Vol. XXXVIII. No. 11.

NORTHVILLE, MICH., FRIDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1906.

$1.00 Per Year in Advance

TOWNSEND AND KELLEY

They Will Both Speak Here Saturday Night.

REP. BENTON AND CANDIDATES FOR COUNTY OFFICES.

Will All Be Present and Big Time Expected.

Congressman Townsend of Jackson and P. H. Kelley, Supt. of Public Instruction, of Lansing will speak in the Opera House here tomorrow (Saturday) night commencing at 8:00 p. m.

The ability of those gentlemen as orators and men of ability upon the platform is so well recognized that anything the Record might say would be superfluous indeed.

The name and fame of Congressman Townsend is no longer confined to the state of Michigan but he is known today from the Atlantic to the Pacific and is looked upon as a statesman of remarkable qualifications. All the newspapers and all magazines of the country have had write-ups of his work in congress and his successful handling of President Roosevelt's measures.

P. H. Kelley, the gifted orator, well known to Northville people He has been for four years the very successful head of the State Public Instruction and he is now the nominee for Lieutenant Governor. He comes at this time with Congressman Townsend as Governor Warner's representative, the governor having been sent over into Muskegon county.

Representative Cass Benton will also give a short talk on some subject that will be of interest and some of the county candidates will also be present to tell why they should be elected.

This will be a decidedly interesting meeting and no one should miss being present.

Baptist Church Notes.

[By a Member]

DR. BLANCHARD LEAVES NORTHVILLE

WILL SPEND WINTER IN THE SOUTH.

In Health Cause of His Change of Residence.

The many friends of Dr. A. L. Blanchard in Northville and vicinity greatly regret that he has been compelled by ill health to give up his residence here and leave Michigan for an indefinite stay in a milder climate. He left accompanied by E. E. Lapham of Detroit on Wednesday for Asheville, North Carolina, where he will stay during the winter and perhaps longer.

Dr. Blanchard has been a resident of this village for the past fourteen years, and will be greatly missed in many ways. He is a man of wide culture and intelligence as well as a skillful physician, although he has not engaged in general practice for several years past. He is especially gifted as a diagnostician, making his services much valued in consultation. He has ably served the educational interests of the town as a member of the school board for several years, also serving on the U. S. pension board.

A dozen of the doctor's men friends gave a six o'clock dinner in his honor Friday evening at the Park House and at the close presented him with an elegant russet leather traveling bag. The presentation was made by C. C. Chadwick in behalf of the company.

Whitney's Opera House—Detroit.

Chas. E. Blaney's latest production "Old Issues of the Bowery", will be presented at the Whitney for one week, commencing Oct. 21. The story concerns an old furniture installment man on the Bowery during the Civil War days, whose heart was as big and as broad as his body. Many were his acts of charity and many his woes, mainly through an adventuresome step-daughter, who sought a higher social sphere. He is ruined and finally succored, through the daughter of a Christian he befriended and also through the love of his only son, Harry Issacs. Matinees daily except on Wednesday.

The parties who took my horse blanket are known. Please return same and save trouble.

NEW SCHOOL BUILDING.

Meeting Called for Wednesday Oct. 23.

A special meeting has been called by the school board for Oct. 23, to vote on the proposition of a new school building. The plan will be to raise $25,000, to be spread on the tax roll and to bond for $7,000. As it has been necessary to raise about $4,000 or more each year for teachers' salaries. It will readily be seen that the school tax will be less than usual. Of course the money received from the state can be used for no other purpose than for teachers' salaries, but as none has to be raised for that purpose this year, it gives a chance to raise the money for our much needed building that will never be available again. The board contemplates placing the new building on the south side of the school grounds.

ORDINATION SERVICES

In Baptist Church Friday Afternoon and Evening

A large attendance meeting was held Friday afternoon and evening in the Northville Baptist church when U. V. Silloway, the well known evangelist, was ordained to the Baptist ministry in the presence of representatives from nearly every church in Wayne association. The examination of the candidate took place in the afternoon and in the evening the ordination sermon was preached by Rev. Joshua Roberts of Howell, followed by the charge, which was given by Rev. R. S. Collins of Novi.

Supper was served in the dining room by the ladies of the church to over one hundred persons between the afternoon and evening meetings.

A feature of the service was the singing of two solos by Miss Grace Baldwin of Fowlerville, whose exceptionally beautiful voice and expressive rendition make her musically suitable for religious services.

Mr. Silloway goes to the upper peninsula to assume the pastorate of a church.

ONE GOOD TERM DESERVES STILL ANOTHER

When Forbes Robertson entered upon his duties as County Treasurer, July 1, 1905, he promised to give the people a business administration. His first act was to change the system of bookkeeping so that the condition of every fund was shown daily at the close of business.

The tax levy was over $800,000 and by extending his office hours from 3:30 to 6 o'clock and requiring his clerks to work evenings, 89 per cent of this was collected during December, over 52,000 receipts being issued. The amount of this levy remaining uncollected at this date is but one-sixth of 1 per cent and all but $1,554 of this has been charged back for reassessment because of irregular and imperfect disbursements upon the order of the Auditor General.

For extra clerks, advertising, etc., in the collection of taxes the customary annual appropriation has been $12,000 and has been exhausted. Treasurer Robertson was allowed this sum and saved $1,777 26 of it. He asks but $12,000 for 1906-7, although another ward has been added to the city and the 14th ward has been divided upon the assessment rolls. He calls for four additional clerks during the collection period. Wrote Auditor General Bradley under date of Oct. 5: Your duplicate tax receipts and redemption certificates received. Permit me to commend your promptness in this and every official act in connection with this department and the care and accuracy manifest in all the work of your office. In the large transactions of this department your unfailing promptness is exceedingly helpful and I appreciate it very much.

Treasurer Robertson has received a number of letters from prominent citizens, large taxpayers, real estate men and commercial houses commending the business methods, promptness and accuracy of his administration and expressing the hope that he will be elected for a second term.

October 24, 1906.
"I have made an analysis of De Tan-Ated India Coffee and find that it is of the greatest purity, no adulterations having been found, either by chemical or microscopical means. Furthermore, by purely mechanical treatment the cellulose containing 85 per cent tannic acid has been removed, thereby leaving the remainder, richer in those substances, caffeine and caffeine, which render De Tan-Ated India Coffee more valuable as a beverage and less harmful as a stimulant."

WALDRON POSTOFFICE SAFE
ROBBED BY EXPERT
CRACKSMEN.

TERRORIZED THE TOWN

Yeggmen Visit the Village and Blow the Safe With Nitroglycerine, Securing Stamps.

Five yeggmen blew the safe in Waldron, Hillsdale county, at 1 o'clock Monday morning, stole several hundred dollars' worth of stamps and frightened the people who were aroused by the explosion long enough to permit them to steal a handcar and escape across the state line into Ohio. They left their handcar at Alvordton, eight miles south.

Three men were standing guard in the street when the explosion brought many citizens out of bed. A man who lives across the way from the postoffice ventured into the street. One "yegg" told him to get back into his house and go to sleep or they would blow his head off. He complied. The thief was uttered in a loud voice and others who heard it also sought cover. No shots were fired.

The work on the safe was evidently done by experts. The door was blown off, apparently by a charge of nitroglycerine, and the work was so skillfully done that the safe was hardly otherwise damaged. There was a hole through the floor where the door fell, but there was nothing further to indicate that an explosion had occurred. The robbers got little money.

It is believed that the yeggmen were from Toledo. Waldron, being located near the state line, has often been visited by criminals in fleeing from one state to the other and judging from the course they took in escaping it is believed they are bound for Toledo to get under cover. It is not known when they arrived in town. No suspicious strangers were seen there Sunday, and it is believed they arrived in the night.

A Fighting Family.
William Stimer, the head of the Tompkins family, has been arrested three times for assault with intent to do great bodily harm and as a result of the assault, this summer, and who with his family has become an object of fear in Tompkins township was sentenced to ninety days in the Detroit house of correction. He was convicted of inflicting a terrible beating upon Ulysses S. Robinson.

His son, Roy, was fined $30 and $27 costs for participation in the same assault, and Louis Stimer, a brother, a like amount. Stimer appealed the case to the circuit court and gave bonds. A case of assault with intent to do great bodily harm is still pending against him in the circuit court, and Robinson has instituted a suit for $5,000 damages.

Stabbed in the Back.
Joseph Powalski, an employee of Sash, Schuette & Parker Co. of Saginaw, who lives on the Shattuckville road, while going home late at night was held up by three highwaymen west of the Pere Marquette bridge and narrowly escaped being murdered. The men leaped from behind lumber piles and commanded Powalski to throw up his hands. He refused and gave battle single handed with the masked trio. Powalski, who is a powerful man, was getting the best of two of the robbers when the third slipped behind him and stabbed him in the back with a dirk. Powalski fell to the ground and the highwaymen, thinking they had killed him, fled. He was found very weak from loss of blood, but he is now doing nicely at the hospital and will recover.

Splash Party is Off.
There is sorrow, genuine sorrow, among Kalamazoo's young society girls after planning stunning bathing costumes for a week to attend the perennial swimming party to be given by Miss Mary Adell Woodworth in Columbus, O. They have been notified that the opportunity to display some of their charms will not be gratified. The Turkish bath party has been called off by Robert Lindenberg, Miss Woodworth's fiance.

Lindenberg couldn't stand for the notoriety. Eastern newspapers, which wanted to run page articles about him and his splatter party, made his hair stand on end, and he is sitting on all the photographs of his bride to be and himself to keep reporters from getting at them.

Both Escaped.
Mrs Otto Harnisch, wife of a well-known traveling salesman of Saginaw, in a burst of excitement accomplished a feat which under any other circumstances might have proved fatal to her. Mrs. Harnisch discovered that a burglar was in her house. She became alarmed and jumped from a second-story window to the hard ground beneath. Hurrying to a saloon she phoned the police, and then went back to her house to watch. Before the police arrived she saw the intruder walk quietly from the door and stroll away into the darkness.

Pioneer day was observed in the Monroe public schools. Old settlers came from all over the country and spoke to the children of the early days. Ferdinand Sperling has discovered strange excavations on his farm on the bank of the Tittabawassee river, and believes that it was made by a stranger searching for a hidden treasure. Peiley C. Heald, former deputy state and food commissioner, and who recently declined the appointment of consul to Saigon, Cochinchina is now preparing to leave Midland to engage in the lumber business at Portland, Ore.

THE LIFE STRUGGLE.

The Death of Mrs. Caldwell and Stephen Gray Near Fighting Island.

Mrs. May Caldwell and her brother-in-law, Stephen A. Gray, of Ford City, went out in a duck boat on Wednesday, the 10th inst., for a few hours' fishing. Not returning towards night, a search was begun which ended in finding them both dead in the boat on Sunday. Hidden among the rushes in Gray Duck bay near the lower end of Fighting Island, the duck boat in which the couple went on the ill-fated fishing trip, probably rested since they were blown into the cove in the high wind on Wednesday. Gray Duck bay is a lonesome spot, little visited except by those who are fishing, and even then its full expanse is never seen. Hundreds of acres of marsh surround the bay, turning far out from the land it is impossible to get a boat near enough to the island to make a landing anywhere near that portion of Fighting Island. It is four miles and a half from where the boat house is located.

The position of the bodies told the story of death and how it came. Stuart, a small, frail man, was lying on the bottom of the boat, his head jolted on the right arm and the feet wedged under the combing of the cockpit.

Exhausted from the violent exertion of rowing against the northwest wind, Stuart had kept at the oars, vainly trying to find a haven, until he fell over backward from the seat in a collapse, and pillowing his head on his arm, sought rest.

The woman, an expert oarswoman, took the man's place, pushing him from the seat and gripping the oars, started again on the struggle for life. Stronger by nature, she tugged at the task until Stuart gave up in despair. At last her strength was exhausted and she fell forward even while struggling to force the little craft ahead.

Goes to the Chair.

Fred Caster, who killed Policeman Daniel E. Davis, must die in the electric chair. The Ohio supreme court sustained the decision of the common pleas court condemning Caster to death. Fred Caster is the Flint, Mich., boy who was caught robbing a house in Columbus, O., and killed Policeman Davis in the attempt to escape arrest. He was convicted in the common pleas court in Columbus of murder in the first degree. The date for his electrocution was fixed as April 6. An appeal to the circuit court was denied. Then, a stay of proceedings was obtained until the case could be reviewed by the supreme court.

Three Killed and Many Injured.

Passenger train No. 8, of the Wabash railroad, running from Kansas City to Buffalo, N. Y., known as the Buffalo mail, and due in Danville, Ill., at 4:32 a. m. ran into an open switch west of Catlin, Ill., early Wednesday, and crashed into a section of a freight train. The passenger coaches, except one, turned over and burned. Three persons are known to have been killed. Several others are missing. Thirty-seven injured are being taken care of at Danville hospitals.

Farmer Drowned.
Struck by an oak loosened from the bank as he was rowing on Lake Erie's lake, eight miles north of Ann Arbor, George Horn, aged 72, a wealthy farmer of Redcliffe north of Detroit was rendered unconscious and drowned as he fell across the side of his boat. When found his head was submerged in the water. He had been visiting nieces in Northfield town ship.

The Sooners Are Out.

Hunters from southern Michigan are swarming into the woods of the upper peninsula with dogs a month ahead of the deer season, and today Game Warden Chapman ordered all his deputies to take the field and shoot all dogs off the trail of deer and to arrest every hunter caught violating the law. Every available man will be pressed into service in order to prevent the slaughter of deer.

Boiler Let Go.

With a deafening report, a boiler of the government boat Slackwater exploded late Saturday, completely wrecking the vessel, killing three men, injuring six others and creating havoc in lock No. 4 on the Ohio river, where the boat was lying when the accident happened. A derrick boat lying along side the steamer and some construction work being done at the dam was heavily damaged by the explosion.

Young Grave Robbers.

Three boys exhumed the body of "Old Man Covert," buried ten years ago, to get the insignia of a secret society formed by them, called The Order of the Human Teeth, and which had its headquarters in a cave. They kept their secret for a month, when one told it and traveled like wild fire. No worse punishment than spanking at home have been visited upon them.

Schools Closed.

A report was received in Sault Ste. Marie last week from Raber, a town in the southern part of Chippewa county, saying that an epidemic of diphtheria has made it necessary to close the schools. Several deaths are reported. The board of supervisors has been appealed to for aid in handling the disease.

An Illinois man died and left 27 wills, four of which are undated. There was a true friend of the lawyers.

George Kalmbach, of Jackson, was fined $6 with 30 days in jail and 20 additional days if the fine is not paid, for shooting one of the Loomis park squirrels.

A spark from the engine in a thrashing outfit on the farm of County Treasurer Wilson, three miles from Grand Marais, resulted in the loss of the machine and the entire crop, valued at $2,000, besides a barn. The stable and machinery were valued at about $2,000. No insurance.

GOOD CROPS.

The Upper Peninsula Raises Great Quantity of Barley.

With every year the acreage of barley planted in the upper peninsula, is increased. The territory is especially well fitted by nature to produce this grain to perfection. The superior maturing qualities of Michigan barley have long been recognized by the growers of the country, and in consequence the highest market prices are paid for the barley grown in this region.

All Menominee county records were checked this fall by the crop of Peter Anderson, a farmer living near Wallace. Anderson, according to the certified statement of the thrashing crew, threshed the remarkable amount of 31 1/2 bushels of barley from one and one-quarter acres of land, which had been seeded with only two bushels of the grain. This is an extraordinary record, and is taken to indicate that the upper peninsula will be the principal barley-producing region of the United States in the future.

Barley forms an important part in the rotation of crops of the sugar beet grower. It reaches its highest perfection after a crop of sugar beets, and will serve as a nurse crop for clover, which in the second year should be plowed under, making an excellent fertilizer and fitting the soil for corn or sugar beets.

The Michigan United Railway Co. plans through limited car service between Jackson and Kalamazoo.

WAYNE COUNTY

POLITICAL TALK

The real strife between the Democrats and Republicans in Wayne County seems to be on the Sheriff and prosecuting attorney question.

"Billy" Dever is pitted against "Jimmy" Burns and both are putting up a big campaign and each claims he has a crush Burns' deputies and Burns himself, are busier than bees and are making a systematic canvass Dever is a clean cut young man and his friends are busy in his behalf. Those on the inside claim the result will largely hinge on Mayor Codd's success in Detroit.

Too late Robinson and Burke appear to be running neck and neck for prosecuting attorney. "Navinism" is being used by Robinson's friends against Burke, but Burke's record in the Attorney General Bird's office at Lansing shows that he has been faithful to every trust imposed on him thus far, and his friends believe that if elected no one could swerve him from the path of duty.

Glass Eyes an Old Invention.
Glass eyes were invented about the year 1579, and were crude productions of inferior workmanship, the iris and pupil being hand painted in a far from lifelike manner. Shakespeare mentions glass eyes in "King Lear," where the King advises the blinded traitor Gloucester to "Get thee glass eyes, and seem to see."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; time cases out of ten are caused by catarrh which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

SERIAL STORY

DUKE OF DEVIL-MAY-CARE

By HARRIS DICKSON

Author of "The Black Wolf's Breed," Etc.

He sat on his gallery through the evening, and watched the Ivanhoe road until he saw a cloud of dust and a man and negro, coming toward him. Then he walked out to the crown of the levee and waited for his spy—the cookman of Ivanhoe.

"Well, Kinky, what is it?"

"De young ladies is gwine ter stay w'at Miss Ellen Patterson to-morrow an' de new day, dey 'lows dey wants ter go er fishin'."

"Is Mrs. Ashton going?"

"No, sub, 'em gwine ter dribe 'em ober in de surrey an' go back ter 'em We'n'sday night."

Kinky's news was worth the dollar. He sat on the steps of the store eat, 'ing his can of salmon, and watched Duke ride hurriedly toward Lake Brain plantation, where Maj Patterson lived.

"Huh! he sho don't lose no time," the negro commented.

Early Wednesday morning the Duke of Devil-May-Care halted his best horse and shiniest buggy at Maj Patterson's gallery.

Ellen Patterson met him on the top step with an exclamation of surprise that completely deceived the other two girls. But for her cute little wink, Duke might have supposed that she had forgotten their deep-aid scheme of Monday night—a bargain whereby Ellen betrayed her friend for a five-pound box of candy—to arrive on the next boat.

"Why, Noel, how lucky! I'm awful glad to see you, you are just in time for breakfast girls."

Alice and Anita glanced at each other without rising from their bench. "Girls, come here!" There was no help for it unless they made a scene.

"Miss Cameron, this is Mr. Duke, Miss Ashton."

Alice shook hands timidly, and drew back. Anita laughed, and she couldn't help it now.

"Ellen! El-len!" Maj Patterson's voice echoed through the house. "Duke, what on earth did you do with that hat?"

"I know where it is," Alice suggested, and darted into the hall—a dash of blond hair, the flutter of a pink dotted skirt and she was gone.

"Excuse me, Noel," Ellen tried to restrain a smile. "I must go and see about breakfast. You and Anita, make yourselves at home."

"It may be true that love is blind, but love is very lucky."

"Miss Cameron, I believe you are from Virginia," Duke began. "I used to know a lot of fellows at the University."

"Oh, did you go to the University?"

"When?"

He had stumbled unwittingly upon the very strongest bond of union that he could find with any Virginia girl.

"In '91, for awhile. The professors thought they could get along without me, so I came home."

"Shipped?" Anita's eyes twinkled.

"No, expressed—the professors were in a hurry." And they both laughed.

"May be you knew Laura South-wick?" Anita moved a tiny bit closer.

"Yes, all that set, knew them all better than I did my professors—that was just the trouble."

"Laura is married now," Anita volunteered. "Why, didn't you know that?" She ran away. Come, sit down and I'll tell you about it."

She motioned to a seat beside her on the bench beneath the crimson lambs-ear, and began telling him all about it.

Presently Ellen came tripping back through the hall. She saw them facing each other on the bench, talking Virginia both at once. Duke reached up, plucked a rose that hung above his head, and Ellen heard him say:

"I remember a fine young fellow there named Cameron, Ferguson."

"My brother, he died—last winter."

"I'm sorry," he whispered, "I did not know."

Ellen called them to breakfast. When Anita rose from the bench her eyes shone mistily, but her lips were smiling. At table she brightened up and talked enthusiastically about her fishing experience of the day before.

"All right," Duke snatched at the opportunity. "We'll try it after breakfast, before the sun gets too hot."

He could scarcely believe his good luck when he found himself trudging down the path toward Riah's blacksmith shop, with a two gallon jug under each arm. Every few minutes he glanced back at the brown skirt coming on behind him. The little feet seemed to step so daintily that dust would not stick to them.

"Aren't you afraid of that pistol?" he asked, nodding at the heavy Colt's which Maj. Patterson had handed her as she left the house.

"Oh, dear no, I can shoot. Uncle Riah says you have to shoot them right under the gills. I hope we'll catch one."

They hurried down the dusty road and cut across a patch of dog-fennel to the blacksmith shop. Old Riah stopped hammering on a horseshoe when he saw Noel Duke trailing through the yellow weeds with Anita at his heels.

"Good morning, Uncle Riah," she called in gaily at the door.

"Mornin', l' miss."

"Mr. Duke and I want to go jugging for gar, won't you fix our hooks?"

"You sho did come to de tight pusion, l' miss—mornin', Mister Duke."

Riah stepped to the door and gazed critically across the lake.

"Pow! fine day ter gyar-fishes, tain't a bit o' win." But, Lordy, chile, dis sun'll burn you blacker 'n a nigger. Hit p'intedly do blister white folks out dar on de water."

"That's what Miss Ellen says: I brought these gloves and sunbonet."

Duke laid down his jug for Riah's inspection.

"Dem jugs is all right, Mister Duke; lemme see 'o' hooks. Dey's a leetle teeny but too light, but I speck I kin make 'em do."

"All right, go ahead, you're the doctor."

While Riah fixed the hooks Duke

not matter; he would be quite satisfied whichever way they went. The girl nodded, and she seemed to know what she was about.

They were alone, and Duke saw no reason to hurry. His leisurely stroke carried them toward the lake. He tossed the jug's board perhaps 100 yards apart, and kept straight across to the shade of an overhanging willow. He pushed the boat beneath it, caught a branch to keep from drifting, and sat face to face with Anita.

For awhile she met his eyes frankly. They talked of her home, her people, the differences between Virginia and Mississippi.

"It's so flat back," she complained, her heart turning back to the mountains.

Then it was that he said something—or perhaps it was the way he looked when he said it. Anita flushed, turned her head aside, and the rim of that sunbonet shut him out of paradise.

She gazed down into the water, at the duplicate mystery of space, above, below. They floated on a shimmering veil, midway between two languid heavens. The lake rested infinitely deep and motionless, save where her dabbling fingers distorted its reflection of the sky. The ripples that their boat had raised still lapped at either shore. The lake heaved, and murmured gently, as a sleeping infant breathes.

Suddenly she sprang erect in the boat. "There's one; there's one!"

"There's what?" Duke had forgot that they were fishing.

"Look at the jug! Look at the jug!" she shouted.

One of their jugs bobbed frantically up and down, then disappeared.

"Oh, he's gone; no, there he is again, pull! pull!"

Their jug bounded to the surface and dashed madly up the lake.

Duke fitted his oars to the locks.

THE BIG FISH JUMPED.

talked to Anita, and beat a tattoo on a wagon body with a couple of spokes. He didn't care particularly whether he went fishing or not.

Presently Riah came out with the hooks firmly bound together, three and three. "Now, dis'll hol' 'em cways come home. Is you got any bait?"

Anita produced a piece of fresh meat wrapped in brown paper.

"Dat'll do, dat'll do fine, mos' anything is good enuff ter a gyar fish, gyar fish is like er lugger, he ant got no business bein' p'ticular. What's 'o' landin' hook?"

Duke shook his head. "What's that?"

The negro chuckled. "Thought I'd ketch you after while; white folks can't git 'long 'thout niggers when it comes to fishin'."

Riah went back and rummaged around the shop until he found a stout non hook fixed in a hickory shaft. "I uses dis fer catfishes; dat's to hutch in 's gills an' pull 'em up wid."

Riah's tongue and fingers worked harmoniously. He fastened about four feet of wire next the hooks, bound them to the line, tied the line to the jug handles, and talked all the time. When he was done his tackle looked like a drag anchor for a balloon.

"Ef you don't put 'em on wid wire de gyar fish'll sho chaw you line in two. Now, dor you are, sub, all ready."

Duke gathered up his tackle, and started for the lake, with Anita going on ahead.

Ellen's tight little clinker-built skiff floated like an egg-shell. Duke threw off his coat.

"I reckon I'll have to do the work," he remarked. The man's powerful shoulders looked as though they might jerk that tiny boat out of the water at every stroke. Anita adjusted the blue sunbonet and took her seat in the stern, prepared to steer.

"Are you used to steering?" He asked the question; but it really did

"Sit down, Miss Cameron, hold her straight for the jug now!"

They whirled like a weathercock when he threw his weight upon the oars. Their boat leaped forward, lifting her prow from the water at every stroke.

Anita's eyes sparkled; she leaned forward and steered with the ease of long practice. He could tell from the expression of her face what the jug was doing. And he had rather watch her face than watch the jug.

"He's way ahead; he's getting away. Oh, dear, it's no use. I wish we'd brought another pair of oars."

Duke glanced over his shoulder. "He can't go very far, unless he gets clear out of the lake. He's bound to go ashore on that sand-bar, or come back."

The man rested on his oars, wiped his face and watched that streak of spray until it turned back again. Then the long white trail came hissing down the lake toward him. Time after time the big fish jumped clear of the water, and plunged on.

"Head him off! There! Now pull!" Anita shouted, and swung the tiller.

Duke pulled a magnificent stroke; it seemed that their boat and the fish must collide. He stopped rowing, cocked his pistol and knelt in the bow. Both of them distinctly saw the scaly brown body darting through the water about four feet ahead of the jug.

"Hold tight, Miss Cameron," Duke cautioned her, "he's going to foul us."

Dieting Is Simple.

Secretary Taft is vastly proud of the fact that he has reduced his weight by 70 pounds. For a time his rigid regimen kept him pale, but now he is getting back some of his ruddy complexion. "Diet is the thing," he said to a stout friend the other day.

"But how do you go about it?" was asked. "Oh, it's very simple. Just cut out everything you like."

LUNCHEON Dainties

PROPER METHOD OF PREPARING SANDWICHES.

Mayonnaise Should Be Spread with an Eye to Prevent the Soiling of Gloves—Oyster Roast a Popular Dish.

"Sandwiches are so messy that I have come to refusing them entirely at teas and receptions," said a woman who had sacrificed several pairs of nice gloves to mayonnaise or creamy sandwiches. Her prejudice against these morsels of food, so inevitable an offering at any place where a half dozen people meet, would not have been so strong had the sandwiches been properly made. Where a soft filling or mayonnaise is used it should not be spread to the extreme edges of the bread. At least an eighth of an inch all round will save soiling the gloves.

Rolls and sandwiches are the most dainty of all, and are most frequently made without any filling more than a thin coating of butter. The bread must be less than 12 hours old, and if but barely cool it can be used. Have a sharp knife and cut it very thin. Bread that is more than half a day old is too tender and crumbly. Never let economy extend to leaving even a fragment of a crust on the bread used for sandwiches. It is easier and more saving to trim the loaf rather than the thinly sliced bread.

Parsian Sandwiches—Mince some cold cooked fish fine after freeing from skin and bones; season with salt and pepper and add five hard-boiled eggs chopped fine, a tablespoon of capers chopped, and enough mayonnaise to moisten. Mix well, spread between thin slices of buttered bread.

Egg Sandwiches—Boil some eggs hard and rub the yolks to a fine powder. Spread finely chopped watercress on thin buttered bread, cover with the egg, and lay on the other half of the sandwich. For a second sort of sandwiches use the minced watercress and chopped whites of the eggs. Take white bread for these sandwiches.

Oyster Roast—To one-half cup of oyster liquor add one level teaspoon of salt, one rounding tablespoon of butter, two teaspoons of catchup, and a rounding tablespoon of chopped sweet pepper. Put in one dozen large oysters and turn into a small baking dish and set in a hot oven until the edges curl. Turn on hot buttered toast.

Roquefort Sandwiches—Rub a rounding tablespoon of butter to a cream with a piece of Roquefort cheese twice as large and use as a filling for whole wheat sandwiches cut thin.

Pink Sandwiches—Slice bread thin and cut in rounds with a biscuit cutter. Beat some cheese smooth and add enough currant jelly to color a pink, lay on a second rounding and press hard.

Olive Sandwiches—Chop one dozen stoned olives and work into a little roll of creamed cheese. Use as a filling for brown bread sandwiches.

Oyster Salad—Select large oysters and heat in their own liquor until they become plump and begin to rattle. Drain, dust with salt and paprika and a few drops of lemon juice. Chill, and if too large cut in halves. Serve with mayonnaise in lettuce leaves and garnish with capers.

Oyster Cocktails—Put five small oysters in each glass and pour on a tablespoon of the following sauce: Mix two tablespoons of grated horseradish, two tablespoons of vinegar, one teaspoon of tabasco, two tablespoons of Worcestershire sauce, four tablespoons of lemon juice, two tablespoons tomato catchup, and one level teaspoonful of salt.

Mint Sandwiches—Wash the sprigs of mint and dry on a piece of cheese cloth, grind or chop fine, add thick cream to make a paste. Spread between thin slices of buttered bread.

The Vogue of Armlets—Armlets to hold up the long gloves now so much worn are among the latest novelties. Of course they are not worn except for gloves which come to the shoulder. Girls who dance say they are a great invention. One pretty pair recently made had ruffles of white satin ribbon, where these suffices met in the middle of the piece of silk elastic was hidden by a band of tiny artificial forget-me-nots sewn down very flat. Another pretty pair was made with ruffles of spangled gauze, and the joining concealed by a narrow gold ribbon. Still another pair had no ruffles, but the elastic was entirely covered with flat turquoise beads.

Taste in Ornaments—There should never be many ornamental ornaments—the fewer the better—and it is important that they should be in keeping with the room. A Dresden china figure is not, for instance, fitted to the appropriately decorated library or dining-room, and in turn heavy crockery is not used in the parlor. Candlesticks are ornaments, however, which look well in almost any room, and these in brass, silver or glass, at each end of a mantelpiece are always suitable and attractive. Tall brass sconces are also used.

Mats Under Hot Dishes—Table mats of raffia or straw look incongruous on a dainty white damask table cloth. The housewife who feels the need of something under hot dishes is advised to cut asbestos cloth into the desired shape and size, and make a white linen case to cover it, hemming the open ends so that frequent laundering may not increase her work.—Interior Decoration.

DISFIGURED WITH ECZEMA.

Brushed Scales from Face Like Powder—Under Physicians Grew Worse—Cuticura Works Wonders.

"I suffered with eczema six months. I had tried three doctors, but did not get any better. It was on my body and on my feet so thick that I could hardly put a pin on me without touching eczema. My face was covered, my eyebrows came out, and then it got in my eye. I then went to another doctor. He asked me what I was taking for it, and I told him Cuticura. He said that was a very good thing, but that he thought my face would be marked for life. But Cuticura did its work, and my face is now just as clear as it ever was. I told all my friends about my remarkable cure. I feel so thankful. I want everybody far and wide to know what Cuticura can do. It is a sure cure for eczema. Mrs. Emma White, 641 Cherrier Place, Camden, N. J., April 25, 1905."

LITTLE THINGS AND BIG.

Differentiate Between the Essential and the Non-Essential.

Little things are often of great importance, but when they are so they are not little. The pinon of a watch, for example, in one sense is little; in another sense it is not so at all; for when it is not perfectly adjusted, the watch is worthless for time-keeping. It is not size that makes a thing little or great, but its relation to the end for which a number of things are combined. If a thing is essential it is important. Because so many of the people who are always preaching the importance of little things fail to discriminate between the little and the non-essential, they often make a wretched mess of the management of their own and other people's affairs. Theoretically, if every factor that contributes to a result is perfect, the result will be perfect, but practically, for want of time, strength and opportunity, the efficient man is compelled to neglect some things for the sake of others, and, in order to do this and yet secure the main end, he has to discriminate between the essential and the non-essential. The one who is thoroughly imbued with the false doctrine of the importance of little things, spends his strength without discrimination, and usually succeeds in missing the main chance.—The Watchman.

Animals Do with Little Water.

There are some animals which rarely drink, for instance, the llamas, of Patagonia, and certain gazelles of the far east. A number of snakes, lizards and other reptiles live in places devoid of water. A bat of western America inhabits waterless plains. In parts of Lozere, France, there are herds of cows and goats which hardly ever drink and yet produce the milk for Roquefort cheese.

COPPER SAFE FROM LIGHTNING.

Belief Firmly Held in Many Parts of the Country.

"This matter of superstitions is a queer thing," said the man as he carefully avoided walking under a ladder. "For even those of us who are skeptics have at least one superstitious failing, and mine is walking under ladders."

"In the country this summer I met a new one, which was firmly believed in by several farmers, and that was that a thunder storm never passed over a copper mine or copper vein. The old fellow who told me about it pointed out again and again that although black clouds might roll up and lightning flash, the storm always went around a certain spot in his farm."

"Such actions on the part of a thunder storm could mean but one thing, he said—that there was a copper vein there. So sure was he of it, that he was putting by a little each year to have the spot investigated to see if there was copper enough in it to work."

WOMEN WHO CHARM.

HEALTH IS THE FIRST ESSENTIAL.

It Helps Women to Win and Hold Men's Admiration, Respect and Love.

Woman's greatest gift is the power to inspire admiration, respect, and love. There is a beauty in health which is more attractive to men than mere regularity of feature.

Mrs. Chas. F. Brown.

To be a successful wife, to retain the love and admiration of her husband, should be a woman's constant study. At the first indication of ill-health, painful or irregular periods, headache or backache, secure Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begin its use.

Mrs. Chas. F. Brown, Vice-President Mothers' Club, 21 Cedar Terrace, Hot Springs, Ark., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—For nine years I dragged through a miserable existence, suffering with inflammation and female weakness and worn out with pain and weakness. I once day noticed a statement by a woman suffering as I was, but who had been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I determined to try it. At the end of three months I was a different woman. Every one remarked about it, and my husband fell in love with me all over again. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound built up my entire system, cured my trouble, and I felt like a new woman. I am sure it will make every suffering woman strong, well and happy, as it has me.

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, bloating or flatulence, displacement, inflammation or ulceration, that "bearing-down" feeling, dizziness, faintness, indigestion, or nervous prostration may be restored to perfect health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

A DAUGHTER OF JUDEA

By FLORENCE EDITH AUSTIN

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles)

Shalmal was just a Rebeccaesque, beset with the "ochre" of Nazareth. She had been imported to this country by an enterprising manufacturer who knew the commercial value of a pair of luminous oriental eyes, of an olive skin with lips and cheeks the red of the almond, and of a sugar-sweet voice to vend his machine-embroidered fabrics as real Syrian handwrought stuffs.

Shalmal's success at coining shekels and spoiling the Egyptians ought to have satisfied any rational man, but the money-microbe had diseased the American's business acumen; and either he had never heard or he willfully ignored the old pagan precept that an educated woman was a flight of steps leading to calamity, for, during the idle season, with the idea of increasing her commercial value, he enrolled Shalmal in a mission school where "educational fees are up-charged and both books and instruction come free."

Through a fateful coincidence, the allurements of a linguistic education—that is, a greater familiarity with the colloquial dialects of the orient than is acquired in a college course, had influenced one Emory Kernish to become an instructor in this same evangelical institution where nomadic Semites were wont to gather in unfraternal numbers.

Shalmal was truly a vision of oriental loveliness, dusky and deep-tinted. The sandal-wood and spice mysteries of the incense bath were wafted in delicious zephyrs from her gay striped garments. She shone an immaculate exception among that throng of "great unwashed"—and from his first-surprised glance the fastidious Kernish was infatuated with her.

But Kernish was a pious young occultist, and in no haste to commit himself to words. In truth, when away from the witchery of Shalmal's

"No-o—we get more monies by selling them," confessed Shalmal courageously. "I lie to you once, but I no lie now—I Chrestian."

But the un-American American failed to appreciate the superiority of domestic stuffs or the beauties of native talent; and with each rash admission the warm smile of welcome would gradually relax until Shalmal saw only a look of cold disdain—the novelty of hearing the truth was too recent an innovation yet to encourage as a fad. The disillusioned customer would put away her purse with a defrauded air, and the embryo reformer would fold up her goods and go on from village to village along her suburban route.

Three weeks of tribulations sufficient to discourage one to the religion born, then Shalmal was reduced to her last rootlet "of all evil."

Her employer wondered then grew wrothy, and finally anxious; as her reports came from the various towns—she was making such small sales that one machine could overstock her market, while she was not realizing enough in profits to provide her with the essentials of life. Vexed and perplexed at this sudden turn of affairs, he was conjecturing whether it was Shalmal's lack of learning that had sold his goods so readily "before taking," or whether it was her over-educational education that was losing sales for them now, when Kernish came into the office to hear somewhat of her, and to him the manufacturer of Illinois oriental embroideries relayed his mind with regard to his fears for Shalmal and also his opinion of the folly of that pledge.

With the eagerness of a lover longing for a pretext to again look on his adored, Kernish volunteered to go out as a rescue expedition to the too thoroughly Christianized convert.

Whatever Emory Kernish's original intentions may have been, they seemed to undergo a subtle change on realizing the ravages that her weeks of hardship had wrought on Shalmal.

He came upon her as she was dragging herself and her pack through the slush of a country road. Her gay garments were wind and weather frayed; she was soiled, exhausted, disheveled—she appeared no longer a dethroned princess of the house of Judah. With the trampling of her fine leathers Shalmal lost caste with her suitor—and the expression that came over his face was neither saintly nor pleasant to look upon.

But Shalmal saw only her lover of the mission coming to meet her, and she fell into his arms with the limpness of a rag doll and wept her glad relief.

"Why, Shalmal!" he exclaimed.

"I have kept the pledge, but behold to what it has brought me," and she hushed her sobs to hear the commendation of her Christian lover. It came.

"It was a foolish promise to make, and a more foolish compact to keep. But it is over now. You must leave the reforming of the world to those better able to cope with it. Your place is here, safe sheltered in my arms, beloved, and I will care for you forever and forever."

Her tears sprinkled him afresh, like April showers with the sunbeams shining through, as he kissed the pomegranate glow back into her cheek, and consoled her with forecasts of a future where he and she were soon to journey back to the shores of the azure sea and there live just for each other.

"We will have one grand wedding at the mission," mused Shalmal, with blissful naivete.

Kernish flushed guiltily, then faltered: "It won't be necessary—a marriage just now might be fatal to my prospects." Shalmal's stunned silence encouraged him and, drawing her closer, he went on more glibly: "Ceremonies are merely form, Shalmal. Marriage is simply a business contract, and no more requires the services of a preacher than an ordinary partnership requires the intervention of an attorney. A covenant between two loving hearts should be more sacred than the ordained phrases of the ritual. I hereby promise to love and cherish you with a greater constancy than many who require a legal oath to hold them," and he stooped to kiss the ripe red mouth, but Shalmal sprang away from him in sudden realizing horror.

"Is this what you Chrestians call following in His Steps?" she cried out in sharp pain.

"Not exactly in His Steps, but in the footprints of others less perfect—Solomon's, David's, and—be reasonable—wait, Shalmal!" But Shalmal had caught up her pack and fled like a frightened fawn across the fields, leaving Kernish much disturbed as to the report of him she might carry back to the mission, and its possible effect upon his consular expectations.

When safely lost from Kernish in the shadows of the early twilight, Shalmal sank down on a bunch of brushwood to think over things and to weep out the last galling drop of her disillusionment.

Then she took a little calendar from her pocket and calculated carefully: "Selah!—this is the last day of the pledge!" she sighed in forlorn relief; and to-morrow—well, it is too hard to be a Chrestian in a Chrestian country."

WHAT WE OWE TO INSECTS.

They Are of the Greatest Benefit to Growing Flowers.

Prof. Darwin said that if it had not been for insects we should never have had any more imposing or attractive flowers than those of the elm, the hop and the nettle. Lord Avebury compares the work of the insect to that of the florist. He considers that just as the florist has by selection produced the elegant blossoms of the garden, so the insects, by selecting the largest and brightest blossoms for fertilization, have produced the gay flowers of the field. Prof. Plateau, of Ghent, has carried out a series of remarkable experiments on the ways of insects visiting flowers. He considers that they are guided by scent rather than by color, and in the connection he is at variance with certain British naturalists. Whatever may be the attraction in flowers to insects—as yet, it appears undefined—it is certain that the latter visit freely all blossoms alike, making no distinction between the large, brightly colored ones and the less conspicuous blossoms like those of the currants, the lime, the planetree, the nettle and the willow.

Latest Fad in "Society."

The latest fad in certain eastern society circles is to be glum and cross. One phase of this more than usually absurd affectation takes the form of ignoring letters of introduction and this lack of consideration has roused family feuds in several cases. One wealthy young Italian who is a member of one of the best Roman families, went to Newport this summer with many letters from prominent persons. But he has found it impossible to present them. "It is foolish to expect anything from social leaders these days and the stranger who asks to be received by letter has a hard time of it," said a young man whose letter to a society matron was ignored.

Some lawyers who fail at their practice imagine it is up to them to preach.

INTERESTING CONTEST.

Heavy Cost of Unpaid Postage.

One of the most curious contests ever before the public was conducted by many thousand persons under the offer of the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., of Battle Creek, Mich., for prizes of 31 boxes of gold and 300 greenbacks to those making the most words out of the letters YIO Grape-Nuts.

The contest was started in February, 1906, and it was arranged to have the prizes awarded on Apr. 30, 1906.

When the public announcement appeared many persons began to form the words from these letters, sometimes the whole family being occupied evenings, a combination of amusement and education.

After a while the lists began to come in to the Postum Office and before long the volume grew until it required wagons to carry the mail. Many of the contestants were thoughtful enough to send their lists with insufficient postage and for a period it cost the company from twenty-five to fifty-eight and sixty dollars a day to pay the unpaid postage.

Young ladies, generally those who had graduated from the high school, were employed to examine these lists and count the correct words. Webster's Dictionary was the standard and each list was very carefully corrected except those which fell below $800 for it soon became clear that nothing below that could win. Some of the lists required the work of a young lady for a solid week on each individual list. The work was done very carefully and accurately but the company had no idea, at the time the offer was made, that the people would respond so generally and they were compelled to fill every available space in the offices with these young lady examiners, and notwithstanding they worked steadily, it was impossible to complete the examination until Sept. 29, over six months after the prizes should have been awarded.

This delay caused a great many inquiries and naturally created some dissatisfaction. It has been thought best to make this report in practically all of the newspapers in the United States and many of the magazines in order to make clear to the people the conditions of the contest.

Many lists contained enormous numbers of words which, under the rules, had to be eliminated. "Peggers" would count "Peggers" would not. Some lists contained over 50,000 words, the great majority of which were cut out. The largest lists were checked over two and in some cases three times to insure accuracy.

The $100.00 gold prize was won by L. D. Reese, 1227-15th St., Denver, Colo., with 9941 correct words. The highest $10.00 gold prize went to S. K. Fraser, Lincoln, Pa., with 9921 correct words.

A complete list of the 331 winners with their home addresses will be sent to any contestant enquiring on a postal card.

Be sure and give name and address clearly.

This contest has cost the Co. many thousand dollars, and probably has not been a profitable advertisement, nevertheless perhaps some who had never before tried Grape-Nuts food have been interested in the contest, and from trial of the food have been shown its wonderful rebuilding powers.

It teaches in a practicable manner that scientifically gathered food elements can be selected from the field grains, which nature will use for rebuilding the nerve centres and brain in a way that is unmistakable to users of Grape-Nuts.

How a Veteran Was Saved the Amputation of a Limb.

B. Frank Doremus, veteran, of Roosevelt Ave., Indianapolis, Ind., says: "I had been showing symptoms of kidney trouble from the time I was mustered out of the army, but in all my life I never suffered as in 1897. Head-aches, dizziness and sleeplessness, first, and then dropsy. I was weak and helpless, having run down from 180 to 125 pounds. I was having terrible pain in the kidneys, and the secretions passed almost involuntarily. My left leg swelled until it was 34 inches around, and the doctor tapped it night and morning until I could no longer stand it; and then he advised amputation. I refused, and began using Doan's Kidney Pills. The swelling subsided gradually, the aches became natural, and all my pains and aches disappeared. I have been well now for nine years since using Doan's Kidney Pills. For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y."

Kept Tax Receipts Long.

Charles King of East Liberty, a suburb of Pittsburgh, is what might be termed a careful man. He has been a voter in the East Liberty district since 1857 and when asked on the last registration day if he had a tax receipt he replied that if he went down deep into his "strong box" at home he might possibly find a few dating long back before the oldest member of the board was born. Mr. King is now 78 years old having been born in Baltimore in 1828, removing to East Liberty in 1857. His first presidential vote was cast for John C. Fremont and his last for Theodore Roosevelt. He is a staunch Republican and as a contractor and brick manufacturer for half a century has contributed much to the upbuilding and growth of East Liberty.

THE WINNING STROKE

If more than ordinary skill in playing brings the honors of the game to the winning player, so exceptional merit in a remedy ensures the commendation of the well informed, and as a reasonable amount of outdoor life and recreation is conducive to the health and strength, so does a perfect laxative tend to one's improvement in cases of constipation, biliousness, headaches, etc. It is all important, however, in selecting a laxative, to choose one of known quality and excellence, like the ever pleasant Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., a laxative which sweetens and cleanses the system effectually, when a laxative is needed, without any unpleasant after effects, as it acts naturally and gently on the internal organs, simply assisting nature when nature needs assistance, without griping, irritating or debauching the internal organs in any way, as it contains nothing of an objectionable or injurious nature. As the plants which are combined with the figs in the manufacture of Syrup of Figs are known to physicians to act most beneficially upon the system, the remedy has met with their general approval as a family laxative, a fact well worth considering in making purchases.

It is because of the fact that SYRUP OF FIGS is a remedy of known quality and excellence, and approved by physicians that has led to its use by so many millions of well informed people, who would not use any remedy of uncertain quality or inferior reputation. Every family should have a bottle of the genuine on hand at all times, to use when a laxative remedy is required. Please to remember that the genuine Syrup of Figs is for sale in bottles of one size only, by all reputable druggists, and that full name of the company—California Fig Syrup Co., is plainly printed on the front of every package. Regular price, 50c per bottle.

"Your Place Is Here. Safe Sheltered in My Arms."

presence, he would argue with himself the pros and cons of such a mating, and to his calmer judgment it seemed rank folly for him when women of his own race and station were as plentiful as June roses, and to be had for the picking. But in the meanwhile he devoted himself to Shalmal's especial instruction.

It was at this time that an unusual book, called in His Steps, was exciting a national interest, and the reading lessons at the mission were assigned from it. It was a story of how some people in a western town attempted to apply the principles of Christianity to their everyday life and carry it into their business. The results depicted were in every instance in somewhat the nature of a Golgotha; and yet, scorning crucifixion an emulative enthusiasm swept the mission school, and, hoping by their united example to charm the world to applied Christianity, a society was formed of those who would pledge themselves for a specific time to do just as Shalmal's holy countryman would if he were in their place.

With serious misgivings Shalmal subscribed her Hebrew name to the role of Christians. She knew the people and she knew the tricks of trade, but her conversion was too sincere for peevish use only.

It was the month preceding the holidays when the momentous compact was entered into, and it was also the hottest season for one in Shalmal's line. So, with a tiny silver "In His Steps" cross hanging upon her breast and a heavier one weighing her heart, she took her packing cases of embroidered spreads and cushion covers and draped, unknown to the Holy Land and started out over the old familiar friendly route.

Her employer's parting advice to make her conscience elastic wherever her pledge and business might clash had only made her the more determined to live up to it faithfully. He had warned her that she would find silence more golden than truth—but a frenzy for truth telling had seized upon Shalmal. She was prodigal with it and reckless as to results.

"No, ladies," she would say at every house, with an accent that echoed of Nazareth. "I am oriental, but my embroideries are from Chicago."

"They are made by Syrians living there," would persist the intending purchaser.
