MRS. YERKES DIED SUNDAY

WIFE OF ROBERT YERKES GONE TO HER REWARD.

Aged Lady Had Been Ill for Many Months Past.

Mrs. Sarah E. Yerkes, wife of Robert Yerkes, Sr., of this place, died at her home in this village Sunday afternoon at the age of 79 years. Mrs. Yerkes' illness dates back for a year or more and through all that time she has been a patient and cheerful sufferer. She was one of Northville's most highly esteemed and cultured ladies and but few possessed so many friends and admirers.

MRS. ROBERT YERKES SR.

Well known Northville woman who died at her home here Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Yerkes was a faithful member of the Presbyterian church and for years had been a great worker in the society. For a long time she taught one of the Sunday-school classes there and many young men and young women of this village have been made better men and better women for having known her and for having listened to her teachings.

Mrs. Yerkes was born in Roylton, N. Y., Aug. 25, 1827 and came with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rosekrans Holmes, to Michigan when an infant. They settled on what is now the Hiram Holmes farm west of town, where she continued to reside until her marriage with Mr. Yerkes, from that home Oct. 7, 1856.

Resides the husband there is left four sons, all of whom she has lived to see grown to manhood, respected and influential business men. They are Attorney George B. Yerkes of Detroit, W. H. of Seville, Ohio, Don P. and R. C. of this place.

A year ago her son, Don, and wife of Milford moved to the home here and their loving care and consideration for the mother was a great comfort in her last days and will possibly lighten just a little the sorrow that falls so heavily upon the husband to whom the deceased was ever a companion, a helper and a partaker of his cares and joys as well as a devoted wife and mother.

The funeral occurred from the home Wednesday afternoon, Rev. Wm. S. Jerome officiating. The interment was in the family lot in Yerkes cemetery, the four sons acting as pall bearers.

The life and character of the deceased was fittingly portrayed by her pastor in the reading of the thirty-first chapter of Proverbs beginning with the eleventh verse.

The floral offerings were many and beautiful attesting to the love and esteem in which Mrs. Yerkes was held in the community where she had so long resided.

Two hymns were beautifully rendered by Mrs. Belle Tatham and Mrs. E. A. Merritt, during the service.

Keeps Potato Bugs Away.

A gentleman who grew potatoes for a period of ten years, in the west where the pest originated, says that he discovered that by planting two or three flax-seeds in each hill, not a bug appeared in the patch. He claims to have tried it several years in succession with always the same result. It will pay our readers to try this in the spring of 1907. It's certainly easy to try and handy if it does the work.

MRS. MARIA McPHERSON

Passes Away at Novi After Short Illness.

The funeral of Mrs. Maria C. McPherson of Novi took place on Wednesday morning at the home of her son-in-law. She was stricken with typhoid pneumonia a few days ago and in spite of every effort put forth for her recovery she passed peacefully away on Monday, Feb. 25th. She had been a faithful member of the Milford Methodist Episcopal church for some years. Seven children, all grown up, are left to mourn the loss of a most faithful and loving mother.

Mrs. McPherson was born in Watertown, New York, Dec. 12th, 1841 and came with her parents to Michigan when twelve years of age. The greater part of her life was spent in Highland, Mich., where her remains were taken for burial. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. W. G. Stephens of Northville.

WANT DEED SET ASIDE.

Creditors of J. E. Moore After 30
Acres Deeded to His Wife.

C. E. Lovejoy supposed he had the financial tangles of the J. Everett Moore estate all straightened out and was ready to submit his final account as administrator of the estate.

Out of the wreck he had saved twelve cents on the dollar for the sixty-three creditors but his expectation of settling with them on that basis has been dispelled by the filing of a petition by a number of Northville creditors asking that he be compelled to take steps to have set aside a deed of thirty acres of land held by Mrs. Alice Moore.

This property had been deeded by Everett Moore to his wife some time prior to his death and being a homestead had not been included in the assets of the estate. Mrs. Moore, having vacated the property by moving to Ypsilanti, these creditors take steps to have the deed set aside. Represented in the petition are the Northville Savings Bank with a claim of $1200, Eli K. Simonds, administrator of the Michael McGreery estate, in the amount of $800 and the Northville Savings Bank as agents for certain other creditors having claims amounting to $926.—Milford Times.

Mrs. Richmond Shaw Dead.

Mrs. Richmond Shaw died at her home on the Base Line west of Northville Saturday evening after a lingering illness of paralysis. The funeral was held from the house Tuesday afternoon Rev. Wm. S. Jerome officiating. The deceased leaves a husband and one son besides a host of friends to mourn their loss. Interment was in Novi cemetery.

$2,000 License.

One of the bills introduced by Senator Keyes of the Barry-Eaton district, has thrown the druggists into a state of excitement, with its proposed requirement of a state license with a two thousand dollar fee and filing of the formula or analysis, for the preparation of any "patent medicine" or proprietary compound for sale in this state.

Saturday Night.

The Detroit Saturday night, H. H. Nimmo's new paper, will be out this week Saturday and will be handled here by the newsboys. Don Ball is the Northville agent.

Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the first meeting of the stockholders of the Michigan Slipper Company, for the purpose of electing a Board of Directors of said Company and transacting such other business as may legally come before said meeting, will be held at the office of said Company in the Village of Northville, Michigan, on the 13th day of March, 1907 at 7:30 p. m.

TWO CENT R. R. FARE

RAILROADS LINING UP TO DE-FEAT THE MEASURE.

Governor Will Insist Fair Treatment for Measure.

The railroads of the state are apparently lining up to defeat the two-cent rate bill which was advocated by Governor Warner in his annual message to the legislature.

In connection with this it is said the House committee on railroads in the legislature may be too friendly to the railroads and that the public may not get the best end of the deal when the two-cent fare bill reaches that committee room.

On this subject Governor Warner says the committee must be fair in its treatment of this measure and he intimates he will fight to a finish any attempt to smother legislation along this line in committees.

The governor has information showing a large increase in railroad earnings in Ohio where the legislature adopted a two cent rate two years ago. The governor claims the railroads of Michigan will eventually be benefited by such a uniform law, which is already in force on some of the Michigan roads, when by the present law they were forced to adopt a two-cent rate by reason of their large earnings.

Today, any person having twenty-five dollars to invest in a mileage book can ride on any Michigan railroad for two cents per mile but the common people who haven't the twenty-five dollars are obliged to pay regular fare, which is usually three cents per mile.

And along this line of talk there seems to be a three cornered alliance lined up against the measures which are advocated by the governor in the interest of the people. These are the railroads, the binder twine trust and a portion of the private bankers of the state. With them it appears to be a case of "you tickle me and I'll tickle you."

The railroads do not want the two-cent bill or the car shortage bill, or the reciprocal demurrage bill passed. The binder twine trust does not want the state to establish a twine plant at Jackson so that the farmers can buy their twine about two cents a pound cheaper and incidentally give employment to the prisoners. Nor do they want Michigan farmers to find a sale for their flax in Michigan. The private bankers, especially that class who use their depositor's money in their private business, do not want the state authorities to investigate their methods of doing business, or throw state supervision around it for the depositor's further protection.

And so these three interests are said to have formed a three-cornered alliance, as has been stated, to fight all three of those measures in which the public is vitally interested.

Governor Warner's only interest in the matter is that he believes these measures are for the benefit of the public and he will use his best endeavor to affect their passage for that purpose because he believes they are right.

Village Election.

The village caucuses will probably be held the first of the week but up to date no candidates appear to be in the field.

The assessorship which pays about $100 a year is about the only real paying office. Charlie Sessions held the office last year and made a good official. If he desired it, he will probably be re-nominated.

No one seems to want to be mayor or councilmen though they should all be re-nominated. At the caucuses, however, there will probably be a cropping out of good material as yet unthought of.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to express our gratitude to the neighbors and friends who so kindly assisted us during our late bereavement, also the choir for their music.

RICHMOND SHAW AND FAMILY.

Presbyterian Church Notes.

(By the Pastor.)

The pastor attended the funeral of Mrs. Julia A. Shaw, who lived west of Novi, Tuesday afternoon.

The sermon next Sunday evening will be appropriate to the centennial anniversary of Longfellow's birth. The members of the Ladies' Club, Ladies' Library Association, Winter Night Club and the village school teachers have been especially invited to attend.

Baptist Church Notes.

(By a Member.)

The Young People's society have engaged the Swiss Bell Ringers to give an entertainment April 6th.

The subject of the sermon Sunday morning will be "Beginning of John's Message to the Seven Churches."

The B. Y. P. U. are to have a Measuring social at the home of Walter Evans next Wednesday evening.

The Woman's Missionary society will meet with Mrs. J. B. Cook next Wednesday afternoon. It is hoped there will be a good attendance.

The B. Y. P. U. business meeting which was to have been held at the home of Miss Edith Webster next Wednesday evening, has been postponed for one week.

Methodist Church Notes.

(By the Pastor.)

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered next Sunday morning. Love-Feast service will begin at 9.15.

The Rev. E. E. Castor, D. D. will occupy the pulpit next Sunday evening. Rev. Castor is one of the prominent men of our church. All who can will do well to hear him.

The birthday thimble party, under the direction of the Ladies' Aid society, held in Wm. Ambler's hall Tuesday proved to be a splendid success. The ladies had matters well arranged and all appeared to enjoy themselves.

A Jubilee social will be held in the parsonage on Wednesday evening next. Refreshments will be served and a fine literary program will be rendered. Considerable effort is being made to make this a very pleasant and enjoyable evening. Social will begin at 7.30. Admission fifteen cents. Everyone made welcome.

The pastor wishes to here give expression to his feelings of thankfulness to the many friends, who, during his illness, manifested in various ways their interest in him. To be so thought of at such a time implants in the memory something that can never be forgotten. He feels like writing all a personal letter of gratitude but instead asks that all who so kindly remembered him will accept this manner of expression. Although given in a more public way it is heartfelt and is intended to convey all that a private and personal letter would do.

RESUME OF THAW TRIAL

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw broke down and wept when District Attorney Jerome made her confess that her relations with White continued for several months, and drew from her other admissions damaging to her own character. It was intimated that Jerome would have Mrs. Thaw indicted.

Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw entered upon the ordeal of her cross-examination, and before District Attorney Jerome had had the witness in charge for half an hour he had secured from the court a ruling which opens the way for bringing into the trial of evidence which may tend to discredit the defendant's wife. This will be introduced to disprove the truth of the story she told Thaw. Mr. Jerome brought out that in 1902 some one gave Mrs. Thaw $25 a week, and that she wrote to White from Boulogne after Thaw had proposed to her.

Reports that District Attorney Jerome would ask for the appointment of a lunacy commission to examine Harry K. Thaw and that Mrs. William Thaw, his mother, had given her consent to that course, worried the defendant in the murder trial.

Mrs. Evelyn Thaw had a comparatively easy day on the witness stand and made two gains for her husband's case. She said Thaw would not let her spend any of White's money, when they were abroad together, and that the cablegrams to White from London were not about her, but about a man who had insulted her mother. Mr. Jerome announced that his cross-examination was nearly over.

CONGRESSIONAL NEWS

A heated controversy which at one time seemed to threaten a personal encounter between Mr. Macon of Arkansas and Mr. Fitzgerald of New York, occurred on the floor of the house when the house had under consideration the post office appropriation bill.

It was conceded by senators in charge of the agricultural appropriation bill in the senate that the grazing lease provision would be eliminated from the bill on a point of order.

The house condemned the doings of the interior department's special agents and limited their power by restricting the use of the $25,000 appropriation for their salaries.

Senator Elkins filed in the senate his minority report on the railroad rate-law, it being a comprehensive history of the economic development of American railroads.

The house adopted an amendment to the sundry civil bill providing that no bar or canteen where intoxicating liquor is sold shall be maintained in the old soldiers' homes.

Ship subsidy secured a marked impetus in the house, which just before adjournment adopted a rule that will probably insure the passage by the house of the Listerer substitute for the senate bill, and result before the final adjournment in positive legislation.

MISCELLANEOUS

The reported theft of $173,000 from the Chicago sub-treasurer, was surrounded with mystery. The officials believed they knew the culprits.

SIDE LIGHTS ON MICHIGAN

NEW SCHEME TO PROVIDE WORK FOR CONVICTS IS NOW CONSIDERED.

TO-FIGHT TRUST GOODS.

Breaking Stone Not Feasible, But Cordage is in the Opinion of Some Students of the Problem.

Work for Convicts.

It is proposed to use the powers of the state of Michigan to fight such of the trusts as monopolize certain lines of trade and charge the people of the state exorbitant prices for their wares. Members of the legislature who have the scheme in mind do not express it that way, however. They say it is necessary to provide work for the convicts in the penal institutions, and they believe the convicts should manufacture goods now sold in the state only by some trust.

In the reorganization of the prison system of the state, which has been made necessary by the recent interpretation of the constitution by the supreme court, some legislators favor abolishing the contract system and manufacturing goods on the state's account. There is no reason, it is declared, why the prisons of the state should not be self-supporting, and now is the time to provide for turning them into manufacturing plants. The plan of selling the fabric of the prisoners was inaugurated years ago, because people in those days objected to the state entering business, the socialistic features of such a scheme being more unpopular then than now.

Aside from the leading twine plant, it is suggested that a general cordage manufacturing plant might be established. Rope is manufactured by a trust. Another industry proposed is that of making grain bags. The sacks are made by one of the big trusts, and it is said that one western state now has a grain bag plant, which turns a large sum annually into the state treasury and sells its product to the farmers at prices away below those of the trust.

It is proposed to inaugurate a hunt for trust manufactured goods, which the state may fight by means of its state prisons. In adopting this plan the claim is made that the labor interests of the state would not be in opposition.

The present situation is said to be serious. There is danger that all work may be taken away from the convicts. Generally, there is objection to the plan to use the men in the penal institutions to break stone, and the members say it is impractical in Michigan.

The Courter Case.

"I don't need a chemist's report to prove to me that Albert Courter died from poison," said Dr. L. E. Bracy, who attended him. "I am already positive from the condition of the organs that is the case. As to, I am confident that, while a large dose might have killed him he had long taken poison in small quantities into his system."

It is said Mrs. Courter, of Sheridan, who is charged with her husband's murder, was familiar with the use of opiates. Since a surgical operation was performed upon her three years ago she is said to have used cocaine and morphine extensively.

As many as eighteen headache pills a day are said to have been taken by her when she did not have morphine or cocaine. Arsenic is also believed to have formed a part of her opiate diet.

It is reported that relatives have said Mrs. Courter has acted strangely of late, indicating insanity.

Shot at the Brakeman.

Ejected from a Grand Trunk freight train, John Cole fired four times at the brakeman. None of the shots took effect.

Cole and William Maul boarded the train and were discovered near the Home for Feeble Minded, one and one-half miles west. After they were thrown off, Cole fired at the brakeman.

When the train arrived at Elba, the first station west, the brakeman telephoned Sheriff Conley, who started in his buggy. Deputy Sheriff Elliott was sent up the track. Conley ran across the fields and captured the men. Both demed riding and also said they did not fire any shots.

Conley pinned Cole's arms behind him and threw him to the ground. He found the revolver and then Cole confessed, it is said. The men were put off a train two weeks ago and Cole used his revolver in a spirit of revenge.

The brakeman will return Monday and make complaint against the men.

The McMillan Funeral.

With a simplicity more impressive than pomp and ceremony, all that was mortal of William C. McMillan, of Detroit, was laid to rest Saturday afternoon.

No words of eulogy were necessary to remind those gathered beside the bier of the achievements and high character of the deceased.

The presence of such a distinguished body of mourners was a more convincing and sincere testimonial than could have been voiced by the most eloquent of men.

A scheme to build a township high school at Alamo is under way. If it carries the pupils from every district will be taken to school in carriages.

William and Charles Draves, of Cleveland, O., have been in Midland during the past week testing the quality of Midland county sand, with a view of establishing a glass works. In an interview William expressed the opinion that the sand was good for the purpose.

Fish fry—myriads of them—exist in a drinking water well near the Quaker Shade Roller Co.'s factory in Saginaw, and come to the surface in such quantities that they are scooped out and used as chicken feed, according to people in that neighborhood. It is thought they get in the well from some underground stream.

A Funeral Sensation.

"The men took his money whenever he had any and when he had none kicked him out in the street. Now to gloss over their hellish work they are sending these beautiful flowers."

This statement by Rev. E. McFarlane, of Caledonia, who officiated at the funeral of Bert Gibbs on Sunday, caused a sensation in Byron Center.

Gibbs was a well known character about town, regarded as a good fellow, but too fond of drink. Among the floral offerings at his funeral was a pillow, sent by a number of business men, two saloon men joining in the subscription.

"I guess Mr. McFarlane thought the saloon men bought them alone," said one of the donors. "They didn't, though. Bert had many friends outside the saloon business."

McFarlane says, "I have no apologies to make. I said only what I thought was right."

Stabbed His Teacher.

Leonard McMullen, aged 22, school teacher in District No. 6, known as Stewell's Corners, near Dundee, is confined to his bed with three stab wounds inflicted by Paul Stowell, a pupil aged 15, and which almost caused his death from loss of blood. According to the teacher's story he had requested young Stowell to do some work over, as it was not satisfactory. The second time it was no better than the first, and McMullen ordered the boy to remain during the noon hour and do the task properly.

The lad remained in his seat, but suddenly refused to work and sat sharpening his pencil as the teacher approached. After speaking to him and receiving no reply, McMullen grabbed young Stowell and jerked him from his seat, when the boy turned and slashed savagely with his penknife.

Five Old Settlers.

The remains of five old settlers of Grand Rapids and vicinity, all of whom have lived in Kent county more than 50 years, lay awaiting burial Monday. Mrs. Barbara Paas, aged 100; Simon Vanderhof, aged 87; Joseph W. Allen, aged 80; Mrs. Sarah A. White, aged 77; John McIntyre, aged 75. The average age of these old residents is 82 years.

Making Quarters, Tens.

The authorities have discovered a scheme to defraud the public in the upper peninsula by washing quarters with gold and passing them as $10 gold pieces. They were first noticed by a bank, but so close is the resemblance that the average person will take them without examination. These pieces have been circulated at stations along the railroads, it is said.

An Epidemic.

The fact has leaked out that Battle Creek has been fighting an epidemic of measles and smallpox for a week and has won. Two deaths resulted from measles, but none from smallpox. Eighty subjects of the latter were examined, four being found in the pest house. Both epidemics are now disappearing and the danger is over.

Kemp Acts Queer.

Either Bert Kemp is insane or doing his best to make the police believe he is. Kemp is the man under arrest and in jail in Port Huron charged with the death of his day-old babe, found drowned in the river, weighed down with iron. One of Kemp's latest stunts is to hug a fellow prisoner, and then turn on him and knock him down.

Broke His Neck.

Harry Ruggles, aged 9, of Montrose, fell from a butcher's scaffold while playing circus with several companions, striking on his head on the frozen ground. His mother saw the accident and rushed to him, picking him up in her arms as he breathed for the last time. His neck was broken.

MICHIGAN BREVITIES.

The first maple sugar of the season made from sap gathered during the recent warm spell, has been brought to St. Joseph by Joseph Omweg.

Cement City is in the throes of a grip and pneumonia epidemic and Dr. Wm. Hyndman says that he has been called to every home in the village, but seven double funerals was held last week for Charles Allen and his mother, Mrs. Burns.

There have been a greater number of deaths in the Thumb from blood poisoning this year than ever before. Sebawing, Huron county, has another victim from this disease—Anabel Grille, aged 17 years, is dead at her home in that place, as the result of it.

When Oscar Phelps, of Lansing, returned from work he found his little two-and-a-half-year-old baby asleep in its bed and a note from his wife saying she did not love him enough to live with him, and she had gone. The police have been asked to locate her.

What is conceded to be the finest Odd Fellows' temple in upper Michigan has just been dedicated in Boyne by Grand Master of the State Lodge Fred Rogers. A big crowd of delegates to assist in the ceremonies came from a number of cities. The temple cost $15,000 and is of cement, three stories high.

The mysterious and still unfathomed murder of Lloyd Dynes, formerly of Windsor, Ont., telegraph operator at Gallen, Mich., is recalled by the marriage in Laporte, Ind., of Wm. H. Smith and Cora F. Swank, of Berrien county. Both were arrested and kept in jail for some time on suspicion, and the developments resulted in Swank divorcing his wife.

Warden Russell's report for Marquette prison shows that there are 310 convicts confined there, 10 more than last year; 29 are lifers. There has not been an escape in two years.

The pictorial presentation of a stabling scene on the bill boards of Battle Creek was more than the officials could stand, and the Post theater people were ordered to cover the pictures with blank paper.

Frank R. Roys, of Grand Rapids, a hostler was killed by a Pere Marquette train while on his way home to dinner. His wife and two children waited for him some time before they learned of his death.

REDUCE FARES.

The State Legislatures of Seven States Make It Two Cents.

The question of a two-cent-a-mile passenger fare on railroads continued to hold chief attention in the legislatures of the states of the middle west and south during the last week in seven states a reduced rate is assured. They are: Alabama, Arkansas, Indiana, Mississippi, Nebraska, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

In Alabama and Wisconsin the rate was made two and one-half cents. In seven other states a two-cent fare bill is pending. They are—

Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Pennsylvania and North Carolina.

Indiana is the latest state to join the two-cent column, the senate last Friday having passed the amended house bill. As amended the measure provides for a two and one-half cent fare when no ticket is bought. The extra money, however, will be refunded on any ticket office of the road. The bill now goes to Gov. Hanly for signature.

So strong is the sentiment in Minnesota that the bill was railroaded through the lower house at one sitting, only one vote being recorded against it. The senate has still to act on the bill.

In Illinois a two-cent fare bill has been introduced in the lower house and advanced to second reading. The measure passed by the Iowa house has been reported in the senate and will be taken up this week. It is said there is little doubt of its passage. Railroads are fighting it tooth and nail.

In Wisconsin the state railroad commission has taken the matter out of the hands of the legislature. Last Tuesday the commission gave a decision ordering a reduction in passenger fares from 3 cents a mile to 2½ cents.

W. J. Barnard, of Paw Paw, has been ordered by the supreme court to show cause why he should not be expelled from the legal bar. He is charged with deceiving the court in various ways.

THE MARKETS.

Detroit—Butchers are well stocked with beef, which, on account of Lent, is going very slow. Common thin cattle, with little fat, that sell from $3 to $3.50 per hundred, were full steady with last week, as were bulls, stockers and feeders. All other grades were from 10c to 15c lower than last Thursday. Extra dry-fed steers and heifers, $4.25 to $4.50; choice steers and heifers, $4.50 to $4.75; good steers and heifers, $4.00 to $4.25; fair steers and heifers, $3.75 to $4.00; poor steers and heifers, $3.50 to $3.75; choice fat cows, $3.50 to $4.00; good fat cows, $3.25 to $3.50; common cows, $3.00 to $3.25; poor cows, $2.75 to $3.00; choice hogs, $4.25 to $4.50; good hogs, $4.00 to $4.25; fair hogs, $3.75 to $4.00; poor hogs, $3.50 to $3.75; choice pigs, $4.25 to $4.50; good pigs, $4.00 to $4.25; fair pigs, $3.75 to $4.00; poor pigs, $3.50 to $3.75.

The veal calf trade was steady with good ones bringing $8 per hundred. Veal calves, best grades, $7.50 to $8.00; medium, $6.50 to $7.00; poor, $5.50 to $6.00. Sheep—In the market the trade was steady with last week and the $7.35 was paid for top lambs at the close. All other grades were from $6.00 to $7.00. Light to medium lambs, $6.75 to $7.00; fair to good lambs, $6.50 to $6.75; light to medium lambs, $6.25 to $6.50; fair to good lambs, $6.00 to $6.25; poor lambs, $5.75 to $6.00. Hogs—In the hog yards prices were from 5c to 10c lower than last week. A few choice grades brought $7.00 but the bulk of the sales were made at $6.50 to $7.00. Light to good hogs, $6.75 to $7.00; fair to good hogs,

She gazed at me without flinching. "And I suppose," she said satirically, "you wonder why I—why you are repellent to me. Haven't you learned that, though I may have been made in a moral coward, I'm not a physical coward? Don't bully and threaten. It's useless."

I put my hand strongly on her shoulder—taunts and jeers do not turn me aside. "What did you mean?" I repeated.

"Take your hand off me," she commanded.

"What did you mean?" I repeated sternly. "Don't be afraid to answer."

She was very young—so the taunt stung her. "I was about to tell you," said she, "when you began to make impossible."

I took advantage of this to extricate myself from the awkward position in which she had put me—I took my hand from her shoulder.

"I am going to leave," she announced.

"You forgot that you are my wife," said I.

"I am not your wife," was her answer, and if she had not looked so childlike, there in the moonlight, all in white, I could not have held myself in check, so insolent was the tone and so helpless of ever being able to win. "Did she make me feel?"

"You are my wife and you will stay here with me," I reiterated, my brain on fire.

"I am my own, and I shall go where I please, and do what I please," was her contemptuous retort. "Why won't you be reasonable?" "Why won't you see how utterly unsuited we are?" I don't ask you to be a gentleman—but just a man, and be ashamed even to wish to detain a woman against her will."

I drew up a chair so close to her that to retreat, she was forced to sit the broad window seat. Then I stated myself "By all means, let me be reasonable," said I. "Now, let me explain my position. I have heard you and your friends discussing the views of marriage you've just been expressing. Their views may be right maybe more civilized, more advanced than mine. No matter—they are not mine. I hold by the old standards—and you are my wife—mine. Do you understand?" All this as tranquilly as if we were discussing fair weather. "And you will live up to the obligation which the marriage service has put upon you?" "You might have been a marble statue, pedestaled in that window seat."

You married me of your own free will—for you could have protested to the preacher and he would have sustained you. You tacitly put certain conditions on our marriage. I assented to them. I have respected them. I shall continue to respect them. But when you married me, you didn't marry a dawdling dude chattering advanced ideas with his head full of libertinism. You married a man and that man is your husband."

I waited but she made no comment, not even by gesture or movement. She simply sat, her hands interlaced, her lap, her eyes straight upon me.

"You say let us be reasonable," I went on. "Well, let us be reasonable. There may come a time when woman can be free and independent, but that time is a long way off yet. The world is organized on the basis of every woman's having a protector—of every decent woman's having a husband, unless she remains in the arms of some of her blood-relations. There may be women strong enough to set the world at defiance. But you are not one of them—and you know it. You have shown it to yourself again and again in the last forty-eight hours. Your bringing-up has kept you a child, real knowledge of real life, as distinguished from life in that fashionable hot-house. If you tried to assert your so-called independence, you would be the easy prey of a scoundrel or scoundrels. When I, who have lived in the thick of the fight all my life, and have learned by many a success and defeat never to sleep easy with the sword and gun in hand, I close my eyes when I have been slapped as Roebuck and Langdon have just slapped me—what chance would a woman like you have?"

She did not answer or change expression.

"Is what I say reasonable or unreasonable?" I asked gently.

"Reasonable—from your standpoint," she said.

She gazed out into the moonlight, into the sky. And at the look in her face, the primeval savage in me began to close round that slender throat of hers and crush and crush.

THE PRIMEVAL SAVAGE IN ME STRAINED TO CLOSE ROUND THAT SLENDER WHITE THROAT AND CRUSH AND CRUSH.

tempt them. Thus, I was forced to conclude that I must possess a strength of which I was unaware, and which stirred even Roebuck's fears. But what could it be?

Besides Langdon and Roebuck and me there were six principals in the proposed coal combine, three of them richer and more influential in finance than even Langdon, all of them except possibly Dykeman, the lawyer, or navigating officer of the combine, more formidable figures than I. Yet none of these men was being assailed.

"Why am I singled out?" I asked myself, and I felt that if I could answer, I should find I had the means wholly or partly to defeat them. But I could not explain to my satisfaction even Langdon's activities against me. I felt that Anita was somehow, in part at least, the cause; but even so, how had he succeeded in convincing Roebuck that I must be clipped and plucked into a groundling?

"It must have something to do with the Manasquale mines," I decided. "I thought I had given over my control of them, but somehow I must still have a control that makes me too powerful for Roebuck to be at ease so long as I am afoot and armed." And I resolved to take my lawyers and search the whole Manasquale transaction—to explore it from attic to underneath the cellar flooring.

"We'll go through it," said I, "like ferrets through a ship's hold." As I was finishing breakfast, Anita came in. She had evidently slept well, and I regarded that as ominous. At her age, a crisis means little sleep until a decision has been reached. I rose, but her manner warned me not to advance and try to shake hands with her.

"Yes," she answered "As before." I ignored this. "Think it over, Anita," I urged—she seemed to me so like a sweet, spoiled child again. I longed to go straight at her about that other man. I stood for a moment with Tom Langdon's name on my lips, but I could not trust myself. I went away to my own rooms.

I thrust thoughts of her from my mind. I spent the night gawping upon the ropes with which Mowbray Langdon and Roebuck had bound me, hand and foot. I now say they were ropes of steel—and it had long been broad day before I found that weak strand which is in every rope of human make.

XXV.
THE WEAK STRAND.

No sane creature, not even a sane bulldog, will fight simply from love of fighting. When a man is attacked, he may be sure he has excited either fear or cupidity, or both. As far as I could see, it was absurd that cupidity was inciting Langdon and Roebuck against me. I hadn't enough to rather the beginning of a fight. They were released into a huge iron cage. After circling it several times in the same direction, searching for a way out, they came face to face. The bull tossed the tiger, the tiger clawed the bull. The bull roared, the tiger screamed. Each retreated to his own side of the cage. The bull pawed and snorted as if he could hardly wait to get at the tiger; the tiger crouched and quivered and glared murderously, as if he were going instantly to spring upon the bull. But the bull did not rush, neither did the tiger spring. That was the Roebuck-Galloway situation.

How to bait Tiger Galloway to attack Bull Roebuck—that was the problem I must solve, and solve straightway. If I could bring about war between the giants, spreading confusion over the whole field of finance and filling all men with dread and fear, there was a chance, that in the confusion I might bear off part of my fortune. Certainly, conditions would result in which I could more easily get myself entrenched again; then, too, there would be a by no means small satisfaction in seeing Roebuck clawed and bitten in punishment for having plotted against me.

Mutual fear had kept these two at peace for five years, and most considerate and polite about each other's rights. But while our country's industrial territory is vast, the interests of the few great controllers who determine wages and prices for all are equally vast, and each plutocrat is tormented incessantly by jealousy and suspicion; not a day passes without conflicts of interest that admit of diplomacy could turn into ferocious warfare. And in this matter of mo-polizing the coal, despite Roebuck's earnest assurances to Galloway that the combine was purely defensive, and was really concerned only with the labor question, Galloway, a great manufacturer, or, rather, a huge lever of the taxes of dividends and interest upon manufacturing enterprises, could not but be uneasy.

Before I lost that morning I had a tentative plan for stirring him to action. I was elaborating it on the way down town in my electric. It shows how badly Anita was crippling my brain, that not until I was almost at my office did it occur to me. That was a tremendous luxury Roebuck indulged his conscience in last night. It isn't like him to forewarn a man, even when he's sure he can't escape. Though his prayers were not in his mouth, still, it's strange he didn't try to fool me. In fact, it's suspicious. In fact—

Suspicious? The instant the idea was fairly before my mind, I knew I had let his cunning fool me once more. I entered my offices, feeling that the blow had already fallen, and I was surprised, but not relieved, when I found everything calm. "But fall it will within an hour or so—before I can move to avert it," said I to myself.

And fall it did. At eleven o'clock, just as I was setting out to make my first move toward heating old Galloway's heels for the war-path, Joe came in with the news. "A general lock-out's declared in the coal regions. The operators have stolen a march on the men who, so they allege, were secretly getting ready to strike. By night every coal road will be tied up and ever, mine shut down."

Joe knew our coal interests were heavy, but he did not dream his news meant that before the day was over we would be bankrupt and not able to pay fifteen-cents on the dollar. However, he knew enough to throw him into a fever of fright. He watched my calmness with terror. "Coal stocks are dropping like a thermometer in a cold wave," he said, like a fireman at a sleeper in a burning house.

"Naturally," said I, unafflicted, apparently. "What can we do about it?" "We must do something!" he exclaimed.

"Yes we must," I admitted. "For instance, we must keep cool, especially when two or three dozen people are watching us. Also, you must attend to your usual routine."

"What are you going to do?" he cried. "For God's sake, Matt, don't keep me in suspense!"

"Go to your desk," I commanded. And he quitted down and went. I hadn't been schooling him in the fire-drill for fifteen years in vain.

I went up the street and into the great banking and brokerage house of Galloway and Company. I made my way through the small army of guards, behind which the old beast of prey was entrenched and into his private den. There he sat, at a small, plain table, in the middle of the room with out any article of furniture in it but his table and his chair. On the table was a small inkstand, perfectly clean, a steel pen equally clean on the left attached to it. And that was all—not a letter, not a scrap of paper, not a sign of work or of intention to work. It might have been the desk of a man who did nothing, in fact, it was the desk of a man who had so much to do that his only hope of escape from being overwhelmed was to despatch and clear away each matter the instant it was presented to him. Many things could be read from the powerful form, bolt upright in that stiff chair, and from the cynical, masterful old face. But to me the chief quality there revealed was that quality of qualities, decision—the greatest power a man can have, except only courage. And old James (a) way had both.

He pierced me with his blue eyes, keen as a youth's, though his face was seamed with scars of seventy tumultuous years. He extended toward me over the table his broad, stubby white hand—the hand of a builder, of a constructive genius. "How are you, Blacklock?" said he. "What can I do for you?" He just touched my hand before dropping it, and resumed that idle pose. But although there was only repose and deliberation in his manner, and not a suggestion of haste, I, like every one who came into that room and that presence, had a sense of an interminable procession behind me, a procession of men who must be seen by this master-mover that they might submit important and pressing affairs to him for decision. It was unnecessary for him to tell any one to be brief and pointed.

"I shall have to go to the wall today," said I, taking a paper from my pocket, "unless you save me. Here is a statement of my assets and liabilities. I call to your attention my Coal holdings. I was one of the eight men whom Roebuck got round him for the new combine—it is a secret, but I assume you know all about it."

He laid the paper before him, put on his nose-glasses and looked at it. (To be Continued.)

Didn't Hurt.

"The ladies of our congregation," said the minister's little boy, "are very fond of me. A good many of 'em gave me some slippers on his birthday."

"I thought your pa always used a slipper to spank you with."

"That's just it. The slippers the ladies gave him are the soft kind that's made out of wool."

EVERY DAY A NEW ONE.

Forget Errors of Yesterday in the Possibilities of To-day.

Here is a pretty bit of optimistic philosophy, inspired by so ordinary an occurrence as the daily sunrise:

"Did you know the sun rose every morning? There are many persons who do not know this important fact, or, if they do know, they do not act accordingly. These persons carry yesterday's burdens and successes and failures. The failures of yesterday should be forgotten, because they dishearten us for to-day. The successes of yesterday should not be remembered, because they will weigh against the larger possible successes of to-day. The burdens of yesterday should have been buried yesterday. That is one meaning of the sunrise. It shuts off yesterday. The sun rises as fair and bright and new this morning as though it had not risen anew every morning of these 6,000 years. It brings a new day with new opportunities. Yesterday is shut off from to-day by the curtain of the night and the sun rises in the morning to usher in the new day. There are men in this town who are gray with the burdens of yesterday when they might be buoyant with the brightness of to-day's dawn. They have forgotten that the sun has risen."

Parting at the Station.

Those who listened as the man and woman parted at the station heard this conversation:

"Goodby, dear."

"Goodby. Don't forget to tell Bridget to have the chops for dinner."

"All right."

"And be sure and feed the canary."

"Sure."

"Lock up the silver every night."

"Very well."

"And don't forget that the gasman is coming to renew the burners. Be sure and have him put the four foot burner in the servant's room."

"I'll remember."

"Order kindling wood on Wednesday."

"All right."

"Consult the list I made out if you forget anything."

"I will."

"Better not kiss me. People will think we are just married."

"Not if they have been listening."

Dentist's Shrewd Scheme.

A Lawrence dentist, according to the Kansas City Journal, has discovered a scheme for making his patients keep their mouths open. Almost every one has seen the picture which is rivaling "The Whole Dam Family," and is called "A Yard of Yawns." The picture is a yard long, containing the pictures of a whole family, each member of which, from great-grandmother to the baby, is yawning violently. Yawning, as many people know to their sorrow, is violently contagious, and one person yawning has often set a roomful of people to yawning. The dentist simply has the picture hanging in view of the dental chair, and he says that all of his patients are constantly yawning.

An Opportunity Slighted.

"Why don't you buy stock in that company?"

"It doesn't seem to me that the men running it have good business judgment. They say that in a month the price of the stock will be double."

"Yes?"

"Well, why don't they wait a month before selling it to me?"

PACKED TO BE STOLEN.

Old Man Had Fixed Up for Thieves and Had Repose Coming.

At midnight the other night I got a dig in the ribs and woke up to hear Mary saying:

"Husband, get up at once, or we shall have our throats cut."

"Have you discovered anyone in the room with a butcher knife?" I asked.

"No, but there's an awful racket in the back yard."

"Well?"

"Well, who knows who is around and what they are stealing? Get right up and let 'em know you are at home."

"My dear woman, let's look at this thing from the other point of view. No person in our back yard is up here in our bedroom. Consequently, our throats are safe. It is a well known fact that I am always home o' nights, and no one will figure that this night is an exception. As to the identity of the marauders, what is it to us whether they are named Smith or Jones?"

"But do you want to be robbed?" persisted my good wife.

"I do not. No man does. I hear a barrel being softly rolled over the snow. That barrel contains a dead cat and a lot of old shoes and rubbers. I headed it up this afternoon and left it to be stolen. If not stolen it will cost me 15 cents to have it carted away. Mary, seek thy revenge. We have saved 15 cents in cold cash, the thief has worked up a surprise party on himself, and there is yet time to indulge in our full amount of sleep and wake up in the morning and be glad we are living."—Washington Post.

Michigan Binder Twine for Michigan Farmers.

Governor Warner's effort in behalf of the establishment of a binder-twine plant in the state prison at Jackson deserves to succeed. The success of such a plant at Jackson will assist in the solution of some long-standing problems in prison management and it will be of further value to the state through the lower price than now prevails at which the binder-twine product of the prison plant can be sold to the Michigan farmers who are the largest users of binder-twine. Opposition to this view of the matter, however, is said to come from a well-organized binding twine trust. Whatever rights and privileges may properly belong to the trust should be as fully conceded, of course, as to any other producer but it will hardly be claimed or conceded that an organization which is only interested in the people of Michigan as present and prospective customers should be given any deciding voice in a matter affecting only our own state and that seems to be desirable for our own people. The members of the state legislature can be assured, if further assurance is necessary, that whatever can be lawfully done in the way of establishing a binder-twine plant in the Jackson prison as promptly as possible will be approved by their constituents.

Money in Beet Sugar.

The statement that the St. Louis sugar company paid out $295,000 to the farmers of Gratiot county and in that vicinity, during the beet-buying season recently closed, is a further item of information indicating the importance and value to Michigan farmers of sugar beet production and of the beet sugar making industry to our state. It has been estimated that not less than $3,750,000 was paid out to the farmers of the state by all the Michigan factories during the past season. It is not to be wondered at that Michigan congressmen and Michigan business men are aggressively interested in all legislation which threatens in any way to interfere with the continued development of this important state industry.

Diekema Will Run.

The candidacy of Hon. G. J. Diekema for congress, to succeed William Alden Smith as the representative of the fifth district, is a matter for discussion and decision primarily, perhaps, by the republicans of that district, but Mr. Diekema's candidacy is an incident in which republicans in all sections of the state will be favorably interested. As chairman of the republican state central committee during the past six or eight years Mr. Diekema has gained an acquaintance with the people of Michigan and with the needs and peculiarities of the state in various directions which will equip him to give service of value not only to the district he would directly represent but to all the districts and all the people of the state.

Mrs. Celeste Covell.

Recommending Pe-ru-na to Her Friends.

Mrs. Celeste Covell, formerly, President of the Betsy Ross Educational and Benevolent Society, writes from 1432 Harrison street, Chicago, Ill.:

"Only those who have suffered with influenza and have been cured can appreciate how grateful I feel that such a splendid medicine as Peru-na has been placed at the door of every man and woman. I only wish that all knew of its fine qualities.

"In cases of catarrh of the stomach and head I have seen some remarkable cures through its use. I consider your Peru-na the finest remedy on the market and worthy of the confidence of all good people."

Recommends Pe-ru-na.

Mrs. Alice J. Bordner, 1811 Maple Ave., Harrisburg, Pa., writes:

"I have found a cure in Peru-na. I can't recommend Peru-na enough. I also thank you for your kind attention to me. I am as well as could be ever since I began taking Peru-na."

A Letter to the Public.

Mr. Tefft Johnson, 1929 85th-street, Bath Beach, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:

"In all my experiments with medicines in the effort to improve a condition impaired by overwork, I have found nothing that has done so much good as Peru-na. As a tonic it is grand."

Praise For Pe-ru-na.

Miss Ella D. Matthews, box 111, Hill City, Tenn., writes:

"From experience I have decided that there could be no greater medicine in the world than Peru-na. I am ever ready to praise Peru-na to my friends."

Fine Hat Brushes Free

With Men's Hats at $2 up

Whisk Brooms and ordinary Cloth Brushes should not be used on men's hats; they spoil the shape and roughen the felt. Haven't you noticed that this is so? Now, you can have a fine Hat Brush FOR NOTHING. Buy a Hat here for $2 or more and with it we will give you a brush, an ebony finished, long curved handle brush, shaped so that the inside of curled brims as well as crown can be cleaned with a few strokes.

These Brushes Retail at 50c

We make this liberal offer to direct attention to our complete assortment of new spring styles in Men's Hats.

STIFF HATS, Black and Brown, at $1, $1.50, $2, $2.50, $3, and $3.50

SOFT HATS, in Black, Brown, Tan and Light Shades, at $1, $1.50, $2, $2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $5.

We buy Hats direct from the manufacturers and sell at a close margin. It means that our customers get the best possible value for their money. Same quality would cost you anywhere from 50c to $1 more at other stores.

Our Men's Hat department is in a separate building (the Annex), but connected with main store by archway from Men's Furnishings department. There is also an entrance from Monroe ave. This arrangement has been made so that men can buy Hats here without having to go anywhere near the Dry Goods departments, which are always crowded with women.

PHYSICIANS DISAGREE.

Different Opinions on Cooper's Remarkable Success Held by Cincinnati Medical Men.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Feb. 28.—The astonishing sale of Cooper's preparations in this city has now reached such immense figures that the medical fraternity at large have become forced into open discussion of the man and his preparations.

The physicians as a whole seem to be divided with regard to the young man's success in Cincinnati—some being willing to credit him for what he has accomplished, while others assert that the interest he has aroused is but a passing fad which cannot last, and which will die out as quickly as it has sprung up.

The opinion of these two factions is very well voiced in the statements made recently by two of a number of physicians who were interviewed on the subject.

Dr. J. E. Carass when questioned about the matter said: "I have not been a believer in proprietary preparations heretofore nor can I say that I believe in them at present. But I must admit that some of the facts recently brought to my notice concerning this man Cooper have gone far towards removing the prejudice I had formed against him when the unheard of demand for the preparations first sprang up in this city. Numbers of my patients whom I have treated for chronic liver, kidney and stomach troubles have met me after taking Cooper's remedy and have stated positively that he has accomplished wonderful results for them. I notice particularly in cases of stomach trouble that the man has relieved several cases of years standing that proved very obstinate in treatment."

"I am the last man on earth to stand in the way of anything that may prove for the public good simply through professional prejudice, and I am inclined to give Cooper and his preparations credit as deserving to some extent the popular demonstration that has been accorded them in this city."

Another well known physician who was seen took the opposite view of the "Cooper mania," as he called it, which now has this city in its grip. He said: "I can only liken the present state of affairs to a certain kind of hallucination. For want of a better name I might call it 'Cooper-mania.' The people of Cincinnati seem to be firm in the belief that this man Cooper has health coked up in a bottle."

"Some of them imagine that he has completely cured them of various ills judging from their statements. It is beyond me to say why the city has gone crazy over the man. It may be safely put down, I think, to one of the passing fads that so often attack the American public."

"Sooner or later the people are bound to regain their senses and will then realize the reputable physician is the one to whom their health had best be entrusted."

In the meantime Cooper meets several thousand people daily, and only smiles when statements of the above character are quoted to him. His charitable work still continues to be very extensive.

THE HOUSE OF A THOUSAND CANDLES

I had no intention of allowing him to see that I was irritated. I drew out my cigarette case and passed it across the table.

"After you! They're made quite especially for me in Madrid."

"You forget that I never use tobacco in any form."

"You always did miss a good deal of the joy of living," I observed, throwing my smoking match into his waste-paper basket, to his obvious annoyance. "Well, I'm the bad boy of the family; but I'm really sorry my inheritance has a string tied to it. I'm about out of money. I suppose you wouldn't advance me a few thousands as my expectation."

"Not a cent," he declared, with quite unnecessary vigor; and I laughed again, remembering that in my old appraisal of him generosity had not been represented in large figures. "It's not in keeping with your grandfather's wishes that I should do so. You must have spent a good bit of money in your tiger hunting exploits," he added.

"I have spent all I had," I replied calmly. "Thank God, I'm not a clam! I've seen the world and paid for it, and I ask nothing of you. You undoubtedly share my grandfather's idea of me, that I'm a wild man who can't sit still or lead an orderly, decent life. I'm going to give you a terrible disappointment. What's the size of the estate?"

Pickering eyed me uneasily. "I thought—and began playing with a pencil—I never liked Pickering's hands; they were thick and white and better kept than I like to see a man's hands."

"I fear it's going to be disappointing. In his trust-company boxes here I have been able to find only about 'en thousand dollars' worth of securities. Possibly—quite possibly—we were all deceived in the amount of his fortune. Sister Theresa wheedled large sums out of him and he spent, as you will see, a small fortune on the house at Annandale without finishing it. It wasn't a cheap proposition, and in its unfinished condition it is practically valueless. You must know that Mr. Glenarm gave away a great deal of money in his lifetime. Moreover, he established your father. You know what he left—it was not a small fortune as those things are reckoned."

I was restless under this recital. My father's estate had been of respectable size, and I had dissipated the whole of it. My conscience pricked me as I recalled an item of $10,000 that I had spent—somewhere grandly—on an expedition that I led with considerable satisfaction to myself, at least, through the Sudan. But Pickering's words amazed me.

"Let me understand you," I said, bending toward him. "My grandfather was supposed to be rich, and yet you tell me you find little property. Sister Theresa got money from him to help build a school. How much was that?"

"Fifty thousand dollars. It was an open account. His books show the advances but he took no notes."

"And that claim is worth—"

"It is good as against her individually. But she contends—"

"Yes, go on!"

I had struck the right note. He was annoyed by my persistence and his apparent discomfort pleased me.

"She refuses to pay. She says, Mr. Glenarm made her a gift of the money."

"That's possible, isn't it? He was forever making gifts to churches. Schools and theological seminaries were a sort of weakness with him."

"Well, pass that. If you get this money the estate is worth $50,000, plus the value of the land out there at Annandale, and Glenarm House is worth—"

"There you have me!"

It was the first lightness he had shown, and it put me on guard.

"I should like an idea of its value. Even an unfinished house is worth something."

"Land out there is worth from $100 to $150 an acre. There's an even hundred acres. I'll be glad to have your appraisal of the house when you get there."

"Humph! You flatter my judgment, Pickering. The loose stuff there is worth how much?"

"It's all in the library. Your grandfather's weakness was architecture—"

"So I remember!" I interposed, recalling my stormy interviews with John Marshall Glenarm over my choice of a profession.

"In his last years he turned more and more to his books. He placed out there what is, I suppose, the finest collection of books relating to architecture to be found in this country. That was his chief hobby, after church affairs, as you may remember, and he made it hard. But he derived a great deal of satisfaction from his studies."

I laughed again; it was easier to laugh than to cry over the situation.

"I suppose he wanted me to sit down there, surrounded by works on architecture, with the idea that a study of the subject would be my only resource. The scheme is eminently Glenarmian! And all I get is a worthless house, a hundred acres of land, $10,000, and a doubtful claim against a Protestant nun who hoodwinked my grandfather into setting up a school for her. Bless you heart, man, so far as my inheritance is concerned it would have been money in my pocket to have stayed in Africa."

"That's about the size of it."

"But the personal property is all mine—anything that's loose on the place. Perhaps my grandfather planted old plate and government bonds just to nuke the curiosity of his heirs, successors, and assigns. It would be in keeping!"

I had walked to the window and looked out across the city. As I turned suddenly I found Pickering's eye bent upon me with curious intentness.

I had never liked his eyes; they were too steady. When a man always meets you gaze tranquilly and readily, it is just as well to be wary of him.

"Yes; no doubt you will find the place literally packed with treasure," he said, and laughed. "When you find anything you might wire me."

He smiled, the idea seemed to give him pleasure.

"Are you sure there's nothing else?" I asked. "No substitute, no codicil?"

"If you know of anything of the kind it's your duty to produce it. We have exhausted the possibilities. I'll admit that the provisions of the will are unusual; your grandfather was a peculiar man in many respects; but he was thoroughly sane and his faculties were all sound to the last."

"He treated me a lot better than I deserved," I said, with a heartache that I had not known often in my irresponsible life; but I could not afford to show feeling before Arthur Pickering.

I picked up the copy of the will and examined it. It was undoubtedly authentic; it bore the certificate of the

I was silent after this, looking out toward the sea that had called me since my earliest dreams of the world that lay beyond it.

"It's a poor stake, Glenarm," remarked Pickering consolingly, and I wheeled upon him.

"I suppose you think it a poor stake! I suppose you can't see anything in that old man's life beyond his money; but I don't care a curse what my inheritance is! I never obeyed any of my grandfather's wishes in his lifetime, but now that he's dead his last wish is mandatory. I'm going out there to spend a year if I die for it. Do you get my idea?"

"Humph! You always were a stormy petrel," he sneered. "I fancy it will be safer to keep our most agreeable acquaintance on a strictly business basis. If you accept the terms of the will—"

"Of course I accept them! Do you think I am going to make a row, refuse to fulfill that old man's last wish? I gave him enough trouble in his life without disappointing him in his grave. I suppose you'd like to have me fight the will; but I'm going to disappoint you."

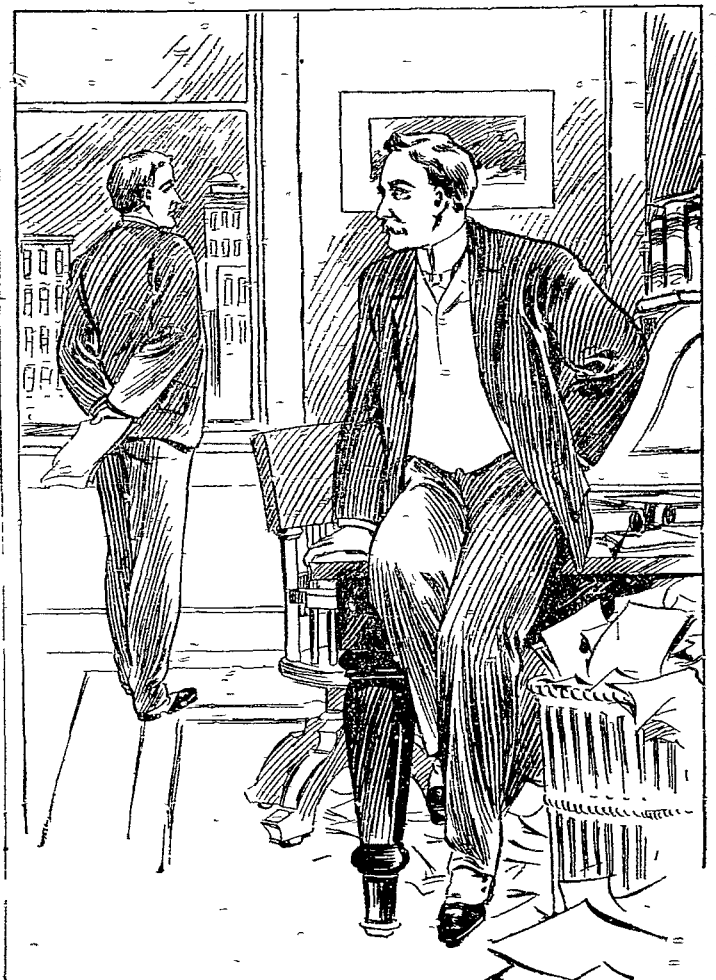

He said nothing, but played with his pencil. I had never disliked him so heartily; he was so smug and comfortable. His office breathed the very spirit of prosperity. I wished to finish my business and get away.

"I suppose the region out there has a high death rate. How's the malaria?"

"Not alarmingly prevalent, I understand. There's a summer resort over on one side of Lake Annandale. The place is really supposed to be whole some. I don't believe your grandfather had homicide in mind in sending you there."

"No, he probably thought the rustication would make a man of me. Must I do my own victualing? I suppose I'm allowed to eat."

"Eates can cook for you. He'll sup-clerk of Wabana county, Indiana. The witnesses were Thomas Bates and Arthur Pickering.

"Who is Bates?" I asked, pointing to the man's signature.

"One of your grandfather's discoveries. He's in charge of the house out there, and a trustworthy fellow. He's a fair cook, among other things. I don't know where Mr. Glenarm got Bates, but he had every confidence in him. The man was with him at the end."

A picture of my grandfather dying, alone with a servant, while I, his only kinsman, wandered in strange lands, was not one that I could contemplate with much satisfaction. My grandfather had been an odd little figure of a man, who always wore a long black coat, silk hat, and carried a curious silver-headed staff, and said puzzling things at which everybody was afraid either to laugh or to cry. The thought of him touched me now. I was glad to feel that his money had never been a lure to me; it did not matter whether his estate was great or small, I could, at least, ease my conscience by obeying the behest of the old man whose name I bore, and whose interest in the finer things of life and art had given him an undeniable distinction.

"I should like to know something of Mr. Glenarm's last days," I said abruptly.

"He wished to visit the village where he was born, an' Bates, his companion and servant, went to Vermont with him. He died quite suddenly, and was buried beside his father in the old village cemetery. I saw him last early in the summer. I was away from home and did not know of his death until it was all over. Bates came to report it to me, and to sign the necessary papers in probating the will. It had to be done in the place of the decedent's residence, and we went together to Wabana, the seat of the county in which Annandale lies."

ply the necessities. I'll instruct him to obey your orders. I assume you'll not have many guests,—in fact," he studied the back of his hand intently,—while that isn't stipulated, I doubt whether it was your grandfather's idea that you should surround yourself—"

"With bounteous companions!" I supplied the words in my cheerfulness tone. "No; my conduct shall be exemplary, Mr. Pickering," I added, with affable irony.

He picked up a single sheet of thin typewritten paper and passed it across the table. It was a formal acquiescence in the provisions of the will. Pickering had prepared it in advance of my coming, and this assumption that I would accept the terms irritated me. Assumptions as to what I should do under given conditions had always annoyed me, and accounted, in a large measure, for my proneness to surprise and disappoint people. Pickering summoned a clerk to witness my signature.

"How soon shall you take possession?" he asked. "I have to make a note of it."

"I shall start for Indiana tomorrow," I answered.

As I rose to go Pickering said: "It will be sufficient if you drop me a line, say once a month, to let me know you are there. The postoffice is Annandale."

"I suppose I might file a supply of postal cards in the village and arrange for the mailing of one every month."

"It might be done that way," he answered evenly.

"We may perhaps meet again, if I don't die of starvation or ennui. Good-by."

FOR THE LUNCHEON

PREPARATIONS THAT GIVE IDEA OF NOVELTY.

Peach-Cocktail Properly Put Together Will Delight the Guests—Fine Combination of Fruits—Ice Cream and Peach Souffle.

In preparing a peach cocktail remember that anything having a cherry flavor will combine well with the flavor of peaches, and either kirsch, maraschino or curacao or any cherry cordial may be used. Place the canned peaches on ice for some hours so that they may become thoroughly chilled. The slices, which should not be too thin, are then cut into smaller cube shaped pieces, and the grain of the fruit will show; add a little sugar to the fruit, sprinkling it thoroughly from a sieve, and tossing the fruit about with a salad fork so as not to bruise it. The fruit should not be over-sweetened; pour over the sweetened fruit a few spoonfuls of syrup from preserved marjorins, or add a very little of the syrup from preserved ginger, than add the cordial according to taste; fill up tall stemmed glasses or into sherbet cups that have been chilled and serve at once. Your guests will think you're giving them the hot-house variety in January, and be properly impressed.

Peach Combination.—Then, there's a delicious peach combination. For this use bananas, oranges and peaches and a few white grapes. Prepare by cutting the canned fruit into small bits; pare and seed the oranges and cut these into small bits, first dividing the orange into carapels and cutting across them; cut the bananas into small cubes and remove the stones from the grapes, all the fruit should be thoroughly chilled by being kept on ice for hours before serving time. Add a little sugar, sprinkled evenly over the fruit, and if the flavor of bananas is not desired, omit these, substituting pineapple cut into small pieces or shredded, a few preserved chestnuts also cut up, and a few maraschino cherries may also be cut up and added. Fill these into the bottom of tall glasses, and then fill the glasses two-thirds full of peach ice cream, on top of all place a small spoonful of whipped cream, piped on in a pretty design, and sprinkle over the top chopped pistache nuts, or place a chestnut or a maraschino cherry on top in the middle of the design.

Ice Cream and Peach Souffle.—For the ice cream prepare one pint of peach pulp, passing it through a fruit strainer, sprinkle over it the juice of one lemon and one cup of sugar, fold in a pint of cream, which should be whipped, measuring it before whipping, then turn into a freezer and freeze till firm.

Bed Sores.—These are liable to occur in any long illness where the patient is much emaciated or where there is paralysis of the nerves that provide nutrition for the back and limbs. While not always the nurses' fault, bespeaking neglect, it is usually considered so. To prevent the sores the under sheet must be kept perfectly smooth; no crumbs must be permitted to get into the bed and the bony prominences where the trouble begins must be bathed from five to a dozen times a day with alcohol and water, half and half. Pat dry with a soft towel, then powder. Finally make a cushion or use a circular air pillow covered with linen or cotton and place the sore spot in the center. If you make a circular pillow, fill with curled hair or cotton. If these sores are neglected they become purple, mortification sets in, the flesh sloughs off and leaves an ulcer.

For the Fever Thirst.—In nearly all feverish conditions water is now given freely. It must, however, be boiled or distilled. Never put ice in the water the patient is to drink, but cool to a refreshing temperature by laying the bottles containing it next to the ice. Milk or beer bottles with the patent corks are convenient for cooling in the refrigerator. Mineral waters, vichy, apollinaris or seltzer are generally allowed if the patient likes them.

Dutch Apple Cake.—This is another favorite dish in the cooking class. It is sometimes made with soda and cream of tartar, and again with yeast. For the former sift together two cups flour, a half teaspoonful of salt, a half teaspoonful of soda and a teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Add two tablespoonsful butter or good dripping and rub in with the tips of the fingers. Beat one egg light and add to it a scant cup milk. Then stir into the dry mixture. The dough should be quite soft. Turn into a shallow baking tin. Peel, core and slice three or four tart apples and arrange symmetrically on top of the pan, letting the slices overlap. Put the sharp edge of the slices down, and press slightly into the dough. Sprinkle with two tablespoonsful sugar and nutmeg or cinnamon. Bake in a hot oven. As soon as done brush the top lightly with hot water.

Boston Cookies.—One scant cup butter, three eggs, one and a half tablespoons cold water, half teaspoon salt, one cup chopped walnuts, half cup chopped raisins, one and a half cups sugar, one teaspoon soda, three cups of flour, small teaspoon cinnamon, half cup currants. Cream the butter and add the sugar and the eggs well beaten. Add the soda dissolved in the hot water, then add the walnuts, currants, raisins and the last cup and a half of flour. Drop in small spoonfuls on buttered pan and bake.

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTOR CURED.

The Hon. Albert Merritt was for three years a member of the New Jersey State Senate, was a Presidential Elector, and is now Treasurer and General Manager of the Consolidated Bag Co., 6135 Nassau street, New York City. In 1882 he suffered severely from urinary and digestive trouble. He was sick from "head to foot." He was advised to use Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy and IT CURED HIM—ABSOLUTELY. He said at that time: "Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is honestly entitled to the UNDIVIDED CREDIT OF IT. It went to the very root and source of my trouble." Now, in 1906 (24 years after), Mr. Merritt writes that his health still CONTINUES VERY GOOD, and says: "I cannot say too much in praise of Favorite Remedy. It is certainly a wonderful medicine." His cure was a permanent one. There are thousands of others who have been cured by Favorite Remedy years ago, and they stay cured. Large bottles $1.00, at all druggists.

ONLY HIS JUST DESERTS.

Editor Had Good Reason for Publishing Name of Contributor.

For six months of more the druggist's assistant had occupied his leisure moments by writing verses for the village paper, in the "poets' corner" of which publication they appeared anonymously every Thursday. On opening his copy of the Weekly Bugle one morning, and turning first, as was his regular habit, to that particular corner, he was surprised and gratified beyond measure to see his name in full appended to his latest poetical out-break.

He hastened to call at the office of the Bugle.

"Mr. Stiles," he said to the editor, "I want to thank you for signing my name to my poem in this week's paper. It encourages a fellow when he gets proper credit for his work."

"Oh, that's all right, Johnson," responded the editor. "We thought it was about time to place the responsibility for that poetry where it belonged.—Youth's Companion."

THIS IS WORTH SAVING.

Valuable Advice and Recipe by Well-Known Authority.

The following simple home-made mixture is said to relieve any form of Rheumatism or backache, also cleanse and strengthen the Kidneys and Bladder, overcoming all urinary disorders. If taken before the stage of Bright's disease. Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce, Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after meals and at bedtime. A well known authority states that these ingredients are mainly of vegetable extraction, and harmless to use and can be obtained at small cost from any good prescription pharmacy. Those who think they have kidney trouble or suffer with lame back or weak bladder or Rheumatism, should give this prescription a trial, as no harm can possibly follow its use, and it is said to do wonders for some people.

Hardly What He Wanted.

Albert Douglas, who will succeed Congressman Grosvenor of Ohio in the next house, is not weighed down with worldly goods, and was rather startled by an experience he had while looking around Washington for quarters. At one of the good hotels he was shown a suite consisting of bedroom, parlor and bathroom. On inquiring the monthly rent he was informed "only $1,000 for yourself and wife." Recovering his breath, which he managed to do without showing a tinge of his astonishment, he said with great calmness, "I'll write my wife all about the rooms and let her know beforehand what comforts we shall have when we come here to live. So until I hear from her you need not mark me for this suite. She may think from the price that your hotel is not the kind we ought to live in."

HARDSHIPS OF ARMY LIFE.

The experience of David W. Martin, a retired merchant of Bolivar, Mo., is just like thousands of others. Mr. Martin says: "I think I have had kidney disease ever since the war. During an engagement my horse fell on me, straining my back and injuring the kidneys. I have been told I had a floating kidney. I had intense pain in the back, headaches and dizzy spells and the action of the bladder was very irregular. About three years ago I tried Doan's Kidney Pills, and found such great relief that I continued, and inside a comparatively short time was entirely rid of kidney trouble."

AWFUL NEURALGIA.

Pain Turned This Woman's Hair White But She Was Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Do not seek relief from suffering simply, but free your system from the disease which is the cause of your suffering. That is the message which a former victim of neuralgia sends to those who are still in its grasp. Hot applications, powders that deaden the senses and others that reduce the heart action may cause temporary relief but the pain is sure to return with greater intensity.

Mrs. Evelyn Creuser, who has a beautiful home at 811 Boulevard West, Detroit, Mich., suffered for years with neuralgia until she tried this tonic treatment. She says:

"My trouble began about six years ago and I did not rest as I should have, but kept up about my many duties. After a time I became so weak I could not do any work at all. I had severe backaches and such dreadful headaches, in the back part and top of my head. My eyes were easily tired and at times I saw black spots before them. I consulted several doctors but without the slightest benefit. The pains were so intense that my hair turned white."

"I lost continually in weight and strength and was almost in despair when a friend recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I tried them according to directions and soon began to feel relief. At the end of three months I had gained ten pounds in weight and had no more trouble with my nerves. I have been in perfect health ever since and can heartily commend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Hannah M. Allen, who died Saturday, Feb. 23, at the home of her son, Gilbert Nichols, was born in Otsego county, N. Y., Feb. 26, 1814 and was united in marriage to Truman Nichols Aug. 1831, moving to Farmington during the same year. Four sons and one daughter were born to them.

Two sons, Hiram A. Nichols of Brighton and Gilbert C. Nichols of this place survive her. In 1833 the family removed to the farm now occupied by Gilbert C. Nichols and here the deceased had lived continuously until her death. In 1877 the husband died and in 1881 the widow was married to Michael Marlati, who died four years later, since which time she has lived with her son, Gilbert. She became a member of the Baptist church at the age of fourteen years and has ever since been a consistent christian and an active church worker. She was dearly loved by all who knew her. Notwithstanding her ninety-three years she was active in both mind and body. About three weeks ago she fell in her room and sustained injuries which caused her death. The funeral was held from the home of her son Tuesday afternoon Rev. S. F. Dimmock of Northville officiating. The remains were laid to rest in North Farmington cemetery.

You Can Make Mortar.

Sifted coal ashes, sand and wheat flour, two parts each of ashes and sand and one of flour, mixed with water, make an excellent mortar for patching holes where the plastering is broken. It becomes as hard as stone, and can be put on by hand with little trouble and expense.

WHY IT SUCCEEDS.

Because it's for One Thing Only and Northville People Appreciate This.

Nothing can be good for everything. Doing one thing well brings success.

Doan's Kidney Pills do one thing only. They cure sick kidneys.

They cure backache, every kidney ill.

Here is Northville evidence to prove it.

Wellington Kator, machinist, living on Yerkes Ave., Northville, Mich., says: "A year ago I began to have trouble with my kidneys and suffered for some time before I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Murdoch Bros. drug store and was cured. I had hard aching pains across my back so severe sometimes that I could hardly move without suffering. The kidneys were weak and irregular, the urinations being too frequent and causing a burning pain during passage. The use of Doan's Kidney Pills for a short time completely cured me. I am not now troubled at all with my back and kidneys and feel better in every way. I am pleased to recommend them to others."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Most people know that if they have been sick they need Scott's Emulsion to bring back health and strength.

But the strongest point about Scott's Emulsion is that you don't have to be sick to get results from it.

It keeps up the athlete's strength, puts fat on thin people, makes a fretful baby happy, brings color to a pale girl's cheeks, and prevents coughs, colds and consumption.

Food in concentrated form for sick and well, young and old, rich and poor.

And it contains no drugs and no alcohol.
