GONE TO HER REST

MRS. ORRISA STANLEY DIED IN HER CHAIR.

Funeral From Home of Son, George, Sunday Afternoon.

Mrs. Orrisa Stanley, mother of George and Merritt Stanley of this place, passed quietly away while sitting in her chair late Friday afternoon at the home of the former, with whom she had made her home since last July.

She had been in poor health the past year but had not been confined to her bed only part of the time.

Deceased was born in the town of Fletcher, Franklin county, Vermont, in 1829, coming to Michigan when quite young. After her marriage to Mr. Stanley they went to Minnesota where they settled on a large farm. After living there for several years they sold out and came back to Michigan, settling at Plymouth where Mr. Stanley died a few years later.

The deceased leaves two sons, George and Merritt Stanley of this place, one daughter, Mrs. F. N. Passare of Plymouth and one brother, Stillman White, of Everett.

The funeral was held Sunday afternoon at three o'clock from the residence of her son, George, Rev. S. F. Dimmock officiating and the remains laid to rest in Rural Hill cemetery.

Forestry Lecture at the Library.

This (Friday) evening an event of unusual interest occurs at the Library hall, when Prof. Roth of Michigan University will give an address on Forestry, illustrated by stereopticon views. The lecture is one of the features of the program for the year of the Northville Woman's club, forest preservation being a project in which the federated clubs of Michigan are deeply interested, and one which they are doing all in their power to assist. The ladies regret that the lecture could not have been made free to the general public, but the seating capacity of their hall obliged them to limit their invitations to the families, the village council and their wives, the press, the teachers and graduating class of the school, and a few other friends of the members. The lecture will be a rare treat for those so fortunate as to attend, and the subject is one in which every public spirited citizen of the country should have an active and enthusiastic interest.

Piano Recital.

Mrs. Strong assisted by Mrs. Merritt, gave the first of her series of "Studio Musicales" Wednesday evening. The first part of the evening was devoted to Handel, and the program throughout was of a high order. After the reading of a Life Sketch of Handel a number of musical selections were rendered. Each one present received a souvenir picture of Handel.

Notice to Canadian Subscribers.

Hereafter the price of the Record to subscribers living in Canada will be $1.50 a year cash in advance. The increase price is the result of additional postage of 54 cents a year required of the publisher by the Canadian government.

CANDIDATE FOR SEC. OF STATE

SENATOR FRED MARTINDALE OF GREENFIELD WILL BE.

The First Man in the State to Announce.

It is announced that Senator Fred Martindale of Detroit and Greenfield will be candidate for the republican nomination for secretary of state next year. Fred would be competent to fill the position and not only that but he is also an all-around good fellow. He has very ably represented this First senatorial district twice in the state legislature and has always been an earnest supporter of Governor Warner and his policies.

FRED C. MARTINDALE
He May Be a Candidate for Secretary of State.

He has been first and last a conscientious, energetic and capable official, always to be found championing the cause of the people and there is no reason why he should not receive the nomination. Wayne county is certainly entitled to recognition in a state office and it can be placed in no more worthy or safer hands.

So far Mr. Martindale's candidacy is first from Wayne county and the first in the state for that place.

COUNTY POLITICS IN OLD WAYNE.

County Clerk Lou Hines no sooner tells his friends he will not run again for county clerk than his chief deputy, Walter Oldfield, and Will H. Green both shy their castors in the arena. Both are good fellows and maybe—both will win. Hope so.

Morgan Parker will run for sheriff. So will Ald. Kingsley and so will several others, so it is said. If Parker gets into the game like he did for coroner, he will make a noise like a winner from the time the starters yell "go!"

County Treasurer Forbes Robert says he wants to be county auditor, but inasmuch as one of the board must be elected from the country and inasmuch, and whereas, etc., Mr. Robertson lives in Detroit it is hard to figure on where the treasurer will get his entry ticket. Auditor Christian's term expires and he is likely to be a candidate to succeed himself. He is the only county candidate yet announced. Cass Benton's friends have been urging him to get in the race but for the present Cass will only look wise—whatever that means.

Otto Stoll, who came so near winning out the other time for Register of Deeds will be a candidate again for that office. Otto auto win this time. Johnie Neiper will, it is said, also be a candidate and Johnie is a hang-up good fellow too.

Deputy Treasurer Waldo would like to succeed Forbes Robertson as treasurer. He was elected over for the short term and is pretty well known to Wayne county voters.

O. P. Gully, who is serving his third term as Register of Deeds, may also get in the race. Gully is a vote getter and will make Waldo or any other man "step some."

Silver Shirts, $1.00 each.

MRS. JEROME VALADE DEAD.

Wife of Prominent Monroe County Doctor and Banker.

Mrs. Jerome Valade, wife of Dr. J. J. Valade, a prominent physician and banker of Newport, Monroe county, died Monday, aged about forty years. She leaves a husband and three children. Mr. Valade is a brother of Mrs. Charles Beckham of Toledo and both families were recent visitors here.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Ball and Mr. Neal attended the funeral which was held at Newport Wednesday.

Baptist Church Notes.

(By a Member.)

Which will win, the Marthas or the Marys? The time for the final count is near at hand.

The birthday supper given Wednesday evening was a success, both financially and socially.

Preaching both morning and evening. Subject for morning, "Message of John the Baptist." Evening, "Baptism of Jesus." Everybody welcome to these services.

Presbyterian Church Notes.

(By the Pastor.)

The Sunday school Institute appointed for October 31 will be held in the Baptist church.

The chimney of the church was torn down Wednesday morning and a new one will be built on the west side.

The sermon next Sunday evening will discuss the recent articles in the Ladies' Home Journal on hospitality in the church.

It is expected that the repairs on the church will be completed before Sunday. If not, services will be held at the Library.

Methodist Church Notes.

(By the Pastor.)

A good increase in attendance at Sunday school last Sunday. This can continue indefinitely if every one in position to do so will help promote the attendance.

Various repairs have been and are being made on the church and parsonage. A well-kept church property is an asset too valuable to be overlooked or forgotten.

A spirit of eager helpfulness seems to prevail among the people. This makes the beginning of the year's work encouraging alike to pastor and people.

At a recent meeting of the Sunday school board the following officers were elected: Supt., W. H. Rutton; Assistant Supt., Chas. Filkins, Sec., Mrs. Ed. Vanderhoof; Treas., Guy Filkins.

The finance committee report satisfactory progress with the new financial plan for the church, but it is probable the system will not be ready to install next Sunday. Contributors will use the envelopes as heretofore next Sunday.

Miss Kiser's Sunday School class, "His Helpers," met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Esther Pickett. An enjoyable impromptu program was rendered. It was voted that the class should meet hereafter Friday afternoon.

The Woman's Home Mission society held an interesting meeting in the church Tuesday afternoon. Officers were elected for the year, after which a mission tea was served. The following is the list of officers: Pres., Mrs. C. S. Filkins; Vice-Pres., Mrs. Geo. Williams; Cor. Sec., Mrs. Chas. Smock; Rec. Sec., Mrs. H. Green; Treas., Mrs. Ina Pickett; Mite Box Sec., Mrs. Wm. Kay.

Death of Edward Veeley.

Edward Veeley, a highly respected citizen of Livonia died at his home Wednesday evening, after a lingering illness. The funeral was held from the house Sunday afternoon, Rev. S. F. Dimmock officiating and interment in Plymouth cemetery. He was fifty-one years old and leaves a wife besides a host of friends and neighbors.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to express our gratitude to those who so kindly assisted us during the illness and death of our mother.

DETROIT MAY

PAY 82 1-5 PER CENT

THE SUB-COMMITTEE REPORTS ON THAT BASIS.

County Board of Supervisors is Now in Session.

If the report of the sub-committee on equalization, presented to the county board of supervisors last week is adopted by the full committee and given the approval of the board itself, the city of Detroit will pay 82 1/5 per cent of the running expenses of the county for the ensuing year, while the townships will pay the remaining 17 4/5 per cent. The report of the sub-committee gives these assessed valuations, by townships: Canton, $1,222,535; Livonia, $98,594; Nankin, $1,511,915; Northville, $1,428,933; Plymouth, $1,563,564; Redford, $1,579,512.

School Notes.

(By a Pup.)

The Fifth grade has a new clock. The Kindergarten is drawing ants. The Third grade is starting some plants.

The Third grade is illustrating "October's Party."

The First grade is studying the migration of birds.

Charlie Schoutz, of the Tenth grade, has left school.

Miss Charlesworth, of the Kindergarten, has moved away.

Dorothy Gay of the First grade has been visiting in Milan.

The Third grade pupils are drawing fruits and coloring them.

The First grade has a room border of red and yellow maple leaves.

The Second grade studied and mounted seeds the first of this week.

The Kindergarten is studying squirrels and their habits this week.

A looking glass in the High school girls' cloak room would be appreciated.

The Third grade has a ribbon suspended from which are jack-o'-lanterns.

The Second grade kept their floors so clean this week that the janitor did not have to sweep it.

Mr. Hornberger entertained the teachers at his home Thursday afternoon, after school.

Nettie Ward, Charlie Wilcox and Clara Freeman of the Second grade, were promoted from the B to the A class of that grade.

Land Only Counted.

Land was the only species of property which, in the old time, carried any respectability with it. Money alone, apart from some tenure of land, not only did not make the possessor great and respectable, but actually made him at once the object of plunder and hatred. Witness the history of the Jews in England in the early reigns after the conquest.

The Lean Years.

Quite a sensation has been caused among biblical students by the discovery by Brugsch Bey, the great Egyptologist, of a monumental inscription telling how the Nile failed to rise for seven years in succession about 1,700 years before the Christian era, and a long and terrible famine was the result.

Self-Made Man.

Edward Yates, who recently died in Waltham, England, leaving a fortune of $5,000,000 in real estate in and about London, began business life as a poor bricklayer.

A Preposterous Suggestion.

"How many inhabitants has Crimison Gulch, according to the latest census?" inquired the tourist. "There hasn't been no census in Crimison Gulch," answered Broncho Bob. "You don't suppose anybody would be fool enough to go through this town with a note book asking all them personal questions, do you?"

Chinese Etiquette.

When a Chidaman salutes you he puts on his hat. When he talks with you he keeps out of step. When he wants to be polite he asks your age and income. When he eats a melon he throws away the pulp and eats the seeds. When he wants to show his regard for you he sends a coffin.

THE STATE IN GENERAL

STATE SOLONS OPEN UP AGAIN AND A NEW PRIMARY BILL IS WORKING.

TAX BILL FEELS A CHILL

The So-called "Boxers" Are Busy Over a Bill—The Lobby Bill Not Warmly Supported.

The Work in Hand.

The legislature is working again. The "Boxers" are preparing a primary bill which will amend the present law so that candidates for the United States senate shall be nominated at primaries, and for one instead of two primaries in the year. These will be the only amendments. The 40 percent requirement for governor and lieutenant governor will be retained.

Gov. Warner said last night that even these two amendments would be a good thing.

Concerning the lobby bill it may be a surprise to many of the good taxpayers of Michigan that there is opposition to it among their legislators. In conversations some members sneer and ridicule the bill. Some other members are so busy scanning it for flaws and what they pretend to suspect may be flaws. It would prohibit a client talking with his lawyer about a legislative bill if the lawyer happened to be a member of the legislature, is a sample of the reasons that the knockers are throwing at it. Then too, the knockers are singing the "Boxers" song over it. "Time of this session is too short to consider such an important bill."

Representatives of telegraph and telephone companies are beginning to arrive in Lansing, seeking hearings before senate and house committees on the Bland-Jerome bill for ad valorem taxation of telegraph and telephone companies. The senate's disposition to pass the bill remains unchanged, but the house seems colder, though the floor organization which drove the popular bills through last session is at work for this bill.

The express companies will not be allowed to figure ocean mileage in their computation on which their taxes are based, it is now said, whether the legislature expressly forbids such computation, as recommended in the governor's message or not. The state tax commission is disposed to take the initiative and compute the taxes without the absurd mileage, and let the express companies fight in the courts if they see fit. This state of affairs heightens the likelihood that the bill prohibiting the computation of ocean mileage will pass.

By the figures in the governor's message the average valuation per mile would be $49.62, if ocean mileage is reckoned on. If it is not considered, the valuation per mile would be $184.86. The totals would be $292,045 and $668,275 so the valuation at stake is about $675,000.

GREAT GUNS.

The Eighth District indorses Cannon for President.

Speaker Joseph G. Cannon was indorsed for the presidency and the delegates to the national convention asked to support him after a warm argument in the eighth district republican convention at Owosso between Congressman Joseph W. Fordney and Odell Chapman, of Shiawassee county.

President Roosevelt's administration was indorsed. The fight began over a clause in a resolution offered by the committee on resolutions. It read: "In view of the reiterated refusals of President Roosevelt to permit the use of his name in connection with the next presidential nomination for that office, we earnestly recommend the name of Hon. Joseph G. Cannon of Illinois, who has so ably supported the policies of President Roosevelt."

In the vote all of Tuscola, Saginaw, Clinton and some of the Shiawassee county delegates voted with Fordney, while Chapman had only the support of Frank Watson, and five loyal Shiawassee men.

The resolution adopted also opposed further reduction in tariff rates on imports from the Philippines, advised following the policy of protection to American labor and capital, and indorsed the Panama canal work and the service of Fordney.

The latter and E. O. Dewey, Owosso postmaster, were selected as delegates and F. W. Gilchrist, who withdrew from the race four years ago to permit the convention to choose a delegate, was indorsed as delegate-at-large for next year.

An outbreak of diphtheria has closed the Smith's Creek schools.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hinman, of Caledonia township, celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary last week. They have lived in the township 52 years.

John Keliher, a Grand Trunk engineer, was thrown from the cab of his engine near Marcellus, Monday, and lies in a critical condition.

Mrs. J. E. Brewster, wife of a Bay City railroad man, took strychnine following a quarrel with her husband. The prompt arrival of a physician, who worked over her for two hours, saved her life and she is no longer anxious to die.

An honorary commission as major has been issued to Leonard C. Sparks, commandant of the Michigan Military academy cadets.

Fishermen operating in Lake Superior are loud in their denunciation of a recent act of the legislature reducing the size of the mesh in catching bluefish. It not only means a loss of several thousand dollars' worth of nets of the larger mesh which now are valueless, but the new law is incongruous. It was the purpose of the legislature to eliminate catching of "small trout," and fishermen argue that it is odd policy to use a small-mesh net in order to avoid catching small fish.

Compromise Failed.

The legislature reached a definite stage at the close of the first week of the special session. The Mt. Pleasant school appropriation bill passed both houses, with only $5,500 added to the bill as it passed the house last spring, $5,000 of this sum being needed for a heating conduit and the balance being an additional allowance needed to convert an unfinished portion of the main building into class rooms.

The various efforts of the administration to pass a primary bill culminated when their compromise bill failed of passage, receiving, as was expected, only 16 votes. The 16 senators who voted against the primary bill last session voted against it at the special session. The anti-administration faction now are discussing the advisability of presenting a primary bill. Senator Cropper said in open senate that they would have a bill Monday, yet the conference Wednesday night did not bring a decision. The final vote on the primary bill was:

Yeas—Senators Allen, Bates, Bland, Edinborough, Ely, Fairbanks, Fuller, Fyfe, Kline, Lugers, Martindale, Ring, Russell, Seeley, Wetmore, Yeomans—16.

Nays—Senators Cady, Carlton, Crosey, Jenks, Kane, Keyes, Kinnane, Linsley, John D. Mackay, William McKay, Moriarty, Peek, Smith, Trayer, Tuttle, Whitney—16.

Gov. Warner's second message read to the house Thursday morning contained a section which aroused considerable discussion.

Final Adjournment.

Though the legislators wish strongly to cease business the last of this week and to place the date of final adjournment in next week, the business still before the session is very great, and it may be impossible to adjourn so soon.

The Mt. Pleasant Normal school bill has passed. The members hope to settle the primary bill, the military bill, the juvenile courts bill, and the soldiers' home bill, by Thursday. But the ad valorem tax bill, the bill against stock watering, and the ocean mileage bill, are still left. These bills make the prospect of sessions next week look more real. If the legislature sits next week the house must divide the day with the constitutional convention which under the law must meet in Representative hall.

A Pathetic Story.

A pathetic story was revealed at the county house in Cassopolis following the death of Mrs. Lydia Jack 85, an inmate of that institution. Her husband, John Mack, also an octogenarian, asked to see the undertaker, who had been called, and informed him that in an old shop in the city of Dowagiac, hidden away in a tin can in a place which he gave directions to find, would be found money to pay the dead wife's funeral expenses. A search revealed a can containing $29, which had been saved from the old man's meager earnings during his later years and had been stored away by him when he worked in that shop. Not even the dire poverty which forced them to the county house a few weeks ago tempted him to use it for any other purpose.

AROUND THE STATE.

While returning on a visit to his mother, in Ludington, Archie Upper, of Scottville, fell under a freight train. Both legs were cut off and he will probably die.

With his home burning, C. M. Bump, of Bay City, a brother of the late Orrin Bump, attended his brother's funeral, and left the firemen in charge of his blazing home.

Mr. and Mrs. Ebenezer Pennock, of Hastings, who came to Barry county 63 years ago, when it was a wilderness, celebrated their 64th wedding anniversary last week.

Judge C. C. Chittenden will retire from the twenty-eighth judicial circuit next year and move to Seattle, Wash., where his sons now live and where he has extensive interests.

CHAPTER I. Hampton, of Placer.

It was not an uncommon tragedy of the west. If slightest chronicle of it survive, it must be discovered among the dusty and nearly forgotten records of the Eighteenth regiment of infantry.

Yet the tale is worth telling now, when such days are past and gone. There were 16 of them when, like so many hunted rabbits, they were first securely trapped among the frowning rocks, and forced relentlessly backward from the narrow trail until the precipitous canyon walls finally halted their disorganized flight, and from sheer necessity compelled a rally in hopeless battle. Sixteen, ten infantrymen from old Fort Bethune, under command of Syd. Wyman, a gray-headed sergeant of 30 years' continuous service in the regulars, two cow-punchers from the "XL" ranch, a stranger who had joined them uninvited at the ford over the Bear Water, together with old Gillis, the post-trader, and his silent chit of a girl.

Sixteen—but that was three days before, and in the meanwhile not a few of those speeding Sioux bullets had found softer billet than the limestone rocks. Six of the soldiers, four already dead, two dying, lay outstretched in ghastly silence where they fell. Then the taciturn Gillis gave sudden utterance to a sobbing cry, and a burst of red spurted across his white beard as he reeled backward, knocking the girl prostrate when he fell. Eight remained, one helpless, one a mere lass of 15. It was the morning of the third day.

The beginning of the affair had burst upon them so suddenly that no two in that stricken company would have told the same tale. None among them had anticipated trouble.

In all the fancied security of unquestioned peace these chance travelers had slowly toiled along the steep trail leading toward the foothills. Gillis and the girl, as well as the two cattlemen, were on horseback, the remainder soberly trudged forward on foot, with guns slung to their shoulders. Wyman was somewhat in advance, walking beside the stranger, the latter a man of uncertain age, smooth-shaven, quietly dressed in garments bespeaking an eastern tailor, a bit grizzled of hair along the temples, and possessing a pair of cool, gray eyes. He had introduced himself by the name of Hampton, but had volunteered no further information, nor was it customary in that country to question impertinently.

Hampton, through the medium of easy conversation, early discovered in the sergeant an intelligent mind, possessing some knowledge of literature. They had been discussing books with rare enthusiasm, and the former had drawn from the concealment of an inner pocket a diminutive copy of "The Merchant of Venice," from which he was reading aloud a disputed passage, when the faint trail they followed suddenly dipped into the yawning mouth of a black canyon. It was a narrow, gloomy, contracted gorge, a mere gash between those towering hills shadowing its depths on either hand. A swift mountain stream, noisy and clear as crystal, dashed from rock to rock close beside the more northern wall, while the ill-defined pathway, strewn with boulders and guarded by underbrush, clung to the opposite side, where low scrub trees partially obscured the view.

All was silent as death when they entered, yet they had barely advanced a short hundred paces when those apparently bare rocks in front flamed red, the narrow defile echoed to wild screeches and became instantly crowded with weird, leaping figures. It was like a plunge from heaven into hell. Blaine and Endicott sank at the first fire, while Wyman's stricken arm dripped blood. Indeed, under that sudden shock, he fell, and was barely rescued by the prompt action of the man beside him. Dropping the opened book, and firing madly to left and right with a revolver which appeared to spring into his hand as by magic, the latter coolly dragged the fainting soldier across the more exposed space, until the two found partial security among a mass of loosened rocks littering the base of the precipice. The others who survived that first scorching discharge also raced toward this same shelter, impelled thereto by the unerring instinct of border fighting, and flinging themselves flat behind protecting boulders, began responding to the hot fire rained upon them.

Scattered and hurried as these first volleys were, they proved sufficient to check the howling demons in the open. It has never been Indian nature to face unprotected the aim of the white men, and those dark figures, which only a moment before thronged the narrow gorge, leaping crazily in the riot of apparent victory, suddenly melted from sight, sinking down into leafy coverts beside the stream or into holes among the rocks, like so many vanishing prairie dogs. Now and then a sinewy brown arm might incautiously project across the gleaming surface of a rock, or a mop of coarse, black hair appear above the edge of a gully, either incident resulting in a quick interchange of fire. That was all; yet the experienced frontiersmen knew that eyes as keen as those of any wild animal of the jungle were watching murderously their slightest movement.

Wyman, now reclining in agony against the base of the overhanging cliff, directed the movements of his little command calmly and with sober military judgment. Little by little, under protection of the rifles of the three civilians, the uninjured infantrymen crept cautiously about, rolling loosened boulders forward into position, until they finally succeeded in thus erecting a rude barricade between them and the enemy. The wounded who could be reached were laboriously drawn back within this improvised shelter, and when the black shadows of the night finally shut down, all remaining alive were once more clustered together, the injured lying moaning and ghastly beneath the overhanging shelf of rock, and the girl, who possessed all the patient stoicism of frontier training, resting in silence, her widely opened eyes on those far-off stars peering above the brink of the chasm, her head pillowed on old Gillis' knee.

Twice during the long night volunteers sought vainly to pierce those was destined to be their last on this earth unless help came.

For two days Wyman had scarcely stirred from where he lay bolstered against the rock. Sometimes he became delirious from fever, uttering incoherent phrases, or swearing in pitiful weakness. Again he would partially arouse to his old sense of soldierly duty, and assume intelligent command. Now he twisted painfully about upon his side, and, with clouded eyes, sought to discern what man was lying next him. The face was hidden so that all he could clearly distinguish was the fact that this man was not clothed as a soldier.

"Is that you, Hampton?" he questioned, his voice barely audible.

The person thus addressed, who was lying flat upon his back, gazing silently upward at the rocky front of the cliff, turned cautiously over upon his elbow before venturing reply.

"Yes; what is it, sergeant? It looks to be a beauty of a morning way up yonder."

"There was a hearty, cheery ring to his clear voice which left the pain-racked old soldier envious.

"My God!" he growled savagely. "Tis likely to be the last any of us will ever see. Wasn't it you I heard whistling just now? One might imagine this was to be a wedding, rather than a funeral."

"And why not, Wyman? Didn't you know they employed music at both functions nowadays? Besides, it is not every man who is permitted to assist at his own obsequies—the very uniqueness of such a situation rather appeals to my sense of humor."

The sergeant, his teeth clinched tightly to repress the pain racking him, stifled his resentment with an evident effort. "You may be less light-hearted when you learn that the last of our ammunition is already in the guns," he remarked, stiffly.

"I suspected as much." And the speaker lifted himself on one elbow to peer down the line of recumbent figures. "To be perfectly frank with you, sergeant, the stuff has held out considerably longer than I believed it would, judging from the way those 'dough boys' of yours kept popping at every shadow in front of them. It's a marvel to me the mutton heads they turn perfectly, so far as your limited information extends. In strict confidence I propose now to impart to you what has hitherto remained a profound secret. Upon special request of a number of influential citizens of Placer, including the city marshal and other officials, expressed in mass-meeting, I have decided upon desisting that sagebrush metropolis to its just fate, and plan to add the influence of my presence to the future development of Glencaid. I learn that the climate there is more salubrious, more conducive to long living, the citizens of Placer being peculiarly excitable and careless with their firearms."

The sergeant had been listening with open mouth. "The hell you say!" he finally ejaculated.

"The undefined truth, every word of it. No wonder you are shocked. A fine state of affairs, isn't it, when a plain spoken, pleasant-mannered gentleman, such as I surely am, a university graduate, by all the gods, the nephew of a United States senator, and acknowledged to be the greatest exponent of scientific pucker in this territory, should be obliged to hastily change his chosen place of abode because of the threat of an ignorant and depraved mob. Ever have a rope dangled in front of your eyes, sergeant, and a gun-barrel biting into your cheek at the same time? Accept my word for it, the experience is trying on the nerves. Ran a perfectly square game, too, and those ducks knew it; but there's no true sporting spirit left in this territory any more. However, spilled milk is never worth sobbing over, and fate always contrives to play the final hand in any game, and stocks the cards to win."

"A breath of good, honest prayer would serve better than anything else," groaned the sergeant, soberly.

The gray eyes resting thoughtfully on the old soldier's haggard face became instantly grave and earnest. "Sincerely I wish I might aid you with one," the man admitted, "but I fear, old fellow, any prayer coming from my lips would never ascend very far. However, I might try the comfort of a hymn, and you will remember this one, which, no doubt, you have helped to sing back in God's country. There was a moment's hushed pause, during which a rifle cracked sharply out in the ravine, then the reckless fellow, his head partially supported against the protecting boulder, lifted up a full, rich baritone in rendition of that hymn of Christian faith—

"Nearer, my God, to Thee,
Nearer, my God, to Thee,
E'en though it be a cross
That raiseth me,
Still all my song shall be
Nearer, my God, to Thee."

Glazed and wearied eyes glanced cautiously toward the singer around the edges of protecting rocks; fingers loosened their grasp upon the rifle barrels, smoke-begrimed cheeks became moist, while lips, a moment before profaned by oaths, grew silent and trembling. Out in front a revengeful brave sent his bullet swirling just above the singer's head, the sharp fragments of rock dislodged falling in a shower upon his upturned face, but the fearless rascal sang serenely on to the end, without a quaver.

"Mistake it for a death song, likely," he remarked dryly, while the last clear, lingering note, reechoed by the chuff, died reluctantly away in softened cadence. "Beautiful old song, sergeant, and I trust hearing it again has done you good. Sang it once in a church way back in New England. But what is the trouble? Did you call me for some special reason?"

"Yes," came the almost gruff response, for Wyman, the fever stealing back upon him, felt half ashamed of his unshed tears. "That is, provided you retain sufficient sense to listen. Old Gillis was shot over an hour ago, yonder behind that big boulder, and his girl sits there still holding his head in her lap. She'll get hit unless somebody pulls her out of there, and she's doing no good to Gillis—he's dead."

Hampton's clear-cut, expressive face became graver, all trace of recklessness gone from it. He lifted his head cautiously, peering over his rock cover toward where he remembered earlier in the fight Gillis had sought refuge. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

A Sure Cure.

F. Marion Crawford, at a dinner in New York, attacked spiritualism. "In principle it may be true," Mr. Crawford said, "but spiritualism as it is practiced to-day is a thing to beware of. I know a man whose wife suddenly developed a great interest in spiritualism. She attended seance after seance at the house of a handsome modicum with cork, thick hair and smoldering eyes.

"Her husband cured her, though. He took to accompanying her to the mediums, and at every seance he got the most passionate and tender messages from his first wife."

Concrete Lighthouse.

By the use of concrete a tall lighthouse was constructed in a short period of time at the Point de la Coudre, at the mouth of the Gironde river, in France. The building is 225 feet high and about 35 feet in diameter at the base. It was finished in nine months after the beginning of the work, and cost $90,000. The haste was due to the fact that the sea threatened to wash away the old structure.

Using the Insurance.

"I think," said the man whose commercial emporium had been burned curiously, "that I'll try my new yacht this afternoon."

"Ah, going to have a fire sail," commented a friend; but as this style of jest has to be seen in print to be appreciated it fell flat, of course.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Stood Roosevelt's Test.

If a 15-mile jog along good roads is an example of the hardships of war, the line officers of the department of the lakes are ready to go into action at an hour's notice. Such is the substance of a report based upon a test ride made by Brig.-Gen. W. H. Carter and 31 regimental officers yesterday.

This phase of the Roosevelt plan of keeping the blood circulating in the different branches of the government was carried out with Fort Sheridan as headquarters, and the actual time taken was about two hours and a half—an average of ten minutes to the mile.

Physical examinations were given the riders before and after the trial of horsemanship. These were conducted by Col. Philip F. Harvey, assistant surgeon-general of the army, and Maj. Edward L. Munson, post surgeon at Fort Sheridan in advance they pronounced all of the officers fit to ride, and their second examination showed but slight signs of any disabilities.

The Tigers Trounced.

The fifth and last in the series of baseball games for the championship of the world was played in Detroit Saturday and the Tigers lost to the Chicago Cubs. The games in their order show that the defeat was all that the Chicago team and fans could ask. This is the result:

First game, tie, 12 innings. . . . 3 to 3
Second game, Chicago won. . . . 3 to 1
Third game, Chicago won. . . . 5 to 1
Fourth game, Chicago won. . . . 6 to 1
Fifth game, Chicago won. . . . 2 to 0
The tie game was equivalent to no game and there were really three games more to play had the Tigers won the game Saturday, but defeat ended all.

STATE NEWS BRIEFS.

Louis Shung, said to be a Detroit man, was killed in Wolverine by a falling tree.

Carl Jaschek, aged 19, released the trigger of a shotgun while cleaning it in preparation for a hunting trip, and was found dead by his mother with a charge through his stomach.

The seventh ward of Ann Arbor, the one in which a majority of the university faculty live, and said to be the only one which shows a steady gain in the school census, is to have a new school building.

Leading a scow, which will convey a complete sawmill and outfit, to North Manitou Island, 70 miles away, is a Traverse City stunt. Not only will the mill machinery be taken over on the scow, but 25,000 feet of lumber to build a mill, horses necessary for logging, a complete outfit for the men's quarters, and enough cattle to furnish fresh meat this winter. As there is no dock there, the horses and cattle will have to swim ashore.

The Northville Record

F. S. NEAL, Publisher.

An Independent Newspaper Published every Friday morning by The Record Printing, at Northville, Michigan, and entered at the Northville Post-office as Second-Class matter, October 18, 1907.

Northville, Mich., Oct. 18, 1907.

Rep. Hanlon Protested too Much.

Representative Martin Hanlon of Ingham county last week introduced a bill to repeal the primary election law. After landing a second in the legislature by a majority so reduced as to call for the injection of a salient solution to enable it to give evidence of any signs of life whatever, the Ingham county representative has come to the conclusion that there should be no primary election law of any nature. He believes in a return to the old convention system and professes to believe that the people of the State generally are of the same mind. So impressed is he with the latter idea that he proceeds to leave no room for doubting the correctness of his conclusion as to the attitude of the people by sagely remarking that "if a secret ballot could be taken," his repeal bill would be passed by a three fourths majority. Right there is where Representative Hanlon fell through himself. In other words, he protested too much. The very fact that the average representative and senator is afraid to vote for repeal is about the most conclusive proof possible of the demand of the people for primary reform. It goes without saying that if the people of the State were, as Representative Hanlon would have us believe, opposed to primary reform, there would be no need for even the suggestion of a secret ballot in order to accomplish its defeat. The only reason why any legislator is to vote for the Hanlon repeal bill is that he knows full well that his constituents are opposed to it and favor the enactment of a good primary election law.

Cut Expenses Introduced by Gov'r Warner.

A recent innovation introduced by Gov. Warner in the conduct of the various State Institutions which promises to result in a material saving of money in the plan of having each month in detail the cost of various supplies consumed. This information is compiled in the executive office and a copy of the results obtained sent to each institution. The compilation is comparative and when it shows that more was paid for a specified commodity by one institution than another, the why and wherefore are demanded by the Governor, the result being that there is rapidly growing up among the managers of the several institutions a rivalry to make the best showing in this regard. All of which leads to careful and intelligent action in connection with the making of all purchases and saves the money of the people who pay the freight.

Do You Want Another Millionaire Convention?

In a campaign for the nomination where three or more popular candidates, like George B. Horton, Attorney General Bird, Patrick R. Kelley, Gov. Warner and Homer Warren should seek votes among the republicans of the state, it would be impossible that any one of them could poll 40 per cent of the total vote cast, as called for under the machine-made primary law now in force. As a result the nomination would be thrown into a convention, where Bliss-Ferry-Stearns methods would renew the stench in Michigan politics.—Detroit News.

KIDNEY TROUBLE

Suffered Two Years—Relieved In Three Months.

MR. C. B. FIZER, Mt. Sterling, Ky.

"I have suffered with kidney and bladder trouble for ten years past."

"Last March I commenced using Peruna and continued for three months. I have not used it since, nor have I felt a pain."

"I believe that I am well and I therefore give my highest commendation to the curative qualities of Peruna."

Per-na for Kidney Trouble.

Mrs. Geo. H. Sumner, Grant, Ontario, Can., writes:

"I had not been well for about four years. I had kidney trouble, and, in fact, felt badly nearly all the time."

"This summer I got so very bad I thought I would try Peruna, so I wrote to you and began at once to take Peruna and Manalin."

"I took only two bottles of Peruna and one of Manalin, and now I feel better than I have for some time."

"I feel that Peruna and Manalin cured me and made a different woman of me altogether. I bless the day I picked up the little book and read of your Peruna."

It is the business of the kidneys to remove from the blood all poisonous materials. They must be active all the time, else the system suffers. There are times when they need a little assistance.

Peruna is exactly this sort of a remedy. It has saved many people from disaster by rendering the kidneys service at a time when they were not able to bear their own burdens.

The Best Householder's

Equip yourself with common sense, cling to your ideas of cleanliness and order and good food and taste in the Lord (this is said entirely without flippancy)—and you will have about all the system that you will ever get in this whirling, mazy world.

Thomas Huxley knew what a difficult thing a system is when he wrote that the chief energy of our lives is expended in adapting ourselves to constantly changing circumstances.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

The City in Brief.

Robert Lanning's little boy has scarlet fever.

Mrs. Katherine Strong was quite ill the first of the week.

Mrs. John Lockwood, who has been very ill, is slowly improving.

Regular meeting of Orient Chapter No. 77, O. E. S. this (Friday) evening.

J. S. Haddock is installing a new furnace in the basement of his store.

Mary Daly won the Silver Medal in the contest at Novi Friday evening.

Mrs. Andrew Harmon has been suffering with a severe cold this week.

Regular communication of Northville Lodge No. 186, occurs next Monday evening, Oct. 21.

F. N. Perrin's new livery barn is nearly completed and it is a fine addition to that part of Main street.

Mrs. Ursula Benton has been having the water works installed in her house on the corner of Center and Lake streets.

Louis Cook, who has been ill the past fourteen weeks, was able to walk out on the street Wednesday for the first time.

Dr. T. S. Murdock and wife now occupy the west half of the new Barnhart flats on the corner of Cady and Wing street.

Edward Gay will occupy the house just vacated by Dr. Murdock and will Lanning will move from Northside into his new home recently occupied by Mr. Gay.

The Officers and members of Northville W. R. C. are requested to meet at Ambler's hall Monday afternoon, Oct. 21, at 2:30, to practice drill for inspection.

Leonard Charter, Jr., is moving into his recently purchased home on Wing street. Mr. Lyke, who has been living there, has moved in the Blunk house on Dubuque street.

Dr. Oldfield, who lives west of town, had the misfortune to lose his barn by fire Sunday morning about one o'clock with all of its contents and one horse. The origin of the fire is not known.

Claude Stanley, who had his foot seriously hurt by a D. U. R. car the fore part of August, is able to get around on crutches. He thinks in time he will be able to go without them entirely.

Thomas Gleason, who lives on the corner of Dunlap and Center streets, raised three California pie pumpkins in his garden this summer, one weighing 75 pounds, one 52, and the other, 50. How's that for pumpkins?

Don't forget the dedication of the new church bell at the German church next Sunday. Services both morning and afternoon and everybody is invited to be present and be prepared to give liberally to the bell fund.

The foundation for the new bank building is finished and the work of laying the brick is progressing as rapidly as possible if nothing happens, the close of another week will see the first story completed.

Mrs. Carrie Mosher, who has been ill the past few weeks, was operated upon at her home Sunday afternoon by Dr. Burgess of this place and his son, Dr. Claude, Burgess of Detroit. At last report she was getting along very nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Moe entertained a large party of relatives at dinner Sunday at their home south of town, the occasion being Mr. Moe's birthday. He was given a surprise gift in the form of a handsome rocker.

The Northville Juniors played the last ball game of the season Tuesday with the Plymouth team, defeating them by a score of 4 to 2. The boys have had remarkable success, winning 11 games out of 12 played.

E. L. Herrick of Detroit, representing the Wayne County Prohibition Committee, was in town Tuesday, organizing and getting ready for a legislative campaign on the concentration plan, the same as has been adopted in Minnesota.

Clair Kingsley and Floyd Evans are becoming quite noted violinists. They played several fine guests at the Silver Medal Contest at Novi Friday night and their music was much enjoyed. They were ably accompanied on the piano by Guy Filkins.

A farewell surprise was given Jake Kimmel by about twenty-five of his friends in Chadwick's hall Monday evening. The occasion was a very enjoyable one and the best wishes of a host of friends accompany Mr. and Mrs. Kimmel to their new home.

The annual convention of the Washtenaw County Sunday school association will be held in the Baptist church in Salem Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 29-30. All Sunday school workers, and especially parents, are invited to attend. A fine program has been prepared.

The Lady Maccabees held a "Home Coming" day Tuesday and there were present members from Detroit, Walled Lake, Plymouth, and Farmington. The afternoon was pleasantly spent in renewing old acquaintances and listening to a well prepared program. A fine repast was served to which all did ample justice.

A party was given at the home of Mrs. Penfield Tuesday evening in honor of Miss Carolyn Babbitt who left Thursday for Colorado Springs to spend the winter with her brother. There were eight young ladies present and they presented her with a silver drinking cup as a little farewell token of love and friendship. Miss Babbitt has the best wishes of her many friends for a pleasant journey.

It is to be regretted that the Y. M. A. C. which was organized here in the spring, has been given up. Some of the members seemed to lose interest and failed to attend the meetings. The ones with whom the idea first originated were very enthusiastic and tried hard to keep up the interest, but all to no avail. The rooms which they occupied in the opera house block were vacated this week.

SYNOPSIS.

Burton H. Barnes, a wealthy American touring Corsica, rescues the young English lieutenant, Edward Gerard Anstruther, and his Corsican bride, Marina, daughter of the English from the murderous vendetta, understanding that his reward is to be the hand of the girl he loves. End Anstruther, sister of the English lieutenant. The four fly from Ajaccio to Marseilles on board the French steamer Constantine.

"A wife from somebody who knew I was on this boat," thinks the American, and hastily tearing it open, reads: Burton H. Barnes, "Steamer Constantine arriving Marseilles, Ajaccio, May 26, 1888. En avant double quick! The devil is behind you! Look out for Saliceti! Details by letter." De B.

From instinct Mr. Barnes touches his hip pocket just to be sure his revolver is there. Then he paces the deck meditatively for a moment, cogitating. "Something must be happening in Corsica for that old Algerine campaigner De Belloc to send such a dispatch. Best the ladies don't see this," and tears the message up, tossing the pieces overboard. As he does so Miss Anstruther is beside him, a fluffy white parasol over her head.

"I think," says Mr. Barnes, "we'll go to London as soon as possible. We have but 20 minutes to catch the train. Ah, here's Tompison with the valises!" He takes Miss Anstruther's maid, an English girl of about 20, and rather helpless in a French-speaking country, puts her with the heavier articles of their baggage into a voiture and dispatches her to the railroad depot at once. Returning to his fiancée on the deck of the boat, he says in patience: "Why doesn't Edwin bring Marina on deck?"

This is answered by the young Corsican bride herself. "My husband," she lingers on the word radiantly, "will be along in a minute. He is cording up our baggage, sailor fashion. 'All aboard,' I think Edwin calls it. Is it all ashore now, dear Mr. Barnes," and Marina diapes her light traveling robe with graceful hand about her pretty feet.

"Yes, as quickly as possible. Come, Enid!" and the American leads the way.

Marina waves her hand to her husband, who springs down the gangplank carrying the corded articles and cries: "Hurry, Edwin! Twenty minutes to catch the Paris train!"

"Then I've got you in time!" shouts a voice from the quay that makes Barnes start and turn about.

Before them stands Miss Maud Chartis, her high, bronzed boots more bronzy than ever, the cardinal red of her long, silk stockings that outline her legs from knees to ankles even more aggressively gleaming. A pert little sunshade is over her straw-hatted head, which is adorned by two long, blonde pigtail tied with blue ribbons which she flops about defiantly. The rest of her between knees and neck is a white muslin frock and pink sash.

"Ma said I was to catch you, Edwin, at the boat if you came on it." She waits you at her hotel, the Grand Rue Noailles. You're to look after that plumbing job in her house in London. The master plumber is robbing her."

"Awfully sorry I cannot accommodate your mother, Maud," remarks Anstruther. The carriage engaged by Barnes is standing ready for them. "We steer straight to the depot. I thought you mother was in London already."

"No, we're going back to Nice," Von Bulow is there. Between us all, ma means to marry him. How I pity the German. I'll ride with you and tell you all about it. Once the Chartis girl, whose widowed mother sternly represents the unfortunate Maud from growing into young adulthood and absolutely denies he birthdays till she, Lady Chartis, has captured another husband.

Already Enid and Marina are on the back seat, Anstruther steps in; Barnes likewise. "Room for one more!" cries Maud, who springs in and kisses both of the young ladies effusively.

Already the carriage having rolled up the Boulevard des Dames and passed the Arc de Triomphe has turned into the Rue Bernard du Bois, making for the big railway station, out of which nearly all trains leave Marseilles not only for Paris, but everywhere else.

"You give my compliments to your mother, Maud," remarks the sailor, trying to cut off Maud's conversation. "Tell her to write me at my London address and I'll hoist her plumber at the yard-arm."

By this time they are at the great station. Miss Chartis skips out and the rest follow her from the carriage. Trains are ready to leave for the four quarters of the globe, the platforms are filled with hurrying passengers.

It is hard to believe a medieval vendetta can be inserted on such a scene. Barnes, glancing at his watch, finds they have ten minutes before the train departs; he says cheerfully, but hurriedly: "Look out for the ladies, Edwin, I'll find Tompison, and the rest of the baggage," and goes off to get the tickets and make the necessary arrangements.

But "look out for the ladies," is more easily said than done.

Three jabbering porters have seized their hand baggage and are carrying it in sections towards different trains that will scatter the pieces to the west and the Pyrenees, to the east and Italy.

Edwin pursues these; then Enid gives a gasp. Another porter, calling: "Arles, Tarascon and Avignon!" has pounced upon her special handbag and is rushing away with it. Miss Anstruther flies after him, leaving Maud and Marina together.

Five minutes later, Barnes returns to find Edwin supporting Marina, whose face is very pale; and whose eyes are scarcely conscious. Were it not for the stout arm about her, she would fall to the platform of the great station, under the feet of the hurrying throng.

Miss Chartis is gazing meditatively at her, chewing the blue-enameled knob of her parasol and furtively tucking something in her glove.

"What the deuce has happened to her?" asks the American.

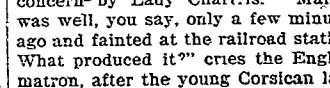

"She is too ill to speak," answers the young husband, astounded. "What am I to do? We cannot take her on the train in this shape. She is absolutely unfit to travel. She has nearly fainted again." For Marina's eyes, seeing Edwin, close again in apparent despair.

"What produced it?" demanded Barnes. "She was the picture of health when I left her."

"Do you know how this occurred?" asks Edwin, eagerly.

"Not so much as you do," replies Miss Anstruther. "Maud, how did this happen?" She turns suspicious eyes

Taking Anstruther down with him he whispers: "Besides, did you notice whenever she looked at you she swooned again? Best keep away until you learn the true reason of this sudden attack."

"Do you think it is heart disease?" asks Edwin, distractedly.

"Not the kind you mean. I can tell you that your bride is as normally healthy as any woman in the world," answers the American. "It was some shock to the brain or nervous system, I think. The question is, what was it?"

"Can it have been anything connected with that horrible island?" queries Edwin, anxiously.

"That I'm now about to attempt to discover," observes Burton.

Meditating as to what the blow is, Barnes leaves the young English officer and comes upstairs, to interview the only witness he thinks available—the adolescent Maud. As he reaches Lady Chartis' parlor, that lady's door is slightly open, and words issue to him that make him pause outside the entrance.

"Now, Maud," says Lady Chartis, sternly, "what caused Miss Anstruther to faint? You were alone with her?"

"Ma, I didn't do it! Sure, I didn't!" falters the girl.

"The truth, or I shall take you to my bedroom. You know what will happen to you there if you don't tell me everything!" The voice of the mother suggests awful possibilities.

"Yes, ma, I will. I'll tell you every blessed thing—don't look at me that way. Why, I was just walking round with Marina and left her for a minute and a gentleman, French and Italian mixed, said: 'You are with Madame Anstruther?'"

He stumbled over the name, and I answered proudly: 'Marina looked awfully fetching—You bet, she's my cousin by marriage.' Then he said: 'Give her this, with my regards,' and handed me a note. Well, I gave it to Marina and that finished her."

"Finished her?"

"Yes, she kind of read it in two pieces. First she drew up and looked like—like you when you think you've caught me in something awful—strong and horrible. And when she read the second part, then she looked like I look when I'm going to catch it."

"And then?" Lady Chartis' voice is intense with excited curiosity.

"Well, then Edwin came up and caught her just as she was going to fall on the floor of the railroad station, and they brought her here."

"Is that everything?"

"Am I not enough? How should I know anything more?"

"Oh!" exclaims Lady Chartis, in extreme disappointment. A moment after she adds, suavely: "You will have no lessons to-day, Maud."

"Bully!" ejaculates her offspring in wild delight, but sets up a stifled howl as her mother continues: "You can spend the day in bed."

"For what? Handing Marina a paper that anybody would give her?"

"For running away from your new governess on the Quai Joliette. Miss Marston reported it. To bed at once!"

The face of the eavesdropping Barnes becomes gloomy. "Here is a witness whose evidence he wants and isn't going to get. He promptly enters Lady Chartis' parlor and says: 'Hi, Maudie, run downstairs and I'll follow you and we'll buy some marrons glaces together.'"

Maud is half-way down the first flight before the last of Barnes' sentence is out of his mouth.

(TO BE CONTINUED)

UTILIZING POWER OF TIDES.

Difficulties in Way of Project Will All Be Overcome.

The difficulties of concentrating tidal power and making it available are great and so far it has been used only on a small scale and in a primitive way, but the near future will probably see great electric generating plants established at favorable localities where the tides run high and there are natural storage basins. Some months ago a plan was worked out for utilizing the ebb and flow of the River Seine. Assuming that tidal embankments were needed for guiding the channel through the estuary it was proposed that these be connected to the shore on either side so as to form two large reservoirs, each of which should be divided into a high water basin and a low water basin, the discharge from one to the other to drive turbines. The available tide is about 10 feet. Each reservoir would have an area of about 2,500 acres, and it was estimated that about 6,000-horsepower would be given off during the six hours of the rising tide. The cost of division dams, turbines and other works was placed at $60,000. From this the annual cost of each horsepower was computed at $8.00, including land rent and interest at 10 per cent, but this would rise to more than $30.00 if the channel walls were to form a part of the expense.

"The Devil's Bible."

The volume which is called "the devil's Bible," is in the library of the royal palace of Sweden. It is a huge copy of the Scriptures, written on 390 prepared asses' skins. One report says that it took 500 years to complete this copy, which is so large that it has a table by itself. Another tradition says that it was completed in a single night, due to the assistance of his Satanic majesty who, when the work was finished, gave the monk a portrait of himself for a frontispiece. The illuminated likeness of the devil still adorns the front page of the work. The volume was carried off by the Swedes in the Thirty Years' War from a convent in Prague.

A Young Composer.

Rachel, aged 12, wrote an composition on wild flowers in which she praised the arbutus, the liverwort, the spring beauty, the blood-root, and all of the other blossoms of dell and dale. But she wrote on both sides of her sheet of paper, and when she asked her father, who was an editor, to publish her article, he called her attention to that fact.

"You've written on both sides of your paper," said he.

"Well," was the reply, "and don't you print on both sides of yours?"

ALL THINGS IN PROPORTION.

Invalid's Meal Evidently Had Not Increased Good Humor.

For many weeks the irritable merchant had been riveted to his bed by typhoid fever. Now he was convalescing. He clamored for something to eat, declaring that he was starving.

"To-morrow you may have something to eat," promised the doctor. The merchant realized that there would be a restraint to his appetite, yet he saw, in vision, a modest, steaming meal placed at his bedside.

"Here is your dinner," said the nurse next day, as she gave the glowering patient a spoonful of tapioca pudding, "and the doctor emphasizes that everything else you do must be in the same proportion."

Two hours later the nurse heard a frantic call from the bed chamber.

"Nurse," breathed the man heavily, "I want to do some reading, bring me a postage stamp."

HAVE GRAZE FOR FORMULA.

Smokers Follow Fashions in Use of Tobacco.

"Make me up a package of tobacco according to the formula used by Edwin Booth," said the man with a southern accent. "That is the third man who has asked for that kind of tobacco to-day," said the dealer.

"It is strange that people from remote parts of the country as well as New Yorkers make a fad of buying the same brand of tobacco that Booth smoked. And it isn't always the Booth mixture that they want. I have filed away the formulas for mixing, the favorite tobacco of many famous persons. Smokers the country over have heard of this collection of recipes and one feature of every man's trip to New York is to try a pipeful of some big man's favorite tobacco. In most cases this special mixture is so strong that the nerves of the average smoker cannot stand it. He has to give up after a few pipefuls and go back to a popular mixture, but he has the satisfaction of having had the experience."—The New York Sun.

"The religious Press owes you a debt of gratitude for your courage in showing up Collier's Weekly as the 'Yell-Oh Man.' Would you care to use the enclosed article on the 'Boo Hoo Baby' as the 'Yell-Oh Man's' successor?"

"A contemporary remarks that Collier's has finally run against a solid hickory 'Post' and been damaged in its own estimation to the tune of $753,000.00."

"Here is a publication which has, in utmost disregard of the facts, spread broadcast damaging statements about the Religious Press and others and has suffered those false statements to go uncontradicted until, not satisfied after finding the Religious Press too quiet, and peaceful, to resent the insults, it makes the mistake of wandering into fresh field and butts its rattled head against this Post and all the World laughs. Even Christians smile, as the Post suddenly turns and gives it back a dose of its own medicine."

"It is a mistake to say all the World laughs. No cheery laugh comes from Collier's, but it cries and boo hoo like a spanked baby and wants $750,000.00 to soothe its tender, lacerated feelings."

"Thank Heaven it has at last struck a man with 'back bone' enough to call a spade a 'spade' and who believes in telling the whole truth without fear or favor."

Perhaps Collier's with its "utmost disregard for the facts," may say no such letter exists. Nevertheless it is on file in our office and is only one of a mass of letters and other data, newspaper comments, etc., denouncing the "yellow" methods of Collier's. This volume is so large that a man could not well go thru it under half a day's steady work. The letters come from various parts of America.

Usually a private controversy is not interesting to the public, but this is a public controversy.

Collier's has been using the "yellow" methods to attract attention to itself, but, jumping in the air, cracking heels together and yelling "Look at me!" wouldn't suffice, so it started out on a "Holler Than Thou" attack on the Religious Press and on medicine.

We leave it to the public now, as we did when we first resented Collier's attacks, to say whether, in a craving for sensation and circulation, its attacks do not amount to a systematic mercenary hounding. We likewise leave it to the public to say whether Collier's, by its own policy and methods, has not made itself more ridiculous than any comment of ours could make it.

Does Collier's expect to regain any self-inflicted loss of prestige by demonstrating thru suits for damages, that it can be more artful in evading liability for libels than the humble but resentful victims of its defamation, or does it hope for starting a campaign of libel suits to silence the popular indignation, reproach and resentment which it has aroused.

Collier's can not dodge this public controversy by private law suits. It can not postpone the public judgment against it. That great jury, the Public, will hardly blame us for not waiting until we get a petit jury in a court room, before denouncing this prodigal defector of institutions founded and fostered either by individuals or by the public itself.

No announcements during our entire business career were ever made claiming "medicinal effects" for either Postum or Grape-Nuts. Medicinal effects are results obtained from the use of medicines.

Thousands of visitors go thru our entire works each month and see for themselves that Grape-Nuts contains absolutely nothing but wheat, barley and a little salt; Postum absolutely nothing but wheat and about ten per cent of New Orleans Molasses. The art of preparing these simple elements in a scientific manner to obtain the best food value and flavor, required some work and experience to acquire.

Now, when any publication goes far enough out of its way to attack us because our advertising is "medicinal," it simply offers a remarkable exhibition of ignorance or worse.

We do claim physiological or bodily results of favorable character following the adoption of our suggestions regarding the discontinuance of coffee and foods which may not be keeping the individual in good health. We have no advice to offer the perfectly healthy person. It is or her health is evidence in itself that the beverages and foods used exactly fit that person. Therefore, why change?

But to the man or woman who is ailing, we have something to say as a result of an unusually wide experience in food and the result of proper feeding.

In the palpably ignorant attack on us in Collier's, appeared this statement: "One widely circulated paragraph labors to induce the impression that Grape-Nuts will obviate the necessity of an operation in appendicitis. This is lying and potentially deadly lying."

In reply to this exhibition of—well let the reader name it, the Postum Co. says:

Let it be understood that appendicitis results from long continued disturbance in the intestines, caused primarily by undigested starchy food, such as white bread, potatoes, rice, partly cooked cereals and such.

Starchy food is not digested in the upper stomach but passes on into the duodenum, or lower stomach and intestines, where, in a healthy individual, the transformation of the starch into a form of sugar is completed and then the food absorbed by the blood.

But if the powers of digestion are weakened, a part of the starchy food will be in the warmth and moisture of the body and decay, generating gases and irritating the mucous surfaces until under such conditions the whole lower part of the alimentary canal, including the colon and the appendix, becomes involved. Disease sets up and at times takes the form known as appendicitis.

When the symptoms of the trouble make their appearance, would it not be good, practical, common sense, to discontinue the starchy food which is causing the trouble and take a food in which the starch has been transformed into a form of sugar in the process of manufacture?

This is identically the same form of sugar found in the human body after starch has been perfectly digested.

Now, human food is made up very largely of starch and is required by the body for energy and warmth. Naturally, therefore, its use should be continued, if possible, and for the reasons given above it is made possible in the manufacture of Grape-Nuts.

In connection with this change of food to bring relief from physical disturbances, we have suggested washing out the intestines to get rid of the immediate cause of the disturbance.

Naturally, there are cases where the disease has lain dormant and the abuse continued too long, until apparently only the knife will avail. But it is a well-established fact among the best physicians who are acquainted with the details above recited, that preventative measures are far and away the best.

Are we to be condemned for suggesting a way to prevent disease by following natural methods and for perfecting a food that contains no "medicine" and produces no "medicinal effects" but which has guided literally thousands of persons from sickness to health? We have received during the years past upwards of 25,000 letters from people who have been either helped or made entirely well by following our suggestions, and they are simple.

If coffee disagrees and causes any of the ailments common to some coffee users quit it and take on Postum.

If white bread, potatoes, rice and other starchy foods make trouble, quit and use Grape-Nuts food which is largely predigested and will digest, nourish and strengthen, when other forms of food do not. It's just plain old common sense.

The "Mound City."

St. Louis rejoices in the sobriquet of Mound City from the fact that the original settlers found there many elevations which it is supposed were relics of that strange people who dwelt in the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and are known to modern times only as the Mound Builders. No adequate explanation has yet been found of the strange mode of leaving memorials of their existence. The limestone bluffs on which a part of St. Louis stands furnish a solid foundation for the business buildings.

Held Up.

"Stop!" shouted the man on the country road, holding up a warning hand. Muttering something about rural cops, the automobilist obeyed.

"Turn around and come back to town with me," said the stranger. "You were going at least 35 miles an hour."

"You're a constable, I suppose," said the automobilist, with a covert sneer, when they had reached the village.

"Me?" replied the passenger. "No, I'm a farmer and had to come into town when all the teams was busy? Nice growing weather? Thanks. Good-by."

Belling a Rat.

You have probably read or heard that the best way to rid a house of rats is to catch one and fasten a bell about its neck. A boy in Delaware tried the experiment two months ago. He was badly bitten in making the bell fast, but he turned the rat loose and expected the barking of that bell would have great results. It did have in the first place, the rat who wore it was constantly on the move all night, and the tinkling bell kept the family awake, and in the next the sounds brought scores of new rats to the house. Instead of being afraid of the bell, they were charmed with the music. Had the boy tied a harmonica to another rat's tail, the rodents would have had a dance every night.

CURE YOUR KIDNEYS.

Do Not Endanger Life When a Northville Citizen Shows You the Cure.

Why will people continue to suffer the agonies of kidney complaint, backache, urinary disorders, lameness, headaches, languor, why allow themselves to become chronic invalids, when a certain cure is offered them?

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use, because it gives to the kidneys the help they need to perform their work.

If you have any, even one, of the symptoms of kidney diseases, cure yourself now, before diabetes, dropsy, or Bright's disease sets in. Read this Northville testimony:

L. W. Hutton, living on Main street, Northville, Mich., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills for backache and can give them my hearty endorsement. A year or two ago I was troubled with pains across my back and loins, sometimes severe and causing me great annoyance. I was told it was caused by the kidneys being disordered but none of the remedies I used helped or cured me. I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills and got them at Murdoch Bros' drug store. They relieved me almost immediately. I was soon entirely well and have not been bothered in the same way since." Mrs. Hutton also used Doan's Kidney Pills for backache and the result was just as satisfactory as in my case. I can heartily endorse the claims made for your reliable remedy.
