Vol. XXXVIII. No. 18.

NORTHVILLE, MICH., FRIDAY, DECEMBER 7, 1906

$1.00 Per Year in Advance

BUHRER FOR AUDITOR

FORMER TREASURER WANTS TO BE LOU BURT'S SUCCESSOR.

Relies on Past Record to Attain His Ambition.

Charles A. Buhrer, whose service as county treasurer is well remembered by the taxpayers of Wayne county, has been grooming himself for another fight and announces his candidacy for county auditor in the election to be held in April to fill the vacancy that will be caused by the expiration of County Auditor Lou Burt's term. Mr. Burt has already declared he will not again be a candidate.

Buhrer was defeated for the republican nomination in the last contest for county auditor by Milton Oakman by a majority of a trifling over 140 after one of the closest fights in the history of the county. Oakman, now a member of the board, is one of Buhrer's warmest friends and supporters. As treasurer Buhrer became exceptionally well known throughout the county, though he incurred the ill feeling of some of the politicians, who thought he should be more amenable and plastic.

"I promise to give the county the best administration I can in my capacity as an auditor if elected," says Buhrer.

Even Buhrer's opponents admit his knowledge of county affairs is of the best. At the same election in April there will be a vote for police justice; also the choice of the supreme court judges to succeed William L. Carpenter of Detroit and Aaron V. McAlvay of Marquette and of two regents of the university to succeed Henry S. Dean of Ann Arbor and Levi L. Barbour of Detroit.

Henry Dickinson, formerly sheriff, would also like to be auditor and the democrats talk of running ex-Auditor Hugh Sculling for the place.

WEALTHY WIDOWER FARMER OF 72 WEDS SWEETHEART OF HIS YOUTH

A. W. RUSSELL.

MRS. A. W. RUSSELL.

More than fifty years ago, A. W. Russell and Mary F. Tiley, were intimate friends. There is said to have been some talk among their acquaintances at that time that "it looks like a match." Their prophecy materialized Nov. 26.

Mr. Russell, now 72 years of age, is a prosperous farmer of Fort Dodge, Ark. He was a widower, too, and in his loneliness his thoughts turned back to the sweetheart of his youth.

Mary F. Tiley, 68 years old, twice a widow, consented to become his wife and they were married last week Wednesday at the residence of her son in Plymouth. She is a sister of Fraser Smith, for many years cashier of the First National Savings bank of that village.

Mr. Russell is a relative of Mrs. Pickett of this place and they took Thanksgiving dinner with her in Northville.

J. D. TERRILL IN CUBA.

Brother of Frank of This Place,
Auditor.

The treasury of Cuba was in a bad shape, from a bookkeeper's standpoint when Uncle Sam took possession of it. Things wouldn't balance. The following is from a recent issue of the New York Tribune:

"To help him out in his task Gov. Magoon asked for aid from Washington and in response the President commissioned J. D. Terrill, chief law clerk in the office of the Controller of the Treasury, to go to Cuba. Judge Terrill, who is a native of Michigan, was auditor of Cuba under the American military occupation preceding the Palma administration and proved thoroughly competent in the position. He is an expert on questions relating to the Treasury branch of the government and will undoubtedly be of great service to Governor Magoon in placing the Cuban Treasury on a sound and business like basis and in helping to straighten out difficulties that may arise in connection with the administration of the Treasury."

"It is probable that Judge Terrill, though without the official title, will serve in the combined capacity of chief auditor, controller and in an advisory way as Secretary of the Treasury for Cuba."

Mr. Terrill is a brother of Frank Terrill of this town.

COSTS MONEY FOR UNFORTUNATES

ASYLUMS AND PRISONS WILL ASK FOR $584,000 EXTRA.

Most of It Needed for the Insane
Asylums.

It will be asked of the next legislature to appropriate four hundred seventy-two thousand for enlargement and needed improvements in the five insane asylums, which are all overfilled. Enlargement of buildings at Kalamazoo, additions at Pontiac and Traverse city and new buildings at Ionia and Newberry, increasing the total capacity by about six hundred patients, are included in this; and nearly eighty-three thousand dollars additional estimates of the last three was not approved. The amount here approved is nearly one hundred thousand dollars more than that of two years ago and it has to face the sad certainty of steadily growing demand on behalf of this unfortunate class. The three prisons call for nearly one hundred twenty-seven thousand dollars, which is all approved except fifteen thousand deducted from the estimated cost of a hospital at Jackson. There is nearly forty thousand more than two years ago and these amounts are all exclusive of current expense of maintenance, which for the asylums and prisons is provided by statute upon a per capita rate fixed by the joint board of control and not included in these specific appropriations. The prisons are nearly self-sustaining as to current expenses and that at Ionia quite so.

Mrs. Gray Dead.

Mrs. Gray died Saturday at the home of her father, Joseph Leadbeater, who lives on the Novi road, north of town. Deceased was a sister of Andrew Leadbeater and for some time she lived in the east part of the Filkins place on Center street. The funeral was held from her father's home Monday, Rev. S. F. Umbeck officiating.

Carrying Reform Too Far.

Spelling reformers will perhaps think that an English boatman has gone a little too far. He has bought a motor launch, which he calls Expediency, and spells the name XPDNC.

Fine.

A wise man in Dublin tells the London police how to deal with the riotous "suffragettes," who have been besieging the house of commons. "Give each of your men a live mouse in a little cage," he says, "and the suffragettes will leave the house of commons and never come back."—Buffalo Commercial.

ELECTED OFFICERS.

Winter Night Club did it Wednesday Night.

The W. N. club held its annual meeting Wednesday night and elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, C. L. Dubois; vice pres., R. C. Yerkes; sec., C. A. Dolph; treasurer, L. A. Babbitt; board of control, C. C. Chadwick, C. D. Clark, W. H. Hutton, F. S. Harmon and N. A. Clapp.

The question of annexing Cuba to the United States was not fully decided. After both sides had scored for a few rounds, the final was postponed for one week, with same rules and weapons.

A resolution was adopted requesting the village president to call a public meeting for the purpose of organizing a Business Men's Association for the improvement of Northville.

Methodist Church Notes.

[By the Pastor.]

Service as usual next Sunday morning at ten o'clock. In the evening there will be a union meeting in the Presbyterian church.

The young ladies did well with their social Tuesday evening. If every article was one cent one could have a good supper for ten cents. The proceeds were $6.01.

Presiding Elder Sweet not being able to fill his engagement with us last Sunday sent Rev. W. G. Nixon of the Grand River avenue church. Mr. Nixon was well received and did us good service.

The W. H. M. S. which met with Mrs. Chas. Filkins on Monday afternoon packed a box of clothing and sent it to the Deaconess home in Detroit. They know where such garments are needed and will place them where they will do the most good.

Masterpiece of Peter Paikoo

On a post card of the usual size shown at the Bucharest exhibition is written the Bulgarian constitution in full the opening speeches of various European parliaments and two poems by Richard Kipling—12,000 words in all. The calligraphist, Peter Paikoo, of Sofia, spent nine hours a day during three months to accomplish the feat.

Keen Scent of Dogs.

Sometimes what seems marvels of instinct may be only proof of remarkably keen senses. A dog carried far from home in a closed wagon or in a box may so back, quickly and unerringly, by following the odor of the wheels of the vehicle in which he was taken through unfamiliar roads. Not all dogs can do such things, but some have powers of scent which are almost beyond belief.

Why Be Pessimistic?

Like an individual, a nation cannot expect to be healthy or happy which, so to speak, is forever feeling its own pulse and looking at its tongue in the glass. If we cannot alter the conditions of modern life, we can at least make the best of them and steadily refuse to be influenced on their account, charm or pessimistic medicine man never so.

Safer Than Registered Letter.

Safer than registering, says the London Pall Mall Gazette, it is to put insufficient postage on a letter. Says the Gazette: "The postoffice never loses a letter which is insufficiently stamped."

Tribute to Farmer's Life.

United States Senator Pettus of Alabama who is 86 years of age, when recently asked what vocation he would choose if he were again beginning active life, replied: "The high calling of a farmer."

SIDE LIGHTS ON MICHIGAN

SUITS INVOLVING MILLIONS NOW TO BE TRIED IN SUPREME COURT.

CASHIER GONE, BANK O. K.

Mr. Knappen Named for U. S. District Judge—Was Elevator Boy Murdered?—A Saginaw Mystery.

Railroad Suits.

Millions are involved in three important railroad suits which Attorney General Bird is now preparing to fight in court. The damage suit of the Michigan Central for $6,000,000 against the state for the repeal of its special charter will come before the supreme court this week. Another suit is against the Michigan Central for taxes held back before 1893. Most important is the suit of the state against the D. G. H. & M. Twenty years ago the supreme court held that the charter of the D. G. H. & M. could not be repealed and that the first charter from Detroit to Pontiac, could extend to cover the entire line. This exempted this road from the recent tax case but the state attorneys believe the original charter can be confined to the original road from Detroit to Pontiac.

Short Run on Bank.

The business operations of C. B. Phillips, cashier of the Bluefield State bank, coupled with the departure of Phillips for some point in the west, caused a flurry of uneasiness among farmers in that vicinity who are interested in the bank's concerns. A slight run started, but was quickly averted, the directors coming to the rescue. Phillips was a stockholder to the extent of several thousands of dollars and his interests have been purchased by Toledo parties. A bank examiner has been going into the affairs of the institution, and reports its condition sound. The alarm among depositors has subsided. Whatever losses were involved in the treasurer's transactions were not the bank's losses, it is explained.

Mr. Knappen Nominated.

Loyal E. Knappen, regarded as one of the ablest lawyers in Michigan and one of the attorneys for the state in the celebrated bank tax suit against the railroads, has been named to succeed the late Judge Geo. P. Wentz as judge of the federal court of the district of western Michigan. President Roosevelt and Senator Burrows agreed on him and his nomination was sent to the senate Monday. As the bench has so long been vacant there is urgent need for haste, as many cases are waiting.

Death Mysterious.

The police have so far been unable to solve the mystery of Harold Bauer's death whose mangled body was found Sunday underneath the freight elevator in the new Elks' temple in Saginaw. The elevator was left Saturday night stouilly fastened with heavy plankings so it could not be moved. The contractor says the Bauer boy could not have removed it, but the plankings was all torn away and on the elevator floor was found a 200 pound stone.

The police are unable to confirm the story that other boys were with Bauer, and no one has shown up to explain the accident.

Detroit Exports.

Detroit's export trade for the month of November shows an increase of nearly $1,000,000 over the same month in 1905, the actual increase being $885,940. Exports of cotton have increased, the figures on this commodity being $1,000,000 for the same month last year.

Not a pound of canned meat was exported, but 487,000 pounds of pickled beef was shipped out of the country from this port, the value of which was $22,705.

Prunes in enormous quantities were exported, the total being 649,798 pounds, valued at $26,708. American raisins appear to be in demand, also, as 1,578,000 pounds were sent out of the country via Detroit. The value of these goods was $30,000, which is an increase of $82,000 over the figures for the same month in 1905. About $16,000 worth of apples, $53,000 of cattle and $11,000 of patent medicines were some of the other exports.

Hunting Season Record.

Seventy-four deaths and 70 persons injured some of them so seriously that death may result, is the record of fatalities for the hunting season throughout the country.

Northern Michigan and Wisconsin.

where the open season for deer closed Friday, went ahead of the record for last year in deaths, 28 being reported this season against 26 for the previous one, but in the number of persons injured this year's record falls far below that of the previous one having only 26 serious accidents which did not result in death. Michigan leads the list in the number of dead and injured, with Wisconsin a close second the former having 15 deaths and the latter 12.

Harrison Harris, aged 80, has voted 90 times in Metamora, and claims to hold the record.

David Knox, of Manistee, has been appointed by Gov. Warner judge of probate of Schoolcraft county in a vacancy.

Charles Wightman, aged 26, became lost in the woods while hunting near Florence and perished from fear and exposure.

Mrs. William Pennington, wife of a Big Rock, Montmorency county, farmer, had a narrow escape from death. While she was in the kitchen, her son, in the room above, accidentally discharged a gun. The heavy charge of buckshot tore through the ceiling and struck Mrs. Pennington in the arm and face. The injuries are serious.

While out hunting Charles Sculley, aged 30, of Almont, shot his bosom friend, Alvin Harrington, aged 19, in the right eye. Harrington was crouching behind some brush when Sculley shot in his direction at a rabbit. Sculley accompanied the injured boy to Ann Arbor, where an attempt will be made to locate the three shot which went into his eye. He will lose the sight of that eye.

DIZZY IZZY.

New York Insurance Man's Career in Bay City.

A dizzy several months' stay in Bay City, his marriage to the daughter of a Jewish rabbi, magnificent entertainments and a big bunch of unpaid bills will be brought into the limelight by the issuance of a warrant for Naum Jasogrodsky, a New York Life Insurance agent. Jasogrodsky was one of the smoothest things that ever came to Bay City. He appeared a little over a year ago and started in to write big policies. He touched nothing less than $25,000 policies, he told the many acquaintances he made. He exhibited a policy for $100,000 on the life of a Saginaw man and other big ones on the lives of local men, and merely casually referred to his enormous commissions. He became acquainted with Miss Anna Landau, daughter of the late Rabbi Wolfe Landau, one of the best known rabbis in the state. A courtship of a few months was marked by expensive presents of jewelry and lavish entertainments. His gifts to his bride-to-be were matters of comment everywhere. To perform the ceremony a brother of Miss Landau, also a rabbi, came there from Georgia and the wedding was one of the most brilliant of the season. Jasogrodsky and his bride went to New York and five weeks afterwards the bride was left alone in a hotel in that city. She secured assistance from relatives and came back to Bay City.

Insurance Bills.

Perhaps the most sensational and the hottest fought legislation of the coming session will be on the subject of insurance. The interstate committee on insurance composed of attorneys, generals and insurance commissioners of 30 states, of which J. Victor Barry, insurance commissioner of Michigan, was a member, has prepared a list of 20 bills covering the entire field of life, accident, fire and fraternal insurance, as a planned uniform law for all the states. These 20 bills will be presented in Lansing this winter. The fight is now on. Many of the bills to be presented are exact copies of the Armstrong bills, which will be presented to the New York legislature this year, as a result of the Armstrong investigation. Curtailing expenses and providing for greater publicity are the two main lines of legislation.

Man Was Drowned.

The body of Benjamin Spray, who disappeared from a hotel in Cheboygan November 18, was found in the Cheboygan river by his two sons, who had dragged the river continually since his cap was found in the water. It was thought that Spray had been murdered, as he had considerable money with him when he disappeared, but the money was found on him and it is thought he walked into the river while intoxicated. He was a well known farmer at Mullet lake, six miles from Cheboygan. He was insured for $4,000 and his family had offered a reward for the recovery of the body.

Going to Raise Beets.

Saginaw beet sugar men, while they say it is too early to make predictions in figures, believe that next year the sugar beet acreage will exceed all past records in Michigan, even going ahead of this season's 100,000 acres, the largest up to this time. The crop raised and the profitable prices paid for beets is having a marked effect among the farmers. Some farmers will give up all other agriculture next season and devote all their land to raising beets.

Brutally Beaten.

James Flanagan, a young farmer living near Emmet, is alleged to have been brutally beaten by a group of men, who threatened to shoot him if he did not move out of the place. He was taken to the hospital and his condition is serious. A warrant was issued for the arrest of the men.

Stole and Sold the Steers.

Six yearling steers were stolen Friday from Fred Smith, near Mecosta, driven to Big Rapids, 18 miles away, and sold to a butcher for $107. When the officers' suspicions were confirmed the thief had skipped out. The suspect is a young man. His stepfather is working on the farm from which the steers were stolen.

Autoist Soaked.

Rush Young, Jr., was run into and badly hurt by William May, Jr.'s, auto the night of July 4, last, on Woodward avenue, Detroit. He has secured judgment of $1,500 damages in the circuit court in Alpena. The case went by default, May not appearing. The judgment of very little value there May's property in Wayne county will be levied on, and then the defendant will contest.

E. M. Boardman, of New York, has been trying to organize a Y. M. C. A. at Allegan. A committee was appointed to solicit funds.

The trial of William Dunnegan, murderer, will begin in Hillsdale this week. He is charged with the murder of Joe Conner, two years ago, and burning the screen factory. Two men, Knox and Smith are serving life sentences for this crime, convicted on Dunnegan's testimony.

Instead of trying to whip the devil round the stump, the safest plan is to climb a tree when you see him coming. But, then, here's the trouble: Suppose the devil burns down the tree?—Atlanta Constitution.

While out hunting Charles Sculley, aged 30, of Almont, shot his bosom friend, Alvin Harrington, aged 19, in the right eye. Harrington was crouching behind some brush when Sculley shot in his direction at a rabbit. Sculley accompanied the injured boy to Ann Arbor, where an attempt will be made to locate the three shot which went into his eye. He will lose the sight of that eye.

REMOVED.

Cuban Congress Put Out of Business by Decree.

The decree removing from office the congressman elected last year was published Tuesday. The third clause says: "The vacancies hereby declared in the house of representatives shall be filled at elections to be held under the provisional government pursuant to the proclamation issued by the provisional governor of Cuba on September 29, 1906, and at the same elections senators shall be elected to elect senators to fill the vacancies in the senate by this decree declared."

The fifth clause says: "As the terms of office of the house of representatives elected in 1904 will expire on the first Monday of April, 1908, and as under the law of Cuba the election of their successors should be held on December 1, 1907, and as it is obviously unwise and against public interests to hold two congressional elections in 1907, in order to afford peace, tranquility and public confidence are restored to such an extent that the special elections referred to in the proclamation of the provisional governor, dated September 29, 1906, can be held prior to the date of the said general elections in December, 1907, here shall also be elected at the special election the successors of those members of the house of representatives who were elected in 1904."

Alta, 4-year-old daughter of Mrs. Fred A. Percival of Detroit died Sunday in Port Huron after two days' illness from diphtheria. Her father arrived Thursday for a visit with her sister, Mrs. Henry Hoffman, whose death occurred.

6 Adams Ave. W. DETROIT.

Specialist in Orthodontia, or Irregularity of the teeth.

Irregularity of the teeth is a condition frequently seen and greatly to be deplored. Few people have any comprehension of the ability possessed by modern dentists in correcting these abnormal positions of the teeth. Thus many grow to manhood and womanhood, whose faces have become deformed or whose expression is unnatural or unpleasant, because they have no knowledge of the improvement which could be made by a competent Dentist.

The results of irregular teeth are that they mar the appearance of the individual, interfere with clearness of speech, impair the ability to masticate the food thoroughly, and by reason of their crowded or abnormal position afford favorable lodgment for food particles and thereby induce decay.

When a child presents itself I study the features and the irregularities and oral deformities. I look at the child's face and then at its profile, and endeavor to ascertain, if possible, what facial change will be brought about by any corrective art that may be applied to the case. In my judgment more is lost than gained by the removal of teeth for the correction of irregularity and should never be done, except, possibly in very rare cases. I consider it possible to take any person under twenty-one years of age, with a face deformed by irregular teeth and make their features attractive.

Out of a large number of cases I show cuts of two illustrating what can be done with natural teeth by way of improved appearance through the skilled application of the art of Orthodontia.

Beware of Schemes.

If we are to judge by the thousands of people who are being daily swindled by numerous get-rich schemes that infest the country, the American people are becoming particularly easy. Almost every large city seems to be a fruitful field for the swindler's operations, and the poor dupes almost tumble over each other in their effort to get something for nothing or fabulous returns for a small outlay, which one of average intelligence ought to know was a swindle without being apprised of the fact. Aside from this the press of the country is continually warning the people of the dangerous character of those swindling operations and publishing reports of the thousands who have learned by dear experience of the fraudulent nature of so many concerns in which they have trusted their all. We would say it served them right were it not for the fact that the victims in many cases are poor people who can ill afford to lose their daily earnings in this manner. No legitimate business or investment can honestly pay more than a reasonable profit, without some one being defrauded.

PROMINENT HOSPITALS SAY PE-RU-NA DOES WONDERS IN RELIEVING ALL CATARRHAL DISEASES.

SISTERS OF THE GOOD SHEPHERD, MONTREAL.

HOSPITALS ALL OVER THE CONTINENT FIND PE-RU-NA VALUABLE IN TREATING ALL CATARRHAL DISEASES.

CATARRH of the respiratory organs is a common ailment in Canada for at least two-thirds of the year.

This condition is no doubt caused by the long, severe winters experienced in this part of the continent.

Therefore, when Peruna was discovered by Canadian people to be a reliable remedy for these catarrhal diseases, it at once became a popular medicine, not only among individuals and in families, but in the great hospitals, where it was used as a preventative and relief in hundreds of cases.

These institutions do not hesitate to give their endorsement of the remedy which has been so helpful in the treatment of their poor and sick.

Among these institutions is that of the Sisters of Good Shepherd, who gave the following endorsement:

The Peruna Company, Columbus, Ohio.

Having used Peruna for the past few months, for our sick and poor, we are happy to say that it has given us great satisfaction.

The Sisters of the Good Shepherd, August 20, 1903. Montreal.

After a continued use of the remedy, this institution has found no reason to change its good opinion of the remedy and expresses its satisfaction in the following terms:

Montreal, Nov. 7, 1903.

We found Peruna a relief in several cases.

We can say it is a good tonic and we are very thankful.

Sisters of the Good Shepherd.

When catarrh once fastens itself upon the system, it becomes an obstinate disease to eradicate.

A systemic remedy—one that reaches every internal organ of the body—is an absolute necessity.

Peruna is just such a remedy. It searches out the cause of the disease, healing and strengthening the mucous membranes, and thus giving Nature an opportunity to perform her part of the restorative process.

One of the many hospitals which have found Peruna of value in treating old and obstinate cases of catarrh is the Hospital St. John, who write, as follows:

"We are happy to tell you that your Peruna has given us satisfaction. Three patients have tried it, one 68 years old, Reboul Dupuis, afflicted with catarrh, is much relieved, more than he has been for a number of years.

"A young girl, 15 years old, had an obstinate cough, which half a bottle of Peruna caused to disappear.

"As to myself, two bottles have convinced me that Peruna is magnificent as a tonic.

"Before the treatment I could not walk for a quarter of an hour without experiencing much fatigue. Now I can walk a mile easily.

"Through these three cases we desire to make known to the public the efficiency of your remedy."

Hospital St. John, of St. Johns, Province of Quebec.

A later letter received from the same institution reads as follows:

"Three weeks ago I wrote to tell you how satisfactory we found Peruna. We recommend it highly for colds, coughs, catarrh and neuralgia.

"I have used it myself as a tonic with the best results, taken as directed, half a teaspoonful every half hour."

Peruna not only promptly relieves coughs and colds in their first stages, but is equally prompt and efficient for catarrhal diseases in the chronic stage.

Of course, it is only reasonable to suppose that a great deal less medicine will be necessary to cure a slight attack of catarrh than would be required to relieve the ailment after it had been allowed to become chronic.

Directions for taking the remedy will be found on each bottle, also in Dr. Hartman's book, called "The Ills of Life," which can be obtained from your druggist for the asking.

For special instructions write to Dr. Hartman, President of the Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

The excruciating din made by the motor omnibuses is worse than ever. Perhaps the machinery of these cars of Juggernaut is beginning to wear; whatever the cause, the horrible rattling or jangle is like that of a lot of old scrap iron and tin rubbish furiously shaken up. The sense of hearing is becoming, in the main London streets, a scene of torture—Saturday Review.

Shylock's Origin.

Shakespeare derived the character Shylock from an actual occurrence which took place in Venice. According to the works of George Leti, we find that a wager of a pound of flesh was laid between a Christian and a Jew on the discovery of Santo Domingo. It is believed that Shakespeare took this incident for the plot of the Merchant of Venice.—The Sunday Magazine.

Nicolai Looks Backward.

Nicolai has been very much impressed with his Sunday school lessons, especially those telling of the creation of the world. He asks his mother numerous questions concerning the original state of things; and does not seem quite satisfied with the replies, as is evident from a recent prayer he made, which included a petition asking the Lord to "please tell me what there was way, way back, in the years before there was any backs to the years"—Harper's Weekly.

manhood and womanhood, whose faces have become deformed, or whose expression is unnatural or unpleasant, because they have no knowledge of the improvement which could be made by a competent Dentist.

The results of irregular teeth are that they mar the appearance of the individual, interfere with clearness of speech, impair the ability to masticate the food thoroughly, and by reason of their crowded, or abnormal position afford favorable lodgment for food particles and thereby induce decay.

When a child presents itself I study the features and the irregularities and oral deformities. I look at the child's face and then at its profile, and endeavor to ascertain, if possible, what facial change will be brought about by any corrective art that may be applied to the case. In my judgment more is lost than gained by the removal of teeth for the correction of irregularity and should never be done, except, possibly in very rare cases. Beware of Schemes.

If we are to judge by the thousands of people who are being daily swindled by numerous get-rich schemes that infest the country, the American people are becoming particularly easy. Almost every large city seems to be a fruitful field for the swindler's operations, and the poor dupes almost tumble over each other in their effort to get something for nothing or fabulous returns for a small outlay, which one of average intelligence ought to know was a swindle without being apprised of the fact. Aside from this the press of the country is continually warning the people of the dangerous character of those swindling operations and publishing reports of the thousands who have learned by dear experience of the fraudulent nature of so many concerns in which they have intrusted their all. We would say it served them right were it not for the fact that the victims in many cases are poor people who can ill afford to lose their daily earnings in this manner. No legitimate business or investment can honestly pay more than a reasonable profit, without some one being defrauded.

PROMINENT HOSPITALS SAY
PE-RU-NA DOES WONDERS
IN RELIEVING ALL CATARRHAL DISEASES.

SISTERS OF THE GOOD SHEPHERD, MONTREAL

HOSPITALS ALL OVER THE CONTINENT FIND PE-RU-NA VALUABLE IN TREATING ALL CATARRHAL DISEASES.

CATARRH of the respiratory organs is a common ailment in Canada for at least two thirds of the year.

This condition is no doubt caused by the long, severe winters experienced in this part of the continent.

Therefore, when Peruna was discovered by Canadian people to be a reliable remedy for these catarrhal diseases, it at once became a popular medicine, not only among individuals and in families, but in the great hospitals, where it was used as a preventative and relief in hundreds of cases.

These institutions do not hesitate to give their endorsement of the remedy which has been so helpful in the treatment of their poor and sick.

Among these institutions is that of the Sisters of Good Shepherd, who gave the following endorsement:

The Peruna Company, Columbus, Ohio.

Having used Peruna for the past few months, for our sick and poor, we are happy to say that it has given us great satisfaction.

The Sisters of the Good Shepherd, August 20, 1903. Montreal.

After a continued use of the remedy, this institution has found no reason to change its good opinion of the remedy and expresses its satisfaction in the following terms:

Montreal, Nov. 7, 1903.

We found Peruna a relief in several cases.

We can say it is a good tonic and we are very thankful.

Sisters of the Good Shepherd.

When catarrh once fastens itself upon the system, it becomes an obstinate disease to eradicate.

A systemic remedy—one that reaches every internal organ of the body—is an absolute necessity.

Peruna is just such a remedy. It searches out the cause of the disease, healing and strengthening the mucous membranes, and thus giving Nature an opportunity to perform her part of the restorative process.

One of the many hospitals which have found Peruna of value in treating old and obstinate cases of catarrh is the Hospital St. John, who write, as follows:

"We are happy to tell you that your Peruna has given us satisfaction. Three patients have tried it, one 68 years old, Renou Dupuis, afflicted with catarrh, is much relieved, more than he has been for a number of years.

"A young girl, 15 years old, had an obstinate cough, which half a bottle of Peruna caused to disappear.

"As to myself, two bottles have convinced me that Peruna is magnificent as a tonic.

"Before the treatment I could not walk for a quarter of an hour without experiencing much fatigue. Now I can walk a mile easily.

"Through these three cases we desire to make known to the public the efficiency of your remedy."

Hospital St. John, of St. Johns, Province of Quebec.

A later letter received from the same institution reads as follows:

"Three weeks ago I wrote to tell you how satisfactory we found Peruna. We recommend it highly for colds, coughs, catarrh and neuralgia.

"I have used it myself as a tonic with the best results, taken as directed, half a teaspoonful every half hour."

Peruna not only promptly relieves coughs and colds in their first stages, but is equally prompt and efficient for catarrhal diseases in the chronic stage.

Of course, it is only reasonable to suppose that a great deal less medicine will be necessary to cure a slight attack of catarrh than would be required to relieve the ailment after it had been allowed to become chronic.

Directions for taking the remedy will be found on each bottle, also in Dr. Hartman's book, called "The Ills of Life," which can be obtained from your druggist for the asking.

For special instructions write to Dr. Hartman, President of the Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

Chaudron called Monsieur Victor aside; they conversed earnestly in French. He questioned Arthemise, then went down stairs and talked with Hippolyte who was feeding pigeons in the courtyard. When Chaudron came up the stairs again he walked slowly around the balcony, thoroughly puzzled, not knowing what to think.

"Miss Cameron," he asked dubiously, "you cannot be mistaken? You are quite sure that Mrs. Ashton came to this house with you last night?"

"Certainly, we could not have come here alone."

"Which room did your aunt occupy?"

Anita pointed to the broken knob; Alice shook her head stubbornly.

"Monsieur Labouisse, may I trouble you?" the young Creole bowed.

Victor reopened the door, the three men went in together and looked around. There was nothing unusual in the room, nothing suspicious, nothing to attract attention; an ordinary bedroom, littered with a man's belongings, that was all.

Alive watched them from the threshold. "No, I am sure now," she decided; "mother was never in here."

"Where was she then?"

Alice shook her head. "Oh, I don't know. I'm mixed up that I can't remember anything."

"Vance," Chaudron spoke sharply; his sleepy Creole eyes were thoroughly aroused. "I don't like this a bit, there's something wrong. You stay here with the ladies, and I'll get somebody that will find out."

CHAPTER XI.

THE INQUIRY OF JIMMY FITZ. A newsboy on the boulevard nudged his companion and pointed to one of two men in plain clothes who entered the Hotel Louis le Grande on either side of Felix Chaudron. "Dat's Jimmy Fitz—dere's sump'n doin' in dere," he explained.

James Fitzgerald, of the secret service, terror of the crook, idol of the gamins, was a clean-shaven man with close-cropped gray hair, and a pair of quiet blue eyes. He walked along quietly, listening to young Chaudron. Jimmy Fitz always listened; it was a dogma of his religion to let the other fellow do the talking. "The fellow that talks always pulls the laboring oar," thought Jimmy Fitz. If he had not known young Chaudron so well, Jimmy Fitz might have been inclined to laugh. He hadn't much faith in excitement raised by a lot of women.

"Defier sit down there Casey, and kind o' notice things," he pointed his companion to one of the green benches in the court, while he himself followed Felix Chaudron up the stairs.

Casey took his seat negligently in the courtyard, at the table where Victor Labouisse had been sitting, and picked up a newspaper. The parrot chattered, the pigeons stutted, the fountain splashed, and Casey's careless eye took in what little there was to be seen.

Chaudron led Jimmy Fitz into the rear hall. Victor was still standing there talking to Woodford Vance.

"Have you heard anything?" Felix questioned anxiously.

"Not a word; it's the most remarkable thing I ever ran across."

"This is Capt. Fitzgerald, Mr. Vance; I brought him because it's better to be as quiet about this as we can."

Fitz shook hands cordially with both Victor and Vance.

"What's all this trouble about, Mr. Labouisse?" Fitzgerald questioned in his good-natured way that always disarmed suspicion, those transparent blue eyes of his seemed very candid and trustful.

"It is one great foolishness, Monsieur Fitz; two young ladies come here last night—yes, take a room. This morning they say: 'Laf lose zai zai'—they cry an' zey search me shoul. I haf many times a leav' d'hem, ze zat I take only gert' man in my house, and—"

"Where is their mother?"

"Ze good God in Heaven—the lady's name is—"

"They're in their room? I'll call them," suggested Vance, as he went back and knocked on their door.

Anita opened it—Anita, tall, straight and fearless.

"Have you found her?" she asked instantly; then she saw from Vance's face that he had not.

"No, the police are here; they want to see you and Miss Ashton."

Alice sprang up from the bed and ran to the door. "What is it? What is it?"

"The police," Anita answered.

"What's the matter?"

"They're in their room? I'll call them," suggested Vance, as he went back and knocked on their door.

Anita opened it—Anita, tall, straight and fearless.

"Have you found her?" she asked instantly; then she saw from Vance's face that he had not.

"No, the police are here; they want to see you and Miss Ashton."

Alice sprang up from the bed and ran to the door. "What is it? What is it?"

"The police," Anita answered.

"What's the matter?"

"Oh! Alice covered her face; the police made this situation so real, so very terrible. She sat down helplessly."

"Come," Anita took the girl's hand and led her into the hall.

"Here is Capt. Fitzgerald," said Chaudron; "he wants to ask you a few questions."

Fitzgerald was very courteous and very delicate for so rough a man. He asked a number of questions, and learned nothing more than Chaudron had already told him. Mrs. Ashton went to sleep last night in a big bed with green silk curtains hung all around it. This morning she could not be found; that was all the two girls knew.

"Which room was that in, miss?"

Again Anita pointed to the door with the broken knob; again Alice shook her head. Fitzgerald looked from one to the other, puzzled and tolerant. He had the door opened.

From the outside Anita always felt certain that this was the room. But every time the door was opened and she looked in, she felt that she might be mistaken. Alice was very positive that she had not left her mother in this room.

"Why, there was a big green bed over here in this corner," Alice insisted, "and a piece of tapestry hung right here, with a Crusader on it—right where this door is." She pointed to a pair of white sliding doors striped with gold. "The room that mother was in didn't have a door like this at all. And there was an old cabinet; Anita, you remember that cabinet?"

Anita nodded. Yes, she remembered all those things, but she walked to the door and looked up and down the hall again.

"It was the first door to the right as we came into the hall," she asserted positively.

"It's very queer," Fitz whispered to Jimmy Fitz.

Jimmy Fitz took calm possession of the room that had the broken knob upon its door. "Send the girl Arthemise," he said.

Arthemise greatly flurried, saw the dreaded Fitz sitting at the table with a pencil and paper. She hesitated on the threshold and glanced appealingly at Victor, who waved her into the room.

"Take this seat, please," Fitz pointed to a chair. "Will you kindly close the door, Mr. Labouisse?"

Victor Labouisse did not stir from the door while Jimmy Fitz was putting Arthemise through the mill. Presently the girl came out, hurriedly, with shifting eyes, and dodged down the hall, glad to escape such a piercing inquisition.

Chaudron saw that Fitz was drumming on the table; he looked puzzled and disappointed.

"Where is that old porter?" Fitz looked up; "tell him to come here."

"Hip! hip! Hip! hip!" Victor shouted from the balcony. "Come here; ze Monsieur Fitz wish to see you."

Hippolyte came round the curving balcony, holding back at every step as if some one behind were shoving him on. When he saw Fitz sitting at the table, and no one else in the room, he stopped entirely.

"Come in, old man," the thin-lips called from the table. Hippolyte dropped his cap on the floor and glanced apprehensively behind him when Victor closed the door, shutting him in with that pair of eyes that bored him through and through.

Chaudron Vance and Labouisse talked in the hall until they heard Fitzgerald shove back his chair. Hippolyte appeared in the door much relieved, and Fitzgerald followed him.

"Can't get a thing out of these people," he whispered to Chaudron. They sat restively 'till those two young ladies came to the house alone. Victor Labouisse, he spoke aloud and bellowed to Victor that it was his turn.

"No one else?"

"No one else."

"That is, no one but the servants of the hotel?"

"Yes, and Monsieur Victor."

"Did Mrs. Ashton have enemies? Was there anyone who might wish to harm her?"

The last vestige of color faded from Anita's lips.

"Who was it?" Fitzgerald asked, for he knew that there was some one. Anita's eyes craved his; she answered weakly:

"Nobody; that is—I don't know."

"That is, no one but the servants of the hotel?"

"Yes, and Monsieur Victor."

"Did Mrs. Ashton have enemies? Was there anyone who might wish to harm her?"

The last vestige of color faded from Anita's lips.

"Who was it?" Fitzgerald asked, for he knew that there was some one. Anita's eyes craved his; she answered weakly:

"Nobody; that is—I don't know."

"No one else?"

"No one else."

Fitzgerald looked at her quietly. It seemed for several minutes. She turned her face away. Then he asked again:

"What baggage did you bring?"

"Two bags."

"Where are they?"

"One of them is in our room."

"The other?"

"My aunt took that into the room with her."

Fitzgerald glanced inquiringly at Victor. The Frenchman shook his head. "The trunks have just come, Monsieur Fitz," he said.

"How many?"

"Three," Victor replied.

"They probably checked one on each ticket?" Fitz commented; and Anita nodded that he was right.

"That is all, Miss Cameron."

Alice came up and stood beside Anita listening. "Where is my mother?" she asked Fitzgerald, with the sublime faith of a child.

"I don't know—yet," the detective answered frankly.

"Now, Mr. Labouisse, I shall question your servants."

"As you please, monsieur."

"May I use this room?"

"It is at your service."

Fitzgerald glanced at the young ladies, and motioned Chaudron to take them to their room.

Jimmy Fitz took calm possession of the room that had the broken knob upon its door. "Send the girl Arthemise," he said.

Arthemise greatly flurried, saw the dreaded Fitz sitting at the table with a pencil and paper. She hesitated on the threshold and glanced appealingly at Victor, who waved her into the room.

"Take this seat, please," Fitz pointed to a chair. "Will you kindly close the door, Mr. Labouisse?"

Victor Labouisse did not stir from the door while Jimmy Fitz was putting Arthemise through the mill. Presently the girl came out, hurriedly, with shifting eyes, and dodged down the hall, glad to escape such a piercing inquisition.

Chaudron saw that Fitz was drumming on the table; he looked puzzled and disappointed.

"Where is that old porter?" Fitz looked up; "tell him to come here."

"Hip! hip! Hip! hip!" Victor shouted from the balcony. "Come here; ze Monsieur Fitz wish to see you."

Hippolyte came round the curving balcony, holding back at every step as if some one behind were shoving him on. When he saw Fitz sitting at the table, and no one else in the room, he stopped entirely.

"Come in, old man," the thin-lips called from the table. Hippolyte dropped his cap on the floor and glanced apprehensively behind him when Victor closed the door, shutting him in with that pair of eyes that bored him through and through.

Chaudron Vance and Labouisse talked in the hall until they heard Fitzgerald shove back his chair. Hippolyte appeared in the door much relieved, and Fitzgerald followed him.

"Can't get a thing out of these people," he whispered to Chaudron. They sat restively 'till those two young ladies came to the house alone. Victor Labouisse, he spoke aloud and bellowed to Victor that it was his turn.

POINTS ON BUYING A HORSE.

What to Have in Mind When Selecting a New Animal.

Too many people buy horses without considering the purpose for which they are to be used. They think a horse is a horse the world round and that there is but little difference except in size and weight. Experience and observation has taught me that the slope of the shoulder has more to do with the horse's ability than disposition or other points.

The horse with the shoulder such as shown in Fig. 1, which is almost perpendicular, will be able to pull a heavy load without injuring his shoulders. The collar will not work up and choke him and his shoulders will stand up well under heavy work. A horse with shoulders like Fig. 2 will stand ordinary work and drive well, but a horse with very sloping shoulders like Fig. 3 is suitable only for use as a saddle horse. Such a shoulder usually goes with a short coupling and well sprung ribs, which are characteristic of a good saddle, says Farm and Home.

A horse with very sloping shoulders cannot be worked at heavy drafting without a specially designed collar or it will work up on his neck and choke him, if it doesn't make his shoulders sore.

SPRAYING AND DIPPING CATTLE.

Latter Process the Only Method Where Many Cattle Have to be Treated.

In South Africa is a disease very similar to Texas fever but the result of a different germ. It is, however, spread in the same manner as is Texas fever, by means of the tick. The stockmen, therefore, are fighting the ticks, and various methods are being used in this warfare. One of these is the dipping of the cattle, as in this country, and another method is the spraying of the cattle. In this spraying, kerosene is used, and to it is sometimes added arsenic, to make the effect of the spraying more pronounced. Kerosene mixed with water is said to be harmless to the skin of the cattle and to cost only about four cents per head. The cost of dipping is not much more, but the cost of the dipping plant is considerable. This is the claim of the men that practice the spraying and believe in it. The men that hold to the dipping as the most effective means state their side of the argument thus:

Spraying requires five times as much time as does dipping. On a small farm spraying may be the cheaper, but on a large ranch where a thousand cattle must be treated, the matter of time is a great one. It requires as long to spray 200 cattle as it would require to dip a thousand. Dipping destroys the ticks much more effectively than does spraying. For this reason the dipping arrangement has displaced the spraying apparatus on nearly all cattle ranches that carry large numbers of cattle.

The best medicine you can give a sick hog is to stop feeding till he shows some signs that he wants something to eat.

The end in view in keeping sheep is profit, and the question is how best to conduct the business to obtain a profit from the growing of wool or mutton.

As far as can be done, the flock should be selected and culled so that there will be but one grade of wool—well-treated fleece—as no matter how meritorious each may be, the best prices cannot be realized.

To know how to care for sheep so as to make them grow the largest and finest fleeces and the most vigorous lambs is the most important part of flock management.

Don't want your horses to have the heaves? No, of course not. Then stop feeding them dusty hay. If you must use it, sprinkle it well with water, with a little salt added now and then.

Market Grade Known as Stags.

Stags are hogs that at one time were boars beyond the pig stage and have been subsequently castrated. They sell for a dockage of 80 pounds. If they are of good quality and condition and do not show too much staginess, they go in with the various grades of packing hogs. When they are coarse and staggy in appearance they are sold in the same class with boars. The intermediate grades sell for prices ranging between these extremes, depending upon their freedom from staginess and their quality and condition.—Illinois Exporter Station.

Don't Let Sheep Catch Cold.

Catarrh is often contracted in the fall of the year through exposure to storms. After the sheep take cold several times the affection becomes chronic and catarrh sets in. Colds are often brought on by strong, cold drafts in damp quarters, often the result of improper ventilation. Remove the cause, if possible, and guard against it in the future. Smear the nose of the affected animal with tar.

LIKE A FAIRY TALE.

The Story of Postum Cereal in Words and Pictures.

The growth of the Postum Cereal Co. is like a fairy tale, but it is true, every word of it.

"The Door-Untold" is the title of a charming little booklet just issued by the Company which tells, and illustrates, the story of this remarkable growth. It takes the reader from the little white barn in which the business was started Jan. 1, 1895, through the palatial offices and great factory buildings of the "White City" that comprise Postumville, Battle Creek, Mich.

The little white barn, so carefully preserved, is a most interesting building for it represents the humble beginning of one of the country's greatest manufacturing enterprises of today, an enterprise that has grown from this little barn to a whole city of factory buildings within but little more than ten years.

No less interesting is the quaint official home of the Postum Cereal Co. The general office building of Mr. Post and his associates is a reproduction of the Shakespeare house at Stratford-on-Avon, and upon the house and its furnishings have been expended vast sums of money, until the rooms are more like the drawing rooms of the mansions of our multi-millionaires than like offices.

That Mr. Post has believed thoroughly in the idea of giving to his employees attractive and healthful work rooms is proven not only by the general office building of the Company and its furnishings, but by his factories as well, and of all of these things this beautiful little booklet tells the interesting story. It will be sent to anyone on request.

BOY'S HEAD ONE SOLID SORE.

Hair All Came Out—Under Doctor Three Months and No Better—Cuticura Works Wonders.

Mr. A. C. Barnett, proprietor of a general store in Avard, Oklahoma, tells in the following grateful letter how Cuticura cured his son of a terrible eczema. "My little boy had eczema. His head was one solid sore, all over his scalp; his hair all came out, and he suffered very much. I had a physician treat him, but at the end of three months he was no better. I remembered that the Cuticura Remedies had cured me, and after giving him two bottles of Cuticura Resolvent, according to directions, and using Cuticura Soap and Ointment on him daily, his eczema left him, his hair grew again, and he has never had any eczema since. We use the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and they keep our skin soft and healthy. I cheerfully recommend the Cuticura Remedies for all cases of eczema. A. C. Barnett, Mar. 30, 1905."

Japan's Empress Popular.

It is doubtful if any royal consort is more loved by her people than is the empress of Japan. Educated according to feudal ideas and skilled in all the accomplishments befitting one of her social eminence, her majesty strongly favors the broadness of the new education for women and from her private purse gives large sums toward the maintenance of women's schools and universities. During the war with Russia the empress visited the hospitals many times and every day passed hours making bandages. The effect of these bandages upon the wounded soldiers has been of deep interest to medical and scientific men, for the soldiers honored by them seemed to rally under a peculiar mental influence. All other bandages were destroyed after their first use; those made by the empress were sterilized and used again for the simple reason of their effect on the recovery of the soldiers.

THE RED HEAD

BY F. H. LANCASTER

Broom-sedge feathering to its frosting; pine trees green; and red oaks browned up beautifully. All these—and a lonely little figure in the middle of the long white road. Marguerite going to school? Ha! And Marguerite crying.

Big Theophile dropped his ax and came uncertainly to Marguerite's side. "Bon jour," he said awkwardly.

Marguerite straightened up sharply. She pulled her bonnet over her face. She frowned. Did she not hate this red-headed boy? Ha! Hate him more than she hated the multiplication tables. And that he should have caught her crying—because she could not learn the nine table. He, Theophile.

"I have a headache, me," she said, primly.

Theophile plodded at her side helplessly as a dumb beast on a false scent. A headache? Then why was she going to school? Ha! But he must say something, and say it quick.

"Das mek you feel bad? Das mal de tete?" He dared not be too solicitous. He had been snubbed too often. Marguerite flinched virtuously.

"It is not the pain. It is that I cannot so well study." And in the virtuous remark was conveyed a cold rebuke. He, Theophile, never studied, the great-lazy creature, the sorriest scholar in his class. Had not the teacher put him in a corner behind her desk so that his idleness might not disturb the rest of the school?

Why, the littlest girl on the playground was ashamed to be seen talking to him. And here was she, Marguerite, the head of the class, talking to school with him. She tossed her head and turned indignantly. "Theophile," she began, sharply.

"Das all right," he interrupted in a deep, comforting tone. "Das all right I been think me, 'bout what you say, yas. How das headache mek it hard for you to study. But das multiplee cation table, das nine. He ain't hard, no."

"Ain't hard!" Marguerite blazed. This did indeed justify umbrage. To be told by a dunce that the thing she had been crying over was not hard. "Mebbe you ain't thought 'bout das how-one half come big, other half go little?"

"Go little," she reiterated, scornful. But Theophile had seen his chance to help her. As well might she try to turn a thirsty ox from water as to stop him now. He explained eagerly.

"Like dis, yas. Nine times one? Das mek nine. Notting on inside, nine on outside. Nine time two? Das mek eighteen. One on inside, eight on outside. Nine time three? Das mek twenty seven. One come two, eight go seven. Next time, two come three, seven go six. Comme ca?"

"And next time," Marguerite uttered. She was amazed. But, yes! To learn wisdom from the mouths of babes and sucklings—Ha, but to be taught an easy road to the nine table by a red head! She forgot that the schoolhouse was in sight, forgot that she was late.

"And next time," she repeated when Theophile only smiled, "next time three come four, six go five. Forty five. Bein, nine times five mek forty-five!"

"Yas. And nine times six, he mek?" suggested Theophile.

"Feety-four Bon!" Enchanted, Marguerite stopped in the shadow of the pines to work out the whole table, forgetful of time and place. Gloriously happy to have helped her, Theophile stopped, also, forgetful of everything under heaven save Marguerite's bright eyes.

When they reached the schoolhouse school was in. Marguerite flushed with shame. Theophile grinned in joyous unconcern. The teacher looked sharply from one to the other. She saw the tear marks on Marguerite's face; the graceless grin on Theophile's. She spoke sternly:

"So you have been teasing the girls now, have you, Theophile? That makes your sixth demerit for this week." It was very young, that teacher. "It was her first school. Theophile went blithely to his dunce's seat and got out a book. Six demerits or six thousand. What did he care for the little black marks. He had helped Marguerite.

Marguerite fared much worse. But yes. With a conscience calling her a sneak and a shame that wouldn't let her stand up before the whole school and take the red-head's part.

"J'as un hoto," she accused wildly. But what avail to call herself a beast in secret if she was going to stand up and let him be called a beast by everybody—for something he hadn't done. And that was what they did at recess. The girls taunted him and the boys would have fought him—if he had not been so big.

And the next morning regret made it all the worse. It seemed so easy now that the opportunity was gone so easy to have turned and said, "No, Mees May, it is not that Theophile teased me. It is that I have the headache." Well, why hadn't he done it the stupid! Why hadn't he told teacher that she had the headache? Maybe he didn't believe that she had it. And of course he wouldn't say what was not so. Everybody said that: "Das Theophile, he don't lie, no." Then why didn't he tell teacher she was crying because she couldn't learn her table? Any of the other boys would have done it. Had sense enough to talk before they got punished for something they hadn't done. But Theophile—He's different, yas."

"Ha!" So different was Theophile that when Marguerite took the prize for perfect tables and everybody was praising her he never let on how he had helped. Never tried to presume upon that one golden morning, and what was more wonderful to Marguerite, never seemed to be mad with her for so disgracefully leaving him the bag to hold. She thought of restitution, but finally took up again the tone of the school, giggling at Theophile's blunders, smiling pityingly at his mistakes. Did it until one day he turned and looked at her, and his look hurt her all over! There was nothing for it then but to hate him, and Marguerite settled to the hating with such a vim that even big, patient Theophile was roused to protest:

"What mek you so rough on me?"

"He queried, deep-voiced and kindly. "I am doing nothing to you."

"It is that you do not study."

"I don't like to study, me. I like to drive the ox and chop the log."

"Then go drive your ox and chop your log. Don't talk to me. Val!" And Marguerite fled, hating Theophile with all her heart. Ha, but hating herself the more.

The winter wore away and Theophile fared worse and worse. He didn't seem to care how much was put off on him, also the school made him its scapegoat. Why not? He had a red head! The teacher punished him for what he did and what he didn't do—why not? He was a dolt and he took it all in his patient way, deep-voiced and kindly. It was only Marguerite who saw the dumb pain in his warm brown eyes; only Marguerite who knew why he didn't leave school, and go back to the woods where he kinged it so royally.

Spring at last, and with spring log-rolling, and chopping and jellification, means, among other things, muck and annisett and going home ready for a row.

M. LeRoy was on his way home from an all night frolic when he chanced to pass the schoolhouse. At the sight of that little log structure came a host of imaginary grievances. He would have settlement with that teacher.

"Good morning, M. Le Roy," she greeted pleasantly. The tipsy trustee propped himself against the door.

"Mees May, I want ask you what for you tetch school like dis? My leetle boy come school, you wheep him Jack's leetle boy come school, you wheep him. We 'fret you to teach our children, not to wheep dem. C'est not que je vous le dis, nous y passerons tous!" He made a lurching gesture and the teacher stood up, badly frightened by the French. She was young. Her mother had wept when she went away.

"Permettez moi, Mees May." Ah, how good that deep, comforting voice sounded! How splendid was that red head topping those strong shoulders.

"Fardon, M. Le Roy, you can't talk to teacher like dis. You going get out of here."

"Ha, Tete Rouge Dame—" "Taisez-vous. Shut up!" one big hand closed over M. Le Roy's mouth, another over his collar. There was a short struggle and above the scuffle of it Theophile's voice explained that he did not fight in the presence of ladies. Theophile's voice, yes, but with a grim suggestion in it that warmed the teacher's heart like wine and made Marguerite hide behind her geography all a-tremble with tender pride.

Like one head all the beautiful browns and blacks bent to peer through chinks and knot-holes. They saw the red head topping M. Le Roy's disarray within the thick green of the "branch," and still watching—after many eager minutes—they saw it reappear alone, wearing around it, as it seemed to the watchers, a halo of victory.

The light of battle still lit his eyes, but, save for that, there was nothing to note as Theophile reentered the school and quietly made his way toward his dunce's seat. The teacher stopped him with her proffered hand.

"Oh, Theophile," she began, tremulously, and he bowed over her hand like a knight of old.

"Das all right," he comforted. "I'm glad, me."

But why should everyone look at Marguerite? Poor Marguerite, torn and trembling and wretched and wild! Sappy behind her geography. Ah! If she had only stood up for him—when she wanted to.

"Mees May, it is das I may speak to Theophile?"

"Certainly," said Miss May.

And when she had run the terrible gauntlet of all those eyes; when, contrite and quivering, she stood beside him, with down-drooped lids, the words would not come. It was Theophile who drew her down beside him, shielding her from that pitiless stare; Theophile who voiced the joyous whisper: "Das mek me proud, yas."

Checked Attempt at Monopoly. Trusts were sometimes dealt with summarily in old England. For instance, the records of the Brewers' company show that "on Monday, July 30, 1422, Robert Chichele, the mayor of London, sent for the masters and 12 of the most worthy of our company to appear at the Guildhall for selling dear ale. After much dispute about the price and quantity of malt, wherein Whittington, the late mayor, declared that the brewers had ridden into the country and forestalled the malt, to raise its price, they were convicted in the penalty of £20 ($100), which obnoxious to the masters were ordered to be kept in prison in the chamberlain's custody until they should pay it, or find security for the payment thereof."

Wrong Method of Teaching. Consul Paul Nash, of Venice, writes: "Hundreds of well educated Americans annually pass through Venice and, although probably nine tenths of them have had several years of instruction in a European language, not one tenth are capable of speaking a dozen connected words of anything but English! Even college graduates, fresh from prize-winning in French or German, are generally unable to speak either language, although capable of writing an excellent thesis on their history, philology, syntax and literature. This is the result of teaching French and German in much the same way that Latin and Greek are taught."

NEW YEAR'S CALLS.

A New Drink to Replace the Old-Time "Apple-Jack."

Twenty-five years ago the custom of making New Year's calls was a delightful one for all concerned, until some of the boys got more "egg-nog" or "apple-jack" than they could successfully carry.

Then the ladies tried to be charitable and the gentlemen tried to be as chivalrous as ever and stand up at the same time.

If anyone thinks there has not been considerable improvement in the last quarter of a century in the use of alcoholic beverages, let him stop to consider, among other things, the fact that the old custom of New Year's calls and the genteel upping is nearly obsolete.

The custom of calling on one's friends, however, at the beginning of the new year, is a good habit, and another good habit to start at that time is the use of well-made Postum instead of coffee or spirits.

A Staten Island doctor has a sensible daughter who has set Postum before her guests as a good thing to drink at Yule Tide, and a good way to begin the New Year. Her father writes:

"My daughter and I have used Postum for some time past, and we feel sure it contains wholesome food material. I shall not only recommend it to my patients, but my daughter will be most pleased to give a demonstration of Postum to our Christmas and New Year's callers." Read "The Road to Wellville" in page 1. "There's a reason."

GAINED 34 POUNDS

Persistent Anemia Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills After Other Remedies Had Failed.

"When I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills," says Mrs. Nathaniel Field, of St. Albans, Somerset county, Maine, "I was the palest, most bloodless person you could imagine. My tongue and gums were colorless and my fingers and ears were like wax. I had two doctors and they pronounced my trouble anemia. I had spells of vomiting, could not eat, in fact, did not dare to, I had such distress after eating. My stomach was filled with gas which caused me awful agony. The lack of color I suffered was at times almost unbearable and the least exertion made my heart beat so fast that I could hardly breathe. But the worst of all was the splitting neuralgia headache which never left me for seven weeks. About this time I had several unpleasant spells. My limbs would be cold and without any feeling and the most deathly sensations would come over me."

"Nothing had helped me until I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, in fact, I had grown worse every day. After I had taken the pills a short time I could see that they were benefiting me and one morning I awoke entirely free from pain. The distress after eating disappeared and in three weeks I could eat anything I wanted and suffer no inconvenience. I also slept soundly. I have taken several boxes of the pills and have gained in weight from 120 to 154 pounds, and am perfectly well now."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure anemia, because they actually make new blood. For rheumatism, indigestion, nervous headaches and many forms of weakness they are recommended even if ordinary medicines have failed. They are sold by all druggists, or will be sent postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.
