AMBLER REUNION

HELD AT THE PARK HOUSE THANKSGIVING DAY.

The Hotel was Built by Wm. Ambler in 1858.

A most noted event occurred in our village Thanksgiving day when the sons, daughter, grandchildren and great-grandchildren of William and Ursula Ambler met in a family reunion at the Park House, formerly known as the Ambler House, where a sumptuous dinner was served.

William Ambler was born in Rutland, Vermont, July 4, 1798 and was married to Ursula Ann Randall, Jan. 1, 1826, at Sodus, N. Y., where to operate until his death, which occurred here, Nov. 6, 1863.

It is interesting to note that the Ambler House was built and opened for business by Wm. Ambler in 1858. It bore this name for more than twenty years. It was the first balloon frame building of any size that was erected in this part of the country and it was fully predicted that it would fall the first time it was filled. The Ambler house was headquarters for the stage routes to Detroit. This was the only means of communication then existing.

In the early days Mrs. Ambler was well known throughout the country as the popular landlady of the Ambler House, and it may be truly said that much of the success of that place was due to her untiring efforts for the welfare of her guests.

As a mother's nurturing care and influence passes well down through the ages her children and their children feel and bear witness to the stalwart ancestry of which she held so prominent a place.

Seven children were born to them, three of whom are still living: John M. Ambler, William H. Ambler and Mrs. Lucy Bovee, all of this place.

Those present at the reunion last Thursday were:

Mr. and Mrs. John Ambler, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. E. Ambler, Roy Ambler, Thelma Ambler.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Bovee, Mrs. Benjamin Filkins, Harry Ambler Bovee, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Woodworth, Hazel Bovee.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Ambler, Mrs. Lillian Ambler, Carroll Ambler, all of this place.

Mrs. Belle C. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Hakes, Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Curtis, Claude H. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Carson, Bertha Curtis, Frederick Curtis, all of Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Ambler, Sherill Ambler, Lella Ambler, all of Ypsilanti.

Notice to Taxpayers.

I will be at the following places for the purpose of receiving taxes: At the hotel, Wixom, Thursdays, Dec. 12, 19, 26, Jan. 2; at C. E. Goodell's store, Novi, Fridays, Dec. 13, 20, 27, Jan. 3; W. H. Ambler's office, Northville, Saturdays, Dec. 14, 21, 28, Jan. 4. SEYMOUR L. BROWN, Township Treasurer.

Dingman-Downs.

A very pretty wedding occurred Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ezekiel Dingman on the base line, when their eldest son, William, was united in marriage to Miss Lenora Downs, formerly of Alabama. At seven o'clock the bridal couple took their places and Rev. S. F. Dimmock of the Baptist church, performed the ceremony. They were attended by the groom's brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Dingman. After congratulations had been extended a dainty repast was served. After a couple of weeks' visit in Midland they will return and make their home with the groom's parents. They have the best wishes of a host of friends.

DETROIT WOMAN SHOT HER PHYSICIAN

DR. ATTRIDGE PROBABLY FATAL- LY INJURED TUESDAY.

Crazy Infatuation of Patient Just Recovering from Operation.

While laboring under a streak of insanity, Mrs. James Griffith shot her family physician, Dr. J. A. Attridge, at her home in Detroit Monday night. She had just been brought home from the hospital by the doctor where she had undergone a serious operation with Dr. Attridge as her physician.

Dr. Attridge's Brother Says She Courted Him.

"For six weeks Mrs. Griffith has been unremitting in her attentions to my brother," said Herbert Attridge at Harper hospital Wednesday night. Some time ago he came to the conclusion that she was insane and that he could have nothing more to do with her. Her sister came to me and told me of things that further strengthened my opinion as to her mental irresponsibility and I told her then that she should have Mrs. Griffith sent to an asylum. Mrs. Wade told me that it was not her duty but Mr. Griffith's to make such a move.

"My brother tried every possible means to avoid Mrs. Griffith. She would call him up by phone and try to make appointments with him, but he would keep away from her knowing that she was not in her right mind.

Husband Says He Knew It.

"Since last spring I have known of the relationship between my wife and the doctor."

This statement was made Wednesday morning by James B. Griffith husband of the woman.

It would seem a queer state of affairs if Mr. Griffith knew all this and then engaged the doctor to take his wife south for treatment last summer.

Dr. Attridge is well and favorably known in Northville and has always been welcomed in the best homes in the village. He bears an irreproachable name and no one who knows him will believe he was anything but the sympathetic family physician to not only the wife, but to Mr. Griffith as well.

Owing to Mrs. Griffith's ill health for a year or more past it would seem absurd to insinuate that any improper relations could have existed.

Dr. Attridge is still alive but is in a dangerous condition at Harper hospital. After shooting the doctor Mrs. Griffith dangerously wounded herself.

OPINIONS FROM THE STATE PRESS

Knows Good Man is Better than Unknown One.

"Yes, we are for Warner for Gov. against the field. We would far rather have a good man that we know than what might be a good man that we don't know. His mistakes, if any, have been few."—Sanlax County Times.

Would be Some Lively Doings.

"In view of the conflict between the 'boxers' and Gov. Warner, the democratic leaders are looking to Kalamazoo for a candidate for governor. In Nathaniel H. Stewart of that city, they believe they would have a candidate of unusual strength. If the republicans of Michigan endorse the policy of the boxers as against the administration, there is certain to be some lively doings, resulting finally in some republicans becoming decidedly weary."

Four Years Ahead of the Pure Drug Law!

There is one line of patent medicines in which no change is necessary in order to conform with Uncle Sam's new Pure Food and Drug Law.

Rexall Remedies were made to conform with this law in every particular four years ago—long before this law was thought of!

At that time one thousand leading druggists of the country, owing to the unsatisfactory way in which they had to sell patent medicines, decided to form a co-operative company and manufacture a line of remedies for which they could stand absolutely responsible from their knowledge and control of ingredients in these cures.

The plan of Rexall Remedies was the result. Could these thousand druggists then have foreseen the new Pure Food Law, and known every clause of it, they could not have made the Rexall plan conform to it more closely.

There is nothing secret about Rexall Remedies, and there never was!

For years Rexall ads have told the public that each Rexall druggist had the formula of every Rexall remedy on file, and would willingly give any formula to whoever asked for it.

Moreover, Rexall Remedies protect you more than the Pure Food Law does. You now only know the dangerous drugs in patent medicines—we know and have always known everything in Rexall Remedies—and have always been glad to show you the printed complete formulas.

No Rexall Remedy is a "cure-all." Each of the 300 remedies has a formula which years of experience have shown to be the most reliable cure for a certain human ill.

The proof of our confidence in Rexall Remedies is the Rexall guarantee. Every Rexall sale we make is with the understanding that if the purchaser is dissatisfied, he or she can get back the money paid, by simply returning the empty package or bottle. For four years the sincerity of this offer has never been challenged!

Martin

Why is the Martin 12 gauge take-down repeating shotgun the best all-around shotgun that money can buy?
Martin shotguns are made of the best material obtainable for the purpose. They are strong and sure, and work under all conditions. The breech block and working parts are cut from solid steel drop-forgings; the barrels are of special rolled steel or of "Special Smokeless Steel."
The lines of Martin shotguns are pleasing—the balance is perfect. They pattern perfectly and have wonderful penetration.
The solid top and side ejection assure safety and comfort. This is the gun you have been needing.

A few of the 300 famous REXALL Remedies, one for each human ill, are:

FOR CATARRH—MUCU-TONE

The chief ingredients of Mucu-Tone are Gentian, Cobebe, Cascara, Sagrada, Glycine and Sarsaparilla. Gentian is recognized in medicine as one of the greatest tonics ever discovered. It combines the tonic powers of all known "bitters," with none of the disadvantages applying to any.
Cubeb has long been recognized as a specific in the treatment of all catarrhal conditions. Its action is prompt and its benefit almost invariable.
Cascara Sagrada is especially introduced for its unsurpassable laxative properties. The combination of these with Glycine and Sarsaparilla makes Mucu-Tone a remedy that attacks catarrh from every point and gradually restores the diseased tissues. Bottle, 50c.

FOR NERVES—AMERICANITIS ELIXIR

The Rexall Americanitis Elixir is a tonic nerve food composed chiefly of free Phosphorus, Glycophosphates, Iron Phosphates and Calcium.
The wonderful results of this remedy are due to the fact that it supplies Phosphorus to the nerve fibers in a condition in which it can be immediately and easily taken up by them.
The Glycophosphates, actual nerve tissue builders, are one of the most recent and valuable additions to this branch of medicine and unquestionably a more efficient remedy than the well-known Hypophosphites.
The Iron Phosphates are the most easily assimilated form of iron which give most effective results for hair and scalp. Calissara Benzobate a tonic effect on almost all the functions of the body. 75c and $1.50 a bottle.

REXALL "83" HAIR TONIC

The famous Rexall "83" Hair Tonic is composed of Resorcin, Bet-Naphthol and Biotin.
Resorcin is one of the latest and most effective germ-killing disinfectants and in connection with Bet-Naphthol, which is both germicidal and antiseptic, a combination is formed which not only kills the germs which rob the hair of its nutrition, but creates a clean and healthy condition of the scalp, which prevents the development of new germs.
Biotin is a well-known agent for restoring the hair to its natural color, where the loss of color has been due to a disease of the scalp. It is not a coloring matter or dye.
This combination of curatives mixed with alcohol as a stimulant, perfects the most effective remedy for hair and scalp troubles known today. Per bottle, 50c.

"REXALL" ORDERLIES

The New Laxative
If you suffer from constipation, or a sluggish liver, we want you to try this newest member of the Rexall family. It has never failed.
"Rexall" Orderlies have all the virtues and none of the defects of those laxatives and cathartics already known. They are harmless vanilla-flavored tablets that effect a re-adjustment of Nature's functions—no griping, no nausea, no purging.
Pleasant to the taste—they give immediate relief.
A trial will prove to you that they are the best laxative and cathartic ever prescribed.

Assumed Age.

To hear the average man of 25 reminisce, "growed a grizzled agriculturist," you'd think he originally wore knee britches on a bell-crowned hat. Abner, take that wretched dawg away from here, before I ruin this willow tree over him.—Puck.

Encouraging.

Cultivate Cheerfulness.

Age without cheerfulness is a Lapland winter without sun; and this spirit of cheerfulness should be encouraged in our youth if we would wish to have the benefit of it in our old age.—Colton.

Careless.

THE STATE IN GENERAL

THE MAYOR OF YPSILANTI, WHOM CITY AFFAIRS WORRIED, SUICIDES.

"ATTACKS OF BLACKNESS"

Poor Business and Failure of His Municipal Projects Seem to Have Affected His Mind and Caused His Death.

Mayor John B. Van Fossen, aged 48, of Ypsilanti, serving his second year as the city's executive, shot himself in the head in his home Friday morning and died several hours later. The mayor had frequently though patiently complained of the fits of melancholia which grasped him.

He was a dentist and business had been poor.

"I am fighting it," he said recently to a friend, "but I am afraid those attacks of blackness are overcoming me."

This fall he went on a hunting trip and returned perceptibly brighter in spirits. However, the improvement in his condition did not continue very long and lately he has been even more despondent than before. Thursday night he was unable to sleep and tossed restlessly about on his bed.

Early in the morning he told his wife that he was ill and asked her to call a physician. She arose about 7:30 and, after asking the family doctor to come and see Dr. Van Fossen, began to prepare the morning meal. Shortly before 9 o'clock she heard a shot and she rushed upstairs and into her husband's room. He was still lying undressed on the bed with blood flowing from a wound in the back of his right ear. A 32-caliber revolver lay beside him. Several physicians who were hastily summoned could not revive him. The bullet penetrated his brain, and he died about 9 o'clock. Mrs. Van Fossen is prostrated.

He worried considerably about the temporary failure of a pet project to have the city buy land and present it to the Normal college. The council delayed action, believing the city could not afford the expense at present. The deceased, who was a graduate of the school, had at one time been instrumental in adding 33 acres to the campus.

The mayor was also worried because the city did not do more to encourage new industries. He pointed out the fact that other cities were constantly inducing capital to locate in their towns, but that Ypsilanti had reached a point where it was practically at a standstill.

"I will not be a candidate for reelection," he said one day in discussing the responsibilities of the office.

Dr. Van Fossen's only near relatives are a sister, Mrs. Archer Van Cleve, of Marinette, Wis., an dtwo cousins, Margaret Benedict, of Dowagiac, and Mrs. Charles L. Stevens, of Detroit.

A Real Surprise.

John Wainwright, living near Benton Harbor, purchased a cord of wood in big chunks. Thanksgiving day he started in to split a portion of the pile to suitable size for the kitchen stove. Picking out a chunk which appeared hollow, and which would cut easily, he dug his ax into it, and the wood split squarely down the middle. To Wainwright's surprise, a roll of bills, tied with string, fell out, and, counting the treasure, he found it contained almost three hundred dollars.

Paroled Convicts.

According to the annual report of the state board of pardons and parole, 960 male prisoners and 32 females are now released on parole. There were released during the year 494 convicts. A feature of the record is the showing that over 20 per cent of those released on parole have broken their paroles, and there are at large 111 of these violators. There are 49 paroled convicts wanted for committing felonies. Most of the others violated their paroles by failing to keep the promises they made at the time they were released.

Pontiac's Postoffice.

It is reported from Washington that Congressman S. W. Smith will shortly introduce into congress a bill providing for the appropriation of $100,000 for a new federal building for Pontiac. As a site the John Pound property was purchased for $12,000 paid in cash to the widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Pound. The Pound residence, one of the largest and finest homes in Pontiac, had to be torn down. Three other houses on the property were moved off. The property has a frontage on four streets and is located but one block from the county building and the center of the city.

Postoffice Burglars.

Burglars broke into the postoffice at an early hour Tuesday morning and were frightened away while at work on the safe. When discovered a sentinel on the outside fired several shots and two more robbers rushed from the building and escaped. They took a farmer's horse and buggy and went southward.

Ogen Sanes, aged 12, son of Gardner Sanes, the Pentwater lumberman, died of ptomaine poisoning.

Byron Winters, a former Cadillac grocer, who disappeared four months ago, has written from a lumber camp in the northern Canadian woods, but gives no explanation of his absence. His family has been broken up.

Local promoters are raising funds to buy the Detroit, Flint & Saginaw railroad, now in the hands of a receiver and ordered sold by the General circuit court. The D. U. R. is also reported to be after the property for a Detroit-Saginaw line.

DEER SLAYERS.

The Number of Killed and Wounded Hunters is Large.

Seventy-one persons were killed—most of them by carelessness—during the hunting season of 1907. This is slightly below the record for last year, when 74 persons lost their lives in pursuit of game. In Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota, where most of the accidents to hunters happened, 50 persons lost their lives this year, against 35 last year.

Practically all of the accidents were due to the careless handling of the weapons, or the victims having been mistaken for game. Following is a table showing the Michigan victims:

- Ballard, Norman, Plainfield; fall, dead while hunting.
- Collini, Hugo, Houghton; accidental discharge of gun.
- Darrie, John, Houghton; pushed boat with gun.
- Dooley, Edward, Muskegon; shot by companion.
- Irgalis, Albert, Gladstone; shot by companion.
- Kaschek, Carl, Muskegon; accidental discharge of gun.
- LaBlonde, Isadore, Bessemer; shot by companion.
- Landenna, John, Calumet; mistaken for a deer.
- Moorehouse, Fred, Columbus, O.; mistaken for a deer.
- Perichio, Joseph H., Laurium; gun discharged while clubbing deer.
- Rasmussen, Peter, Iron Mountain; mistaken for a deer.
- Sesmal, John, Talbot; accidental discharge of gun.
- Sippoll, Gustave, Calumet; dragged gun behind him.
- Spracklin, William, Detroit; shot by companion.
- Unknown foreigner, Negaunee; mistaken for deer.
- Unknown foreigner, Bessemer; shot by hunters.
- Unknown foreigner, Staver; shot by hunter.

Left the Wall Paper.

"Has there been a cyclone?" asked Mrs. Horace N. Keys, of Battle Creek, when shown her home after returning from Chicago. Everything "but the carpets and pictures on the wall" was gone, as she put it. Silverware, clothing, bric-a-brac—a wagonload at least—was taken, the star bit of plunder being a gold-embroidered party coat from Jerusalem.

MICHIGAN BREVITIES.

J. C. Moore, a traveling salesman for a carriage firm of Flint, was robbed of his pocketbook and about $190 in Toledo.

Former Senator James W. Helme, who is contesting the seat with Delegate Robinson, will be successful in securing his recount.

Mrs. Louise Meyer, aged 74, of Pontiac, stricken with apoplexy, fell through a window and was found prostrate over the widow sill.

Capt. J. M. Bradley, a Muskegon rural mail carrier, has received a $46,000 bequest from an eastern relative to whom he had been kind.

Miss Mina Fox, of Manistiquie, a crack shot, brought down a 2-year-old buck in Schoolcraft county while hunting with a party of friends.

Joseph Drescher, of Sutton's bay, who for years took in all stray dogs which came to him and had buried more than 200 in his yard, is dead.

Detroit police officers made 13,324 arrests in the fiscal year, ending July 1, 1907, according to the annual report of Police Commissioner Smith.

Plans for a $100,000 hotel, to be located across from beautiful Hackley square in Muskegon, within a block of the business district, are announced.

Secretary of State Prescott will issue for the use of policemen, a pamphlet containing the names and numbers of all automobile license holders in the state.

Battle Creek merchants will pay the round trip fares of out-of-town customers, giving them rebate books which will be cashed by any of the local banks.

Mrs. Joseph Grew, of Bay City, is considerably worried over the absence of her husband, who disappeared some time ago with his savings, amounting to about $280.

Lee Tom, a Chinese laundryman in Battle Creek, was forced at the point of a revolver to give $7 to a fellow-countryman, who posed as an "immigration inspector."

An ordinance has gone into effect in Coldwater, following the attack made by dogs on several local people, that every canine not muzzled or tied up must be killed.

Mrs. H. H. Taylor, of Marshall, accompanied her husband on a northern hunting trip and shot two deer. Mrs. Ben Van Arman, another woman hunter, had the same success.

Henry W. Carey, a member of the board of regents, and George Baker, a Detroit man, have been named as candidates for the treasurership of the U. of M. to succeed Maj. Soule.

A seven-year-old child created considerable interest in Menominee when she stepped off a passenger train to change cars and announced that she had traveled all the way from Holland alone.

The fly-wheel of a 550 horse power engine in the Flint Wagon Works burst Monday afternoon. One piece weighing about a ton went through the roof, and another smaller piece crashed through the ceiling. No one was injured, but the property loss is large.

An early morning sally from camp netted Andrew Johnson, a Marquette hunter, $70 in bounty for killing two wolves and a good bag of game in the shape of two deer. The wolves were chasing the deer and Johnson brought down the quartet with about half a dozen shots.

A woman giving the name of Alice Thompson is under arrest in Saginaw charged with shoplifting, and the police think she might be the woman under the same charge who escaped from the Lansing authorities. She was caught with the goods on her in William Barle's dry goods store, in which she was "waiting to meet a friend."

"Two Story" Bed Appears.

Among the new inventions for flats, where room is at a premium, are the two and three-story beds or cots of enameled iron. They certainly have the advantage of being room savers, whatever their defects from the standpoint of beauty may be. In width they are about the size of ordinary single beds. Each is furnished with a woven wire spring, mattress and pillow.

Strange Disease.

Two middle-aged women on a car were discussing the sickness of two children of one of them. "And what does the doctor say ails them?" asked one. "The little child has some sort of a fever," was the answer, "and he said that the disease of the other was epidemic." "It's a sickness I never heard of," responded mother number one.

Shy Amateurs.

SERIAL STORY

Mr. Barnes, American

Archibald Clavering Gunter A Sequel to Mr. Barnes of New York

SYNOPSIS.

Burton H. Barnes, a wealthy American touring Corsica, rescues the young English lieutenant, Edward Gene Anstruther, and his Corsican bride, Marina, daughter of the Exoils, from the murderous vendetta...

But a few minutes after, Barnes suddenly remarks that he wants some more cartridges for his pistols, and obtaining the cutter, is rapidly rowed to the landing and disappears in the sixteenth century architecture of the town.

Consequently, when Marina and Enid come on deck, the latter discovers her swain is absent and, being now inclined to find fault with her gallant, pouts mentally: "Burton might have asked if I'd like a run on shore also."

But both boats being now at the landing, the ladies are compelled to spend their time rather monotonously looking at the picturesque little port, though Marina does little of this.

"Not with this wind," remarks Edwin. To this he adds, suddenly: "Dear one, you seem afraid of that place."

"Not while I have you by my side," she answers, ambiguously, and clings more tightly to his arm.

"Are you sure?" asks Barnes, with some concern in his tone, as he ceases his target practice.

"Certain," replies Edwin, who has put his sailor eyes upon the craft. "That felucca's got a peculiar cant to her mainsail I'd know anywhere."

To this he adds: "I wonder where's she bound, to the sardine-fishing off Cape Corso?"

"At this information the American gazes very unpleasantly toward the little cook, who is perched forward beating some eggs and enjoying the exhibition of marksmanship."

"You used to do pretty well with the pistol yourself, young lady, at Monte Carlo—you recollect?" He reloads his revolver and places it in her hand.

"After your exhibition I should make myself a laughing stock to the crew," she dissents coldly.

"You may need to use this weapon some day," he says almost sadly, "and when you do—"

"Oh, you want me to murder somebody," she answers, almost frivolously; and the young lady carelessly bangs about with the weapon, making some good practice on a floating bottle. Suddenly she notes that it is the very pistol that, in Monte Carlo in his efforts to win her heart, her Burton has taught her to use.

Barnes begins to watch like a cat the French cook, who is now cheerfully making a ragout for the crew's supper.

ferocious looking little fellow, attracts very favorable attention from the ladies.

Miss Anstruther, conversing with her swain, has graduated from aggressive vivacity during soup and fish to a coldness at dessert, equaling the ices she is eating.

Fortunately Barnes is too occupied with certain mental calculations and considerations to give great heed to his sweetheart's eccentric attacks, though in a dejected, abstracted way he feels them.

"How shall we best make Johnny Crapaud innocuous?" for several occurrences ashore have made him exceedingly suspicious of Monsieur Leboeuf.

Cigars end this almost uneasy feast—the American goes on deck to smoke his and Edwin, puffing a big imperial, relieves the mate in his charge of the vessel.

As for the ladies, they retire early and awake the next morning to find the vessel floating midway between the picturesque cliffs of Monte Carlo, that are hazy in the distance, and the mountains of northern Corsica, just a little to the southeast.

After breakfast, of which everybody eats so little that Monsieur Leboeuf, gazing upon the untouched viands, utters a snort of rage.

The crew, anxious to see his skill, toss bottles into the air and throw up potatoes for his unerring bullets, and every time the American puts a pellet into one of them he wishes sardonically it was the heart of Cipriano Danella.

This seems to make his aim very true, and his success is so astounding that the crew raise a cheer, as he puts one bullet through two potatoes thrown into the air at the same time as they cross each other in their flight.

The reports of his pistol floating over the placid water reach a considerable distance. At all events, they and the cheer excite some comment on a little felucca that has been sailing an almost parallel course; apparently a very fast craft, it draws somewhat nearer.

Attracted by this, Enid turns her sharp eyes from the pistol shooting companionway to the little salon. His is about to enter her stateroom when Barnes' footfall is heard upon the companion ladder and the American says: "Come on deck, Edwin. That infernal felucca is still dogging us. I have discovered the villain signaling her. We must act at once!"

The footsteps of the two men indicate that they rapidly ascend to the deck. There is some danger on board—danger for her husband, Marina, throwing on a lace wrapper, steps into the salon.

"There another lightly clothed young lady meets her. "Did you hear them?" asks Miss Anstruther, in a gasping breath. "There is peril to those we love on deck!"

Then the two glide with light feet to the gloom above.

In the cockpit, Barnes and Edwin are confronting the little Frenchman who, seated upon his galley chest, is uttering cries of fright, for the stalwart sailor with a marlinpike in his hand and Barnes with his pistol ready have unpleasantly and abruptly disturbed his slumbers.

"Messieurs, I am innocent as a babe unborn!" stammers the affrighted dish-pastry artist.

"Innocent!" snarls the American, "when you left your galley fire unbanked against orders, and your port hole open so that this red light would indicate our course to that fishing boat that has dogged us every fack from St. Tropez?"

"Innocent!" snarls the American, "when you went on shore at that port to get ice and sent a telegram to Marseilles, and then lingered there, pretending to buy vegetables till a wire could be received from that devil Danella. The only question, Edwin, is shall we put him ashore or throw him overboard!"

Leboeuf utters a faint shriek: "As sassinat!"

It is answered, Two lovely creatures in exquisite dishabille fly in. One cries, excitedly: "For the love of the Virgin, spare him!"

The other implores: "For heaven's sake, don't kill the cook!"

But both stand between marlinpike and pistol and the threatened French man.

CHAPTER VI. Lady Chartist's New Suitor.

"Clei, you speak my language," ejaculates Leboeuf, in mixed English and French, knocking over some pans and kettles and sinking on his knees before the beautiful beings who defend him.

"Tell you these English, who cannot understand my explanation, that I am no traitor, zat I am cook and nothing else!" he cries to Marina. "Have I poisoned anyone? Diable, no, my salads were marvelous; my entrees gave no indigestion. Zen why do zesses men threaten me with death?"

"See if you cannot get out of the beggar some logical explanation of his peculiar conduct," mutters Edwin, gloomily.

"You have frightened the poor man so he cannot make you understand," remarks Enid severely.

"Then, ask him to tell you," says Barnes, "why, when we called for ice at St. Tropez he surreptitiously sent a telegram to Marseilles and then delayed us three hours at that port until that fishing vessel, probably directed by wire, got under way to dog our footsteps."

"Witch's Bride." An interesting but most cruel object of punishment may be found in the council chamber of the town hall at Forfar, which is generally known as the "Witch's Bride." This is a kind of cage made of flat iron bars, into which the head of the unhappy sorcerer was thrust, a lock at the back securing and keeping it in position. The mouthpiece in this instance is made of iron plate, studded with sharp spikes, which caused great suffering to the woman if she tried to speak. As soon as the victim had been condemned to death for witchcraft this bride was placed over the face and she was led through the town by a short chain, to be mocked and made the butt of all who saw her, after which she would be publicly strangled and burned.

The latest record of an execution of a supposed witch at Forfar, in Scotland was in the year 1662.

Easy Rest Cure. The newest rest cure recommended is at once simple, economical and efficacious. It soothes, rests and rehabilitates the tired, body and jaded nerves, as all the other cures, even sunlight and air, under other conditions, fail to do. One does not have to leave one's room or alter to any great extent one's ordinary mode of life to take it, neither is any special diet, any complicated apparatus, any medical attendance or noxious drugs required. The cure consists simply in passing every Sunday in bed. One need only go a step further and add to it an even more effective rest cure the passing of all one's spare time in bed, and as a perpetual preventive of weariness the shaking off this mortal coil and resorting to the grave.

Slaves in Connecticut. The Slaves are colonizing Connecticut valley. Old Hadley is said to be full of them, occupying the colonial residences up and down the elm shaded streets of that beautiful New England town in tenements, four or five families in a house, and even taking in boarders. Industry is their watchword, and they are taking up the farms that the New England stock is abandoning. They bring a lower standard of living. This is to be regretted, but, it is said, that they are making the New England farms pay, and as they get rich, they spend more and live better.—Lewiston Journal

MESSAGE SENT TO CONGRESS

President's Recommendations on National Legislation.

AS TO CURRENCY QUESTION

Many Defects of Present System Are Pointed Out by Chief Executive.

NOT TIME FOR TARIFF

Postponement of Discussion of Revision of Schedules Until After Presidential Election Urged—Necessity for Improving Waterways of the Country.

Washington, Dec. 3.—President Roosevelt in his annual message deals vigorously with matters of national importance. Referring to the recent disturbance in the banking and currency conditions that the hoarding of money by the people, instead of keeping it in sound banks, was the first cause of financial stringency and a grave error.

After quotations from his last annual message which dealt with the necessity of governmental regulations, the president asserts that his views have in no way changed and declares it is his duty to urge the government to take prompt action in the principles he then expressed.

Disclaiming any idea of advocating centralization, the president insists upon the necessity for federal control of the railroads of the country through the interstate commerce commission, and also urges legislation looking to the proper control of the great business concerns engaged in interstate business, this control to be exercised for their own benefit and prosperity no less than for the protection of investors and of the general public.

Wants Federal Control. Declaring that modern industrial conditions are such that competition is not only necessary but inevitable, the president refers to his message of a year ago concerning necessary changes in the antitrust laws. He goes on: "I ask for full power to be given the federal government to create a national competition law."

There is no change in the mind of the president concerning the advisability of an income tax and an inheritance tax. In the message he says: "When our tax laws are revised the question of an income tax and an inheritance tax should receive the careful attention of our legislators."

In my judgment the wise time to deal with the matter is immediately after such election.

Income and Inheritance Tax. There is no change in the mind of the president concerning the advisability of an income tax and an inheritance tax. In the message he says: "When our tax laws are revised the question of an income tax and an inheritance tax should receive the careful attention of our legislators."

In my judgment the wise time to deal with the matter is immediately after such election.

On the matter of the impartial enforcement of the laws the message says: "A few years ago there was loud complaint that the law could not be invoked against wealthy offenders. There is no such complaint now."

The course of the department of justice during the last few years has been such as to make it evident that no man stands above the law, that no corporation is so wealthy that it can afford to ignore the law. Everything that can be done under the existing law, and with the existing state of public opinion, which so profoundly influences both the courts and juries, has been done.

But the law itself needs strengthening in more than one important point; they should be made more definite, so that no honest man can be led unwittingly to break them, and so that the real wrongdoer can be readily punished.

The two great evils in the execution of our criminal laws to-day are, mentally and technically. For the latter the remedy must come from the hands of the legislatures, the courts and the lawyers. The other must depend for its cure upon the gradual growth of a sound public opinion, which shall insist that regard for the law and the demands of reason shall control all other influences and emotions in the jury box.

Both of these evils must be removed or public discontent with the criminal law will continue.

Use of Injunctions. Referring to the question of the use and abuse of injunctions the president declares: "Instances of abuse in the granting of injunctions in labor disputes continue to occur, and the resentment in the minds of those who feel that their rights are being invaded and their liberty of action and of speech unwarrantably restrained continues to grow."

Much of the attack on the use of the process of injunction is wholly without warrant; but I am constrained to express the belief that for some of the reasons mentioned the question is becoming more and more of prime importance, and unless the courts will themselves deal with it in effective manner, it is certain ultimately to demand some sort of legislative action.

I earnestly commend to the attention of the congress this matter, so that some way may be devised which will limit the abuse of injunctions and protect those rights which from time to time it unwarrantably invades.

In Industrial Disputes. The president favors compulsory investigation by the national government of industrial disputes, saying: "Strikes and lockouts, with their attendant loss and suffering, continue to increase. For the five years ending December 31, 1905, the number of strikes was greater than those in any previous ten years and was double the number in the preceding five years. These figures indicate the increasing need of providing some machinery to deal with this class of disputes in the interest alike of the employer, the employe and the general public. I renew my previous recommendation that the congress favorably consider the matter of creating the machinery for compulsory investigation of such industrial controversies as are of sufficient magnitude and of sufficient concern to the people of the country as a whole to warrant the federal government in taking action."

The recent strike of the contractors is cited as an instance where such power might profitably have been used.

Child Labor Evil. The necessity of checking the evil of child labor is pointed out with much directness. On the relation between capital and labor the president asserts that public opinion must be aroused in the administration of our present laws. The work of the department of agriculture is given high praise and the importance of the department pointed out. Cooperation with farmers' associations is urged. The necessity of a national system of inspection and grading of agricultural products is also pointed out.

National Water Highways. Showing the necessity for the development of the national water highways the message says: "Our great river systems should be developed as national water highways. The Mississippi, with its tributaries, is of the highest importance, and the Columbia second, although there are many others of importance on the Pacific, the Atlantic and the gulf slopes. The national government should undertake this work, and I hope legislation will be made in the present congress, and the greater of all our rivers, the Mississippi, should receive special attention. From the great lakes to the mouth of the Mississippi there should be a deep waterway, with deep waterways on both sides of the east and west. Such a waterway would practically mean the extension of our coast line into the very heart of our country. It would be of incalculable benefit to our people."

As an incident to creating the deep waterway down the Mississippi the government should build along its whole lower length levees, which, taken together with the control of the headwaters, will at once and forever put a complete stop to all threat of floods in the immensely fertile Delta region. The territory lying adjacent to the Mississippi along its lower course will thereby become one of the most prosperous and populous, as it already is one of the most fertile, farming regions in all the world."

Public Lands. Extension of the work of irrigation and the reclamation of waste lands is advocated, together with a revision of the present land laws. In the interest of the actual homesteaders, the leasing of public lands for private grazing, the president says, must be stopped, but at the same time the necessity which occasioned it must be provided for. Several plans are recommended.

Conservatism of the mineral wealth of our country, the necessity for the preservation of the forests to prevent a timber famine, are dwelt upon. Drastic action by the congress is urged.

Would Repeal Duty on Wood Pulp. The president declares in favor of the repeal of the duty on wood pulp, at the same time declaring that it should, if possible be accompanied by an agreement with Canada that there should be no export duty on Canadian pulp wood.

That the government should own and lease mineral and oil lands is the belief of the president.

Work on the Panama canal is declared to be proceeding in a satisfactory manner and figures given to substantiate the statement.

For Postal Savings Banks. On the questions of postal savings banks and the establishment of a parcels post system, the message says: "I commend to the favorable consideration of the congress a postal savings bank system as recommended by the postmaster general."

Further commend to the congress the cooperation of the postmaster general's recommendation for an extension of the parcel post, especially on the rural routes. These recommendations, have been drawn up to benefit the farmer and the country's stakeholder; otherwise, I should not favor them. For I believe that is good policy for our government to do everything possible to aid the small town and the country district. It is desirable that the country merchant should not be crushed out."

Some form of local self-government for Alaska is asked of the congress, and that the rights of citizenship be conferred upon the people of Porto Rico.

Campaign Contributions. The president says: "It is well to provide that corporations should not contribute to presidential or national campaigns, and furthermore to provide for the publication of both contributions and expenditures. The need for collecting large campaign funds would vanish if congress provided an appropriation for the program and legislative expenses of each of the great national parties, an appropriation ample enough to meet the necessity for thorough organization and machinery, which requires a large expenditure of money. Then the stipulation should be made that no party receiving campaign funds from the treasury should accept more than a fixed amount from any individual subscriber or donor; and the necessary publicity for receipts and expenditures could without difficulty be provided."

The extension of the Ocean Mail act of 1891 is recommended as an aid to American shipping. A subsidy for Pacific steamers, the president thinks, is necessary.

The army in the past has been miserably provided for and should be more generously dealt with; it dwelt upon at length, together with recommendations for future legislation.

Yearly additions to the navy are recommended and the president's judgment that our navy should build four battleships this year.

Reason for Pacific Cruise. Concerning the dispatch of the fleet to the Pacific, the president believes it should be shifted between the two oceans every year or two as a means of teaching officers and men how to handle the vessels in a time of war.

Although the results of the Hague conference are declared not to have been up to expectations, a decree of good is said to have resulted, notably a provision by which the powers taking part in the conference agreed not to have recourse to armed force for the collection of debts owed to their citizens by foreign countries.

The expectation of the government is declared to be to turn over Cuba to a government chosen by the people of the island within the coming year.

German Tariff Agreement. Concerning the tariff agreement entered into with Germany, its object is declared to have been the prevention of a tariff war between the United States and that country. The work of the commission which made the agreement is praised.

The president asks for authority to remit to China all indemnity in excess of the sum of $11,655,492.63 and interest at four per cent.

In conclusion one message congratulates the country on its present cordial relations with all countries, particularly the sister republics to the south.

Mrs. Gus Bernhardt, living three miles east of Northville, Mich., says: "For a long time my husband had kidney trouble and complained of backache. His back finally became so lame that he could hardly get around to attend to work. The action of the kidneys also became irregular. Not long ago he was compelled to stay in the house. For several days he was unable to straighten his back, and the pains extended to his legs so he could not walk without suffering. I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Murdoch Bros. drug store and they gave him wonderful relief in a short time. His kidneys became regular and there was only slight pain in his back. He was able to attend to his work without any difficulty. I am glad to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to others who may be in need of a remedy of this kind." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Urinary troubles set in. Don't wait any longer—take Doan's Kidney Pills. Northville people tell you how they act. Mrs. Gus Bernhardt, living three miles east of Northville, Mich., says: "For a long time my husband had kidney trouble and complained of backache. His back finally became so lame that he could hardly get around to attend to work. The action of the kidneys also became irregular. Not long ago he was compelled to stay in the house. For several days he was unable to straighten his back, and the pains extended to his legs so he could not walk without suffering. I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Murdoch Bros. drug store and they gave him wonderful relief in a short time. His kidneys became regular and there was only slight pain in his back. He was able to attend to his work without any difficulty. I am glad to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to others who may be in need of a remedy of this kind." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. PROMINENT HOSPITALS SAY PE-RU-NA IS EFFICIENT IN RELIEVING ALL CATARRHAL DISEASES.

SISTERS OF THE GOOD SHEPHERD, MONTREAL.

HOSPITALS ALL OVER THE CONTINENT FIND PE-RU-NA VALUABLE IN TREATING ALL CATARRHAL DISEASES.

CATARRH of the respiratory organs is a common ailment in Canada for at least two-thirds of the year. This condition is no doubt caused by the long, severe winters experienced in this part of the continent. Therefore, when Peruna was discovered by Canadian people to be a reliable remedy for these catarrhal diseases, it at once became a popular medicine, not only among individuals and in families, but in the great hospitals, where it is used as a preventative and relief in hundreds of cases. These institutions do not hesitate to give their endorsement of the remedy which has been so helpful in the treatment of their poor and sick. Among these institutions is that of the Sisters of Good Shepherd, who gave the following endorsement: The Peruna Company, Columbus, Ohio, Having used Peruna for the past few months, for our sick and poor, we are happy to say that it has given us great satisfaction. The Sisters of the Good Shepherd, August 20, 1903. Montreal.

Montreal, Nov. 7, 1903. We found Peruna a relief in several cases. We can say it is a good tonic and we are very thankful. Sisters of the Good Shepherd. When catarrh once fastens itself upon the system it becomes an obstinate disease to eradicate. A systemic remedy—one that reaches every internal organ of the body—is an absolute necessity. Peruna is just such a remedy. It searches out the cause of the disease, healing and strengthening the mucous membranes, and thus giving Nature an opportunity to perform her part of the restorative process. One of the many hospitals which have found Peruna of value in treating old and obstinate cases of catarrh is the Hospital St. John, who write, as follows: "We are happy to tell you that your Peruna has given us satisfaction. Three patients have tried it, one 88 years old, Renou Dupuis, afflicted with catarrh, is much relieved, more than he has been for a number of years. "A young girl, 15 years old, had an obstinate cough, which half a bottle of Peruna caused to disappear. "As to myself, two bottles have convinced me that Peruna is magnificent as a tonic. "Before the treatment I could not walk for a quarter of an hour without experiencing much fatigue. Now I can walk a mile easily. "Through these three cases we desire to make known to the public the efficiency of your remedy." Hospital St. John, Province of Quebec. A later letter received from the same institution reads as follows: "Three weeks ago I wrote to tell you how satisfactory we found Peruna. We recommend it highly for colds, coughs, catarrh and neuralgia. "I have used it myself as a tonic with the best results, taken as directed, half a teaspoonful every half hour." Mrs. Eita Booker, Dundurn, Sask., N. W. T., Canada, writes: "I suffered with pelvic catarrh until I wrote to Dr. Hartman, and after taking treatment as he advised, Leah says I am now cured of this most trying affliction, for which I am truly thankful. I think Peruna the best medicine for catarrh. I never felt better in my life than I do at present." Peruna, not only promptly relieves coughs and colds in their first stages, but is equally prompt and efficient for catarrhal diseases in the chronic stage. Of course, it is only reasonable to suppose that a great deal less medicine will be necessary to cure a slight attack of catarrh than would be required to relieve the ailment after it had been allowed to become chronic.

After a continued use of the remedy, this institution has found no reason to change its good opinion of the remedy and expresses its satisfaction in the following terms: Mr. and Mrs. Richard Strohmmer and two children of Detroit visited last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Rayson. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Strohmmer and two children of Detroit visited last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Rayson.

Detroit's Greatest Toy Store

One of the greatest joys of Christmas time is in making the little ones happy. Nothing can take the place of Toys—useful gifts and more costly ones might be appreciated in a measure, but it is the toys that bring gladness to children's hearts and make them look forward to Santa Claus' visit with eager anticipation.

Detroit's greatest Toy store is now ready in the "Heart of Detroit." We can supply everybody within reach of this store. Additional space has been taken on the fourth floor, and the display of toys is nothing short of marvelous. In variety and extent there is nothing like it between New York and Chicago. All the newest toys, the latest imported novelties, and multitudes of pretty dolls, and popular games, and toy books, and automobiles, express wagons, velocipedes, tricycles, etc. Bring the children and let them see more kinds of toys than they have ever seen before. It is fun to watch the various mechanical toys being demonstrated.

No old stock here, no toys that are damaged or shop worn. Lowest prices a certainty because this department is intended principally as a big Holiday attraction for our store. Purchases safely cared for without charge. You can call for them or make arrangements for future delivery. This will enable you to enjoy the benefit of complete assortments to select from and you can do your shopping before the final mad rush. Write for our illustrated catalogue of Christmas Handkerchiefs, Leather Goods and Jewelry.

Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Wald entertained Thanksgiving day, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Woodman of Ypsilanti, Dr. and Mrs. E. P. Wald of Salem, Mrs. F. W. Woodman of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Babbitt and family, and Mrs. Ellen Babbitt.

A fair sized audience was in attendance at the Methodist church Tuesday evening to listen to Rev. Wm. Ward in his lecture on "Robt. E. Lee." Mr. Ward is a very interesting speaker and his many friends were very glad of the opportunity of listening to him once more. The Berean class netted a neat little sum.

Both Northville banks publish a statement this week and make fine showings. Combined, the two banks show upwards of $25,000 cash on hand. Doesn't look as if there was much of a money scarcity in Northville.

The "Winter Night Club" will resume its meetings, beginning this (Friday) evening, Dec. 6, in the Library. The subject for discussion will be "The Present Financial and Industrial Situation." All persons wishing to become members are cordially invited to attend.

Three well known boys of our village took 179 sandwiches, 5 gallons of water, a peck of apples, and after purchasing 13 pounds of bear meat, killed (?) by Northville hunters, led themselves to the tall timbers Friday for a good feast. It was a great spread and one of the boys was heard to remark that he would have enjoyed it more if he hadn't burned his mouth with the first bite. They haven't eaten anything since.

BOB HAMPTON of PLACER

By RANDALL PARRISH AUTHOR OF "WHEN WILDERNESS WAS KING," "MY LADY OF THE NORTH," "HISTORIC ILLINOIS, ETC."

COPYRIGHT 1905 BY R. C. MCCLURE CO.

SYNOPSIS.

A detachment of the Eighteenth Infantry from Fort Benthone, trapped by Indians in a narrow gorge. Among them is a stranger who introduces himself by the name of Hampton, also Gillis the most trader, and his daughter, Gillis and a majority of the soldiers are killed during a three days' siege. Hampton and the girl only escape from the Indians. They fall exhausted on the plains. A company of the Seventh Cavalry, Lieut. Brant in command, find them. Hampton and the girl stop at the Miners' Home in Glencaid. Mrs. Duffy, proprietress. Hampton talks the future over with Miss Gillis the girl. She shows him her mother's picture and tells him what she can of her parentage and life. They decide the small live with Mrs. Herndon. Naida the girl runs away from Mrs. Herndon and rejoins Hampton. He induces her to go back, and to have nothing more to do with him. Hampton plays his last game of cards. He announces to Red Slavin that he has quit, and then leaves Glencaid.

He swept the circle of excited faces, his eyes glowing like two diamonds, his thin lips compressed into a single straight line.

"Mr. Slavin appears to have lost his previous sense of humor," he remarked, calmly. "I will now make my statement for the third time—this was my last game. Perhaps some of you gentlemen also may discover this to be amusing."

The heavy, strained breathing of the motionless crowd was his only answer, and a half smile of bitter-contempt curled Hampton's lips, as he swept over them a last defiant glance.

"Not quite so humorous as it seemed to be at first, I reckon," he commented, dryly. "Slavin," and he prodded the red giant once more with his foot. "I'm going out; if you make any attempt to leave this room within the next five minutes I'll kill you in your tracks, as I would a mad dog. You stacked cards twice to-night, but the last time I beat you fairly at your own game."

He held aside the heavy curtains with his left hand and backed slowly out facing them. The deadly revolver-shining ominously in the other. Not a man moved. Slavin glowered at him from the floor, an impotent curse upon his lips. Then the red deapery fell.

While the shadows of the long night still hung over the valley, Naida, tossing, restlessly upon her strange bed within the humble yellow house at the fork of the trails, was aroused to wakefulness by the pounding of a horse's hoofs on the plank bridge spanning the creek. She drew aside the curtain and looked out, shading her eyes to see clearer through the poor glass. All she perceived was a somewhat deeper smudge when the rider swept rapidly past, horse and man a shapeless shadow. Three hours later she awoke again, this time to the full glare of day, and to the remembrance that she was now facing a new life. As she lay there thinking, her eyes troubled but tearless, far away on the sun-kissed uplands Hampton was spurring forward his horse, already beginning to exhibit signs of weariness.

CHAPTER X.

The Arrival of Miss Spencer.

Miss Phoebe Spencer, the pioneer school teacher of Glencaid, came direct from the far east, her starting point some little junction place back in Vermont, although she proudly named Boston as her home, having once visited in that metropolis for three delicious weeks. She was of an ardent, impressionable nature. Her mind was nurtured upon eastern conceptions of our common country, her imagination aglow with weird tales of the frontier, and her bright eyes perceived the vivid coloring of romance in each prosaic object west of the tawny Missouri. All appeared so different from that established life to which she had grown accustomed—the people, the country, the picturesque language, while her brain so teemed with lurid pictures of border experiences and heroes as to reveal romantic possibilities everywhere. As her eager eyes traced the serrated peaks of a snow-clad mountain range, her heart throbbled with anticipation of wonders yet to come. Homeliness was a thing undreamed of; her active brain responded to each new impression.

She sat comfortably encoined in the back seat of the old, battered red coach, surrounded by cushions for protection from continual bouncing, as the Jehu in charge urged his restive mules down the desolate valley of the Bear Water. Her cheeks were flushed, her wide-open eyes filled with questioning, her pale fluffy hair frolicking with the breeze, as pretty a picture of young womanhood as any one could wish to see. Nor was she unaware of this fact. During the final stage of her journey she had found two congenial souls sufficiently picturesque to harmonize with her ideas of wild western romance.

These two men were loling in the less comfortable seat opposite, secretly longing for a quiet smoke outside, yet neither willing to desert this eastern divinity to his rival. The big felow, his arm run carelessly through the leather sling, his bare head projecting half out of the open window, was Jack Moffat, half-owner of the "Golden Rule," and enjoying a well-earned reputation as the most ornate and artistic liar in the territory. For two hours he had been exercising his talent to the full, and merely paused now in search of some fresh inspiration, holding in supreme and silent contempt the rather feeble imitations of his less-gifted companion.

The fly in the ointment of this long day's ride, the third party, whose undesirable presence and personal knowledge of Mr. Moffat's past career rather seriously interfered with the latter's flights of imagination, was William McNeil, foreman of the "Bar V" ranch over on Sinsinawa creek. McNeil was not much of a talker, having an impediment in his speech, and being a trifle bashful in the presence of a lady. But he caught the eye—a slenderly built, reckless fellow, smoothly shaven with a strong chin and bright laughing eyes, and as he lolled carelessly back in his bearskin "chaps" and wide-brimmed sombrero, occasionally throwing in some cool, insinuating comment regarding Moffat's recitals, the latter experienced a strong inclination to leave him overboard. The slight hardening of McNeil's eyes at such moments had thus far served, however, as sufficient restraint, while the unobservant Miss Spencer, unaware of the silent duel thus being conducted in her very presence, divided her undivided admiration, playing havoc with the susceptible heart of each, and all unconsciously laying the foundations for future trouble.

"Why, how truly remarkable!" she exclaimed, her cheeks glowing. "It's all so different from the east, heroism seems to be in the very air of this country, and your adventure was so very unusual. Don't you think so, Mr. McNeil?"

The silent foreman, hitched himself suddenly upright, his face unusually solemn. "Why—eh—yes, miss—you might—eh—say that. He, with a flip of his hand toward the other, "eh—reminds me—of—eh—an old friend."

"Indeed? How extremely interesting," eagerly scenting a new story. "Please tell me who it was, Mr. McNeil."

"Oh—eh—knew him when I was a boy—eh—Munchausen."

Mr. Moffat drew in his head violently, with an exclamation nearly profane, yet before he could speak Miss Spencer intervened.

"Munchausen! Why, Mr. McNeil, you surely do not intend to question the truth of Mr. Moffat's narrative?"

The foreman's eyes twinkled humorously, but the lines of his face remained calmly impressive. "My—eh—reference," he explained, gravely, "was—eh—entirely to the—eh—local color, the—eh—expert touches."

"Oh!"

"Yes, miss. It's—eh—had taste out here to—eh—doubt anybody's word—eh—publicly."

Moffat stirred uneasily, his hand flung behind him, but McNeil was gazing into the lady's fair face, apparently unconscious of any other presence.

"But all this time you have not favored me with any of your own adventures, Mr. McNeil. I am very sure you must have had hundreds out on these wide plains."

The somewhat embarrassed foreman shook his head discouragingly. "Oh, but I just know you have, only you are so modest about recounting them. Now, that scar just under your hair—really it is not at all unbecoming—surely that reveals a story. Was it caused by an Indian arrow?"

McNeil crossed his legs, and wiped his damp forehead with the back of his hand. "Hoof of a damn pack-mule," he explained, forgetting himself. "The—eh—cuss lifted me ten feet."

Moffat laughed heartily, but as the foreman straightened up quickly, the amazed girl joined in, and his own face instantly exhibited the contagion.

"Ain't much—eh—ever happens out on a ranch," he said, doubtfully, "except doggin' steers, and—eh—bustin' broncos."

Moffat had his head craned out of the window once more, in an apparent determination to ignore all further frivolous remarks. Suddenly he pointed directly ahead.

"There's Glencaid now, Miss Spencer," he said, cheerfully. "That's the spire of the new Presbyterian church sticking up above the ridge."

"Oh, indeed! How glad I am to be here safe at last!"

"How—eh—did you happen to—eh—recognize the church?" asked Mr. McNeil with evident admiration. "You—eh—can't see it from the saloon."

Moffat disdained reply, and the lurching stage rolled rapidly down the valley, the mules now lashed into a wild gallop to the noisy accompaniment of the driver's whips.

The hoofs clattered across the narrow bridge, and with a sudden swing, all came to a sharp stand, amid a cloud of dust before a naked yellow house.

"Here's where you get out, miss," announced the Jehu, leaning down from his seat to peer within. "This 'ere is the Herndon shebang."

The gentlemen inside assisted Miss Spencer to descend in safety to the weed-bordered walk, where she stood shaking her ruffled plumage into shape, and giving directions regarding her luggage. Then the two gentlemen emerged, Moffat bearing a grip-case, a handbox, and a basket, while McNeil supported a sash-strap and a small trunk. Thus decorated they meekly followed her lead up the narrow path toward the front door. The latter opened suddenly, and Mrs.

Mr. Moffat and Mr. McNeil. They have been so thoughtful and entertaining all the way up the Bear Water, and they explained so many things that I did not understand."

She swept impulsively down toward them, both hands extended, the bright glances of her eyes bestowed impartially.

"I cannot invite you to come into the house now," she exclaimed, sweetly. "For I am almost like a stranger—here myself, but I do hope you will both of you call. I shall be so very lonely at first, and you are my earliest acquaintances. You will promise, won't you?"

McNeil bowed, painfully clearing his throat, but Moffat succeeded in expressing his pleasure with a well-rounded sentence.

"I felt sure you would. But now I must really say good-by for this time and go in with Aunt Lydia. I know I must be getting horribly burned out here in this hot sun. I shall always be so grateful to you both."

And the two radiant knights walked together toward the road, neither uttering a word.

CHAPTER XI.

Becoming Acquainted.

Once within the cool shadows of the living-room, Mrs. Herndon again bent thought herself to kiss her niece in a fresh glow of welcome, while the latter sank into a convenient rocker and began enthusiastically expressing her unbounded enjoyment of the west, and of the impressions gathered during her journey. Suddenly the elder woman glanced about and exclaimed, laughing, "Why, I had completely forgotten. You have not yet met your room-mate. Come out here, Naida; this is my niece, Phoebe Spencer."

The girl thus addressed advanced, a slender, graceful figure dressed in white, and extended her hand shyly. Miss Spencer clasped it warmly, her eyes upon the flushed, winsome face.

"And is this Naida Gillis?" she cried. "I am so delighted that you are still here, and that we are to be together. Aunt Lydia has written so much about you that I feel as if we must have known each other for years. Why, how pretty you are!"

Naida's cheeks were burning, and her eyes fell, but she had never yet succeeded in conquering the blunt independence of her speech. "Nobody else ever says so," she said, uneasily. "Perhaps it's the light."

Miss Spencer turned her about so as to face the window. "Well, you are," she announced, decisively. "I guess I know; you've got magnificent hair, and your eyes are perfectly wonderful. You just don't fix yourself up right; Aunt Lydia never did have any taste in such things, but I'll make a new girl out of you. Let's go upstairs; I'm simply dying to see our room, and get some of my dresses unpacked. They must look perfect frights by this time."

They came down perhaps an hour later, hand in hand, and chattering like old friends. The shades of early evening were already falling across the valley. Herndon had returned home from his day's work, and had brought with him Rev. Howard Wynkoop for supper. Miss Spencer viewed the young man with approval, and immediately became more than usually vivacious in recounting the incidents of her long journey, together with her early impressions of the western country. Mr. Wynkoop responded with an interest far from being assumed.

"I have found it all so strange, so unique, Mr. Wynkoop," she explained. "The country is like a new world to me, and the people do not seem at all like those of the east. They lead such a wild, untrammelled life. Everything about seems to exhale the spirit of romance; don't you find it so?"

He smiled at her enthusiasm, his glance of undisguised admiration on her face. "I certainly recall some such earlier conception," he admitted. "Those just arriving from the environment of an older civilization perceive merely the picturesque elements; but my later experiences have been decidedly prosaic."

"Why, Mr. Wynkoop! how could they be? Your work is heroic. It is perfectly grand! Why, the very men I met seem to yield me a broader conception of life and duty; they are so brave, so modest, so active. Is—so Mr. Moffat a member of your church?"

The minister cleared his throat, his cheeks reddening. "Mr. Moffat? Ah, no; not exactly. Do you mean the mine-owner, Jack Moffat?"

"Yes, I think so; he told me he owned a mine—the Golden Rule the name was; the very choice in words would seem to indicate his religious nature. You have the only church in Glencaid, I understand, and I wonder greatly he has never joined you. But perhaps he may be prejudiced against your denomination. There is so much narrowness in religion. But I left every prejudice east of the Missouri," she declared, laughing, "every one, social and religious. I'm going to be a true westerner, from the top of my head to the toe of my shoe. Is Mr. McNeil in your church?"

The minister hesitated. "I really do not recall the name," he confessed at last, reluctantly. "I scarcely think I can have ever met the gentleman."

Busybodies.

"I never saw such a rubber-neck," sneered Mrs. Gabbie. "Just because the doctor stopped at our house yesterday, she immediately wanted to know what was the matter." "Yes," replied Mrs. Naylor; "I wonder how she'd like the rest of us to be that curious about her. You know the doctor stopped at her house to-day, too." "You don't say? I wonder what the matter there?"—Catholic Standard and Times.

STATE TREASURER IS INSOLVENT

FRANK F. GLAZIER GOES TO THE WALL FOR OVER A MILLION.

BOTH HIS BANKS CLOSED

Bank Directors Who Did Not Direct—Mr. Glazier's Many Business Ventures—The State's Money in Chelsea Bank.

The whole state was startled on Tuesday by the news that State Treasurer Frank F. Glazier, of Chelsea, was in serious financial difficulties. His bank in Chelsea, where all of his enterprises are located, has been closed by the state banking commissioner. His private bank in Stockbridge was closed by the cashier. A statement was posted saying that the bank was solvent. Investigation in Chelsea shows sensational conditions in the management of the Chelsea bank. One director says that there has been no real meeting of the board in eight months, and that Mr. Glazier ran the bank to suit his own ends, and that some of the big loans were not even reported to the directors.

M. J. Cavanaugh, of Ann Arbor, attorney for Mr. Glazier, issued a statement Tuesday morning, in which he expressed his belief that Mr. Glazier had sufficient resources to pay off all of his indebtedness, and in which the recent financial stringency is charged with the responsibility for Mr. Glazier's present predicament.

Glazier's Liabilities.

Peoples State bank, Detroit	$ 250,000
First National bank, Detroit	100,000
Old Detroit National bank	200,000
Union Trust Co., Detroit	50,000
Citizens Sav. bank, Detroit	40,000
State Bank of Michigan	20,000
Grand Rapids	20,000
Chelsea Savings bank	353,000
Comm'l bank, Stockbridge	65,000
Total	$1,078,000

Chelsea Bank Liability.

Deposit of state funds	$84,000
Bank's bond to state	200,000
Glazier's bond as treasurer	150,000

Glazier's Business.

- Treasurer of the state of Michigan.
- President of the Glazier Stove Co., Chelsea, Mich.
- President of the Chelsea Savings bank.
- President of the Chelsea Grain & Produce Co.
- President of the Commercial bank, of Stockbridge.
- President of the Blanchard Wool Co.
- President of the Ann Arbor News Publishing Co.
- Vice-president of the Dexter Savings bank.
- Extensive dealer in western land tax titles.

Thinks the State Won't Lose.

Governor Warner declined to discuss at length the financial troubles of the state treasurer. He gave out the following statement, beyond which, pending a further investigation, he declined to commit himself: "It seems probable that the difference between the amount of Mr. Glazier's bond and the amount of state funds on deposit with the Chelsea Savings bank, according to information received by Attorney General Bird and myself, will be more than made up by the amount the state will be entitled to receive on liquidation of the bank, so as the matter now looks the state should suffer no loss."

Friends of the governor expressed themselves as certain that Glazier would resign as state treasurer as soon as his physical condition made any further step by him in his predicament possible.

Those who know Mr. Glazier well are sure that he would not attempt to hold his position to the embarrassment of the state government or to the furthering of a distrust of the people as to the safety of the state's funds in his control.

To Protect the State.

They say that Glazier's own act on becoming state treasurer shows that at that time he considered himself solvent beyond any combination of circumstances. He originated the rule that all banks having state deposits must file surety bonds for the safety of the funds in addition to the bonds of the directors and that he did in the case of his own banks.

Glazier's bond as state treasurer, with a bonding company as surety, is $150,000, and his Chelsea bank has given a surety bond of $250,000. The governor's friends say that if the bank itself pays 50 cents on the dollar, the state will not lose money.

Funds in 162 Banks.

When Glazier discussed with Gov. Warner the advisability of all state depositories filing surety bonds to protect the state, he cited the failure of the City Savings bank, of Detroit, in which the depositors got little or nothing because the personal bonds of the directors were not sufficiently binding.

The state deposits were recently said by Glazier to be in 162 banks throughout the state, each one of which filed a surety bond for their safety. It is said that this is the largest number of banks that any state treasurer has used for depositing the state's funds.

As to justifying Glazier as state treasurer, it is said that Gov. Warner had not even considered that. It is said that he feels that misfeasance in office must first be proved and that such action could not be based upon such developments in Glazier's embarrassments as have as yet been made public.

Thaw Must Wait.

The second trial of Harry K. Thaw on the charge of killing Stanford White has been postponed until Jan. 6. The court ordered that a special panel of 250 talesmen be summoned for the selection of the jury.

The General Demand

of the Well-Informed of the World has always been for a simple, pleasant and efficient liquid laxative of known value; a laxative which physicians could sanction for family use because its component parts are known to them to be wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, acceptable to the system and gentle, yet prompt, in action.

In supplying that demand with its excellent combination of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is given the preference by the Well-Informed. To get its beneficial effects always buy the genuine—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists. Price fifty cents per bottle.

A Sensitive Soul.

Owen Mudge was a very sensitive man. More than once at a harsh word he had forsaken profitable work and gone home for sympathy to his wife. One morning Owen started out to help Glenn Butler, who had bought a new stump-pulling machine and was preparing to clear a field.

Toward noon Owen came back. Mrs. Mudge sighed and waited sympathetically for the explanation. "I just couldn't stand it," said Owen, rubbing his jaw. "When I see that stump-puller twist them roots out, it reminded me so of the times I went to the dentist to get back-teeth extracted. The first thing I knew I was limping as a rag, and I just ached all over and had to quit."—Youth's Companion.

Best He Could Do.

It was his first circuit, and, moreover, he had to defend his first client, who was a better known than respected burglar. In an interval he approached a veteran member of the bar and sought for advice.

"And how long do you think I ought to make my speech to the jury, sir?" he finished up.

"I should say about an hour," said the old hand.

"An hour! Why, I thought ten minutes would be ample! Why so long?"

"Well," said his adviser, "you see, they can't sentence him till you're finished, and the longer you talk the longer he'll be out of jail!"—Stray Stories.

Going to Be Fined.

When George Ade was a newspaper reporter he was sent to "write up" an Irish laborer who had fallen from a building. When Mr. Ade arrived on the scene, several officers and others were helping the injured man into the ambulance. Mr. Ade pulled out his pad and pencil. "What's his name?" he asked one of the policemen.

The injured man, who had heard Ade and who mistook him for the timekeeper employed by the contractor, rolled his eyes in a disgusted way.

"What d'ye think o' that?" he muttered. "In no time to be docked for the few minutes I lose goin' to the hospital!"—Success.

Experience.

"Experience is the best teacher," remarked the man who indulges in trite sayings.

"Yes," answered the skeptic; "but occasionally, as in distinguishing between mushrooms and toadstools, your education comes too late to be of any service."

Chance to Get Even.

The poet and the editor were playing tennis, and the latter was beaten. "You serve well, but you cannot return," said the poet.

"Can't I?" asked the editor. "Send me a poem, and see."—Stray Stories.

BEGAN YOUNG.

Had "Coffee Nerves" from Youth.

"When very young I began using coffee and continued up to the past six months," writes a Texas girl.

"I had been exceedingly nervous, thin and very sorrowful. After quitting coffee and drinking Postum Food Coffee about a month my nervousness disappeared and has never returned. This is the more remarkable as I am a Primary teacher and have kept right on with my work."

"My complexion now is clear and rosy, my skin soft and smooth. As a good complexion was something I had greatly desired, I feel amply repaid even tho this were the only benefit derived from drinking Postum."

"Before beginning its use I had suffered greatly from indigestion and headache; these troubles are now unknown."

"Best of all, I changed from coffee to Postum without the slightest inconvenience, did not even have a headache. Have known coffee drinkers who were visiting me, to use Postum a week without being aware that they were not drinking coffee."

"I have known coffee to begin the use of Postum and drop it because they did not boil it properly. After explaining how it should be prepared they have tried it again and pronounced it delicious."

AS SHE HAD BEEN ORDERED. Domestic Cleared Everything Left Over Out of the Ice Box.

There recently entered the service of a Cleveland family a domestic of Scandinavian origin. She had never seen a refrigerator before, and the lady of the house, after initiating her into its mysteries, instructed her never to leave anything old or left over in the ice-box, but to keep the refrigerator perfectly clean and fresh by throwing the old things away each morning.

The very next day the mistress, looking out of the window, observed something peculiar in the yard. "What is that, Sophie?" she asked. "And how did it get there?" "That is old ice, ma'am," was the proud response, "left over from yesterday. I threw it away like you told me."—Harper's Weekly.

A Real Schemer. For six months she had been pleading with him to buy an automobile.

"They are too expensive," he protested for the hundredth time. "If I bought an automobile I would have to cut down our expenses."

"What expenses?" she asked. "Why, table expenses. For instance, if I had an automobile I couldn't afford to have chicken every Sunday."

She laughed. "Why, you goose! If you had an automobile you could run down enough fowls to have chicken every day, to say nothing of big turkeys and nice roasting pigs. Why is it men haven't any brains?"

And the next day he hustled around to the nearest dealer and ordered a racing machine.

The Worst Was Yet to Come.

A southern pulpit orator, one Sunday morning, was describing the experience of the prodigal son. In his endeavor to impress his hearers with the shame and remorse that this young man felt and his desire to cast away his wicked doings, he spoke thus:

"Dis young man got to thinking about his meanness and his misery, and he tuk off his coat and frowed it away. And den he tuk off his vest and frowed dat away. And den he tuk off his shirt and frowed dat away too. And den he come to hissself."

A NOVELTY IN PUDDINGS.

Carrot Fruit Pudding a Delicious Addition to the Menu.

A fruit carrot pudding is a novelty which I urge you to try. A hostess never makes a mistake in having a hot fruit pudding at a dinner where men are present, for it is a universal favorite. Free one cupful of beef suet from membranes, and work until creamy, which may be most easily accomplished by using the hands. Add two and two-thirds cupfuls of stale bread crumbs and one cupful of grated carrot. Beat the yolks of four eggs until very light, and add gradually, while beating constantly, one and one-third cupfuls of brown sugar. Combine the mixtures, and add the grated yolk of one lemon and one tablespoonful of strong vinegar. Mix one cupful of raisins that have been seeded and cut in pieces three-fourths of a cupful of currants; then dredge with one-third cupful of flour mixed and sifted with one and one-half teaspoonfuls of salt, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful of grated nutmeg and one-fourth of a teaspoonful of cloves. Add this to the mixture, then also add the whites of four eggs beaten until stiff. Turn into a buttered mold decorated with raisins and citron cut in diamond shaped pieces, and adjust the cover.

A few currants will adhere to the mold if it is well buttered. Place the mold on a trivet in a kettle containing boiling water, allowing water to come half way up around the mold. Cover closely, and steam three and one-half hours, adding more boiling water as needed. Remove from the mold, and serve with steaming sauce. Cream one-fourth of a cupful of butter, using a small wooden spoon; then add gradually, while beating constantly, one cupful of brown sugar mixed with three-fourths of a tablespoonful of flour. Add very gradually three tablespoonfuls of sherry or Madeira wine, the yolks of two eggs well beaten, and one-half cupful of milk. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until the mixture thickens. Pour into the well beaten whites of two eggs, cook one minute, and serve.—Woman's Home Companion.

THE HOME.

Roast Beef with Yorkshire Pudding. Remove the ribs and pull firmly and fasten with skewers; place in a baking pan, dredge with flour and lightly with pepper. Pour into this pan some hot water, bake an hour and a half. Half an hour before it is done sprinkle with salt, make the pudding and put under the meat in the dripping pan.

Yorkshire Pudding.—One and one-half cups of flour, two even teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one small teaspoon of salt; mix well, sift them together, add three eggs well beaten, one tablespoonful of melted butter, one pint of sweet milk. Pour the batter into the pan with the drippings and bake 20 minutes. Cut into squares and serve around the roast.

Bechamel Sauce.

Three level tablespoons butter, three level tablespoons flour, one-half level-teaspoon salt, dash of nutmeg, dash of cayenne, one and one-half cups hot stock, three-fourths cup cream, two egg yolks beaten lightly, one and one-half tablespoons lemon juice.

Melt the butter and when hot add the flour, salt, nutmeg, and cayenne. When blended add the hot stock gradually. Stir until thick and smooth, and cook for five minutes; add the cream, cook one minute; then beat in the egg yolks and lemon juice.

Ironing Pad from Old Blanket.

A three cornered pad made from several thicknesses of old blanket or table padding and covered with a man's old pocket handkerchief or a piece of old linen is convenient to slip underneath embroidered monograms on table and bed linen or the hand embroidery on waists and lingerie, which are so much more effective when ironed over a heavy pad. If a loop of tape is sewed to one corner the pad can be hung on the ironing board.

Baked Turnips.

Peel; slice thin and cook 15 minutes in salted water; drain, place in a buttered baking dish and pour over them a cup of good, clear stock, seasoned with salt, pepper, nutmeg, and, if liked, a teaspoonful of sugar. Bake until tender, basting often. Serve in a hot dish with the pan gravy, which should be slightly thickened, poured over them.

HIS TURN TO CRITICISE.

Youngster Felt Called on to Manifest Disapproval of Prayer.

Little John, who, at the mature age of four, has learned the Lord's Prayer, is often criticised by his sister, two years older, for slight mistakes which he cannot always avoid in offering the petition. A few Sundays ago he was taken to church for the first time. When the moment for the prayer arrived and the congregation bowed their heads John's mother took the precaution to whisper to him that he must be very quiet. "Listen," she said, "and you will hear the minister pray." This interested John at once, and his little face took on a look of serious attention, but his mother, watching him covertly, saw his expression change presently to one of surprise and disapproval. A few minutes more and he could stand it no longer. "What could this man be saying? Not a word of the prayer did he recognize as the only formula he had ever heard called by that name."

Whole Head and Neck Covered—Hair All Came Out—Cured in Three Weeks by Cuticura.

"After having the measles my whole head and neck were covered with scaly sores about as large as a penny. They were just as thick as they could be. My hair all came out. I let the trouble run along, taking the doctor's blood remedies and rubbing on salve, but it did not seem to get any better. It stayed that way for about six months; then I got a set of the Cuticura Remedies, and in about a week I noticed a big difference, and in three weeks it was well entirely and I have not had the trouble any more, and as this was seven years ago, I consider myself cured. EQUAL TO THE OCCASION.

This Servant Girl Was Evidently a Person of Resource.

As a source of humor the Irish servant girl has long since fallen from her high estate, a result probably due to the better class of young women from the Emerald Isle who come here annually to help confuse the eternal "servant girl question." But now and again one of the old, naively ignorant sort turns up in a New York household, as was demonstrated the other day to a caller at a house on the West Side.

The girl who responded to the bell was asked if her mistress was at home. To this inquiry she surprised the caller by putting her arms behind her back and replying in a rich brogue, as she thrust her face toward the caller: "Put th tickets in me mouth, ma'am, an' I'll go an' see. Me hands is wet."—N. Y. Press.

The True Home.

Homes are not built of brick and mortar. It is the people, not the places, that make the homes; the face of a smiling woman, the patter of tiny feet and the music of children's voices, aye, even the barking of a dog and the human look of joy at our coming bring us the nameless charm that we call "home."

PRODUCTIVE POWER OF WESTERN CANADA SOIL

Winipeg Correspondence.

There has never been any who have doubted the productiveness of the soil of Western Canada, but there are sometimes found those who question the fact of its superiority. During the past season it has been shown that in grain raising qualities it possessed the very best. The late spring prevented grain being sown in many cases before the middle of May. Yet, a large percentage of that sown at that time produced excellent yields. Had it not been for the frost early in August, which visited most of the north half of the continent, there would have been a magnificent yield in every district in Western Canada. Throughout the Southern Alberta district where about 100,000 acres was sown to winter wheat the yield will be enormously large. There are vast tracts of valuable grain growing land in Western Canada that are available for home-steads, the Canadian Government giving 160 acres free, and entry may be made by proxy, by any near relative, thus saving considerable cost to the American who may have entry made in this way. Any Canadian Government Agent will give you the particulars.

The plant is now 4 1/2 feet high and covered with blossoms. We never got half as many flowers on it in Minneapolis, even during September and October, although we had more time to attend to it there. I mention this only as an example of the great productive power of the soil here in Saskatchewan, Canada."

Caught Whiskers in Safe. In locking his safe the other night prior to his going home for supper George Edgemont, a paperhanger who lives at Jefferson street and Hermilage lane, Manayunk, shut the safe door upon his flowing whiskers and was held until released by his daughter.

Edgemont had been out collecting bills during the day. Returning to his office he opened his safe and placed the money in it. He then threw the door shut, catching the end of his beard in the door. In the excitement incident to his odd predicament he forgot the combination and so could not release himself. With his chin resting on the safe he was discovered about an hour after the accident by his daughter, who came to find what had delayed him. The safe was broken open by a locksmith.

One Waiter with Sense. Man in a restaurant, happening in just as a new shift of waiters came on. And having eaten a very modest luncheon this man laid down a modest tip, to be exact, five cents.

And did the waiter shy off or sniff at this nickel? He did neither, but on the contrary he seemed to regard it as an augury of good fortune that his first customer should have given him something, and— "Thank you," he said, politely to the customer, and as he turned away he added to himself: "That's a starter."—N. Y. Sun.

Strange Disease. Two middle-aged women on a car were discussing the sickness of two children of one of them. "And what does the doctor say ails them?" asked one. "The little child has some sort of a fever," was the answer, "and he said that the disease of the other was epidemic." "It's a sickness I never heard of," responded another number one.

SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO. INDICTED.

Charged with Using Mails to Defraud and in Misrepresenting Articles Sold.

Des Moines, Ia.—(Special)—Sears, Roebuck & Co. of Chicago have been charged with using the mails to defraud. The indictment is on three counts. It is alleged that the company misrepresented articles in its catalogues, sent through the mails. The first count charges that on June 13, 1907, the company devised a scheme to obtain money by false pretenses from Dr. C. F. Spring of Des Moines by selling him white lead that Sears-Roebuck claim to have made. The indictment alleges it was made by others. A second count is on a ring bought by R. H. Miles, and the third count is the sending of another ring, alleged to have been misrepresented, through the mails.

Shy Amateurs. "Splendid spectacles" that is the definition towards which athletics in England are gradually drifting, and chiefly, it is to be feared, upon the current of highly trained professionalism. The ordinary man, conscious of his own mediocre ability, is afraid to venture into the field.—North China Herald.

Tobacco Thrown Away. It is estimated by the head of one of the large tobacco establishments of New York that at least $5,000 worth of tobacco is daily thrown away in the city in unconsumed cigars and cigarettes.

Why She Went Home to Mother. Mrs. Newwed—Isn't the bread line in a great city pathetic? Newwed—Very. I suppose it is the only way the poor fellows can get any fit to eat.—N. Y. Sun.

At the County Fair. "Doing a land-office business, eh?" remarked the man from the city. "What is that you are selling, anyway?" "Blessed if I know myself, boss," whispered the fakir at the county fair; "it has zigzag lines all over it and when a woman comes up I sell it to her as a skirt pattern and when a man comes up I sell it to him as a guaranteed and genuine map of Mars."

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

WILL DON GORMAN'S TOGA

John Walker Smith, the man who engineered the campaign that brought about the Democratic sweep in Maryland and put himself in line for United States senator, was an almost-unknown man in politics six months ago. He had been governor of his state and on retiring had been promised election as United States senator; but the leaders of the party turned him down and gave the coveted seat to Isidor Rayner. Smith took it to heart, but made no complaint and remained in the party. He quietly made his arrangements and at the Democratic state convention when all the delegates were at sea as to the best material for a slate, he stepped in and nominated the whole slate himself, from governor down. He had been credited with ten votes in the convention, but he soon developed a strength of 114.

Having nominated the slate, it was up to Smith to elect them, and he carried 90 out of 123 seats in the legislative assembly. He put Judge Crothers into the governor's chair and made himself safe for United States senator, the height of his ambition. One of his lieutenants will contest the other seat with Senator Rayner when his term expires and Smith will be the dictator of Maryland with none to say him nay. Never before has a man emerged from comparative obscurity and reached such a commanding position in so short a time. And it was all his own work, moreover. He had determined to get both his revenge and the seat he was after, and he gets them both as a result of quiet working and scheming.

Smith is a self-made man in every respect, in business as in politics. He has made millions in lumber and other large commercial interests, and is prominent in financial circles, being director of several banks. Politics is with him merely a hobby, for he has no material ends to serve. On the other hand, it costs him immense sums, for no one has contributed to the Democratic funds more liberally than he. He was born in 1845 and his father died in 1850, leaving his estate so involved that it scarcely served to pay the debts, and Smith and his mother were plunged from affluence into poverty in an instant. He has risen from a penniless orphan to one of the greatest capitalists of his native state and one of its greatest politicians.
