COM'NCEM'T EXERCISES

HELD WEDNESDAY-EVENING IN METHODIST CHURCH.

A Class of Ten Received Their Sheepskins.

This week marks the closing of another school year in Northville and on Wednesday evening the Commencement exercises were held in the Methodist church.

The edifice was very prettily decorated with plants, flowers and hanging of the class colors, green and white.

The class consisted of ten members: Guy Taft, Beale Brooks, Lucie Simmons, Carl Hogle, LaVilla Adams, Ruth Chadwick, Guy Filkins, Olive Dixon, Maybelle Bradley, Samuel Penfield.

An elaborate reception was tendered the graduates Monday evening by the Juniors in the Library room. The class colors and flowers formed the charming decorations. A dainty menu was served and the evening was much enjoyed.

Annual Library Meet.

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Library association was held last Friday afternoon and an amendment to the constitution was passed permitting the placing of two additional trustees on the board of managers, making the number twelve instead of ten. The balloting resulted in the election of Mrs. Prudence Clark as president; Mrs. Sarah Parsons, vice president; Mrs. Kittie Harmon, secretary; Mrs. Mary Ambler, treasurer.

The following were elected trustees for two years: Mesdames Sophia Benton, Della Harmon, Minnie Hutson and May Filkins.

The annual reports showed the affairs of the association to be in good condition, thanks to the untiring energy of the ladies who serve the public so faithfully as managers of this worthy institution. The balance in the treasury was much larger than last year owing to the sale of the old magazines and papers collected during the winter and spring, but the card holding membership of the association is not so large as it ought to be in consideration of the public benefit and the prestige given our village by an enterprise so unusual for a town the size of Northville.

Halley-Judson.

A very pretty June wedding was solemnized Tuesday evening, June 16, at seven o'clock in the Scotten avenue Baptist church when Leah Edna, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Judson of Detroit, former Northville residents, and Mr. John C. Halley of Detroit were united in marriage.

A reception was held at the home of the bride from eight to ten o'clock, after which a wedding supper was served.

The happy couple began house-keeping at once at 209-29th street. Northville friends extend best wishes for a long and prosperous life.

MRS. CLAY CALKINS PASSED AWAY

AFTER UNDERGOING SERIOUS OPERATION.

Funeral Held from the Late Home
Monday Morning.

After patient suffering for three months past, Mrs. Clay Calkins submitted to an operation in Harper hospital about two weeks ago which resulted in her death last Thursday night.

It was a sad blow to her relatives and friends as it was thought the operation would greatly benefit her, but she was too weak to withstand the shock.

Ida Kator was born in Livonia in 1856 and was married to Clay Calkins twenty-eight years ago, and he, with one son, LaVern, and one daughter, Lucie, survive.

Mrs. Calkins was a devoted wife, a loving mother and a kind neighbor and the place left vacant, both in the home and the community where she lived, can never be filled.

The funeral was held from the late home Monday morning, Rev. Wm. S. Jerome conducting the service, and interment made in Rural Hill cemetery.

The Sunday school is planning for the annual picnic with the other schools.

The Children's Day exercises were well attended and much enjoyed. Three little ones received baptism.

Remember the ice cream social on Saturday evening for the benefit of the Sunday school library.

Judge Brooke for Supreme Bench.

Friends of Judge Brooke of Detroit are urging his name as the logical candidate to succeed Justice Carpenter on the supreme bench. Judge Carpenter's resignation takes effect Sept. 15. The place by rights belongs to Wayne county and certainly no more fitting selection could be made than that of Judge Brooke of the Wayne circuit court.

SUDDEN DEATH OF L. G. N. RANDOLPH

Prominent Northville Business Man
Many Years Ago.

Lucius G. N. Randolph, brother of Asa Randolph of this place, was stricken with apoplexy Friday morning while in Grand Rapids and died before medical aid could be procured.

The deceased was born in Northville seventy-five years ago and for many years was one of Northville's prominent business men. His wife, Miss Charlotte Williams, was also a native of this place, who with one daughter still survive.

The remains were taken to Detroit and the funeral held from his late home Monday.

Baptist Church Notes.

[By a Member.]

There will be services Sunday morning and evening. Rev. N. E. Musser of Walled Lake will occupy the pulpit.

There will be a business meeting of the ladies of the church at Miss Alice Hinman's next Wednesday afternoon at 2:30. A program will be given and a paper on the "Origin of the Flag" read by Mrs. Lucas, followed by others.

Methodist Church Notes.

[By the Pastor.]

Services of worship will be conducted at the usual hours Sunday morning and evening. The Knights of Pythias will attend the morning service.

The Epworth League is planning to serve refreshments and lunch July 4th.

The Children's Day exercises were fine and the committee in charge deserve a great deal of credit.

The ladies of the church whose birthdays occur in April, May and June, will hold their birthday party at the home of Mrs. W. H. Ambler next Tuesday afternoon. Everybody is invited. Ice cream and cake will be served for 10 cents a plate.

Plymouth Rebekah's Entertain.

The Plymouth Rebekah lodge, I. O. O. F., will give an ice cream social on Mr. Lyon's lawn at Plymouth, Saturday evening. Brethren and sisters of Northville and friends are invited.

FUNERAL OF JOHN M. AMBLER

AGED NORTHVILLE CITIZEN LAID TO REST SUNDAY.

wife and He Celebrated Their Golden
Wedding in 1904

John M. Ambler, whose death was briefly mentioned in last week's last edition of the Record, was born in Lyons, N. Y., Feb. 10, 1832, and came to Michigan about 1840 settling in Northville in 1854, where, with the exception of one and one-half years, he has spent his life.

November 21, 1904 he and his faithful wife celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

The deceased had been a faithful and active member of the Methodist church for many years and will be greatly missed by the members of the society as well as in the general community.

"Of John M. Ambler it can truly be said: 'A good man is gone'."

Deceased leaves beside the wife, one son, William E. of this place.

The funeral was held from the late home Sunday afternoon, and was largely attended. Rev. J. W. Turner officiated, assisted by Rev. J. E. Jacklin of Detroit, a former pastor here.

OPINIONS FROM THE STATE PRESS

Unless sentiment undergoes a radical change, on primary election day next September, Governor Warner will sweep the upper peninsula from end to end, coming down to the straits with a majority over his nearest competitor of 2 to 1.—Soo News

Hill "Knocks" Bradley.

Friends of Auditor General Bradley who are making a canvass for the nomination of governor, are not pleased with the attitude of Hon. Arthur Hill of Saginaw, upon whom they had been relying to assist in promoting the Bradley campaign. It is well known that at the Grand Rapids convention Mr. Hill was busily engaged in throwing cold water on the Bradley boom to many delegates. It is said, he expressed a serious doubt as to Bradley's ability to defeat Governor Warner. He is not personally unfriendly to Bradley, but his desire to defeat the governor is so great that he fears the outcome of the primary election in case other candidates are not induced to enter the race.—Lansing Journal.

Home Patronage vs. Chicago.

Probably all of the graduating class did not know it, but they could have secured a nicer lot of engraved commencement invitation cards from the Record office than they did by giving an order to a Chicago traveling agent, and besides the price would also have been less, right here at home. Of course Chicago people pay taxes here and help support Northville industries, but even so it is only fair in any event to allow Northville business houses, factories and mills, to show samples and at least make bids for any work used by Northville people, at any time or place.

HON. WILLIAM H. TAFT

LODGE EULOGIZES WORK OF REPUBLICAN PARTY

Senator Burrows Speaks.
Senator Burrows introduced as temporary chairman was met by wild applause. The delivery of his prepared speech occupied nearly one hour. He reviewed the history of the party and the country, showing the wonderful progress and development during the Republican administration of public affairs.

The work of the nine executive departments, the pension bureau and the army was touched upon in turn and the successful and efficient management pointed out.

On the subject of tariff revision, Senator Burrows' address the temporary organization was taken up and the numerous contests were turned over to the credentials committee.

SENATOR LODGE TAKES CHAIR.

Permanent Chairman Eulogizes Work of His Party.

When the permanent organization of the convention was effected, Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, who had been selected as permanent chairman of the gathering, took the chair and delivered his address, which was in part as follows:

Gentlemen of the Convention: I thank you most sincerely for the great honor you have done me in choosing me to preside over your deliberations. I have, indeed, heard of conventions where the honor of such a post as that now occupied by me, is dubious, and where, if excitement is present, pleasure is conspicuous by its absence. But to be the presiding officer of a Republican convention is ever a high distinction to which no man can be insensible. Gentlemen of the convention, again I thank you.

I shall not delay or detain you with many words. Your resolutions will set forth the principles of the party and declare the policies upon which we shall ask for the support of the people of the United States.

Achievements of the Party.

No political party in modern times can show such a record of achievement during the last 50 years as the Republican party. Upon that record we can stand and challenge all comers to the lists. The American people must choose next November between us and the Democratic party. With the Democratic party, and with that alone, must the comparison be made. We differ from that party in some important particulars. We both if it is true, have a past and a history, but we treat those possessions very differently. They wish to keep their past a profound secret. We seek by all means to publish ours to the world. If we refer to their history they charge us with calumny. We regard ours, truthful and undistorted, as our greatest glory. To the youth of the country they say "Judge us solely by our undiscovered future." We say "Read our record. Judge us by our past and our present and from these learn what we are—what we have been and what we mean to be. Recall the cries which have sounded from the lips of these two parties during the last half century. On the one side: Slavery, secession, repudiation of the public debt, fiat money, free trade, free silver, the overthrow of the courts and government ownership.

On the Republican side: Free soil, free men, the union, the payment of the debt, honest money, protection to American industry, the gold standard, the maintenance of law and order and of the courts and the government regulation of great corporations. The old shibboleths of the Democrats are today the epitaphs of policies which are dead and damned. They serve only to remind us of dangers escaped or to warn us of perils to be shunned. The battle cries of the Republicans have been the watchwords of great causes. They tell of victories won and triumphs tasted—they are embodied in the laws and mark the stepping stones by which the Republic has risen to ever greater heights of power and prosperity.

The great body of the American people, neither very rich nor very poor, the honest and thrifty, the hard-working, the men and women who earn and save, have no base envy—no fanatic hatred of wealth, whether individual or corporate, if it has been honestly gained and is wisely and generously employed with a sense of responsibility to the public. But this great body of our people, by habit and instinct alike wisely conservative these people, who are the bone and sinew of our country and upon whom its fortunes and its safety rest began to observe, with deep alarm, the recent manifestations of the new economic conditions. More and more they came to believe that these vast fortunes and these huge combinations of capital were formed and built up by tortuous and dishonest means and through a cynical disregard of the very laws which the mass of the people were compelled to obey. They began to fear that political power was being reft from their hands and put into the possession of the money holders, that their dearest rights were in danger, that their hopes of success and advancement were cut off by business systems which they could not understand but by which the individual was sacrificed and held down.

Call to the Government.
To those who looked beneath the surface an ominous unrest was apparent. The violent counsels of violent men who aimed at the destruction of property and the overthrow of law, began to be heard and harkened to. The great ordering loving, industrious masses of the American people turned away from these advocates of violence, but, at the same time, demanded that their government should give them, in lawful and reasonable ways, the protection to which they were entitled, against the dangers they justly apprehended.

The great duty of fulfilling these righteous demands, like all the great public services of the last half century, was imposed upon the Republican party and they have not flinched from the burden. Under the lead of the president, the Republican party has grappled with the new problems, born of the new conditions. The response of the people to the policies urged by the president, has been so emphatic that it has been made clear, once for all, that the government of the United States is never to be dominated by money and financial interests, and that the political party which permits itself to be ruled by them is thereby doomed to defeat.

Laws Must Be Enforced.

Nothing is more destructive to the respect for law—the chief bulwark of civilized society—than to place laws upon the statute book in order merely to still public clamor and satisfy the people but which it is never intended to enforce. The worst laws imaginable are those which are allowed to rust, unused, because, if enforced, they might interfere with vested abuses or curb the rich and powerful.

The president has enforced the laws as he found them on the statute book. For this performance of his sworn duty, he has been bitterly attacked. It was to be expected. Vested abuses and profitable wrongs cry out loudly when their entrenchments are carried, and some one is sure to be hurt when the bayonets of the law are pushed home in the great American electorate, money has few votes, but it can command many voices and cause many birds to sing. The result is that the president is the best abused and the most popular man in the United States today. He has been more abused than any president except Washington, Lincoln and Grant. He possesses the love and confidence of the American people to a degree never equaled except by Lincoln and Washington. Mar it not be said, in sober truth, that the fearless performance of a sworn duty is not without its exceeding great reward?

Laws That Have Benefited Country.

But the work has not ceased with the enforcement of existing laws. A Republican congress and a Republican president have placed new laws upon the statute books, designed to carry out the Republican policy of government regulation in a safe, reasonable and effective manner. The Elkins law, aimed at preferential rebates, which have been the curse of our transportation and our business, the railroad rate law, which made the supervision of railroads more effective, and the pure food law, which has been, in the highest degree, beneficial to the masses of our people, are all monuments of the policy and the labors of the Republican party.

The president, who has led his party and the people in this great work, retires, by his own determination, from his high office, on the fourth of March next. His refusal of a renomination, dictated by the loftiest motives and by a noble loyalty to American traditions, is final and irrevocable. That man is no friend to Theodore Roosevelt and does not cherish his name and fame, who now, from any motive, seeks to urge him as a candidate for the great office which he has finally declined. The president has refused what his countrymen would gladly have given him, he says what he means and means what he says, and his party and his country will respect his wishes as they honor his high character and great public service.

Party Pledged to Policies.

But although the president retires, he leaves his policies behind him. To those policies the Republican party stands pledged. We must carry out as we have begun, regardless alike of the radicals of reaction and the radicals of revolution. We must hold fast to that which is good while we make the advances which the times demand.

We ask for the confidence and support of the American people because we have met the problems of the day and have tried patiently to solve them. We believe in the maintenance of law and order and in the support of the courts in all their rights and dignity. We believe in equal rights for all men and are opposed to special privileges for any man, or any class of men, high or low, rich or poor. We, who established the gold standard, are pledged to the cause of sound finance. We stand for protection to American industry and American labor, and we will resist all the assaults of free trade under whatever name it comes disguised. We will see to the defense of the country. We mean to have a navy worthy of the American name. We seek peace and friendship with all the nations, but alliance with none. Yet, we have no intention of being a "hermit nation." The great services of the president to the world's peace will be continued by the party which he has led. We are a party fit to rule and govern—to legislate and administer, and not a fortuitous collection of atoms whose only form of thought or motion is to oppose. Above all, we are true to our traditions and to our past. True now, as we were in the days of Lincoln.

In this spirit we must prevail—by this sign we must conquer.

WEDNESDAY'S GREAT BATTLE

The Fight Over the Anti-Injunction Plank Was Fierce.

The great battle over the injunction plank which Taft and the administration want in the platform has been the fiercest that has confronted a Republican convention in many years and Thursday morning by a vote of 35 to 16, South Carolina nor recorded, the anti-injunction plank was agreed to by the full resolutions committee at 2 a. m.

All day Wednesday the sentiment for the nomination of Roosevelt was made glaringly manifest and the stampede gained more strength and momentum. The labor element to make parades to increase the shouting for the renomination of the President.

During the session on Wednesday and while Senator Lodge was speaking cheers for Roosevelt were kept up for forty-nine minutes, Mr. Lodge sitting down till the confusion ceased.

The Michigan delegation took the initiative against an anti-injunction plank being placed in the party platform.

By an unanimous vote Congressman Fordney, the Michigan member on resolutions committee, was instructed to notify the committee that the delegation was a unit in opposition to any anti-injunction plank being reported out. While this action did not bind the members of the delegation in the event that such a plank is reported, yet it has an important bearing on the result showing the temper of the delegation on the subject.

The caucus was held behind closed doors and the discussion lasted two hours.

It was said that if the presidential pressure succeeds in getting the plank in the platform the anti headed by Speaker Cannon and Senator Crane will carry the fight into the convention.

On the other hand, if the plank is turned down by the committee the understanding is that the matter will not be further pushed.

Wednesday night it was expected that the presidential nomination would be disposed of Thursday and most of the delegates favored a long session so as to get through not later than Friday.

Secretary Taft, it was said, would get 27 votes from Michigan on the first ballot. Fordney would give his friend Speaker Cannon a complimentary vote and if a second ballot was taken would swing to Taft.

The delegates did not discuss the vice presidential matter, but it was thought that a big majority would support Panbaker. The latter was steadily growing in strength.

MOTOR-CAR RUNS INTO RIVER.

Four Persons Drowned in Accident at New York.

New York, June 16—Four persons were drowned Monday night when an automobile carrying a pleasure party of six became unmanageable, shot at wild speed down West Fifty-sixth street and bounded from an open pier into the North river. The machine turned over in its plunge from the pier, holding the four victims fast in their seats. The dead are Adeline Gordon, aged 19 years, Mrs. Rose Coleman, aged 23 years, John Coleman, aged 27 years, and Virginia Knight, aged eight years.

John Bauer the chauffeur, was carried into the river with the machine but managed to free himself and swim to safety. John Nolan, one of the party, jumped from the runaway machine as it neared the end of the dock. Bauer was taken into custody by the police.

HULL AND PROUTY IN A TIE.

Iowa Contest Probably Must Be Settled in the Courts.

Des Moines, Ia., June 16—The Hull-Prouty contest in the Seventh Iowa district still hangs in the balance, with the prospects that the ultimate decision will have to be made in the courts. As a result of the recount by the board of county supervisors of the ballots cast in the recent primary election, the vote stands at a tie for the two candidates.

A sensation was sprung Monday when the supervisors of Dallas county were restrained from proceeding with the count of the ballots in that county. This action throws the battle into the courts.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

As the result of a recount in the seventh congressional district of Iowa, Hull and Prouty are tied and the result will have to be settled in the courts. J. W. Russell, a Hull man, has had the supervisors of Dallas county restrained from recounting the ballots, alleging that he doubts whether the previous handling had left the ballots intact.

To add to the gala appearance of Ossining, N. Y., during a farmers' convention, Wm. J. Physioc, a Rough Rider in the Spanish war, hoisted a confederate flag under which his father had fought in the civil war. Great indignation was aroused and Commander Sumner A. Smith, of the G. A. R., pulled down the emblem.

Cornelius P. Shea, at one time president of the International Teamsters' union and leader of the great stockyards strike in Chicago, was arrested in Chalestown, Mass., Monday, charged with fraud in horse trading. He pleaded not guilty. She has been "down and out" since he lost the Chicago strike and was deposited from his high office by the teamsters as a result.

COMMITTEEMEN.

Fordney on Resolutions, But Not in Fighting Mood.

Following are committee positions given members of the Michigan delegation to the Republican national convention:

National committeeman, John W. Blodgett, Grand Rapids.
Chairman of the delegation, Chase S. Osborn, Sault Ste. Marie.
Honorary vice president, James McNaughton, Calumet.
Member committee on resolutions, Congressman Joseph W. Fordney, Saginaw.

Committee on credentials, Judge Michael Brown, Big Rapids.
Committee on permanent organization, Judge Nelson Sharpe, West Branch.

Committee on rules and order of business, Grant Fellows, Hudson.
Committee to notify president, Geo. T. Coad, Detroit.

Committee to notify vice president, E. B. Foss, Bay City.

Fordney, formally, declared himself opposed to the anti-injunction plank. "I shall oppose it," he said, "and I think most of the Michigan delegation will be with me. I do not believe that the plank will be endorsed by the committee on resolutions. The subcommittee may report it to the full committee, but if it does I believe the full committee will reject it."

However, friends of the plank naturally do not agree with Mr. Fordney on the probable action of the committee. Even the opponents of the plank fear that the agitation has been too vigorous to allow its absolute elimination.

Bryan's Cinch.

William J. Bryan now claims his nomination is assured. At his office in Lincoln Saturday it was announced that 697 delegates to the Democratic convention at Denver were pledged to vote for Bryan for the nomination for president, this being 25 more than the necessary two-thirds majority.

NORTHVILLE, MICH., JUNE 19, 1908.

Anti-Warnerites are Puzzled.

It is becoming very apparent to everyone who gives the matter even ordinary attention that Governor Warner is walking away from his competitors in the race for the republican nomination. It would be more in keeping with the facts to say that he was running away from his competitors and that there really is not much of the element of a race about the affair, so thoroughly one-sided is it. Even the warm and earnest friends of the other candidates admit when induced to disclose their real opinion of the contest that the governor has the other candidates distanced. One result of this condition of affairs is a renewed effort on the part of the opponents of the governor to increase the field of candidates in the forlorn hope of so dividing the vote that no candidate will poll the necessary 40 per cent of the vote cast and the nomination be thus given into the hands of a delegate convention. The latest "favorite son" to be trotted out is Postmaster Homer Warren of Detroit. Homer is a true blue republican with a host of friends everywhere, and so the anti-Warnerites are eagerly touting him as a "harmony" candidate. Homer is about the "steenth" "favorite son" and "harmony" candidate that has been also mentioned during the past few months and that for the most part, too, by the same element of the party that put Dr. Bradley in the field. It must make the genial doctor and his real friends feel mighty good to observe these evidences of good faith (?) on the part of the men who started him in the race.

Is Atwood General Manager for Bradley?

It is reported that T. W. Atwood of Caro is to be the general manager of Dr. Bradley's campaign for Michigan and it must be admitted that under a convention system Atwood is about the shrewdest campaigner in the state. Atwood was in Detroit both last week and the week before. While there he held a long conference with the doctor's Wayne county manager and was out spoken to others in the greatness of his prophetic vision, by asserting: "We have Warner beat—Bradley is our candidate!" In a convention possibly Mr. Atwood might cut a big figure in nominating a governor but under a primary system Mr. Atwood for Bradley will not be the whole thing. The people will have something to say about it this time.

Chase Osborn on the Governor.

At a big mass meeting held in honor of Governor Warner at the "Soo" last week Hon. Chas. Osborn introduced Michigan's chief executive and in his remarks he said: "I believe the governor's mission is a worthy one and it is the duty of the voters to say whether he is right. 'I want to say for Governor Warner,' he continued, 'that the state never had a governor who has striven harder to meet the demands of the people. The only thing they can say against him is their argument against a third term. Other states when they had good governors have re-elected them for third terms. They did not swap horses in the middle of the stream.'

Blue-Ribbon Meet.

Detroit now has the most modern racing plant in the middle west. By spending $20,000 on improvements the Detroit Driving Club has made a model course of the state fair grounds where the Blue Ribbon meetings of the future will be held. As usual Detroit opens the grand circuit, and the racing this year will take place from July 27 to 31 inclusive.

The Merchants & Manufacturers' and Chamber of Commerce stakes, the most famous of the light harness turf, will be among the features. These events this year promise to be even more spirited contests than have the renewals in the past. In addition there are stakes for 2-11 trotters and 2-07 pacers, the first named of which has attracted the most sensational field of developed trotters that ever have scored for the word.

During the five afternoons there will be fifteen events which will be participated in by Geers, McCarthy, Macey, Snow, Benyon, Andrews, McHenry, De Ryder, Dean, McMahon, Murphy, Cox, Renick, McDonald and the most famous reinsmen on the continent. It will be a blue ribbon meeting in every sense of the word.

WHERE AUBURN LOCKS ABOUND.

Found in Great Numbers in North-eastern Part of Scotland.

Red hair is found in distinct excess north of the Grampians, and especially in the northeast of Scotland. A scientist who has made the question of pigmentation a special study, and has just been helped to conclude a color survey of the school children—over 50,000—of Scotland, announced this as one of his results.

In most European countries, he said, there is a distinct predominance of one type over the others. In north Germany and Sweden it is the blonde type; in Italy the brunette. No such predominance is found in Scotland. Dark hair and fair are present in equal proportions. The dominant color among Scottish children is brown, and it has to be shown how far brown is really a blend of fair and dark.

The proportion of red hair throughout the country is a little over 5 percent—high compared with the continent. One cannot overlook the reference of Tacitus to the red haired Caledonians. Some curious facts brought to light suggest that red hair is not entirely or strictly a racial trait. It may have some peculiar physiological if not pathological connection.

Sweet Girl Brought to Ask Time for Reconsideration.

"Since you can be no more than a sister to me," said the heartbroken young man, "will you not give me one kiss of farewell?"

She assented, albeit coldly.

And Mannerling drew the girl to his heart, he pressed his lips to hers with a passionate fervor born of his despair.

Afterward her head sank gently upon his shoulder.

"Mr. Mannerling," she breathed, "this is all so—all so new to me—so strangely different from my expectations—perhaps, if you would give me time—time to reconsider."

"Internal Revenue" Collections.

The term "internal revenue" has been restricted in its meaning to such revenues only as are collected under the internal revenue bureau connected with the treasury department, and does not include all revenues that are, properly speaking, from internal sources, that is, from sources other than duties levied at the frontier upon foreign commodities. Thus, moneys arising from the sale of public lands, from patent fees, or the revenues of the postal service, are not generally known as "internal revenues."

SERIAL STORY

SEFFY
A ROMANCE OF A PENNSYLVANIA FARM

By JOHN LUTHER LONG

Illustrations by Don Wilson

SYNOPSIS.

The crowning desire in the life of old Baumgartner, a Pennsylvania German, is to obtain possession of the beautiful meadow which lies just between Baumgartner's property and the railroad station. The property in question was inherited by Sarah Pressel, very pretty and athletic young girl, and belonged to her. Baumgartner, however, came to realize that his only hope of obtaining the property would be through the marriage of his son, Sephenjah, to Sarah Pressel. He appears utterly unscrupulous in his determination to win by such a means. Baumgartner gives Seffy some lessons in courtship. Baumgartner has caused himself to be appointed guardian of Seffy. Seffy is unable to resist the fascinating witcheries of Sally and he kisses her. She promises him, however, that she will never kiss any man but him. Sam Fritz, a drunken grocery clerk—old Baumgartner calls him a "mollasses tapper"—calls on Sally and, in such a contest as unworthy the hand of the girl Seffy goes to sleep and begins snoring. Sally leaves the room in a huff, saying "Good night, gentlemen." Seffy tells his father of his humiliation; of how Sam Fritz had poured to his bosom while he slept a most potent tonic, and how he had been "drunk" and "backward." Seffy and Sally meet at the "Poison Spring." She urges him to do something to redeem himself.

CHAPTER VII.—Continued.

"Seffy," she said a little later, "you know I got an awful temper?"

"Pappy says so," sighed Seffy.

"He's right, and you know! But, Seffy—you can help me to cure it—will you?"

Jor leaped back into her life and it was very sweet. And would he? He left her no doubt—not the least. She hovered about him bewitchingly. What the peering moon saw—I shall not tell. And when the watchful old man saw them coming out of the cotton woods together he went singing home and slept.

Oh, it was not entirely the pasture field now. He did not forget that But Seffy whom he adored—perhaps for the very gentleness and sweetness which constantly vanquished his nappiness—Seffy was going away from happiness which sought him—and for this father, and this time and place, where was little joy and much labor, it seemed wanton—it was wanton! Do you think it was a slight thing that kept Sephenjah P. Baumgartner, Senior, awake for five nights? For, let me tell you here, all this had become serious business to the old man—if we do treat it lightly. For he loved his son—adored Sally—and valued the pasture field. Therefore, in striving to bring them all into his keeping together, he was dealing with the things (little things to you) he loved most on earth. You, of course, have greater things. But you must, now and then, try to feel the imperiousness of small things in small lives.

I told you of their conversation as they came from the Poison Spring, the radiance of the moon in Seffy's wan face, the very joy of the stary heavens in that of the girl—I must tell you what their talk was of. And I beg you again to remember that these small things, which you despise, were all they had there and then. I have wondered whether the wanton sacrifice of a child's toy when he is three is not as dreadful as the sacrifice of his love when he is 20. Do you know?

"Seffy," said Sally, with his hand held so close under her beating heart that it registered each arid pulsation, "I am most to blame and you have forgiven me. But you are to blame, too, and I hope you won't forgive yourself too soon."

"For why?" queried the dull Seffy, with attention only for that wildly beating thing—tor, alas, that was his bane as hers was something else—forgetting future perils in present happiness.

"Then you'll fix it before you do!"

"Fix what?" asked the astonished Seffy.

"You let yourself be fooled. And that raises my temper more than anything else. I don't want no bean that every one laughs at. You got to have more backbone. When I am mean to you—I can't help it when my temper's up—and it's hard to get it down, mighty hard, when it's up—when I am mean to you—curse me!"

Seffy stared aghast. He would as soon have heaped maledictions upon the head of an archangel!

"Or hit me!"

Another stare—another conviction of the utter impossibility of such a thing!

"Yes! With a club! A flatiron! A potato masher! A poker!"

Seffy could laugh now. She was becoming absurd. Had he only known that she—poor little woman!—was trying to secure in advance their hapness in the turmoil which she knew would come!

"Yes! That is the way for such as me! The only way! And I'm used to it!"

Now Seffy was shocked!

"My father—or mother—or granny—or—she hesitated—"Sam—have, at one time or another, used all these things on me. I need the snaffle! You need the whip!"

And she laughed a little herself, and that was Seffy's excuse for joining her.

"You have no temper and I have a thousand times too much. You can see how that will work. And, Seffy, you got a bad reputation about here now, and I wouldn't like you to have it always. So you must brace up and do things to make people like you again. I want you to be able to face any one at the store—and do it in front of Sam."

The dull Seffy answered:

"But what can I do?"

The whole case seemed quite hopeless.

"I don't know. But there is something. Ask your pappy. Whatever it is, I will help you. You know it makes me foolish, too. And I hate that more than anything—being laughed at. If I was you, I'd lick Sam. But I know you won't. I expect he's too big for you. But there are other things."

And Seffy left her at her door that night, determined to do some great thing to set himself properly before the little community—once more. Because—once more—she had let him kiss her.

He and his father held a star-chamber session that night yet—Seffy waking him up for it.

"Take her home from church, begoshens!" adjudged his father.

Now this seems small advice upon a small matter. But it was very great advice upon a very great matter, as you will see.

VIII.

The White Signal Which Might as Well Have Been Black.

No sutor in German-Pennsylvania, though it be in Maryland, has entirely established his right to the maiden of his choice, either before the public or in her sight—or his own, until he has escorted her offhand from church on a Sunday night. And this he must accomplish at the church door, out of—sometimes—a savage rivalry challenging disaster.

For by this simple, primitive, heroic process the status of contestants for a maid's favor is fixed. He whose arm is taken can face his little world on Monday. He whose arm is rejected is, on Monday, a social exile. For the small world of the village is always there and this is the maiden's public election of him she chooses to honor, and her public rebuke to his too presumptuous rival. And, after that, she is a poor thing indeed who will be seen in public with the latter. For nothing is more sweet and cruel than love.

Seffy was not a publicly-acknowledged sutor. He could not be. It was impossible! There was that tombstone still up in the store. Sam had not yet arrived where he might put the awful question—there was a recognized period for this, and events had put it further and further off! Indeed, he shuddered when he thought of it—even then, after that understanding with Sally!—and contemplated getting his father to do it for him.

It had become known, in the wireless way such things spread in the country, that there had been a tentative making-up between Seffy and Sally. Nor did he appear with Sally! Nor might he call upon her! There must be some open defiance and victory which all could see and understand before these things might happen. The right hand of renewed fellowship would not be extended to Seffy until he had met and vanquished his rival in public. It was the primitive right of the strongest, proved physically here as in the Roman circus. Seffy had never shown himself a master of material prowess. He demurred a bit at such a plunge into the arena. But there was no other way.

"Why, Seffy," advised his father, "after that it's a dead open and shut game. You better do the biggest thing you can—and that's the end of it. If I had Sally on my side, I wouldn't keer who the hell was on the other! You take her home from church! Yes, right after their dam' noses! Then they'll run after you and send you presents. It ain't no guess-work for you! You know that Sally will be waiting for you wiser her arm all ready to take you. Gosh! I nofer had no such sure sng. I had to take my chances wiss you' mammy! And it was three other fellers wiss their arms out—and the right side yet! But your daddy was close up against the church door. And when she come out he didn't waste no time a-saying polite, 'Miss Hengler, ken-I haf the pleasure to see you home this evening?' I'd 'a' lost the game if I had waited to git off all that dictionary stuff! Yassir! For right opposite me was Bill Eisenkrout—Sam's uncle—and I knowed his arm'd shoot out like a patent corn-busker the minute you' mammy come.

"He was mighty quick, but mighty polite! I knowed he'd say that fool-shness about being pleased to see her home. Well, she come out and I chust grabbed. And while I was marching on like a conquering hero, informing her that it was a nice evening, I could hear Bill on the off side, gitting out that stuff 'bout pleasure and seeing her home. Nancy says, says she: 'Sank you, Mr. Eisenkrout, I'm suited,' and I laughed like hell! And, begoshens, Nancy laughed too! And that settled Bill for ever more! Oh, it's nossing like a laugh at the right time to kill a man off! Bill left town the next day. He had too. And he didn't show up tell the next fall!—Seffy, you got a sure sng. And, begoshens, you might just as well finish Sam up in the same job—put him out of town. Next Sunday you watch Sam. Keep right opposits him. Then git your arm in action about a second sooner. Left side, you know, her right! Sally 'll be on the lookout. Don't stop to say any fool sngs about the pleasure of seeing her home. Do it. And, when Sam gits his work in, laugh! Laugh like a bull!—And git Sally to laugh. I bet you two dollars and ten cents that Sam won't be in town the day!"

Like a campaign speech was the effect of this!

Seffy objected no longer. He said he would do it all! Perhaps this, too, got about. At all events, before the next Sunday, the latest created by their rivalry was more than equal to the voice of the Gospel. All the township would be at church!

Sam would not be dislodged. He invented the most diabolical schemes for sequestrating Sally to himself during the week which followed—into which guileless Sally often fell—and which seemed to proclaim her sutor to be himself.—Sam, you remember, had access to Sally, but Seffy had not. Seffy confessed that this looked sinister. True, he remembered all that had passed between them. But once before he had been in error.

So that Seffy, before the week's end, began once more—and more strongly—to deprecate the necessity for this public demonstration of his status. His father demanded it as a diplomatic necessity, inasmuch as Sally still retained Sam on a basis so much like his own as to make the situation extremely embarrassing to even Old Baumgartner, who had let it be known that he was the active conductor of his son. To vanquish Seffy was to vanquish him, and he, if not Seffy himself, screwed Seffy's courage to the sticking point. After this, Seffy weakened no more, but proclaimed his purpose. It was generally conceded that the one who failed now would have to leave town.

So here was retiring little Seffy forced by circumstances into a public rivalry which he detested, and, it may as well be confessed—feared it must, also, be explained that Sally's course in maintaining these two strings to her bow until the breaking moment was not only universally commended, but was the unswerving custom of the village for girls so fortunate as to have two strings. It was held likely to force one or the other to the point—and this was the purpose of rustic coquetry! And Sally's coquetry was not only acknowledged; it was tolerated, and I fear, encouraged. And, alas, it had been as sweet to her as vicious dissipation to men. But now it had made not only her own, but Seffy's position tremendously more difficult.

HIS FIRST LITERARY EFFORT.

Not Likely Among the "Six Best Sellers" of That Year.

A party of friends had gathered in the author's house to congratulate him on the success of his new book. They were extravagantly enthusiastic, as friends are apt to be on such occasions, and the young author was swelling visibly. The author's mother beamed. Finally one of the guests turned to her. "Tell me, did your son show symptoms of literary genius at an early age? I presume he did, and you've got some baby effusion treasured away?" "I have the first letter he ever wrote me," said the mother smiling, "and maybe you'd call it his first literary effort. He was on a visit to his grandmother's and he had never visited her without me before. But maybe you'd like to hear the letter."

The guests chorused "Yes" eagerly. The mother produced a crumpled envelope and paper and read slowly: "Dear Mama—The dogs is awful thick here. Your loving son."

Sweet Potatoes Came First.

When Falstaff, in "The Merry Wives of Windsor," exclaims, "Let the sky rain potatoes!" he does not refer to our homely vegetable, but to sweet potatoes (potatoes), a very different sort of thing, but common in England before Sir Walter Raleigh introduced the "Virginia potatoes" into County Cork, Ireland, about 1534.

Had Been There.

"Here's a firm advertiser for a general man, not afraid of good pay, one willing to start at ten and quit at three. You have all the qualifications to land that job." "All except the $10,000 to invest in the business."

FRENZIED MOTHER'S AWFUL DEED

THE BLOODY WORK OF A CRAZY MOTHER HORRIFIES CITY OF CADILLAC.

THE VICTIMS SHOT DEAD.

Chloroformed Her Husband and Six Children, Then Shot Them and Killed Herself.

A tragedy executed with a cool deliberation that adds horror to the deed was discovered in Cadillac Saturday morning and seven of the eight victims of a frenzied woman's bloody work were taken to the morgue. The story is both pathetic and horrifying. The dead are:

Daniel Cooper, 43 years old.
Mrs. Cooper, 45 years old
Harry, aged 14.
Irene, aged 11 years.
Samuel, aged 10.
Georgiana, aged 5.
Florence, aged 1½ years.

The son Fred, aged 17, was taken to a hospital and the doctors began a fight to save the lad's life.

Mrs. Daniel Cooper, wife of a retired farmer, administered chloroform to the seven sleeping members of the family, her six children and her husband, and then shot them through the head, one after another, finishing her awful work by sending a bullet through her own brain.

The discovery of the tragedy was made by Mrs. Cooper's mother, a Mrs. Heady, Saturday morning. All were dead but Fred. He was taken to the hospital in a seemingly dying condition. After reviving a little at about the noon hour he said: "Mother did it. At 5 o'clock the boy revived again and said, 'I heard a shot; it didn't quite wake me up.'"

This was the shot that killed little Harry, who slept with Fred at the time Fred made this statement. His pulse was so strong that Drs. C. E. and G. D. Miller were emboldened to say that he had the "fighting chance."

How remarkable is his vitality and how small his chance will be understood from a statement as to the nature of his wound. His mother held the deadly pistol so close to his right cheek that the flesh is powder scorched. The bullet passed upward through his head and emerged again in the back of the skull, carrying away a small piece of bone with it. If a boy can live with a hole through his brain this boy can live. He is big and strong for his years, a typical farm boy and it is said that he was in perfect health.

Mr. Cooper has been in poor health for several months and was unable to work and though the oldest boy, Fred, worked steadily and their farm yielded them a considerable income, they were not in the best of circumstances financially. This, coupled with the fact that Mrs. Cooper was very morbid and, over her family's misfortune, temporarily deranged her mind. When her baby, Florence, was born a year and a half ago Mrs. Cooper was out of her mind and she often blamed her first born as the cause of all her sorrows and many times had threatened to kill the child and herself and family.

Coroner Ralston feels certain that the deed had been planned by Mrs. Cooper for several weeks as she inquired not long ago as to whether or not her beneficiaries would secure the life insurance she carried if she should commit suicide.

A Summer Story.

The story goes that Theodore Roosevelt for president of the University of Michigan is being seriously discussed among some of the professors at Ann Arbor, men who are recognized as being among the leaders of the state college. In the first place, Mr. Roosevelt has the executive ability. A man who has run a nation ought to be able to run 10,000 students, for that is what the attendance would be under his regime it is claimed. While Mr. Roosevelt is a graduate of Harvard and has degrees in plenty and is planning a hunting trip in Africa, and is said to aspire to the presidency of Harvard, it might be that he would consider the matter, if after the many years of good and effective work done by the venerable and beloved President Angell, retirement should be decided on by this distinguished educator and diplomat. The story, whether it has or has not any foundation, is good reading for the summer days.

Detroit's Wind Storm.

A storm broke upon the Detroit river late Saturday afternoon that wrought destruction and in one instance death, among the hundreds of pleasure seekers, who heeded not the harbinger. The stream, lashed into fury by the slow-approaching squall, was the scene of scores of narrow escapes, overturned canoes and sailing yachts, dotting the surface at all points and, especially in the vicinity of Belle Isle, on the American side. In the city there was not so much excitement, although trees and sheds and barns were victims of the storm's fury. Providence took a kindly hand in the proceedings. There was only one fatality. A man was drowned in an effort to save the life of a woman who had been on the river with him in a canoe.

Henry McCarthy, who was sentenced to the Detroit house of correction and escaped from Deputy Sheriff Stauffer in Grand Rapids, on pretense of telephoning his wife, returned to Muskegon Sunday, beat his wife into unconsciousness and then made his appearance on the street. Police officers tried to arrest him but he ran and the officers shot seven times, three times at him. One shot pierced his left shoulder and the other broke his left arm. He has been taken to Hackley hospital and may die. He cursed the officers enroute to the hospital.

INVALID'S SAD PLIGHT.

After Inflammatory Rheumatism, Hair Came Out, Skin Peeled, and Bed Sores Developed—Only Cuticura Proved Successful.

"About four years ago I had a very severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism. My skin peeled, and the high fever played havoc with my hair, which came out in bunches. I also had three large bed sores on my back. I did not gain very rapidly, and my appetite was very poor. I tried many 'sure cures' but they were of little help, and until I tried Cuticura. Relieved I had had no real relief. Then my complexion cleared and soon I felt better. The bed sores went very soon after a few applications of Cuticura Ointment, and when I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment for my hair it began to regain its former glossy appearance. Mrs. Lavina J. Henderson, 138 Broad St., Stamford, Conn., March 6 and 13, 1907."

A Bare Possibility.

In his diary, which is incorporated in the "Life and Letters of Sir Richard Claverhouse Jebb," the great Greek scholar recorded a flash of his own wit which is of a most appealing variety.

At a dinner at Cambridge Sir Richard, then Mr. Jebb, took in a young woman, who got through the first course with little conversation. Suddenly she started him by saying, in the most unprovoked way, while she was still dining with apparent good appetite:

"Prof. Jebb, do you think women ever die of a broken heart?"

"Perhaps other organs may have something to do with it," he proffered in reply.—Youth's Companion.

New Chart Corrects Errors.

The great practical utility of the magnetic survey made in the Pacific ocean by the yacht Gallie since 1905 is shown by a new magnetic chart from which it appears that the charts previously used by navigators in the Pacific ocean were erroneous along some much-traversed routes to the extent of from three to five degrees, and the errors at times were systematic. Errors of this magnitude are of importance in practical navigation where the indications of the compass should be as accurate as possible.

The Missing Link.

What was said to be the "missing link" between man and ape was found by Dr. Dubois in 1895 on the banks of the Hengawan river, in central Java. These fossil remains consisted of a skull a thigh bone and two molar teeth, from which the scientists "constructed" an animal, not human, yet nearer to man than the ape. The "link" was named "Pithecanthropus Erectus."—New York American.

The Great Essential.

"TWO TOPERS."

A Teacher's Experience.

"My friends call me 'The Postum Preacher,'" writes a Minn. school teacher, "because I preach the gospel of Postum everywhere I go, and have been the means of liberating many 'coffee-pot slaves.'"

"I don't care what they call me so long as I can help others to see what they lose by sticking to coffee, and can show them the way to steady nerves; clear brain and general good health by using Postum."

"While a school girl I drank coffee and had fits of trembling and went through a siege of nervous prostration, which took me three years to rally from."

"Mother coaxed me to use Postum, but I thought coffee would give me strength. So things went, and when I married I found my husband and I were both coffee toppers, and I can sympathize with a drunkard who tries to leave off his cups."

"At last in sheer desperation I bought a package of Postum, followed directions about boiling it, served it with good cream, and asked my husband how he liked the coffee."

"We each drank three cups apiece, and what a satisfied feeling it left. Our conversion has lasted several years and will continue as long as we live, for it has made us new—nerves steady, appetites good, sleep sound and refreshing."

"There's a Reason." Name given Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich., Road "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Severe Reproach.
"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Torkins, "I had a dream about a race horse that won three times in succession."
"Great Scott," answered her husband, who has a touch of superstition; "what was its name, what did it look like?"
"I've done my best to remember, but I can't."
That's the way! There never was a woman who could be relied on to keep her head in business matters!

GAINED HER POINT

WIFE'S DEMONSTRATION OF HUSBAND'S NERVOUSNESS.

Reverend Gentleman Compelled to Admit That He Did Fidget with His Handkerchief While Conducting the Services.

"My dear, you must not fidget so with your handkerchief when you're in the pulpit," said the minister's wife, as she walked home by his side after the morning service.

"Fidget?" exclaimed the gentleman. "Why, I seldom use my handkerchief. What do you mean?"

"I don't mean using it," replied the wife, laughing. "I hope you will do that whenever it is necessary, but I mean pulling it out of one pocket and stuffing it into another, only to take it out and thrust it under the hymn book. It's a nervous habit and it's perfectly distracting to watch you."

The clergyman looked kindly incredulous as he said:

"I think you must be mistaken my dear. I might have changed it about a good deal this morning. I believe I did, but I'm certain that it isn't a habit. To prove it, I'll leave my handkerchief with you this evening." It was agreed.

At the close of the invocation the minister's hand was seen withdrawing itself stealthily from his coat-tail pocket, and after he had said: "Let us continue our worship by singing three stanzas—there was a long pause while he fumbled in the other coat-tail before he added—"of the three hundred and forty-third hymn." By keeping his mind on his hands, instead of on the hymn, he managed to get through the singing with only one slip; but there were several awkward pauses during the responsive reading, when the minister's wife watched his hands roam from breast pocket to pulpit cushion and back to his coat-tail again.

During the anthem the minister seemed less absent minded, but his wife was uneasy when it came time for the prayer and discreetly covered her eyes. Then he grew more and more distracted, and kept the audience waiting with hymn books in hand while he made another search for the missing bit of linen—before giving out the number of the hymn.

Finally it was time for the sermon. "I invite your attention this evening," he began, and then stopped. This time his hand was in his breast pocket. "You will find my text," he began again, "in the eighth chapter of Romans."

The little lady in the pew had gained her point but really it was ceasing to be a joke. He could never get through his sermon at this rate. Hastily she beckoned to an usher and sent him into the pulpit with the minister's handkerchief. He clutched it with ill-concealed relief, and shot a guilty glance at his smiling wife. Then he drew a long breath and as one set free, went on with his admirable sermon.—Youth's Companion.

Mystery of the Watermelon.

Here is a mystery, according to Mr. Bryan. He says: "I am not much of a farmer as some people claim, but I have observed the watermelon seed. It has the power of drawing from the ground and through itself 200,000 times its weight, and when you can tell me how it takes this material and out of its color forms an outside surface beyond the imitation of art, and then forms in it a white rind and within that again a side of red heart, thickly inlaid with black seeds, each one of which in turn is capable of drawing through itself 200,000 times its weight—when you can explain to me the mystery of a watermelon, you can ask me to explain the mystery of God."

Not Too Soon.

When a tactful host entertains a tactful guest there is sure to be rewarding conversation for the onlooker and listener. "What do you think of our place, on the whole?" asked Mr. Brown, as he stood with his old school friend on the piazza, waiting for the station carriage which was to bear the 24 hours' guest away.

"Rather a good little place," said Mr. Ray, impartially. "Perhaps a bit bare now, but no doubt time will change all that."

"Yes, indeed," said his host, with great heartiness and no hint of offense. "I hope before you come again the trees and shrubs will have made a good growth—then you'll see a change."—Youth's Companion.

Not Profane, Only Pertinent.

A party went out recently to Loch Raven on a little pleasure trip, to enjoy the beauties of the place, which some of the party had seen and of which all had heard. Arrived at their destination, one of the ladies looked at the beautiful scenery before her in surprise as her gaze rested on the placid water.

"Why, I thought it was a lake!" she exclaimed.

"No, my dear Mrs. Blank," responded another member, suavely, "no lake at all; only a dam river."—Baltimore American.

HOT ONIONS FOR PNEUMONIA.

Dread Disease Robbed of Its Terrors by Simple Remedy.

Owing to the prevalence of pneumonia and the great mortality which attends its ravages during the winter and spring, several boards of health in northern New Jersey have been taking measures to protect the citizens of their towns from the disease. The health board of Washington, N. J., has published a remedy which is said to be a sure cure for pneumonia, and other health boards are looking into the matter with a view of having the same thing published for the good of the general public. This is the publication as it has appeared in the papers of Washington:

"Take six or ten onions, according to size, and chop fine, put in a large spider over a hot fire, then add the same quantity of rye meal and vinegar enough to form a thick paste. In the meanwhile stir it thoroughly, letting it simmer five or ten minutes. Then put in a cotton bag large enough to cover the lungs and apply to chest as hot as patient can bear. In about ten minutes apply another, and thus continue by reheating the poultices, and in a few hours the patient will be out of danger. This simple remedy has never failed to cure this too-often fatal malady. Usually three or four applications will be sufficient, but continue always until the perspiration starts freely from the chest. This remedy was formulated many years ago by one of the best physicians New England has ever known, who never lost a patient by the disease, and won his renown by simple remedies."

"Dey wuzn't chickens, jedge; dey wuz ducks."

"That makes no difference."

SEES-DOWNFALL OF THE BELL.

Metal Tubes Will Supercede It, According to Clergyman

"It will not be many years," says a St. Louis clergyman, "before bells for church use will be almost unknown. Even now, when a church desires something to answer the purpose of the bell, the trustees do not buy bells, but tubes some made of bell metal, other of a composite of several metals. The metal tubes are hung in steeples and struck with a hammer. They give a clear, full note—just like a bell, only more resonant. They never crack with cold or heat, and what is a still greater recommendation, never get out of tune. There is a chime in the city with one or two bells so horribly out of tune that they set people's teeth on edge. Such discord in a chime of metal tubes would be unknown and besides the tone is so much more agreeable than that of the bell that any one who ever hears the bell can not fail to prefer the tube. It sounds like a great organ pipe, so that when one of these chimes is played the impression is that of a huge organ far up in the sky."

Friday and the Soothsayer.

Two women who wished to make an appointment with a fortune teller who was pronounced "just splendid" by everybody who had patronized her, were advised by the seer to come on Friday.

"That is, if you are not superstitious about Friday," she said. "Most people are." They regard Friday as such an unlucky day that they won't even have their fortune told them for fear they will hear something unlucky. That is why I advise you to come on that day. I will have plenty of time, and won't have to put your cases through with such a rush."

TYPE THAT HAS PASSED AWAY.

Country Schoolmaster of the Early Days of America.

Appropos of the country schoolmaster of the early days of America, an old manuscript in the New Jersey Historical society contains the following characteristic anecdote:

"A traveling person coming into a country neighborhood where was a vacant schoolhouse offered himself as a teacher. The neighbors convened to examine into his abilities. He was asked what branches he could teach. 'Almost any,' was the answer. He could instruct children how to read without first learning to spell, to write without first making marks, and it was indifferent to him in what rule they first commenced arithmetic. 'Are you acquainted with mathematics, sir?' was the next question. Supposing some great literary character was meant, the fellow assumed an air of great importance and quickly replied: 'Matthew Mattocks, sir? No, sir, I am not acquainted with Matthew, but I know his brother, Tom, very well!'"

A Little Vague.

"Is it far from here to the next town?" asked a tourist of a man he met on a rural road.

"Well, it ain't so very fer, nor it ain't so very nigh, an' yit it ain't as nigh as might be if it wa'n't so fer as it is. Still, it'd be ferther if it wa'n't so nigh, so I reckon one might say that it is betwixt an' between fer an' nigh."—Lippincott's.

Do You Love This Old Town?

If you do, of course you want to see the town grow. You want to see the storekeepers prosper, and the banks bulge with deposits, and the townspeople wearing glad clothes, and the farmers falling over each other to come in and buy new hay rakes and patent plows. Of course you do. Because, likewise of course, when things are that way you get your share of the general prosperity.

But what are you doing to contribute to the general prosperity? Are you patronizing home industries in preference to outside industries? Do you buy your clothes and groceries and garden tools and so forth here at home?

Well, you admit, you do send away for a good many things you happen to see advertised. Aha! And are they advertised in this paper? No, indeed—in the mail order journals and catalogues. Quite true. And you would just as soon buy them here if they were advertised by the local merchants, wouldn't you? Why, yes.

Well, now, there's a neat hint to some of our local storekeepers and dealers who perhaps haven't discovered why they are losing a lot of home trade which they ought to keep.

It's a wise business man that knows his own opportunities.
