sport among athletic Pontiacers these days. There are some athletic fathers of families, however, who can give them pointers on indoor baseball any time.

A young Russian "just over" was sent to Carleton last week by mistake, instead of to Carleton where he was ticketed. The Carleton with an "e" wasn't rushing enough so he was put back on the train and sent to the other place.

A Farmington youngster has started a third "newspaper" in that town. It is named the "Farmington Press" but that's in the press there is to it, the printing being done with a rubber stamp. Most of the news items are obtained by the rubber stamp also.

Pontiac high school pupils held a social last week at which prizes were given for the most skillful manipulations of chewing gum into the form of animals. The prizes must have had quite a month's time when they came to blows the winning "lud," but they were just stuck on the job.

A perambulating corn doctor who took in Flat Rock in his itinerary also took in a local hotel keeper to the amount of several day's board for which he couldn't foot the bill. The hotel man objected to furnishing the corn man with corned beef and things for nothing and arranged with the proper authorities to have his guest boarded for a while at the H. of C., where the Chiropodist will have to toe the mark.

New Magazine Fiction

The change of short stories in the magazines is so overwhelming, that it is usually quite useless to attempt to point to the merit of any particular story. But in the February number of the Cosmopolitan Magazine there is a tale so remarkable for its laugh-provoking qualities that it seems necessary, for the good of the jaded magazine reader, to call attention to it. It is signed with the curious name Malvolio Jones, obviously a nom de plume.

Why a quiet and perfectly respectable old lady should want to go over Niagara Falls in a barrel, and why this proceeding seems perfectly reasonable is told with the most whimsical touch in this story. It looks like the coming of a new and distinctive humorist.

Alum baking powders are unhealthful. Do not use them for raising food under any circumstances. So detrimental are alum baking powders considered, that in most foreign countries their sale is prohibited. In many States in this country the law compels alum powders to be branded to show that they contain this dangerous acid, while in the District of Columbia, Congress has prohibited the sale of all food that contains alum.

Alum baking powders are sold to consumers at from 10 cents a pound to 25 ounces for 25 cents, or 25 cents a pound, and when not branded may generally be distinguished by their price.

Anticipating the Spring Hatch.

My experience has been that the nearer we keep to nature the better success we have. I usually mate my birds the latter part of February or the first part of March, and commence to set the eggs to hatch the last week in March or the first week in April. Even then, if the weather should be very cold for the season of storms, the chicks will have to have extra care, or some will die from exposure if allowed to run at large. Chicks never do well if confined any great length of time. The chicks must have a great amount of exercise. The mother hen should be confined, but the chicks should have a free run. The question is, "Are early birds as good layers as those hatched a little later and pushed forward?" I have never had facilities for hatching and caring for chicks earlier in the season than about April 1, but my early birds were my best winter layers.

I find that the number of eggs placed under a hen should not be too large. I have used hens mostly for hatching, and it is my experience that I can get a great many more chicks with thirteen eggs under a hen than with more. With thirteen eggs I have sometimes had every egg hatch, while with fifteen or sixteen I would get only seven or eight chicks. Where there are so many eggs, some of them are not properly covered and they get chilled about and in that way half the eggs will be spoiled.

I keep my sitting hens in a room away from the others. Each one has her nest and number, and is confined on the nest, but is taken off, fed, watered and allowed a dust bath over day. It is best to have the room not very high, but well aired and lit. G. E. Thomas, Karg, John Co., Mann.

Turkeys in Winter.

Turkeys do best housed on a shed partly open to the south. Board down from the roof to four feet from the ground and one foot up from ground, covering remaining three feet with nothing to keep turkeys in during severe and very stormy weather. Place perches high with ladder for them to go up on. In open country they get frosted in open trees and on top of buildings, and warmish weather, followed by snow, in the case of these confinement and close houses for them in food in often causes cold and other diseases of that character. Food should be given them in such only. They will get comfortable outside. The Protected Poultry placed about fifteen lighted holes high in the best place for feeding them is a gallon bucket hung in the high hole in all right for winter. They require but little attention all they must be protected from rats, mice, etc. We have lost very few a few by mice while young, and a few by thieves after they were grown. Roomy, well ventilated milk proof coops are best protection against former, and well protected from the latter. Fred Grundy, Chas. H. Co. in Farmers' Review.

Mating Birds.

In the mating of birds care must be taken that the fowls employed in making up the breeding pens are of a character adapted to the work they are supposed to do. If a man is mating his birds for the production of show birds it will be a mistake for him to select good layers on the presumption that good layers and good form go together. A high breeding bird is more than likely to be a poor layer, provided that she is old, as the act of egg-producing puts the body out of shape for the shows. Breeders find that the best looking birds are sometimes the poorest layers, and that if they are to select birds for breeding up a strain of egg producers it is necessary to take birds that are not good producers of eggs. The man that is trying to build up a large flock of egg producers will have to select for breeding birds those that have shown themselves great producers of eggs. Yet we know that many that are trying to get strains of birds that will be more than ordinary producers of eggs are depending on the score card for their results.

Cement Floors in Poultry Houses.

Cement floors have not been very popular with poultry raisers. Stone and cement are very good transmitters of heat, and in the winter the cement floor very quickly takes on the temperature of the ground below it. The great thing to be said about the cement floor is that it is clean if built it should be laid upon cinders or some other material that will prevent the temperature of the earth being transmitted to the cement. In any case it should be covered with cut straw in winter.

Fertilizers.

A man must use fertilizers intelligently or he will throw away a great deal of money upon them. It is absurd for a farmer to purchase a fertilizer just because it is a valuable fertilizer and put it upon land that he does not know needs fertilizers. A man should not expend a dollar in fertilizers till he knows what kind he needs. If his land is rich in a certain element he will not throw money away if he buys fertilizers to put on his land. Wasting money in this way is one of the penalties of not knowing.

THE HODGE SUICIDE.

Schuyler Gardner Hodge, a member of one of Pontiac's oldest families and widely known in Detroit, where his wife has been living for several weeks, blew his head off with a shot gun in the old Hodge home at Pine Lake Friday morning. Mrs. Hodge, who has been boarding at 85 Winder street, was notified of the tragedy soon after. She left at noon to take charge of the body.

It is presumed Hodge was temporarily insane from melancholia. For three weeks he had been under the care of a physician. Mrs. Hodge says she knew that her husband was worried but had no idea he was in a state bordering on insanity.

"He had had trouble over the settlement of his mother's estate," said she, "and I think it preyed on his mind."

The suicide was carefully planned, according to dispatches from Pine Lake. Hodge sat down in a chair, and resting his head against the barrel of the shot gun contrived to pull the trigger. The top of his head was blown off and the wall is spattered with blood and brains.

Hodge was 49 years old. His father was Ira G. Hodge, who built the old Hodge house in Pontiac, which today is one of the city's leading hotels. His parents are both dead, and it was over Mrs. Hodge's estate that the trouble is said to have occurred. Hodge spent his early days in Pontiac and Pine Lake, where the family home has been in recent years. He married his first wife in Pontiac. About 15 years ago they were divorced. One daughter, Helen, is living in Detroit. The first Mrs. Hodge died in a rooming house in Detroit a few years ago, by her own hand, it is said.

Prof. William Wallace Campbell, of the Lick observatory formerly of the University of Michigan, has received the honorary gold medal of the Royal Astronomical Society of London for the greatest astronomical achievements during 1905.

The Ladies of the Baptist Church will give a Washington supper Feb. 22nd at Chadwick's Hall from 5:30 standard time until all are served. Come and see George and Martha Washington and get a good old fashioned supper for 15 cents.

It may be somewhat of a balm to the injured feelings of that bowling team of the local Elks to know that Sheriff Burns and his team of invincibles, who fearlessly entered the lion's den with the intentions of mopping the ground with the Northville bowlers, found to their dismay that they were up against the real thing and went back to Detroit a sadder and wiser bunch. The average score of the Northvilleites was 185 per man—Pontiac Gazette.

The library trustees are receiving congratulations on all sides on the unqualified success of the third number in their entertainment course given by the Odeon Quartette Co. Monday night. The large audience was delighted and gave all the entertainers more encores than they could possibly be expected to respond to, although they were very liberal in that respect. The reader, Miss Nettie Jackson, especially took the house by storm and the general verdict is that she is the best in her line ever heard here. The entire company would be hard to excel.

With his usual irrepressibility, Mr. Moore is now out again.

Sheriff Burns and his lusty team of deputies came out from Detroit last Friday night to do things to the bowling business men of Northville, but even a whole bunch of sheriffs was not sufficient to arrest the victory that was coming to the aid of experts, who rolled up a score big enough to win the necessary two out of three game. C. A. Sessions was high man with the tidy little mark of 194.

The local ice-harvest is practically completed and in spite of all previous fears to the contrary our dealers have on hand a big supply and of a prime quality. R. R. THE GREAT K&A TRAIN ROBBERY

BY PAUL LEXESTER FORD, Author of "The Vanishing Lady"

Copyright, 1906, by J. P. LEXESTER (Author) - Copyright, 1906, by J. P. LEXESTER & COMPANY

I couldn't make out this new move, and puzzled over it, while Judge Wilson ordered my commitment. But the next stop revealed the object for the lawyer's asked for a search warrant to look for stolen property. The judge was equally obliging, and began to fill out one on the instant.

This made me feel pretty serious, for the letters were in my breast pocket, and I swore at my own stupidity in not having put them in the station safe when I had first arrived at Ash Forks. There weren't many moments in which to think while the judge scribbled away at the warrant, but in what time there was I did a lot of head-work, without, however, knowing more than one way out of the snarl. And when I saw the judge finish off his signature with a flourish, I played a pretty desperate card.

"You're just too late, gentlemen," I said, pointing out the side window of the saloon. "There come the cavalry."

The three conspirators jumped to their feet and bolted for the window. Even the sheriff turned to look. As he did so I gave him a shove towards the three who sent them all sprawling on the floor in a pretty badly mixed-up confusion. I mean a dash for the door, and as I went through I grabbed the key and locked them in. When I turned to do so I saw a lot of struggling from the floor and knowing that I wouldn't tell them through the window, I didn't look much time in watching them. Camp, Baldwin and the judge had left their horses outside the saloon and were standing with the ladies' dresses over their shoulders, as our Western boys do, and I didn't think it was a very good idea to let them see me in place and just toss me over the side of the saloon. I had two of the best slaps I ever laid there, and I thought I had a right to be a little sore.

I turned across the railroad tracks, and cut in behind some freight cars that were standing on a siding. This put me out of view of my pursuers for a moment, and in that instant I stood up in my stirrups and the broad leather flap of the saddle and tucked the letters underneath it, as far as I could force them. It was a desperate place in which to hide them, but the game was a desperate one at last, and the very boldness of the idea might be its best chance of success.

I was not waiting for the station over the top, and was started to see Fred Cutler and Lord Raltes on the track as I left the saloon. They were both looking at me with a look that said they were not going to let me go. I had a right to be a little sore, but I didn't think it was a very good idea to let them see me in place and just toss me over the side of the saloon. I had two of the best slaps I ever laid there, and I thought I had a right to be a little sore.

I turned across the railroad tracks, and cut in behind some freight cars that were standing on a siding. This put me out of view of my pursuers for a moment, and in that instant I stood up in my stirrups and the broad leather flap of the saddle and tucked the letters underneath it, as far as I could force them. It was a desperate place in which to hide them, but the game was a desperate one at last, and the very boldness of the idea might be its best chance of success.

CHAPTER XII.

An Evening in Jail.

Before my ideas had time to straighten themselves out, I was lifted to my feet and half pushed half lifted to the station platform. Camp was already there, and as I took this fact I saw Fred and his horse-pulling through the doorway of my car by the cowboys and dragged out on the platform beside me. The reports were now in Lord Raltes' hands.

"That's what we want," boys," cried Camp. "Those letters."

"Take your hands off me," said Lord Raltes, coolly, and I'll give them to you."

The men who had hold of his arms let go of him and quick as a flash Raltes tore the papers in two. He tried to tear them once more, but before he could do so, half a dozen men were holding him, and the papers were forced out of his hands.

Albert Cutler—for all of them were on the platform of 213 by this time—shouted, "Well done, Raltes!" quite forgetting the excitement of the robbery and his English accent and drawl.

Apparently Camp didn't agree with him for he ripped out a string of oaths which he impartially divided among Raltes the cowboys, and myself. I was decidedly sorry that I hadn't given the real letters for his horse-pulling, but I knew few men whom I would have seen behind prison bars with as little personal regret. However, no one had, so far as I could see, paid the slightest attention to the papers, and the probabilities were that he was already headed for Baldwin's ranch with no likelihood of his stopping till he reached home. At least that was what I hoped; but there were a lot of ponies standing about, and not knowing the markings of the car I had ridden I wasn't able to tell whether he might not be among them.

stop me. It isn't a very nice sensation to keep your ears pricked up in expectation of hearing the shooting begin, and to know that any moment may be your last. I don't suppose I was on the ragged edge more than thirty seconds, but they were enough to prove to me that to keep one's back turned to an enemy as one runs away takes a deal more pluck than to stand up and face his gun. Fortunately for me, my pursuers felt so sure of my capture that not one of them drew a bead on me.

The moment I saw that there was no escape, I put my hand in my breast pocket and took out the letters, intending to tear them into a hundred pieces. But as I did so I realized, that to destroy United States mail was merely entailed criminal habit, but was off-color morality. I figured, balancing the outlawing of Camp-against State's prison, the doing my best for Midge against the "wrong of it." I think I'm as honest a fellow as the average, but I have to confess that I couldn't decide to do right till I thought that Midge wouldn't want me to be dishonest, even for her.

I turned across the railroad tracks, and cut in behind some freight cars that were standing on a siding. This put me out of view of my pursuers for a moment, and in that instant I stood up in my stirrups and the broad leather flap of the saddle and tucked the letters underneath it, as far as I could force them. It was a desperate place in which to hide them, but the game was a desperate one at last, and the very boldness of the idea might be its best chance of success.

I was not waiting for the station over the top, and was started to see Fred Cutler and Lord Raltes on the track as I left the saloon. They were both looking at me with a look that said they were not going to let me go. I had a right to be a little sore, but I didn't think it was a very good idea to let them see me in place and just toss me over the side of the saloon. I had two of the best slaps I ever laid there, and I thought I had a right to be a little sore.

CHAPTER XII.

An Evening in Jail.

Before my ideas had time to straighten themselves out, I was lifted to my feet and half pushed half lifted to the station platform. Camp was already there, and as I took this fact I saw Fred and his horse-pulling through the doorway of my car by the cowboys and dragged out on the platform beside me. The reports were now in Lord Raltes' hands.

"That's what we want," boys," cried Camp. "Those letters."

"Take your hands off me," said Lord Raltes, coolly, and I'll give them to you."

The men who had hold of his arms let go of him and quick as a flash Raltes tore the papers in two. He tried to tear them once more, but before he could do so, half a dozen men were holding him, and the papers were forced out of his hands.

Apparently Camp didn't agree with him for he ripped out a string of oaths which he impartially divided among Raltes the cowboys, and myself. I was decidedly sorry that I hadn't given the real letters for his horse-pulling, but I knew few men whom I would have seen behind prison bars with as little personal regret. However, no one had, so far as I could see, paid the slightest attention to the papers, and the probabilities were that he was already headed for Baldwin's ranch with no likelihood of his stopping till he reached home. At least that was what I hoped; but there were a lot of ponies standing about, and not knowing the markings of the car I had ridden I wasn't able to tell whether he might not be among them.

Just as the fragments of the papers were passed over to Mr. Camp, he was joined by Baldwin and the judge, and Camp held the torn pieces up to them, saying:

"Don't let that trouble you," said the judge. "Make an affidavit before me, reciting the manner in which they were destroyed, and I'll grant you a mandamus compelling the directors to accept them as bona-fide proxies. Let me see how much injured they are."

Camp unfolded the papers, and I chuckled to myself at the look of surprise that overspread his face as he took in the fact that they were nothing but section reports. And, though I don't like curs-words, I have to acknowledge that I enjoyed the two or three that he promptly ejaculated.

When the first surprise of the trio was over, they called on the sheriff, who arrived opportunely, to take us into 97 and search the three of us—a proceeding that puzzled Fred and his lordship not a little, for they weren't on to the fact that the letters hadn't been recovered. I presume the latter will some day write a book dwelling on the favorite theme of the foreigner, that there is no personal privacy in America, and I don't know but his experiences justify the view. The running remarks as the search was made seemed to open Fred's eyes, for he looked at me with a puzzled air, but I winked and moved at him, and he put his face in order.

When the papers were not found in us, Camp and Baldwin both began to demand. Baldwin suggested that I had never had the papers, but Camp argued that Fred or Lord Raltes must have hidden them in the car in spite of the fact that the car was under guard. They decided that there couldn't have been time to hide the papers. Anyway, I spent an hour in searching about my car, and even searched my two drawers on the possibility that the four letters had been put in one of them.

QUESTION OF LONGEST PURSE

Way the Government Never Collected That $10 Fine

An official of the United States court for the Southern District of Georgia tells an interesting anecdote of Emory Speer, who preside with dignity, even with grace over the bench of that tribunal. The trial of an alleged counterfeit had occupied the attention of the court all morning and in order to dispose of the case during the day, the court ordered an afternoon session.

Promptly at 3 o'clock Judge Speer was on the bench, but no prisoner, no marshal was present. At 3:25 a marshal and prisoner came straggling leisurely along into the courtroom—the prisoner had been allowed a little exercise in company with the marshal, during the dinner hour.

"Will the marshal kindly explain why he has thus delayed the court," asked Judge Speer.

"Your Honor, I understood the court took recess until 3:30 p. m.," was the marshal's excuse.

The marshal should not understand, he should know," said the court. "Mr. Clerk you will enter a fine of $10 against the marshal for his carelessness. Proceed with the trial."

It was perhaps an hour later when, during the examination of an important witness the case, the marshal was seen in subdued but earnest conversation with the judge. In a moment the proceedings of the court were stopped and the judge turned to the clerk.

"Mr. Clerk," he said, "you will erase that fine against the marshal. He is up here trying to borrow money from me and the government can better afford to lose it than I can. Proceed with the case."

PASSED LONG NIGHT

TEDIOUS TWELVE HOURS IN A MONTANA BLIZZARD.

Passenger and Driver, "Holed Up," Kept Moving Through What Seemed Century of Darkness—Temperature Fifty Below Zero.

Ike Boyer of Helena left yesterday morning for Madison county points, and while waiting in Butte the night before told some interesting tales of his experience while making the territory in southern Montana which is not yet covered by the railroad.

"The time of my life," he said, "was experienced between Bannack and Argenta. I was making the trip by stage and my driver was one of the old time stage drivers of the overland road. The only name I ever knew for his was 'Shorty,' and he was one of the best that ever pulled the ribbons over a team of horses in Montana."

Shortly after we left Argenta it began snowing, but we paid little attention to the storm, being wrapped up comfortably. When we topped the hill and started across, the foot hills to connect with the old Bannack road we ran into the teeth of the blizzard. The thermometer began dropping rapidly and almost before we knew it we found ourselves chilling fast. To add to our trouble the air became so filled with snow that we could not see the length of our sled ahead of us. The storm came so fast and fierce that the horses refused to face it, and before we realized it we were off the road and the horses were helplessly foundering through the snow, which seemed almost bottomless. By this time darkness had come and we were off the trail.

"To make the matter worse the horses in floundering broke the tongue from the sled and we were holed up for good. Then we saw that we were in for it for the night and prepared to make the best of a bad bargain. There was a little straw in the bottom of the sled and we tied the horses up so that they could eat it. The driver and myself walked back and forth, about a rod apart, all night long and in this manner managed to keep warm. We drank up the samples I had with me, smoked several boxes of simple cigars, and seemed as if the night would never come to an end.

"Occasionally I would get in from nearly ten and eleven and would attempt to doze off but 'Shorty' would keep me from doing so. He would talk me by drastic means, if necessary, and make me continue my walk to and fro opposite him. I kept after the time of at least a century, the night came to an end and daylight began glowing around the gulch. With the approach of day the storm went down and the sled started and before long found a pole that could be used as a sled runner, and we toggled by matters and continued our trip to Bannack. We arrived there in time for a late breakfast and were not surprised to learn that the thermometer had reached below 'thunderbolt' the night before and remained there.

Logical Jurymen

For nearly six hours had the court been convulsed with the evidence given him in a sensational action for breach of promise. The many ridiculous love letters had been read, commented upon, and heartily laughed at, counsel had spoken, the judge had summed up, and the jury had retired to consider their verdict.

"Well, gentlemen," said the foreman, "how much shall we give this young man?"

"Look here," said one of the jurymen, "I understand alright, the plaintiff doesn't want damages for blighted affections, or anything of that sort but only wants to get back what he's spent on presents, holiday trips, etc."

"That is so," agreed the foreman. "Well, then, I vote we don't give him a penny," said the other, hastily. "If all the fun he had with that girl didn't cover the amount he expended it must have been his own fault. Gentlemen, I courted that girl once myself."

Roman Relics Found in England.

In the course of the operations for restoring the foundations to the cathedral at Winchester, England, the excavators discovered some interesting relics of the Roman occupation. Thirteen vases and lamps were unearthed. One piece was an excellent specimen of pottery, intact and in perfect preservation. The lamps are of the type known as "the lamp of learning" and resemble in shape a gray boat with a spoon at one end, from which the wick protrudes, and a handle at the other. The vessels are made of iron and though discolored with age are unbroken and in an excellent state of preservation.

Song.

Give me back my heart, fair child; To you as 'ere 'twere worth but little; Half beguiled, half beguiled; Be you warned, your own ve brittle I know it by your red ring cheeks. I know it by those two black streaks Arching up your pearl brows In a momentary laughter, Stretched in long and drowsy repose With a sigh the moment after— "Had it drop it on the moor?" "Lost it, and you can not find it?" "My own heart I want, not yours!" You have bidden and must unbind it. Set it free then from your net. We will love, sweet—but not yet! Fling it from you—we are strong; Love is trouble, love is folly. Love, that makes an old heart young, Makes a young heart melancholy.

HAD CAUSE FOR JOYOUSNESS.

Mrs. Hooperton, Convicted of a Bad Struck Real Bargain.

"Ah, my dear," said Mr. Hooperton, "I'm glad to come home for once and find you smiling. By George, it seems like old times. Makes me think life is still worth living. What's happened to gladden you?"

"O, I've been just dying all day to tell you. It's awfully good news. You know Mrs. Biddle, who runs the intelligence office? Well, she sent me a circular to-day announcing that she proposed to make a material reduction to her regular customers. Hereafter any one who gets more than ten girls a month through her agency will have to pay a fee of only 75 cents instead of $1 for each. Isn't that lovely? We'll get the benefit of the reduction right along."—Chicago Record Herald.

Commercial Exactness.

A retired merchant of an Eastern city relates the following incident as illustrating the strictly methodical style of doing business which distinguished the early merchants. Having occasion to settle an account with an emigrant and honored firm he was sent by the firm which employed him to deliver a note on demand for $1,600. The word "dollars" was abbreviated so that it read dolls. The dignified head of the house received the document and adjusting his spectacles, read it and handed it back to the messenger saying, "Young man, we don't want sixteen hundred dolls in our business. Take it back and have it made dollars and I will accept it."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Eruption Broke Out in Spots All Over Body—Cured at Expense of Only $1.25—Thanks Cuticura.

"The Cuticura Remedies cured me of my skin disease, and I am very thankful to you. My trouble was eruption of the skin, which broke out in spots all over my body, and caused a continual itching which nearly drove me wild at times. I got medicine of a doctor but it did not cure me, and when I saw in a paper your ad I sent you for the Cuticura book and I studied my case in it. I then went to the drug store and bought one cake of Cuticura Soap, one box of Cuticura Ointment and one vial of Cuticura Pills. From the first application I received relief. I used the first set and two extra cakes of Cuticura Soap, and was completely cured. I had suffered for two years, and I again thank Cuticura for my cure. Claude N. Johnson, Maple Grove Farm, R. F. The Original "Match."

A BOY'S BREAKFAST

There's a Natural Food That Makes Its Own Way.

There's a boy up in Hoosick Falls, N. Y., who is growing into sturdy manhood on Grape-Nuts breakfasts. It might have been different with him, as his mother explains.

"My 11-year-old boy is large, well-developed and active, and has been made so by his fondness for Grape-Nuts food. At five years he was a very nervous child and was subject to frequent attacks of indigestion which used to rob him of his strength and were very troublesome to deal with. He never seemed to care for anything for his breakfast until I tried Grape-Nuts, and I have never had to change from that. He makes his entire breakfast of Grape-Nuts food. It is always relished by him, and he says that it satisfies him better than the ordinary kind of a meal."

"Better than all he is no longer troubled with indigestion or nervousness, and has got to be a splendidly developed fellow since he began to use Grape-Nuts food." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

ANEMIA CAN BE CURED

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Make New Blood and Strike Straight at the Root of Disease.

Anemia is just the doctor's name for bloodlessness. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new blood. They cure anemia just as food cures hunger. They cured Mrs. Thos. J. McGann, of 17 Lincoln Place, Elmfield, N. J., and they can do as much for any other pale, weak, ailing, bloodless person.

"In the spring of 1903 I did my usual house-cleaning," says Mrs. McGann, "and soon after I began to have the most terrible headaches. My heart would beat so irregularly that it was painful and there came a morning when I could not get up. My doctor said I had anemia and he was surprised that I had continued to live in the condition I was in. I was confined to my bed for nearly two months, the doctor coming every day for the first few weeks, but I did not improve to amount to anything."

"Altogether I was sick for nearly two years. I was as weak as a rag, had headaches, irregular heart beats, loss of appetite, cramps in the limbs and was unable to get a good night's sleep. My legs and feet were so swollen that I feared they would burst."

"One day, while I was wondering how long I could live, feeling as I did, I received a booklet telling about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I read it and told my husband to get me some of the pills. Before the first box was gone I felt a change for the better. I have taken about twelve boxes and although I was as near the grave as I could be, I have more energy, the heart beats regularly, my cheeks are pink and I feel ten years younger. I feel that I have been cured very cheaply and I have recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to lots of my friends."

PHONE HABIT A NUISANCE

Telephones, they say, are responsible for more broken engagements and bored husbands than any other one thing. A set of men smoking after dinner at one of the clubs this week said so, anyway, and several of them are in a way of knowing. One is literally on the verge of breaking his engagement now because the girl insists upon calling him up at least three times a day, if he isn't where she thinks he should be at that hour she trails him until he is located, says the New York Telegram. His most strenuous game of bridge is broken to at the club by her call on the phone; he is made to leave the ticker to hear her dulcet voice and the shouts of operators on the floor of the exchange to ask if he still loves her. As though this were not enough, she calls him in the morning before he goes down town, and if ever there was a man on the verge of not it is this one.

The curious part of it is the girl, who is old enough to know better, cannot be made to realize that society is fatal and that no matter how much a man may care for her, he does not enjoy sentiment during business hours. Moreover, he does not care to have the joke wired on not even by telephone, and women who are prone to do this will do well to grasp the fact and let the man feel free, even if he isn't.

As for bored husbands. When they are called at the office or afterward every time they are late coming home, or when the office boy is called upon by an irate or distracted wife to furnish information, the men after a bit grow hot in that region of the anatomy known as the collar. But many wives seem to be oblivious to the effect and trouble reigns in the household.

Fixed and immovable habits of devotion, by the way, sometimes have their drawbacks. A certain man who has been married for more than forty years has called his wife at noon every day without fail from his office since telephones were first installed. He does not care if she is not at home to answer, but he wishes to find out if all is right or if she wishes anything. There have been days when for one reason or another he was delayed for an hour or more in calling. If his wife is at home on that day she almost dies of nervous prostration, for she is certain that something has happened to him. He has either fallen dead of heart failure or has been crushed beneath the wheels of an automobile and she has been a widow in her mind many times over when the bell tinkles for his call and serenity is restored.

Ancient Privilege.

Dumas, in his "Isabel of Bavaria," refers to an ancient privilege which authorized the deputies of the six merchant bodies to accompany the king and queens of France upon their entry into Paris from the gate of St. Denis to the palace, followed on this occasion by the representatives of the different manufacturing bodies clothed to represent the "seven capital sins," and, by way of contrast, the "seven Christian virtues."

Good humor is a matter of digestion. If one eats the right food and drinks the right beverage one will be in a good humor. Vivacity and good spirits are largely muscular. SCHOOL OF DOLPHINS AT PLAY.

One of Pretty Sight in the Gulf of California.

The waters of the gulf of California teem with other wealth than pearls. Here are fish of every description. The tuna is abundant, and the gummy Spanish mackerel is everywhere. The dolphin seems monarch of all the gulf. In the vicinity of the great island of Carmen they are encountered by the thousands. One school, comprising many hundreds, were encountered by the steamer on which the writer was a passenger a short distance from the beautiful bay of Escondido.

They were a half mile distant when they observed us going in the opposite direction. Suddenly the leaders, in a clearly evinced spirit of rollicking sea dog fun, turned every one of them and gave chase to the steamer. It was perfectly evident they enjoyed the performance as much as the spectators. For a little while the noise was deafening, as if a thousand kettles of the streets had been turned loose in a go-as-you-please bathhouse. Then, having proved their ability to catch up with the steamer, they suddenly veered and sped southward—Sunset Magazine.

A TRAINED NURSE

After Years of Experience, Advises Women in Regard to Their Health.

Mrs. Martha Pohlman of 55, Chester Avenue, Newark, N. J., who is a graduate nurse from the Blockley Training School, at Philadelphia and for six years Chief Clinic Nurse at the Philadelphia Hospital, writes the letter printed below. She has the advantage of personal experience, besides her professional education, and what she has to say may be absolutely relied upon.

Many other women are afflicted as she was. They can regain health in the same way. It is prudent to heed such advice from such a source.

Mrs. Pohlman writes: "I am firmly persuaded, after eight years of experience with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that it is the safest and best medicine for any suffering woman to use."

"Immediately after my marriage I found that my health began to fail me. I became weak and pale, with severe bearing-down pains, painful backaches and frequent diarrhoea. The doctors prescribed for me, yet I did not improve. I would blot after eating, and frequently become nauseated. I had pains down through my limbs so I could hardly walk. It was as bad a case of female trouble as I have ever known. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, however, cured me within four months. Since that time I have had occasion to recommend it to a number of patients suffering from all forms of female difficulties, and I find that while it is considered unprofessional to recommend a patent medicine, I can honestly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for I have found that it cures female troubles, where all other medicine fails. It is a grand medicine for sick women."

Money cannot buy such testimony as this—merit alone can produce such results, and the ablest specialists now agree that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the most universally successful remedy for all female diseases known to medicine.

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful periods, weakness, displacement or ulceration of the female organs, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation, backache, bloating (or flatulence), general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitation, or any other ailment, they should at once use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is strictly confidential.

ability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all-gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, blue and hopelessness, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, at once removed such troubles. No other female medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement.

The needless suffering of women from diseases peculiar to their sex is terrible to see. The money which they pay to doctors who do not help them is an enormous waste. The pain is cured and the money is saved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Three breadths of carpet were burnout what fire there was—feeling very thankful that he reached home just as he did.

A REPUTATION.

HOW IT WAS MADE AND RETAINED IN NORTHVILLE.

A good reputation is not easily earned, and it was only by hard, consistent work among our citizens that Doan's Kidney Pills won their way to the proud distinction attained in this locality. The public endorsement of scores of Northville residents has rendered invaluable service to the community. Read what this citizen says:

T. W. Wood, painter and paperhanger, of 37 Center street, says: "My wife and I are thoroughly convinced of the curative powers of this popular remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, for we used them some years ago for backache and other kidney troubles. They acted very effectively and promptly, relieving the backache and the other annoyances. Doan's Kidney Pills are the best medicine we ever used, and we are pleased to testify to their merits."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McLarn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Two Masters to Be Served.
"Can a man serve two masters?" Inquired a visiting pastor of a deacon of Trinity church. "He has to, sometimes," confessed the deacon. "I think not," said the pastor. "You have never served two masters, have you?" inquired the deacon, sofly, and the pastor retired in discomfiture.

SEED TIME

The experienced farmer has learned that some grains require far different soil than others;
some crops need different handling than others.
He knows that a great deal depends upon right planting at the right time, and that the soil
must be kept enriched.
No use of complaining in summer about a mistake made in the spring.
Decide before the seed is planted.

The best time to remedy wasting conditions in the human body is before the evil is too deep rooted. At the first evidence of loss of flesh

Scott's Emulsion
should be taken immediately. There is nothing that will repair wasted tissue more quickly or replace lost flesh more abundantly than Scott's Emulsion.
It nourishes and builds up the body when ordinary foods absolutely fail.

We will send you a sample free.

of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion
you buy.
