WAYNE CO. CAMPAIGN

WARNER AND KELLEY OPENED HERE FRIDAY NIGHT.

Big Opera House Packed by Interested Audience.

The Republican campaign in Wayne county opened here Friday night with an enthusiastic meeting, addressed by Gov. Fred M. Warner, Lieut. Gov. P. H. Kelley and a number of candidates for offices in Wayne county. In spite of the heavy downpour of rain which kept the farmers at home the Opera House was well filled and many were obliged to stand. The audience was so interested in the speeches that at the conclusion of the meeting it was necessary for Rep. Cass Benton, who presided, to tell the people that the speakers had all finished. They were apparently willing to sit all night and listen.

The County candidates who spoke briefly were: T. Hawley Christian, for auditor; Otto Stoll, for register of deeds; William F. Moeller, for treasurer; William P. Kingsley, for sheriff; William H. Green, for county clerk and John C. Biele, for county auditor.

James Farrall also candidate for county clerk was out during the afternoon but on account of a previous city engagement had to return to Detroit before the meeting. A letter from State Senator Fred Martindale was read and was enthusiastically received. Because of illness he was unable to be present. Mr. Martindale congratulated the people upon having such good men in office as the Governor and Lieutenant Governor and told something of their work in behalf of the people's interests and spoke enthusiastically for their retention in office just at this time.

Senator J. Edward Bland of Detroit also spoke briefly. Bland is a candidate for re-election. He was loyal to the people's interests in the last senate.

The governor in his speech devoted himself particularly to the issues and ignored the personal side of his campaign almost entirely. Not so his co-worker. The genial "Pat" picked the "Boxers" by the scruff of the neck, metaphorically speaking threw them up in the air, kicked them soundly when they alighted and then banished them from Michigan politics entirely. He handled the lobbyists, especially the railroad representatives, even worse, and the opposition was in shreds when he finished. He was constantly interrupted by storms of applause.

Gov. Warner devoted considerable time to showing how state expenditures had been largely increased through the enlargement of the educational institutions of the state, but he produced figures to show that the burden of the individual taxpayer was not added to because the increase in manufacturing wealth and population offset the increased

DECORATION DAY FITTINGLY OBSERVED

DESPITE INCLEMENT WEATHER THERE WAS A LARGE CROWD.

Judge Murphy and Wm. F. North Addressed the People.

Notwithstanding the rain Saturday morning and the little showers during the early part of the afternoon, the usual number of people gathered for Decoration day exercises and at 2 o'clock the rink was well filled with members of the G. A. R., W. R. C., Foresters and their friends who had assembled to listen to Judge Murphy of Detroit, who addressed the G. A. R.'s, and Wm. F. North of Pontiac, who was here by an invitation from the Foresters to give a talk.

Both men are good speakers and held the attention of the audience for some time.

After the exercises in the rink the members of the different societies, headed by the Forester's band, marched to Rural Hill and Oakwood cemeteries where they decorated the graves of their fallen comrades.

Thus once more have the men, who so nobly fought to save their country, been remembered for their bravery.

Civic Improvements.

A small boy walking through a Boston street was carelessly tearing up a piece of paper, till he had a handful of bits, which he then tossed away. A policeman stopped him and compelled him to gather up every one of those floating pieces of paper. It was a good object-lesson to the amused crowd of spectators. Such a lesson would not be amiss in our beautiful village. Few things mar the beauty of the lawns and streets than flying pieces of paper. A little thoughtfulness in this matter would prevent much untidiness.

THE LEAGUE.

DEATH OF MRS. CHAS. SESSIONS

AFTER LONG ILLNESS OF COMPLICATION OF DISEASES.

Funeral Held Sunday Afternoon and Largely Attended.

The long illness of Mrs. Charles A. Sessions was ended Friday afternoon, May 29, when the angel of death so gently and quietly brought his message of release that the unconsciousness of several days merged into the peaceful silence of the final sleep almost before the loving watchers realized that she had passed from earthly suffering into the Great Future.

All that medical skill, constant care and a wonderful personal fortitude could do was done in the fruitless endeavor to combat the fatal disease that had fastened itself upon Mrs. Sessions, and she passed through operation after operation with a cheerful courage little short of marvelous.

For the past three or four months she had suffered intensely, although she persisted in her efforts to keep up, and even to go out among her friends until it became utterly impossible to do so.

Flora E. Kellogg was born on the place still known as the Kellogg farm, four miles northwest of this village, in 1853. Her childhood and girlhood were passed there and in Northville. With her first husband, William Sackett of this place, she went to Ovid in 1879 and two years later they removed to Montana. Mr. Sackett died about twelve years ago.

In 1904 Mrs. Sackett became the wife of C. A. Sessions of this village and returned from the west to the home of her youth, to be cordially welcomed by many old friends and to make new ones of all who came within her influence.

Of an exceptionally cheerful temperament, bright, witty and entertaining, she was the life of every gathering of which she formed a part and an inspiration for happiness wherever she went. No malicious or even derogatory word was ever heard from her lips concerning

SYNOPSIS:

The story opens during a trip of the "Overland" to the Rocky mountains. "Uncle Billy" Dodge, stage driver, Alfred Vincent, a young man, and Phineas Cadwallader, introduced. They come across the remains of a massacre. Later at Anthony's station they find the redskins have carried their destructive work there also. Stella, the daughter of Anthony keeper of station, is introduced. Anthony has been killed. Vincent is assigned his work in unearthing plans of enemies of railroad, being built. Vincent visits town where railroad men are working on the road and receives token of esteem from Stella. The old stage driver decides to work close to town in order that he may be able to get fatherly watch over the young woman. She is engaged as a tutor for Viola Bernard, daughter of hotel landlady. Vincent visits society circles of enemies of the Central Pacific railroad and learns their secrets. He returns to Stella each showing signs of love, for the other Phineas Cadwallader pushing a railroad opposing Central Pacific, reaches mining town. She writes to Alfred Vincent by post. Plying his attentions Cadwallader insults her and she is rescued by Gideon, her father's servant. In turn he proposes marriage, is rejected, leaves her declaring he will return the sort of a man she will love. Vincent "shows up" San Francisco and Washoe road and is praised by Governor and heads of Central Pacific. Being known as agent of C. P. he decides to retire position of a brakeman for a short time. Stella hears from her lover, Gideon, and of his phenomenal success. Finds letter of importance involving plans of vengeance. Being a railroad agent remains in terrible suffering from long mountain trip. Plot to destroy company's ship. Flora is threatened and incriminating evidence against Cadwallader on charge of wire tapping is also found. The letters found by Stella being deciphered by Brakenham, Alfred Vincent, who arrives on scene.

CHAPTER XI.—Continued.

Alfred stretched his weary legs and went out into the cool evening. The day had been stressful and a bed would have been welcome. Yet Stella! He looked into the overhead blue and saw a young moon that might last till 11 o'clock.

"A light night! I can ride fast and do it by 9.30," he said to himself with sudden cheer. "Stella!"

A hasty snack at a nondescript restaurant—a fresh horse and he was again in the saddle, following the stage track westward, re-riding the miles that he might have an hour with Stella—dear Stella, who had discovered the plot and whose service to humanity and to the Central Pacific Railroad company might never be known to more than Alvin and himself.

CHAPTER XII.

"Our Banner Shall Float Red," George Gregory urged his horse to a gallop over the rough path that skirted the long string of ties—ties that had waited many days for iron. The noon hour was on. At all the camps men and beasts were feeding. The superintendent took letters and dispatches that met him as he dismounted, and, passing his bride to the man in waiting, went to the lee side of the dining tent to read them before eating. One after another he glanced over yellow slips, tore open envelopes.

No iron yet. "Flora" detained," he read and groaned as he thought of bare ties, and the 50 miles still far from finished.

Snatches of low table talk came to Gregory, fitful straws on gusts that sweep along the track of labor, contrary to the steadier gales of capital. "The Union Pacific ain't doing nothing neither, failed in their contracts," one voice said.

"If that company can't build a railroad next door to cheap food, cheap iron good forage and a flat country, what do these C. P. fellows expect to do against a wall of rock standing on edge a mile and a half high?"

"Yes, an 40 feet of snow on top of that," a third added.

"An' that's the iron—not enough to be had, no ships to tote it, an' 20,000 miles to come."

The superintendent heard, though eye and mind were reading letters. He thought of the delayed "Flora," and pain stabbed sharper at his temples.

A shuffling inside warned the superintendent that the meal was nearly finished. He moved off a little that the men might not guess themselves overheard; scrutinized them keenly as they filed out and sought here or there a sheltered spot for pipe or chew before the short respite ended.

The superintendent went inside and ate sparingly of the coarse food, digestion losing its fight to the overwrought brain. Why could not the dinner-time critics, with all their knowings have gained yet a few other facts? Land jobbers and stock speculators held the Union Pacific franchise by the throat, dallied with the work cheated their contractors. These cheated in turn, making their cuts narrow and ragged, their fills loose and brush padded, starving their men and failing with their time limit. No wonder United States commissioners refused the road!

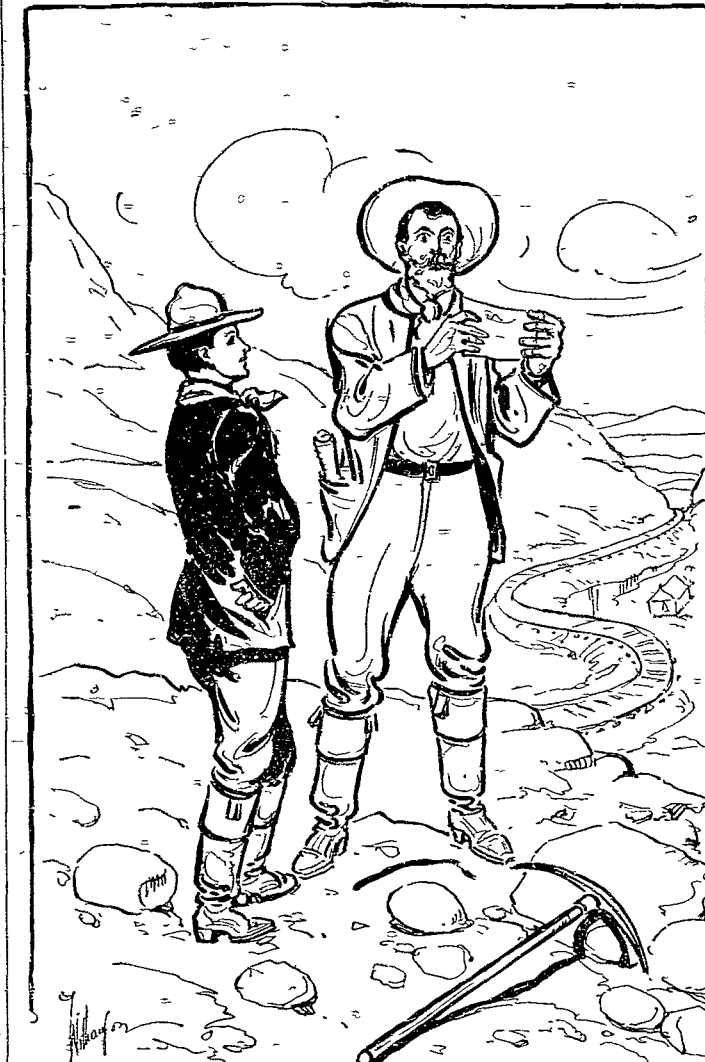

But the men of pick and shovel—men upon whom, then as now, depends the success of all contests with nature—saw only the bare fact, failure. And failure in the east meant, doubly, failure in the west!

A second time Gregory read a San Francisco newspaper clipping inclosed in a letter from the treasurer: "The Central Pacific company can never build on time as long as the present owners control the Sacramento Valley road. That little hunk, with its Freeport connection, and its arms outreached to McLane's road going east from Placerville, will put the iron horse to the state line long before Stanford can make good his bluff at his time limit. The state and the national government should hail McLane and his associates as their saviors from a monstrous steal."

"That's the cursed stuff that works like slow poison among the men, making sight crooked and brains mazy," Gregory thought, aloud as he went to a rude kit for paper and pen. He wrote steadily for an hour, handed letters and dispatches to a messenger and was off again.

Riding west to the end of the rails two hours later he rounded the elbow of a small hill and came upon a gang of track-layers working alone, the foreman being hidden by a second sharp turn. For a moment the men did not know themselves watched. Some were resting on their hammer handles, some snatching a surreptitious smoke, while low joke and dialogue ran lazily around. Others, kept up a noise with halfhearted blows at the spikes.

"Take your time, boys. This is all the iron for a month o' Sundays."

"Let Every Man in Camp Know the Iron is Coming."

Something's gone wrong with the "Flora," an' the last lot was shipped on her."

The plunge of the horse, urged upon the men with cruel spur, startled them into rigidity. Gregory's hair bristled under his hat. His nose lifted threateningly. His cheek paled and his eyes flung a burning spark to every shirking soul.

"You hell-hounds! Call this work! Is this what you're giving the C. P. company for their good coin? You think any railroad under God's canopy can be built a-sitting on your hamsters? I'll break your worm-eaten heads! I'll set men over you with shotguns! I'll send you into kingdom come without wooden overcoats! I'll—"

His invectives tore along the line like thunderbolts. Rough men, desperate some of them were, cowed under his blasting tirade, breathing easily again only when he turned to meet the luckless foreman coming round the point.

Late in the afternoon a hurrying messenger overtook the "boss" with dispatches. The "Flora" is at Sacramento. Iron at Front to-morrow. Crocker.

The superintendent handed the telegram to Bennett. "Pass it along," he said. "Let every man in camp know the iron is coming!"

Bennett moved away, and Gregory took off his hat and threw back his head. A long breath of relief brought ease, and he lifted his eyes to the firmament. The gray day had passed. The sun paused in splendor on the western heights, flinging a triumphant red banner across to meet the approaching twilight curve.

CHAPTER XIII.

Vanquished. Alone in his chamber Phineas g'oomed. The company had prose-cut on the charge of wife-tapping, only. This troubled Phineas but little. Fulfilling his expectation in case of discovery, certain merchants of San Francisco had raised a large sum for his bail, retained for his defense the best lawyers in the state. As he had been held on the lighter charge he felt sure the plot to blow up the steamer was still secret. He famed at the stupidity of his underlings, never suspecting another cause might have saved the "Flora."

Whether chance or plan had given Phineas his name he knew not, but he had believed in its meaning, glory in it. Phineas, mouth of brass; Cadwallader, battle arranger. Many a brazen battle had he arranged and fought to a successful finish. But these were past. The easy, luxurious life was surely gone. The best seat, the finest room, the open cigar case, drinks that cost him nothing, the still hunt for secrets, popularity, jollity—all that he best loved was lost. Instead the prison, perhaps. Restless, he walked the narrow room, his courage rising, while his nimble brain wove him yet another bold plot. Through his attorney he contrived an interview with Gov. Stanford that came to pass with unexpected promptness.

The governor entered, outwardly the genial, rosy citizen adored by California's best, wrapped as with a mantle in his optimistic atmosphere of success. But to-day he was faced to face with crime. Phineas' tricks might be veiled, his tricky heart was not. The governor measured him in an instant and went on guard.

"Yes, sir, I can do it, I can deliver the goods," Phineas said emphatically, after a full statement of his proposition and sharp questions from his listener.

"Let me understand you thoroughly. We'll go over it again, and slowly. It is too important a matter to be hurried."

slightly at quickly clearing, and signed.

The governor did not fail to interpret correctly that hesitancy. He dismissed the clerk and turned to Phineas. "Mr. Cadwallader, I shall not attempt to conceal from you the satisfaction this transaction affords me. I hope it will not be otherwise with you. Serve us well and you will find the Central Pacific company a fair employer."

"I'm sure I shall, sir. I've been in sympathy with you from the start, but I had to serve those who paid me." The governor scowled at the bald sycophancy. "Words are cheap, Mr. Cadwallader." He rose, stepped to the door to make sure of privacy, returned and stood near Phineas. His large body, powerful instrument of a still more powerful will, towered above Phineas' unconsciously threatening. His eye, now kind as it ever was for friends and right deeds, but the eye that confounded malevolence, burned into the other man's very soul, downed his gaze, held him cowering in his chair.

"We shall expect more than words from you, Mr. Cadwallader. And to insure your continual interest in our welfare I have to tell you that we hold a perfect chain of evidence convicting you of intent to blow up the "Flora." Our people found the powder, the fuse, the open packages of petroleum. We know the man you hired to carry out the plot, we have a correct reading of your cipher dispatch, some certified affidavits—all that is needed to send you to the penitentiary. This is filed away safely. The day you betray us by word or sign, or to the amount of a two bit piece, you will be arrested and put on trial. Good afternoon."

CHAPTER XIV.

Hearts Revealed. Phineas delivered his goods, and the historic Sacramento Valley railroad, the first bit of track on the Pacific coast; the non-hunk that proved to be the undoing of the spurious San Francisco & Washoe railroad, dropped mysteriously into the hands of the Central Pacific company.

The opposition, defeated yet never dead, still cried "Wolf!" But no cry was loud enough to fluster the brave men at Sacramento. Only nature and the nation's extremities could retard them now. And against these enemies, down to the humblest, took heart of grace and charged again the rocky ramparts of the Sierras.

When the angel of death swept down in the breath of the powder flash upon James Sackett, an unborn child was blighted. It came later to its birth, only to sigh and pass to the care of him who rules life and two eternities. Through weary weeks the mother lingered, unaroused to convalescence by hope or by skill of physicians. The warm frontier heart of the town watched and sorrowed with her, cheerfully adding the burden to their laden shoulders, supplying all possible comfort and every obtainable luxury.

Stella, regularly attentive in the sickroom, reported daily to Alfred. His humble berth of extra brakeman had brought his sleeping hours in the little town, left his evenings free. For several weeks he had devoted these to planning a benefit for Mrs. Sackett that was to invade jointly the domains of Thalia, Polyhymnia and Terpsichore.

For days Stella and Viola had toiled at the tasks Alfred set them. Details, as well as most of the men's parts, rested on Alfred, for men were too busy or too bashful for "play acting." He had chosen short extracts from one or two popular plays and planned a couple of charades representing local interests. He had drilled Viola in the rendering of some songs and a boy or two in recitation. But the ambitious part of the performance was to be two scenes from "Romeo and Juliet."

Under Alfred's tuition Stella discovered 5 different Shakespeares from her father's pious poet. Stella walked on air. Weight seemed to leave her body. Sleep and food were no longer necessities. All day she longed for evening; all night dreamed it over again. She was journeying the old, old rose-path, believing herself a wise coverlet!

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

An Uncomfortable Moment. Perhaps the most uncomfortable moment in a man's life is that one in which he takes a seat in a box at a play and sees his employer sitting in an orchestra chair among the ordinary people.

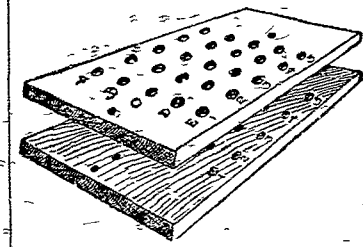

A SEED CORN TESTER.

One by Which the Seed Can Be Tested in the Garden.

Place two 12x15 boards together making a separate block two inches thick. Bore two one-half-inch holes, one in each end as indicated in the accompanying illustration and fit in two short bolts with washers on each end. Then bore 25 three quarter-inch holes 1 1/4 inches apart. Letter each horizontal row and number each perpendicular row as indicated.

Then take out the bolts and slip the top board over to the right until each hole has a bottom. Bore the two end holes through the lower board again, and insert the bolts with the washers on each end.

To use this tester, says the Prairie Farmer, take it to your seed corn crib and fill each hole with three to five grains from each ear to be tested. Store the ears in the crib in such a manner that each ear may be found again, as A-1, D-5, etc. When filled carry to the garden or other suitable place and prepare a large flat smooth seed bed, just about a week before planting time. Lay the loaded tester at one corner of the bed, remove the end bolts, slip the top board back to the original position and tap it gently. The seeds will thus be evenly dropped just as you have them recorded in the crib. Cover the seeds with old carpet or sacks and keep always damp.

MAKING ALFALFA HAY.

Some Comments on the Most Successful Methods of Handling.

The first cutting should be made when about one-tenth of the plants are in bloom. This usually comes in May or early June, and at a time when it is difficult to cure the hay. Start the mower in the morning of what promises to be a clear day, as soon as the dew is off.

In the afternoon, if the weather has been favorable, rake the alfalfa and put into small cocks. These should not be left standing more than two or three days without moving, or the plants underneath will be partially or completely smothered. If alfalfa is exceedingly green when cocked, or rainy weather sets in, it will heat, unless the cock is opened every day or two.

In favorable weather, no more difficulty will be experienced in curing alfalfa than in curing heavy growths of clover, says the Farm and Home. The leaves are rich in nitrogen and fall off readily when dry, therefore the crop should be cured with the least handling possible.

Every alfalfa grower in districts where rain is frequent should provide hay caps. These may be made of light cotton duck one-quarter to 1 1/2 yards square. Hem the edges to prevent raveling and make eyelets in the corners for strings. Cut heavy wire in 18-inch lengths and make a loop on one end in which to tie the strings attached to the pegs. These wire pegs can be either run into the ground or pushed into the sides of the cocks of hay or alfalfa. Alfalfa cured under hay caps is of much better quality than when cured in cocks or in the windrow.

"Jointed" Wool.

One of the defects in wool which the buyers very carefully look for is what is known as "jointed" wool which means that there are certain portions of the wool fiber which are weaker than others. This can be usually detected by breaking a sample of the wool in question. The presence of weak portions in the wool fiber generally means that at some time or other the sheep experienced sickness or the growth was stopped for the time being. To prevent this condition the sheep should be kept in a constantly growing condition and sickness prevented as much as possible.

Preventing Pear Blight.

Twig and leaf blight will make its appearance soon after leafing out begins. For leaf blight, which is caused by a fungus and is readily detected by the small, round, dark-colored spots on the leaf, nothing is better than spraying with bordeaux mixture. It gives satisfaction also in twig blight, but should be used several times in the season. For fire or malignant blight the best remedy is to burn the tree as soon as discovered, for it is only a matter of a few days till it will be dead.

Keep Them Separate.

Put the young ewes that are not lambing this spring, and the barren ewes, in a separate lot from those heavy in lamb. They are likely to injure the pregnant ewes, especially at feeding time, when all run together.

RED CLOVER FOR SEED.

Method of Growing to Secure the Proper Results.

The ordinary method of growing red clover is to cut the first crop as soon as it is in full bloom, and then taking chances of getting a seed crop from the second cutting. This is generally a chance and only a chance. Frequently the condition of the weather and the press of farm work delays the first cutting until the heads are all brown and sometimes dead; and then, unless there is a very favorable season, there is not time to mature a second crop before frost, which sometimes happens in the latitude of central Iowa by the middle of September, earlier north and later south, but generally not until about October 1. Immense crops are sometimes grown in this way, but after all it is a chance. When clover seed is five dollars a bushel or under, the farmer will usually get more clear money by using this second crop for pasture, or, if the season is favorable, for roughage, by which we mean a second crop of clover hay. When clover seed rises to eight and ten dollars, or, as this year, $14 a bushel, it is worth while to take some special measures to secure a seed crop.

Two or three ways have been suggested: One is to pasture the first crop until about two weeks before it would ordinarily be cut, which in the central portion of our territory would be about the 10th of June. This while it will not insure a seed crop, will make it much more certain than the method usually adopted.

When the acreage is small and the farmer will give the time and attention which it requires, says Wallace's Farmer, it is possible at least in the southern half of our territory to take a crop of clover hay and add ten or 15 days to the time allowed for maturing the seed crop. The ordinary methods of curing this clover hay will not be applicable at all. It contains too much water and will have to be cured by curing it first in the sun, stirring it frequently with the tedder, then putting it up in cocks, putting on caps and letting it cure out in the cock. The only question is whether it is worth enough more for hay than for pasture, and this will depend on the condition prevailing on the farm.

ROTATING CROPS.

Such System Improves the Land in Many Ways.

The rotating of crops improves the land in several ways. One way is by adding nitrogen to it if leguminous crops are grown in the rotation. It is an error to suppose, however, that all kinds of fertility are added to land by the rotations. The rotating has its limitations, but with that understanding, it is a good thing.

One advantage of rotation is to clean out noxious weeds that may get into the land in various ways. Sometimes a field devoted to the growing of wheat becomes filled with mustard and other weeds injurious to the production of crops of commercial value. Mustard is not a weed except when it is out of place.

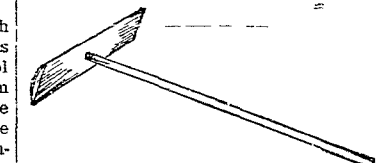

Old hay meadows become so infested with worms that the hay crop is often greatly reduced. Changing to some other crop for a few years makes it possible to eradicate the worms. Wireworms especially can be gotten rid of in this way.

There are other advantages of rotation that we perhaps do not understand at this time, says the Farmers' Review. Thus, sometimes certain crops are rotated with each other and show an increased yield due to rotation, while the food requirements of the crops are quite similar.

A STABLE SCRAPER.

Serviceable Device for Use in Handling the Manure.

A handy scraper for cleaning the stable is easily and quickly made by boring a hole in the middle of a piece of board. The board should be hard wood, about six inches wide, and 18 inches long, and it must be thick enough in the middle to hold the handle firmly. For a handle, use an old fork handle carefully fitted and wedge it firmly, then bore a hole down through and put in a wire nail to prevent the handle from pulling out after it works loose, as it is sure to do in time.

Head Lettuce.

For a summer head lettuce there is none that surpasses the old-fashioned Deacon, or California Butter, says Farm and Home. It has the finest flavor. I have not been able to find any other variety that comes near it. It should be planted early and thinly in the row, and thinned to stand six inches apart. The rows should not be less than 18 inches apart. It stands the drouth well, and remains a long time in prime condition before running to seed. If you have never had success with head lettuce try the Deacon.

Peas, Then Alfalfa.

An Ohio farmer says he is plowing his old alfalfa fields, and will grow a crop of peas for a canning factory, seeding again to alfalfa when the peas are off.

Warner's Business Administration.

The appeal which the friends of Governor Warner are making to the voters of Michigan to nominate and elect the governor for a third term is based on neither sentiment nor personality, but on the fact that the administration of Mr. Warner has been, beyond doubt, in the interests of the commonwealth.

In political parlance the word business administration is often used without a proper recognition of what it means. Mr. Warner has proven himself an executive thoroughly able to deal with the large business affairs of the state and anxious, at all times, to equalize the burden of taxation fairly and justly among the rich and the poor in every nook and corner of Michigan.

One of the strongest arguments in favor of the nomination and election of Mr. Warner this year is the fact that, up to the present time, the express and sleeping car companies have been escaping the payment of anything like their just share of the taxes. These wealthy institutions, in their relation to the states from which they derive their enormous revenue, remind one of the carpet baggers of 1866. It is difficult for the assessing officers to locate any property which these companies are willing to declare for taxation when the sleeping car is traveling in Michigan it is alleged to be exempt because it belongs to Illinois, and, by the same token, the same car is exempt in Illinois because it belongs to Michigan.

The same is true with the express companies who operate an interstate business, who charge the public exorbitant and unreasonable rates, who persistently condemn all parcels post suggestions and who collect, annually, many million dollars of tribute upon an investment small enough to be, in view of the returns, simply ridiculous. If those corporations paid the taxes they ought to pay, the merchant and the farmer, the householder and manufacturer would escape bearing burdens of taxation not properly their own.

Governor Warner proposes to have enacted legislation which will deal vigorously with this injustice, at the same time being fair to the companies while protecting the people who make their business in Michigan possible and profitable. Many of us are at a loss to follow the political arguments of the day, particularly those touching upon intricate, statistical matters. But practically all of us understand that we are paying enormous express charges to various companies who have little or no invested capital and who pay little or nothing in taxes to the states which give them the right to carry on their business.

Governor Warner is greeted with immense crowds wherever he stops on his tour of the state in behalf of his candidacy for a third term. This shows that the people of the state believe in Warner and will give him another term in order that he may carry through the program of remedial legislation which he has inaugurated in their behalf. They well know that such of this proposed legislation as was defeated last year was slaughtered by the same element that is so strenuously opposing the Governor in the pending campaign.

In other words Dr. Bradley says Mr. Atwood and the boxers are solidly for him.

[By a Pupil.]

The Third grade has a calendar for June decorated with roses.

The First grade pupils are studying about flowers this week.

The B Fifth grade Geography class is studying about Australia.

The Second grade's calendar for June has clover blossoms for decoration.

The Fifth grade pupils drew hills of the valley and colored them this week.

The First grade's window box has some very pretty geraniums in blossom.

The Second grade pupils are interested in some pollywogs which they have in a can.

All the grades are reviewing the past year's work, preparatory to the final examinations.

The Second grade has a border of butterflies on one side of the wall and moths on the other, which they drew and colored.

The Second grade pupils were very much pleased when one of their cocoons, which they have kept for a long time, opened up to allow a moth to creep out Wednesday morning.

Card of Thanks.

I wish to express my gratitude to the neighbors and friends for their kindness during the illness and death of my wife; also for the many beautiful flowers sent from time to time.

Marlin

WHETHER you live in the city or country, you'll find no .22 calibre repeating rifle like the Marlin Model 1897.

For the city man it is a perfect companion for the vacation or outing trip. It's light, takes down and packs in a small space. The ammunition is inexpensive. The gun can be used with .22 shorts for target and is equally capable of handling .22 long or long-rifle cartridges without change of mechanism.

On the farm the rifle is a necessity. The short cartridge is sufficient for sparrows, squirrels and small game; and the long-rifle cartridge makes the Marlin Model 97 a dangerous weapon for geese, fozes, hawks, etc. up to 200 yards.

The "Marlin Book" of 128 pages, with hand-some art cover, is jam full of up-to-date information for all gun lovers and gives full description of all Marlin repeaters. It's FREE for 3 stamps postage.

OPINIONS FROM THE STATE PRESS

Credit Belongs to Pingree.

Some one has been trying to give Dr. Bradley credit for the $650 per primary school money now ready for distribution and the Charlotte Tribune, remarks thusly: "Dr. Bradley as chief Boxer strenuously opposed the people's representatives in their efforts to have a larger voice in the affairs of their government. Dr. Bradley had no more to do with securing for the state the $650 per child of school age, which the law compels him to apportion, than did the king of the Cannibal Islands. It was the late Gov. Pingree, the much-maligned Pingree, the grand old Roman of them all, the man whose chief opposition came from a corrupt political machine of his own party when he was making his fight for the people, the fight which led to the just taxation of railroads from which the fund comes which makes it possible for a Bradley to simply apportion it."

Fighting for Principles.

Just as the enemies of the administration made Warner's candidacy for a third term inevitable, so they continue to make his success at the primary equally certain. It is not Fred M. Warner, primarily, whom the people want at all. It is the things he is fighting for, and they want them because they are right and fair and just—Plymouth Mill.

Voted Against the "Boxers."

The Cedar Springs Clipper cites the fact that Governor Warner ran behind the ticket four years ago, but forgets that the cause of it was that the people were trying to vote against the very element that is now opposing the governor. It wasn't Warner they were voting against, it was the "boxer" crowd.

Methodist Church Notes.

(By the Pastor.)

The Ladies' Aid will meet with Mrs. Ed. Fuller next Tuesday afternoon.

A good program for Children's Day is in preparation. Exercises the second Sunday in June.

The Junior League sale of cake and ice cream last Friday afternoon was very successful. We predict large usefulness for the Junior League.

Services will be held at the usual hours Sunday. At the morning service the Woodmen will be present and all their friends are invited to attend.

Remember that the Epworth League will serve ice cream and cake on the lawn Saturday evening. Come and treat yourself to a good time and encourage the Leaguers in their good work.

Presbyterian Church Notes.

(By the Pastor.)

We are sorry to lose Miss Porter from our Sunday school where she has been a most faithful teacher.

We were all glad to welcome the Knights Templar last Sunday morning. Miss Gass of Ypsilanti sang a beautiful solo which all greatly enjoyed.

The usual service next Sunday morning. Vesper service at 5 p. m. All are cordially invited to meet for worship at this most delightful hour of the day.

The Ladies' Missionary society will meet with Mrs. E. A. Merritt next Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Mrs. E. B. Thompson will lead the meeting and Mrs. Merritt will furnish music.

Semi-Annual Sale Muslin Underwear

BEGINNING JUNE 1st AND CONTINUING THROUGH THE MONTH.

The goods for this sale have been selected with great care and comprise the most complete assortment we have ever shown. Everything is purchased from the best manufacturers and cannot be excelled in quality and style.

In addition to the regular goods purchased for the sale we have been fortunate enough to secure the

of one of the best manufacturers, made for this season's trade and offer them at One-Third Off the Regular Prices.

These goods are the perfection of American production. The laces and embroideries used for trimming being of the highest grade.

FRENCH HAND-EMBROIDERED UNDERWEAR.

Our line of these goods is of unusual merit. We have a large and choice assortment of garments with the reinforced embroidered edges which were the first to introduce into the United States and which adds one-half to the life of the garment.

In accordance with our usual custom we will make a reduction of 10 per cent on all our newest and latest importations, during the Sale and will close out all soiled garments and others to clean up stock at 25 to 50 per cent below the regular price.

budget. The crowd from Detroit came out in a special car and returned after the meeting.

The Governor made a fine talk and shot out arguments and statistics like a rapid fire gun.

C. C. Chadwick, chairman of the township committee, called the meeting to order and following some very appropriate remarks, called Representative Benton to preside.

Greatest Compliment.

The late Lord Shaftesbury one time related an incident regarding which he says that the little girl's trust was to him the greatest compliment he had ever received. This little girl, a mite of a lass, wished to cross the street, and was waiting for some one to help her. After looking searchingly into the faces of all those who passed, she finally decided to choose the earl, and approached him, saying: "Please, sir, will you help me over?"

He Passed It By.

Leonard returned from his first visit to Sunday school with the remark: "Mother, they passed the money basket around, but I didn't take any."

TRIM TREES JUNE 10-11

The Council has authorized President Dubuar to issue a "Tree Trimming Day" proclamation; here it is and it's a mighty good idea, too:

PROCLAMATION! Two years ago Mr. Harmon, then president of the Village, issued a proclamation calling upon the citizens and property owners to trim the trees on the streets in front of their premises. This request was quite generally complied with and did much to add to the beauty of the streets.

The Village Council, feeling that the time has come again when a general trimming of the trees is desirable, have instructed me to set apart June 10th and 11th as days for this work and to ask the citizens and property owners to make the dates named "Tree Trimming Days."

There is urgent need of this work being done, and it is hoped that there will be a general compliance with this request, rather than necessitating the Council to take it into their own hands to do.

All brush will be drawn away at the village expense.

J. A. DUBUAR, President.

HELPFUL ADVICE

You won't tell your family doctor the whole story about your private illness—you are too modest. You need not be afraid to tell Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., the things you could not explain to the doctor. Your letter will be held in the strictest confidence. From her vast correspondence with sick women during the past thirty years she may have gained the very knowledge that will help your case. Such letters as the following, from grateful women, establish beyond a doubt the power of to conquer all female diseases.

Mrs. Norman R. Barnet, of Allentown, Pa., writes:

"Ever since I was sixteen years of age I had suffered from an organic derangement and female weakness; in consequence I had dreadful headaches and was extremely nervous. My physician said I must go through an operation to get well. A friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I took it and wrote you for advice, following your directions carefully, and thanks to you I am today a well woman, and I am telling all my friends of my experience."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

Triumph of Mind.

Victim of Delusion—Doctor, I'm awfully afraid, I'm going to have brain fever.

Doctor—Pooh, pooh, my dear friend! That's all an illusion of the senses. There is no such thing as fever. You have no fever, you have no brain fever, no material substance upon which such a wholly imaginary and supposititious thing as a fever could find any base of operation.

Victim—Oh, doctor, what a load you have taken from my—from my—I have a mind, haven't I, doctor?

A Logical Conclusion.

"Mr. Pursington says he believes a man should pay as he goes."

"Judging from the way he gets in debt, he must be accustomed to traveling backward."—Washington Star

TOPIC NEAREST TO HER HEART.

Whether or Not He Was Married Interested the Girl Chiefly.

Seeking to know how best to interest her in my conversation, I lied me to the wise man, who spoke and said: "Speak thou of many things. So long as she ejaculates, the subject thou must change, but when she asks a question, then will you know the topic that is nearest to her heart."

Whereupon I returned unto the maiden and lifted my voice most tunelessly into speech.

"I was talking to a friend of mine as I came along the street," remarked I unto her. He is a writer of books and has seen the strangest sights and scenes."

She turned to me the face of innocence, but nothing said.

"He has traveled in distant lands, has sailed the seas and triumphed over the mountain tops. He has braved the snows of Alaska and the toxic sun of the Amazon. India has been his stamping ground, and over China has he widely roamed."

"Just to think!" she cried.

"He has studied the picture galleries of the whole wide world. London, Vienna, Paris, Florence," he knows them from vestibule to roof—column, base and architrave."

"The idea!" she cried.

"He has slept in the house where Dickens was born and has paid his pilgrimage to the room where the great Thackeray breathed his last. He has sat at the table whereon Balzac wrote, and Keats and he are the most particular friends."

"You don't say!" she cried.

"He was a war correspondent and made a record in the Boer war. At Port Arthur he saw the blockades both by land and sea and twice was left for dead upon the field."

"Gracious!" she cried.

"Before that he was a dramatic critic, and the boldest actor trembled at the words that he might say. He knew the stars that twinkled in the firmament and all the minor constellations on the broad and great white way."

"Fancy!" she cried.

"He has hunted the tiger in India and the elephant in Africa. He has tracked the lion to its lair and the leopard to its den."

"You don't say!"

Whereat I paused, breathless and discomfited for never an interrogation had she made, and vainly did I cudgel my mind for the topic that was nearest to her heart but as I was about to make retreat, lo, she raised her face and queried:

"Is he married?"

The Woman and the Feline.

A western judge—let us hope he had been singularly unfortunate in his female relatives—recently remarked that all women were cats. Women read that press dispatch everywhere, one morning, and for a few hours at least the ears of that judge must have burned, writes Isabel Gordon Curtis, in Success Magazine.

Still, there are women who indorse his judgment, although they feel that he might have qualified his remark and said: "Some women are cats." One can't help wondering why poor pussy, from time immemorial, should have been picked out as the prototype of a mean, treacherous, backbiting woman, for a cat which is well fed and kindly treated is a lovable animal, and, queerly enough, it is the animal on which most women lavish their love. A man who studies the traits of dumb creatures tells us, however, that the female cat treats the species of her own sex in a peculiarly mean and vicious manner. It bites instead of backbiting, and, at the first throb of jealousy, will scratch like a good fellow. If that is so, we have to confess that there are cat-like women everywhere, in the lowest rank of life and in the highest, for we have had cat-like queens, clever old Queen Bess had many a pussy-cat trait.

Sticking Pins in Paper.

The modern pin-making machine works automatically and completes the pin, with the exception of coloring and polishing without the aid of human hands. In 1841 the device for sticking pins in rows of papers was invented by Samuel Slocum of Connecticut, and put in use in the factory where pins were made by Dr. Howe's machine. It was later improved by Thaddeus Fowler. This machine is described as scarcely less ingenious than the pin-making invention. By the use of these devices the total pin product in this country, chiefly in Connecticut, was a little over 50,000,000 gross in 1900, of which about 47,500,000 were ordinary pins, about 1,500,000 were safety pins and about 1,000,000 were hairpins.

The Melodrama Again.

The beautiful heroine stamped her tiny foot on the tiger skin rug.

"And you dare deceive me?" she hissed. "Didn't you make a vow that you would never tell me another barefaced falsehood?"

In reply the heavy villain flashed a pair of automobile goggles from his pocket and put them on.

"And I have kept my vow, Helene Hominy. I am barefaced no longer."

With a cry of despair the beautiful heroine pumped into the past-board river.

A Relief to Both.

"At last," he sighed, "we're alone. I've been hoping for this chance."

"So have I," said she very frankly.

"Ah! you have guessed, then, that I wanted to tell you that I loved you."

"Yes; and I want to say 'No' and get it over with."

IS IT POSSIBLE?

"And who were the people who first thought of music, auntie?"

"Why, child, they are considered to be prehistoric."

"Oh, auntie, how well you do remember!"

A KENTUCKY CASE.

That Will Interest All Suffering Women.

Mrs. Della Meanes, 328 E. Front St., Mayville, Ky., says: "Seven years ago I began to notice sharp pain in the kidneys and a bearing-down sensation through the hips, dull headache and dizzy spells. Dropsy appeared, and my feet and ankles swelled so I could not get my shoes on."

I was in misery, and had despaired of ever getting cured when I decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills. One box helped me so much that I kept on until entirely cured."

KNEW WHAT THE JOB MEANT.

Angry Citizen Put Ordeal Up to Street Car Company.

Not long ago there entered the office of the superintendent of a trolley line in Detroit an angry citizen, demanding "justice" in no uncertain terms.

In response to the official's gentle inquiry touching the cause of the demand, the angry citizen explained that on the day previous as his wife was boarding one of the company's cars, the conductor thereof had stepped on his spouse's dress, tearing from it more than a yard of material.

"I can't see that we are to blame for that," protested the superintendent.

"What do you expect us to do, get her a new dress?"

"No, sir, I do not," rejoined the angry citizen, brandishing a piece of cloth. "What I propose is that you people shall match this material!"

BAD ITCHING HUMOR.

Limbs Below the Knees Were Raw—Feet Swollen—Sleep Broken—Cured in 2 Days by Cuticura.

"Some two months ago I had a humor break out on my limbs below my knees. They came to look like raw beefsteak, all red, and no one knows how they itched and burned. They were so swollen that I could not get my shoes on for a week or more. I used five or six different remedies and got no help, only when applying them the burning was worse and the itching less. For two or three weeks the suffering was intense and during that time I did not sleep an hour at a time. Then one morning I tried a bit of Cuticura. From the moment it touched me the itching was gone and I have not felt a bit of it since. The swelling went down and in two days I had my shoes on and was about as usual. George B. Farley, 50 South State St., Concord, N. H., May 14, 1907."

Wore Out Bobby's Patience.

Bobby was on a visit to his uncle, a good old orthodox deacon, in the country. The two were the best of friends, and Bobby always sat at the deacon's right hand at table.

At dinner that day grace was long, and Bobby was very hungry. Finally, in the midst of it his patience gave out; he pounded on the table with his little fist. "Amen, now, Uncle Horace! Amen!"

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to get local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

MADE UP OF FIVE LAYERS—(1) Felt; (2) Asphalt; (3) Felt; (4) Asphalt; (5) Granite. A record of forty years of success and satisfaction behind it.

This roofing will last longer, is cheaper to lay and cheaper in the long run than any other you can buy.

If we could make a better roofing, we would, but we can't. You will make no mistake in using it.

It only costs about half what shingles would cost laid on the roof.

We will give you an absolute guarantee that our roofing will last you five years. We know it will last for 12 or 15 years, but five years' guarantee is enough to make and we say five years simply to show faith in our own roofing.

It cost us $10,000.00 to find out that our kind of roofing was better than the other man's. The difference is this:

Our roofing is made of crushed, irregular shaped granite particles put on two heavy sheets of asphalt felt cemented together. These particles of quarry granite have sharp points and sharp edges and stick into this asphalt for evermore. You can easily understand why they will stick a great deal better than the round, smooth little pebbles, which are sometimes used.

The granite is to protect the roof from sun, wind and rain, and our granite does protect it.

Do not buy a roof that will need painting. It means there is a weakness somewhere. You don't have to paint a Reynolds' roof.

We have so much to tell you about our roofing that we cannot begin to do it here, but want you to write and let us tell you just why our roofing is what you want and why you cannot afford to buy any other.

We have a liberal proposition to make to you, and no matter how much you may know about some other roofing you should get our proposition. It means a saving

This roofing is put up in one square roll, all ready to lay and securely packed inside of the roll are the trimmings consisting of galvanized iron nails and cement in a can with directions how to lay the roll.

Give us all the information you can about the roof, and we will tell you something that will interest you. WRITE US TODAY.

A Hair Dressing

Nearly every one likes a fine hair dressing. Something to make the hair more manageable; to keep it from being too rough, or from splitting at the ends. Something, too, that will feed the hair at the same time, a regular hair-food. Well-fed hair will be strong, and will remain where it belongs—on the head, not on the comb!

Muscular Energy in Sugar.
Men performing manual labor have a natural tendency to eat sweets, as they supply a great amount of muscular energy, and "What to Eat" They are equally beneficial to persons exposed to severe cold in the lumber camps and mines of Canada and the colder sections of the United States workmen consume large quantities of sugar in the form of molasses. Tea and coffee are often sweetened with molasses and in some places it is added to almost every article of food. The sugar is more or less true in the logging districts of the south, where molasses and rice, mixed together, have become almost a staple diet.

WHY SO WEAK?

Kidney Troubles May Be Snapping Your Life away—Northville People Have Learned This Fact.

When a healthy man or woman begins to run down without apparent cause, becomes weak, languid, depressed, suffers backache, headache, dizzy spells and urinary disorders, look to the kidneys for the cause of it all. Keep the kidneys well and they will keep you well. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and keep them well. Here is Northville testimony to prove it.

Mrs. Gus Bernhardt, living three miles east of Northville, Mich., says: "For a long time my husband had kidney trouble and complained of backache. His back finally became so lame that he could hardly get around to attend to work. The action of the kidneys also became irregular. Not long ago he was compelled to stay in the house. For several days he was unable to straighten his back, and the pains extended to his legs so he could not walk without suffering. I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Murdoch Bros.' drug store and they gave him wonderful relief in a short time. His kidneys became regular and there was only slight pain in his back. He was able to attend to his work without any difficulty. I am glad to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to others who may be in need of a remedy of this kind."

SABINE'S CURATIVE OIL.

Lockport, N. Y., Dec. 17, 1907. Phillips Drug Co., Warren, Pa.

Gentlemen: We have yours of the 18th. I have used the Sabine Curative Oil as a family remedy for fifteen years or more and have never been without it. When there was a prospect of its not being manufactured I immediately laid in as much of a stock as I could. It is now in use in the United Indurated Fibre Company plant with our First-Aid Outfit, which is in constant use among the several hundred employees and we find the Curative Oil is the most valuable of any of the remedies for the treating of the many injuries that are constantly occurring. It is a pleasure to recommend it to any one. Yours truly, Jesse Peterson, United Indurated Fibre Co., of New Jersey. By Jesse Peterson, Pres and Gen'l Mgr. Prepared by Phillips Drug Co., Warren, Pa. Cook's Great Record.

"Concentrate your mind on the oven," said Miss Teresa McDonald of Boston in explaining the wonders of her art in pastry cooking. She owns to the proud record of 394,000 pies baked in 40 years at one restaurant, besides scores of other dainties. If all her pies were laid out in a row they would reach 70 miles. She has made 2,000,000 doughnuts in 27 years and 788,460 puddings.

After a heavy meal, take a couple of Doan's Regulents, and give your stomach, liver and bowels the help they will need. Regulents bring easy, regular passages of the bowels.
