WARMLY WELCOMED

TOWNSEND AND KELLEY HAD GREAT TRIP IN WAYNE.

"Townsend for Senator" Heard at Every Stop Made.

Large and enthusiastic audiences greeted Congressman Townsend and Pat Kelley in their automobile trip through Wayne County Saturday and whenever "U. S. Senator" was suggested by any of the chairmen or speakers the audiences simply "tore things" in Townsend's behalf.

Only a "shake hand" was indulged in at Rockwood. At Flat Rock there were about 100 present and both Townsend and Kelley were heartily greeted as were also the county candidates and Representative Benton, who accompanied the party.

At New Boston a good sized crowd were on hand and at Romulus the hall was filled.

Belleville was really the banner meeting where the large hall was filled by upwards of 300 enthusiastic persons.

Benton, Townsend, Kelley, Burke and Dever were the speakers. Benton gave the old tax commission tactics a hot dig and suggested some legislation for improvement. He lauded the work of Governor Warner in the people's behalf and renewed his championship of Townsend for U. S. Senator to the delight of the crowd.

Pat Kelley did himself proud and was repeatedly referred to as the governor of Michigan in 1909.

Townsend made his usual brilliant address and repeated his wish that the people this year could vote direct for U. S. senator. He paid a glowing tribute to all the nominees for county office on the Republican ticket as well as Governor Warner and the state offices.

Dever for Sheriff and Burke for Prosecutor made well received talks and Burke especially made a brilliant address and certainly made a hit upon every occasion. All the speakers referred to his important work in the Attorney General's office in the tax fight against the railroads.

The trip closed with a big meeting at Northville where the same marked enthusiasm was manifest. The Cadillac company furnished the touring car and it waded through twelve inch mud in many places, in elegant shape.

The Northville Opera House was filled to more than its seating capacity and the large audience was both appreciative and enthusiastic. Both Mr. Townsend and Mr. Kelley made brilliant addresses and Rep Benton also gave the audience a rattling good talk. Like every other place where the Congressman has made his appearance the audience served notice on its legislative candidates that they wanted Townsend for U. S. Senator.

O. P. Gully, candidate for Register of Deeds joined the party at Northville and brought along his quartette which entertained the crowd nicely.

CHARLES HORTON DIED SATURDAY

AT HIS HOME IN OMAHA, NEBRASKA.

Was Formerly a Resident of Northville.

Charles B. Horton, Superintendent of the Western Division for the Western Union Telegraph Co., a former well known resident of this place, died at his home in Omaha, Nebraska, Saturday, Oct. 20, of a complication of diseases. He had been out of health for a year past and came to Ypsilanti a few weeks ago to consult his father-in-law, Dr. J. M. Hueston, at the same time visiting Northville friends. He became much better, but was taken suddenly worse only a week before his death.

Mr. Horton was a brother of the late E. S. Horton and a nephew of Capt. E. K. Simonds of this place. He went to Nebraska with his parents when a boy and when fifteen years of age, drove a ten-ox team for his father when the latter transported across the plains the first gold crusher ever taken to Pike's peak.

Mr. Horton served two years in the civil war and also participated in Indian fighting in the west. He returned to Michigan after the war and was married to Miss Mary Hueston of this place.

After his second return to the west Mr. Horton followed his business as a telegraph operator, rising steadily until he attained the high position he held at the time of his death. The territory under his supervision comprised seven states.

He leaves a widow and three sons, two married and one residing at home. The funeral was held on Tuesday.

Walter—McCowan.

A quiet wedding was celebrated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McCowan of Novi at six o'clock, Sunday evening, Oct. 21, 1906, when their daughter, T. Belle, was united in marriage to Mr. Claude H. Walter of Northville. Only a few of the immediate relatives and friends were present, among whom were the following: Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Walter and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ware of Northville, Mr. and Mrs. Collins, Miss Alma Reader and Miss Mae McCowan of Novi. After the short and impressive ceremony a most delicious supper was served.

A large number of beautiful presents were received. Mr. and Mrs. Walter left by the way of Detroit for Traverse City where they will spend a few days, with Mrs. Walter's brother, after which they will be at home in Chicago. The best wishes of their many friends go with them.

New School Building Assured.

The special school meeting held Tuesday night resulted in the question of bonding the district for funds for a new school building, carrying by a vote of 38 to 7. The proposition to raise $3,000 by tax was carried unanimously. The plan as outlined is to put up a building for high school purposes exclusively on the south side of the school lot. The building is to cost $10,000, $3,000 of the sum to be spread on the tax roll as stated, the bonds for the remaining $7,000 to be for $1,400 each, one to be paid each year for five years. The taxpayers of the district are to be congratulated on thus taking advantage of the present opportunity to do so easily what had to be done in any event.

SUDDEN DEATH

William Parmenter of Walled Lake Died Yesterday.

Walled Lake, Oct. 25.—(Special).—William Parmenter, aged 79 years, died very suddenly soon after eating a hearty dinner at his home here today of heart trouble. He leaves a widow and two sons, Will of Pontiac and Fred a merchant of this place. Major Parmenter of Northville is a brother.

Miss Ethel West Dead.

After a long illness Miss Ethel West, daughter of Mrs. Cora West, of Northside died Wednesday night. She was about 17 years of age and a much respected young lady.

Brief services will be held from the home today and the burial will be at Highland. Rev. S. F. Dummock will officiate.

Presbyterian Church Notes.

[By the Pastor.]

The subject of the sermon next Sunday morning will be "First Things First."

The young people's meeting is now held at 6:30, just before the usual preaching service.

The decoration of the pulpit platform last Sunday with autumn leaves was very effective.

Rev. E. E. Davidson was a guest at the Manse on Saturday. He begins work with the Pontiac Presbyterian church next Sunday.

A largely attended social of the young people was held at the Manse Friday evening. Plans of work were discussed and the following officers elected: President, Miss Grace Yerkes; vice president, Sam Penfield; secretary, Miss Hazel Palmer; treasurer, James F. Dubuar.

Methodist Church Notes.

[By the Pastor.]

The ladies of the church intend serving a chicken-pie supper on Wednesday evening next. (Halloween) The ladies ask for your presence—they will do the rest. Supper 25 cents.

Public worship next Sunday at the usual hour. Reception of new members in the morning. In the evening the pastor will preach from the subject, "The Two Fools." Don't fail to be present.

There are 306 Sunday schools in the Detroit conference with a membership of 92,071 scholars. There are 500,000 boys and girls in Michigan outside the Sunday schools. What does that mean?

On Tuesday afternoon we enjoyed a visit with two of our brethren in the ministry and their wives, Rev. C. W. Clemons of Salem and L. H. Stevens of Walled Lake. We would like to see them more often.

On Sunday afternoon at 3 p. m. the pastor will speak on "The Origin of the Methodist Episcopal Church." All wishing to hear this subject are cordially invited to be present. Meeting will be opened with song service. Bring the book used at the revival meetings.

DE-TAN-ATED COFFEE!

Read what Tufts College of Medical Chemistry of Boston says about it

October 24, 1906.
"I have made an analysis of De-Tan-Ated India Coffee and find that it is of the greatest purity, no adulterations having been found, either by chemical or microscopical means. Furthermore, by purely mechanical treatment the cellulose containing 85 per cent tannic acid has been removed, thereby leaving the remainder, richer in these substances, caffeine and caffeine, which render De-Tan-Ated India Coffee more valuable as a beverage and less harmful as a stimulant." A. E. AUSTIN, Med. Director.

Old Parliament House, Dublin, Where New Irish Council May Meet.

The old Parliament House in Dublin, in which, it is expected, the new Irish council, or parliament, soon to be erected, will hold its sessions, is one of the historic buildings of the old world. It stands in what is known as College Green, and is placed nearly at right angles with the west front of Dublin University. At present the structure is used as the head offices of the Bank of Ireland, but before its rooms were arranged for banking purposes the apartments of the old Parliament House were spacious and eminently fitted for the purposes for which they had been constructed. The room where the house of commons met was circular in form and about fifty feet in diameter. All around the commons room was a beautiful corridor, giving access to committee rooms, cloakrooms, etc. The chamber in which the house of lords met was 40 feet long by 32 feet wide. At one end was a circular niche for the throne of the English viceroy, over which was a canopy of rich crimson velvet. Artistic decorations marked both apartments, with beautiful Corinthian pillars and tapestry pictures. The first stone of the building was laid on Feb. 3, 1728, and it was completed in 1739. The independence of the Irish parliament was declared in 1782, but this was nullified by the act of union, which was adopted in 1800, and a few months later the historic structure was sold for £40,000. The expense of making arrangements for the meetings of the new Irish council would be inconsiderable. This body, as intimated, will consist of 103 members, the number of Irish members in the British house of commons, with the addition of forty-eight councilors directly elected for larger areas having a taxable value of more than $100. In the scheme, as mapped out, arrangement is made to have the chief secretary for Ireland, ex-officio chairman of the Irish council, and Irish representation at Westminster will remain as at present. The old Parliament House stands on the spot formerly occupied by the building known as Chichester House, where the first parliament convened in Ireland after the restoration assembled on May 8, 1661, and where the first parliament convened in Ireland after the wars of the revolution in 1692.

A REAL ENOCH ARDEN

SOUTH DAKOTA MAN GREW WEALTHY IN ALASKA.

Came Home After 14 Years, Found Wife Married to Another Man, but His Children Welcomed Him.

Mitchell, S. D.—The Klondike country has furnished its share of romantic stories of separated families and the return of wealthy individuals who have been grub staked and returned home with wealth untold, but there is more to the story of Judson E. Lathrop than the mere returning with gold galore, for he finds that his wife is divorced and that his mother and sister have passed away. For 14 years Lathrop had not been heard from by his relatives, and it was generally believed he was dead.

Fourteen years ago Mr. Lathrop was traveling on the road for a milling company, but very little of his money went for the comforts of his family; in fact, he did very little to support them, and they were left more or less to their own devices. This was due to the fact that his love for drink took what belonged rightfully to his wife and children. Starting out on one of his trips, he left home 14 years ago and remained away until the present, not even writing home or giving any clue to his whereabouts.

Two weeks ago he returned to his home at Appleton and informed his son Alfred, who is employed in a railroad office at Milwaukee, of his desire to renew his standing with his family. His son notified him of his acceptance after writing to his sisters, Misses Hazel and Bernice Lathrop, of this city. The meeting occurred at Summit, S. D., where Mr. Lathrop has a brother teaching school. The Misses Lathrop returned to their home here to-day and gave the incidents of their father's absence.

Mr. Lathrop started for the Klondike with $50 in cash, and on reaching Seattle he was without funds, but was taken through by a party of friends who were making the trip together. On reaching the gold fields the party went 3,000 miles into the interior and started their operations. At the end of five years Mr. Lathrop had amassed $20,000, and with that he started back home. On reaching Ketchikan he was taken ill with the scurvy, and for one year he lay in the hospital, and when he came out he said he did not have a dollar left of his small fortune. There was nothing for him to do but to make the start all over again, and he met with better results. He secured a number of mines that were profitable and he sold out a portion of them for $500,000, retaining about 20, which he still owns, besides owning a bank at Ketchikan.

Two years ago, prompted by the love that he still bore his family, he decided to return to his old home. He reached Seattle and there learned that his wife had secured a divorce and had remarried. Without more information, Mr. Lathrop turned his steps to the Klondike once more. After two years his wealth increased to a larger sum and again the longing came over him to see his relatives, and two weeks ago, he reached his former home at Appleton.

After the meeting with his children he took them to Appleton, which visit, however, was saddened by the death of his mother and his sister. He brought home golden gifts for them, and was a saddened man to find that they were not there to receive them. He has made many gifts to his home town, besides expending a large sum in decorating the graves of his mother and sister. Mr. Lathrop is now a

TO BREAK UP THE OIL TRUST.

Secretary Wilson Will Try to Do It with Potatoes.

Washington—Secretary Wilson is taking the first steps toward the establishment of a laboratory for the testing of apparatus for the use of denatured alcohol. He is establishing it on the assumption that it is his duty to assist in the discovery of burners that will consume that kind of fuel and do it in such a way that there will be a permanent market for the denatured product.

The secretary is a firm believer in the theory that an American farmer in a few years will become a rival of the Standard Oil company in the markets of the world.

The apparatus for the burning of alcohol will be tested in a scientific manner, with but little cost to the inventors. There is a big demand for burners that will bring out all the heat units contained in alcohol. The thoroughly reformed man. At Seattle and in Alaska he has given large sums of money to aid in church work. In talking with his daughters about his former drinking he urged them never to marry a man who had the slightest desire for drink, as he insisted it would grow upon him.

Mr. Lathrop will settle an annuity on his children to provide for them as long as they live, the details of which will be settled this week.

Three years after Mr. Lathrop went away his wife secured a divorce on the ground of desertion, and at that time moved out to Ashton, S. D., and made her home with relatives. Nine years ago she was married to L. W. Seaman, of this city, a wealthy ranch and stock owner, who owns a handsome residence near the business district. The two daughters will continue to make their residence with him. Both are accomplished young ladies, Miss Hazel being an exceptionally fine musician, both in voice and instrumental.

Mr. Lathrop expressed himself to his daughters as being satisfied with his lot and does not blame any member of his family for all that has taken place. As soon as he finishes his business in the country, which is for the purpose of buying an immense quantity of machinery for his mining plants, he will return to the Klondike country, there to pick up the thread of life.

experiment made in Europe have not resulted in the most efficient burners imaginable. Secretary Wilson believes that American inventors will be able to solve the problem of how to burn alcohol in a way that will make it a competitor with oil, but the inventors will need encouragement and he is getting ready to give it.

Potatoes are the vegetable from which the secretary expects the farmers to make the alcohol that is to drive farm machinery, light the houses of people not living near gas and electric light plants, and furnish the fuel that will be cheaper than gas or coal. There is a variety that is not edible that is said to be rich in the materials that will make alcohol, and with that the department will also conduct experiments.

The denatured alcohol law goes into effect on Jan. 1 and the treasury department is making regulations for the new industry.

top of the fourth mountain, distant about nine miles from her home.

She had been away over 50 hours, and had had nothing to eat or drink after leaving home, and had slept in the woods two nights, hearing on all sides the roar of the wild animals which infest the mountains.

Drenched to the skin from the heavy rain, the old woman presented a pitiful spectacle, her clothing being torn from her body and her hands and feet badly cut and bruised from climbing over and falling on the huge rocks. She was brought home, and, although in a serious condition from the exposure to which she was subjected, her recovery is expected.

Both Eyes Rarely Equal.

Many persons who think their sight perfect have a greater visual power in one eye than in the other. With regard to the respective power of the right and left eye a well-known optician finds that a person occupied in writing all day has as a rule stronger vision in the left. Writing with the right hand and his left arm resting on the table, his left eye is nearer his work and its vision is more concentrated. This expert says that our race will never become so short sighted as the German while football, tennis, hockey, etc., are encouraged in our public schools.

$10,000 for a Book of Poems.

London.—An American bibliophile has secured for $10,000 a volume of poems of the late sixteenth and early seventeenth century, including Shakespeare's "The Passionate Pilgrim." It is believed that only one other copy is in existence—that in the Bodleian library at Oxford.

Met Horrible Death.

Edgar-Gifford, chief engineer of the steamer Mary, met a horrible death in the engine room of the boat on Lake St. Clair Thursday afternoon. His clothing caught in the machinery and he was hurled round and round, his head and body beating against the floor and beams of the hold.

Gifford had gone into the hold to oil the machinery and soon the second engineer heard a peculiar thumping noise. The engine would shiver a trifle with each revolution and going into the hold to ascertain the trouble the second engineer was horrified to see Gifford's body whirling around. The engine was immediately stopped and the mangled remains were extricated and brought to Detroit.

The unfortunate man was about 50 years of age and resided in Willow, Mich. He leaves a widow and one son.

Severed Head From Body.

Eddie McGuire, 5-year-old son of Patrick McGuire, of Kichville, with several school companions climbed on a heavily loaded wagon for a ride home. The McGuire boy slipped off and the rear wheel passed over his neck and his head was practically severed from his body. His playmates knew nothing of the accident until looking behind they were horrified to see the body of the crushed lad in the road. He was instantly killed.

Claude Fields, aged 35, of Charlotte, was killed by a train on which he was conductor, at Joliet, Ill.

If Governor Warner does not come face to face with a very large majority of the people of Michigan before they will be required to pass judgment upon his administration, it will not be through lack of strenuous effort in that direction. Since the day of his first nomination, two years ago, Fred M. Warner has placed his dependence upon the people, the many who do the work of the farms and factories and mills, with whom his entire life has been closely related, and he has had their wishes and their best interests in mind in all his official work. It is not strange, therefore, that Governor Warner should wish to submit his claims for re-election directly to the people, the great majority, whom he has sincerely sought to serve.

Primary School Money.
Those who have found fault with the fact that primary school apportionments are made only twice a year, in May and November, should direct their criticism against the long-existing state law providing for the two apportionments. In the months named it has not always been true in Michigan that there was a sufficient amount in the primary school fund to make these apportionments as important as recent republican legislation has made them. This year the total amount will be $12.00 per resident pupil and hereafter about $6.00 per. Thus Northville will receive about $5,500 and not less than $3,000 per year in the future.

Michigan Congressmen.
Every vote cast for Congressmen Townsend, S. W. Smith, Denby and the other Michigan Congressmen at the coming election gives practical endorsement to that which President Roosevelt characterized, "the best work performed by any congress
during the past twenty years."
Michigan congressmen were important and helpful factors in the best legislation of the last session and the service of the representatives from this state will be of larger value in the sessions of congress to be elected two weeks from next Tuesday.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Wayne, ss. A. a. session of the Probate Court for said County of Wayne, held at the Probate Court Room in the City of Detroit on the seventeenth day of October in the year one thousand nine hundred and six. Present, Edgar O. Durfee, Judge of Probate. In the matter of the estate of JOSEPH E. CHAPPELL, deceased.
On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Julia Chappell, administratrix of said estate praying that she may be licensed to sell at private sale certain real estate of said deceased for the purpose of paying the debts of said deceased and the charges of administering said estate.
It is ordered that the twentieth day of November next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon at said Court room, be appointed for hearing said petition and that all persons interested in said estate appear before said Court at said time and place. To show cause why a license should not be granted to said administratrix to sell real estate as prayed for in said petition.
And it is further ordered, that a copy of this order be published three success-ively in the Northville Record, a newspaper printed and circulating in said

from Ypsilanti to spend Saturday and Sunday, accompanied by her cousin, Miss Lulu Ipland of Mariette, who is also a student at the former place.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Given of Detroit formerly of Sault Ste Marie, who are well known to many Northville people, visited friends here Sunday. Mr. Given is now connected with the Hannah real estate firm in Detroit.

Congressman Charles E. Townsend was the guest of Mr. Neal over Sunday. Mr. Townsend was suffering so severely with a cold and throat trouble, caused by much speaking in the open air last Thursday, that Dr.
Henry was called in to attend him and considerable nursing was required before he was able to leave to resume his campaign work.

Mrs. C. H. Tiffin has returned from her visit to her parents in California.
She reports a very fine time, mercury registering 96 to 100 degrees, while there, roses blooming in profusion and every one dressed in thin summer clothes. They had had no rain yet when she left and no plowing done yet for fall sowing and when they do sow it will be barley and oats.

Baptist Church Notes.
[By a Member.]

The Juniors are to have a soiree in the church parlors this evening.

A large number of the ladies of the church met Tuesday in the church parlors and quilted three quilts.

The ladies of the church will meet with Mrs. Felson Freeman, next Wednesday afternoon. Each lady is requested to go prepared to sew.

The subject of the sermon next Sunday morning will be "Indication of Wisdom and Foolishness in the Christian Believer." The sermon in the evening will be a continuation of last Sunday evening's subject.

The Better Way

The tissues of the throat are inflamed and irritated; you cough, and there is more irritation—more coughing. You take a cough mixture and it eases the irritation—for a while. You take

SCOTT'S EMULSION

and it cures the cold. That's what is necessary. It soothes the throat because it reduces the irritation; cures the cold because it drives out the inflammation;
builds up the weakened tissues
because it nourishes them back to their natural strength. That's how Scott's Emulsion deals with a sore throat, a cough, a cold, or bronchitis.

FOUND RELIEF BY TAKING PE-RU-NA

MRS. ANNA MUNDEN

There can be no doubt about it that the tendency to resort to surgical operations has been too great in the past and that this harmful tendency is growing less every day.

Experience has demonstrated that many ailments which seemed to require surgical operations in the past are now being cured by the use of harmless remedies. Peruna has done as much as any other remedy to establish this very important fact.

Thousands of people have been co-demned to undergo surgical operations.
Their physicians have told them that they must either submit to such operations or lose their lives.

After this they have resorted to Peruna and found relief.

Other good remedies have accomplished the same result, but it is safe to assume that no other remedy has equalled Peruna in its beneficent work.

Many of the alleged incurable derangements of the pelvis are dependent upon catarrh.

There is no cure for these except the removal of the catarrh.

Peruna seemingly works miracles in some of these cases. The explanation, however, is very simple. Peruna removes the catarrh and Nature does the rest.

The City in Brief.

F. S. Harmon visited with his wife at Greenville over Sunday.

T. J. Perkins has been on the sick list part of last week and this.

The board of registration meets next week Saturday at Murdock's drug store.

Hallowe'en next Wednesday night. Watch out for the spirits. So will the Marshal.

Andrew Houk and John Palmer are on the jury list for the November term of circuit court.

Several members of the local Corps have been attending the W. R. C. District convention in Detroit yesterday and today.

Miss Lydella Murdock entertained a party of her little friends Saturday in honor of Beatrice Carrothers, before the latter's departure for Eastings with her parents.

Guy Taft is clerking in the Stanley drug store.

The red lanterns in various parts of town at night indicate that cement walk building is still going on.

Northville young men gave a very pleasant dance last evening in the Ambler hall, about twenty-five couples participating.

J. F. Boell has bought the Nicholson property on east-Dunlap street, but will not have possession until next spring.

There are 66 people employed at the Scale factory and besides there are eight more at the Bell foundry employed on scale work.

The township board has elected Thomas E. Murdock township clerk to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Dr. Frank Carrothers.

Mrs. Minnie A. Lee, of this place, is suing for a divorce from her husband, John S. Lee, on the charge of non-support, with Clarence D. Clark as her attorney.

The pupils of our school are having a vacation of two days yesterday and today while the teachers are attending the state teachers' institute at Battle Creek.

Miss Mary Freeman gave a kitchen shower Tuesday evening for her cousin, Mayel Freeman. Fifteen ladies were present and all enjoyed a very pleasant time.

On page 8 of this issue will be found the Roosevelt phonetic spelling list and one of the funniest things about it is that nothing is said about spelling it "phonetic".

The contract for equipping the library with new window shades has been let to T. J. Perkins & Co. They will be of a green color to match the interior decorations.

Miss Bessie Seely has been quite ill during the past week, being obliged to give up her school for a while. Mrs. Earnest Miller has been supplying her place as teacher.

Wilbur S. Harrington has received a new canvassing outfit of holiday books from Chicago and Harrisburg publishing houses and is now ready to take orders for the holiday trade.

The well known auctioneer, L. W. Lovewell, will go the selling act at the big dispersion sale of the Oakland herd of short horn cattle and of horses and farming implements at Saginaw next Tuesday, Oct. 30.

The Northville Gun Club is to have a trap shoot this Friday afternoon, commencing at one o'clock. There are ten events on the list and the new Stanley score board is to be used. The golf grounds have been secured for the occasion.

The El Moor Art & Novelty Co. of Detroit has opened a store in the Kellogg block, in charge of Miss Vera Lawrence of this place, who has been in the company's employ in Detroit for some time past. The formal opening takes place tomorrow-Saturday.

Dr. A. J. Rickel, formerly of Hastings, who made an exchange of practice with Dr. Frank Carrothers, is now established here in the offices on Main street lately occupied by the former and has moved with his family into the residence vacated by the Carrothers family.

Thieves recently took advantage of the time during the latter part of the night while the D. P. & N. cars were not running and stole about a thousand feet of the copper wire down at the Wayne end of the line. The trolley poles will probably be taken next. They could be converted into firewood.

Attermole & Dart and J. S. Hadcock are two more enterprising firms that realize the importance of the hitching-post as a factor in trade conditions, as suggested by the Record last week and they have established a line of posts from the opera house east on Dunlap street as far as the McRobert property.

The increased business at the P. M. depot, since the Stimpson Scale & Manufacturing Co. commenced operations here, has made it necessary to employ an extra man at the station. The company is supplying one of the big Chicago mail order houses and the scales are sent all over the United States, from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Two prominent manufacturers of this place remarked to the Record this week that in their opinion it would be no more than fair, after all the hustling and hard work that has been done to bring factories to Northville and stimulate the life of the town, if the business men would not shut off every light when closing their stores at the beginning of evening, making the business streets look as inexpressibly dreary as if the place and everybody in it were dead and buried. Enough light should be left for advertising purposes, at least.

Will Take Pupils.

Mabel M. Harrington, having taken the Teachers' course at the Detroit Conservatory, is prepared to take pupils in music. Terms Reasonable. 12w1p Itching, torturing skin eruptions, disfigure, annoy, drive one wild. Doan's Ointment brings quick relief and lasting cures. Fifty cents at any drug store.

The B. S. club has organized and are comfortably located in the rooms above Mrs. Price's store.

News comes from Dr. Blanchard that he has arrived safely at his destination and was feeling somewhat better at the time of reaching there.

Catholic services will be held in the house corner Dunlap and Center streets Sunday morning at 7:30 standard time.

The board of supervisors Wednesday presented their ex-chairman, Cass Benton of this place a very beautiful silver trimmed, mahogany gavel.

About twenty young people gave the Misses Mary and Ethel Freeman a very pleasant surprise Monday evening. Various games and a social visit was the program.

Christian Science service Sunday morning at ten o'clock Wednesday at 7:00 p. m. at 59 Center street. Subject for Sunday "Everlasting Punishment." All are cordially invited.

A Helping association has been organized by the High school pupils. They propose helping the needy of the town. Its a good move in the right direction. Sam Penfield is secretary. More particulars later.

The new equalization soaks the country part of the county for one-fifth of the taxes, while the City of Detroit only pays four-fifths, instead of ninety per cent which would be much nearer a fair apportionment.

Jared S. Terrill of Detroit, who has just been appointed receiver of public moneys for Cuba and who was formerly auditor of the military government there under Gen. Wood, is a brother of Frank Terrill of this vicinity.

Mrs. D. F. Harmon of the Record staff was taken ill yesterday morning with heart trouble and had to leave her work and be conveyed home in a carriage. Dr. Turner thinks she will be out again in a few days.

B. G. Filkins, who has been acting foreman for some time at the Northville U. S. fish station, has gone to Grassy island with Clyde VanAtta, Ed Feller and some other men to get ready for the fall catch of white fish spawn.

In this day and age, and in Northville as well as in every other town it may well be said that the average people have about all they can do to keep their own door stoops clean without attempting to clean up other peoples.

Good roads Commissioner Cass Benton appeared before the board of supervisors Wednesday and succeeded in getting them to appropriate $87,600 for good roads for Wayne county. Cass thinks that will be a nice starter and the state will also pay $1,000 a mile to help out.

A well known Northville tax-payer suggests the proper thing to do in the new school house plan is to tear down the old one, use the material and put up about a $20,000 structure that would be a credit to the town for generations to come. The idea is worth thinking about.

The Methodist church social at the parsonage Wednesday night was a pleasing affair and was well attended. There were readings, solos, duets, quartets and most everything else of an enjoyable nature, to say nothing of delicious cake and ice cream following the entertainment. The receipts were over $10.

THERE WAS NO FIRE.

The smoke and illumination from a can of phosphorus in the Bell Foundry Co's old office caused a fire alarm at three o'clock this morning and everybody got there after stumbling around in the dark for from five to fifteen minutes. The fire department was "Johnnie on the Spot" but their services fortunately were not needed.

In case it had been a serious fire the value of all night electric lights could not be over estimated. Some time Northville may lose a big factory because of the delay and darkness incident to that fact.

Then he fired; the gar veered sharply to the right and he fired again. Both bullets were truly aimed, but glanced and went skipping harmlessly up the lake. The fish passed them and was now 100 feet away.

"Missed! both times! how could you?" Give me the pistol, he's coming back." Anita had sprung erect and stood with one foot on the gunwale. Her eyes danced, and she frowned at the wasted shots.

"It's no use, Miss Cameron, you can't shoot into water at that angle." Riah kept shouting at them from the bank. "Mister Duke, Mister Duke: You gotter let 'im fire hisse' out. Jess pull 'long easy an' keep 'im moving. Him an' dat jeg ain't gwine to part campy."

The lake was about half a mile long. Duke kept his skiff nearly in the middle, and they drifted.

"Here he comes!" Anita almost screamed as the gar veered back, and passed them like a rocket. "Look! look at the other jug." She clutched her arm and pointed. "Pull, pull!"

"One gar at a time, and they last longer," Duke said, deliberately dipping his handkerchief into the water to wipe his face.

"Nebber miz' dat'n, Mister Duke, I'll git him." Old Riah had run up and down the bank until he could stand it no longer. He kicked off his brogans, threw a landing-hook into his dugout, and gave the craft a shove which sent her far into the lake. He crouched in the bottom and paddled with a piece of board.

Duke looked on, disgusted at the ease with which Riah handled that slick black log of his. It slipped over the water as if it were greased and sliding down a hill. Riah slowed up as he passed the skiff.

"I om'm's gittin' tired, Mister Duke. Slip up on 'im right easy an' ketch him o' de jeg han'le wid 'o' hooks. Let 'im pull you round fer a spell."

The first jug wandered unhesitatingly around the lake, stopping, going on again, the big brown gar coming frequently to the surface. Duke approached cautiously, paddling his boat from the bow. He laid his oar aside and caught the hook in the jug handle. The gar started, jerked, bounded and bucked like a Texas bronco.

"Hold her steady, Miss Cameron."

Anita drew a long breath, and clung to the tiller ropes.

The light shift cleft the water like a plow. Anita gave a quick little scream.

"If you are afraid, Miss Cameron, I'll turn him loose."

"Don't you dare turn that fish loose, hold him tight. He's a beauty." Her bonnet flew overboard, her hair streamed back, the sun blistered her, but she did not care, she was very happy.

Riah sprang up in his dugout and waved his hand to them as they passed. "All abod fer de scussion. Toot! Toot!"

"We are getting a free ride," Duke laughed. "Steady now, Miss Cameron, he's going to turn."

They swung round in a wide circle and started back again. But the fish was plainly spent. He swam nearer to the surface, and moved sluggishly.

Duke drew the hook shorter, shorter and shorter, bringing his evil-looking prize closer to the boat. The fish lurched often and grew weaker. The man laid his hook aside and cocked the pistol. Those dirty yellow eyes leered up at him almost as if they understood. Then like a water-logged craft the fish rolled over on his side, and Duke fired.

There was a terrible convulsion. The gar lashed about him furiously, striking the boat with his tail. It careened and began to fill. Duke threw out the jug and righted his boat. The fish drifted away, and stopped. When the water subsided they could see the gar's white underside shining in the sun.

Duke bailed the boat, towed over and took one more shot, but the fish was already dead.

"I've got mine," he shouted, looking round to see where Riah was. Then he and Anita burst into one simultaneous whoop.

Riah had captured a part. He was standing upright in his dug-out like a circus rider, holding to the line and literally flying. His dugout did not stir up water like the skiff; in fact, it scarcely seemed to touch the water at all.

"Better git outen de road, Mister Duke," he shouted, "we'se runnin' away."

Suddenly the gar whirled and snatched Riah off the end of the line, head over heels into the lake. The black face came up instantly, blowing and puffing. He caught his dugout, and, by a quick jerk, motion back and forth, dashed out every drop of water. He had climbed into it again before Duke and the skiff could reach him.

"Huh! 'thowed me, didn't he? Gyafish trickier'n a mule." Riah picked up his paddle and went after the fish again.

The sun shone down so fiercely that they were forced to be content with a single prize. They picked up Anita's bonnet and started back, towing their gar, to the landing place. When they stepped ashore their combined strength could not lift the huge fish from the water.

"Oh, dear, we can't get him out; I'll have to call some one."

Anita turned, and Mrs. Ashton confronted her. "Oh!" she gasped, "when did you come?"

"I came a little bit too late, it seems," Mrs. Ashton replied frigidly. "Go straight to the house, Anita, get out of this sun; put on some dry clothes; you are a sight."

Duke kept tugging at the gar, with a cold chill running up and down his back. He knew what was coming.

"All right," Anita said, and she even dared to laugh. "Good-by, Mr. Duke, I am very glad to have met you."

Duke had not had time to nerve himself, but he looked around and saw Mrs. Ashton glare at Anita as the girl held out her hand to him. Their eyes met, and then he did not care a snap for what Mrs. Ashton might have to say.

Anita wrung the water from her bonnet and went tripping up to the house as smilingly as if she did not understand.

"Mr. Duke—" "Mrs. Ashton—" They stood face to face, and he looked as sober as a judge.

"Noel Duke," the old lady blazed out, "what do you mean, sneaking around when my back is turned—what do you mean?"

His face flamed; he was not a pa-river, to his left a sea of mist, with ghost-like trees arising from it.

In all of his undisciplined life, nothing had ever fretted him as the last few months had done; months of waiting, of watching for opportunities, months of subterfuges and rebellion against them. A thousand times a day he wished that Mrs. Ashton were a man—he might take his own methods with a man. She had brought their ancient feud very near a crisis, and, like a boil, the thing got sover as it was coming to a head.

"Well," he said, stopping in his walk, "I'll go up there to-night and settle it; the longer I put it off the worse it gets. She can't set the dogs on me—damn it, I wish she could." It would have been a genuine relief for him to have had something tangible to fight.

He leaned against the banister and looked around at his vapor-hidden fields, his plain little dwelling. "It would be mighty dismal here for a girl," he admitted, and could not wonder that Mrs. Ashton preferred her niece to marry Woodford Vance, who had come down from New York during the Christmas holidays.

When out hunting one day he had seen this man riding along the road with Anita—a blond fellow, with curly hair, and a laugh that might have sounded very pleasant to some people. That laugh kept ringing in Duke's ears; whenever he felt most irritated he recalled the buoyant laughter of Woodford Vance.

From one of the coops in the yard an indignant game-cock crowed his protest against the fog. Duke smiled. "Blest if I hadn't forgot the cocking-main at Vicksburg. Let me see—it begins to-morrow."

Then he marveled at the change that had come over him. Miss a cocking-main to which he had been looking forward for six months? Incredible! Ship a dozen cocks to tient man at best. Then he answered quietly.

"GOOD-BY, MR. DUKE."

"Mean? I mean to marry her, unless she tells me 'no'."

CHAPTER IV.

THE BEGINNING OF WRATH

The grim gray mystery of a February twilight came sinking through the swamp. At the edge of the clearing, where the creaking forest broke, an occasional glimmer blurted the window of a cabin—blurred it with a faint light that choked and strangled in the fog. Afar off, some belated negro was chopping wood for supper. The muffled strokes of his ax boomed dully among the deadened trees, where stark white cottonwoods thrust their naked arms into the sky.

The mist, clammy and vague and full of sinister suggestion, crept out of the cypress brake, and spread like a slow-unrolling shroud across the level fields of Devil-May-Care plantation.

Not an inch of dry land remained, nothing except that thin long line of levee—one slender thread of certainty through the realm of the unreal.

The Devil-May-Care store and residence were built close to the levee, with their galleries fronting it. A bridge made of a single plank crossed the pools of seepage water from each gallery to the levee for this levee, this narrow ridge of dirt, had now become the universal highway along the river front.

Noel Duke strode out on his gallery. A trail of light streamed through the door behind him, flashed across the crown of the levee, and glittered on the steadily rising Mississippi which crouched like a famished wolf outside, licking at the earthen barriers.

The young man scarcely glanced at this omivorous monster which threatened his property with destruction, nor yet at the impenetrable gloom which overhung his land. To his right lay the eddying yellow Vicksburg, with Scrapper, the best cock that ever crowded, and then not go to see them fight? Incredible! Love is very curious," he thought, and began pacing the gallery again.

At his next turn he saw Chalky jogging down the road toward him, as if all eternity were his.

"Hurry up, Chalky—hurry up," he shouted, running across the plank that reached from his gallery to the crown of the levee. The negro spurred on, and held out a note. Duke glanced at it.

"You infernal thick-headed fool, that's my note; didn't you have sense enough to deliver it?"

"Tain't nobody dar; Miss Anita, she's done gone an' Miss Alice; an' Mrs. Ashton—all done gone to Vicksburg on de Sulfana."

"Didn't she leave a message with Aunt Tilly?"

"No, sub. Aunt Tilly say Mrs. Ashton is been feelin' pol'y, an' dey all left in er mighty big hurry. Dey's gwine to Moddy Graw, an' dat young gemmun from New York he's gwine to meet 'em—de one what was here Crissmus."

"Who told you that?"

Duke's voice was a menace, and the negro answered quickly: "Jiminy; she's de yaller gal what waits on Miss Alice! she heard Miss Alice an' her ma talking 'bout it. Fol' God! Mister Noel don't you never tell dat; I sho is scared o' Mrs. Ashton."

"Going to meet Vance?" There was such an ugly gleam in the man's eye that Chalky wished he had not told him.

POULTRY AND BEES

SIMPLE TRAP NEST.

Gives Good Satisfaction at Ontario Agricultural College.

The design of a trap nest shown herewith is used by the Ontario agricultural college and is well recommended as being very effective. The door is adjusted just low enough so that the hen upon entering brushes against it slightly, thus raising it, allows the hen to drop back, releasing the door. The nest is 12 inches wide, 12 inches high and 15 inches long. The door, at its made of very light material, so that it will be pushed upward as the hen enters the nest. To set the nest the door is raised and the hook caught slightly under one of the slats as illustrated. Trap nests are useful if you wish to keep track of the laying records of your different hens.

MARKETING LIVE POULTRY.

Some Points to Consider to Secure the Best Returns.

In all large cities there is a constant demand throughout the year for all kinds of live poultry. A large proportion of this live stock is absorbed by the Jewish trade, as orthodox Jews will not use meat of any kind unless it is killed by a certain method under the direction of a rabbi. Each large market has a slaughter house, where animals and birds are slaughtered according to these prescribed rites. The best prices for live poultry are secured at the time of the Jewish holidays, the dates of which vary from year to year. They can be ascertained through any commission house or dealer.

Occasionally the price of live poultry is as high as for dressed stock, and under these conditions it is a waste of time to dress the birds before shipment. This is particularly true if the market is near at hand, as the birds will not shrink much when being shipped, but a short distance.

For shipping live poultry to market well-constructed crates are particularly desirable, says the Montreal Herald. They should be of sufficient size to avoid causing discomfort to the birds, yet small enough to permit easy handling by expressmen and others. Long crates should be equipped with solid cross partitions to prevent the birds being thrown together at one end when the crate is tipped in handling. Failure to observe this simple precaution often results in the loss of a number of birds in each shipment. All crates should be thoroughly ventilated, as in crowded express cars they are frequently piled one above another, and many birds are smothered in this way.

AVOID MEDICINES.

Poor Practice to Dope Fowls to Keep Away Disease.

Some people follow the practice of putting medicine in the drinking water of the fowls. They imagine that it is keeping away disease. As well think of putting medicine in the drinking water of human beings. We know that the way to keep any creature healthy is to give that creature good living conditions and good food with sunlight and exercise. If that will not induce a body to remain healthy nothing else will.

I always avoid the use of drugs in the water that is given the fowls, and I have no faith in them at all, says a writer in Farmers' Review. Some say put them in to kill the germs. If the germs are about, boil the water and that will kill them without injuring the intestines of the fowls. The membranes of the fowls are very tender, anyway, and I imagine that they are very easily hurt. I am certain that much injury has been done first and last by putting powerful drugs in the food and drink of the poultry. Medicines should be used only when the fowls are sick and not when they are well. I have not much faith in them even when the fowls are sick.

Don't Be in a Hurry.

I would advise producers not to demoralize the market by rushing in their honey too early; and also shipping to unknown parties. writes a beekeeper in Farm Journal. I have always found sale for my crop near home. I should rather give my neighbors the benefit of low prices, than to ship and be compelled to make a low price.

Sunflower Seeds.

Feed sunflower seeds occasionally, but never more than three times a week. Being so rich in oil, they tend to cause shedding of feathers. Linseed meal being of the same nature, should be used in the same way. When hens are slow to moult at the proper time, hasten the process by these foods.

LIGHT VS. DARK HONEY.

The Flavor of the Latter Is Preferred by Some.

While those of cultivated taste, who are wonted to the very best that the culinary art can give us, much prefer and praise only the lighter grades of honey, like that from basswood, clover, alfalfa, white and black sage and the mesquite, yet there are others—and I have known not a few such—who prefer and always select the dark honey when they can get it, says Prof. A. J. Cook, in California Cultivator. Such people prefer the flavor which is always present in the darker grades of honey. I have one friend, a college professor and long a colleague; who always preferred buckwheat honey, and laid in his supply in the late fall when he could get this kind. While I was glad to supply him this, I always laughed at him and expressed surprise at his taste. The golden rod honey and other honey from the autumn wild flowers in the east, though not quite as dark as that from the buckwheat, are highly colored and somewhat pungent in flavor. Here belongs the amber honey of our wild buckwheat of California. While most will prefer the white grades of honey and others who will prefer honey of the darkest hue, like buckwheat; the wide-awake beekeeper will be on the sharpest lookout for customers, especially of these latter classes; for thus he may gain a market for all kinds of honey at good prices. If a person thinks that buckwheat honey is the best, or if he prefers the amber-colored honeys, he will make no objection to paying the best market price for honeys of these grades. The friend I referred to above never objected to giving me a first-class price for buckwheat honey. Indeed, it would hardly be consistent to claim that a honey is first-class or of the best quality and yet request that a lower price be asked for it.

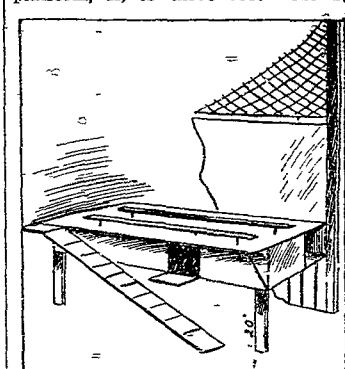

Another point of interest in this relation has to do with the grading of honey. The up-to-date beekeeper will see to it that his honey is kept by itself, for it will always bring the highest figures in the market. Later in the season, as the bees commence to gather from sources which give amber colored honey, the whiter grades will all be extracted that the amber honey may be kept by itself. In this way the grade of the lighter honey will not be lowered. In California the beekeeper cannot be too careful in extracting to keep his sage and alfalfa honey entirely separate from that from the wild buckwheat. It is even more important that the still darker buckwheat honey be kept by itself. It is hardly necessary to suggest that these darker grades of honey are just as suitable for wintering the bees as is any that is produced. Thus it behooves the beekeeper to extract the lighter honey and let the bees fill up the combs with the darker varieties in the later part of the season for their own food during the winter.

With the beekeeper, as with those in any department of agriculture, it is important to grade carefully. There are a few points which the beekeeper should study with more thoroughness than that of grading. If he is producing extracted honey he has only color to guide him in making up his grades. If, on the other hand, he is working for comb honey, then he must have a lookout not only for color, but for the number of uncapped cells, completeness of the sections and the general appearance of the same.

ROOSTS AND NESTS.

Here is a Good Arrangement for the Poultry House.

The nests are about 14 inches square and 20 inches above the floor. The platform, A, is three feet wide by seven feet six inches long, the roosts being of the same length and 22 inches by two. For heavy breeds to enable them to reach the roost more easily a board to serve as a step should be fastened by means of hinges either to the partition wall or to the platform.

Plan of Roosts and Nests.

BEES AND POULTRY.

Plum trees planted in the poultry yard benefit both tree and hens.

Honey that is sealed will stand much more dampness than that which is unsealed.

Nothing will make hens lay more eggs and develop young pullets faster than green cut bone.

All propolis, or bee glue, should be carefully removed from each section. This is easiest done with an old table knife.

The honey should be piled a few inches off the floor, and a little out from the wall; otherwise that near the bottom and side of the room will accumulate moisture.

More sour milk than you know what to do with? Set a panful of it where the hens can get at it, and see how quickly it will disappear. You couldn't put it to a better use. The hens can turn it almost directly into eggs.—Farm Journal.

THEY CURE ANEMIA

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills—the Most Successful Remedy for All Forms of Debility.

Anemia, whether it results from actual loss of blood, from lack of nutrition due to stomach trouble, or whatever its cause, is simply a deficiency of the vital fluid. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new blood. They do that one thing and they do it well.

"As a girl," says Mrs. Jessie Pink, of 180 East Mill Street, Akron, Ohio, "I suffered from nervous indigestion and when I was eighteen years old I was reduced in weight to 95 pounds. I was anemic, nervous, couldn't eat or sleep, was short of breath after the least exertion and had headaches almost constantly. I had a doctor, of course, but I might as well have taken so much water for all the good his medicine did me. Finally my vitality and strength were so reduced that I had to take to my bed for several weeks at a time. I could not digest any solid food and for weeks I did not take any other nourishment than a cup of tea or beef broth."

"While I was sick in bed I read of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I stopped all other medicine and began to take the pills. Soon my improvement was very noticeable. My strength began to return, my stomach gave me no pain and just as soon as I began to take solid food I gained in weight. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills certainly saved my life. I am now perfectly well, have regained my normal weight of 130 pounds and I think Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a wonderful medicine."

These celebrated pills are recommended for stubborn stomach trouble, for all cases of weakness and debility, such as result from fevers and other acute diseases. All druggists sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, or they will be sent by mail postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

CURES SICK-HEADACHE

Tablets and powders advertised as cures for sick-headache are generally harmful and they do not cure, but only deaden the pain by putting the nerves to sleep for a short time through the use of morphine or cocaine.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury.

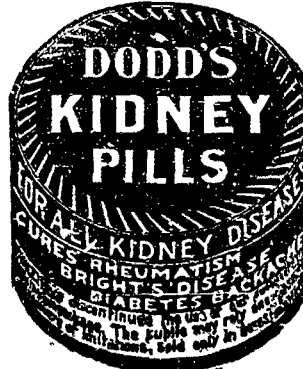

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system, when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescription from a reliable physician. As the danger they will do to you is so great, you can possibly do without them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by Dr. J. C. Hall, 215 E. 10th St., Toledo, O., cures catarrh of the nose and throat, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio by F. J. C. Hall, 215 E. 10th St., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists. Price, 50c. per bottle. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Gasoline and Alcohol.

The greater safety of alcohol, as compared with gasoline for commercial uses, is due to the fact that it will not ignite from pure radiated heat, as gasoline does; that water will extinguish burning alcohol while it will only spread a fire of gasoline, and that the flames of burning alcohol radiates very little heat while that of gasoline radiates heat very rapidly.

Longest and Oldest Tunnel.

The near completion of the Pennsylvania tunnel reminds the American Israelite of the oldest known tunnel in the world, that of Shiloh, near Jerusalem. It was used as an aqueduct. The famous inscription, discovered a few years ago, celebrates the first meeting of the diggers from both sides. Newspapers did not appear in those days, and so the event cannot be exactly dated, but it most probably took place under King Hezekiah, about 700 B. C. and is an interesting testimony to the high state of civilization among the Jews at a time when Europe was inhabited by savages.

Wanted to See the Animals.
A little girl who with her mother was witnessing a performance of "The Lion and the Mouse" at the Lyceum theater, New York, recently, and who had doubtless read Aesop's fable of that name, sat through almost the entire performance in a rapt interest and then, just before the fall of the curtain, she asked: "Mamma, when does the lion come out?"

Going by Contraries.
At a marriage at Blackpool, the bride, with the consent of the bridegroom, omitted the "undertaking" to obey him. The experiment is certainly worth trying. Wives won't obey when they promise to. Perhaps they will when they don't promise to—though it may prove necessary to make them promise not to.—Punch.

Peculiarity of Lake Erie.
Erie is the only one of the great lakes which has no part of its bottom below the level of the sea. If its surface were on the same altitude with that of Lake Ontario a little of Lake Erie would still remain if it were drained to the sea level, but the western half would wholly disappear and nearly all of the eastern end.

Would Be With Them in Spirit.
Bennett Corbett, an English sportsman, who was a golfer, directed in his will that his body should be cremated, and added: "I should wish a £3 cup to be given to the Chester Golf club, to be competed for on the day of my cremation, and on the six following anniversaries."

Husky Ushers.
The church was packed, even the aisles lined with chairs. Just before the benediction the thoughtful clergyman, who loyally ordered as he did the gospel, thus admonished his hearers: "In passing out, please remain seated until the ushers have removed the chairs from the aisles."—Lippincott's.

Repertee Won Hearers.
A good story is told of Frances Lady Waldegrave, who long since paid her debt to nature. She was a woman of quick repartee and many husbands. It was soon after her fourth matrimonial venture with Chichester Fortescue, an Irishman, that she appeared in a Dublin theater with the bridegroom. From the gallery a man shouted down to her: "And which of the four do you like best?" From her box her answer rang out: "The Irish man, of course." And the Irish people house rang with applause.

TERRIBLE SCALP HUMOR.
Badly Affected with Sores and Crusts—Extended Down Behind the Ears—Another Cure by Cuticura.

"About ten years ago my scalp became badly affected with sores and itching humors, crusts, etc., and extended down behind the ears. My hair came out in places, also I was greatly troubled, understood it was eczema. Tried various remedies so called, without effect. Saw your Cuticura advertisement, and got the Cuticura Remedies at once. Applied them as to directions, etc., and after two weeks I think of use, was clear as a whistle. I have to state also that late last fall, October and November, 1904, I was suddenly afflicted with a bad eruption, painful and itching pustules over the lower part of the body. I suffered dreadfully. In two months, under the skillful treatment of my doctor, conjoined with Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, I found myself cured. H. M. F. Monkey's Bite Fatal.

I Get Even With Kitty

By Paul Creswick

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

"It's my turn to treat," I observed, distinctly.
"Oh, how you startled me! Fancy meeting you at this hour," cried Kitty, who was looking extremely charming in her new costume. "What good angel prompted you to come west to-day?"

"I wanted a new tie—to be brutally frank. Of course, I ought to say that it was in the hope of meeting you."
"You needn't. But you'll pay for my tea, all the same. We'll go to the Koh-noor; it's cosy and tete-a-tete. You deserve a lecture for your rudeness."

"So long as it hasn't a moral!"
"You're incorrigible, Reggie! All my trouble to make you a nice boy is being wasted."

"How's the editor—or was it artist?" And did he tell you that story you aimed at me the other day?"

"What story? Oh, I remember; the one about perseverance and never saying die. Well, he did certainly suggest the outlines of it. But I filled them in. Rather neatly, I flatter myself."

"Not bad—for a beginner," I admitted.

I led her into the Koh-noor, past the coffee grinding machines, into the comfortable privacy of the tea-rooms. We found a secluded corner, I drew the curtains, shutting off the next table.

"You Called Me and I Am Here." bles, and gave out orders to one of the three beautifully disdainful damsels who preside.

"She might have given you a smile," remarked her ladyship, sympathetically, "had you been alone."

"I would gladly forfeit even the chance of that—to be with you," I responded, in a low voice.

"Dear soul," purred Kitty, gratefully. "He is beginning to behave, after all! Shall I give him two lumps?"

"And cream," I told her. "By the way, I met an artist last Sunday. A most remarkable chap."

"I don't think I want to hear about him."

"You must. I listened to your story, didn't I? And it had a moral, too! Now you shall have mine—without even the ghost of a moral. I'm not too revengeful, you perceive."

"Is it long?" Kitty sighed, patiently, and poured herself a second cup of tea.

"Extremely short. This man's name is Cliffe, and he's rather a genius—from all accounts. He's Scotch, about six feet high; a regular jaw-boned laddie, cut adrift, hopelessly, from his native heather. He has a house in Hammersmith overlooking the river—a queer, old-fashioned show. He lives in the upper part of it; the ground floor is given over to emptiness, and circulars, which the nobility and gentry of Ravenscourt Park thrust through the letter box and front windows. Sometimes Cliffe does weird drawings, in color, for the American magazines."

"Reggie!"

"It's perfectly correct. He signs 'em 'Felspar K. Cliffe,' and sells them through a New York agent. He says it's simple. He has been successful over here as well. Besides painting, he does hypnotism and the fiddle."

"I don't believe a word."

"There's worse to follow. He gives garden parties on Sundays, quite irrespective of season. If it snows, we go into the empty lower apartments of his house, and pretend. Girls come, and wait on the men; and dabble Cliffe's forehead with scent—whilst he recites."

"What girls?"

"Oh, student girls in long smocks, with no waists and untidy hair—the sort that a merciful Providence made good because they were so plain. They go home after tea; and then the men sit round in Cliffe's studio, make epigrams, and drink whisky."

"Mr. Cliffe still reciting?"

"No, he either plays the fiddle then—or perhaps listens. It all depends. Well, last Sunday I stayed on with Deborah. We were last to go. And Cliffe left off being eccentric, and begged us to have another pipe with him. He said we could walk home, after all—but I wasn't sure. However, we stayed, and we talked about hypnotism. Presently, Cliffe became confidential."

Presently, Cliffe became confidential."

"At what hour?"
"That's immaterial. Cliffe told me, under deadly secrecy—but I know you're quite safe, Kit—that one Sunday night he was sitting at his window looking out at a most pre-Raphaelite sort of moon, which was arranging a bilious nocturne with the low tide. He was thinking about a girl he had met at a friend's house that afternoon, and whom he had unsuccessfully tried to mesmerize—for neuralgia, or something."

"Not a student girl?"

"Oh, dear me, no. Somebody quite normal, and pretty. She was a 'dear bit of a body'—so Cliffe stated. Well, the neuralgia, or something, had proved too much for him, and he was just sitting there in his studio, watching the green moon, and trying to discover why he had failed. He went through, in a soft voice—he was alone, you know, and it was midnight—the entire paces with the hands, and staring eyes, and—"

"Incantations?"

"The very word. The entire incantation was performed by him, and he felt sure that he hadn't left out a single thing—any more than he had in the afternoon. So why had it failed? Still a dear, suffering body, too—thought Cliffe. And as he remembered her little mouth all tense with pain, and her deep gray eyes suffused with tears; he gently and pityingly uttered her name."

"Dear me!" exclaimed her ladyship, stirring her third cup of tea. "Amazing!"

"For a full minute—says Cliffe—he remained silent; as though exhausted by the mental effort of—"

"The incantation?"

"Thank you. The hour was silent as the grave: the moon and the tide combined to achieve even more astonishing effects. Somewhere, eastwards, a clock commenced to strike the hour. Cliffe counted to seven, mechanically—and then suddenly started up, galvanizing back to every day things. Some one was ringing the front door bell."

"Mercy me!"

"Don't interrupt. Cliffe compelled himself to descend to the blackness of the lower apartments; and, rather nervously, opened the door about half a foot. There, under the mysterious porch, faintly silhouetted by the moon, was the statue-like figure of a girl."

"The dear bit of a body with the neuralgia, of course?"

"Without the neuralgia. 'You called me?' she breathed, in dull, heavy tones. 'You called me, and I am here.' Cliffe thereupon opened the door promptly, and she at once walked into the hall. He took her hand, and leading her up the stairs to the studio, was made certain of that which he had already guessed. The girl was in a trance."

"I consider your story to be as improbable," remarked Kitty, "as it is improper."

"It hasn't any moral, I know, but it's quite proper. Cliffe says that he made up the fire, drew the curtains over the bilious moon and forthwith willed the girl to go home."

"Well?"

"She didn't seem to understand, but simply stared back at him, out of unseeing eyes. Gave him a horribly creepy feeling, he owned. So, being utterly perplexed, he fell back as usual, upon his fiddle—for inspiration. He stood with his back to the fire, and played Bragan's 'Serenata,' as well as he could remember it. When he had reached the phrase, 'I cannot stay, I must away,' he threw his whole soul into the business. The girl gave a shudder, and incontinently vanished."

"That all?" inquired Kitty, after a long pause.

"Practically. Cliffe says that three days after she wrote to him from Ireland where she had gone on that very Sunday-evening. In fact, she was actually traveling in the night mail to Holyhead, when her astral body appeared to him. She wrote to thank him for having cured her neuralgia completely, it had suddenly left her just after 12 o'clock, when she, exhausted, had at once fallen asleep. The going of the pain seemed like music, she added, gratefully."

"Are you going to work to-day, Reggie?"

"I didn't think of doing so. Why?"

"I should go home, dear, and take a rest, if I were you," advised her ladyship. "I'm certain you must be feeling very tired."

"I'm all right. Let me finish my story. The incident suggested Cliffe's great picture 'The Sonata Sentimentale,' which you may recollect as being the talk of the academy of nineteen hundred and—"

"Come along, dear," interrupted Kitty. "They want the money for our tea. I'll put you in a cab, which shall take you right to your door. I have so enjoyed this afternoon; but we mustn't attempt too much. Good-by, Reggie; be sure you put your feet into hot water, and mustard directly you get back, and then go instantly to bed."

"Rough on the Dog."

John Lawrence Toole, England's veteran comedian, who died not long ago, once played a practical joke on his dog with fatal results. In order to get her husband home at a reasonable early hour after his work in the theater was over, Mrs. Toole used to promise him just as good a meal as could be found in any restaurant or club in London. This meal his wife would provide and leave on the table for the comedian. Toole didn't like to disappoint his wife, and so used to give the food to his dog. Next morning the plates would be cleaned and Mrs. Toole happy. By this device the comedian managed to eat his club suppers until the dog died of over feeding.

A WOMAN'S KIDNEYS.

Women have much to do, so many pains to suffer, so many critical periods to go through, that it is important to keep the kidneys well, and avoid the backache, bearing-down pain, headache, dizziness, languor and other common signs of weak kidneys. Mrs. Charles E. Smith, of 22 Boyden St., Woonsocket, R. I., says: "My kidneys were weak from childhood, and for eight or ten years past my back was very painful and I had many annoying symptoms besides. When I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills—I weighed only 120. To-day I weigh 165, and am in better health than for years. Doan's Kidney Pills have been my only kidney medicine during four years past. They bring me out of every attack."

Round and Square Balls. A few years ago there was started in Chelsea, Mass., a semi-secret political organization, and after a few meetings it was decided that a ballot box and balloons were needed. A brother made a motion that a committee be appointed by the chair to procure the same. A brother who was always suggesting amendments moved an amendment that the committee be instructed to procure round white balls and square black balls. Another brother asked him to describe a square ball, which brought the house down and caused the mover of the amendment to ejaculate: "You think you are a—d smart; don't you?"

Rulers Look for "Rainy Day." Nearly all European kings and queens have money invested in foreign countries. Every year the czar and czarina of Russia invest a large portion of their private savings in the British and French national banks.

King Leopold, of Belgium, has a universal reputation, and not an enviable one, as Leopold & Co., rubber merchants. He founded the Congo Free State and is one of the largest rubber and ivory dealers in the world. He is also one of the cleverest of financiers, and knows his war about all the bourses of Europe. King George of Greece speculates, largely in agricultural products, follows carefully all the fluctuations of the financial markets and is assiduous in putting his money into good things. The sultan of Turkey declines to trust any Turkish bank with his savings, which are nearly all deposited in British banks.

A FOOD CONVERT.

Good Food the True Road to Health.

The pernicious habit some persons still have of relying on nauseous drugs to relieve dyspepsia, keeps up the patent medicine business and helps keep up the army of dyspeptics.

Indigestion—dyspepsia—is caused by what is put into the stomach in the way of improper food, the kind that so taxes the strength of the digestive organs they are actually crippled.

When this state is reached, to resort to stimulants is like whipping a tired horse with a big load. Every additional effort he makes under the lash increases his loss of power to move the load.

Try helping the stomach by leaving off heavy, greasy, indigestible food and take on Grape-Nuts—light, easily digested, full of strength for nerves and brain, in every grain of it. There's no waste of time nor energy when Grape-Nuts is the food.

"I am an enthusiastic user of Grape-Nuts and consider it an ideal food," writes a Maine man:

"I had nervous dyspepsia and was all run down and my food seemed to do me but little good. From reading an adv. I tried Grape-Nuts food, and after a few weeks' steady use of it, felt greatly improved."

"Am much stronger, not nervous now, and can do more work without feeling so tired, and am better every way."

"I relish Grape-Nuts best with cream and use four heaping teaspoonsful at a meal. I am sure there are thousands of persons with stomach trouble who would be benefited by using Grape-Nuts." OPERATIONS AVOIDED

Two Grateful Letters from Women Who Avoided Serious Operations.—Many Women Suffering from Like Conditions Will Be Interested.

When a physician tells a woman; suffering from female trouble, that an operation is necessary it, of course, frightens her.

The very thought of the operating table and the knife strikes terror to her heart. As one woman expressed it, when told by her physician that she must undergo an operation, she felt that her death knell had sounded.

Our hospitals are full of women who are there for just such operations. It is quite true that these troubles may reach a stage where an operation is the only recourse, but such cases are much rarer than is generally supposed, because a great many women have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after the doctors had said an operation must be performed. In fact, up to the point where the knife must be used to secure instant relief this medicine is certain to help.

The strongest and most grateful statements possible to make come from women who, by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, have escaped serious operations.

Margrite Ryan, Treasurer of St. Andrew's Society, Indianapolis, Ind., writes of her cure as follows:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I cannot find words to express my thanks for the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did me. The doctor said I could not get well unless I had an operation for the trouble from which I suffered. I knew I could not stand the strain of an operation and made up my mind I would be an invalid for life. Hearing how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had cured so many women, I decided to try it. I took it for a few days and I feel better than I have for years. I am now able to do my work and I am very grateful to you for your advice. I am, dear Mrs. Pinkham, your truly, Margrite Ryan."

Ask Mrs. Pinkham's Advice—A Woman Best Understands a Woman's Ills.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been curing the worst forms of female complaints, all functional troubles, inflammation, ulceration, falling and displacement, weakness, irregularities, indigestion and nervous prostration. Any woman who could read the many grateful letters on file in Mrs. Pinkham's office could be convinced of the efficiency of her advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

DENTIST

6 Adams Ave. W. DETROIT.

Specialist in Orthodontia or Irregularity of the teeth.
Irregularity of the teeth is a condition frequently seen and greatly to be deplored. Few people have any comprehension of the ability possessed by modern dentists in correcting these abnormal positions of the teeth. Thus many grow to manhood and womanhood, whose faces have become deformed or whose expression is unnatural or unpleasant, because they have no knowledge of the improvement which could be made by a competent Dentist.

The results of irregular teeth are that they mar the appearance of the individual, interfere with clearness of speech, impair the ability to masticate the food thoroughly, and by reason of their crowded or abnormal position afford favorable lodgment for food particles and thereby induce decay.

When a child presents itself I study the features and the irregularities and oral deformities. I look at the child's face and then at its profile, and endeavor to ascertain, if possible, what facial change will be brought about by any corrective art that may be applied to the case. In my judgment more is lost than gained by the removal of teeth for the correction of irregularity and should never be done, except possibly in very rare cases. I consider it possible to take any person

BOON TO WORKING CLASSES

Tim Healy's Opinion of the Simplified Spelling.

When Tim Healy, the "fighting member of the British parliament," arrived in Chicago the other day he could find no words too strong to express his approval of the "bold, daring President Roosevelt," and all on account of the spelling reform, says a Chicago dispatch.

"Your president's achievement in this spelling reform will be of far greater benefit than his work in bringing about peace between Japan and Russia," exclaimed Mr. Healy, "and if certainly was a much bolder bit of work."

"The persons who will benefit by the reform are the working classes, who have no time to study the history of a word. What is the use of telling a child that 'to' spells 'tu' when he knows it spells 'too'? The professors, teachers, publishers and other persons, who through habit or financial interests have become wedded to the old misleading style of spelling, say it is a sacrilege to change the 'oughs' and the 'eighs' and other idiotic methods of misspelling words."

"The working classes, who have but a short time to spend in schools, cannot afford to waste time learning a lot of stuff that is of no use to them. The professors argue that the spelling will show the history of a word. Let them find the history in the dictionaries, and let the people who wish to read easily hunt up the history if they want it."

"Cicero, by his work on the simplified spelling board has done more for the Americans than he has accomplished by planting libraries about the country. He has assisted the general public by making opportunities for many with limited educations to read."

PHONETIC LETTER WRITERS

Troubles of Postmen With the Odd Addresses

The phonetic jokers are making the letter carriers in New York suffer these days, says the New York Times. Hundreds of letter writers are "saying down" on proper names, and the addresses are frequently puzzles for the men who have to deliver the letters. Here is the address on a letter recently received by a Harlem man.

Harry is being cut to Harry, Paul to Pol, William to Wilgum, James to Jamz, Arthur to Rthun, and so on through the list. The last names also are being tumbled, twisted and withered into hideous shapes.

Connecticut Paper With New Spelling
The first Connecticut newspaper, says the New York Tribune, to adopt the simplified spelling board's methods is the Greenwich News, Fred W. Lyon, editor and proprietor, which made its weekly appearance the other afternoon with the 300 words endorsed by President Roosevelt used throughout its news columns and the announcement that it intended to keep to that style of spelling hereafter.

Name For New Spelling.
Of all the names that have been suggested for the bottled spelling perhaps the best is "joshbillingsgate," says the New York Tribune. The Boston Transcript perhaps deserves the credit for the invention. We cannot trace the origin back farther, though the Transcript modestly says the "so called joshbillingsgate."

Oklahoma's Corn Forest.
Porter Moss, according to the Ponca City (Okla.) Courier, says it is so dark in his cornfield on account of the marvelous growth of the corn that the lightning tugs can be seen in it in the daytime the same as at night.

A Flight.
These lines of our most useful books contain a lot I didn't need. If they are all correct it looks as if I don't know how to read.
And when the schoolboy to my gaze brings forth his copy book at night its method puzzles and dazes—I find I don't know how to write.
And, worse than all, when I behold the words I used to know so well writ by reformers, wise, but bold, I'm sure I don't know how to spell!—Washington Star.

WEAK, WEARY WOMEN.

Learn the Cause of Daily Woes and End Them.

When the back aches and throbs, When housework is torture, When night brings no rest nor sleep, When urinary disorders set in, Women's lot is a weary one. There is a way to escape these woes. Doan's Kidney Pills cure such ills. Have cured women here in Northville.

This is one Northville woman's testimony. "Mrs. I. E. Van Atta, living at 66 Randolph Street says: 'I most assuredly think Doan's Kidney Pills a remedy of great merit. I was bothered for some time with a dull, aching, miserable feeling in my back, which to say the least was very annoying. In some way Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my notice and thinking if they did not do me any good they would not do me any harm. I procured a box at Murdoch Bros.' drug store and began the treatment. I will cheerfully say this: I derived more benefit from them than any other remedy I ever used.'"

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. per box. Foster-McBarn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.
