GASOLINE IN RED CANS

NEW LAW GOES INTO EFFECT NOVEMBER 1ST NEXT.

It Applies to the User As Well As to the Seller.

Nearly all the newspapers in the state are once more calling the attention of their readers to the new gasoline law which goes into effect November 1st next, and apparently there will be no excuse for any one not being ready to comply with it.

The law in full is as follows:

SECTION 1. Every person dealing at retail in gasoline, benzine or naphtha shall deliver the same to the purchaser only in barrels, casks, packages or cans painted vermilion red and having the word "gasoline," "benzine," or "naphtha" plainly stenciled thereon.

No such dealer shall deliver kerosene in a barrel, cask, package or can painted or stenciled as heretofore provided.

Every person purchasing gasoline, benzine or naphtha for use shall procure and keep the same only in barrels, casks, packages or cans painted and stenciled as heretofore provided.

No person keeping for use or using kerosene shall put or keep the same in any barrel, cask, package or can painted or stenciled as heretofore provided.

Provided, however, that in case of gasoline, benzine and naphtha being sold in bottles for cleaning and similar purposes it shall be deemed sufficient if the contents of such bottles are so designated by a label securely pasted or attached thereto with the words "gasoline," "benzine" or "naphtha" printed in bright red ink in letters not less than one-fourth inch in size.

SEC. 2. Any person violating any of the provisions of section one of this act shall be punished by a fine of not less than five nor more than fifty dollars or by imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed ninety days, or by both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court, before whom such conviction was had.

This act is ordered to take effect November one, nineteen hundred seven, and the law providing for the labeling of gasoline cans with a printed tag is repealed on that date.

The State Inspector calls attention to these essential features of the new act:

(1). It will be noticed the law applies to not only dealers when selling gasoline, benzine and naphtha at retail, but also to persons who keep those liquids for use.

(2). Gasoline, etc., can only be delivered to the consumer in cans, casks, barrels or packages painted a vermilion red (meaning a very bright red) having the name of the contents stenciled thereon.

(3). Consumers can purchase, or have gasoline, etc., on hand for use, ONLY when same is contained in cans, barrels, packages, etc., so painted and stenciled.

(4). It is unlawful to put kerosene in cans, packages, etc., so painted and stenciled.

In other words, tanks on stoves, in autos, boats, engines, etc., can only be filled from cans, barrels, casks, etc., that are so painted (bright red) and stenciled.

The various oil companies have signified their intention to co-operate with the department in carrying out the provisions of the law and are advising retail dealers that the tanks in their stores in which their agents deliver gasoline oil into must also be painted the red color. This order of the oil companies will also apply to peddlers of oil as to the tanks on their wagons.

Thus far nothing but favorable comment is heard for the new act.

and a general co-operation is expressed towards carrying out its provisions. The law was passed in the interest of the safety of life and property and its enforcement will do much towards that end.

TO TAG LOBBYISTS.

Gov. Warner Has a Bill for That Purpose.

Because of the power, for good or evil, embodied in that functionary known as the lobbyist, Gov. Warner has a unique bill to present to the special session of the legislature to convene Monday, which will provide that all lobbyists shall be registered, tagged and labelled, so that everybody will know who they are.

The details of the governor's plans are not yet known. It is hardly expected that he will require a neat blue uniform with the word "Lobbyist" in gold braid on a peaked military cap, but the bill will provide for a legal registration to which anyone seeking information can have access.

Another matter to be brought before the special session is the elimination of the 40 per cent clause in the primary laws. The administration demands the striking out of this feature of the election law, but powerful antis will be on hand to fight the measure.—Detroit News

A Newspaper of Character.

In its eighth birthday number, published the first of the month, the Detroit Times emphasizes its strict advertising policy by putting out over ninety columns of advertising without an objectionable line in them. The Times has always made it a point to stand for the things worth while in civic and industrial affairs, and it takes strong position against advertising filth and frauds on the ground that a public journal should practice what it preaches in line with a "square deal." The times begins its eighth year with 40,000 circulation, surpassing any record ever made in Detroit within a like period.

D. U. R. LINEMAN SERIOUSLY INJURED

CHARLES FORD RECEIVED ELECTRIC SHOCK.

Was Taken to Harper Hospital for Operation.

Charles Ford, a lineman employed by the D. U. R., was engaged Monday in repairing a wire near Cass Benton's place south of town when he received a shock of electricity which threw him from the pole where he was working. He struck on his head causing a fracture of the skull. He was placed on a car and brought to Dr. Turner's office where the wound was dressed, after which a special car took him to Detroit where he was placed in Harper hospital. He lived until Thursday morning about four o'clock when he passed away.

GERMAN CHURCH BELL

To Be Dedicated Sunday, October 20th.

The German Lutheran congregation of this place have purchased a new bell for their church and on Sunday, October 20, will dedicate it with appropriate ceremonies. The morning services will be conducted in German and the afternoon will be exclusively in the English language. The public is cordially invited to both services and donations toward the bell fund will be cheerfully and thankfully received.

Administrator's Sale.

An administrator's sale will be held on the John Leavenworth farm, one mile north and one-half mile west of Novi, on Wednesday, Oct. 16, commencing at 10:00 o'clock with lunch at noon. The sale will consist of horses, cows, sheep, pigs, wagons, buggies, harness, all kinds of farm implements, oats, corn in shocks, fodder corn, etc. Bert Leavenworth, administrator. John E. Wedow, auctioneer.

Stock Sale.

Rattenbury & Starkweather will have an auction sale of stock consisting of thirty head of Michigan horses and twelve new milch cows, Thursday, Oct. 17, at Exchange hotel barn. Sale begins at 10:00 o'clock a. m.

Auction Sale.

Services every Sunday morning and evening. Preaching by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Turner.

The W. H. M. S. will have election of officers next Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock at the church, followed by a Missionary tea at five o'clock. The members are requested to come and bring one or more with them.

The members of the Ladies Aid whose birthdays occur in September and October gave one of the prettiest and most enjoyable afternoons of the year at the home of Mrs. Lester Cook on Wednesday of this week. The house was decorated with autumn foliage and flowers and the supper was a credit to the hostesses who so delightfully entertained.

Baptist Church notes.

(By a Member.)
The subject of the sermon next Sunday morning will be "The Message of the Incarnation," evening subject, "The Pilgrimage of the Wise Men."

Sunday evening at 6:00 o'clock the B. Y. P. U. will observe Rally day with a special program. Each member is urged to be present and respond to the roll call with a verse of scripture. Mrs. Dimmock is the leader and the subject will be "Rally to the Work."

The Birthday party for this month will be held at the parsonage next Wednesday afternoon. The ladies will have a business meeting at 2:00 o'clock, after which will follow a social time. Supper will be served beginning at five o'clock for 15 cents, to which all are invited.

School Notes.

(By a Pup.)
The First grade has drawn some very nice cat-tails.

The Third grade is having a red lining put in their waste basket.

The Second grade has a border of Jack-o-lanterns on their blackboard.

Colonel Babbitt of the Third grade was absent Monday on account of illness.

Ray Klump, who has been ill with scarlet fever, returned to school Monday.

The Second grade is studying Columbus and making booklets about him.

The Second, Third, Kindergarten and First grades are studying and drawing fruits.

The Third grade has a large paste board card hung up on the wall, upon which are written the names of all the pupils. When a pupil has been good a whole month a gold star is put by his name.

Miss Coldren, the teacher of the Second grade, had a birthday last week Friday and treated her pupils, they in turn giving her fruit and flowers. The Third grade pupils each wrote a birthday letter to her.

Several of the High school boys had important business in Ann Arbor last Friday afternoon.—Its too bad you hit the special car teachers were on and also too bad you had your walk to Plymouth for nothing.

LEGISLATURE IN SPECIAL SESSION

A STRONGER PRIMARY LAW IS THE GOVERNOR'S FIXED PURPOSE.

LOBBYING GETS A TOUCH.

Attacks the Forty Per Cent Clause and Wants Delegates to National Convention Elected at Primaries.

The Message. The state legislature was called to order at noon Monday in special session to consider the matters to be presented for its consideration by Gov. Warner in his message.

To the forty-fourth legislature—Acting by virtue of authority vested in the governor by sec. 7, of Art. V, of the constitution of the state of Michigan, I have convened the legislature in extra session, sincerely believing that the failure of the legislature at its recent regular session to enact a better primary election law and to make necessary provision for the maintenance of Central Michigan Normal college fully warrants such action.

There cannot, I fully believe, be the slightest doubt in the mind of any candid person, who has given the matter even casual consideration that a vast majority of the people of Michigan desire that there be embodied in our statutes provisions which shall apply alike to all offices which they affect and which shall place the nomination of candidates for these offices absolutely and finally in the hands of the people, without recourse at any time or under any conditions to a delegate convention.

The demand of the people has been recognized in all primary election legislation thus far enacted in this state save only as such legislation applies to the nomination of candidates for governor and lieutenant governor. In all cases where it applies to the nomination of candidates for congress, the legislature, county and city offices, it provides that the candidate receiving the highest number of votes cast at the primary shall be the party nominated. In no case is there any reference whatever to a percentage, however small, of the total vote cast.

It is well known to all of you that the 40 per cent provision of the present law was included in that statute as a matter of necessary compromise. The house passed a general primary bill which contained no percentage feature. In this form the bill could not pass the senate, and in order that the best possible start toward the accomplishment of the reform demanded by the people might be made it was necessary to include the percentage provision. If this had not been done no primary legislation would have been enacted at that session of the legislature.

In 1906 a total of 864 candidates for political office, including candidates for state, congressional, legislative and county offices were nominated by direct vote. This number likewise included 79 subsequently successful candidates for seats in this honorable body. Yet in 862 of these cases no one ever for a moment thought of requiring that the successful candidates poll any given percentage of a total vote. It would be as reasonable to suggest that the constitution be amended so as to require that unless some party candidate for governor or lieutenant governor received 40 per cent of the total vote cast at the general election the choice of those officials should be made by the legislature as to make it necessary for a delegate convention to choose the party candidate if no person polls 40 per cent of the total vote cast at the primary.

Verdict Against Saloonkeeper. Jackson.—A circuit court jury awarded Mrs. Nettie Marrnane damages of $5,925 against Fred Miller, a former Grass Lake saloonkeeper, and his bondsmen, because Miller sold liquor to the woman's husband after he had been ordered not to do so.

declared elected to office in this state and no one has yet even thought of advocating a change in this provision of the constitution.

The fact is that no argument worthy of the name has been or will be advanced in support of the retention of the 40 per cent clause in the present primary law of Michigan. Beneath whatever may or can be said in support of this clause lies the desire of its advocates to preserve, if possible, the old delegate convention system and thus keep from the people the right to make these nominations themselves. This phase of the matter is so real that it needs simply be mentioned. Even those who in public strenuously advocate retention of the percentage clause—frankly admit in private the truth of this statement. It is hardly to be presumed that a delegate convention will come any nearer expressing the will of the people than will the people themselves by direct vote. The percentage provision of the primary law now on the statute books of this state should be repealed.

I am firmly of the opinion, too, that the members of the different political parties should be afforded the opportunity to elect by direct vote the delegates to the national conventions. Delegates to conventions act in a purely representative capacity and should be chosen by the most direct method. I know of no reason why the county and state conventions should come between the rank and file of the party and the national convention. The first and second choice of candidates for delegates should be indicated on the ballot. In any event it is altogether probable that there would be candidates for delegates whose presidential choice would be well known and in accord with well defined public sentiment.

This primary election could be arranged for with but little expense, as the delegates could be elected on the first Monday in April, an election day throughout the state. A general law of this kind for electing these delegates would prevent the holding of any caucuses and conventions long before the call for the national convention is issued and enable those who are expected to elect the nominees to have more to do with their nomination. In this connection, I desire to call your attention to the necessity of providing more stringent regulations governing the holding of county and district conventions in localities where the direct nomination system does not prevail. No convention should be called to elect delegates to a national state or district convention that has not been called. The other course is sometimes taken from good motives, no doubt but they are seldom made public. Cleaner politics and good government will be promoted by making such practices against the letter as well as the spirit of the law.

Experience has conclusively demonstrated that there should be but one primary day and upon that day all nominations under the provisions of the law should be made. This change would result in a large saving to the people. I would be pleased to see needed amendments made to existing special primary election laws affecting specified localities in order that all laws on this subject may be made as uniform and harmonious as possible. The extension of the primary election system to meet the demands of the people would have my approval.

The desire of the people of Michigan to directly participate in the nomination of candidates for United States senator is, I believe generally conceded. The method of grafting this overwhelming wish of your constituents in simple and thoroughly understood by all of you. By making provision in the primary law so as to permit the people of the state to nominate party candidates for United States senator by direct vote you will perform an act that will have the unqualified approval of the people of the state, regardless of political affiliations.

The lobby evil is no less dire and corrupting than it was when I directed your attention to it at the commencement of your regular session. At that time I said: In all matters of legislation the people are entitled to your best thought and most conscientious judgment, and you should see to it that your thought is not directed nor your judgment affected by any undue influence. Public hearings and the right of petition as to all matters coming before the legislature are legitimate methods of influencing legislation. The legislature should always be willing to grant public hearings to and receive petitions from all who may be interested in measures under consideration, whether those persons represent public or private interests. Aside from the hearings there should be no place, either in the legislative halls, the committee rooms or the lobby for the professional lobbyist. His right should simply be those enjoyed by the humblest citizen of the state. The professional lobbyist has no proper place in legislation and the sooner he is eliminated therefrom the better, not only for the public, but for the special interests by which he is employed.

The first step in this direction must necessarily be taken by the individual legislators in treating with contempt the introducer of any so called "straw" legislation designed for the sole purpose of attracting the attention of these special interests, thereby inviting them to either pay tribute or to employ the professional lobbyist in self defense. Such legislation and its sponsors should be publicly denounced and their real purpose exposed. All proposed legislation should stand or fall on its merits alone and any arguments as to those merits should stand the test of full publicity.

To Employ Private Detectives. St. Joseph.—Wealthy residents of the Lake Shore drive adopted resolutions, saying county officials were unable to cope with the criminals, and they have decided to employ detectives to guard their residences.

Salvation Army Plans Citadel. Flint.—The Salvation Army plans to build a $10,000 citadel here. Capt. Claude Ford has been transferred to Charlevoix and Capt. and Mrs. Stewart McKay of Fort Wayne, Ind., will take charge of the work.

There is a vast difference between proper and improper methods to influence legislation, and in whatever laws may be enacted on this subject a distinction should be made between them. I am in hearty accord with the doctrine laid down by the supreme court of the United States as far back as 1853, when in the case of Marshall vs. Baltimore & Ohio Railway Co. that tribunal said: "All persons whose interests may in any way be affected by any public or private act of a legislature have an undoubted right to urge their claims and arguments, either in person or by counsel, professing to act for them before legislative committees, as well as in courts of justice, but a hired agent assuming to act in a different character in practicing deceit on the legislature by means of services involving the use of secret means or the exercise of sinister or personal influences are illegal."

To legitimate services rendered in a legitimate way, no reasonable objection can be made. But all appearances for or against measures before the legislature should be made publicly and before the proper committee only. There should be no lobby that will not stand the light of the fullest publicity. Legislation of the nature I have in mind has already been enacted in New York, New Jersey, Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Missouri, Colorado and other states, and in recent conversation with the governors of several of these states I have been assured that it has very largely eliminated the evil at which it is directed.

I emphatically renew the recommendation previously made by me that you enact a law that will free this state from the corrupting influence of the professional lobbyist and provide for the registration and regulation of all persons who appear before the legislature or committees thereof to urge either the passage or defeat of pending measures. The law should not apply to duly accredited counsel or representatives of municipalities, public boards and public institutions.

An oversight in connection with the passage of the bill asking the regular biennial appropriation for the maintenance of the Central Michigan Normal College at Mt. Pleasant rendered that act invalid. In order to provide necessary funds for this praiseworthy institution, it is necessary that the required appropriation be made at this extra session.

THE STATE IN GENERAL

DETROIT GOES WILD OVER THE WINNING OF BASEBALL PENNANT.

WARD IS HELD FOR TRIAL.

Various Matters of Note and Comment From All Parts of the State Briefly Told.

Detroit and the Pennant. The strain of anxiety over the winning of the baseball pennant by Detroit's idolized "Tiges" was relieved on Saturday when the news came that the game with the St. Louis "Browns" was won. Then the shouting began. Staid business men joined in the yell of triumph, and the crowds in the streets gave vent to their pent up joy. Detroit's place on the map of fame was marked with the glowing colors and until a late hour of the night the throngs in the streets kept up the celebration of a glorious victory. Now the world's championship series are to come. Should Detroit's "Tiges" win that the result would be beyond conjecture. Just now there is glory enough. The "Tiges" won the pennant.

Table with columns: Team, Won, Lost, Per cent. Detroit: 92, 53, 613; Athletics: 88, 57, 607; Chicago: 87, 64, 576; Cleveland: 85, 67, 559; New York: 70, 78, 473; St. Louis: 69, 83, 453; Boston: 59, 80, 396; Washington: 49, 102, 325.

Ward Held for Trial. Representative Charles E. Ward took his seat in the special session of the legislature, with the knowledge of having been bound over to appear before the recorder's court of Detroit on a charge of manslaughter, in connection with the death of Edith Presley, senate profeeder, as the result of a criminal operation.

This decision was made known by Police Justice Jeffries after the hearing Saturday, although it was not officially recorded until Monday. No evidence was offered by the defense. Senator Arthur Tuttle, attorney for Ward, claimed that no evidence of crime on Ward's part had been brought out by the evidence.

Shrewd Move Failed. All of the property and money of the Flying Rollers, known also as the Children of Israel and the House of David, was turned over to Benjamin and Mary at a meeting at the colony headquarters near St. Joseph, and Benjamin believed that as a legal institution the church was passing out of existence.

Formerly the property of the colony has been held by a board of trustees who also had complete control of its affairs. No provision was made for the disposal of the property at the death of either of the "anointed" leaders, as the colonists hold the belief that they will never die.

It is believed that Benjamin will now branch out into the industrial fields, which he has contemplated for some time, providing the state does not stop him. He has already announced plans for an immense amusement park. The rules of the church do not provide for any pay for the workers and in the future Benjamin will reap the profits for himself.

Just at this point the Attorney General's department through Deputy Chase says the hope to escape prosecution from the state by taking over the effects of the society as his personal property was in vain.

"I had been advised that the opposite plan was to be put into effect," said Mr. Chase. "According to the information given to me Purnell would turn over everything to the colony but this plan is not an evasion of the law as was intended, and will not deter the state from continuing the prosecution. It will not make any difference, even if the colony turns in its charter as a society. It still exists as one, despite the use to make it appear a personal property."

A New Primary Law. The administrationists who drew the new primary election bill for presentation at the special session did not consult the attorney-general's department. That department has a draft of a bill which may or may not be offered to the law makers.

The feature of the new administration bill which is attracting the most attention is the section relative to the election of delegates to national conventions. The bill provides for their election at a spring primary, doing away entirely with conventions.

It also provides for the nomination of United States senators and requires all political parties to make nominations under the provisions in case any one political party adopts it. The administration men claim their bill provides a workable, comprehensive primary election system. It does not include any 40 per cent clause.

A copy of the bill will be introduced the first day of the session. Some of the state's lawyers are saying that it is full of legal blowholes.

Gideon Wentworth, for 50 years a resident of Genesee county, and a prominent farmer, is dead at the age of 85.

By the will of Miss Mary McNiff, deceased, in Pontiac, the Woman's hospital, of Detroit, will get $500. Many other bequests are made Miss McNiff devoted herself to unostentatious charity.

The supreme court decided that the Chicago, Kalamazoo & Saginaw railroad can pay for its right-of-way from the center of the city of Kalamazoo to the outskirts at the valuation of seven years ago. M. H. Lane and F. B. Lay, former owners, charged that contract made at that time was invalid and asked for the present value which is double that of seven years ago.

Electrician Found Dead. Jackson.—William Hill, 30 years old, an electrician employed by the Michigan Central railroad, was found dead on a couch at his home when his mother went to call him at bedtime.

ACQUITTED.

Senator Borah's Case Was Submitted Without Argument.

United States Senator William E. Borah was acquitted at Boise City, Idaho, of the charge of conspiracy to defraud the government of Idaho of timber lands.

The case was submitted without argument by the defense and the jury was out just long enough to take one ballot.

The verdict was greeted with cheers and applause which the court officers made no effort to restrain. As soon as the news reached the street bells were rung and the fire department made a spectacular run through the principal streets, stopping eventually at the Idaho hotel, whither Senator Borah, surrounded by several hundred citizens, was escorted.

A brass band appeared as if by magic and as the senator reached the hotel played "Hail to the Chief."

The streets about the hotel were blocked by a cheering throng whose shouts mingled with the fire engines' whistles and the clangs of trolley car bells.

Taft in Japan. Secretary of War Taft has sailed from Japan for Manila. Mr. Taft expressed himself as being greatly pleased with his visit to Japan, especially with the press comments in this country on his speech at the Tokyo banquet.

It develops that Mr. Taft, when he was received by the Japanese emperor at the capital and was afterwards entertained at luncheon by his majesty and the empress, was the personal guest of the emperor, a rare occurrence, invitations to such functions being usually sent through the embassy of the person to be honored, but in this case the invitation was sent direct to Mr. Taft.

Fifty-one Deaths. Fifty-one verified cases of bubonic plague have developed in San Francisco to date, according to the report being kept in the office of Dr. Blane, of the marine hospital, in charge of the work of eradication. There have been 50 deaths. About 30 suspects are under observation.

One of the 51 verified cases, Miss Kelling, a trained nurse at City and County hospital, has recovered and been discharged.

"But their release will be the most effectual way of spreading the news."

"On the contrary, they cannot make it known without exposing themselves. If they do that, Ferdinand will see to it that their respective sovereigns quietly but effectually remove them. Each of them is so well known that they may be arrested at any time. Ferdinand shrewdly makes them hostages, as it were. The three certainly will exert their great influence to check the rebellion they themselves have fostered. As for Gornji and Gortschakoff, before they are released from the hospital the crisis will have passed."

"And are we left to account for the deaths of Starva and Bratinan as best we may?" I questioned anxiously.

"If you remember, I told you at Lucerne that I am an old newspaper man. It is impossible to hide the fact that an attack has been made on Prince Ferdinand here to-night. But an attack by his own countrymen that has proved a disastrous failure is quite a different thing from a deliberate gathering here of representatives of each of the Balkan States. Ferdinand has taken my advice to post in haste to Sofia. I shall see to it that this night's work does not get into the papers until 24 hours have passed. By that time he will have shown himself safe and sound in Sofia. The episode of the death-mask will have proved a complete fiasco. My story will make Prince Ferdinand a hero triumphant over his foes and not a weak king who was lured here unwittingly by his mistress to his doom."

"There still remains Jacques."

"Oh, Jacques," said Locke, with contempt. "He was only a tool of Starva's and a stupid tool at that. It was he who was to lower the flag at half-mast, it seems—to give the signal to the conspirators who were watching in the village. But when he rushed to the chamber window to lower the flag he found both rope and fastenings wrenched away. He supposed that the gale had done this, but seeing the flag at half-mast, the rope being caught in the pulley, he said nothing about the matter to Starva. I suspect that you were responsible for the lowering of the flag, and not the gale."

"I needed the rope," I said, shortly, too impatient to make further explanation. "And now for my last question. What the devil did you mean when you said that you had promoted me? And why this haste that I leave Alterhoffen?"

"Are you so anxious then that it be known that you have been impersonating the British ambassador?"

"Scarcely," I said, uneasily.

"And, my dear fellow, Kuhn and the rest think that it was Sir Mortimer who came to the rescue of Prince Ferdinand, and not Mr. Ernest Haddon, an American tourist."

"But why do you allow them to think this?"

"Haddon, at times you are singularly dense. If these men believe that the British ambassador has been killed by one of their number while defending Ferdinand, do you not see that this will keep them even more silent regarding their share in this night's tragedy? For if England's ambassador were really murdered, you may be sure that she would not rest until she had brought the assassins to justice."

"You are right, Locke; I must leave Alterhoffen at once."

CHAPTER XXXVII.

The Second Dispatch. I was about to go to Helena in the music room to bid her good-by, when Capt. Forbes returned from his errand.

"Well, that's settled," he cried, joining us. "And do you agree with Locke and myself that it is wise that you should leave Alterhoffen before daybreak?"

"Perfectly."

He heard my decision with evident relief.

"You will accept my apology for mistrusting you, Haddon, and I hope we shall be friends," said he offering me his hand with a winning smile.

"But you must confess you gave me ample grounds for being a little wary of you. Before long we shall meet, and I shall hope to hear your reasons for going into this extraordinary adventure. In the meanwhile, may I trouble you for the dispatch I gave to you in the hotel at Vitznau, or did it fall into Starva's hand that night?"

"To prevent that I dropped it from the window into a disused fountain in the garden below."

"Where I found it," interrupted Locke. "Here it is, and please observe that the seals are unbroken."

"Frankly, Forbes," I said, "I thought you rather an idiot to give me an important dispatch that night. You must have seen that I was more or less in Starva's power, and that he was likely to gain possession of the papers."

"Had that dispatch fallen into his hands," replied Forbes. "It is quite possible that Ferdinand would have been saved his bad half hour. Do you remember I told you, my pseudo-ambassador (and you acted the part remarkably well, let me tell you), that I carried two dispatches for Sir Mortimer, and that I gave you the one of lesser importance?"

"Yes. And the second dispatch? Was it stolen from you by Starva when he trapped you in the tower?"

Forbes nodded. "I took the liberty of taking it from him just now."

"And may a humble American consul ask," drawled Locke, "how to-night's episode would have been averted had the dispatch you gave Haddon fallen into Starva's hands, instead of into the fountain?"

"My chief at Downing street would retire me, and with no pension, if he knew that I were going to divulge state secrets. However, I am going to tell you."

"This dispatch you have returned to me, I happen to know, authorized Sir Mortimer Brett to meet in conference the men who so very nearly snuffed out Ferdinand's life an hour ago. I am referring now to the dispatch which I gave you at Vitznau, Haddon. He was to assure these representatives of the various states that England realized that a harmonious confederation could alone permanently allay the present discontent in the Peninsula. Had Starva seen this dispatch it is not likely that he would have had recourse to violence."

"Do you mean to tell me," exclaimed Locke, incredulously, "that your ministers of the foreign office cherish so Utopian a scheme? Are the various kings to abdicate because England nods?"

"I am telling you nothing of the sort," chuckled Forbes. "You Americans are infants when it comes to the intricacies of diplomacy. Secret agents and spies at Sofia had warned the government of the intended uprising. It was necessary that England should know more of the conspirators. Therefore, Sir Mortimer was instructed to profess a sympathy for the cause which, of course, was not sincere. This dispatch Sir Mortimer or myself were to allow to be stolen if necessary. Its contents were explained to me before I left London, that I might repeat verbally the message, should the dispatch not reach him."

"Since you have already betrayed your government's confidence," said Locke, jocularly, "tell us the purport of the second dispatch."

"I will read it to you since the seals are broken," agreed Forbes after a moment's hesitation.

"To His Excellency, etc.—Sir: The same messenger who gives you this dispatch will deliver you another which authorizes you to treat with the committee of the various states of the Balkans, who have for their aim a confederation of these states. You will use the aforementioned dispatch at your discretion. It is needless to say that neither this ministry nor the other powers can for an instant sanction a scheme so impossible. But it has come to our knowledge that a dangerous conspiracy exists to overthrow the rulers of the various states. To check this conspiracy it may be well for you to temporize. If you think it expedient, permit the dispatch mentioned to fall into the hands of this committee. Capt. Forbes will follow the same course if necessary. He has full instructions to exercise his discretion in this matter."

"It is not without surprise that the ministry has learned of your promise to Ferdinand regarding England's support of his project, namely, the threatened invasion of Macedonia. Fortunately, the ministry is convinced that some such move as you sanction is expedient to free Macedonia from the atrocities of Turkish misrule that have shocked Europe so long. His majesty's ministry therefore is inclined to overlook in this instance any undue bias you have shown in espousing Macedonia's cause."

"If you are convinced that the financier of New York city whom you have named is sincere in his offer to give Prince Ferdinand financial support, you are authorized to tell him that his majesty's ministers are heartily in favor of Prince Ferdinand's invasion, and will exert every influence to insure him unrestricted action. Moreover, the foreign office is in full accord with your views as to the sum of money indispensable to Ferdinand's project."

"But while his majesty's government agrees with you that lofty principles actuate Bulgaria, it realizes with yourself that lofty principles are not sufficient to insure the success of Ferdinand's cause."

"In conclusion, we hasten to assure you of our fullest sympathy in your endeavor to help an oppressed people gain their liberty; and that it is not without satisfaction we find ourselves enabled to further your personal wishes and ambitions in this matter. Nor need you have anxiety that your own interests will run counter to those of England. We view with concern the precarious state of your health; but we trust that it will not prove an obstacle to your contemplated meeting of the financier at the conference at Alterhoffen at the chateau of Prince Ferdinand's secret agent. With renewed expressions of our complete confidence in you,

"Believe me, sir, etc."

"Haddon," said Locke, not a little crestfallen, "I was ruefully wide of the mark in my conjectures concerning Sir Mortimer's relations with the Countess Sarahoff. I told you that morning at Lucerne that I was behind the scenes. I confess myself the veriest amateur."

Never has writing thrilled me as did that dispatch. A great light was dawning on me. I clutched the paper. I held it with a trembling hand.

"Forbes," I cried, hoarsely, "once, though quite unwillingly, I tricked you out of the dispatch Locke just returned to you. But now I ask you to give me for half an hour the dispatch you have just read. It means everything to Sir Mortimer's sister. Man, there has been more devilry in this Castle of Lies than you are aware of. The honor of Sir Mortimer himself is at stake. This dispatch will help to save it. Give me the paper that I may show it to Miss Brett."

"I have been too much astonished at the events of the past 24 hours to wonder at your request. Take your dispatch, but you will return it intact."

"You need have no fear as to that. But I have still another request; the papers you saw me take from the safe, which Madame de Varnier wrestled from me—they belong to Miss Brett."

He hesitated.

"On my honor, they concern no one but her. What! Do you still mistrust me?"

"No, my dear fellow."

He placed the packet in my hand. I entered the music room to bring to Helena tidings of great joy.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

Tidings of Great Joy.

She stood at the open window looking out on the mountains in the far distance. They were phantoms of despair beckoning to her in the moonlight. They had brought suffering to her as well as to myself; for had I not gone to Lucerne, and told her the story of my cowardice, perhaps she would have been spared the knowledge of her brother's disgrace.

"Dear," I said gently, "do you remember the little beacon that shone long after the lights on Pilatus and Rigi had flickered out? That little light put heart into me then. It tells you to hope now."

"There is no light on the mountains over there to-night."

"It may burn though you do not see it. The packet I took from the safe, have you destroyed it?"

"I was about to do so as you entered. Here it is."

"Capt. Forbes has just given me the second packet—the one that Madame de Varnier took from me forcibly. It is possible that its contents concern your brother. May I open it?"

"Yes," she said listlessly.

"I tore open the packet with deliberation, though heavens knows my fingers trembled. I spread the paper on the piano, where I had shown Madame de Varnier the death-mask the evening before. I read them one after the other. The proof was absolute. Sir Mortimer's honor could no longer be questioned. Fools, we had been and blind."

"Helena," I said, mastering my emotion with an effort "it is as I thought; these papers throw a flood of light on the letters and notes of your brother that we have so harshly misunderstood."

"She came swiftly to my side. 'Harshly misunderstood!' she repeated with blanched lips."

I was sorting carefully the papers Helena had just given me, the letters supposed to have been written by the committee of freedom, and to which Sir Mortimer's comments were pinned. I laughed aloud when I saw that these letters, supposed to be the originals were typewritten, as were the copies.

Now I understood why Madame de Varnier had refused to let me see what she called the original papers. It was not so much that she feared I should destroy them, she knew that the fact of their being typewritten would at once awaken my suspicion.

"Did it not occur to you as being rather suspicious that these letters were written on a typewriter?"

"At first it did," replied Helena, searching my face wonderingly. "But she quitted my doubts by explaining to me that the letters were typed to prevent the possibility of their being traced."

"The ingenious Madame de Varnier!"

Helena did not speak, her agitation was too great for words. She watched me, at once bewildered and eager, while I read the contents of both packets carefully once more. When I had read them, I sorted them as less carefully. For ten minutes there was silence between us.

"Helena," I said with a deep sigh, when I had finished my task, "once to-night I said this was a Castle of Lies, but I did not realize until now how surely I spoke the truth. These letters are forgeries!"

"Impossible," she murmured, wringing her hands in anguish. "I know my brother's writing too well."

"Follow me carefully, and you will see that I speak the truth. I do not question your brother's handwriting. But listen first of all to this dispatch which was taken from Capt. Forbes when he was trapped in the tower. Tell me if any of the expressions in it are familiar to you."

"Yes, yes," she cried eagerly, when I had finished. "Lofty principles actuate Bulgaria, but lofty principles are not sufficient to insure success; you need have no anxiety that your own interests will run counter to those of England; the references to the loan, to my brother's indiscretion, to his ambitions—all these appear in my brother's notes in connection with the letters of the committee of freedom."

"Now read these letters—the contents of the second packet. They were written to your brother by Prince Ferdinand himself, and deal with the loan to be floated by the banker to finance Ferdinand's invasion of Macedonia. The notes and comments of your brother have reference, not to these typewritten letters, which were never written by any committee of freedom, which were never received by Sir Mortimer, but are the cunning fabrications of that woman—but to these letters of Ferdinand. Look, you can see the pins pierced each of Ferdinand's letters. As I place your brother's notes on the respective letters to which they have reference, the pins mark fit precisely. You may still cherish proudly the motto of your house: 'Honor, my sword!'"

"Ernest, if this be true—"

"It is true," I said firmly, and I drew her to me. "I must leave Alterhoffen to-night, Helena. It must not be known that I have been mistaken for your brother. I am going to find Madame de Varnier. When I return to you I shall bring with me her written confession. And when I return, sweetheart? You Bretts, you have told me, are a proud race. Disgrace you would bear alone. But your happiness?"

"Our happiness," she said shyly, "we share with others."

(The End.)

When Courage Failed.

"A man should always have the courage of his convictions." "Yes," answered the member of congress gloomily; "but when it comes to voting to increase your salary even the stoutest heart is liable to forget its high sense of justice and moral duty."

From the State Capital

Information and Gossip Furnished by Special Correspondent at Lansing.

Lansing.—Gov. Warner has issued commissions to the members of the new railway commission—Cassius L. Glasgow, of Nashville; James Scully, of Ionia; and George W. Dickinson, of Pontiac. The members of the commission met Monday to take the oath of office and organize the board, after which they took an adjournment for about two weeks. Commissioner Glasgow will go to Washington to attend the meeting of the National Association of Railroad Commissioners, and Commissioner Dickinson will go to Ohio to familiarize himself with the workings of the railway commission of that state. Commissioner Scully is expected to remain in Michigan and study railroad law until the board convenes. He will probably be in charge of the office of the commission in the capitol, as the law provides for the presence of one of the commissioners at Lansing at all times. As a result of the creation of the new commission the expense of the railroad department will be considerably increased. Railroad Commissioner Glasgow receives $2,500 a year, but all three commissioners will receive a $3,000 salary. The salary of the mechanical engineer of the department, James Bice, will be increased from $1,500 to $2,500, so that the salaries of the department officials will be $7,500 per year more than at present. Traveling expenses will be increased proportionately as the commission will have to make a good many journeys about the state. One of the first duties which the commission will undertake will be to make an inspection of the electric railways of the state, and to advise all the railway companies regarding the nature of the reports they will be expected to make to the department.

Michigan Pythians Elect Officers.—The Pythian grand lodge in session at Bay City elected officers, raising the entire roster and selecting C. W. Nichols, of Lansing, for grand officer guard, the foot of the grand lodge ladder S. G. Carlton, Sault Ste. Marie vice grand chancellor, becoming grand chancellor, Ira G. Curry, Oroyso, becomes vice grand chancellor, F. C. Wetmore, Cadillac, grand prelate, W. E. Hampton, Charlevoix, grand keeper of records and seal, C. D. Neahr, Grand Rapids, grand master of exchequer, Franz C. Kuhn, Mt. Clemens, grand master at arms, Victor Hawkins, Jonesville, grand inner guard, J. M. Draper, Pontiac, was elected grand trustee, and George L. Lusk, Bay City, and C. A. Palmer, Manistee, were re-elected supreme representatives. The past five years has proven the best in five years for the order, the gain in membership being 1,281. New lodges were instituted at Union City, Prattville and Constantine. The grand lodge has a balance in its treasury of $5,788, and its disbursements for the year were $12,714.

Detroit Woman President.—More than 100 delegates attended the annual meeting of the Women's Foreign and Home Missionary societies of the Presbyterian synod of Michigan at Kalamazoo. The officers elected for the next year are: President, Mrs. D. M. Cooper, of Detroit, first vice president, Mrs. Fenwick W. Fraser, of Jackson, second vice president, Mrs. J. M. Travis, of Plainwell, recording secretary, Mrs. Fred D. Johnson of Lapeer, secretary for young people's work, Mrs. W. L. Cheney, of Mason, corresponding secretary, Mrs. Andrew Urquhart, of Wyandotte, home committee, Mrs. D. M. Cooper, and Mrs. J. M. Barkley, of Detroit.

Michigan Ranks Sixth.—Past Supreme President Willes, of Chicago, stated at the session of the supreme lodge of the Sons of St. George at Calumet that the order has shown a net gain of 6,000 members during the past term, Massachusetts showing the largest gain. Pennsylvania has the largest membership, Michigan ranking sixth. The total membership of the order is 27,000. The treasurer's report showed a balance on hand of $373,000.

No. 13 Followed Warner.—Gov. Warner says that the number 13 followed him on his trip with the president. At Canton he attended a dinner in honor of President Roosevelt, at which he had plate No. 13. He also occupied the thirteenth carriage in the parade at St. Louis. The governor takes the coincidence as a good omen. "It is my lucky number," he writes.

Warner Ready for Business.—Gov. Warner was closely associated with President Roosevelt on his journey down the Mississippi river to Memphis. During his association with the president he acquired some of the strenuousness which characterizes the nation's chief executive. He will need it for the special session of the legislature. It is planned to put the primary election proposition up at once. The primary law was the subject of discussion at a conference at the home of Senator Huntley Russell, at Grand Rapids.

Ask Restraint Removed.—Attorney General Bird has decided to ask the circuit court for Berrien county to dissolve its injunction restraining State Dairy and Food Commissioner Bird from publishing that sausages manufactured by the Armour company, of Chicago, contain cereal. The state's contention is that an injunction cannot be used to prevent criminal prosecutions, but may only be used to prevent an invasion of property rights. The case forms a precedent and the outcome is watched with interest.

Survivors of Valiant Command.—Thirty survivors of the 170 now living who went into the civil war with the First Michigan sharpshooters met here in Grand Army hall for the twenty-fourth annual reunion of that famous regiment. On arriving in the city the veterans gathered in the hall about ten o'clock in the morning, marching from the Union station, and the morning was spent in a business session and the telling of reminiscences. In the afternoon a trolley car ride was enjoyed to the college. Waverly park and about the city. The officers elected by the association for the coming year follow: President, John E. Stry, Syria, Mich.; vice president, Robert Farrell, Toledo, O.; secretary, George W. Stone, Lansing; assistant secretary, A. A. Nichols, Lansing; treasurer, Peter Stevens, Kalamazoo. The next meeting will be held at Toledo at the date of the national encampment. Only one of the regimental officers, Quartermaster D. G. Palmer, of Jackson, was present. This regiment was mustered into service in July, 1863, at Kalamazoo, having been organized in the fall of the previous year. It was with the Army of Virginia and fought in the battles before Richmond from the Wilderness-fight, May 5, 1864, to the close of the war. Among the notable battles in which it was engaged were Spotsylvania Court House, Ox Fork, Petersburg Crater and Fort Steadman. It figured prominently in the siege of Petersburg, from June 17, 1864, to April 3, 1865. The commander of the regiment was Col. C. W. DeLand. The sharpshooters went into the war with 1,364 men. Four officers and 65 men were killed in action, two officers and 42 men died later as the result of wounds, and 150 men as the result of disease, making a total loss during the war of 263 men. Only 170 names are carried now on the rolls of the association. Since the last reunion 25 men have died or dropped out of sight.

State Wide Prohibition Campaign.—A campaign for state wide prohibition and against the sale of coca-cola is being inaugurated by the Central W. C. T. U. The movement was started at a meeting here September 28, the birthday of the great founder of the society, Miss Frances E. Willard. The ladies were reminded of her life and character by quotations given by different members from her sayings and writings. Mrs. S. B. Wiley read an article relating to the action of the war department at Washington in regard to the ill effects of the use of coca-cola by soldiers, an order having been issued prohibiting the use of the drink in the army. The president gave a short history of the state constitution, and emphasized the importance of the work of the coming constitutional convention. In this connection it was reported that the society is conducting an active campaign for signatures to petitions to the convention asking that a prohibition clause be inserted in the constitution.

Warner Among First Two-Cent Riders.—Gov. Warner was one of the first men in Michigan to take advantage of the two-cent railroad rate, purchasing a ticket at the Lansing union station for Plymouth under the new rate—$1.26. A few days ago there was a rumor that in revenge for the two-cent law some of the railroads would discontinue Sunday trains on many of their lines. The Grand Trunk will run no Sunday trains in or out of Grand Rapids during the winter, but it is declared that this has no connection with the two-cent rate law. Sunday excursions will continue as usual under the two-cent rate, but at the old prices. Special week-day or convention rates, commutation tickets, and party fares have been discontinued by all roads.

Potato Growers Organize.—The American Society of Equity in state convention at Traverse City organized two new branches, a potato growers' association and a woman's auxiliary. The potato growers' officers are: President, F. M. Hammond, Traverse City; vice president, J. Howley, East Jordan; secretary and treasurer, E. W. Van Fleet. The officers of the woman's auxiliary are: President, Mrs. James Howley, East Jordan; vice president, Mrs. Charles A. Mason, Sherwood; secretary, Miss Julia Ball, Hamburg; treasurer, Mrs. Mathew Hamilton, Willamsburg.

The Governor's Message.

It is difficult to comprehend how the legislature can ignore the recommendations made by Gov. Warner in his message to the special session without going directly against what the people at large are demanding.

Should Be No Politics in Con-Con Convention.

Some of the newspapers of the State are devoting considerable space to a discussion of the probability of politics figuring extensively in the deliberations and work of the forthcoming constitutional convention.

Now that the Hon. H. S. Earle has announced his candidacy for the republican nomination for governor, it will probably be well for other ambitious gentlemen to look out for the road roller and the stone crusher.

WE CANNOT SAY TOO MUCH FOR PE-RU-NA

These Women Say, in Substance, That Before They Took Pe-ru-na They Were Miserable. They Were Weak and Wretched. After Taking Pe-ru-na They Were Restored to Health and Usefulness. This is the Whole Story in a Nutshell. If Pe-ru-na Can Do Such Wonders For These Women It Can Do the Same For You.

Mrs. E. T. Gaddis, Marion, N. C., writes: "Before I commenced to take Peruna I could not do any hard work without suffering great pain. I took Peruna and Manalin, and can say with pleasure they have done more for me than any other medicine I have ever taken."

The housewife is the one who is best able to judge of the relative merits of family medicines. It is she that knows the many uses of Peruna in the family.

Mrs. A. E. Stouffer, Capoma, Kansas, writes: "Peruna has given me health and strength; it is the best medicine that was ever made for women. My friends say they never saw such a change in a woman. I talk to every one about Peruna. I cannot say too much for it."

Mrs. Caroline Sundheimer, Clarks, La., writes: "I am feeling quite well now. I can work again and am stronger than I have been for years, and I do believe that Peruna saved my life."

From Grateful Women. "I was troubled with suppressed and painful menstruation. I took Peruna according to your directions, and now I am well."—Mrs. James Eighmey, Grape, Mich.

"We have been using Peruna for some time. To speak from a standpoint of experience I can candidly say that Peruna is the remedy for female weakness. From a personal test and from the testimony of many others I shall not hesitate to recommend it, especially to all suffering women."—Mrs. M. F. Jones, Burning Springs, Ky.

"I suffered from catarrh for many years, but since taking Peruna I feel strong and well. As I used Peruna and Manalin while I was passing through the change of life, I am positively convinced your beneficial remedies have relieved me of all my ills."—Mrs. Mathilde Richter, Doniphan, Neb.

"I suffered with pelvic catarrh until I wrote to Dr. Hartman, and after taking treatment as he advised, I can say I am cured of this most trying affliction, for which I am truly thankful I never felt better in my life than I do at present."—Mrs. Etta Booker, Dandurn, Sack, N. W. T. Can.

Boys' Suits Made for Us

We are not satisfied to simply sell the same kind of clothing that any other store gives for a like price. In Boys' Suits, for instance, we have a specialty at $5.00. It is the "American Boy" Suit: Comes in all sizes from 8 to 17 years and in various styles, with plain or belted coats and straight knee or knickerbocker trousers. We have the "American Boy" Suit made to our special order from carefully selected materials and we laid down rigid specifications for the manufacturers to follow. Fabrics must be all wool, linings clean and durable, and not one item of scamp work is allowed. "American Boy" Suits, to satisfy us, must be as good as their name signifies—staunch, honest, reliable and always in the front rank. You can select from an extensive variety of cloths, such as Cheviots, Worsteds and Cassimeres in plain blue and black, fancy mixtures, overplaids, checks and stripe patterns. All at $5.00. The trade-mark is a guarantee of satisfaction. If a buyer lets us know of a suit that goes wrong, we will make it right.

The "American Boy" Magazine Given Free

When you make a purchase of Boys' Clothing here to the amount of $5.00 or more, we give you a subscription card for the "American Boy" magazine. It is good for twelve issues—a whole year. This magazine is published monthly and sells at ten cents per copy. Nothing in the way of literature for boys can surpass it, as the columns are always clean, interesting and instructive. We have handled the "American Boy" for many years, and do not know of a single subscriber who would be willing to give up this paper for any other. All parents who are careful of their boy's training, appreciate the value of such reading matter as is furnished in the "American Boy" magazine. Sample copies here for your inspection.

The Best Laxative for Children.

Parents should see to it that their children have one natural, easy movement of the bowels each day. Do not dose the child with salts or griping pills, as they are too powerful in effect, and finally tear their little insides to pieces, leaving the bowels weakened and less able to act naturally than before. Laxative Iron-coated Tablets tone and strengthen the bowels, and stimulate all the little organs to healthy activity. Chocolate coated tablets, easy to take, never grip or nauseate. 10c, 25c and $1.00.

The Sixty-fourth annual meeting of the Michigan Convention of Universalist churches and the convention of the Y. P. C. U. will be held in the Universalist church at Plymouth, Oct. 14-15-16, beginning Monday at 7:30 a. m. A fine program has been prepared and a number of prominent speakers from different parts of the state are expected. Meals will be served in the church vestry. The public is cordially invited to attend these meetings.

An Ideal Laxative.
Physics and Cathartics which purge, unload the bowels, and give temporary relief, but irritate, and weaken the digestive and expulsive organs. Laxative Iron-coated Tablets are so different in effect as truth is from falsehood. They nourish the bowel muscles and nerves, giving them strength and vigor to do the work nature intended, thus effecting a permanent cure by perfectly safe and natural means. The best laxative for children. Chocolate coated tablets, easy to take, never grip or nauseate. 10c 25c and $1.00 at all drug stores. For sale and recommended by Murdock Bros., Druggists.

SERIAL STORY

Mr. Barnes, American

By Archibald Clavering Guster
A Sequel to Mr. Barnes of New York

Author of "Mr. Barnes of New York," "Mr. Potter of Texas," "That Frenchman," Etc.

Copyright, 1907, Dodd Mead & Co., N. Y.

CHAPTER I.

The Shock in the Marseilles Depot.

"I wonder if I can head off those cursed Corsican murder enthusiasts?" mutters Mr. Barnes, of New York, as he stands on the deck of the French steamer with Marseilles looming up in the heat mist ahead of him on a May morning of 1882, after the "escape of the bridal party from Corsica."

There are very few passengers, Barnes' gold having sent the steamer back on her return voyage to Marseilles within two hours after her arrival at Ajaccio.

His glance is turned contemplative beyond the whirling, eddying wake of the propeller's foam toward that curious island of a semi-mediaeval race, 200 miles behind him, whose rugged mountain slopes and chestnut valleys are the home of that undying revenge that the Corsicans think is noble, that they worship, deify and call the Vendetta.

"I can see the Pharos light-house and the Hes des Perdus."

"Why, we are nearly at Marseilles," ejaculates Enid.

"Yes, only breakfast between us and every-day France" returns her escort. "Now just run down and direct Thompson to get your traps together and then tell Edwin to hurry Marina. They should be on deck. You know as soon as landed, we'll get right on to London. We can probably catch the morning train."

Miss Anstruther's answer makes Burton chew his moustache; she says: "If Marina is strong enough."

"Strong enough? She's got to be strong enough. We must get out of France. The further we are away from Corsica, the better. In France they don't need a reciprocity treaty to take us back to that mediaeval island. There is no telling what devilish complexion the natives of Boccognano may put upon the two dead men we left behind us. I don't want to alarm you—I wouldn't say this to Edwin or his bride—but the sooner we are out of France, the better."

"And you think that will be the end of the matter?" asks his fiancée, clinging closely to his arm as if Mr. Barnes were potent to save her from the whole Corsican race.

"Well, I think it would have been had we got away without old Tomasso killing Count Danella and the French carabinieri shooting old Tomasso. As it is"—Barnes pauses suddenly and asks abruptly: "Did poor old Tomasso Monaldi have any close relatives? Not so very close, either. Cousins, even to the second and third degree often take a hand in these barbaric feuds."

"I believe while I was there," answers Miss Anstruther, "I heard a daughter spoken of. Etheria, she was called—the betrothed, I understand, of that mediaeval young cavalier who acted as bridesman and made that awful Smollet speech to Marina. Young Bernardo Saliceti, a member of the local governing body, ambitious to be elected to represent Corsica in the French chamber of deputies."

"Humph, a young Corsican swell betrothed to the daughter of the man

an old Corsican, who, costumed in the best broad-brim sombrero and silver buttoned coat, is seated upon a hen coop—and economically eating some hard-boiled eggs and roasted chestnuts he has produced from his pockets.

"You don't remember me, old Mateo," remarks Barnes, gazing at the ancient innkeeper of the auberge I Pescatori.

"By the blessings of the saints, I do, honored Signore Barnes, of New York," replies the representative of old Corsica, his eyes lighting up with a lurid glow. "A grand duel that we arranged on the beach a year ago! Al Ajaccio has been out to see where Antonio died and Marina took the oath of the vendetta. It helped business grandly. Has she killed yet?" The old man's tone is moodily eager.

"Not yet," answers Barnes, sententiously.

"Per Baccho, I saw her with another English officer in the stern a few minutes since. They say she's wedded to him. Hasn't found the man who slew her brother, but given her beauty to another of his accursed race. 'Thi shame on Corsica!' mutters the old vendettaist, disgustedly.

"I believe on the morning of the duel," interjects Burton, "you were kind enough, Mateo, to give me quite a little history of the vendetta on which you seem to be an authority, how your father, a fisherman, fell in one, and you drowned the man who killed your father."

"Ah, that memory is a pleasant one Signore. I can always sleep in peace my enemy had no relatives or descendants."

"But where there are relatives and descendants, the feud goes on?" The American knocks the ashes from his cigar.

"Until there are no more left, of course! Even to all who bear the name or have a drop of the blood in their veins if they are men and Corsicans," answers old Mateo, stoutly.

"Ah, but you seem quite an authority on the subject. But are these feuds ever permitted to include women as victims?" asks the American, his eyes very anxious.

"Maladetto, why not? Women produce two-thirds of the vendettas," mutters the old man, sardonically.

Mr. Barnes turns moodily away from this cruel aspect of the infernal passion of unending revenge. As he enters the dining saloon and seats himself beside Miss Enid, he mutters to himself: "By Jove, am I losing my nerve?" for the thought that his delicate fiancée may possibly be drawn into the horrible blood feud has produced a new sensation in his veins.

"And You Think That Will Be the End of the Matter?"

lilled on the mountain. Besides, I've heard the dead Musso speak of a half brother, Corsican on the mother's side—one Corregio Cipriano Danella. De Belloc mentioned him as we rode down the mountain. Corregio lives most of the time in southern France, but has the damnable ethics of his island," mutters Burton, then he suddenly checks himself, for Edwin Anstruther is bringing his bride up the companionway to the deck.

Every time her eye lights on her bridegroom, the flush of happiness transforms the bride's face into a dream of passionate loveliness. Each time she touches the arm of Edwin Anstruther, Barnes notes that her slight fingers cling to the young Englishman's stout muscles as if to be certain a living husband is beside her and she is not bereft. Still there is a confidence in the young Corsican lady's bearing that makes the American, who now considers himself as her physician, more hopeful of her physical strength.

"Ah, Marseilles is ahead of us, dear Dr. Barnes," she says, her dark eyes lighting up in their enthusiastic southern way. "To-morrow, Paris, the next day, London, where, Edwin tells me, you hope to be happy, happy as—"

"As I am," interjects Anstruther. "Enid has promised to make you so, hasn't she, my boy? And I'll see that she does it. No delays for trousseau; minister to the mast and sentence executed at once on that young lady who is putting her head over the taffrail to hide her blushes, which she'll pretend come from the sea air."

Please attend to Marina's blushes, Edwin, they're enough for any man to take care of," laughs Miss Anstruther.

"Yes, and take Mrs. Anstruther in to breakfast," commands Barnes, deftly giving Marina her English name, thinking it will impress upon her that she is no more a Corsican.

"Breakfast!" says Mr. Anstruther, promptly, and leads his bride into the dining saloon.

"Though I am not married, I am hungry also," remarks Enid, sententiously.

"All right, step in quick," returns Burton, but pausing at the cabin door, he whispers: "Excuse me a moment. I see an old friend forward."

"What you are not going to sit by my side?" pouts his fiancée.

"In a minute. Order my breakfast for me."

A minute later he is standing among the few third-class passengers in the extreme bow of the boat, addressing the ladies are below getting their little baggage together, assisted by Edwin Barnes, who has already seen a waiter on shore to bring a carriage with an after breakfast cigar between his teeth, is pacing the deck of the vessel.

A bright, smart little telegraph boy flies up the gangplank. After asking directions of the first officer, he steps to Mr. Barnes and hands him a blue envelope.

DIDN'T PURCHASE THE MINE.

Prospective Owners Knew Not Where to Get Pack-Train Needed.

The secretary of an eastern company that some time ago was anxious to purchase a silver-lead mine in the northwest tells of an amusing incident in the negotiations for its purchase. As the ore assayed well and every thing looked propitious, a mining expert was sent to examine the mine. His report was favorable, too favorable, in fact, and aroused the suspicions of the would-be purchaser; so it was determined to investigate more closely. At this point a well-known mining man of Butte recommended that a certain rough-and-ready genius should be sent to look at the mine. "You can depend upon his judgment," the mining man said. "You can trust to his report, which in all probability will be brief and very much to the point." The advice was followed. As predicted, the report was short and pithy. It read substantially as follows: "Gents, I have made an examination of the X— mine, and report that the ore is there as represented, that it assays high; that it is there in plenty, but to get your supplies in and your ore out, you will need a pack train of bad eagles."—Harper's Weekly.

Foe to Race Suicide.

The problem of race suicide will be smothered by the better housing of working people. As the result of an experiment—costing $1,500,000—by an English manufacturer, a garden colony for employes is reported to have a birth rate of 56 and a death rate of only nine per 1,000, while the child ren of seven are three inches taller and seven pounds heavier and those of 11 years are five and one-half inches taller and 20 pounds heavier, than the average of children of the same ages among the laboring classes of Liverpool.

Oldest Tunnel in the World.

Glenfield tunnel, on the Leicester & Swannington railway, in England, is the oldest tunnel in the world. It is about a mile long, and is the oldest section of the Midland company's system. Only four passenger trains pass through the tunnel each week day, and from Saturday night until Monday morning the tunnel is closed by a padlocked door at either end.

Glen's Deception

By Mrs. L. F. Templeton

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles)

"And you expect a young man to fly on the wings of love to his sister?"

"Perhaps not ordinarily, Alice, but it seems different with Ralph and me. We have not seen each other for ten years. And now, at last, when he is coming home, this is the way he writes:

"Dear Sister Glen—Expect to reach New York by the twenty-eighth of this month. Do not look for me at the seminary until a week later. I will want to look around New York a little, and will probably run down to Washington and hunt up Uncle Henry before coming on west. I can only spend a day or two with you then, little girl, for Uncle is very impatient for me to reach New Orleans."

"Affectionately,"

"RALPH MASON."

Glen read this in a tragic tone and, when she had finished, looked up at her cousin, her face expressing the utmost indignation.

Alice looked at Glen's excited face with amusement.

"You wanted to make this visit with him. You are here. What are you finding fault about? It is as you planned, after all."

"No, Alice, it is not. I might just as well go back to Chicago. I was not expected here, and I only feel myself in Ralph's way. I shall go back," said Glen decidedly.

"Oh, Ralph, My Darling!" She Cried, "Are You Dead?"

Glen had been left an orphan when she was three years old. Her brother Ralph, a bright boy five years older, had been adopted by an old friend of his father's, Dr. Lowery, a prominent physician in New Orleans.

Ralph and Glen spent their childhood with their Uncle Henry in the west, but when Ralph was 15 his guardian took him to Europe to be educated as a physician.

His Uncle Henry soon after left the farm and moved to Washington. Glen had fitted herself for a music teacher, and now held the position of vocal teacher in a Chicago seminary. Ralph thought he was prepared for all the changes that awaited him, but, after all, it was to the little Glen of the farm his letters were written. They were kind and affectionate, but their tone, as if addressed to a child, always galled Glen, and this last letter exasperated her beyond measure.

"I really believe, Alice," she said, "if I could be transformed into the little girl he left, with the gingham dress and sunbonnet, he would not show any surprise whatever."

Alice did not answer for a moment, but sat looking at Glen's flushed face with a mischievous look shining in her eyes.

"Glen," she said at last, "I have an idea. He will come here—as he said. Father is away, but Ralph must stay a day or two, any way, to see Washington. I will introduce you as a school friend, Pink Glenwood. He will never know you, and, after a few days, we will let him know who you are. You remember it was Ralph who was always playing jokes on us. He will see we have really grown up and can turn the tables on him. What do you say?"

"It will be all right if we can carry it out, and I think we can, for, coming as I did unexpectedly last night, no one knows who I am."

A more dignified, self-possessed young lady Ralph Mason had never met than his cousin's friend, Miss Glenwood.

"I am sorry father is not at home," Ralph. Alice said at breakfast. "But he will only be gone a few days, and you must stay and see Washington. I can show you and Miss Glenwood the sights together."

Ralph's dreams were haunted that night by visions of liquid brown eyes, masses of dark curling hair and red, smiling lips.

How rapidly the days flew by! The young people spent the time in sight-seeing, driving and picnicking.

On Saturday of the third week Ralph had been with them, Alice received a letter from her father, saying he would be home that evening. That afternoon the three went to the Capitol. While there Glen wanted to go to the top of the dome. Now Alice could never climb the stairs without being overcome with dizziness, so she agreed to wait for them in the rotunda. Ralph and Glen had admired the beautiful city beneath them, had located the different public buildings and places of interest they had visited together, had examined critically the beautiful painted ceiling of the dome, and, after a half hour's absence, were ready to go down and see what had become of Alice.

"Let me go behind you," said Glen, as Ralph offered his hand to help her down the first flight of steps.

"Are you not afraid of falling?" he asked over his shoulder. Scarcely had he spoken when the heel of his shoe caught one of the steps, and he fell headlong. The flight was not a long one, but it was quite a fall, and Ralph, stunned for a moment, lay with closed eyes on the landing below.

Glen was terribly frightened. She fairly flew down the stairs. She raised his head upon her lap, and kissed his white lips. "Oh, Ralph, my darling!" she cried. "Are you dead?"

Ralph struggled upon his knees; his eyes were shining with passion. He caught her hands in his and covered them with kisses.

"If I were dead," he whispered passionately, "your voice would call me back from the very grave, my angel!"

For a moment Glen stood with face blanched, eyes dilated, and breath coming in gasps—then she wrenched her hand from his grasp and darted like a wild thing down the stairs.

When he reached the rotunda he found Alice alone. They searched everywhere, but could find no trace of her, and then hurried home.

"Has Miss Glenwood come?" Alice asked the girl who answered their ring.

"Yes, miss; she's come and gone."

"Gone!" cried Alice, dumfounded. "Gone where?"

"I dunno, miss, she had a hack and tuk her trunk."

"Took her trunk!" Alice staggered back against the wall. "That will do, Susan," she said to the girl, who stood staring, open mouthed.

She glanced at Ralph. He was very pale.

"Ralph Mason!" she cried. "By all that's good, what have you done? There! Don't look at me like that! Go in and sit down, and I will see if I can find out anything upstairs."

On her table Alice found a blotted, tear-stained note. "Dear Alice," it read. "Ralph has fallen in love with me, and he does not know. He will never forgive me! I can never tell him! I cannot see him. I have gone to Chicago. Tell him, Alice. Oh, I am the most miserable, miserable, miserable of girls!"

Then, after all, Ralph did not know. He might forgive it from Glen, never from her. She looked at her watch, just five o'clock.

"Ralph!" she called, flying down the stairs. "She has started for Chicago. Get a hack—bring her back—if not go with her."

Ralph got into Chicago in the evening. He was tired, so went directly to a hotel, and to bed. The next morning he enjoyed a good breakfast, smoked a cigar and visited a barber shop, before starting in search of the seminary.

"Tell Miss Mason a gentleman wishes to see her," he said to the girl who stood waiting.

"Some one in the parlor wants to see you," called the girl a moment later, as she knocked at Glen's door. Now, to Glen, Ralph's passionate words had been utterly unexpected. She had wanted him to feel a little sold when he found what a joke had been played upon him, but that things should take such a serious turn had never entered her mind. Her first impulse had been to get away. She knew what time the limited left for Chicago, so she had called a hack and was driven to her uncle's. There she hurriedly packed her trunk, scribbled a few lines to Alice, drove to the depot and took the train for Chicago.

She had repented her hasty course before she was out of the city, and when the girl called at her door she was sitting in sackcloth and ashes, trying to write to Ralph.

She obeyed the summons languidly. "Some one to see about lessons," she thought, as she went downstairs.

Ralph was sitting opposite the parlor-door. When he saw her he sprang to his feet, his dark eyes lighted with surprise and delight.

"Miss Glenwood!" he explained joyously, but before he could say more Glen burst into tears and threw herself upon his breast.

"Oh, Ralph!" she sobbed, "I am your sister Glen!"

It was a shock, to be sure. But Ralph was a sensible fellow, and when she told him how it all came about, crying as if her heart would break, he dried her eyes, and forgave her on the spot. The next day they received a letter from Alice. It was a queer epistle, partly defiant, partly repentant.

"I am in hopeless disgrace here at home," she wrote in closing, "and I know you can never forgive me. The only reparation I can make you, Ralph, is to wish that Glen may be the only girl who will tell you she will always be a sister to you."

After all, Ralph was better than Alice thought. He and Glen returned to Washington and finished their visit there. But the events recorded here were never alluded to by the young people, and Alice and Glen were never known again to attempt a practical joke.

SAID TO BE SIMPLE

EASILY MIXED RECIPE FOR KIDNEYS AND BLADDER.

Tells Readers How to Prepare This Home-Made Mixture to Cure the Kidneys and Bladder and Rheumatism.

Get from any prescription pharmacist the following:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Shake well in a bottle and take a teaspoonful dose after each meal and at bedtime.

The above is considered by an eminent authority, who writes in a New York daily paper, as the finest prescription ever written to relieve Backache, Kidney Trouble, Weak Bladder and all forms of Urinary difficulties. This mixture acts promptly on the eliminative tissues of the Kidneys, enabling them to filter and strain the uric acid and other waste matter from the blood which causes Rheumatism.

Some persons who suffer with the afflictions may not feel inclined to place much confidence in this simple mixture, yet those who have tried it say the results are simply surprising, the relief being effected without the slightest injury to the stomach or other organs.

Mix some and give it a trial. It certainly comes highly recommended. It is the prescription of an eminent authority, whose entire reputation, it is said, was established by it.

HIS MEMORY WAS GOOD.

Commodore Vanderbilt Had Not Forgotten Old Days.

The coming of age of Miss Gladys Vanderbilt and the payment to her of some twelve millions of dollars inheritance has brought out a new crop of anecdotes about the Vanderbilt fortune. One of the latest illustrates the democratic spirit of the old commodore.

Sitting on the porch of a fashionable hotel at a fashionable resort on one occasion, it is related, the commodore saw a lady approaching with whom he was acquainted. His wife and daughter, who recognized her, could scarcely contain their anger when he arose and politely addressed her.

"Don't you know," said the daughter after she had gone, "that horrid woman used to sell poultry to us?"

"Yes," responded the old millionaire, "and I remember when your mother sold root beer and I peddled oysters in New Jersey."

A Ventilation Test.

It is very hard to make an impression on those people who defend their possessions on all occasions. A lady was explaining to a visitor the many advantages of concrete hollow-block construction, of which the walls of her new home were built.

"The air spaces in the walls afford insulation against heat in summer and cold in winter," she explained. "Besides, such walls afford ventilation and assure a more healthful house."

The visitor reflected a moment, and replied:

"Our frame house must be quite as well built. Every night we lock the cat in the cellar, and have to let her out of the attic in the morning."

Youth's Companion.

All Explained.

There is a little story going round the house of commons about a certain member who abstained from voting on the deceased wife's sister bill. Questioned by one of his friends as to the reason for his abstention, he replied: "Well, my dear fellow, it's just like this—my wife has a sister."

Chiropract's Prescription.

A lotion and powder for tender and swollen feet: One teaspoonful of boracic acid to one pint of grain alcohol. After bathing the feet in lukewarm water, spray them with the lotion used in an atomizer, and fan until dry. The effect is delightful. Then rub over the foot this powder, or put it in the stocking:

Powdered starch, 35 grains, oil of bergamot, ten drops; oil of lavender, 6 drops; oil of wintergreen, 16 drops. Mix well, and pass through a sieve. Excellent.—National Magazine.

TRANSFORMATIONS.

Curious Results When Coffee Drinking Is Abandoned.

It is almost as hard for an old coffee toper to quit the use of coffee as it is for a whisky or tobacco fiend to break off, except that the coffee user can quit coffee and take up Postum without any feeling of a loss of the morning beverage, for when Postum is well boiled and served with cream, it is really better in point of flavor than most of the coffee served nowadays, and to the taste of the connoisseur it is like the flavor of fine, mild Java.

A great transformation takes place in the body within ten days or two weeks after coffee is left off and Postum used, for the reason that the poison to the nerves—caffeine—has been discontinued, and in its place is taken a liquid food that contains the most powerful elements of nourishment.

It is easy to make this test and prove these statements by changing from coffee to Postum. Read "The Road to Wellville," in page "There's a Reason."

After-Dinner Nap. Complete relaxation after eating—a suspension of mental and physical activity—will favor the processes of natural digestion, not only because of its tranquillizing effect upon the nerves, but because the stomach may use the surplus unused energies of the body in the process of digestion.

£5,000,000 in Hospitals. Hospital authorities have to face facts as they are, and the result has been that during the last 10 or 15 years the managers of nearly every great metropolitan hospital have had to face the question of rebuilding and to provide enormous funds which collectively will be found to amount to probably five millions of money, to defray the cost of this work alone—London Hospital.

To the Home-Maker. To build up the power of our homes, for beauty, for companionship, for intelligence, for charity, for a constant acknowledgment and furtherance of the rights of others, is to build up a power greater, perhaps, than we ourselves shall ever realize. And this within the reach of every home, whether it be a big or a very little one—Herper's Bazar.

Helmet's Moral-Grandeur. Ovide's well known dress helmet, made of cloth, with puggaree to match, is shading the top hat from its pedestal. It is the latest and fashionable headgear specially adapted for frock, morning, and other kind of gent's apparel. The moral grandeur of this helmet cannot be estimated.—Advertisement in Lagos Standard

AROUND THE HOUSE

LITTLE THINGS THAT AMOUNT TO MUCH.

Use Hydrogen Peroxide to Remove Blood Stains—Cream of Tartar When Ink is Spilled—Proper Way to Clean Ivory.

Hydrogen peroxide is good for removing stains caused by blood, but must be used with care. If gravy is spilled on your table linen or gown, it may be taken out quickly by the use of a little peroxide. To avoid weakening the material this should be immediately followed by the use of an alkali. If just removing a spot, sponge the fabric first with peroxide until the stain has vanished, then follow with a solution of weak ammonia. If you have been unfortunate in staining a handsome gown or blouse that cannot be laundered, dampen starch and place it thickly upon the stain. When dry brush off the starch. This may have to be repeated several times. Mildew is a stubborn stain. Try immersing the spots first in buttermilk, or lemon juice, then launder in the usual manner.

It is difficult to remove ink stains nowadays, because modern chemical inks are quite distinct in character from the old compounds. However, many suggestions are offered for removing ink. One way is to cover the stain thickly with cream of tartar, then hold the fabric over a bowl, and pour boiling water through it. If the stain is taken in hand at once it will disappear quickly; if dry and old, it may need several fresh applications of cream of tartar and boiling water. If still obstinate, lay the article in the sun, moistening from time to time with the same mixture. Lemon juice and salt is also often an effective mixture. The fabric should be placed in the sun. Another remedy for ink stains on white goods is hot tallow. Dip the spots in the melted tallow, let it cool on the goods, then brush off and launder.

To clean ivory that has become brown or of a blackish tint, dissolve rock alum in rain water, boil this and keep the ivory in the boiling solution for about an hour, taking it out from time to time and cleaning it with a soft brush, then let it dry in a damp breeze, when it will be found thoroughly cleaned. Ivory is often bleached by the simple process of dampening it and exposing it to the rays of the sun, a process which must be frequently repeated.

It is said that potatoes will bake in much less time if the skins are greased before putting them into the oven. The skins will come off more easily and will be as thin as when boiled.

It will be economy to finish your sheets with the same width hem at each end. By so doing they can be used either side up, and gain much wear.

Sulphur Apples. Peel, core and quarter your apples. Measure them into a market basket and to each gallon of prepared apples allow one tablespoonful of sulphur. Put the sulphur into an old tin. Set this in the bottom of a barrel and drop a live coal upon the sulphur. Haug the basket of apples in the barrel and cover as quickly as possible, making barrel as nearly air tight as you can. Let the apples remain in the sulphur fumes several hours. Then place them in jars and tie a cloth over the top of each jar and your apples are all right. When you want to use them, soak them for an hour or two before using them. Use just like green apples.

To Clean White Mackintosh. Unless extremely soiled a white mackintosh may be cleaned by washing with soap and water; but if it is exceptionally dirty dip it first in cold soft water and then lay on a clean table or board. With a soft scrubbing brush scrub with yellow soap on both sides until dirt is removed. Then dip in three or four waters until soap is removed entirely, and hang it up in the air, without wringing it. If the mud stains around the bottom have been in long and are obstinate it is best to send it to an expert cleaner.

Tin and Acids. No acids should ever be used to clean tinware. The best possible means of keeping it in good condition is to wash it in boiling water until every particle of grease is removed. Once a week it can be rubbed with a little powdered rotten stone and sweet oil mixed and finished with a little whitening on a piece of chamois. Tins that have become old and dingy can be brightened by rubbing with a moist piece of flannel dipped in saleratus.

A Bride's Aprons. The most serviceable pieces in one's wardrobe this summer were the overall aprons given the bride by her girl friends at a linen shower. They are of prettily colored linen embroidered in white, and made to cover the dress completely from neck to hem. They are semi-fitting princess affairs with wide kimono elbow sleeves, and button in the back with one large button.

Cheese Straws. One cup grated cheese; add one up flour, half of a small cup butter and a quarter teaspoonful salt; knead together until of the right consistency to roll without crumbling; bake

A TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE.

How a Veteran Was Saved the Amputation of a Limb.

B. Frank Doremus, veteran, of Roosevelt avenue, Indianapolis, Ind., says: "I had been showing symptoms of kidney trouble from the time I was mustered out of the army, but in all my life I never suffered as in 1897. Headaches, dizziness and sleeplessness, first, and then dropsy, I was weak and helpless, having run down from 180 to 125 pounds. I was having terrible pain in the kidneys, and the secretions passed almost involuntarily. My left leg swelled until it was 34 inches around, and the doctor tapped it night and morning until I could no longer stand it, and then he advised amputation. I refused, and began using Doan's Kidney Pills. The swelling subsided gradually, the urine became natural, and all my pains and aches disappeared. I have been well now for nine years since using Doan's Kidney Pills." For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

COINED A BIG WORD.

Little One Wanted to Pick the "Underchildreable" Flowers. When the first little granddaughter was big enough to want to pick the garden flowers, the grandparents tried every guileful means to save their pet-roses from devastation. A truce was reached when it was agreed that Harriet should let the garden plants alone and pick only "children's flowers," a descriptive name bestowed at once alike on dandelions, buttercups, daisies and clovers. After this there was peace in the family. One day Katherine, the newest granddaughter, was contentedly pulling grasses while grandmother snipped off blossoms from the forget-me-nots. Katherine remembered that fresh flowers had not been gathered for the dinner table. She ran over to grandmother and promptly coined one of the longest words a four-year-old ever used. "Grandmother," she begged, "can't I pick the underchildreable flowers for dinner?"

Knew What She Wanted. "A foreign looking woman, rather well dressed, came in the other day," said the librarian at one of the East side branches "and asked for 'Cottage Cheese' I supposed, of course, that some one had directed her to a dairy or perhaps a grocery, and that she had got into the wrong place. But she insisted that she was in the right place and that it was 'Cottage Cheese' that she wanted. 'It's the name of a book,' she said 'that gave me the tip that she simply had a little mixed up, and, sure enough, it was 'Scottish Chiefs'."—Cleveland Plain Dealer

On the suburban train one morning he said to me with a sour laugh: 'I've got something nobody else has got, Mr. Bigelow.' 'Have you, Rash?' said I. 'What is it?' 'Well,' said Rogers, 'I bought a $50 incubator last month, put $15 worth of eggs in it, and hatched out a blubottle fly.' 'He frowned, then sighed. 'Yes,' he said, 'I've got the only $65 blubottle fly in the world'."

HOUSEHOLD CARES.

Tax the Women of Northville the Same as Elsewhere.

Hard to attend to household duties with constantly aching back.

A woman should not have a bad back, and she wouldn't if the kidneys were well.

Here is a Northville woman who endorses this claim: Mrs. O. S. Harger, living on Center street, Northville, Mich., says: "I have known the value of Doan's Kidney Pills for some time and can recommend them as a most valuable remedy for backache. For a long time I suffered with pain in my back, that was often quite severe and made it hard for me to do anything, not even ordinary housework. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Murdock Bros drug store, were the only remedy that ever gave me relief. Since using them I have been better than for a long time before. I have taken occasional doses of the remedy since then and never fail to find relief and they seem to put new life into me."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McBarn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.
