A CASH ROAD TAX

FORTHVILLE FARMER GIVES EXPLANATION OF NEW LAW.

No More Plowing Sod and "Working Out" of Highway Taxes.

At the request of the Record, Mr. Dean F. Griswold, one of Northville's known citizens and farmers, gives the following concise explana-tion of the new Road Tax law:

The new road tax law, enacted by our last legislature, is a radical change from the one used so many times in Michigan, and in order that the electors of this township may fully understand its provisions and requirements, we will in as few words as possible, endeavor to explain some of its principal points. The law provides that the highways in every organized township shall be There shall be no more politax. improved and maintained by two money taxes, known as the road provement tax.

Well anyhow, what has the Mayor of Detroit to ear about the appointment of this part of the County poor commission any more than the Mayor of Northville or Sand Hill-beg pardon, Redford.

In one of the Detroit papers the Mayor was lead to inquire if Rep. Washington, Mar. 25 .- The following is the full text of the president's message sent to congress Wednesday

To the Senate and House of Representatives: I call your attention to certain measures as to which I think there should be action by the congress before the close of the present session. There is ample time for their consideration. As regards most if not all of the matters, hills have been intro-duced into one or the other of the two houses, and it is not too much to hope that action will be taken one way or the other on these bills at the present session. In my niessage at the open-ing of the present session, and indeed, in various messages to previous congresses. L have repeatedly suggested action on most of these meas-

All of-these combinations, if and while existing for and engaged in the promotion of innocent and proper purposes should be recognized as legal. As I have repeatedly pointed out, this antitrust law was a most unwisely drawn statute. It was perhaps inevitable that in feeling after the right remedy the first attempts to provide such should be crude; and it was absolutely imperative that some legislation should be passed to control, in the interest of the public, the business use of the enormous aggregations of corporate wealth that are so marked a feature of the modern industrial world. But the present autitrust law, in its construction and working; has exemplified only too well the kind of legislation which, under the guise of being thoroughgoing, is drawn up in such sweeping form as to become either ineffective or else mischievons. In the modern industrial world combinations are absolutely necessary; they are necessary among busines men, they are necessary among labor ing men, they are becoming more and mere necessary among farmers. Some of these combinations are among the most powerful of all instruments for wrongdoing. Others offer the only effective way of meeting actual business needs. It is mischlevous and unwhole some to keep upon the statute books unmodified a law, like the antitiust law, which while in practice only partially effective against vicious com dirations, has nevertheless in theory bees construed so as sweepingly to prohibit every combination for the ransaction of modern business. Some real good has resulted from this law. But the time has come when it is imperative to modify it. Such modification is urgently needed for the sake of the business men of the country, for the sake of the wageworkers and for the sake of the farniers. The congress can not afford to leave it on the statute books in its present shape.

Remedies Advised

Labor Organizations. It is important that we should encourage trade agreements between employer and employe where they are just and fair. A strike is a clumsy weapon for righting wrongs done to labor, and we should extend, so far as possible, the process of conciliation and arbitration for strikes. Moreover violence, disorder and coercion, when committed in connection with strikes should be as promptly and as sternly repressed as when committed in any other connection. But strikes them selves are, and should be, recognized to be entirely legal. Combinations of workingmen have a peculiar reason for their existence. The very wealthy individual employer, and still more the very wealthy corporation, stand at an enomious advantage when compared to the individual workingman; and while there are many cases where it may not be necessary for laborers to a union, in many other cases it is indispensable for otherwise the thousands of small units, the thou-corporate employer. Twenty two years ago, by the act of June 29, 1886, trades unions were rec grized by law, and the right of laboring people to combine for all lawful purposes was formally recognized, this fight including combina-tions for mutual protection and herefits, the regulation of wages, hours and conditions of labor, and the protection of the individual rights of the workmen in the prosecution of their trade or trades; and in the act of June 1, 1898, strikes were recognized as legal in the same provision that forbade participation in or instigation of force or violence against persons or property, or the aftempt to prevent others from working, by violence, threat or intimidation. The Business man must be protected in person and property, and so must the farmer and the wageworker; and as regards all alike the right of peaceful combination for all lawful purposes should be explicitly recognized.

The question of financial legislation is now receiving such attention in both houses that we have a right to expect action before the close of the session. It is urgently necessary that there should be such action. Moreover, action should be taken to establish savings banks. These postal savings banks are imperatively needed for the benefit of the wageworkers and men of small means, and will be a val nable adjunct to our whole financial system.

⊕Tariff Revision.

The time has come when we should prepare for a revision of the tariff. This should be, and indeed must be preceded by careful investigation. It s peculiarly the province of the congress and not of the president, and in-deed peculiarly the province of the house of representatives, to originate a tariff bill and to determine upon its present session, perhaps in the shape of directing the proper committee to gather the necessary information, both through the committee itself and through government agents who should report to the committee and should lay before it the facts which would permit, it to act with prompt and intelligent fairness. These government agents, if it is not deemed wise to appoint individuals from outside the public service, might with advantage be members of the executive departments, designated by the president, on his own motion or on the request of the committee, to act with it.

I am of the opinion, however, that one change in the tariff could with advantage be made forthwith. Our forests need every protection, and one method of protecting them would be to put upon the free list wood pulp, with a corresponding reduction upon paper made from wood pulp, when they come from any country that dces not put an export duty upon Ample provision should be made for a permanent waterways commission, with whatever power is required to make it effective. The Fight in the Valley.

Far below, in the heart of the sunny depression bordering the left bank of the Little Big Horn, the stalwart troopers under Reno's command gazed up the steep bluff to wave farewell to their comrades disappearing to right. - Last of all-Custer halted his horse an instant, silhouetted agains the blue sky, and swong his hat be fore-spurring out of sight.

The plan of battle was most simple and direct. It involved a nearly simultaneous attack upon the wast Indian village from below and above, success depending altogether upon the prompt co-operation of the separate detachments. Scarcely had Custer's slender column of horsemen vanished across the summit before Reno's command advanced, trotting down the valley, the Arikara scents in the lead. They had been chosen to strike the first blow, to force their way into the lower yillage, and thus to draw the defending warriors to their front, while Custer's men were to charge upon the reâr.

A half-mile, a mile, Reno's troops code, with no sound breaking the si-lence but the pounding of hoofs, the finkle of accoutrements. Then, rounding a sharp projection of earth and rock, the scattered lodges of the In-dian village already partially revealed to those in advance, the riders were brought to sudden halt by a fierce crackling of rifles from rock and ra-vine. Men fell cursing, and the frightened borses swerved, their riders They were 300 now; they could sweep struggling madly with their mounts, the column thrown into momentary skirmishers if only they got the word

They plunged headlong in officers and men commingled, the Indian bullets churn the effect demoralizing; but those wh from off their wounded, panting horse and flung themselves flat upon folly, turned to strike and slay,

A line of skirmishers was pastily thrown forward along the edge of the bluff, while volunteers, urged by the agonized cries of the wounded. en deavored vainly to precure a supply of water from the river. poured into them, rallied to the shouts of their officers, and swung into a slender battle front, stretching out their thin line from the bank of the river to the sharp uplift of the western bluffs. Scarcely 150 white troopers waited to stem as best they might that fierce onrush of 1,200 battlecrazed braves. For an almost breathless space those mingled hordes of Sioux and Cheyennes hesitated to drive straight home their death-blow. They knew those silent men in the blue shirts, knew they died hard. Upon that slight pause pivoted the fate of the day: upon it hung the lives of those other men riding boldly and trustfully across the sunlit ridges above. ""Audacity: always audacity," that is the accepted motto for a cavairyman. And be the cause what it may, it was here that Mai. Reno failed. In that supreme instant he was guilty of hesitancy, doubt, delay. He chose defense in preference to attack, dallied where he should have acted. The observing savages, gathering courage from his apparent weakness, burst forth in resistless torrent against the slender, unsupported line, turned his flank by one fierce charge, and hurled the struggling troopers back with a rush into the narrow strip of timber border-

But the surprised cavalry- | Officer after officer, unable to restrain men, quailing beneath the hot fire his impatience, strode back across the bluff summit, amid whistling bullets, and personally begged the major to speak the one word which should hurl them to the rescue. They cried like weinen, they swore through clinched teeth, they openly exhibited their contempt for such a commander, yet the discipline of army service made active disobedience impossible. They went reluctantly back, as helpless as children.

The other uttered a groan, his hand flung in contempt back toward the summit. The cowardly fool won't move; he's whipped to death

"Reno you mean? Whinned? You haven't lost 20 men. Is this the Seventh?—skulking here under cover while Custer begs help? Doesn't the man know? Doesn't he understand By heaven, I'll face him myself! I'll make him act, even if I have to-damn him to his face.

Brant's eves ran down the writing line of his own men, sitting their sad dles beside the halted pack animals. He leaned over and dropped one hand heavily on Weir's shoulder. "The rest of you can do as you please, but N troop is going to take those ammu-mition packs to Custer if there's any possible way to get through, orders or no orders." He straightened up in the saddle and his voice sounded down the wearled line like the blast of a trumpet. -

"Attention, D troop!" It was Weir's voice, eager and determined now. Like an undammed current his orders rang out above the uproar, and in a moment the gallant troopers of N and D, some on foot, some in saddle, were rushing up the face of the bluff, their officers leading, the precious ammunition packs at the center, all alike scrambling for the summit in spite of the crackling of Indian rifles from every side. Panting, breathless from the hard climb, their carbines spitting fire while the rapidly massing savages be gan circling their exposed position, the little band fought their way for ward a hundred yards. Then they halted, blocked by the numbers barring their path, glancing back anxiously in hone that their effort would encourage others to join them. They could do it; they could do it if only the rest of the boys would come. They poured in their volleys and waited. But Reno made no move. Weir and Brant, determined to hold every inch thus gained threw the dismounted men on their faces behind everycprojection of earth, and encircled the ridge with flame. If they could not advance, they would not be driven back. Messenger after messenger, ing down the bluff, to beg reinforce ments to push on for the rescu-, swearing it was possible. But it was after five o'clock before Reno moved. Then cautiously he advanced his column toward where N and D troops yet held desperately to the exposed ridge. He came too late. That distant fring had ceased, and all need for further advance had ended. Scarcely had reinforcements attained the summit be fore the torrent of savagery burst creeching on their front

From point to point the grim struggle raged, till nightfall wrought par-tial cessation. The wearied troopers stretched out their lines so as to pro tect the packs and the field hospital, threw themselves on the ground, digging rifle-pits with knives and tin pans. There are no fresh bones behind the wicking. It has been many sleeps since Da-Ga-In-Ka has tasted meat; not since the last beef killing, with its wanton waste and great feasting, at the agency.

Therefore Da-Ga-In-Ka's woman owers as she puts before him the jar of cornaleal porridge. The stomach of a warrior craves flesh. And who is Da Ga In Ka, that he should eat the food of women and children and of the craven white man who humbles him-self at labor like a squaw? Yet he must endure the close-fisted bounty of the paleface, for now the Apaches are almost civilized and live on the land the white man has allotted them

Eah! The Great Spirit feeds the eagle. He will feed Da-Ga-In Ka.

H.-THE COWBOY.

At the ranch the superintendent goes over his tally of the "beef critters" again. Yes, three are missing. The white man counts even the grains of corn and demeans himself to labor like a squaw. He has none of the traditions of a noble race.

"Jim, go out and try to round up them three steers. Like as not they're on the Mescalero,"

A frolic this for Jim McLane, cowpuncher. Hurriedly gathering up a sack of rations from the mess shack he swings himself on his game little Pinto and tears away over the sand and the sage brush. An impetuous, wholesome young fellow is Jim, the most lighthearted of the lot. His bandanna neckcloth flutters jauntili as he rides.

Over on the edge of the Mescalero he meets Indians. The greetings exchanged are friendly. Steers? away over that way; saw them not far from Da-Ga-in-Ka's tepee. "Thanks. Have a cigarette." Friendly fellows, these Apaches. Nearly civilized.

III.-FRESH BLOOD.

Da-Ga-In-Ka's squaw shakes him by the shoulders. The brave grunts drowsily; he is so gorged with meat. She has seen something again, and this time it is a horseman. He has dismounted near the carcass of a steer which has been quartered.=Nearby are the ashes of Da-Ga-In-Ka's campfire. Look the is angry. He will. complain to the agent. of distance toil the fugitive and his squaw. He is strong; he has eaten. He is stout of heart. The squaw is fresh, too. The ponies are weary. They have not eaten so much.

The little group enters the mountains. These are the Sacramento mountains. It is well. From the mountains Da-Ga-In-Ka can almost see the Rio Grande. Mexico is his goal.

VI.—THE LAST STAND.

Here is a cavalcade coming up the pass. So close? It is the pursuit. Da-Ga-in-Ka sees they are Apaches The fire of his forefathers is in the He faces them with his cherished old Winchester in hand.

"Come back to the Mescalero," shouts the leader."

"Brothers, go your way. I will go mine." This is the sullen answer The column moves again, forward. The hunted savage gazes at his brethren fixedly. Then, with the suppleness of a snake he slips from his blanket, drops to his knees and nuts the cool butt of his rifle to his swarthy cheek. He sings the war song of the Apaches.

Behind him crouches his squaw trembling. This is because she is a woman, and fears the white man who can turn the redskin against his kind. The Winchester begins barking merrily, and a shower of ejected shells rattles to the ground. Back from the trail comes the echo of the war song, and a volley that tears a cloud of splinters off the crag.

It is soon over. Jim McLare is avenged, and a wrinkled, ugly squav is wailing over her dead. Da-Ga-In-Ka s literally riddled with bullets.

They say the Mescalero Apaches are coming civilized.

Any Port in a Storm.

There is nothing surprising in the announcement made by Hon. Thos. E. Barkworth of Jackson that the democrat committeemen are seriously considering the incorporation of a prohibition plank in the next State and National platform. The Record has no criticism to make of the prohibition movement, but if the democrats take it up, it will not be from any sense of bellef in the principle, but merely because the leaders feel that under existing conditions such adoption will make a lew votes for their party candidates. It is "any port in a storm."

Better Tone of Business.

It is gratifying to note that in his latest financial letter Henry (lews reports a decidedly better tone in business circles generally. Persons engaged in various lines of trade are beginning to purchase with greater freedom and stocks are selling at better prices. The general belief is that the worst of the so-called panic has been experienced and from now en business conditions will improve.

"It was the custom," says Arthur Bill, referring to his paying of campaign expenses for legislative candidates. Yes, so it was. But it is tantamount to buying votes, at that Detroit News.

These Married Men.

"That excellent actress, Clara Bloodgood, sat beside me one night at a dinsaid a Philadelphia playwright, and with the fish some one began to talk about wifely extravagance

"Mrs. Bloodgood listened to tale after tale of the ruinous extravagance of wives and finally she said:

"Wives' extravagance oh, yes!
You men are all alike. You are all like the broker who, at midnight in his club, hiccoughed, wiped his eyes and said brokenly:

This is the sixth bottle of champagne I've drunk to-day, all through my wife making me lose my temper. It is terrible what a lot of money that woman costs me."

"Think Naught a Trifle." It is not always the marked changes in our life or circumstances that produce such corresponding change, as we might look for, in character. We have, what seems, great opportunities, and pass through them unimproved; and again, a very trifle shall turn unexpectedly, the whole course of our habits and motives, henceforth.-Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney. =

"Marina left for Bastia over an hour ago," says Barnes. Why did she leave for Bastia?"

"A telegram," answers Barnes, "pur porting to come from you stating that you would be at that place to-morrow morning. Notwithstanding her fatigue she went on by carriage to meet you.

Edwin is interrupted by a short cry from Barnes: "Cipriano Danella!"

With an execration Anstruther asks hoarsely: "Do you think he has aught to do with this?"

"The lady upstairs, whom I heard?" "Was not Enid. It was that infernal La Belle Blackwood and yet I forgive her, for she told me the direction she thought Enid had taken," and as they half trot, half stride down the avenue rinder the chestnut trees. Barton enit omizes his adventures of the day.

"What are you going to do now?"
"Get horses and follow your wife She is the one to which we have a clew. We must prevent her falling Danella's hands. Perhaph-I nrav God-in following her we may find also the way to my wife."

"Why?" "Because Cipriano is the real brains of this infernal outrage."

As they reach the gateway of the grounds they are abruptly intercepted. One of the young Bellacoscia, hidden in a tree, springs out to them, gun in hand, but recognizing Mr. Barnes, the young man says: "I am one of those watching that no Saliceti troubles you. I let this man pass because I saw he answers the young man, "and a stable to hire horses is at the inn."

"Thank you. Also I want to see your chief, if he hasn't already gone to the mountains."

"Is it important?" "Very."

"Then Signore Antonio will be here in a few minutes," answers the young ellow and speeds off through a neighboring lane.

The two hurry to the inn, but Bocognano has gone to bed. Its houses are all unlighted; their doors are locked In this land of the vendetta, even at the auberge, people besitate to open for unknown travelers knocking on the portal.

There will be no chance to telegraph to Bastia or any way station on that road before to morrow morning. It is nearly an hour before they succeed in arousing a somnolent hostler at the inn stables, who mutters all the horses are tired and must have a night's rest. But stimulated by a gold piece placed in his sleepy hand the man finally awakens sufficiently to saddle two horses, which he says are the liveliest of any in the stable. On two sorry beasts they dash up to Marina's home and find waiting on its steps the great bandit and one or two

Oh, you needn't ask that, Mr. Barnes of New York, cries La Belle Blackwood, stepping airily onto the veranda. "I have already petitioned the great Bellacoscia, and I think he will protect me against any man; won't you, Signore Bonelli?" The softness of her sweet voice is a caress.

"Sapristi, will not I!" says the magnificent man, his hawk's eyes flashing as they look upon the loveliness of the entrancing American adventuress Count on Bonelli to his heart's blood." Then he asks mondily: "But why are you compelled to leave your wife, Signore Barnes?

This lady is not my wife.

"Santa Maria, not your wife! Gran Dio, whose spouse is she?" "Nobody's."

"Diavola suprema!" cries the great bandit, a tremendous loy flying into his face. "And you—you leave this loveliness?" he adds, as if he cannot understand.

"Her loveliness is not mine, Signore Bonelli," remarks Burton, coldiv. "Be sides, it is a matter of life and death that calls me. This gentleman—" Barnes introduces Edwin— is the hus band of Mademoiselle Paoli, who has been lured from here by a lying tele

"Design against the honor of the daughter of the Paoli!" snarls Bonelli. "Impossible! I will go with you upon this errand myself." But the enchanting tones of Sally

Blackwood make him pause; she is pleading: "What, and desert me mong your wild mountains?"

"No, tis best I go not," remarks the bandit chief. "Gendarmes, with me in your company, would be an embarrassment, and they in their bungling way may doubtless aid you. And your wife where is she, Signore Barnes?"

"Still in the hands of Saliceti or his friends.

"They did not surrender her as they agreed?"

"No. They substituted this lady." "Corpo di Diavolo, Saliceti has tricked me! I proclaim a vendetta against Bernardo Eduardo Saliceti."

Along the Cyclamen Path. Both young men are riding light Barnes for this speedy dash has left his rifle and his field glasses behind him, and they gallop up the pass of the Force. But the ascent is so steep they are soon compelled to walk their horses. A precipice is on one side of them and the great flanks of Del Oro are on the other. Both Edwin and Burton have been silent, thinking of their wives. The latter now remarks pointing to a deep gorge running up the mountain side: "That, I believe leads to La Pintica, the home of the Bellacoscia, which the gendarmes never dare to visit."

But they having reached the summit of the Col, now speed their horses sharply down the declivities into the

They have passed no one in the darkness. In fact, they have not yet gone far enough to have any hope of overtaking Marina unless accident has befallen her vehicle. Besides, her horses were fresh; theirs, according to the hostler, had been ridden during the preceding day.

Soon after, they dash through the village of Vivario, announced by the barking of some curs and the grunting of some pigs. "Every house in the village is closed and no one would open for us in the dead of night in this land

They go to climbing again, and soon after descend through the gorge of the rapid Vecchio, the river foaming far beneath the road, while rocky hills and sharp mountains rise on either side.

They have knocked at no doors they have made no inquiries; they have only hurried on. But some hour after the red-tiled houses of Corteloom up before them and a few minutes later they jog their tired steeds up one of the principal streets of the central inland town of Corsica the great Monte Rotondo now looking

Flanked on each side by white stone, red-roofed houses, they pass between the hotels Pierracci and Paoli, almost deserted now, this being the heginning of the hot summer season. Along the street are many placards indicating the approaching election. Every time he sees the name of Saliceti, Barnes, compressing his lips, thinks of his lost

"It's your wife," whispers Barnes, giving the man a 20 franc piece that makes him look almost as happy as this news does Anstruther.

"Only an hour ago! We will overtake Marina long before she reaches Bastia," cries Edwin.

They ride hurriedly, the road skirtleaving Corte they reach Ponte-alla-Lecchio, where the big bridge crosses the river Golo. During this the horsemen note more signs of the coming casting of votes.

Some of the "Lucchese" workmen from Italy are throwing stones at an election placard that displeases them. "The pests from Lucca," mutters a Corsican shopkeeper as they buy a glass of wine from him, "are always every one's heads with stones—their own included. They've been here since sunrise fighting and brawling. I heard their shouts when I was in bed. But everyone pardons the 'Lucchese;' they do all our hard work," adds the man with a grin, pocketing the coin Edwin hands him.

But the wine shop keeper can tell them nothing of a woman traveling, runs out crescent fashion almost op and to their astonishment, though they make many inquiries, they hear of no lady in a carriage passing through the village this morning.

"It's quite possible," says Edwin to Barnes, "she didn't stop here. Her horses were fresh: She's gone on. No ing with amazing brilliancy. one has noticed her?"

"That's very true," answers Burton, though his face grows more concerned and gloomy.

Therefore they ride rapidly along over the now well-kept road, which generally skirts the Golo. Turning north, they spur on over the causeway that crosses the great lagoons shores, to enter that miniature Genoa, called Bastia, some two hours before midday.

To our own age belongs the credit of having raised hurry from the degraded position of a disease to that of a commercial process. Formerly hurry simply-brought people to an early grave, with nothing to show for it, whereas now it is become the means of transforming peace of mind, which is a solecism, to say the best of it, into ready money. Hurry has grown to be a great fact in life. Even the fashions take account of it, until women are found doing up their hair in such a way that they may go the speed limit without fear of its coming down. And the best of harry is that it is its own sufficient justification. Nobody expects hurry to have any particular reason behind it any more.-

CURIOUS ACCIDENTS CAUSED BY ICE AND SNOW.

Sudden Thaw Responsible for Tragedies in Ail Parts of the Earth-Remarkable Disaster on the Zuider Zee.

Although scores of lives are lost yearly as a result of rash skaters ven-turing on ice too thin to bear their weight, yet the worst tragedies of trost are by a curious contradiction —those caused by thaw, says Pear-son's Weekly.

In February, four years ago, there was a tremendous frost on the continent. The Vistula, among other givers, was covered with ice of immense thickness, and when the thaw came and the bonds of frost were loosened the roaring river became choked with gigantic dams of ice

In Galicia, near Szcuezin, the floes grounded in a shallow part of the stream and instantly a vast barrier of ice began to rear itself; while behind. it the choked river swelled into a mighty lake, and, pouring over its banks, inundated the flat country for a width of 19 miles.

A regiment of sappers, armed with dynamite, arrived by special train, but their efforts were of little use. Within 24 hours no fewer than ten villages were under water, 800 families were homeless, and nearly 70 people were drowned.

A dreadful disaster was that which happened a couple of winters ago at Wieringen, on the Zuider Zee. This great shallow inland sea of brackish water usually freezes every winter for a long distance out. One January evening a number of people were amusing themselves skating off the village, some at a considerable dis-tance from shore, when suddenly 2 great floe, acres in extent, cracked away from the rest of the ice, and a rapidly widening lane of water divided a dozen skaters from the shore.

Some plunged in and swam back but seven were carried out to sea on the sloating ice. Those on shore rushed for boats, but here the frost completed its deadly work. The boats were too tightly trozen into the sand of the beach to be moved, and by ing the torrent of the foaming Vecchio the time one was loosened it was until considerably over an hour after dark. Next day the unhappy skaters were found frozen to death.

On the low, sandy shores of Lake Michigan stands the village of Sandpoint, a little place of wooden-built houses, which is—oddly enough—inhabited only in winter. Its people are fishermen who catch their prey by cutting holes in the ice when the lake freezes. One night in February 1907, a tremendous gale arose, and, before the sleeping inhabitants of five of these little boxlike awellings knew what had happened, their which were built without foundations. were blown on to the ice, and went sliding out at a great speed across the frozen surface. One house dropped into a water hole and its in-habitants were drowned, but fee others, fortunately, brought up sale against the edge of a long cape which posite the village.

One of the most amazing tragedies of frost occurred in Colorado on February day 12 years ago. The temperature was far below zero, but the air dry and clear and the sun shinpeople, who were driving, together across the tract of forest known as North park, did not really

Suddenly the distant mountains disappeared in a white mist and the sun lost its brilliancy. Presently one of the women put her hand up to her cheek, crying out that something and soon after passing through some had stung her. Spain in America.

Not to know the history of Spain is not to know the history of America The discoveries of the early explorers and colonizers are deeply imbedded in the records of the Spanish empire at its mightiest period. The language they brought to this hemisphere still prevails through an area on this side of the Atlantic almost four times that of the United States. Our coast line bristles with Spanish names from Florida to the Straits of Vancovuer. Even to-day in our own southwest sev eral hundred thousand of our citizens use the Spanish tongue.

The barrier of language has been the great obstacle to a better knowl edge of and sympathy with people and things of Spanish origin. Only lately has the Spanish language been in aluded in our school courses. Americans among the hosts of annual tourists have been induced to see Spain with their own eyes and knew its people.

HAPPY OLD AGE

Most Likely to Follow Proper Eating.

As old age advances, we require less food to replace waste, and food that will not overtax the digestive organs, while supplying true nourishment. Such an ideal food is found in Grape-

Nuts, made of whole wheat and barley by long baking and action of diastase in the barley which changes the starch into sugar. The phosphates also, placed up under the bran-coat of the wheat, are included in Grape-Nuts, but left out of white flour. They are necessary to the building of brain and nerve cells. "I have used Grape-Nuts," writes an Iowa man, "for 8 years and feel as good

Could Lay Slate-Pencil in One-Hands in Dreadful State—Permanent Cure in Cuticura. "I had eczema on my hands for about seven years and during that time I had used several so-called remedies, together with physicians and druggists prescriptions. The disease was so bad on my bands that I could lay a slate-pencil in one of the cracks and a rule placed across the hand would not touch the pencil. I kept using remedy after remedy, and while some gave partial relief, none relieved as much as did the first box of Cuticura Ointment. Regina, Sask., 23rd Nov., 1907. Commissioner of Immigration, Winnipeg.

Dear Sir:

It is with pleasure that I reply to your request. Some years ago I took up a homestead for myself and also one for my son. The half section which we own is situated between Rouleau and Drinkwater, adjoining the Moose Jaw creek, is a low level and heavy land. We put in 70 acres of wheat in stubble, which went 20 bushels to the acre, and 30 acres of summer fallow, which went 25 bushels to the acre. All the wheat we harvested this year is No. 1 hard. That means the best wheat that can be raised on the earth. We did not sell any wheat yet as we intend to keep one part for our own seed, and sell the other part to people who want first-class seed, for there is no doubt if you sow good wheat you will harvest good wheat. We also threshed 9,000 bushels of first class oats out of 160 acres. acres has been fall plowing which yielded 50 bushels per acre, and 80 yielded 90 bushels per acre. acres stubble, which went 30 bushels to the acre. WHY THEY SLEEP IN CHURCH.

Hypnotism, Not Drowsiness, Declared to Be the Cause.

"Churchgoers don't sleep in church. They undergo an hypnotic trance The soothing voices and mild music and monotonous recitative of a church service put forth powerful hypnotic influences, and that is why the pews resemble a railroad track in abundance of their sleepers.

The speaker, a hypnotist, banged the table vehemently.

"Don't laugh;" he said. "It's true. Hypnotism, not drowsiness, is what makes you sleep in church. Through your auditory nerve sound waves are passed to your brain that are as effective as though a professional hypnotist land made them. Sound, you know, is the newest and best hypnotic.

"At first, in the church service, the periodicity of the wave alterations is short. There is a little speaking, then more music. And just when you are getting properly lulled the clergyman, in a modulated, agreeable, soothing voice, speaks on and on and onand you begin to nod? You are, hyp notically speaking, entranced.

The average church service is a scientifically correct hypnotic instru-ment. No wonder, then, it puts many of us to sleep."

WHAT WHITE LEAD IS?

Its Chief Use and a Method of Deter mining Good from Bad Explained.

White Lead is the standard paint material all over the world. It is made by corroding metallic lead into a white powder, through exposing it to the fumes of wear eactic acid and carbonic acid gas; this powder is then ground and mixed with linseed oil, making a thick paste, in which form it is packed and sold for painting purposes. The painter thins it down to the proper consistency for application by the addition of more linseed oil.

The above refers, of course, to pure genuine White Lead only Adulterated and fake "White Lead," of which there are many brands on the market, is generally some sort of composition containing only a percentage of white lead; sometimes no White Lead at all: in such stuff, barytes or ground rock chalk, and similar cheap substance are used to make bulk and imitate the appearance of pure White Lead.

There is, however, a positive test by which the purity or impurity of White Lead may be proved or exposed, before painting with it.

The blow pipe flame will reduce pure white lead to metallic lead. a supposed white lead be thus tested and it only partially reduces to lead, leaving a residue, it is proof that something else was there besides white lead.

The results of irregular teeth are that they mar the appearance of the individual, interfere with clearness of speech. Impair the ability to masticate the food thoroughly, and by reason of their crowded or abnormal position afford favorable longment for food particles and thereby induce decay.

When a child presents itself I study the features and the irregularities and oral deformities. I look at the child's face and then at its profile, and endeavor to ascertain, if possible, what facial change will be brought about by any corrective art that may be applied to the case. In my judgment more is lost than gained by the removal of teeth for the correction of irregularity and should never be done, except, possibly in very rare cases. For the Hot-Water Bag.

Heat applied locally for neuralgic pains is very soothing and effective. It is best to have a hot water bag always in the house, as it is one of the best ways of applying heat. The heat of the water may be too intense to hold the bag itself against the skin, so it is a good idea to make a flannel hag for covering the rubber bag.

Are Patent Medicines Frauds?

We are often asked the above question, and our answer has invariably been that no medicine that gives satisfactory results could be fraudulent. We could not afford to sell fraudulent medicines. Our business depends on pleased customers—in fact any business does. Therefore, we would take an enormous risk did we not fulfil every promise madeour customers. We are very careful of what we guarantee, and when we do guarantee an article we must know it pretty well-what it contains and how it is made. We have in mind the Rexall line of remedies, particularly Rexall Mucu-Tone, of which we are selling large quantities at this time of the year. Mucu-Tone is one article that we can recommend over our counter and know that ninety-eight per cent. of its purchasers are going to be benefited and will return to our store pleased customers. Mucu-Tone is a positive cure for internal scrofula or what is commonly called Catarrh. It is without a doubt the peer of all tonics for any one who is suffering from a run-down condition, can't work, feels constantly tired or suffering from the more plainly described symptoms of Catarrh—such as stopping of the nose, cold in the head or bad cough."

It must be remembered that Catarrh is not confined to the nose throat. It usually starts there, but it leads more often to serious trouble, particularly the wasting of tissues, as in the case of little Miss Dillon, of Albany. Here is a letter from her father:

"My little girl had catarrh so badly that the disease had begun to eat into the cartilage of the nose. Snuffs and instruments failed to do more than give temporary relief. I saw the adverisements of Rexall Mucu-Tone, but I could not believe that anything taken in the stomach could cure the sore membranes of the nose. However, I took advantage of your free trial offer and my girl began taking your remedy according to directions. I want to say right here that Mucu-Tone is certainly the greatest medical discovery of the times, and to thank you for the liberal offer that first induced me to give it a trial, Muco-Tone has cured my daughter's catarrh completely. The discharge has stopped alto-gether, and her breath is as sweet as can be. Again thanking you, MATT. DILLON, 24 N. Swan St., Albany, N. Y."

A REASON The United Drug Company, manufac-turers of the Rexall Remedies, for whose preparations we are agents in this city, make age of specialists. You age of specialists. You don't contract with a plumber to build your whole house, do you? Why should you contract with one proprietary medicine to cure all your troubles? Oftentimes you run across a building con-tractor who has a sepa-rate plumbing depart-ment, his own plastering ment, his own plastering department, and so on, all of which devetal together and shilld the house. This is just what the United Drug Company is doing for you in the medicine line. They have cut down profits; they manufacture Rexall Remedies for ever 2,000 retail drugover 2,000 retail drug-gists. These druggists are the only intermediate profit that stand between The United Drug Company and the patient.

Could the United Drug
Company, of which we are a member, afford to make one poor medicine in this line? Does not mmon sense tell you that one poor medicine would ruin the sale of the other 199 prepara-tions? If you bought a Rexall preparation and it didn't do for you what we claim it will, would you buy another one of our articles? We believe not. Therefore each preparation must be good—it is good. We who are in the drug business know the formulas of these Rexall prepara-tions. We believe in them so implicitly that we stand back of them, with our guarantee to refund you your money if they do not benefit
