GONE TO MEET HER DAUGHTER

MRS. GEO. THOMAS DIED ABOUT NOON MONDAY.

Survived Daughter's Death Little Over a Week.

Twice in a little over a week has the grim reaper, death, entered the home of George Thomas and taken two loved ones, first the daughter and then the wife and mother. This is a sad blow indeed to Mr. Thomas and almost more than he can bear and is an additional loss to the son-in-law, Fred Lyke, who thought so much of her.

Mrs. Thomas had been ill all spring and her recovery at one time was rather doubtful but as the summer advanced she began to gain and was able to ride out and walk around considerably and her friends were sure she would again regain her health.

On Saturday evening she was again taken seriously ill and although medical aid was quickly summoned and all done that was possible it was of no avail. She lived until Monday noon when she passed into the great beyond to meet the loved one who had gone but a few days previous.

Mrs. Thomas was a devoted wife and mother and a kind neighbor and her death is keenly felt. Mr. Thomas and son-in-law, Mr. Lyke, have much sympathy expressed for them in this double bereavement.

The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon, from the home, Rev. W. G. Stephens officiating, and the remains laid to rest beside those of her daughter in Rural Hill cemetery.

Milk Goes to 6 Cents.

Northville dealers have put the price of milk up to six cents and their claim seems to warrant the raise. The price of milk at wholesale has recently advanced 40 per cent while this raise on the retailers' part for six months is only a 10 per cent advance.

BURKE FOR SCHOOL EX'M'R

ANNUAL MEETING BD. SUPERVISORS OPENED TUESDAY.

W. A. Ely of Northville Is the New Chairman

At a caucus held by the republican members of the board of supervisors in Detroit Tuesday afternoon the party candidates for commissioner and school examiner were announced and the choice fell to A. E. Burke, principal of the schools of River Rouge. The nomination is equivalent to an election. Frank Pallister of Hamtramck, present drain commissioner, was unanimously renominated to that office.

The regular meeting of the supervisors was called to order at noon by President Ely of Northville who handled the gavel in good shape and started things off in first class manner.

Everybody Help.

The trustees of the Ladies' Library association have a new plan for raising money, and it is one in which every family in town can have a part, and all without a cent of expense to those contributing. The ladies are trying to accumulate enough paper for a carload to sell to a big paper manufacturing concern, and all they ask of their friends who wish to help them is the saving for them of all old magazines, newspapers, books and wrapping papers.

The only stipulation is that the papers be clean. The ladies will come and collect anything you have in the lines mentioned and be thankful therefor.

All interested in the good work done for Northville by the library can help in that work by not destroying their accumulations of magazines, books and papers, but instead, notifying the members of the library board. It will be an easy way to help an excellent cause.

FIRST TWO CENT RATE RIDE ON P. M.

Governor Got Ticket Early at Lansing Under New Law.

"Toot—toot, toot!" the whistle of the early morning Pere Marquette train for Detroit awoke the morning echoes in Lansing.

The ticket agent, sleepy-eyed, yawned, then suddenly straightened himself and looked important, as every good railroad man does, and every other man should in the presence of the governor.

"I want a ticket for Detroit at 2 cents a mile," said his excellency.

"What, for 2 cents a mile?—Oh, yes, that's so. You are the first one to get one," replied the agent.

And so he was Gov. Warner, who fought through the stormy sessions of last winter's legislature and triumphed over all opposition to pass the 2-cent fare rate law, was on the first train out of Lansing which carried passengers for 2 cents a mile.—Detroit News Sept. 28.

WILL GOV'R RUN AGAIN

QUESTION BOTHERING INTERESTS WHO WANT CONTROL.

They Believe Both Roosevelt and Warner will be Downed.

"Will Governor Warner run again?" is a question most asked these days, and the question is not by any means confined to political circles. "For the time being the special interests in Michigan have lost control and the people are for the first time in years running things."

"The same interests," he adds, "that are seeking to defeat the 'Warner for the third term' idea are the interests that are already laying wires to defeat the Roosevelt-Taft idea in Michigan."

Here's the way a well known political writer in the Lansing Republican and Detroit News puts it: "The ants can't see any way clear to a third term for Warner and they check off the list of reasons with perfect frankness. They declare the seventh congressional district, where George Moore and Link Avery reside, will be for any man to beat Warner; they claim similar conditions in the eighth, where Arthur Hill and Tip Atwood reside and add on the fourth and third districts. Judging the sentiment in that way they ask how any one can believe there is in the other districts enough sentiment in favor of anyone having a third term, to indicate that Warner can win the nomination, 40 per cent."

"The story of the friends of the governor is just as confident. They assert that with a primary election law the old organization cannot control as it has been wont to do. They say the manner in which the boxers framed up the railway commission law indicates that if they or their friends are returned to power, the railway commission will become a railway tool, and the binding twine plant closed out at the state prison. They add that the farmers want the state to give the plant a fair trial under friendly officials, not by those who only conceded it because they did not dare do otherwise. The action of the boxers in framing the railway commission act to provide for ousting the commission appointed by Governor Warner when his present term expires, is said to be viewed with suspicion by the people as indicating that the next commission will be composed of men inclined to the railway side of every proposition."

It is added that Railway Commissioner Glasgow has shown a zeal in making his department of genuine benefit to the patrons of railroads, not merely tied it up with red tape, and dodged every live question. De. Jarring Mr. Glasgow has gained the confidence of the state in this manner: the governor's friends say equal results are expected from the new commission, which will include Mr. Glasgow, and they want the governor in position to retain it in office, back it up, and aid the commission in rebuilding the present makeshift law. They further depose and say regarding those slips being distributed to ascertain sentiment regarding the third term idea, that travelling men and others, not state officials, are using most of the slips and that they are bringing in returns which are surprising to all. Added to all this, it is declared the upper peninsula is not against the governor; the iron country is said to be very favorable to him and anxious he should run again.

Jay Leavenworth, living one mile west and one-half mile north of Novi, will sell at public auction on Wednesday, Oct. 9, a number of cows, several horses, several swarms of bees and bee supplies, all kinds of farm implements, corn in shocks, potatoes on the ground, incubator, brooders, chicken coops, etc., also a large quantity of household furniture, oats, straw, stove wood and other articles too numerous to mention. SIGNS OF LONG LIFE.

Physical Indications Perceptible to All Who Know.

"In the medical world," said a well-known veteran doctor, "it is a generally accepted fact that every person bears physical indications of his prospects of a long or short life. A long lived person may be distinguished from a short lived person at sight in many instances a physician may look at the hand of a patient and tell whether he or she will live or not. The primary conditions of longevity are that the heart, lungs and digestive organs, as well as the brain should be large. If these organs are large the trunk will be long and the limbs comparatively short. The person will appear tall in sitting and short in standing. The hand will have a long and somewhat heavy palm and short fingers. The brain will be deeply seated as shown by the office of the ear being low. The blue or brown hazel eye as showing an intermission of temperament is a favorable indication. The nostrils, if large open and free indicate large lungs. A pinched and half closed nostril indicates small or weak lungs. These are general points of distinction but of course subject to the usual individual exceptions.

AND THEN SHE REMEMBERED.

After All It Was a Matter of Small Importance.

The man was taking an early morning stroll when he met a charming young girl, also enjoying a stroll. "I was just wishing I might meet you," he said, as he approached her with the air of one having at least a claim of friendship or her. The girl lifted her eyebrows and regarded him with a surprised look in which there was not the slightest hint of recognition. The man looked a little more than surprised. In fact he looked and was shocked. Of course you haven't forgotten," he said, in a dazed sort of way. "Forgotten what?" she replied coldly. "Why last night—down by the big rock—moon rise—soft murmur of tide—don't you know?" "I don't understand," she said moving away. "Why—er?" he stammered, we became engaged down there last night—fixed our wedding day—don't you remember now?" A momentary blankness crossed the sweet girl's face then the light of memory illumined it. "Oh," she exclaimed pleasantly. "How stupid of me to forget. So we did!" And passed on.

Graphic Battle Picture.

In Lew Wallace's autobiography appears this battle picture. Then at a signal—a bugle call probably—the army having attained its proper front, it started forward slowly at first. Suddenly after the passage of space, arms were lifted, and, taking to the double quick, the men raised their battle cry, which, sounding across the field and intervening distance, rose to me on the bright sharper, shriller and more like the composite yelling of wolves than I had ever heard it. And when to those were presently superadded a tempestuous tossing of guidons, waving of banners and a furious tramping of the young corn that flew before them like splashed billows, the demonstration was more than exciting—it was really fearful, and watching it I understood, as never before, the old Vandal philosophy which taught that the sublimest inspiration of courage lay in the terrible.

The Greater Love.

THE STATE IN GENERAL

YOUNG SON FOUND FATHER AND MOTHER VICTIMS OF FATAL QUARREL.

HUSBAND SHOT BY WIFE

Frightful Tragedy at a Farm House Near New Haven Caused by Row Over Property.

Killed Husband and Herself.

The fine Charles Ford farm, two miles south and a half mile east of New Haven, was the scene of a frightful tragedy about 7:30 Wednesday evening, when Mrs. Charles Ford shot her husband, killing him instantly and then turning the gun on herself with almost a like fatal effect.

Their 14-year-old son had been driving the cows home from pasture and on going to the house he discovered the bodies of his father and mother, the latter on the threshold, with the breech-loading seven-shooter shotgun beside her and the former in the kitchen. The lad hastened to a neighbor's for help and on the return it was found that Mrs. Ford still lived. A physician was summoned, but he found the woman beyond medical aid and she expired an hour or so later.

Ford was shot in the chest and terribly mutilated. Mrs. Ford sent the shot into her abdomen, tearing away the intestines. She was conscious before she died and stated that she had shot her husband after an all-day's quarrel, in which he had kicked her. She said she then shot herself.

The boy said that his parents had frequently quarreled of late and the start of Wednesday's fight was more bitter than any previous one. The trouble, he said, was over business matters, his parents holding several mortgages on the disposition of which they could not agree.

The Ford farm is one of the finest in the section and the house on it is elegantly furnished. The family prospered and was more than ordinarily well-to-do. Besides the boy mentioned there is another son, Otto Ford, of Romeo.

Two-Cent Fares Now.

The new two-cent fare law in Michigan went into effect Saturday and with it comes the announcement that all railroads in the Central Passenger association territory will put in new tariffs, based on two-cent fare laws enacted in the past two years in Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Nebraska, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Pennsylvania.

Michigan people will not only get the benefit of lower fares in the state, but fares into Canada, Mexico, South American ports and even Europe will be lowered because of the two-cent fare legislation. The rate sheets now being made by the various lines will necessitate changes in the rate sheets of every road in the country.

The Daniel Jackson Estate.

Deputy Attorney General Chase has gone to New York, where he will investigate the claim of alleged heirs to the estate of Daniel Jackson, of Barry county.

Jackson, who was an aged resident of that county, died about one year ago, leaving $4,000 worth of property. He left the property to the children of his brother and a claim was forwarded by certain New York city residents, alleging they are the heirs referred to in Jackson's will. The state acquires an interest in the property by virtue of the fact that if the claim is not legal, the property reverts to the state.

Blames Employees and Officials.

The coroner's jury at the inquest into the death of Bert Robinson, the motor man who died as the result of injuries received in a collision of an interurban with an Ann Arbor car, returned a verdict blaming Motorman Thomas Ellis, of Detroit, and censuring his employers.

The jury said that Ellis exceeded the "moral and customary right" and that the D. J. & C. is guilty of negligence in not blinding its headlights in the city. It also blames the company for not having an interlocking system. Ellis, together with Conductor Ross, is awaiting trial on a charge of manslaughter.

Benton Hanchett Judge.

It is understood in Washington that Benton Hanchett, of Saginaw, will be tendered a federal judicial position. Senator Smith had a conference with President Roosevelt and when the senator returns to Michigan he will make the tender to Mr. Hanchett, so it is learned on good authority. The nature of the position is not stated, but it will be very different from the place recently offered Mr. Hanchett and refused by him because of the onerous duties involved.

Adulterated Sausage.

An injunction sworn out by Armour & Co., of Chicago, restraining State Dairy and Food Commissioner Bird from publishing in his bulletin that sausage manufactured by that company contains cereals was issued by Judge Coolidge, of the Berrien circuit court, and served on the food commissioner Friday.

Although Friday was his wedding day, Edward Morris, a Port Huron machinist, continued his work at the Northern Motor works. During the day his arm became caught in the machinery and he was injured so that the ceremony, which was to have taken place at night, had to be postponed.

After she had failed to find her son in the morgue, Mrs. C. W. Messenger, of Battle Creek, went to police headquarters and swore out a warrant for his arrest, charging grand larceny. She hopes to locate him in this manner.

Passengers in Panic.

A Pere Marquette excursion train of ten coaches, crowded with Detroiters and passengers from intermediate points, due to arrive in Saginaw from Detroit at 11:30, while rounding a curve at Thirteenth street, about a mile from the station, Sunday, and running at high rate of speed, crashed head-on into a freight engine standing on the main track. Engineer Hartsell of the passenger and Engineer Bradley of the freight train stuck to their posts and were only slightly bruised, the former putting on brakes and trying to stop the impact. The passenger engine, tender and baggage car were smashed and all car platforms battered. The passengers were hurled from their seats and many sustained bruises. A general panic followed and screaming women fought their way out of the coaches.

Going Up.

It will cost every family a large extra toll of dollars to keep the table supplied through the coming winter, heat the house and otherwise provide the necessities of life; and the first big gain will be the American farmer. The commodities going up are: Meats, owing to feed scarcity and disposal of cattle; butter—price of 40 cents a pound this winter predicted. Other necessities have already been increased as follows:

Flour—50 cents a barrel.
Bread—1 cent a loaf.
Butter—4 to 5 cents a pound.
Eggs—2 to 3 cents a dozen.
Cheese—3 to 4 cents a pound.
Honey—3 to 5 cents a pound.
Beans—40 cents a bushel.
Peaches—$1 to $1.50 per bushel.
Coal—50 cents a ton.

Leslie Scorched.

Fire Monday morning destroyed the Holly block, owned by Edward Rice and valued at $5,000. The building was occupied by J. J. Murphy's department store and Charles Hart's harness store. Murphy's loss is said to exceed $10,000. The cause of the fire is unknown, and the building was totally destroyed. Three families, who occupied the rooms on the second floor had narrow escapes.

Nine tramps who refused to obey trawmen's orders to leave a freight train were met at Vassar by officers and seven arrested.

Gov. Fred Warner will ride in carriage No. 13 when he goes to St. Louis to meet the executives of other states and President Roosevelt, according to the drawing made in that city.

Walter S. Mann, a former resident of Saginaw, son of Dr. Mann has ended his life by shooting himself at Delray, Fla. No further particulars have been learned. Mann had not been in good health.

Convict Davis, who escaped from the Grand Marais jail on a Duluth steamer and held up one passenger and assaulted another, was captured at Silver Mountain, near Port Arthur, by a posse.

Plans for the new postoffice to be erected in Flint have been revised in accordance with the wishes of Postmaster James Button. The original plans were such as to give sufficient working room.

Ada Curtis, aged about 27, of Dowagiac, was found unconscious in her room in a Battle Creek hotel, and died in Nichols hospital a few hours later. Physicians say death was due to morphine poisoning.

Charles Wilkinson, the Chicago jeweler arrested in Grand Haven several weeks ago for obtaining money under false pretenses, was sentenced to pay a fine of $80 or go to the "works" for three months.

Although Peter Olson, of Escanaba, slashed his throat from ear to ear Sunday, severing his windpipe, the physicians who were called say they believe they can save his life. He was despondent from ill health.

A clever Chicago woman swindled a Waterford woman out of $250 by the worthless check method. Pretending to want to purchase the Waterford woman's home, the stranger succeeded in getting "identified" at the bank.

Despondent because his wife secured a divorce, B. V. Weir, 38, a painter and varnisher, committed suicide at his boarding house in Grand Rapids by swallowing an ounce of ladanum. The coroner decided no inquest was necessary.

Anti-Roosevelt Candidate.

"It is stated that ex-Army General F. C. Knox of Pennsylvania is to be the Roosevelt presidential candidate to whom the corporations and the trust-actors will fly up to and all the border states of the great lakes including Michigan will be looked after along that line."—New York News Item.

It is hardly to be presumed that the people of Michigan will sit idly by and let certain interests tug off the Michigan delegation to the National convention, and especially so when the sentiment of this state is decidedly Roosevelt. There is absolutely no Knox sentiment whatever in this state and if any gets in it will be of the manufactured variety and the manufacturing will be going on while the people are asleep, if the people allow it to go on at all. Michigan for Roosevelt and Roosevelt policy, should be the slogan. Nothing else will satisfy the people. If not Roosevelt then Taft—a man who will carry out those policies.

At the Tomb of McKinley

The president's speech at the dedication of the McKinley monument at Canton on Monday was a masterly effort. It was at the same time a tribute to the noble life and deeds of the martyr president and a home dietion as from the grave toward the living. The president sought to impress upon the people that this was still a government of by and for the people and that it was as it had been in the past. He pleaded and insisted for a greater deal for all, and gave warning that nothing less would be acceptable to the people. It was a typical Roosevelt address but thorough and tinged with love and sympathy for both the living and the dead.

Wm. Alden for Roosevelt.

Senator Wm. Alden Smith has this week returned from Washington and New York and announces most emphatically that Michigan is for Roosevelt and Taft. He is the first member of the national congress to declare himself so far as the Record has learned. Senator Smith is following public sentiment very closely at that, and knows whereof he speaks.

Suicide Among Negroes.

The number of negroes committing suicide is increasing rapidly each year, but before emancipation such thing as a negro killing himself was almost unheard of. Now they occur with great frequency.

Mrs. Mark Robinson has just returned from a visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Howe, at Lansing, and reports the fruit crop as excellent in that part of the country. She brought to this office a piece of grape vine less than a foot in length and from it was hanging three large full bunches of grapes of the white Niagara variety. She says this is a fair sample of the entire crop.

Eleven husky and enthusiastic Ecorse hustlers escorted Supervisor Bosserdet of that town out here last week Friday night and were given a "jim dandy" supper at the Park Hotel by Supervisor Landlord. Eleven Northville fellows took supper with the "lively bunch" from along the river and everybody had a good time. Art Nichols acted as toastmaster and almost everybody made speeches.

A very pleasant social event occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Wood Wednesday evening, the occasion being their daughter, Ina's, sixteenth birthday. After enjoying music and outdoor games for a time, all were invited to the dining room where the hostess had prepared a sumptuous six o'clock dinner. It is needless to say all had a delightful time and left, wishing Ina many happy returns of the day.

Thursday morning of last week Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Stanley took an automobile trip to Marshall, where Mrs. Stanley visited her old friend, Mrs. Chas. Bristol, and Mr. Stanley went on to Indiana. They expected to return the same way they went, but a heavy rainstorm made the roads so muddy that Mrs. Stanley came home by trolley and left Mr. S. to bring the automobile. He got stuck in the mud once but by the aid of a good farmer and a team of horses, he managed to get out all right, and arrived home Saturday evening.

SERIAL STORY

THE HOUSE OF A THOUSAND CANDLES

By MEREDITH NICHOLSON

Then they were silent and I heard him furtively striking a match, when suddenly the lantern fell, its wires rattling as it struck the ground, and the two exclaimed with renewed merriment upon their misfortune.

"If you will allow me," I called out, fumbling in my pocket for my own matchbox.

I have sometimes thought that there is really some sort of decent courtesy to me. An old man caught in a rough path that was none too good at best! And a girl, even though my enemy! But these were not, I fancy, the reflections that crossed my mind at the moment.

"Ah, it's Jack," exclaimed my grandfather. "Marian was showing me the way to the gate and our light went out."

"Miss Devereux," I murmured. I have, I hope, an icy tone for persons who have incurred my displeasure, and I employed it then and there with, no doubt, its fullest value.

She and my grandfather were groping in the dark for the lost lantern, and I, putting out my hand, touched her ungloved fingers.

"I beg your pardon," she murmured frostily.

Then I found and grasped the lantern.

"One moment," I said, "and I'll see what's the trouble."

I thought my grandfather took it, but the flame of my wax match showed her fingers clasp the wick flame. The cloak slipped away, showing her arm's soft curve, the blue and white of her bodice, the purple blue of violet; and for a second I saw her face, with a smile quivering about her lips. My grandfather was beating the ground impatiently with his stick, urging us to leave the lantern and go on.

"Let it alone," he said. "I'll go down through the chapel, there's a lantern in there somewhere."

"I'm awfully sorry," she said, "but I recently lost my best lantern."

"To be sure she had!" I was angry that she should so brazenly recall the night I found her looking for Pickering's notes in the passage at the Door of Bewilderment!

She had lifted the lantern now, and I was striving to touch the wax taper to the wick, with imminent danger to my bare fingers.

"They don't really light well when the oil's out," she observed, with an exasperating air of wisdom.

I took it from her hand and shook it close to my ear.

"Yes, of course, it's empty," I muttered disdainfully, and threw it from me.

"Oh, Mr. Glenarm!" she cried, turning away toward my grandfather.

I heard his stick beating the rough path several yards away. He was hastening toward Glenarm House.

"I think Mr. Glenarm has gone home."

"Oh, that is too bad!" she exclaimed.

"Thank you! He's probably at the chapel by this time. If you will permit me—"

"Not at all!"

A man in the sixties should not tax his arteries too severely. I was quite sure that my grandfather ran up the chapel steps, I could hear his stick beating hurriedly on the stones.

"If you wish to go farther?" I began.

I was indignant at my grandfather's conduct! He had deliberately run off, leaving me alone with a young woman whom I had resolved never to see again.

"Thank you, I shall go back now. I was merely walking to the gate with Mr. Glenarm. It is so fine to have him back again, so unbelievable!"

It was just such a polite murmur as one might employ in speaking to an old foe at a friend's table.

She listened a moment for his step; then, apparently satisfied, turned back toward St. Agatha's. I followed, under a certain hesitating, marking her definite onward flight. From the folds of her cloak stole the faint perfume of violets. The sight of her, the sound of her voice, combined to create—and to destroy—a mood with every step.

I was seeking some colorless thing to say when she spoke over her shoulder.

"You are very kind, but I am not the least afraid, Mr. Glenarm."

"But there is something I wish to say to you, now that we have met. I should like—"

She slackened her step.

"I am going away."

"Yes; of course; you are going away."

Her tone implied that this was something that had been ordained from the beginning of time, and did not matter.

"And I wish to say a word about Mr. Pickering," I added.

She paused and faced me abruptly. We were at the edge of the wood, and the school lay quite near. She caught the cloak closer about her and gave her head a little toss. I remembered well, as a trick compelled by the vagaries of woman's head-dress.

"I can't talk to you here, Mr. Glenarm; I had no intention of ever seeing you again, but I must say this to you—"

"Those notes of Pickering's—I shall ask Mr. Glenarm to give them to you—as a mark of esteem from me."

She stepped backward as though I had struck her.

"You risked much for them—and for him!" I went on.

"Mr. Glenarm, I have no intention of discussing that, or any other matter with you—"

"It is better so—"

"But your accusations, the things you imply, are unjust, infamous!"

The quaver in her voice shook my resolution to deal harshly with her.

"If I had not myself been a witness—I began.

"Yes; you have the conceit of your own wisdom, I dare say."

"But that challenge to follow you, to break my pledge, my running away, only to find that Pickering was close at my heels; your visit to the tunnel in search of those notes—don't you know that those things were a blow that hurt?"

You had been the spirit of this woodland to me. Through all these months, from the hour I watched you paddle off into the sunset in your canoe, the thought of you made the days brighter—steadied and cheered me, and awakened ambitions that I had forgotten—abandoned—long ago.

And this hideous struggle here—it seems so idle, so worse than useless now! But I'm glad I followed you—I'm glad neither fortune nor duty kept me back. And now I want you to know that Pickering shall not suffer for anything that has happened. I shall not punish him, for your sake he shall go free."

A sigh so deep that it was like a sob.

"But you challenged me—to follow you! I want to know why you did that!"

She drew away, struggling to free herself.

"Why was it, Marian?"

"Because I wanted—"

"Yes?"

"I wanted you to come, Squire Glenarm!"

My history of the affair at Glenarm has overrun the bounds I had set for it, and these, I submit, are not days for the desk and pen. Marian is turning over the sheets of manuscript that lie at my left elbow and demanding that I quit work for a walk abroad.

My grandfather is pacing the terrace outside, planning, no doubt, those changes in the grounds that are his constant delight.

Of some of the persons concerned in this winter's tale let me say a word more. The prisoner whom Larry left behind we discharged after several days with all the honors of war, and (I may add without breach of confidence) a comfortable indemnity. Larry has made a reputation by his book on Russia—a searching study into the conditions of the Czar's empire, and, having squeezed that lemon, he is now in Tibet. His father has secured from the British government a promise of immunity for Larry, so long as that amiable adventurer keeps away from Ireland. My friend's latest letters to me contain, I note, no reference to The Sod.

Bates is in California conducting a fruit ranch, and when he visited us last Christmas he bore all the marks of a gentleman whom the world uses well. Stoddard's life has known many remarkable changes in the three years that have passed, but they must wait for another day, and, perhaps, another historian. Suffice it to say that it was he who married us—Marian and me—in the little chapel by the wall.

and that when he comes now and then to visit us, we renew our impression of him as a man large of body and of soul. Sister Theresa continues at the head of St. Agatha's, and she and the other Sisters of her brown-clad company are delightful neighbors. Pickering's failure and subsequent disappearance were described sufficiently in the newspapers, and his name is never mentioned at Glenarm.

As for myself—Marian is tapping the floor restlessly with her boot and I must hasten—I may say that I am no idler. It was I who carried on the work of finishing Glenarm House, and I manage the farms which my grandfather has lately acquired in this neighborhood. But better still, from my own point of view, I maintain in Chicago an office as consulting engineer, and I have already had several important commissions.

Glenarm House is now what my grandfather had wished to make it, a beautiful and dignified mansion. He insisted on filling up the tunnel, so that the Door of Bewilderment is no more. The passage in the wall and the strong box in the paneling of the chimney-breast remain, though the latter we use now as a hiding place for certain prized bottles of rare whisky which John Marshall Glenarm ordains shall be taken down only on Christmas Eve, to drink the health of Olivia Gladys Armstrong. That young woman, I may add, is now a belle in her own city, and of the scores of youngsters all the way from Pittsburgh to New Orleans who lay siege to her heart, my word is, the best man win!

Marian—the most patient of women—is walking toward the door, eager for the sunshine, the free airs of spring, the blue vistas lakeward, and at last I am ready to go.

The End.

Warning Against Cigarettes.

In order to deter boys from smoking cigarettes, it was suggested at a meeting of the education committee of the London county council that the diagrams of cigarette smokers' hands, which appear in the medical officer's report should be enlarged and displayed in schools.

"I Wanted You to Come, Squire Glenarm!"

Solving the Problem of the Left-Over—The Best Way of Dealing with the Porter-House Steak.

BY MILES BRADFORD.

"I'll share a steak with you, if you don't mind," the man announced, as he took his seat by the side of a friend at a table in one of the New York chop-houses. "You see," he continued, apologetically, "we don't get these good steaks at our house. There are but two of us, and the wife says that she can't afford to buy a big, thick steak when so little of it would be eaten."

It was not an unusual story that this man told, for there are thousands of women who take just this view of the matter. Because a steak must be large and thick to be appetizing, they feel that it is a luxury in which they cannot afford to indulge, so they either dispense with this kind of meat entirely, leaving the husband to satisfy his craving for such food at the chop-houses and restaurants, or they purchase the small, thin cuts that bear about as close a resemblance to a real steak as an old fowl does to a spring chicken.

Instead of refusing to purchase an enticingly thick steak, let the wife strike out boldly and order her butcher to supply her with a slice of beef that weighs fully four or four and a half pounds. Then let her cut this piece of meat into three pieces—one piece consisting of the tenderloin; the second, the stringy end, which will leave the third piece, the steak itself, in the form that is known as the "Delmonico" steak. This done, she can proceed to utilize all the meat most satisfactorily.

For the first day's dinner, for example, let the tenderloin be served as plain noisettes. To prepare this dish the tenderloin is carefully trimmed after which it is cut into slices that, when trimmed round and flattened, will not be more than half an inch thick. They are then salted on both sides, after which they are placed in a sizzling mixture of butter and olive oil to cook rapidly for about five minutes, or longer if you do not like rare meat. When done, they are served, covered with a brown gravy, and, if desired, a garnishment of sliced but ton mushrooms.

Stewed tenderloin with oysters is another use to which the first day's cut of meat may be put, and this, too, is a simple dish that will not tax the ability of the most inexperienced cook. Let her first mix a little butter and flour in her stewpan, and when the blend has browned, let her add a chopped Spanish onion and two pickled walnuts that have been cut into small pieces. A moment or two later two tablespoonfuls of mushroom catsup and a teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce are added, after which the uncut tenderloin steak is placed on top of this mixture to simmer for about an hour. It must be turned three or four times during the interval and at no period should it be permitted to come to a boil. A few moments before it is to be served, a dozen to a dozen and a half of oysters should be opened and drained free from all liquor through a sieve. When dry as possible, add them; let them stay about two minutes; then serve the steak with the oysters and gravy poured over it.

For the second day's dinner the housewife has her choice between the "Delmonico" steak and the less inviting but still juicy end. If it is the end of the meat that is selected, there are two dishes from which she may choose, either of which will be certain to prove enticing to the most dainty palate. One is a potpie, the other English beef balls.

To make the beef balls, the fat and lean of the beef must be used. This meat is cut into pieces of equal size, after which it is put over the fire, in some cold water; to stew, under cover, for fully two hours. About half an hour before the expiration of this time, a sliced onion is added, with some fat bacon cut into dice, and sufficient salt and pepper to season; then, just before the mixture has finished cooking, it is thickened with flour and water, turned into a baking-dish already lined with biscuit dough covered with another layer of the dough, and baked in a quick oven until the crust is done.

To make the beef balls, mince the fat and lean beef together with an onion and some previously boiled parsley. Add grated bread crumbs, with salt, pepper, a little nutmeg, and some grated lemon peel as seasoning. When these ingredients have been mixed thoroughly and moistened with a beaten egg, the mixture is rolled into balls, which are floured and fried like croquettes. They are then served with a brown gravy.

If the "Delmonico" steak is very large, or the two persons who are to eat of it are not blessed with particularly good appetites, it is not improbable that there may be a little of the meat left after the dinner. In that case the cook can do no better than to serve the last remains of the meat in the form of that favorite southern dish—baked hash. To do this she has only to run the meat through her chopper, and mix it with an equal quantity of mashed white potato and a chopped onion. Salt and pepper are added to taste, with enough butter and milk, or cream, to make it of the proper consistency, which should not be too stiff. The mixture is then placed in a baking dish; three tablespoonfuls of tomato catsup are poured over it, the top is covered with buttered bread-crumbs, and the result is sent to a moderately quick oven to brown.

If it were true that a thick steak must be cooked all at once, and that there was no outlet for the leftovers, save through that extremely plebeian dish, ordinary hash, one might admit that it is not feasible for so small a family, but when these objections may easily be overcome, there seems to be no reason why a steak-loving husband should be without it.

New Hat Pins

There is nothing in the way of dresses, hats or shoes so fascinating to the average young girl as trinkets, and there seems to be no end to the supply of new ones that can be seen in the shops, and particularly pretty are the novelties that come to us from Paris.

Most of them, however, are passing fads, and, unfortunately, cannot be worn long, as they become common. One of the novelties which seem to have remained the fashion longest are the enameled birds. They are used now almost entirely as veil pins, and are in the shape of swallows, the bird holding a pearl in its mouth.

Quite the latest thing, however, and so recent that it can only be found in one or two shops as yet, are bird hat pins. At the end of the pin is this little feathery bird. Some of the prettiest are peacocks, cockatoos, swallows and birds of paradise.

The peacocks and birds of paradise can be detached from the pin and make lovely hair ornaments. The other birds are just the things to stick in the side of a Panama hat, and they look very sporty, besides being extremely pretty.

Speaking of pins, they have some very pretty sets which are quite new. They consist of threefold bar pins of graduated sizes, with a stone in the middle of each; then there is a brooch and a necklace set with the same stones. You can have your choice of amethysts, emeralds, rubies or sapphires; the setting is solid gold, but the stones are very good imitations. The entire set is in a dainty little leather case and would make a most acceptable present.—New York Herald.

TIED BACKS.

The kidneys have a great work to do in keeping the blood pure. When they get out of order it causes backache, headaches, dizziness, languor and distressing urinary troubles. Keep the kidneys well and all these sufferings will be saved you.—Mrs. S. A. Moore, proprietor of a restaurant at Waterville, Mo., says:

"Before using Doan's Kidney Pills I suffered everything from kidney troubles for a year and a half. I had pain in the back and head, and almost continuous in the loins and felt weary all the time. A few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills brought great relief, and I kept on taking them until in a short time I was cured. I think Doan's Kidney Pills are wonderful."

HAD A FELLOW FEELING.

Aunt Susan's Heart Went Out to "Pore Missus Astor."

Uncle Eli felt he knew the metropolis pretty well. Had he not been there three times in four years—and twice he had ridden on the elevated. So when he brought Aunt Susan with him (on the fourth trip) he naturally assumed the role of guide.

She marveled at everything until they sat down for luncheon. They had gone into the Astor house for that meal, but all its other marvels seemed lost on the visiting country hostess, as she looked open-eyed at the crowds that filled not only the corridors but the restaurants. Scarcely had they found seats, when this amazement took definite shape.

"Eli," said she in a stagey whisper, "I can't get here an' eat peaceably. I jes' must go downstairs an' help pore Missus Astor with the cookin' an' dishes."—Bohemian.

When the Orator Soared.

In the course of an address extolling the virtues of the medical profession, Dr. L. B. McBrayer of Asheville, N. C., used the following characteristic southern language:

"Could I borrow from the sun his cheery smile, from the moon her golden beams of light, from the southern zephyrs their softness, from the rose its fragrance, from the rainbow its celestial beauty, from the babbling brook its laughter and song, from the sea its awe and wonder, from the valley its serenity, and from the mountains their majesty and put these down upon a piece of azure blue sky, with comets for commas and planets for periods, I might then paint for you what the practice of medicine is like."

On Wit and Humor.

Man is the only animal that laughs and weeps, for he is the only animal that is struck with the difference between what things are and what they ought to be. We weep at what thwarts or exceeds our desires in serious matters; we laugh at what only disappoints our expectations in trifles. We shed tears from sympathy with real and necessary distress; as we burst into laughter from want of sympathy with that which is unreasonable and unnecessary, the absurdity of which provokes our spleen or mirth, rather than serious reflections on it.—William Hazlitt.

TABLE DELICACIES

RECIPES FOR BOTH NEW AND OLD DISHES.

To Prepare Unfermented Grape Juice—Canned Grape Juice With Sugar—Raisine Marmalade Is an Idea from France.

Unfermented Grape Juice.—Wash and pick over sound Concord grapes, rejecting all that are soft. Put in a stone jar and place this in a boiler, with cold water to nearly the depth of the jar. With a wooden spoon crush lightly when they begin to cook, at the same time pushing the grapes from the top of the jar toward the bottom. Cook about two hours or until the grapes are all softened. Then pour into a large bag to drain. Do not press or squeeze or the juice will be cloudy. Have ready perfectly clean and well sterilized bottles with the patent china or metal tops. If you do not have these, be sure your corks are new, soaking them first in cold water so they can be pressed in tightly. Reheat the juice to the boiling point, cook steadily half an hour, removing the scum as it rises to the surface. Turn into the hot bottles and seal airtight.

Canned Grape Juice With Sugar.—Put the grapes, washed and sorted, into a preserving kettle and add a little cold water, but not enough to cover. Cook slowly until the skins break, mashing and stirring from time to time with a wooden spoon. When softened and at the boiling point, pour into a new coarse jelly bag to drain. Measure the juice and to each quart allow a quarter pound granulated sugar. Boil again four minutes, turn into hot sterilized bottles and seal while hot.

Raisine.—To make this famous French marmalade allow an equal weight of grapes, cook in a little water until soft, then press through a colander to remove the seeds. Add the pears, cored and sliced, and simmer until thick, stirring almost constantly. When thick, sweeten to taste, strain through a colander and can.

Grape Relish.—Pick from the stems seven pounds of grapes, rather under ripe, and put the skins in a preserving kettle over the fire with just enough water to prevent their burning. Place the pulp in another kettle and cook until the seeds loosen. Press through a sieve and add to the skins with a half pint of vinegar, three pounds of sugar and a teaspoonful each cloves, allspice and cinnamon. Boil until thick. This is fine to serve with game or roast meats.

Macaroon Dessert.
A delicious sweet to offer at luncheon is made of whipped cream and macaroons. Use the rich cream that is of the proper consistency to whip well. Sweeten and whip until stiff. Get macaroons that have been kept about two days and roll them until they are crumbled finely, but not powdered. Stir enough of them with the whipped cream to give it a delicate brown color. This should be served heaped in dainty cups, as, while it makes a most delectable compound, it is altogether too rich to be taken in any but the most moderate quantities.

Mud Spots.
Mud spots may be removed from white or washable material by laundering. Black or dark cloth, however, may be freshened by being rubbed with a raw potato cut in halves (another remedy that is sure to be at hand), first, however, removing as much of the mud as possible with a brush, the potato is to remove the stain left by the mud, and not the mud itself. Machine oil marks on dainty white or colored goods should be dipped in benzine.

Snow Pudding.
Soak one-fourth box of gelatine in one-fourth cup of cold water until soft, then add one-half cup boiling water, one cup sugar, juice of two lemons, whites of three eggs beaten stiff. Set in cold place to harden and when ready to serve pour around it the following sauce, also cold. Yolks of three eggs beaten until light, three teaspoonfuls of sugar, one-half spoonful salt, one pint hot milk, one-half teaspoonful vanilla. Cook together until slightly thickened—about five minutes.

Cooking Cocoa.
According to a cooking school theory cocoa is never done until it has cooked long enough to coat the spoon. It is boiled, of course, in water, the scalding milk being added just before serving. It is said the cocoa should boil from half an hour to an hour. Persons who have found cocoa indigestible often find it harmless when it is thoroughly cooked. Undercooking is said to be the trouble when it proves indigestible.

Lyonnaise Potatoes.
One tablespoonful of butter, one onion chopped fine, 12 cold potatoes cut into dice; parsley, salt and pepper. To the butter and onion add the potatoes and stir quickly over the open flame for five minutes, taking care that they do not stick to the pan. Season with salt and pepper, add chopped parsley. Serve while hot.

Vanilla Cream Cookies.
Cream together one cupful of butter and one and one-half cupfuls of fine granulated sugar; add one beaten egg, one-half cupful of sweet milk, one teaspoonful of baking powder, and just enough flour to roll without sticking. Flavor with vanilla. Cut into fancy shapes, sprinkle with granulated sugar, and bake a delicate brown.

HOME-MADE REMEDY

INEXPENSIVE AND EASILY PREPARED BY ANYONE.

Is Said to Promptly Relieve Backache and Overcome Kidney Trouble and Bladder Weakness Though Harmless and Pleasant to Take.

What will appear very interesting to many people here is the article taken from a New York daily paper, giving a simple prescription, as formulated by a noted authority, who claims that he has found a positive remedy to cure almost any case of backache or kidney or bladder derangement, in the following simple prescription, if taken before the stage of Bright's disease:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Shake well in a bottle, and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime.

A well-known authority, when asked regarding this prescription, stated that the ingredients are all harmless, and can be obtained at a small cost from any good prescription pharmacy, or the mixture would be put up if asked to do so. He further stated that while this prescription is often prescribed in rheumatic afflictions with splendid results, he could see no reason why it would not be a splendid remedy for kidney and urinary troubles and backache, as it has a peculiar action upon the kidney structure, cleansing these most important organs and helping them to sift and filter from the blood the foul acids and waste matter which cause sickness and suffering. Those who suffer can make no mistake in giving it a trial.

NO NEED FOR WORDS.

Brief Pantomime Told Everything to the Onlooker.

Harrison Grey Fiske discussed, at a dinner in New York, the art of acting.

"I believe," said Mr. Fiske, "in subtlety and restraint. A nod, a shake of the head, a silent pause—these things are often more effective than the most violent yelling and ranting."

"Life is like that, subtle and silent. What, for instance, could be more expressive than this scene, a scene without a spoken word, that I once witnessed in the country?"

"An undertaker stood on a corner near a noble mansion. He elevated his brows hopefully and inquiringly as a physician came from the house. The physician, compressing his lips, shook his head decidedly and hurried to his carriage. Then the undertaker with a sigh passed on."

FURIOUS HUMOR ON CHILD.
Itching, Bleeding Sores Covered Body—Nothing Helped Her—Cuticura—Cures Her in Five Days.

"After my granddaughter of about seven years had been cured of the measles, she was attacked about a fortnight later by a furious itching and painful eruption all over her body, especially the upper part of it, forming watery and bleeding sores, especially under the arms, of considerable size. She suffered a great deal and for three weeks we nursed her every night, using all the remedies we could think of. Nothing would help. We tried the Cuticura Remedies and after twenty-four hours we noted considerable improvement, and after using only one complete set of the Cuticura Remedies, in five consecutive days the little one, much to our joy, had been entirely cured, and has been well for a long time. Mrs. F. Ruefenacht, R. F. D. No. 3, Bakersfield, Cal., June 25 and July 20, 1906."

A Point of View.
The new steamer City of _____ was laid up for repairs and one of the rickety old timers of the line was sailing in her place. A passenger who was somewhat irritated by the fact remarked to another, an Irishman, by the way: "The City of _____ always gets in at two in the morning and this old tub never gets in before six."

The Irishman thought for a moment and replied: "It's all right. The distance is just the same and we get a longer sail for the money."

Full of Knots.

The lanky tramp removed his tattered hat and displayed his intellectual brow.

"Ah, lady," he confided, "I have brains to burn. There is nothing I like better than to tackle knotty problems."

The busy housewife reached for the ax.

"Indeed," she said, "Well, go down to the woodpile. You will find that last load the most knotty problem you ever tackled during your career."

Tough Proposition.
"The devil take him!"
"Hush! Twixt you an' me, I don't think the devil wants him!"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

PROLIFIC GARDEN

ENGLISHMAN'S FIRST AND SUCCESSFUL ATTEMPTS IN MANITOBA—SOIL PRODUCES STRIKING RESULTS.

The Winnipeg (Canada) Free Press of a few days since contains account of the success that followed the efforts of William Knowles, an Englishman who located near Winnipeg, Manitoba. This is but one of many letters giving experiences of settlers, and should be encouraging to those who are looking about for a new home in which they may better their conditions. The following is a copy of the article referred to:

William Knowles, who cultivates some twelve acres of land just below Middlechurch ferry on east-side of the Red River has probably as fine a display of horticultural products as any in Manitoba. The whole of his holding is in a high state of cultivation and is literally crowded with splendid vegetable specimens, which have fortunately escaped damage by hail, although heavy storms have more than once occurred within a few miles. The potatoes are a wonderful crop, and he expects to raise 1,500 bushels from his patch of 4½ acres. A half dozen of tubers selected yesterday average more than a pound each. Adjoining the potatoes may be seen a marvelous collection of tomatoes. There are 600 plants, all growing under an enormous weight of fruit. One single stock picked yesterday contained eighteen tomatoes and weighed four pounds. This extraordinary example of marvelous growth, together with some of the potatoes were sent to the Free Press office.

The proprietor was the first in town with several specimens, including green corn. The season has been favorable for onions, and one square patch of nearly an acre is looking remarkably healthy. In addition there are good crops of cabbages, cauliflower, turnips, parsnips, carrots, pumpkins, marrows, cucumbers, celery, peas, lettuce, rhubarb, etc. The floral department has not been neglected and a charming display of all the well known blooms were shown, including a specially choice lot of asters.

Mr. Knowles, who gained most of his gardening experience in England, is loud in his praise of Manitoba soil for vegetable raising, and is gratified with the result of his first attempt at extensive horticulture.

Beaten.

Hereupon the widows and orphans, whom we had plundered, proceeded to call down the customary curses upon our heads.

"And upon your children and your children's children, unto the fourth generation!" they cried.

We gave them a rude stare and burst out laughing.

"Ever hear of a family as rich as we are now become having any children?" we sneered, and you should have seen how beaten they looked.—Puck.

Tender-Hearted Girl.

Miss Koy—Do you know that horrid Mr. Hanson insisted upon kissing me last night?

Miss Ascum—Why didn't you scream?

Miss Koy—I didn't want to scare the poor fellow.

Women Avoid Operations

When a woman suffering from female trouble is told that an operation is necessary, it, of course, frightens her.

The very thought of the hospital, the operating table and the knife strikes terror to her heart.

It is quite true that these troubles may reach a stage where an operation is the only resource, but a great many women have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, after an operation has been decided upon as the only cure. The strongest and most grateful statements possible to make come from women who by taking made from native roots and herbs, have escaped serious operations, as evidenced by Miss Rose Moore's case, of 307 W. 26th St., N. Y. She writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured me of the very worst form of female trouble and I wish to express to you my deepest gratitude. I suffered intensely for two years so that I was unable to attend to my duties and was a burden to my family. I doctored and doctored with only temporary relief and constantly objecting to an operation which I was advised to undergo. I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; it cured me of the terrible trouble and I am now in better health than I have been for many years."

This and other such cases should encourage every woman to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before she submits to an operation.

Pure Food.

The pure food law does not prohibit the sale of Cream of Tartar-Baking Powders because Cream of Tartar is as pure as Alum—but it is a well known fact that a baking powder in which Alum is used instead of Cream of Tartar is less injurious. Dr. Herman Reinhold, the expert German chemist, in a recent official report concerning Baking Powders, declares that a pure Alum baking powder is better and less injurious than the so-called Cream of Tartar powders. He says that if the quantity of alum contained in a sufficient quantity of baking powder for a batch of bread or cakes for an ordinary family, be concentrated to one mouthful of food, and taken into the stomach of any one person, no matter how delicate, it could do no harm.

"Do many 'endurance' race 'autos pass here?" asked the city boarder, peering down the road. "Yeas, stranger," replied the old farmer. "They are all endurance racers to us." "To you?" "Sure. It is an endurance test of patience to keep from blazing away at them every time they run over a cow or scare a horse."

HEADS ORGANIZED LABOR

Samuel Gompers, although a small man physically, is the biggest man in the country, for a labor union standpoint, standing as he does, at the head of the American Federation of Labor. His organization, with its 2,000,000 affiliated members, is the largest union labor body in the world.

President Gompers has been at the head of the federation except for one year since 1882, and is recognized as the most conservative of labor leaders. As a part of his duties he takes an active part in nearly all great strikes and at present is doing what he can to aid the striking telegraphers.

Mr. Gompers was born in England, January 27, 1850, and is a cigarmaker by trade. He has been an advocate of the rights of labor and co-edited of its official magazine. He has declined high political honors. The universal Saturday half holiday has come about by his initiative, and the so-called "initiative and referendum" has grown out of a system he introduced in the cigarmakers' unions, of which he was for many years the head.

Mr. Gompers' confession of faith in regard to unionism is as follows: "Organized labor holds that it is morally wrong for any workman to remain outside of the union in his trade or calling. Unorganized labor has the legal right to refuse to enter a union, and the legal right to sell its work at its own price; but it is also the legal right of the union workman to say that he will not work with the non-union man."

Mr. Gompers watches the work of congress, and if a bill is presented that he believes will affect the interest of union labor, he is on the alert lobbying and fighting until the matter is settled finally.

Desiring and Attaining.

Between desire and attaining, all human life flows on throughout. The wish is, in its nature, pain; the attainment soon begets satiety, the end was only apparent; possession takes away the charm; the wish, the need, presents itself under a new form, when it does not, then follow desolation, emptiness, ennui—against which the conflict is just as painful as against want. That wish and satisfaction should follow each other neither too quickly nor too slowly, reduces the smallest amount of suffering which both occasion, and constitutes the happiest life.—Arthur Schopenhauer.

"Nothin', pa, only we're playing this is the arctic regions, and I was just hittin' Jack because he's a vessel and I'm the icebergs, and he won't let me wreck him."

"Is that so? Well, I'll take a hand and go on a little whaling expedition." The walls were all there.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out of this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

HOUSEHOLD CARES.

Tax the Women of Northville the Same as Elsewhere.

Hard to attend to household duties with constantly aching back. A woman should not have a bad back, and she wouldn't if the kidneys were well.

Here is a Northville woman who endorses this claim: Mrs. O. S. Harger, living on Center street, Northville, Mich., says: "I have known the value of Doan's Kidney Pills for some time and can recommend them as a most valuable remedy for back-ache. For a long time I suffered with pain in my back that was often quite severe and made it hard for me to do anything, not even ordinary housework. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Murdock Bros. drug store, were the only remedy that ever gave me relief. Since using them I have been better than for a long time before. I have taken occasional doses of the remedy since then and never fail to find relief and they seem to put new life into me."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.
