DR. BLANCHARD DIED OCT. 26

FUNERAL OCCURRED AT FARMINGTON TUESDAY.

Death Was Great Shock to His Many Friends Here.

Dr. Asa Lapham Blanchard, for many years one of the prominent physicians and citizens of this section, died on Friday morning, Oct. 26 at The Highlands, North Carolina, a little over four days after reaching that place, where he had gone for sanitarium treatment by Dr. Mary E. Lapham, a former well known Northville resident who is now a remarkably successful and famous specialist there.

Although aware when he left Northville Oct. 17 that he was in a critical condition, the many friends of Dr. Blanchard were nevertheless less greatly shocked to learn that he had survived his journey by only a few days. Edward H. Lapham, who accompanied him south, was told by Dr. Lapham immediately that there was not the slightest hope for the recovery of the patient, whose complicated disease had reached too advanced a stage before he decided on the change of climate. He had been suffering bravely and silently for several years past, keeping up with cheerful perseverance until he could do so no longer. He stood the journey well, Mr. Lapham remaining with him at The Highlands until Wednesday, leaving him apparently about as he had been.

Dr. Blanchard was born Oct. 14, 1847 in Farmington, Oakland county. He received his medical education at the University of Michigan, but had also other college training and was for some years a successful teacher before finishing his medical course. He was largely instrumental in the building of the High school at Macinac Island, where he taught for some time and his name is indelibly associated with the school there.

Dr. Blanchard commenced his medical practice at Midland, afterward going to St. Clair, where he had a large and successful practice for years, before coming to Northville about fourteen years ago.

He had been twice married, burying his second wife about sixteen years since.

As was said of him in a biographical sketch in this paper recently, Dr. Blanchard was a man of wide culture and intelligence. He was an entertaining conversationalist and a deep student along many lines of thought. He will be greatly missed in the social, professional and educational life of our community.

The body was brought to the home of his brother near Farmington and the funeral was held from the Universalist church Tuesday afternoon, Rev. Lee S. McCallister of Detroit officiating, assisted by Rev. Wm. S. Jerome of this place. The burial was in the Quaker cemetery, Farmington, where Dr. Blanchard's father and mother were laid to rest.

Presbyterian Church Notes.

(By the Pastor)

Mrs. Jerome entertains her Sunday-school class at the manse this evening.

The Lord's Supper will be administered Sunday morning and new members received into the church.

The sermon next Sunday evening will be on "The Christian Soldier." It will be especially for the new members.

R. R. McKahan and Miss Mae Golden were elected on Sunday as delegates from our Sunday-school to the County Convention in Detroit this week.

Baptist Church Notes.

(By a Member)

Mrs. S. F. Dimmock attended the county Sunday school convention in Detroit this week as a delegate from our Sunday school.

The B. Y. P. U. will hold their monthly business meeting at the home of Mrs. Walter Evans next Wednesday evening.

We are pleased to see the increased attendance at our Sunday evening services. There was an unusually large audience last Sunday evening.

The subject of the sermon Sunday morning will be "The Despised Christ." The evening subject will be a continuation of last Sunday evening's subject.

There was a large attendance at the meeting of the ladies of the church at the home of Mrs. Nelson Freeman Wednesday afternoon and all had a very pleasant time. A nice program was given and refreshments were served. We are sorry to lose Mrs. Freeman from our society.

The Missionary society will meet at the parsonage next Wednesday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. Miss Nicolette of Detroit, missionary among the French, will be with us and give us a talk. Every one is invited to attend. Refreshments will be served at the close of the meeting. Each lady is requested to bring a cup of jelly which is to be given Miss Nicolette for use in her work.

High School Helping Association.

Forty-three pupils of the Northville High school, with the aid of the teachers have organized a "Helping Association" for the benefit of the needy and sick of the community.

The organization would like the aid of every one who is willing to help.

The members, in order to raise funds, have consented to pay a certain amount each week and it would help greatly if others of our townspeople would do the same. Any amount per week, from one cent up would be gratefully received. Aid could be given also in the form of clothing, fruit or any of the necessities. All desiring to help can do so through any High school pupil.

Card of Thanks.

For the kindly hands that aided us, for the sympathy expressed and bestowed upon us and for the beautiful floral offerings in the time of our bereavement we wish to express our heart-felt gratitude.

GOVERNOR URGES MICHIGAN VOTERS

Wants Them of All Parties to Do Their Duty on November 6th.

An examination of the state election returns reveals the fact that in "off" years, when no president is to be elected, a large number of voters stay at home on election day. In some counties over half of the electors thus neglect their highest privilege as citizens and their most important duty to the commonwealth. This letter is written for the purpose of appealing to the public conscience upon this question.

Though conscious of many mistakes and shortcomings, yet for nearly two years I have endeavored to faithfully serve the whole people without distinction and without prejudice and with an eye single to the general good and the continued prosperity of our beloved state. By practically the unanimous vote of my party at the first state primaries I have been nominated and now I very much wish to have all of the voters of the state pass judgment upon my administration. If I have succeeded, a small vote would be but little encouragement and if I have failed, a light vote would not pronounce proper judgment.

This appeal is not to my party friends only, but to all of the voters. We are living in strenuous times. Under the splendid leadership of President Roosevelt we are making mighty strides in advance. Almost every day new issues confront us and new opportunities await us. Never before has history been made so fast and never before has the demand for faithful and intelligent citizenship been so great. The will of the people is supreme and this will can only be registered at the ballot box. Here, officers, policies and principles are either upheld or defeated and the loud call of patriotic duty comes to all to abandon on election day every selfish desire and all labor and pleasure long enough to go to the polls and vote.

I, therefore, earnestly appeal to you in behalf of national and state pride and their welfare to express an increasing interest in public affairs and your appreciation of a free ballot, our bulwark of liberty, by voting on Tuesday, November 6.

WAYNE COUNTY POLITICAL TALK

One hundred to 75 is being offered as odds that Burns will win for Sheriff. Dever is a nice clean-cut young man but he is up against a hard proposition. Burns has the advantage of having both money and organization. Devers should win but some tall work is necessary if he does.

Congressman Townsend did more for the Republican county ticket in his tour through Wayne county than all other sources combined, and yet it is claimed Detroit politicians from the city of Detroit refused to allow him to speak at the Rouge ship yards.

Frank Esper, the Democrat nominee for Register of Deeds, is covering Wayne county with his banners and picture cards. It is not at all likely however that he can break into Mr. Gully's camp with any where near enough votes to get within seeing distance of the county building. Still Esper says he is "goin' some."

Dr. Hoyt, the Democrat nominee for county treasurer, is plastering the country part of Wayne county with his good looking "vote-for-me" pictures.

Johnson—Bradish.

Mr. Earl Johnson, son of Dr. and Mrs. R. M. Johnson of this place, and Miss Edith Bradish of Hudson, were married at the bride's home in that city Wednesday. They will make their future home in Detroit.

"The Ardell."

"The Ardell" is the very pretty name given to Mrs. L. A. Clark's hotel on Main street. A neat new sign just hung out announces the new change from what was for many years the Macomber House.

Great Day for Frogs.

The following is not a fish story, but as a frog story it comes well authenticated from a Walled Lake friend of the Record who offers it as a match to any true fish story of the season.

"On Friday, Oct. 19, Mrs. Shube Abbey, Floyd Abbey and Henry Rusk went frog hunting on the south side of the lake. Mrs. Abbey captured 75 dozen," (we presume our friend means legs, not frogs, but perhaps not.) "Mr. Rusk the same number and Floyd 50 dozen. Frank Vogt of Northville bought the catch at eight cents per dozen."

Our correspondent adds a postscript to the effect that our readers needn't all go right over to the froggery, as no trespassing is permitted. We would not suppose there were any of the quadrupeds left, anyway.

Dicks—Freeman.

The marriage of Miss Mabel Freeman of this place to Mr. Frank Dicks of Plymouth was solemnized Saturday afternoon at two-thirty o'clock at the Methodist parsonage at Plymouth by Rev. Howard Goldie, with Miss Mary Freeman of Northville and Mr. Elmer Hueston of Plymouth, cousins of the bride, as attendants.

The bride is one of Northville's most estimable young ladies and has many friends here who wish her success and happiness in her new life.

Mr. and Mrs. Dicks, who went to Detroit for a brief wedding trip, will reside in Plymouth.

Suburban News.

Oxford has a very handsome new Baptist church and the society is not immersed in debt, either.

An Oxford man has found nine beehives this season. He must be a hummer. However, there's probably some cell about it.

Holly is putting on airs because she has franchise troubles as well as her great big sister, Detroit. Holly's is the illuminating and watering problem.

Miss Icy Knowles is the name of a young lady at Orion who is very popular in spite of the fact that she frequently extends the icy mitt to her young men friends.

A Wayne young man went out hunting on Sunday with a party and according to the Review "was mistaken for a squirrel and received a charge of shot in his arm and hand." He must be an extremely lively young man and they must have pretty stable squirrels down that way, also.

There is a certain street in Plymouth on which live fifteen widows, widowers and old maids; one bachelor, one grass widow, three grandmothers and two great grandmothers and all live in one block. Where is it?—Plymouth Mail.

Great Scott! We dunno. Wouldn't want to be in the Mail editor's place, when those "old maids" find out who he means, either.

There'll be more English sparrows in Genesee county this year than ever before in its history. The county has offered a bounty of two cents per, and there's going to be an indefiniteness about boundary lines and an uncertainty about the legal residences of the birds that will require the wisdom of a Solomon on the part of the fellow who pays the bounty.

The scholars over in Dist. 6 last Thursday went into the woods at noon and did not return until four o'clock. Said they had been killing blue racers and rattlesnakes. The attention of Gov. Warner should be called to this event in No. 6, whereat he may set apart one day each year for the slaying of snakes.—Addison Courier.

Looks 'all a few days set apart occasionally for the use of a "black-snake" whip on the whole outfit would be more likely to promote the cause of education in that locality.

Stoves!

"Garland" and "Peninsular" Stoves & Ranges.

Come to Carpenter & Huff's and let us go fully into the Stove Matter with you. Here are Stoves and Ranges that bristle with more good, strong, common-sense points than a half dozen of the common kinds can show. A few moments will convince you that they are faultless in construction. A few days of actual use will positively prove that better results are obtained, with less coal and work, than with any other stoves or ranges you ever used.

DE-TAN-ATED COFFEE!

Read what Tufts' College of Medical Chemistry of Boston says about it.

October 24, 1906.

"I have made an analysis of De-Tan-Ated India Coffee and find that it is of the greatest purity, no adulterations having been found, either by chemical or microscopical means. Furthermore, by purely mechanical treatment the cellulose containing 8.5 per cent tannic acid has been removed, thereby leaving the remainder, richer in those substances, caffeine and caffeine, which render De-Tan-Ated India Coffee more valuable as a beverage and less harmful as a stimulant."

SERIAL STORY

DUKE OF DEVIL-MAY-CARE

By HARRIS DICKSON

Author of "The Black Wolf's Breed," Etc.

(Copyright, 1906, by D. Appleton & Co.)

Duke consulted his watch and shut it with a vicious snap. He took one look at the bottomless road which led eastward through the swamp, and turned to Chalky.

"Put a saddle on old Beck; she knows that road at night. I want to catch the south-bound train at Rolling Fork."

He ran a few yards down the levee and crossed to the store by another plank. "I'm going to town, Harper," he called in at the door. "Look after things."

"Oh, Mr. Duke," the manager ran out and protested; "that rise in the river is due to hit here about tomorrow, and the levees may break; you oughtn't to—"

"Damn it, Harper, I know I oughtn't to go, but I'm going, anyway."

"But, Mr. Duke—"

"That's enough, Harper; you are paid to do what I tell you, and when I want your informal advice I'll ask for it. You and the whole place may go to the devil for what I care."

He stamped angrily out of the store. Merritt, the clerk, finished rolling up a bolt of calico, and glanced sullenly toward Harper, who was still standing where Duke had left him, in the middle of the floor.

Duke's attack on him had been so vicious and so unexpected that for a moment or two Harper did not comprehend; he thought it must be some stupid sort of a joke.

But as the other wheeled and left the store, Harper's face flushed; then it turned very white. He took two impetuous steps toward the door, and stopped. His color came back, and his smile came back.

"I don't see how you can talk that way to Mr. Harper," Merritt said, resentfully, leaning across the counter.

"I couldn't—from any other man."

The two or three negroes who had been drying their feet around the stove were already slipping out of the back door—it was not wise for them to mix up in white men's quarrels.

"Come back here, boys," Harper called, peremptorily. His authority on the plantation was at stake, for a white man in the swamp must cover every inch of ground he stands on or he cannot hope to control half a thousand negroes.

The negroes came back, reluctantly keeping their eyes on the door through which their angry master had disappeared.

"Boys," Harper said to them, "something must be wrong with Mr. Duke; you know he never talks that way to the meanest nigger on his place—and you know that I don't take foolishness from anybody."

"Yassuh, yassuh," Uncle Reggy assented. Regulus Jones was "Mister Noel's pet nigger," so the other darkeys said.

"I sho did think dat was mighty ornys o' Mister Noel—he musser been kinder pestered in 'is min'! I spec—"

Uncle Reggy stopped; a sudden step on the gallery put a period in the middle of his sentence.

Noel Duke reappeared in the door, corduroys, slouch hat, leggings—he plunged on, head down, not looking where he went. The negroes made ready to run. He stopped, looked up.

"Harper," he said, holding out his hand, "I made a fool of myself just now; I'm sorry."

"That's all right, Mr. Duke, I didn't think anything about it. I knew you must be worried about something."

"I am. I must go to Vicksburg for a few days; the plantation is entirely in your charge. If the levee should break, do whatever you think is necessary to save the stock and take care of the tenants. Good-by, Harper; good-by, Merritt. Give these boys a drink; they've been working hard all day. Good night, boys."

Fifteen minutes later a man and mule turned their backs upon the river and disappeared through the mists along a road that was more passable for boat than beast.

Through the dark and the mud they floundered on, the sure-footed mule picking her way unerringly to the highest ground.

"I'll go to that cork-fight just to show her that I don't care. Vance is rich; he lives in New York; he can give her—"

Then his cheek grew red, even in the blackness of the swamp, that he should impute such motives to Anita Cameron. He had only to think of her clear eyes and broad fair forehead to be ashamed.

"That old woman is at the bottom of this. I'd break every bone in her body if she were only a man."

He shut his lips very tight; and the mule stumbled on.

CHAPTER V.

THE MAN THAT DID NOT CARE.

The bitterness of night had come upon Noel Duke as suddenly as an eclipse at morning extinguishes the newly risen sun. He floundered in a rayless swamp, crossing bridges that he could not see, trusting to his mule, and struggling through the sloughs. Blue mud splattered up and stained him—stained him in body, and filled his soul with evil thoughts. Even the chivalric traditions of his race could not prevent him from swearing to himself: "It's that old woman—that old woman!"

There is no swamp at Vicksburg, no slough of morbid thought, no bottomless road for man and beast to flounder in. The brilliant February sunshine glistened upon her glory-guarded hills, crowning her lordly crests with the halo of heroic yester-years. There's a lofty deed on every summit, a radiant glamour upon her sparkling lake, a mellow reverence in every valley where unmarked graves lie hid. There's a holiness, an uplift, an exaltation in these treasures of the siege-encircled city, in these memories of the river-girdled town.

But Noel Duke was in the same surly humor when, at ten o'clock the next morning, he opened the door to Joseph Balfour's law office.

Joe was in the act of turning away from the telephone. He saw Duke and began to smile.

"Hello, Noel, you're on time, I see—thought you were due to drop in pretty soon. It's a queer coincidence."

"What coincidence?"

"It's right peculiar—Joe began drumming on his desk with a pencil, that always maddened the other. "It's right peculiar—I say it's a queer coincidence, whenever she comes to Vicksburg you happen along at the same time."

"Oh, you mean Miss Cameron?"

Joe threw back his head and tough-looking fellow in a red sweater. They climbed into his buggy and drove away.

Anita saw the whole proceeding. She smiled and went on chatting. Joe Balfour watched them both—the man and the girl—from his window, and chuckled: "Did anybody ever see such an idiot. He needn't try to fool that girl, she reads him like a Mother Goose book."

CHAPTER VI.

THE CRIME.

Joe Balfour slept soundly after the cotillion. His room was on the ground floor, scarcely ten feet from the sidewalk. The usual noises of the night did not disturb him.

About daylight he was roused by a scaping against the outer wall. A man's head and shoulders rose suddenly above the widow-sill and dropped again.

Joe slipped out of bed, cocked his pistol and hid behind the curtains. "He's dragging that bench underneath the window."

Joe watched the man outside, working away, utterly unconscious of being seen.

"My Lord," he thought, "I can't shoot the fellow without giving him some kind of a chance. I'll just wait till he opens the window, then knock him in the head." With that purpose in mind, he crept to the fire-place, picked up the poker, and resumed his position.

Presently the man's fingers clutched the window-sill, and he began drawing himself up. The slouch hat reappeared. The man outside was white. He stood erect and fumbled at the sash but could not open it. Then to Joe's great astonishment the man tapped on the pane, and called:

"Joe! Joe! wake up; let me in; it's Noel!"

"Noel!" Joe exclaimed, putting his laughed—laughed until that funny little bald patch got redder than Duke's face.

FOR HEAVEN'S SAKE!

"Joe, shut up; can't a fellow get tired of the swamp and come to town to see a cock-fight without you making all that fuss? I haven't played a game of poker for four months; haven't touched a drop; haven't done a thing but worry with niggers and high water. Come along; my buggy is waiting down-stairs, and I want you to go to the chicken-fight."

Joe shook his head, the other man insisted.

"That black-breasted red of mine, Scrapper, is to be pitted in the second battle against a Georgia shawl-neck of Buster Brady's. You'd better come and see it—it'll be a great fight."

"Can't go," Joe said, regretfully. "I've got to work—got to buy shoes for Sally and the children," as old Judge Billings used to say.

"Come along, Joe—come along, don't be a chump; a little sport will do you good. I—" he glanced out of the window, stopped short, and snatched his hat. "Good-by, old fellow—sorry you won't go," and he booted off.

Joe Balfour walked to the window and looked down upon the street. He knew perfectly well what he was going to see. Miss Anita Cameron and Miss Alice Ashton were standing in front of the bookstore across the street. Duke emerged from the building on the sidewalk below, and did not turn his eyes toward them, but carefully took a position where Anita would be sure to see him.

There he stood, looking uncomfortable, then moved off a few steps and joined a noisy group of men—men with glaring neckties, diamonds, respectable-looking sweaters, and some with tall silk hats. Many of them flourished money between their fingers and offered bets. An omnibus halted at the curb, a dozen men scrambled in, calling for other to follow. Several ran back to get a last drink.

Presently Duke came up the street again, arm in arm with a particularly face close to the window. "Go around to the door—"

"No, let me in; here, quick!"

Joe unlocked the sash, raised the window, and Noel Duke scrambled across the sill, looking behind him as if he were pursued. Even in the dark Joe could see that his hands were trembling, and his face was very white.

"For heaven's sake, Noel, what's the matter? You scared me to death." Duke dropped into a chair without a word and drew a long breath of relief. Joe struck a match.

"Please don't light the gas," Duke begged. The voice did not sound like his; all its snap and buoyancy had gone.

Joe coaxed the fire into a place. Duke's eyes followed him vaguely, without interest.

After Joe had drawn on his unders and dressing-gown, he laid his hand upon Duke's shoulder. "Well, boy, what's the trouble?"

Then steady old Joe waited; there was something exquisitely tender in his attitude toward the younger man. He was still standing there, looking down, when Duke began to speak, without turning his head or lifting his eyes.

"Joe, do you remember last night how you begged me to go to that cotillion, and then come home with you? I knew I ought to do it but I was hard-headed, I had my own way. Joe I killed a man last night."

"What? Who was he? What was it about?"

(TO BE CONTINUED)

Germans Shocked at African Manners. The natives of German East Africa have contracted the vulgar habit of drinking soda water directly out of the bottles instead of pouring it first into a glass. To check this, the government officials have issued a regulation that all natives discovered drinking out of bottles will be liable to severe corporal punishment or imprisonment, less refilled bottles used should find their way to tables of Europeans.—Kölnische Zeitung.

SIDE LIGHTS ON MICHIGAN

SHORTAGE OF CARS MAY CLOSE UP SAGINAW COAL MINES.

ALL BUSINESS DELAYED

ELEVATORS ARE FULL OF GRAIN THAT CANNOT BE MOVED AND GENERAL BLOCKADE ON.

No Relief in Sight.

Never before has the car shortage been so oppressive to business in the Saginaw valley. All departments of business life are affected. The district freight agent of the Pere Marquette has predicted relief, but none is in sight.

The coal mines are not receiving more than 10 per cent of the cars they require. The Pere Marquette has installed a derrick on the outskirts of the city whereby 20 cars can be unloaded daily. This will provide the road's winter supply of fuel.

There are persistent rumors that if the car shortage continues much longer it will result in the closing down of the mines, either partially or completely.

The Saginaw Milling Co., the largest shippers in their line in Michigan, having 14 large elevators in various state cities, has issued orders to farmers at the points where the company does business not to bring in any more grain. The elevators are full and cars cannot be had. The company ordinarily handles 20 cars daily. In two weeks only two cars were furnished by the railroads. Wholesale merchants are only partially filling orders to out-of-town retailers.

The sugar factories are almost at a standstill. A few weeks ago no cars could be secured and stocks of raw cane were depleted. Some cars were secured, but because of a scarcity of labor they cannot be unloaded fast enough to supply the factories.

Shoppers in Shiawassee county could place 1,000 cars if they had them at their disposal. The Grosvenor Sugar Co. is receiving but two or three cars daily, but could use 100 cars more each week. The hay business is a big feature in this county and the car shortage is tying up the business. Albert Todd & Co. want 300 cars. W. H. Oxford needs 25 cars weekly in excess of what he is getting, and S. A. Clapp says that he would like to have from 10 to 15 more weekly.

The Pere Marquette has put on 300 new freight cars in the Grand Rapids district since Oct. 22. Local pressure, caused by car shortage, has been materially relieved in this way.

Deer in Drovers.

Deer are so numerous in the more unsettled portions of Dickinson county that they have been seen lately in groups of three and five on the Morgan Lumber & Cedar Co.'s farm. In a drive almost anywhere in the wilder districts of the peninsula one gets a glimpse of a deer or two feeding along the road, and in some of the more settled townships complaints are registered by homesteaders of depredations by these animals. Recently, at Escanaba, a deer dashed through the outskirts of the city and into the Bay. It endeavored to swim out into the lake, but was captured by the crew of a steamer and hoisted on board the craft, and later released, on the orders of the game warden.

Saved Wife and Son.

The smell of smoke awoke H. A. Andrews, of Traverse City, and as he opened the dining room door to investigate flames and smoke puffed out and enveloped him. With rare presence of mind, though blinded, burned and stifled, he contrived to close the door and then crawled upstairs and awakened his wife and son. The parents lowered the boy from a window by a rope hastily devised of bed clothing. They clad only in their night clothes, they made their escape in a snowstorm by way of a back window over a shed roof. The house was destroyed as they stood there helpless.

Mr. Andrews is in a critical condition.

Stock Thieves Are Busy.

There is much petty thieving about Grand Blanc, Genesee county. Chicken roosts have been repeatedly raided, grain and other articles stolen, and pigs have been stolen out of pens. Several farmers have lost sheep and at one place five lambs were taken and 25 more were locked in a barn for a future raid. The barn was some distance from the home of the owner and he went there only about once a week. When he visited them he found that the thieves had locked the flock in the barn and left them and the 25 sheep served to death.

Harvest Help Scarce.

So desperate are the needs of the farmers at Alamo, a small town near Plainwell, for help to harvest their large potato crop that the high school and rural schools nearby have been closed.

Supt. Callender, with all of the boys and many of the girls, worked in the fields either digging or picking up potatoes.

Yet this does not supply the demand for help and most any kind of wages are offered to outside laborers.

Capt. Henry Schwellenbach, of Menominee, is to succeed Charles Hendrickson, of Houghton, as major of the Third regiment, M. N. G.

George Kalmbach, of Jackson, was fined $5 with 30 days in jail and 20 additional days if the fine is not paid, for shooting one of the Loomis park squirrels.

Tony D. Bartello, who stabbed to death "Bud" Stone, a P. M. railroad conductor, at Lowell, was sentenced Friday to five to fifteen years at Ionia. Bartello had been plagued by trainmen and the judge recommended a five-year term.

SAVED BABY LYON'S LIFE

Awful Slight from That Dreadful Complaint, Infantile Eczema—Mother Praises Cuticura Remedies.

"Our baby had that dreadful complaint, infantile Eczema, which afflicted him for several months, commencing at the top of his head, and at last covering his whole body. His sufferings were untold and constant misery in fact, there was nothing we would not have done to have given him relief. We finally procured a full set of the Cuticura Remedies, and in about three or four days he began to show a brighter spirit and really laughed, for the first time in a year. In about ninety days he was fully recovered. Praise for the Cuticura Remedies has always been our greatest pleasure, and there is nothing too good that we could say in their favor, for they certainly saved our baby's life, for he was the most awful sight that I ever beheld, prior to the treatment of the Cuticura Remedies. Mrs. Ma-belle Lyon, 1826 Appleton Ave., Parsons, Kan., July 18, 1905."

The Caravan Cure. One of the many "cures" favored by fashionable people weary of London, is the caravan cure. This simple and enjoyable method of renewing one's strength consists in traveling about Britain in a cart, such as the Gypsies have, and camping out at night wherever a haven can be found. Lord and Lady Arthur Grosvenor have spent the summer journeying in this fast on though Exmoor, a wild and mountainous country, made famous by the great romance, Lorna Doone. One night they encamped on the farm of John Ridd, of the novel. The difficulties in hill climbing have been enormous, but the pleasure of the trip has made it worth while.

Starch, like everything else, is being constantly improved, the patent Starches put on the market 25 years ago are very different and inferior to those of the present day. In the latest discovery—Defiance Starch—all injurious chemicals are omitted, while the addition of another ingredient, invented by us, gives to the Starch a strength and smoothness never approached by other brands.

That an article may be good as well as cheap, and give entire satisfaction, is proven by the extraordinary sale of Defiance Starch, each package containing one-third more Starch than can be had of any other brand for the same money.

"What is the goal of your ambition, Harry?" "I ain't got no goal. I'm named after ma's bachelor brother, who's a millionaire, and ain't going to leave anything to charity."

Defiance Starch—Never sticks to the iron—no blotches—no blisters, makes ironing easy and does not injure the goods.

People sometimes sit up a lot of trouble by telling the truth when it would be policy to say nothing.

benefited as she was. Miss Goode is president of the Bryn Mawr Lawn Tennis Club of Chicago. She writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I tried many different remedies to build up my system, which had become run down from loss of proper rest and unreasonable hours, but nothing seemed to help me. Mother is a great advocate of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for female troubles, having used it herself some years ago with great success. So I began to take it, and in less than a month I was able to be out of bed and out of doors, and in three months I was entirely well. Really I have never felt so strong and well as I have since."

No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, bloating (or flatulence), displacement of organs, inflammation or ulceration, can be restored to perfect health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Her experience is very great, and she gives the benefit of it to all who stand in need of wise counsel. She is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. ## NERVOUS COLLAPSE Sinking Spells, Headaches, and Rheumatism all Yield to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Mrs. Lizzie Williams, of No. 416 Cedar street, Quincy, Ill., says: "Ever since I had nervous prostration, about thirteen years ago, I have had periodical spells of complete exhaustion. The doctor said my nerves were shattered. Any excitement or unusual activity would throw me into a state of lifelessness. At the beginning my strength would come back in a moderate time after each attack, but the period of weakness kept lengthening until at last I would be helpless as many as three hours at a stretch. I had dizzy feelings, palpitation of the heart, misery after eating, hot flashes, nervous headaches, rheumatic pains in the back and hips. The doctor did me so little good that I gave up his treatment, and really feared that my case was incurable."

"When I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills my appetite grew keen, my nerves no longer distressed me, my nerves were quieted to a degree that I had not experienced for years, and my strength returned. The fainting spells left me entirely after I had used the third box of the pills, and my friends say that I am looking better than I have done for the past fifteen years."

"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are recommended for diseases that come from impoverished blood such as anemia, rheumatism, debility and disorders of the nerves such as neuralgia, nervous prostration and partial paralysis. They have cured the most stubborn indigestion. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills agree with the most delicate stomach, quiet all nervousness, stir up every organ to do its proper work and give strength that lasts."

NORTHVILLE, MICH., NOV. 2, '06

Mr. Kimmerle-Should Buy.

If Mr. Kimmerle whose temporary prominence as a candidate for governor has been in asking questions, had as close an acquaintance with all sections of Michigan and with all the people of the state as has the republican candidate for governor, he might also have been willing to invest in some of its alleged wild lands and to risk his time and money in its improvement. The development of the large tracts of lands of seeming little value in the northern counties of Michigan must depend upon those who have confidence and enterprise in the state's continued progress and who are willing to work and wait for value to come to the lands they buy. There are millions of acres of these lands yet for sale and every acre sold to one who will improve it gives some added value to every other acre of land in Michigan. Mr. Kimmerle can do Michigan no greater good than to buy some of the same lands and improve and pay taxes on them the same as Governor Warner has done.

The Jersey Forty.

The attack on Governor Warner by "the enemy" sprung on the eve of election about poor "Widow Jersey's" forty acres' up in Ogemaw county, has petered out as usual. The land in question was bought at public auction three years ago by Mr. Warner and several others. The Jersey forty had not paid any taxes for nineteen years and the original owners had abandoned them years before Jersey or anyone else had "squatted" on them. Mrs. Jersey doesn't want the land, but some of the friends of the democratic candidate for governor are trying to make her think she does.

Vote November 6.

There is not a farmer or laboring man in Michigan republican, democrat or proli who cannot well afford to give every moment of his time on Tuesday, November 6, to earnest work in behalf of the political tickets of his township, village or ward. If not all the day can be given some part of it should be devoted to that purpose. Don't let any doubt exist as to what the future direction of affairs in our state and country will be by reason of a light vote at the coming election.

Townsend Sentiment Growing.

No one can get away from the fact that there is a rapidly growing sentiment all over Michigan for Charlie Townsend for U. S. Senator. The people as a whole are for him by a very large majority and in many instances they are serving notices on their nominees for the legislature of their feeling in this matter.

School Notes.

[By a Pup.]

Harry White was out of school last week on account of illness.

The fourth grade have decided to hold their Halloween party Friday afternoon.

Eloise Tiffin, who has been visiting in California with her mother, has returned to school.

The flag hung at half mast Monday and Tuesday on account of the death of Dr. Blanchard.

Frances Clark, of the eighth grade, is back in school again after having been ill the past five weeks.

Frances Yerkes, of the fifth grade, who has been absent on account of sickness, is back in school again.

The tenth grade will hold rhetorical Friday afternoon in the High school room. Visitors welcome.

We were sorry to learn of the death of Dr. A. L. Blanchard, former director and member of the school board.

School was closed Tuesday afternoon so that those who wished might attend the funeral of Dr. Blanchard.

The other day Miss Coldren discovered that she had more than forty pupils, the additional ones being two old mice and two little ones in a nest in the cupboard.

Lydia Doyle, of the sixth grade, has left this school to attend a country school which is much nearer her home. The sixth grade and teacher were sorry to lose her.

There are several drawings on the board in the second grade, of Brownies, who are believed to go abroad on Halloween night for the purpose of helping the people with their work.

THE OLD FOLKS AT HOME

Are Never Without Pe-ru-na in the Home for Catarrhal Diseases.

Mr. S. D. Foss, 116 S. E. 6th Street, Minneapolis, Minn., writes:

"I wish to congratulate you on your medicine, Pe-ru-na. I have been a sufferer with catarrh of the stomach for over two years, but since I have commenced to take your remedy I have been steadily improving until now I can safely say I feel no more of my old trouble, and as a matter of course, I will always have a good word for Pe-ru-na."

"I recommend it to all my friends." Mrs. Magdalena Winkler, Route 4, Westminster, Md., writes:

"I thank you very much for your advice. I can safely say that Pe-ru-na and Manalin have saved my life."

"When I wrote to you the first time, asking your advice, my condition was so poor that I did not expect to live through the winter, but now I am perfectly healthy. I cannot praise your medicine enough and I recommend it to others."

T. T. Markland, a well-known business man of Cincinnati, O., writes from 5100 Woodburn Ave., as follows:

"I find that in my case Pe-ru-na is a flesh builder. I am now at work every day, and have gained ten pounds. I took your Pe-ru-na according to directions, and the result was more than I expected."

"I can now breathe with ease, and also my cough is stopped. I had it for six months before I took down with the grip."

"I took no other medicine but Pe-ru-na and it accomplished all. You told me in your first letter that Pe-ru-na would cure me and it has."

"I am seventy-three years old and can attend to my work and business as usual."

Mrs. Theone Mikkelsen, Brigham City, Utah, writes:

"I wish to thank you for all the good Pe-ru-na has done me. I am entirely free from the cough which used to bother me so much every winter."

"My kidneys are also in good condition, and I feel stronger and better all over. For all these I give the credit to your excellent medicine, Pe-ru-na. I am pleased to recommend it to everybody."

Countess Castellane Must Give Up Millions to Retain Her Children

Has Choice of Paying Count's Debts or Allowing Him to Keep the Boys—Tragic Ending of Sordid International Marriage

Paris.—Anna Gould, the countess of Castellane, probably will pay $5,000,000 for her three sons.

Count Boni de Castellane, father of the children, demands possession of the children and gives the daughter her choice between paying his debts and giving up her children. Unless she pays the debts the French court probably will hold that she cannot take them from France without the consent of the spendthrift nobleman who, since March 4, 1895, when he married her, has squandered over $3,000,000 of Jay Gould's fortune and seeks to make it $14,000,000 before he will release her.

That the Goulds will pay the $5,000,000 to settle the debts of Boni de Castellane, even those of the usurers who world. It is the mother of three manly boys. She is older, sadder, and wiser—as well as poorer.

Story Is Tragic.

The story best can be told by years; the story of the little girl overburdened with the wealth that Jay Gould had won by fair and foul means in the railroad world and the stock jobbing market, who married a French nobleman, noble in name and noble in almost everything else except his ability to fight with others of his type.

On March 4, 1895, Boni de Castellane, alleged nobleman of France, married Anna Gould. She had met the prince and white, dapper Frenchman by special arrangement of his own—of which she knew nothing—and perhaps she had loved him, in a way. Perhaps she dreamed he was her Prince Charming. The Frenchman came to America. He lived in a back room over a dressmaker's establishment. He had come to America to marry money. He said it himself. And before he married he asked for a marriage portion of $5,000,000 and got $3,000,000. He hadn't even met Miss Gould when he privately announced that he would marry her. He had little money, but he was determined to wed. He went to a hotelkeeper and explained. Then he moved to one of the greatest hotels in the world and gave a little dinner, and a "friend" asked Miss Gould to attend. Within a month the wedding was arranged. A month later the engagement was announced. The day of the announcement Castellane moved to the Waldorf-Astoria and began buying on credit.

The day after the wedding the bills began to pour in.

They went to Paris and Boni de Castellane began spending Jay Gould's millions. His first great exploit was have preyed off him for years, is believed by their friends and by counsel in the case. If the Goulds remain firm, Count Boni will ask the court to forbid the mother to take her children beyond the jurisdiction of the French courts. He will plead that if the children are given into the custody of the mother they may be taken beyond the reach of the courts, and if the court upholds his contention, as the lawyers believe it will, the count may win.

The children for whom the countess may pay $1,666,666 each are

Boni de Castellane, aged ten years

Georgie Gould de Castellane, aged five

Ray de Castellane, aged four years and six months.

Perhaps every mother in the world has said she would not take a million dollars for her baby, and now the American girl who became the best known, if not the most famous, noblewoman in Europe through the lavish waste of money, has the opportunity of buying her children at a price little in excess of what she paid, only a few years ago, for a bed.

At the final payment of $5,000,000 is made, Anna Gould will have paid $2,666,666 a day for her husband and her three children—which even now she may lose.

Children May Prefer Father.

The attitude of the children themselves toward the warring parents is rather inclined toward the father. They are more French than American, having been raised in France and in such luxury and extravagance that they scarcely know the meaning of money, the thing that has caused all—or almost all—the woes of the American girl who allied her millions to a doubtful French title.

Their loyalty to their mother is unshaken, but between America and France they choose France, because the older ones have been trained in French schools, and deeper than that, because they have been reared in the religion of their father. If the choice was with them it would be France and the Roman Catholic church on one side, and the love of their mother—and money—on the other. The countess herself has become almost French.

The $5,000,000 children are handsome and clever youngsters, and the youngest, who bears the name of the great and piratical pioneer millionaire, is declared to be the handsomest child in Paris. His portrait has been painted by the most famous artists of France, and as a baby his beauty attracted attention everywhere. The physical perfection of the children is marveled at by sociologists because the mother is undersized, salow and irregular of feature, while the father is small, effeminate, and yet handsome in his way. He might be called pretty rather than handsome.

Isn't the Anna Gould of 11 years ago who is fighting for freedom and her children and willing perhaps, to pay the remainder of her magnificent fortune for the privilege of returning to America with her children. It is not the Countess de Castellane, leader of the royalists in Paris, the proud-est of the proudest society set in the the purchase of a site in the famous Avenue Malakoff and to order workmen to reproduce Le Petit Trainon, the retreat of Louis XIV, home of the famous Mme. de Maintenon, to copy the most infamous, licentious court of history. Millions poured into the building. One bed alone cost almost a million dollars. Art treasures were purchased.

One-fifth given by Boni de Castellane swept away a ninth of the yearly income of his wife, which was $900,000. Millions were spent before they were earned. The girl with an income of nearly a million dollars a year was in debt.

Finds Comfort in Baby.

The countess was not happy—but then Boni was born and came to comfort her. Her husband continued his wild extravagances until even Paris marveled. Millions seemed to have turned his head. The nursery for his heir in Petit Trainon was furnished at the expense of more than the ordinary man makes in a lifetime.

In June of 1897 the income for the year was spent. Boni still was buying. He bought from Asher Wertheim, of London, curios for which he could not pay. This bill later proved one of the direct means of his downfall. Among other things that he wanted was an Italian palace. He bought one at Verona at a stupendous price. In it were 11 ceilings by Tiepolo, and the count wanted them transferred to Paris. It was done and then—they were sold at enormous loss.

The year 1898 was marked by Castellane's duel with Henri Turot and his blackbaling in the Jockey club.

It still, with her two sons the little countess was busy and found solace in them, even when the extravagances of her husband and his wild actions caused doubt as to his sanity. His eccentricities and his half insane desire for notoriety amazed even Paris. He planned a riot directed against the president of France at the races at Autent, and he and his wife were among the chief actors in the comedy-drama which cost them a fortune.

Boni was becoming ridiculous. He proved himself skillful at fencing, wounding one adversary. Even his title was attacked; he was ridiculed openly in the chamber of deputies, and at the end of the year, when he came to the United States to get more money, he was charged with fleeing from creditors.

The countess came with him, bringing her two sons, the only solace she had, and they had an argument on the ship—neither of them knowing the American flag when they saw it.

Millions to Save Name.

In 1900 financial troubles were at a climax. Castellane had openly slurred the Goulds, especially Helen Gould. His family openly charged that Anna Gould was "bourgeoise." Boni was as reckless as ever. Petit Trainon was incomplete. Boni came to America again to get money and failed. The countess' chateau at Damparis was ordered sold for debt and only an appeal to her family saved it. Tradesmen openly insulted the Castellanes and dunned them in public. George and Edwin Gould gave $1,000,000 to save the family pride. Boni had spent $3,000,000, besides his wife's income, and owed over $4,000,000.

In 1901 the courts took a hand to save the fortune of the little American. A receiver was appointed in the person of her brother George. The family paid $4,700,000 of Boni's debts and held the countess' fortune to protect her and themselves. By order of the court the income of the Castellanes was reduced from $900,000 to $200,000, but they fought in court and got the entire income.

In that year Boni fought Henri de Roday and shot him in the leg. Also he gave a boat hunt that cost $100,000 for the Grand Duke Boris. He entertained the king of Portugal.

Early in 1903, when Jay, the young-est baby, was a few months old, the countess suddenly left the count. It was reported that they were estranged, but Boni came to America and denied this report. Also, he was charged with refusing to pay debts of honor.

Debts were piling up again and the Goulds were stubborn, refusing to hand out more millions to be thrown away.

With her three children to comfort her and keep her busy, the countess did not care. But in 1904 the real trouble began, the trouble that changed the countess and made her a woman and a mother, instead of the reckless follower of a more reckless husband.

Boni Unfaithful.

Boni set up a bachelor establishment and the countess began to hear of "ces dames" the count entertained, actresses, models, nudistettes—the women he could not invite to his home. The countess could do nothing. Paris would laugh if she paid any attention to them. They were beneath her. But at last the American woman was cropping out. Her renewed devotion to the children and her more impressive appearance revealed a change.

Still the money went furiously. The king of Portugal was their guest and nearly a quarter of a million dollars was spent on him during his visit.

The countess had stood much. But finally, in 1905, the break came. "Ces dames" were one thing—but a woman of her own class was another. The name of the Duchess d'Uzes was coupled with that of Castellane. The duchess, in her way, is as eccentric as Castellane. The countess suffered in silence no longer. She separated from her husband and then brought suit for divorce.

The suit was the signal for the creditors to pounce down upon Boni. In France the wife is responsible for certain debts jointly with her husband and the creditors feared the Gould millions would escape. The Goulds, having lavished nearly $10,000,000 on the count, refused to pay more. Boni, the man who had refused to pay debts of honor, calmly offered to make terms.

And now—unless the creditors are satisfied, he will use the children as his last weapon and force a settlement.

JAPAN LAND OF JUGGLERS.

Old Wizard Amuses Dinner Guests by Feeding Foreign Skeptic.

Japan is the land of jugglers and fashionable Japanese always have them at any large entertainment they give. One very clever old man goes around in a single cotton gown with two baskets full of "properties" over his shoulders, and, putting them down anywhere, performs his tricks, with the expectant audience encircling him. A handful of coppers rewards him sufficiently and he goes on to eat fire, discharge eggs, needles, lanterns and smoking pipes at the next place. At a recent Japanese dinner a foreign guest determined to have no optical illusions about what the jugglers did. He never allowed his glances to be distracted and was not once off his guard. Noticing this, the old juggler played to him entirely. An immense porcelain vase was brought in and set in the middle of the room and the juggler, crawling in, let himself down into it slowly. The skeptic sat for half an hour without taking his eye from the vase, which, he was convinced, was sound and firm and stood on no trap door. After this prolonged watch the rest of the company assailed him with laughter and jeers, and pointed to his side, where the old juggler was seated fanning himself and had been seated for some minutes.

SAVED THE CUSTOMER TROUBLE

Neat Way Waiter Secured Tip from "Close" Man.

There is a waiter in a Washington cafe, who is the acme of polite attention, endeavoring in every way to save his customers trouble. The other day a man came in who was sized up by John as probably a "little close," but the service was fully up to the standard. The bill came to 89 cents, and the man handed over a dollar bill.

John then proceeded to help the man into his coat.

"Where's my change?" the customer asked.

"Change, sah? Dar ain't none—dat was mah tip, tank yo', sah!" John said with a bow.

"But I hadn't given it to you," the man protested.

"Oh course not, sah. Ah wouldn't 'low yo' ter go ter all dat trouble, sah!" John said, with another bow, and the man went out, looking a trifle dazed.

BIRDS THAT ENJOY DANCING

Have Regular "Ball Rooms" for Their Gyration.

Dancing is by no means confined to quadrupeds; it is the principal play of many birds.

Perhaps the finest of bird dancers is the South American cock of the rock. These birds have regular dancing places, level spots which they keep clear of sticks and stones.

A dozen or more of the bird dancers assemble around this spot, and then a cock bird, his scarlet crest erect, steps into the center. Spreading his wings and tail, he begins to dance; at first with slow and stately steps, then gradually more and more rapidly until he is spinning like a mad thing. At last, tired out, he sinks down, hops out of the ring and another takes his place.

Some of the quail tribe are great dancers, and so are the American sand hill cranes. It is a most ludicrous sight to watch a crane dancing; he is so desperately solemn over the whole performance. He looks like a shy young man who has just learned to waltz and is rather ashamed of the accomplishment.

John Stuart Mill.

James Mill, his father, was a hard man, a clever man, and a crank—a hedonist capable of making himself thoroughly disagreeable about the greatest happiness of the greatest number; a theorist who regarded his clever son as a suitable object for educational experiments.

He would not send him to school because schools were the fortresses of "prejudice" and taught the wrong things in the wrong way. He provided him with no playmates, and allowed him no holidays, lest "the habit of work should be broken."—Francis Gribble, in Fortnightly Review.

Senator Spooner, of Wisconsin, is a successful hunter of big game. On one of his trips he had for his guide Bill Murray. They were out looking for bear or deer one day, when Murray suddenly threw up his rifle and fired. The senator saw an animal fall heavily, and called: "We've got him this time, Bill."

"We!" sneered the guide. "There's no we about it. I killed him plain enough."

Quickly making their way to where their quarry lay, they found a fine specimen of Jersey calf.

"We've killed somebody's calf!" yelled the guide.

Senator Spooner gave him a withering look and said: "William, you should be more particular in your choice of pronouns. 'We' isn't adapted to this particular instance."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Success in the Gulf Coast Country

Here is an example of what YOU could do.

150 Bushels of Corn from One Acre in 15 Months

Mr. John Closner has a farm near Hidalgo, Texas. He has raised three crops of corn on one piece of land in the last fifteen months. Each crop yielded not less than fifty bushels to the acre.

He does not have to wait for the ground to thaw in the Spring. Almost as soon as he harvests one crop he can plant for the next. He is not afraid that the weather will be too wet or too dry or too cold. He waters his land by irrigation and has an inexhaustible supply of water.

If you will write Mr. Closner at Hidalgo, Texas, he will tell you more about this country. There have been many other instances of remarkable success in the Gulf Coast Country, of which I will be glad to tell you upon request.

Wouldn't you like to have a small farm there where success does not depend on uncertain weather with irregular rainfall?

Now the land is cheap and you can get it on easy terms. Twenty acres will cost you about $300. The cost of clearing it is about $5 an acre. The cost of water for irrigation varies. You may want an artesian well of your own; you may get water from some river; or you may get it from your neighbor. But the cost is not great, and those who have tried it have netted from the first crop a sum which has paid all expenses and left a good surplus.

...: CAMILLA ...:

By EDGAR WHITE

(Copyright, 1906, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

She was such a little thing, and so used to bow her tawny head at the caprices of earth, air and sky, that nothing was further from her parents' minds than her reluctance when the lord of San Jose valley condescended to ask his hard-working peons for their daughter. Just why Camilla's glowing, black eyes should flush with tears instead of shine with delight at the great honor was beyond the divination of the star readers, and she never told. The marriage of the daughter meant the liberty of the parents. The big hacendado had sworn it. He was a good man and would keep his word. Camilla knew that. The prelado who was to perform the ceremony had called to congratulate. He told her any maiden in the province would be rightly proud to win the love of de Gomara, and left her quite dutil.

The wedding was a fine affair. Looking like some glorious bird of the tropics, the little bride smiled sweetly beside her lordly husband and extended a soft white hand to well-wishing friends. Military men from the Alajuela mountain garrison formed a fair proportion of the guests, and their smart uniforms blended artistically in the sparkling panorama under the chandeliers.

The perfume of rare flowers, the languorous melodies of Castile and the subtle magnetism of bright eyes that outshone their own diamonds chased the glad hours away. In groups of two to ten the guests were scattered about the verandas and the softly lighted lawns. As they walked side by side under the shadow of the date palms the young husband was gently breathing the story of his first love to the starlit face beside him. In words of boyish enthusiasm he sketched the rose-strewn way along the velvet path of life. She listened as a glad child, and for answer raised her warm, trembling lips to his. A tall streak of fire shot out from the sullen mouth of Cartago volcano. "It's the birth of love," murmured the adoring husband; "it's a good omen, sweetheart."

Camilla assented, her coral lips showing the white gems beneath. They had reached the far end of the lawn, where de Gomara stopped and raised his hand to the star-decked heavens.

"May thy richest blessings—" Quicker than the stealthy action of a tiger two dark-eyed men came out of the shadows and, leaping upon the hacendado, gagged him and bound his hands. Then as swiftly and as noiselessly they gently picked up Camilla and gently passed her across the hedge, where a sinister crowd of dark figures awaited, like vampires of the swamps.

The music and the dance went on, the stars glowed out of the dark canopy and now and then Cartago discharged a column of white, hot flame. Then a discovery was made by a pair of promenaders. The stricken hacendado was released and the military gentlemen mounted in hot haste.

"Ten thousand pesos for the brigand Moreno, dead or alive!" So cried the lord of San Jose valley as he climbed into the saddle on his great black stallion and led the way. A like reward had been standing against the bandit captain by federal warrant since he had relieved the bank at Alajuela some moons back, and there were in addition captaincies and colonels' commissions for the subalterns who crossed swords with him and lived.

Under the tropic heavens, through the perfumed foliage, into the wild mountains rode the rescuers, three hundred strong. Ferociously in the van thundered the black steed of the hacendado, his rider's mind considering the most appropriate punishment for the malefactor. The law's merciful prescription of rifle balls before breakfast was ridiculously inadequate. The faggots or boiling oil seemed a better remedy, yet scarcely measuring up to the exigency. He would consult the monks, who had read up on the inquisition, and perhaps an ideal method might be suggested.

As the ascent grew steeper the party deployed. De Gomara and his retinue keeping straight ahead, turned suddenly into a roadway cut into the side of the mountain. Across the abyss was Moreno and his fantastic crowd of outlaws lined up as if waiting. Camilla sat on the saddle in front of her captor. De Gomara, with a cry of rage, raised his carbine. The bandit held up his right hand.

"Señor de Gomara," he said, "it would be a pity to slaughter a hundred good men when two will suffice."

The hacendado understood. "So be it," he returned; "you on that side and I on this till one shall die."

Moreno dismounted and gently assisted Camilla to alight. He indicated a safe place for her to stand and walked down the road bordering the chasm on his side. It was agreed that a captain in the pursuing party should count. The bandit stepped boldly into the center of the road. He was a magnificent figure when he threw his long black coat on a rock and began examining his carbine. From his tall black hat a crimson plume threw a sinister shadow in the morning sunlight. His face was strong and rugged like a soldier's that had seen service, but his voice, though clear, was soft and musical. He was a typical bandit of song and story, playing his dangerous trade in the sombre mountains of the isthmus, smiling at smartly dressed soldiers and their nickel-plated guns.

"No one could tell just how it happened, or when, but at the last count the two carbines spoke simultaneously and Camilla sank at the feet of the brigand chief with a bullet in her breast. De Gomara's right arm was perforated by the ball from the enemy's deflected weapon. With a strange cry, Moreno stooped and lifted the stricken girl. Then he looked across the gorge."

"A truce, gentlemen," he said; "the lady's life. Will Señor de Gomara please come over? My men will guide him and protect him."

Moreno walked down the narrow cliff roadway and then disappeared in a rude shanty on the mountain side. When the hacendado entered a few minutes later he saw the brigand on his knees beside the cot, the dying girl's arms around his neck. Her eyes were looking into his with pathetic devotion.

"They made me do it, my dear Moreno," she murmured; "thou wilt forgive, poor Camilla, who never ceased to love thee?"

The brigand ran his hand through the tawny tresses and whispered something no one else heard. The dark eyes smiled; then closed forever. For a moment or two the hunted man knelt with bowed head. Then he arose and looked into the face of the one with whom he had fought.

"Her last words were of love and forgiveness," he said, with a curious trembling of the voice. "I imagine she mistook me for you."

The hacendado's eyes brightened. "Heaven be praised!" he exclaimed; "I feared she loved you."

"Not likely," returned Moreno, with affected carelessness. "I had heard of her in—in a general way—that's all. Her dust is yours."

SIDEWALK TELLS A FIB.

Jim Crosby Suffers Injustice Because of Newfangled Invention.

"It all resulted from Jim Crosby's wife's curiosity to know how Jim passed his time while she was visiting her mother in the next town. Jim's wife had a brother who ran a novelty factory in the city, and she induced him to make a musical sidewalk, about 15 feet long, leading from the street to the front door. It was so fixed that when you stepped on a plank a clear bell-like note was struck. If you walked fast it played a quickstep. If slow and loafing like it was a dirge. If you substepped it was a discord. And when you opened and closed the door it registered just the hour you arrived home. She wound it up, good for eight days, and went away contentedly."

"I shall remain at home every night, dear," says Jim, as they said farewell.

"You'd better," says she. "And the peculiar part of it was Jim did stay at home. He had a repentant spell and we couldn't get him to budge from the house for the whole week. But we didn't know anything about the musical sidewalk and little recked that it was piling up evidence against Jim. You see, we got to running up to Jim's door at odd hours and dancing a teasing mousie on the walk, just to coax him out. We heard lively music when we did it, and supposed Jim was playing some instrument inside to accompany us. And he thought we were serenading him. Then he'd often come to the window and grin a denial to our prolonged invitation and at last we'd go away."

"Well, when his wife got back she produced the dial and records and his eyes bulged when she told him what had been keeping tabs on his exits and entrances."

"I'm mighty glad I was good," he sighed with relief.

"Then she opened the mechanism and gave a scream. For all our carryings-on were faithfully recorded. The first record showed he had spent the night dancing on the walk to the tune of 'Don't Treat My Baby So.' From the second record she deduced he was repentant and sentimental, as it showed a staggering effort, accompanied by 'She Is Sleeping in the Valley by Request.' And so on for the entire week. Of course, we all tried to make her believe the truth, but when she leaves home now she takes him with her, and the sidewalk is relegated to playing only one tune. 'When the Harvest Days Are Over.'"

—Rochester Post.

Both Wives Had Grievances.

Two neighbors were confiding their troubles to each other over the back yard fence that separated their premises. "You know," said Mrs. Higgins, "that my husband is a carpenter?" "Yes." "Well, I give you my word that all upstairs rooms are unfinished, and the roof leaks whenever it rains, and I can't get Henry to do a thing to 'em!" "You're not any worse off than I am," said Mrs. Clingham. "You know my husband used to be a fireman on a locomotive?" "Yes." "Well, just as true as I stand here, I always have to get up in the morning and make the fire."

Artificial Silk the Latest.

In Gothenburg, Sweden, or at some place in its neighborhood, will soon be built a large factory for the manufacture of artificial silk for export. A company has recently been organized there with a capital not to be less than $100,000 and not to exceed $150,000, with the purpose of building a factory and exploiting an invention made by Engineer R. W. Strehlenert, of Djursholm, Sweden, for the manufacture of vegetable silk. Excluding experiments, this industry is new in Sweden, and it is claimed that the silk manufactured from nitro-cellulose by Mr. Strehlenert's method has just as fine an appearance and is just as strong or durable as natural silk, or even stronger. It is further stated that the silk has been tested or tried in Swedish or German cloth factories and that very favorable reports have been received about it.—Consular Reports.

Baby Clothes in Mexico.

The babies of Mexico—bless their dimples!—They are no more like our babies than their grandfathers are like our grandfathers. The long skirts are made to hang open in the back from the yoke down to the bottom, and it is a dainty exhibit of hand-made lace and linen, drawn to the fineness of a spider's web, that spreads its expanse over the nurse's arm. The top of the garment is fashioned from the most elaborately beflowered and gorgeously hued material conceivable, and if the infant be a girl her splendor is not unrequitedly enhanced by a set of coral-necklace, bracelets, pin and earrings. The colorless baby dress is reserved for the unfortunate whose grandmother or great uncle has died since its birth. The white dress in this case is used as a background for a sash of wide black ribbon, tied in a manner that nearly obliterates the front of the waist, while the long ends hang on the child like the badge on the door-bell of a house of mourning.—Lleuella Tisdale, in Sunset Magazine for October.

Playwright's Method of Work.

Mr. A. W. Pinero has an unusual method of writing his plays. His work day does not begin until that of the average city man is over. In the morning he goes out, preferably on his bicycle, returning in time for early dinner. Then he has a comfortable sleep, and on waking up, late in the afternoon, he prepares for business. After a cup of tea he goes to his desk and remains working at his play until far into the night.

New Spelling Is an Aid to Carelessness

By PROF. J. F. RIDGLEY, Formerly of the Hoyt Institute of San Francisco.

SERIOUSLY doubt the practicability of the phonetic style of spelling. It is not a step forward, and even the impetuous President Roosevelt has given can hardly make it a fact to be desired.

The phonetic spelling if used even in moderation will be one of the best aids to the natural carelessness of children that could be manufactured, and it's great for the lazy child.

My experience has been that there are a hundred children with a natural genius for figures to one with the genius for spelling, and there is nothing aside from vulgar construction that stamps a lack of education as a deficiency in spelling.

When a child has learned to master the stumbling and barrier-like words of aurora borealis and asafetida it has begun to get a grasp on its dominant brain and the child brain that works over the victory of putting the proper amount of s's in Mississippi has made a stand on an upper plane and will in itself strive for other victims in other directions.

So far as the spelling itself is concerned, we might just as well spell asafetida asafetida, or aurora borealis aurora borealis, but then when it comes to the phonetic system, who's going to stop us from going as far as we like, and where are we going to have any reward for being right? As a socialistic proposition it is a sublime victory for free thinkers, for it makes us all equal in that respect at least.

When it comes to the deep question of training for a child's mind I do not see how any one can sanction the thing to any greater extent than to get out a new standard of spelling that we must all take up again, and those of us who learned to spell once and have had to use that learning to go out and make a living with, it's no idle thing to spring an entirely new list of words on us.

What Joy They Bring To Every Home

as with joyous hearts and smiling faces they romp and play—when in health—and how conducive to health the games in which they indulge, the outdoor life they enjoy, the cleanly, regular habits they should be taught to form and the wholesome diet of which they should partake. How tenderly their health should be preserved, not by constant medication, but by careful avoidance of every medicine of an injurious or objectionable nature, and if at any time a remedial agent is required, to assist nature, only those of known excellence should be used; remedies which are pure and wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, like the pleasant laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. Syrup of Figs has come into general favor in many millions of well informed families, whose estimate of its quality and excellence is based upon personal knowledge and use.

Syrup of Figs has also met with the approval of physicians generally, because they know it is wholesome, simple and gentle in its action. We inform all reputable physicians as to the medicinal principles of Syrup of Figs, obtained by an original method, from certain plants known to them to act most beneficially and presented in an agreeable syrup in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to promote the pleasant taste; therefore it is not a secret remedy and hence we are free to refer to all well informed physicians, who do not approve of patent medicines and never favor indiscriminate self-medication.

Please to remember and teach your children also that the genuine Syrup of Figs always has the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package and that it is for sale in bottles of one size only. If any dealer offers any other than the regular Fifty cent size, or having printed thereon the name of any other company, do not accept it. If you fail to get the genuine you will not get its beneficial effects. Every family should always have a bottle on hand, as it is equally beneficial for the parents and the children, whenever a laxative remedy is required.

EVERY MAN

Who wishes to better his condition in life, or who desires to start his sons on the road to success, and especially every renter who wants to own land, should send a postal to-day for a free copy of the new book, "A Good Dairy District."

It tells all about a comparatively new region just coming into prominence as a successful dairying country. Land is very cheap, pure water and nutritious grasses are abundant, there is a market for all products at good prices, the climate is equable and healthful and the settlers already there are desirable neighbors.

Very cheap round-trip tickets on the first and third Tuesdays afford a splendid opportunity for investigation. For particulars address

P. S. EUSTIS, Dairy District Dept. 13, 209 Adams St., Chicago.

For the Children

To succeed these days you must have plenty of grit, courage, strength. How is it with the children? Are they thin, pale, delicate? Do not forget Ayer's Sarsaparilla. You know it makes the blood pure and rich, and builds up the general health in every way.

The children cannot possibly have good health unless the bowels are in proper condition. Correct any constipation by giving small laxative doses of Ayer's Pills. All vegetable, sugar-coated.

Made by J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Specialist in Orthodontia or Irregularity of the teeth.

Irregularity of the teeth is a condition frequently seen and greatly to be deplored. Few people have any comprehension of the ability possessed by modern dentists in correcting these abnormal positions of the teeth. Thus many grow to manhood and womanhood, whose faces have become deformed or whose expression is unnatural or unpleasant, because they have no knowledge of the improvement which could be made by a competent Dentist.

The results of irregular teeth are that they mar the appearance of the individual, interfere with clearness of speech, impair the ability to masticate the food thoroughly, and by reason of their crowded or abnormal position afford favorable lodgment for food particles and thereby in louse decay.

When a child presents itself I study the features and the irregularities and oral deformities. I look at the child's face and then at its profile, and endeavor to ascertain, if possible, what facial change will be brought about by any corrective art that may be applied to the case. In my judgment more is lost than gained by the removal of teeth for the correction of irregularity and should never be done, except, possibly in very rare cases. I consider it possible to take any person

Invitations are out for the wedding of Miss Mae Moyer to Mr. Roy Hine of Cleveland, Wednesday, Nov. 7, at 4:00 p. m.

Mrs. Will Hathaway and Mrs. John McIntire of Rodney, Canada, are visiting their sister, Mrs. George Woodworth, who is very ill with cancer.

The Walled Lake Farmers' club at their October meeting held at the residence of James H. Hodge, elected the following officers: President, Rev. L. H. Stevens; 1st vice president, Mark Green; 2nd vice president, Jas. H. Dodge; secretary, Mr. McCoy; treasurer, Mrs. Carpenter; corresponding secretary, A. E. Green. The November meeting will be held at the residence of John Carpenter Nov. 7.

The funeral of Wm. M. Parmenter occurred at his late residence Saturday at 2:00 p. m. Rev. L. H. Stevens spoke comforting words to the bereaved, his theme being "Christ, Our Hope." The house was filled with relatives and friends. Among the beautiful floral tributes was a large spray of carnations and chrysanthemums from the Walled Lake business men. The rain was falling throughout the day, but it seemed that when the friends started for the cemetery the clouds settled more darkly than ever and the rain came in torrents, thus seeming to deepen the gloom and grief in the hearts of the bereaved. Mr. Parmenter was born in Lockport, N. Y., 1827, came to Michigan with his parents in 1836, while Michigan was still a territory, and settled at Novi. Soon after he went to Eaton county, living there for thirty-five years. In 1859 he married Cornelia Snyder. Three children were born to them, Wm. S. of Pontiac, Chas. Wesley who died at the age of eight years, and Fred A. who has a general store in this place while living in Pottersville, Eaton county, the Congregationalist society greatly desired to build a church. Mr. Parmenter gave them the lot for the church and as he had a lumber mill sawed the lumber free of charge. Although Mr. Parmenter himself was not a member of the church he was always interested in the work, his home being sometimes termed "Congregational Preachers' Hotel." In 1871 Mr. Parmenter returned to Northville where he lived for seventeen years, moving to this place in 1888. Besides the widow and two sons there are two brothers and two sisters who reside at Northville. He will be greatly missed in this place where he assisted his son Fred in the store.

DANGER IN DELAY.

Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous for Northville People to Neglect.

"The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get a firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease follow in merciless succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Cure the kidneys with the certain and safe remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills which has cured people right here in Northville."

T. W. Wood, painter and paperhanger, of 37 Center street, says: "My wife and I are thoroughly convinced of the curative powers of this popular remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, for we used them some years ago for backache and other kidney troubles. They acted very effectively and promptly, relieving the backache and the other annoyances. Doan's Kidney Pills are the best medicine we ever used, and we are pleased to testify to their merits."

Mowry and wife were the only guests present. The newly wedded pair remained at the parsonage until Wednesday when they returned to their home at LaGrange.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Hall's Family Pills are the best.
