TAX LAWS OPERATIONS

RIGHTS OF PROPERTY OWNERS PROTECTED THROUGH YEARS.

What Happened in the Alleged "Poor Widow" Case of Recent Notoriety.

Some recent statements put forth for partisan purposes are, either through ignorance or design, so wide of the truth, as to the operation of our tax laws that they seem to give occasion for a detailed statement of the process through which title to property may be forfeited by non-payment of taxes.

In the first place, the taxes are assessed by the supervisor whom the citizens have chosen for the purpose, in April of each year. The supervisor is clothed with discretion to exempt the property of any poor person who would be unable to pay the tax.

The second step is the examination of those assessments by a board of review in May, when any one aggrieved may be heard and inequalities corrected. This board also and city councils as well, may grant exemptions demanded by charity.

Taxes there approved become payable to the local treasurer in December, with one per cent collection fee. On the tenth of January the collection fee becomes four per cent and on the first of March interests begin to accrue at the rate of one per cent a month.

On the tenth of March taxes then unpaid are reported to the county treasurer and by him reported to the auditor general at Lansing so soon as the lists can be transcribed and may be paid either to the county treasurer or the auditor general without any additional cost except the accruing interest, at any time to October 1 of the following year, or one year and ten months after they had become due.

October 1 of the second year, the delinquent lands are listed for report to the circuit court for order of sale and one dollar expense accrues upon each description; but with only that added penalty the taxes may still be paid, either to the county or the state officer, up to the time of sale, May 1, two years and five months after they were due and payable.

During the first week in May, the properties still delinquent are publicly offered by the county treasurer for the amount of taxes.

Here, now, for the first time, the delinquent taxpayer may face dispossession. In May of the fourth year the individual purchaser is entitled to deed, and descriptions bid to state become state tax lands and subject to purchase by any one for the accrued charges, either from the auditor general at private sale, or from the county treasurer at any succeeding annual sale.

In spite of that indulgence, however, thousands and thousands of descriptions stand upon the lists of state tax lands, some of them delinquent for fifteen to twenty years. Of course the time comes when the accumulating taxes and charges exceed the value of the property, and so it could never be restored to the taxpaying status. To correct that, the law has provided that state tax lands five consecutive years delinquent may be deeded to the state by the auditor general, relieved of all charges and offered for sale by the state land commissioner, first at public sale and afterward at private sale, at not less than an appraised value. Not all tax lands five years delinquent are so treated by any means; but only such as are deemed hopeless of sale at the amount of charges against them. But great areas are so treated and by that process restored from non-productive lands to productive and from non-taxpaying properties to taxpaying and so aiding a more equitable distribution of the tax burdens.

Now it might happen, as is evident that a piece of land nineteen years so delinquent would be so deeded to the state and advertised and sold by the land commissioner. It did happen. It might happen that some such piece of nineteen-year delinquent property so forfeited and deeded to the state would be sold to a company of which the governor was a member, and being about to be re-elected and the opposition having been unable to make any capital against him, it might happen that in their desperation sensational articles were sent broadcast assailing the governor for taking part in that service to the state which all citizens are invited to take part in and demanding the surrender of the property to one who had never owned it, but had been for years a mere squatter and tax free tenant by the long suffering indulgence of the state. And it might happen that the party took advantage of the fact that the reputed owner had become a widow and by the theatrical appeals to sympathy, seek to make it appear that the operation of the law and the action of the governor had been harsh. It might happen that the widow had married and gone to live in a distant state, abandoning the land to which she had no shadow of claim so that it was actually vacant when the company bought it which facts they might naturally suppress in the interest of the effectiveness of their story. And all this did happen, and it didn't phase the opposition for a moment, because this is a free country and there is no freer spot in it than Michigan.

THE DAIRY

BARN FOR SMALL DAIRY FARM.

One Which Will Accommodate Ten to Twelve Cows.

The farm barn here shown is intended to accommodate ten or twelve dairy cows together with the horses necessary for a moderate sized farm. In size it is 41 feet long by 34 feet wide.

Barn and Ground Plan.

The main floor is 12-feet wide and the height of posts 13 feet, permitting loads of hay to be driven in a basement about six feet in depth can be utilized to store the manure and to provide shelter for hogs. The frame can be made of eight inch square hemlock timbers the floor of three inch planks. This style of building should be suitable for many parts where the number of live st. is limited.

The most rigid selection, according to dairy standards, should be made among the calves as they come into profit, those being retained which will also be the average performance of the herd. When it is necessary to introduce a new sire, he should be of the same type and personal qualities already determined upon as the ideal for the herd. Constant records should be kept of the work of every individual animal in order that reasonable treatment may insure the greatest profit, and this is only possible when the owner is personally familiar with the characteristics and performance of every cow.

THE CALF.

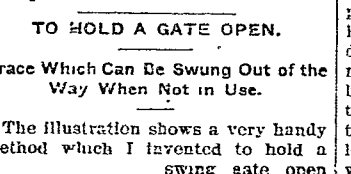

Most Rigid Selection Should Be Made in Adding to Herd.

Personal comfort, cleanliness, light air, exercise and water, all are necessary for feed. Frequent examinations should be made by a competent inspector to make sure of the health of the herd, and any animals found suffering from infectious or contagious diseases, should be immediately removed to hospital stalls for proper care. With such reasonable treatment a pure bred herd will prove itself the best investment that the intelligent farmer can make, and will be a source of constant satisfaction and pride.

TO HOLD A GATE OPEN.

Grace Which Can Be Swung Out of the Way When Not in Use.

The illustration shows a very handy method which I invented to hold a swing gate open at any width, writes a correspondent of Orange Judd Farmer. Most gates are hung so they swing upward a little in opening, to clear spow, grass, etc. They swing shut of their own accord, hence something to hold the gate open at any place while driving through or letting out stock is a necessity.

To meet this need I devised the grace shown here. It is simply a piece of wood 1 1/2 inches and a little longer than half the height of the gate. One end is fastened by a spike passed through it and driven into the edge of the vertical board at the end of the gate, or it may be put on with a hinge. The dotted lines show its position when not in use, it being swung upward and snapped beneath a spring nail to the top of the gate.

Dairy Facts. Don't overdo the milking tube act. The hand separator business has steadily increased during the past ten years. It is impossible for a cow to be too opposite things a dairy cow of the highest type and a beef animal of the greatest possible value.

The control of moisture in butter is not possible without the control of churning temperatures. Ice and thermometers are necessary for the making of butter under proper conditions. The New South Wales Farmer and Settler tells of a New Zealand farmer who holds the record as a milkster. For a considerable time he and his wife milked 72 cows night and morning, without keeping any hired help, their family consisting of one small child. We are told that the farmer and his wife were healthy and robust—which they need be—and fine specimens of humanity.

SCIENCE OF MILKING CLEAN.

What Prof. J. L. Mills, of Vermont Experiment Station, Has to Say.

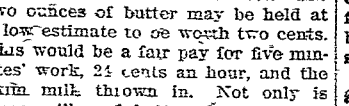

It is well known that the average milker gets less milk than he who does a thorough job, that incomplete milking means not only direct but indirect loss, not only an immediate lessening of the fat yield, but tends toward drying the cow. A Danish scientist has recently developed a special system of udder manipulation, a sort of massage of the mammary gland, as it were, which it is claimed augments the flow. The Hegelund method, as it is called, involves three manipulations, each three repeated or until no more milk is obtained. First, the pressure of the quarter on each side against each other three repeated, followed by removal of the milk; second, the pressure of the glands together on each side, the fore quarter being first manipulated and then the hindquarters, followed by removal of the milk, and third, the fore quarters are pressed between hand and body, the hands holding the teats loosely, then the hind quarters also, followed by milking.

Trials of the scheme made at the Wisconsin and New York stations afforded a daily average increase per cow of a pound of milk and two ounces of butter. The after milk was very rich in fat, testing above ten per cent. This after milking takes not to exceed five minutes' time, often only two or three minutes. The two ounces of butter may be held at a low estimate to be worth two cents. This would be a fair pay for five minutes' work, 24 cents an hour, and the skim milk thrown in. Not only is more milk and butter made, but the secretion is stimulated and the lactation period prolonged. It may be remarked, however, that the difference in milk and butter yields between this method and careful stripping are not great. This Danish method emphasizes more perhaps than has hitherto been done, the actual and potential losses due to incomplete milking.

COMPOSITION OF MILK.

Proportion of Solids to the Water Content.

A given quantity of milk is said to contain 87 per cent water, and 13 per cent total solids. The latter is divided into sugar, 4.80 per cent, fat, four per cent, casein and albumin, 2.5 per cent, and ash, seven per cent.

Solids in Milk Compared.

There is more casein in this section of the country than in other sections put together, and for the last few years was supposed to be the best. For several years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven casein to be a constitutional disease and therefore a curable constitutional disease. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, manufactured by Dr. J. C. Williams & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and restores the normal functions of the system. They offer one hundred dollar guarantee for any case it fails to cure. Send for circular and test one of a dozen bottles. Address: P. O. Box 1111, Toledo, Ohio. Sold by Druggists. Take full's name, Pills for constipation.

Wouldn't It.

Some visitors from the north attended service at a colored church in Alabama and were much amused when the good old preacher referred to John I and John II as "John with one eye and John with two eyes."

But when he gave out a hymn beginning "Purge Me with Hyssop," there was consternation in the choir and great fumbling around for a tune to fit the words. At last the leading chorister addressed the preacher: "Say, Brother Johnsing, won't you please try some older yarb?"—Lippincott's.

Honey From Spain and Germany.

There are 1,650,000 beehives, producing 19,000 tons of honey, in Spain, which is the second greatest producer of honey in the world. Germany, with 2,000,000 beehives, produces 20,000 tons.

Herding of New York's Poor.

Paul D. Cravath, chairman of the tenement-house committee of the Charity Organization society, declares that a close census shows that there are in New York tenements 357,000 rooms that have no windows.

HOW DEBILITY SHOWS

And Why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Are a Specific for Dangerous Physical Declines.

The symptoms of general debility vary according to the cause but weakness is always present, a tendency to perspire and fatigue easily, ringing in the ears, sometimes black spots passing before the eyes, weak back, vertigo, wakefulness caused by inability to stop thinking, and unrefreshing sleep. The cause of the trouble may be some drain on the system or it may be mental or physical overwork, sometimes insufficient nutrition due to digestive disturbance. In the latter case there is generally a loss of appetite and a cut-throat as well as general languor and debility.

Mrs. Lulu M. Morgan, a stenographer, brought 71 Pills to the New York Y. Y. Club for over a year for general debility. "It was a bad case of overwork," she says, "and I had no energy left. I was so weak that I could not do any work. I took your pills, and in a few days I was able to do my work. I was so weak that I could not do any work. I took your pills, and in a few days I was able to do my work. I was so weak that I could not do any work. I took your pills, and in a few days I was able to do my work."

An Easy Way to Get Rid of Stumps. A method of getting rid of stumps which has been highly recommended and which is so effective should be done now as follows. Bore a hole one or two inches in diameter and about 18 inches deep into the center of the stump. Then put into this hole one or two ounces of saltpeter. Fill the hole with water and plug it up. In the spring take out the plug, pour in about one-half gallon of kerosene oil and light it. The stump will smolder away to the very extremities of the roots, leaving nothing but the stump-falling.

Dairy Barns Need Improving.

The dairy barns in some localities are not generally of first class construction, and many of them could be improved. In some of the barns more windows are being placed, but these are not so numerous as they should be. As yet cement is little used in the construction of dairy stables. The old barns that are being repaired are not being remodeled according to modern ideas. The most objectionable feature in the barns in many localities are lack of light and lack of modern stanchions and lack of cleanliness.

A WOMAN'S BACK.

The Aches and Pains Will Disappear if the Advice of This Northville Citizen is Followed.

A woman's back has many aches and pains. Most times 'tis the kidneys' fault. Backache is really kidney ache.

Many Northville women know this. Read what one has to say about it: Mrs. Henry Priest, husband a moulder, living at 23 Mills street, says: "I most certainly think well of Doan's Kidney Pills. I only permit publication of this statement because I feel grateful to Doan's Kidney Pills for the good they did me. Before going to Murdock Bros. drug store and getting there I had a dull aching pain in my back and I was also troubled with rheumatism which had annoyed me for quite a while. Before I had taken half of the box I found my condition greatly improved. Finally the pain in my back left and my rheumatism vanished."

This season, because of the higher prices of leather, the larger proportion of shoes are being deliberately cheapened in quality to keep the price down.

But few people can detect the deception beneath the gloss and veneer of the surface finish. The one way to make certain of securing honest value is to insist upon the "Queen Quality" trade mark. It protects. It is not only an indication that the quality and workmanship is of the best, but that they fit as they should fit, that the styles are original and exclusive, and that they are formed according to fashion's latest dictates.

Mabel Lauray has resigned her position as night operator for the State Telephone Co. here. Miss Battle Spauler is taking up the work.

The Northville Juniors defeated the Farmington Juniors in a "red-hot" game of football on the golf grounds Saturday. The score was 15 to 0.

Frank Stephens, who is one of the teachers at the Michigan Conservatory of Music in Detroit, has been appointed instructor in the Polish Seminary.

Little Marion Kennedy of Detroit, who captivated the audience by her singing at the Catholic banquet last year, will take part in the program again this year.

Mr. and Mrs. John Rogers, who now occupy the Fred Carpenter house on north Center street, are soon to move to the Harry German house on Dunlap street.

Christian Science service Sunday morning at ten o'clock and Wednesday at seven p. m. at 59 Center street. Subject for Sunday: "Soul and Body." All are cordially invited.

Charlie Larkins has sold his farm west of the village to John Cleaver of Livonia. One hundred dollars per acre was the price paid Mr. Larkins will move to Brighton. We are sorry to lose Charlie from our midst.

The Globe Furniture company has sent Will Somerville, Erlin Cobb and George Grinnell to Detroit where they are sealing the North Woodward avenue Presbyterian church, the finest edifice of the kind in Detroit.

The play "Was She to Blame" which was given in the Opera House Saturday night was one of the best of the season. Manager Gardner is to be congratulated on securing such a good company. Every one enjoyed it.

Mrs. Mho Johnson underwent a serious operation at Harper hospital Wednesday. It was very successful and Northville people will be very pleased to know she is getting along very nicely. Dr. Manton performed the operation, assisted by Dr. Burgess of this place.

The many readers of the Record will learn with regret of the continued illness of Mrs. Harmon who has for many years had charge of the news columns of this paper. Just when she will be able to return to take up her work, in which she was so much interested, is difficult at this time to say.

The Junior class of the High school will give a Novelty social in Library Rooms Tuesday evening, Nov. 20th. There will be a charge of five cents at the door and inside there will be several attractions, including a celebrated palmist, from out of town, engaged especially for this occasion. Everybody come and have a good time.

The Male Quartet is making a great effort to give an entertainment that will be deserving of a good patronage. The boys have always been ready to respond whenever asked to sing, without remuneration and they ought to have a full house. Link's orchestra of Pontiac promise to give the people of Northville a great treat. The date of the entertainment is Nov. 30.

The democrats didn't do so badly in Wayne county in the last election. They get the mayor of Detroit which in salary and patronage is better than the governorship of Michigan and besides that they lug off two of the county offices, the sheriff and prosecutor. One of these days the republican party will wake up to the fact that the country part of Wayne county is to be reckoned with.

SERIAL STORY

DUKE OF DEVIL-MAY-CARE

By HARRIS DICKSON
Author of "The Black Wolf's Breed," Etc.

After some little time, Joe reascended the stairs alone. He let the collar of his coat drop into place. For a moment he stood there undecided, as if he had a mind to open it again. Then he shook his head and went on.

At half past two in the afternoon, the returning steps rang sharply on the flags. Before he reached his door, however, the negro man, had appeared.

"Is some Mister Joe, I see couldn't sleep him no longer?"

"Yes?"

"Yes, went away about 12 o'clock. Here's the note what he left."

Joe tore it open and read, scribbled in pencil:

"Dear Joe, I'm sorry, I can't hide from you that poor devil left a note, and do all you can for him. That's some money in the Planter's bank that you need. Use that."

Joe's brother about 100 dollars. I have taken your post!

But Joe did better. Even the negro took that he was very much disturbed. He stopped for no dinner, but turned away and left the house in haste.

"It's just in the humor to hurt somebody, or get hurt himself. I've got a God bless!"

CHAPTER VIII

THE HOTEL LOUIS LE GRANDE.—It was that Thursday afternoon the Duke of Devil-may-care, and his wife, hurried toward New Orleans. Every south-bound train bore its burden of refugees in furs and sealine who fled from snow and ice to a land of palm and pine to the Gulf of Mexico.

The dusk came gently on and passengers began opening their windows to the howling winds. A ready smile of welcome greeted the faces of the stranger as upon whose faces lay the purple and blue of the night.

Joe Ashton was nearly a comical spectacle, his hat in that corner of the car. He had a new coat, a new hat, a new pair of shoes, and a new pair of gloves. He was going to New Orleans, and that night he was to be a Duke of Devil-may-care. He was a Duke of Devil-may-care, and that night he was to be a Duke of Devil-may-care.

the station to the street. At the edge of the banquet he heard Mrs. Ashton give the cabman her address, "Hotel Louis le Grande, 2157 Valois street." While they waited for their luggage, he sprang into another cab and ordered the driver to the "corner of Valois and Esplanade."

It was the Thursday night before Mardi Gras. A moist and sticky fog hung over the low-pitched roofs and red-tiled gables of the quaint old Creole town. Canal street blazed with lights. Revelers crowded along its banquettes and paraded the streets—grotesque, kaleidoscopic, happy. The neutral ground seethed and heaved, a bedlam of masques, flambeaux, tin horns and good humor. Beyond all this lay the domain of darkness, of narrow streets and quietude.

Duke's cab worked its way slowly through the dense mass, and had almost crossed Canal when it came to a congested halt at the corner of Valois.

"Hurry, driver, hurry," he called; "what are you waiting for?" He looked out upon a smiling sea, the gleaming teeth of Creole girls, people pushing to and fro, sarging human beings tinged with laughter. The crowd jeered and laughed—everybody is good-natured in New Orleans, but this cannot understand why one should want to hurry. Presently they parted and let him pass.

The wheels rattled and clattered down a narrow street, getting farther and farther from the lights, the music and the jollity behind him. Duke recognized the wide Esplanade as he crossed it, the neutral ground, the whitewashed trees, the houses—nothing overabundant on Esplanade.

The cab stopped again. "Is this your place, sir?" the driver asked.

"Yes, this will do." He stepped out and paid the man.

When the cab had gone he pursued his way on foot, looking about him until he located the dingy entrance to the Hotel Louis le Grande. "I thought I'd remember the place," he said, and crossed to the other side.

Opposite it was a little restaurant, either side, fine-pointed, glistening with wax, and black as the unadorned use of dye could make it.

Old Hippolyte, the porter, even more antique than the hotel, hobbled out behind his master and began lifting down their luggage. Arthemise, in starched cap and apron, fluttered through the entry to take the ladies' wraps.

Anita alighted from the cab, then Alice. Both girls glanced doubtfully through those medieval-looking doors of iron, curiously wrought. Back, far back behind it all, there burned a dim light in the rear.

Alice felt that she was surely in New Orleans, really in New Orleans—no other place could be just like it.

"Oh, Anita, Anita," she whispered, "we are really and truly in New Orleans—can't you feel it?"

Those green-painted shutters looked like New Orleans; the slippery banquettes felt like New Orleans; Monsieur Victor with his shrugs and bows; Hippolyte, with his bent back and stiff leg; Arthemise, full of quaint little smiles and smirks—all seemed part and parcel of the foreign life.

A crowd of maskers passed them, marching four abreast; they blew tin horns in the strangers' faces and laughed. Red fire gleamed along a distant street; a rocket shot up from Esplanade—the Spirit of the Carnival seized upon the girls.

"Come, Aunt Alice," Anita called, and laughed. She had been a fool long enough; now she meant to have a jolly good time. "Come on—hurry."

Duke, watching her from across the street, felt a blind unreasoning resentment gather in his heart.

Mrs. Ashton stepped cautiously out of the cab, feeling her way. Her foot slipped; she splashed into the gutter. Monsieur Victor went distracted with grief.

"Ah, madame, madame, ze water—too bad, too bad; I have him remove." And with profuse lamentations he assisted the ladies through the entry.

Duke watched them disappear. Hip-

He Might Easily Have Touched Her.

Pedro's Place, and Duke hid himself in the recess of a doorway.

A hundred years ago when Napoleon tore his dazzling despotism, this Hotel Louis le Grande had been the center of fashion for a loyal colony. Even before that, those two flickering lamps in front had shown down upon many a brilliant gathering of the Marquis de Vandrell. But the colony had been bartered away like a bauble, and the empire fell, shattered into star-dust. The hotel's glamour passed. It degenerated into a mere pension where an occasional stranger came out of curiosity to view the rooms where had slept so many noble and ill-starred guests.

Mardi Gras brought a high tide of prosperity to the old hotel. During that one maddest week Monsieur Victor Laoureux reaped his annual harvest.

Suddenly a man stepped out of Pedro's Place, Duke shrank deeper into the shadow and let him pass.

It could not have been very long until a second cab, loaded with luggage and tramping more slowly, rumbled down the street and drew up in front of the hotel. Monsieur Victor opened the banquettes to a man in a top hat and opened the cab door with a Frenchman's much-ado.

"Arthemise, Arthemise, Hip-leet, Hip-leet," he shouted back, and his voice echoed in the vaulted passage-way as though it struggled through the damp arched of a catacomb.

Alice drew back, half laughing, half frightened, as she came face to face with this singular little caricature in black and white. Monsieur Victor's clothing was very black, and his linen immaculately white; his face was pinched and thin and pale, but his mustache—ah, the glossy glory of that mustache. It struck out stiffly on polyte and Arthemise bringing in their luggage.

Monsieur Victor—which was all of his name that Anita could pronounce—led them through the dismal entry to a time-worn staircase which branched right and left at the top. They came out upon a balcony which curved and surrounded an oval courtyard—all dim and mysterious.

"I'm so glad we came to this place," whispered Alice. "Doesn't it feel creepy?" She clung close to Mrs. Ashton, thrilling with a delicious sense of adventure.

Monsieur Victor paused where the opposite balconies came together again, entered a wide hall and triumphantly threw open the first door to his right.

"Zis is madame's apartment; ze young ladies have ze apartment two doors farther across ze hall. I have one grand regret, madame, zat I cannot prepare ze apartments together; but it is no impossible. Zis was once ze apartment of ze Comtesse Vandrell General Jackson he sleep here, and Lafitte—ah, ze terrible Lafitte. But, madame, madame, you bestow upon my poor horse one grand honor."

Mrs. Ashton stared impatiently—her foot was soaking wet.

"Yes, yes," she assented; "I daresay it will do very well."

"Oul, oul, madame, an' ze tapestry, ancienne—ze vary same when ze Duc d'Orleans sleep in zis room—Arthemise, Arthemise," he clapped his hands, and called.

IN CUBA FOR FUR.

MANY AMERICAN SOLDIERS OF FORTUNE IN ISLAND.

Disappointment at End of Fighting Intense Among the Foreign Legion.—New Yorker Angry at Fate.

The greatest old boy of the Foreign Legion in Cuba, says the correspondent for Harper's Weekly, is Capt. E. B. Webster, an elderly Yankee from Litchfield, Conn., the country of robust onions and still more robust men.

The cap'n would rather eat than fight, but, as it is often necessary to eat—well, pshaw! a man has to have the price, even if he has to fight for it.

And fighting in Cuba just now is almost the best paying profession. He who lives by it can eat terrapin and caviarback—if there are still such things beyond this troubled land of garbanzos and panas frituras.

There is nothing of the fire eater about Webster. On the day after Col. Avelos had driven Pino Guerra's men out of Consolacion, the cap'n and I were chatting when a cheerful lieutenant came along and remarked, "We're going after 'em."

"Don't it all I hope not," said the cap'n, in his slow New England drawl. "Here we've been cooped up in that blamed hot train for thirty-six hours, fighting day and night, with mighty little to eat, and the rebels giving us no time to eat it. I'm tired of fighting and a few good meals. But, say, you ought to have been there when I got those charging rebels right on the nose. When the gun got going I tell ye they tumbled down on their horses like a pack of cards. Here, lieutenant, how soon do we start?"

Cap'n Webster was a coasting shipper sailing out of Yankee ports for many years. He is a heavy, stoop shouldered and "got in his ways" man.

He brought a few humber cargoes into Cuba during the war of independence, and at the age when most men take to golf he grew so fond of fighting that he has never been able to shake of the fascinations of the game. He was United States consul at Cadenas for a while, but as soon as this rebellion started he began to help organize the Foreign Legion.

Capt. George Reno is a New Yorker, tall, slim, pale and bashful. He came down here as a free lance war correspondent ten years ago and acquired the fighting habit. He hasn't got his company recruited yet, but when they do take the field the Azaldos had better look out.

Lieut. Adolph Frig was a gentleman estate dealer in Havana until the war began. Then he remembered with joy the fine times he had during his military service in Germany a few years ago. Away to the winds went the real estate business, and the Herr Oberleutenant burst into bloom in his uniform.

Lieut. Herbert Shockley is a small and very cheerful fighting man from Philadelphia. When they organized the Foreign Legion he smiled and said he believed he'd take a commission. When he was firing a machine gun on the roof of the armored-car and a rebel Mauser bullet went through his leg he smiled and said he believed lightning never struck twice in the same place. I wanted to photograph him as soon as he had a little leisure after the battle. He smiled.

"Better wait till I can stand up straight," he advised. "A fellow hates to look sickly in a picture."

The angriest soldier of fortune I ever saw is Gilbert H. Carr, who came in great haste all the way from West 115th street, New York, the Morning-side Heights district, to take part in the game. Gen. Loynaz del Castillo made him a captain in the rebel forces—and then this truce was declared.

"Wouldn't that irritate you?" Carr asked me. "How would you like to come all the way down here to have a little fun, and then find them giving out rations checks?"

It does seem a trifle rough on Carr. He is a slender, fair-skinned, blue eyed youngster who belongs in the second company of the Twelfth Regiment, New York National Guard, when he's home. He has fought in South Africa and in a few South American revolutions.

Two Meanings to Sign.

English actors now in London, after touring "the states," say that they have been surprised at the rise in prices in this country. One was struck by the high cost of hair cuts in the hotels. The story goes: "Tired of paying 70 cents to be clipped, and seeing a sign exhibited to the effect, 'First-class hair cut, 25 cents,' he entered and was attended to. At the end and was attended to. 'How much?' close he casually asked. 'How much?' and was surprised to be asked for 50 cents. He reminded the barber of his sign outside. 'Yes, sneez,' said the latter, the sign's all right, but say you haven't got first-class hair!'"

Ants and the Overflow.

Dr. Arthur J. Hayes, who recently visited Abyssinia with a surveying party sent out to set up marks for gauging the rise of the Blue Nile, the branch of the "river of Egypt," which contributes most to its annual overflow and to the fertilization of the Nile delta, declares that the wonderful productivity of the mud spread over the cultivated parts of Egypt every year is due to the white ants, or termites, which abound in Abyssinia and have always been considered a destructive pest.

Killed on Wedding Eve.

A well-known doctor in Plauen, Germany, who was to have been married, was found shot in his bed, with a revolver at his side. The doctor, who was just 39 years old, was one of the rising medical men of the day, but he had become entangled with a woman, who had taken a solemn oath that if he married anyone else but her she would shoot the bride at the altar.

Bread Still the Staple Food.

In time of scarcity a man could subsist upon two pounds of bread a day without lack of energy, is the statement made by Dr. Robert Hutchinson, of the London Hospital, who supplied evidence regarding food supply to a royal commission; also that bread is the most important of all the common foods of the people.

Man and His Faults.

Every man has his faults; but no man has as many as his wife thinks he has.

Slaughter of English Birds.

Half a million grouse and nearly half a million partridges are killed yearly in Great Britain.

Rain and Snowfall.

An inch of rain equals 11 1/2 inches of snow.

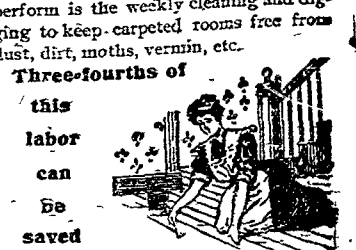

Never.

A woman never underestimates her husband's ability; when she names the amount of alimony she thinks she ought to have.

ENGLISH SHOES GO UNSHINED.

London Observer Admits Truth of American Indictment.

An English reporter, fired with patriotism on seeing the assertion made by an American visitor that Londoners polished their boots less frequently than the people of any other country in the world, set out to disprove the charge.

He visited a number of well-known shoeblacks at important points in London, but what he learned all tended to confirm the allegation made by the American.

One shoeblack said he had customers who look like millionaires but get only one shine a week. After hearing similar stories from other shoeblacks the newspaper man took up a position in Piccadilly Circus and examined the boots of passersby.

He confesses that of 80 people who passed, the boots of 60 looked as if they had not been polished for a week. Twelve of them had their boots well polished, but the remaining eight had to be labeled indifferent.

After that, nothing was left but to acknowledge that the indictment of the American had some foundation.—N. Y. Sun.

Dyspepsia of Women

Caused by Female Disorders and Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

A great many women suffer with a form of indigestion or dyspepsia which does not seem to yield to ordinary treatment. While the symptoms seem to be similar to those of ordinary indigestion, yet the medicines universally prescribed do not seem to restore the patient's normal condition.

Mrs. M. Wright

Mrs. Pinkham claims that there is a kind of dyspepsia that is caused by a derangement of the female organism, and which, while it causes a disturbance similar to ordinary indigestion, cannot be relieved without a medicine which not only acts as a stomach tonic, but has a peculiar tonic effect on the female organism.

As proof of this theory we call attention to the case of Mrs. Maggie Wright, Brooklyn, N. Y., who was completely cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after everything else had failed. She writes:

For two years I suffered with dyspepsia which so degenerated the entire system that I was unable to attend to my daily duties. I felt weak and nervous, and nothing that I ate tasted good and it caused a distended and inflamed stomach. I tried different dyspepsia cures, but nothing seemed to help me. I was advised to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial, and was happily surprised to find that it acted like a fine tonic, and in a few days I began to enjoy and properly digest my food. My recovery was rapid, and in five weeks I was a well woman. I have recommended it to many suffering women.

No other medicine in the world has received such widespread and unequalled endorsement as has such a record of cures of female troubles, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

JONAS IS INVESTIGATED

By CALLY RYLAND

Jonas awoke at bay. Being a small man, with all the curiosity that clings to a diminutive specimen of his kind, he had fallen asleep in a chair dragged to the very center of the kitchen floor that might miss seeing and hearing nothing that happened in his family.

Now he sat up and rubbed his eyes, confronted by a pair that belonged to his spouse. "Jes es well scrub dat sleep outtah dem 'eyes," remarked Jemmy, his wife, with a contemptuous sniff. "Your's gwine tuh be 'vestigated."

"Name o' Gawd! what's dat?" asked Jonas, turning half a shade less black. "You'll fin' out—soon nuff," sniffed Jemmy. "What 'wants tuh know is, who's been projectin' wid muh money stockin'?"

Jonas sat up tight and gulped. "Name o'—" he began, but Jemmy cut him off short.

"Tain't no use a blasphemin' fo' dese chillun whar I bin tryin' to chain up in de way dey should go," she said severely. "I axes you a plain question, en I wants a plain answer, I does."

"Den you done come tuh de wrong es—pusson you coulda picked out—oman," said Jonas, venturing on a new tactic. "When did de law 'en de Gorspil en even de debble himself give you de license tuh 'vestigate yo' own husband, I'd laik tuh know? You takes, too much on yo'self. G'long, 'ten' tuh dat washin' en take dem chillun long outchuh wid you. fo' I lam eye' one uv 'em, en you intah de bargain."

"You lam who?" snorted Jemmy, rising from her seat and towering over him like a colossus in ebony. "You lam who? You osnary little bowlaigged runt uv a niggah, you I got a grēt min' tuh scour you off'n de face uv de tuh; dat I is. Git up f'om dyah."

Jonas rose hastily. "Tuh out dehm pockets?" He rolled his head eyes upon her sullenly. "Sen' dem chillun out," he muttered.

"Dat I ant gwine do no sich a thing," answered his stronger half. "Dey gwine stay right whar dey air tuh larn de lesson uv onrighteousness f'om dey own daddy. Tuh out dem pockets, I say."

Jonas poured a miser's wealth in coppers and nickels upon the kitchen table. "He looked shrunken, yet defiant."

Jemmy eyed him scornfully. "Wall, dis is a sight in de eyes uv Gawd en men," she said. "De fathuh uv a family—fo' daid en seb'n livin'—stealin'—yes, suh, stealin'—jes laik a common, low-down chicken thief, fo'm his own wife, robbin' tuh uv evey cent she done wuk tuh singuhs tuh de bone tuh save. Tuh think dat Ise bin spyahed tuh see dis day!" and Jemmy threw her apron over her head and rocked her cradle.

Wails spring from the three young est throats of the 'seb'n livin', and presently the thief himself began to show unmistakable signs of emotion.

"Jemmy," he smiled, "what was you savin' dat money tuh?" "None uv yo' bizness," came from under the apron.

"Yes, 'is muh bizness, too," sobbed Jonas. "Yes 'is muh bizness, 'oman. You was savin' hit tuh buy a tombstone en a wreath uv immortals tuh yo' ole man. Nemmin' how I knowed hit. I knowed hit, en dat's nuff, en I kan tell you, 'oman, (boo-hoo), I ain't ready tuh die yet, dat I ain't, en I don't wantchuh tuh be puttin' none uv yo' conjuh spells on me, nuthah, savin' money tuh buy me no tombstone whatsomever. I want gwine spen' dat money. Watchuh reckon I want wid yo' money? Ain't I got fir cents in muh pocket? I jes borroh hit tuh brek de spell, dat's all. I—was gwine buy you a Eastuh bonnet wid dat money, clar fo' gracious, honey."

Jemmy's apron came down in a hurry. "Den hit's de fas thing you was eruh gwine buy me sence we-all stood up befo' de presahuh," she said wrathfully. "en you was gwine tuh take muh money tuh buy hit wid! Watchuh think I want wid de kin' uv bonnet a little two-prong fork laik you'd buy? Humph! Jonas, you needs 'vestigatin' wuss'n enybody I evuh heah tell uv. I ain't though wid you yet, niggah! You heah me? Dyah's trubble comin' tuh you fo' I gits th'ough wid you. RUNNING SORES ON LIMBS.

Little Girl's Obstinate Case of Eczema—Mother's "Cuticura Remedies a Household Standby."

"Last year, after having my little girl treated by a very prominent physician, for an obstinate case of eczema, I resorted to the Cuticura Remedies, and was so well pleased with the almost instantaneous relief afforded that we discarded the physician's prescription and relied entirely on the Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Pills. When we commenced with the Cuticura Remedies her feet and limbs were covered with running sores. In about six weeks we had her completely well, and there has been no recurrence of the trouble. We find that the Cuticura Remedies are a valuable household standby, living as we do, twelve miles from a doctor, and where it costs from twenty to twenty-five dollars to come up on the mountain. Mrs. Lizzie Vincent Thomas, Fairmount, Walder's Ridge, Tenn., Oct. 13, 1905."

Year's Tea Production. The total exports of tea from India during the year ended April 26, 1906, amounted to 214,198,943 pounds, valued at $29,294,936. The shipments to the United Kingdom were 166,604,000 pounds; Canada, 15,019,000 pounds; Russia, 9,991,000 pounds; Australia, 7,745 pounds; Turkey and Asia, 3,464 pounds; the United States, 2,185,000 pounds; Persia, 1,691,000 pounds, and to all other countries, 8,084,000 pounds. All these countries, except the United States and Persia, increased their purchases over 1905. The trade with the United States decreased 9.7 per cent, and that with Persia 65.5 per cent.

Marion Hagland. The celebrated authoress so highly esteemed by the women of America, says on pages 103 and 145 of her book, "Eve's Daughters; or, Common Sense for Maid, Wife and Mother":

"For the aching back—should it be slow in recovering its normal strength—an Allcock's Plaster is an excellent comforter, combining the sensation of the sustained pressure of a strong warm hand with certain tonic qualities developed in the wearing. It should be kept over the seat of uneasiness for several days—in obstinate cases, for perhaps a fortnight."

"For pain in the back wear an Allcock's Plaster constantly, renewing as it wears off. This is an invaluable support when the weight on the small of the back becomes heavy and the aching incessant."

MONKEY PLAYED MANY PARTS.

Defined by Customs Men as a Bird, a Handbag and a Dog.

On the travels of a monkey from Genoa to Heidelberg an amusing farce might be written. A German gentleman brought from southwest Africa a tiny monkey weighing barely a couple of pounds. From Tanga to Genoa all went well with the Lilliputian animal. It was a favorite with everyone, and traveled near until Genoa was reached, when its troubles began.

Brought under the notice of the Genoese customhouse authorities, it was promptly deprived of its identity. It was no longer an animal it became a bird, and as a bird, on which 28 cents was charged, it was conveyed to the Swiss frontier, where, at a stroke of the customhouse officer's wand it was transformed into a cat at the increased assessment of $1.56, and borne by train to Zurich.

On its arrival there it ceased, as a cat, to exist, and became a mere package—an item of luggage that was conveyed to Constance for the nominal sum of 16 cents.

Still as luggage, though metamorphosed from a package into a handbag, it went on its way to Stuttgart, where a great honor awaited it. It was, on payment of $2.04, exalted into a dog, and it was as a dog that it ended its journey at the university town of Heidelberg.—Stray Stories.

IT'S THE FOOD.

The True Way to Correct Nervous Troubles.

Nervous troubles are more often caused by improper food and indigestion than most people imagine. Even doctors sometimes overlook this fact. A man says:

"Until two years ago waffles and butter with meat and gravy were the main features of my breakfast. Finally dyspepsia came on and I found myself in a bad condition, worse in the morning than any other time. I would have a full, sick feeling in my stomach, with pains in my heart, sides and head.

"At times I would have no appetite for days, then I would feel nervous, never satisfied when I did eat and so nervous I felt like shrieking at the top of my voice. I lost flesh badly and hardly knew which way to turn until one day I bought a box of Grape-Nuts food to see if I could eat that. I tried it without telling the doctor, and liked it fine, made me feel as if I had something to eat that was satisfying and still I didn't have that heaviness that I had felt after eating any other food.

"I hadn't drank any coffee then in five weeks. I kept on with the Grape-Nuts and in a month and a half I had gained 15 pounds, could eat almost anything I wanted, didn't feel badly after eating and my nervousness was all gone. It's a pleasure to be well again."

Each to His Own Trade. A story is told of a Scotch minister who gave the rural joiner an order to make a small wooden cupboard.

When the pastor received the account he complained to the joiner about the amount, and said he could have got a second-hand cupboard, which would have answered his purpose equally well, at much less cost.

"Yes," retorted the joiner; "and I could buy a quid sermon for three pence; but eh wadna' care—about preaching them at that price!"—Stray Stories.

Joseph Wilgus, Montpelier, O., says: "I feel it my duty to tell others about Doan's Kidney Pills. Exposure and driving brought kidney trouble on me, and I suffered much from irregular passages of the kidney secretions. Sometimes there was retention and at other times passages were too frequent, especially at night. There was pain and discoloration. Doan's Kidney Pills brought me relief from the first, and soon infused new life I give them my indorsement."

Success in the Gulf Coast Country

Here is an example of what YOU could do.

$300 Realized from 5-8 Acre of Lettuce.

Mr. W. R. Landrum, of Olmito, Texas, near Brownsville, planted five-eighths of an acre in lettuce this Spring. He sold his crop for $300. A wonderful return from his land, was it not? But if you will write Mr. Landrum at Olmito he will confirm it. And if you write to me I will gladly send you other striking examples of success in that interesting country.

Investigate the Gulf Coast Country; you will find that there are good reasons for such results. One of them is the climate. The winter is so mild there that tender vegetables can be grown and placed on the market in early Spring when the price is highest. After the early Spring crop the land will raise a second crop and sometimes a third crop the same year. Even the inexperienced farmers have made more than $100 an acre.

Don't you think this is better than a one-crop country, where your success depends on uncertain weather with irregular rainfall?

Now the land is cheap and you can get it on easy terms. Twenty acres will cost you about $500. The cost of clearing it is about $5 an acre. The cost of water for irrigation varies. You may want an Artesian well of your own; you may get water from some river; or you may get it from your neighbor. But the cost is not great, and those who have tried it have netted from the first crop a sum which has paid all expenses and left a good surplus.

Take a trip down there and see for yourself—that's the best way. Every first and third Tuesday of each month, we will sell round-trip tickets to any point in the Gulf Coast Country and return at the following rates:

From Chicago,	$12.00
From St. Louis,	20.00
From Kansas City,	20.00
From Peoria,	22.00
From St. Paul,	27.00
From Minneapolis,	27.00

These tickets will be good 30 days and they will permit you to stop over at any point. Low rates for one way tickets on some days, also.

Let me send you our books describing the wonderful crops produced in this beautiful country. Don't delay, write me to day.

THE LAXATIVE OF KNOWN QUALITY

There are two classes of remedies; those of known quality and which are permanently beneficial in effect, acting gently, in harmony with nature, when nature needs assistance; and another class, composed of preparations of unknown, uncertain and inferior character, acting temporarily, but injuriously, as a result of forcing the natural functions unnecessarily. One of the most exceptional of the remedies of known quality and excellence is the ever pleasant Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., which represents the active principles of plants, known to act most beneficially, in a pleasant syrup, in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to contribute their rich, yet delicate, fruity flavor. It is the remedy of all remedies to sweeten and refresh and cleanse the system gently and naturally, and to assist one in overcoming constipation and the many ills resulting therefrom. Its active principles and quality are known to physicians generally, and the remedy has therefore met with their approval, as well as with the favor of many millions of well informed persons who know of their own personal knowledge and from actual experience that it is a most excellent laxative remedy. We do not claim that it will cure all manner of ills, but recommend it for what it really represents, a laxative remedy of known quality and excellence, containing nothing of an objectionable or injurious character.

There are two classes of purchasers; those who are informed as to the quality of what they buy and the reasons for the excellence of articles of exceptional merit, and who do not lack courage to go elsewhere when a dealer offers an imitation of any well known article; but, unfortunately, there are some people who do not know, and who allow themselves to be imposed upon. They cannot expect its beneficial effects if they do not get the genuine remedy.

To the credit of the druggists of the United States be it said that nearly all of them value their reputation for professional integrity and the good will of their customers too highly to offer imitations of the

The results of irregular teeth are that they mar the appearance of the individual, interfere with clearness of speech, impair the ability to masticate the food thoroughly, and by reason of their crowded or abnormal position afford favorable lodgment for food particles and thereby induce decay.

When a child presents itself study the features and the irregularities and oral deformities. Look at the child's face and then at its profile, and endeavor to ascertain, if possible, what facial change will be brought about by any corrective art that may be applied to the case. In my judgment more is lost than gained by the removal of teeth for the correction of irregularity and should never be done, except, possibly in very rare cases.
