4th. JULY CELEBRAT'N

NORTHVILLE TO DO IT UP BROWN
THIS YEAR

Horse Races, Ball Games and Athletic Sports Galore.

No one should forget Northville's big 4th July celebration this year. The new fast race course will be formally opened with some fast driving and to keep the crowd busy there will be on the inside ring a series of ball games in operation. Then there will be the usual Athletic sports including—we presume—the traditional greased pole and the greased pig.

THE WATER WORKS RESERVOIR IS LOW

MIGHT BE SOME DANGER IN CASE
OF A FIRE

Possibly May be a Leak Some Place.

For some reason the water works reservoir is unusually low for this time of the year and in case of a big fire Northville would be without proper fire protection in short order. Possibly there is a leak some where or the water may be running to waste at some point. Not much is being used on the lawns these days any how. If it is low at the present time there is danger of it being still worse in August.

The matter is well worth looking into by the village council

Conklin—Beal.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Nash, formerly of Northville, Mich., now of Los Angeles, Cal., was the scene of a very pretty wedding, when Mrs. Nina C. Beal and Mr. Phil B. Conklin were united in marriage by Rev. Joseph Smale of the First New Testament church, which took place Thursday evening, June 18, in the presence of forty guests.

The house was tastefully decorated with pepper blossoms, asparagus fern, carnations and sweet peas.

The bride wore a beautiful princess gown of cream lace and carried a bouquet of cream carnations.

On their return from a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Conklin will make their home at the "Palmyra," 831 S. Flower St., Los Angeles, Cal.

The bride is a sister of Miss Ida and Roy Clark of this place and was a former employe of this office. She is well known in Northville and her many friends wish her every happiness.

Green—Crocker.

Mrs. Nellie Leadbeater-Crocker of Detroit and Mr. Lyman Green of Battle Creek were married Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oglesby in Detroit. They will reside in Battle Creek.

Lloyd—Turner.

Mr. Seymour Lloyd of Monroe and Miss Dot Turner of Farmington were married at the Methodist parsonage in this place Wednesday afternoon by Rev. J. W. Turner.

Rattenbury's Horse Won.

Geo. Rattenbury's bay horse, Oberon, was among the winners at the Ionia race meeting this week.

ONLY LITTLE OVER NINE WEEKS
YET.

Primary Election Day Comes on
First Day of September.

Lansing, June 25.—With but little more than nine weeks left of the primary campaign, the gubernatorial contest for the republican nomination is entering upon its last stages. The conditions under which it reaches the last lap in the race are exceedingly gratifying to the managers of the Warner campaign. After searching the entire state with a fine-tooth comb, the Hill-Atwood Boxer machine enters the last two months of the campaign with no candidate, excepting Doctor Bradley, yet in the field and they do not consider him sufficiently strong to defeat Warner. With the various elements opposed to Warner's renomination, all pulling in different directions, and with no effective organization covering even a fraction of the state, there remains little in the situation to give them aid and comfort in their "anything-to-beat-Warner" campaign.

On the other hand, every day brings accessions of strength to the Warner campaign. Many republicans widely scattered portions of the state have decided within the past thirty days to throw the weight of their influence toward the renomination of the present chief executive. The truth is gradually being forced home that the cry of "third term" is not the bugaboo with the people it was expected to be. It is gradually seeping into the intellects of the old time politicians that under the direct nomination practice the length of the term of service of the public official is secondary in importance with the character of service rendered. This tendency bids fair to break not one but two precedents. Under the old convention system it was customary to grant an official, almost regardless of his achievements, a second term, and having given him a second term, under the old system, that was the end of the chapter.

Under the new system it is clear that the precedent of a second term will fall when the official has rendered poor service and the precedent of no more than two terms will likewise fall when the service has been such as to commend its continuance. All of which makes far better public service.

The governor's recent tour of the upper peninsula, where he was everywhere greeted by immense audiences, who were enthusiastic in their approval of the stand he had taken in state affairs, where his progress was marked by public holidays, and where he left behind him a friendly and favorable sentiment, constitutes one of the features of the campaign to date. The tour through the lower peninsula, now in progress, is being marked by like demonstrations of popular approval. Wherever the governor and his party go, they find the people in a receptive mood, fully alive to the importance of the issues involved in the campaign, and not slow to indicate their intention to support the governor in his fight to secure the enactment of his program into law.

OPINIONS FROM THE STATE PRESS

Decidedly in the Lead.

Governor Warner is making an energetic canvass through the state and it is a manly one. He stands for those principles of primary reform and other matters relative to taxation of corporate interests upon an honest basis compared with other property that are popular with the masses, and it is now conceded by many who have entertained notions against a third-term that the governor is decidedly in the lead at this time, and is making excellent headway.—National Michigan Farmer.

They Are on the Watch.

It will be more fun than a circus with the monkeys all loose and the band playing seventeen different tunes at once, watching the antics of the local politicians when the Warner bandwagon comes to town. Some of them will get right up in the front seat and snuggle up to the governor like a bride when the bridegroom cometh, some will hang on to the rear end of the couplag pole, and still more will stand around and look wise and say nothing. The governor has got them all guessing up in this neck o' woods.—Uby Courier.

Northvillians on Fishing Expedition.

A bunch of Northville "sportsmen" started in a big back wagon for Union Lake on a big fishing expedition a few days ago but there was too big a load on for the horses and they (the horses) laid down at Walled Lake and refused to go farther during the hot spell. The camp was pitched along the Walled banks and after a two days' camp the fellows returned home without even a big story about those that got away. Here's a part of the bunch—all we could remember about. Rabbitt, Harmon, Johnson, Gilbert, Olde, Northrop, Ambler, Murdock, Henry, Schrader, Simmons.

P. S.—Mr. Olde confessed that he really did catch a five pound bass.

Salem Celebrates the 4th.

Salem will also celebrate the 4th. this year. Hon. Colon C. Lilly, deputy state dairy and food inspector, and the best posted dairyman in the state, will deliver the address, taking "The New Constitution" for his subject. Mr. Lilly is not only up in the dairy business but he was a member of the Con. Con. and therefore is well posted on that subject also.

Notice.

We the undersigned barbers will close our shops promptly at noon on July 4, but for the accommodation of our patrons we will keep open until 11 o'clock on Friday night, July 3.

WANTS SANE 4th. JULY

PRESIDENT DUBUAR ISSUES A PROCLAMATION

Asks Boys and Merchants to Use
Precaution.

In the following proclamation, Village President Dubuar calls attention to "The Day We Celebrate" and on which some of "us boys"—and some times "us men"—give up a foot, a hand, a finger, an eye, or nose, and not infrequently a life, in the cause of PATRIOTISM—sometimes mistaken for noise.

To the Citizens of Northville:

Last year 3111 the 4th. seven deaths in the state were reported, due to the use of Fire Crackers, Cannon and the like (to say nothing of the loss of fingers and eyes.

"I wish every boy to have a good time but I believe that this can be brought about in other ways than by the use of explosives. This use in certain parts of the village is prohibited, and I urge upon the parents to discourage their use, as much as possible in other parts.

"I also wish to call attention of the merchants who deal in these goods to the State law restricting the sale, which reads as follows:

SEC 4. That no person shall sell, give, or furnish to any child under the age of thirteen years, any cartridge of any form or material, or any pistol, gun, or other mechanical contrivance especially arranged or designed for the explosion of the same. "I hope this will be complied with."

OSTEOPATHY

Is a method of treating diseased conditions of the human body by the removal of the causes of those conditions. The underlying idea is this: If each bone, muscle, tendon, etc., is in its proper place, it will not interfere with nerves, vessels, or organs; and if these are not interfered with, there will be no trouble. Osteopathic treatment is effective in stomach, intestinal, and other digestive disorders; chronic constipation; nervous disturbances, etc. For further information and Osteopathic reading matter, apply to who is at the Park House, Northville, every Tuesday and Friday evening from 5:30 to 9:30.

Ladies treated at their own homes. No charge for consultation. Chronic cases a specialty.

CONVENTION NOTES.

Secretary of War William H. Taft was nominated for the presidency on the first ballot in the Republican convention at Chicago, receiving 702 votes. Then, amid scenes of wild enthusiasm, he was made the unanimous choice of the convention. The majority report of the platform committee was adopted after a debate. For second place on the ticket Sherman of New York moved prominently to the fore.

Representative James S. Sherman was nominated for vice president on the first ballot by the Republican national convention. The convention then adjourned and a sub-committee of the national committee went to Cincinnati to consult Mr. Taft as to his choice for national chairman.

For 45 minutes the delegates and spectators in the Republican national convention wildly cheered for President Roosevelt. The vast throng in the Coliseum was crazy with enthusiasm and some people feared that the threatened Roosevelt stampede was about to take place. The demonstration was started by Senator Lodge's speech as permanent chairman. The credentials committee reported, seating all the Taft delegates, and the convention voted down the proposition to reduce the representation of southern states in future conventions.

PERSONAL.

William J. Barnett, charged with embezzling securities from the Cotton estate, was convicted at San Francisco.

John Mitchell, former president of the Miners Union, refused to run for governor of Illinois or vice-president.

James S. Sherman, Republican nominee for vice president, was confined to his room in Cleveland for two days by a bilious attack.

President Roosevelt and his family went to Sagamore Hill for the summer vacation.

Gov. Hanley of Indiana was prosecuted by heat while addressing the Chautauqua at Ottawa, Kan.

Congressman John Sharp Williams of Mississippi resigned the minority leadership of the house of representatives, to take effect December 1 next, saying it was for the good of the Democratic party.

United States Commissioner of Penitentiaries Vespasian Warner suffered a legal defeat in the litigation growing out of the administration of his father's estate when the Illinois supreme court handed down a decision sustaining the contentions of his stepmother Mrs. Warner will receive about $500,000 or one fourth of the estate.

E. T. Bethel, convicted of spreading sedition in Korea, was sentenced to three weeks' imprisonment.

George Metzger, one of the wealthiest men of Toledo and president of the failed Broadway bank, was indicted by the grand jury on counts charging him with embezzlement and misapplication of funds.

GENERAL NEWS.

GROVER CLEVELAND DEAD

His Serious Illness Kept Quiet Till The End Came—President Roosevelt Will Attend The Funeral.

Grover Cleveland died at his home in Princeton, N. J., Wednesday morning after several months' illness with stomach trouble. Two months ago his illness was reported critical. He was then at Lakewood, N. J., and was later that he was not as ill as reported and during the last three weeks the public believed he was recovering.

Grover Cleveland was the only living ex-president of the United States and the only man who ever returned to the White House after once leaving it. His physicians gave out his statement:

Mr. Cleveland for many years had suffered from repeated attacks of gas trouble intestinal origin. Also he had long standing organic disease of the heart and kidneys. Heart failure complicated with pulmonary thrombosis and edema were the immediate cause of his death.

At 2 p. m. Wednesday this bulletin was issued from the Cleveland home.

The funeral of former President Cleveland will be held Friday, June 26, at "Westland," Mr. Cleveland's residence on Bayard Lane, Princeton, and will be strictly private.

WIRELETS.

Charles Bradley, 50, laborer, was drowned while fishing just below the dam of the Shawwassee Light & Power Co. at Shawwassee town Thursday afternoon. His decoy minnow caught in some weeds and was out to loosen it, he stepped into a deep hole and was drowned.

Mrs. Mary Farmer who forged deeds to property owned by Mrs. Sarah Brennan near Watertown, N. Y., last fall, and then killed Mrs. Brennan with a hatchet and stuffed her body in a trunk, has been sentenced to be electrocuted August 2 in Auburn prison. She is 29 years old. Her victim was 58.

Receipts for the Lansing branches of the M. U. R. have been 27 per cent higher in June, 1908, than for the same period last year.

Walking to his home in Hammond, Ind., from White Cloud, Lewis McKinley, aged 70, was prostrated by the heat after covering 30 miles in one day.

The executive board of the Modern Maccabees put the work of general organizer under Great Lieut. Commander C. K. Thomas, of Hastings, giving him an addition of $2,500 annually to his salary. J. B. McIlwain, former great counselor, was retained to discharge legal matters now pending.

It is said the former president will be buried in Princeton cemetery in the family plot, where Ruth, one of the Cleveland children, was buried a few years ago.

As soon as he heard the news President Roosevelt sent a message of condolences to Mrs. Cleveland and expressed his intention of attending the funeral if it is held on another day than Saturday, when he has an important conference with Secretary Taft and Gen. Luke Wright scheduled.

Mrs. Cleveland was prostrated and only a few of the sympathetic neighbors were able to see her Wednesday. Among the telegrams sent by Mrs. Cleveland to relatives and friends was one to President Roosevelt and one to Secretary Taft.

The death of Mr. Cleveland was a terrible shock to the people of Princeton, who were proud of their fellow citizen. They have always had a warm spot in their hearts for both the ex-president and Mrs. Cleveland because they selected Princeton as their home after they left the White House. His death now in the least expected, was not believed at first.

Doctors found no poison in the stomach of Oscar Peterson, whose body was found in a shallow grave near the house of Mrs. Charles Barrett but Mrs. Barrett will be held, and authorities desiring to know what caused his death.

Judge Miner has dismissed the application of Leonard Crouse and Geo. Smithdall, of Morris, for a permanent injunction to prevent the village from causing its underground drain to empty into a surface drain that traverses their farms.

"I certainly need that horse," declared Frank Dick when he told the Battle Creek police his wife and daughter had run away with his horse and buggy. When the police recovered the outfit he said, "Don't bother to hunt for my wife, and the police haven't."

Fred Cooper, who is the only survivor of the Cadillac family slain a week ago, was operated upon Saturday. The pressure on the brain was removed and a drainage tube placed in the head. The doctors said after the operation that he has equal chances for life. He does not yet know what caused his injury or that all the members of his family are dead, and thinks he was the victim of an accident.

Sixty of the 75 girls in the graduating class of the Saginaw high school will wear dresses that they themselves made. All the work was done in the sewing rooms of the manual training department of the schools.

THE STATE IN GENERAL

WOMAN'S FEARFUL EXPERIENCE WITH A FRIGHTENED HORSE.

BECOMES HUMAN TORCH

Incidents and Happenings in Various Parts of the State of Major and Minor Importance.

Entangled at the end of a 50-foot rope with which a spirited horse had been tethered, Mrs. John Rogers was dragged at breakneck speed around their farm in Merritt township, until her right leg was broken in two places and the flesh torn from her body, hands and face so that the bones were disclosed. The horse became frightened when she attempted to take him to the barn, and her left foot caught in the rope. Neighbors saw the horse acting strangely in the barnyard and hurried to determine the cause. The horse became frightened then at the unconscious form at the end of the rope and ran around the barn, several times, dragging the body over small piles of lumber, and farming machinery. Mrs. Rogers regained consciousness Friday night, but her condition is critical.

A Frightful Accident.

Like a human torch, his clothing and face covered with flames, Frank L. Shutter, a prominent lodge man, ex-alderman and a candidate for sheriff, ran from a Traverse City store and tried to bury himself in the sand in the road, while bystanders threw sand and their clothes over him, finally extinguishing the flames, but not until he had been frightfully burned. He was unrecognizable when picked up. He had been installing a gasoline lighting plant when the tank exploded, throwing the fiery fluid over him. He was conscious all the time and realizing that to inhale the flames would be fatal, he held his breath, despite the horrible pain until the fire was out. The store was almost destroyed by the explosion.

Granted Union An Injunction.

Members of Metal Polishers Buffers & Platers union, No. 1 of Detroit, reversed the usual order of things Monday morning when they secured a temporary injunction from Judge Hosmer, of the circuit court, restraining the police department from interfering with them on the street in their solicitation of men to become members of their organization. The injunction applies to the vicinity about the Art Store Co., where the polishers, buffers and platers are on strike.

The strikers set up in their petition for injunction that Commissioner Smith, Capt. Krug and patrolmen prevent them from soliciting any person to become a member of the organization and that unless this interference on the part of the police is restrained by injunction that the ruin of the union is threatened. They declare that the police are attempting to destroy the effect of the union.

Judge Hosmer in granting the injunction said that the union was not to understand that he was authorizing any picketing contrary to law, but that he was merely giving the union men a chance to peacefully attempt to make non union men members of the union.

Died on the Train.

James W. Miliken, a former member of the Michigan senate and prominent business man of Traverse City, Mich., died of apoplexy on a New York Central train near Poughkeepsie, while on his way to New York. His body was not removed from a Pullman berth until the train reached the Grand Central station and few of the passengers knew of his death.

Mr. Miliken came east with his wife and a young woman, said to be his son's fiancée, to attend the Yale commencement this week, when James W. Miliken Jr. will graduate. The young man was waiting at the station in New York and first learned of his father's death when the train arrived. Mr. Miliken was about 60 years old and had lived in Traverse City for about 10 years.

A Fateo Family.

Fate seems to have been peculiar toward the Morrison family of Flint. About two years ago a sister was murdered in Toledo. Last fall a brother, while riding on a yard engine in Toledo on the thirteenth day of the month, was instantly killed while the engine was crossing a trestle which gave way. Now another brother, Edward, who was tattooed with 13 stars on his left arm was found adrift in a shell boat off the rocks of Lake Superior.

MICHIGAN BREVITIES.

"Please come and help us," is the burden of Cheboygan's cry to the game wardens. It is claimed the game laws are being violated nightly in Burt and Mullet lakes, and that a colony of "caveers" was blown up with dynamite recently.

John Sculke aged 19, was found dead on the Pere Marquette tracks near Birch Run. He had been drinking heavily, and it is thought he went to "sleep" on the track on his way home. Both legs were severed and it is supposed he bled to death.

The township of Kalamazoo has offered to the city a park containing 10 acres at the border of the town. It is named for former Michigan Supreme Judge Sherwood.

Paul Johnson, Detroit sentenced June 17, 1894, for life for murder; Fred Clark, Genesee county, September, 1904, burglary, 15 years; Joseph Blunt, Calhoun county, May 4, 1908, life, murder, and Archie Woodin, October 28, 1902, Isabella county, life, murder, Jackson prisoners have been taken to an asylum for the criminal insane. The latter is the convict who killed Keefer Ferris recently.

MICHIGAN ITEMS.

Prosecutor Powers, of Grand Rapids, put the lid on baseball pools and betting.

Mrs. Samuel Mapes held a revolver to her head and pulled the trigger in an attempt at suicide. She may recover.

A customer accidentally locked in a Saginaw saloon coolly tapped the till and made his escape through the back door.

Howard McManamy, laborer, 42, was stricken with the heat and died in the patrol wagon while being taken to the police station.

George S. Gillespie, aged 18, son of the chief dispatcher of the Grand Trunk, has passed the final examination for admission to the naval academy.

Only four graduated this year from the American Medical Missionary college at Battle Creek, but each had an average of 100 per cent in the examinations.

Charles R. Sanderson is suing the D. U. R. and Detroit, Jackson & Chicago railway for $10,000 damages for hurts received in the Denton wreck, April 23.

Farmers in the last two weeks have been spying on Kalamazoo speeding autoists from the fence corners and by means of stop watches have information from which they will lay 200 complaints for speeding.

"Great flocks of English" sparrows have forsaken the cities for the sprouting corn fields of the farmers and are destroying the tender shoots. Gunning for them is one of the chief duties of the farmer just now.

Frank Lepisto, while "trimming ground" in the Dunn mine at Iron Mountain, fell 80 feet from the shelf he was working on, turned a complete somersault and landed on his feet. His ankle was slightly hurt.

Thomas Wilkinson, well known about the state on account of his extraordinarily long whiskers, died at his home in Adrian. Mr. Wilkinson's whiskers measured about 16 feet, and in early life he traveled, exhibiting them.

Brig Gen. Albert Hartsuff, a veteran army man who has made his home in Detroit since his retirement from active service in 1900, dropped dead Monday morning, just as he entered the home of his daughter Mrs. L. S. Trowbridge.

Retta M. Sorenson, a talented vocal list, is suing Saginaw Valley Traction Co. for $10,000 damages for injury to her voice. She says a car was started before she was off, dragging her some distance and injuring her so she has been unable to sing.

After three attempts to reach the Detroit house of correction, Shorty McCarthy, of Muskegon, who was shot two weeks ago, was placed in that institution. He twice escaped and only after being shot consented to accompany the officers to serve his sentence.

The captain heard the men trying to effect an entrance to his house and chased them down the street, firing three shots, none of which took effect.

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL TICKET

For President.

For Vice-President.

WILLIAM H. TAFT

JAMES S. SHERMAN

TAFT AS PRESIDENT; SHERMAN FOR MATE, IS REPUBLICAN SLATE

Convention at Chicago Selects National Ticket and Adjourns—Wild Enthusiasm on Nomination of Ohioan—Demonstration for Theodore Roosevelt

Chicago. — Taft and Sherman. This is the ticket of the Republican party flung to the breeze Friday as the Republican national convention concluded with the nomination of James S. Sherman of New York for vice-president amid a final roar of tumultuous demonstration.

Scene of Wild Enthusiasm.

The picture within the walls of the vast amphitheater as the presidential candidate was named Thursday was one truly gradiose in its magnitude. In front, to the right and left, below and above, the billowing sea of humanity, restless after hours of waiting and stirred from one emotion to another, was in a fever of expectancy for the culminating vote. The favorite sons of other states had been named, save Knox and La Follette, and now on the roll call came Ohio.

As the Buckeye state was reached, the tall, gaunt form of Theodore E. Burton, with studentlike face and severe black clerical garb, advanced to the platform to nominate Ohio's candidate. He spoke fervently, with the ringing voice of an evangelist, which went ringing through the great building. The close of his speech of nomination was the signal for loosing the long pent-up feeling of the Taft legions. Instantly the Ohio delegates were on their feet, other Taft states following, while the convention hosts, in gallery and on floor, broke into mad demonstration. For 10, 15, 20 minutes, this uproar continued. At last the tired voices died down to a hoarse shout, and subsided.

Seconded by Knight.

This lull now gave the opportunity for the speech seconding Taft's nomination, by George H. Knight of California, his big, round face beaming forth on the sympathetic multitude, and his splendid baritone voice welling forth like the tones of a great church organ. California's tribute to Taft was brief and fervid. Now there was another lull in the Taft movement, while the remaining candidates were placed in nomination.

It was late in the afternoon before the convention, now literally sweltering with the intense heat and weary after nearly seven hours of continuous session, reached the end of the flood of eloquence and the decks were at last cleared for the culminating act.

Demonstration for La Follette.

But, no; just as the last swell of oratory, the seconding speech for La Follette, had died away, like a cyclone from a clear sky burst a La Follette demonstration which swept the convention from its very bearings. It was the same deafening wave of sound that had greeted Roosevelt Wednesday and Taft a little while before, intense and maddening and with the vital ring of genuine enthusiasm. It seemed as though Wisconsin had suddenly peopled every foot of the galleries. The delegates sat calm and waiting, except the frantic Wisconsin, but the convention for the time being was in the possession of the galleries.

Now a singular transformation occurred—gradually the whirlwind veered from La Follette to Roosevelt.

Amid this pandemonium, and with the galleries in full control, Chairman Lodge decided upon heroic action in order again to make the convention master of its affairs. He ordered the roll call of states to begin for the vote on president. Such a call, under such circumstances of intense confusion, has probably never before occurred in the history of national conventions. The secretary was powerless to make his call of the states heard above the deafening clamor. Seizing a megaphone he shouted the roll of states—Alabama, Arkansas—but his voice was swallowed up in the mad uproar. Gradually, however, the curiosity of the multitude conquered their enthusiasm, and they lapsed into silence to hear the result of the roll call.

A hush of expectancy hung over the assembly as the call proceeded. Hasty summaries showed that Taft was far in advance. When New York was reached the Taft column totaled 427. Ohio carried the Taft total to 511, or 20 more than enough to nominate. Still the call went on until the final result was announced by Chairman Lodge.

"For Theodore Roosevelt, 3 votes; for Joseph B. Foraker of Ohio 16 votes, for Charles W. Fairbanks of Indiana, 40 votes, for Joseph Cannon of Illinois, 61 votes, for Robert La Follette of Wisconsin, 25 votes, for Charles E. Hughes of New York, 63 votes, for Philander C. Knox of Pennsylvania, 68 votes, and William H. Taft of Ohio, 702 votes.

A great shout went up as Lodge concluded his announcement, and with one accord the cohorts of Cannon and Knox and Hughes and the other heroes, joined in a common tribute for the candidate of the party.

Sherman for Second Place.

The nomination for the vice-presidency was not made until Friday. When the convention adjourned for the day Thursday the situation regarding second place on the ticket was decidedly unsettled, but before the delegates met Friday an arrangement had been perfected for the Taft delegates to support Representative James S. Sherman of New York as the running mate of the secretary of war.

Three names were placed in nomination when the chairman announced that nominations were in order. Sherman was named as New York's choice by Tim Woodruff, former lieutenant governor of the state, Gov. Curtis Guild of Massachusetts was placed in nomination by Senator Lodge, and Ex-Gov. Franklin Murphy of New Jersey was named by Thomas N. McCarter. Several brief seconding speeches were made for each candidate.

When the roll call was begun it was soon seen that Sherman was the popular choice of the delegates. When enough votes had been cast to insure his nomination Senator Crane of Massachusetts moved that it be made unanimous and it was carried with a shout of approval.

The usual motions of acknowledgment to the officers of the convention and to the city in which it was held were then passed.

Judson W. Lyon of Georgia was recognized to make the motion to adjourn without day. It was put into effect at 11:47 a.m. The band played "The Star-Spangled Banner." The delegates rapidly left the hall and the convention of 1908 had made its way into history.

Roosevelt Demonstration.

The second day of the Republican national convention brought the long-expected Roosevelt yell, a whirlwind of enthusiasm which raged within the vast amphitheater of the Coliseum for full 45 minutes Wednesday, and for a time presented to the timid the specter of a Roosevelt stampede.

This demonstration was decidedly the feature of a day otherwise notable for a stirring speech from the permanent chairman of the convention, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, for much practical procedure in placing the convention on a smooth running basis, and for the final defeat of the plan to reduce the representation of southern states at future national conventions.

Mr. Lodge early in his address launched his sentence which electrified the assemblage into its first real demonstration of wild enthusiasm. "The president," exclaimed Mr. Lodge, "is the best abused and most popular man in the United States today."

This was the long awaited signal. Instantly a shout broke from the galleries and was echoed back from the floor, at first only a tempest of detached yells, and cat calls, and shouts of "Teddy," but gradually gathering force and volume until it swelled to a whirlwind of sound and motion, as delegates and spectators rose en masse, mounting chairs, waving banners, hats handkerchiefs flags, newspapers, anything which could be seized upon to add turbulence to the scene.

PLATFORM AT A GLANCE.

Roosevelt—

The abuse of wealth, the tyranny of power and the evils of privilege and favoritism have been put to scorn by him. We pledge a continuance of the Roosevelt policies.

The Republican party will uphold the authority of the courts but believe the rules of procedure in federal courts with respect to injunctions should be more accurately defined by statute, and that no injunction should be issued without notice.

Labor—

The same wise policy will be pursued to lighten the burdens of all who toil.

Tariff—

The Republican party declares for a revision of tariff by a special session of congress. We favor the establishment of maximum and minimum rates.

Money—

An expanding commerce and increasing crop movements disclose the need of a more elastic and adaptable system.

Trusts—

The government should have greater supervision over corporations engaged in interstate commerce.

Inland Waterways—

We call for a large and comprehensive plan to improve the waterways, harbors, and great lakes.

Army and Navy—

While the American people do not desire and will not provoke a war with any other country, we nevertheless declare our devotion to a policy which will keep this republic ready at all times to defend her traditional doctrines.

Good Roads—

We approve the efforts of the agricultural department in good road construction.

Negroes—

We condemn all devices for the disfranchisement of the negro.

Republican Policy—

The difference between Democracy and Republicanism is that one stands for vacillation and timidity in government, the other for strength and purpose. Democracy would have the nation own the people, while Republicanism would have the people own the nation.

A ROMANCE OF A PENNSYLVANIA FARM

SYNOPSIS.

The crowding desire in the life of old Baumgartner a Pennsylvania German, is to obtain possession of the beautiful meadow which lies just between Baumgartner's property and the railroad station. The property in question was inherited by Sarah Pressel, very pretty and athletic young girl and belonged solely to her. At length Baumgartner came to realize that his only hope of obtaining the property would be through the marriage of his son, Seffy, to Sarah Pressel. In a book auction Seffy, as Seffy is called, is quite the opposite of Seffy. She is all life and animation. Her one fault is a very high temper. Baumgartner has some lessons in courtship. Baumgartner has caused himself to be appointed guardian of Seffy. Seffy is unable to resist the fascinating wiles of Seffy and he kisses her. She promises him however, that she will never kiss any man but him.

Seffy, old Baumgartner calls him a molasses tapper—calls on Seffy and interrupts his lesson. They go to the meadow and begin a "sitting" contest. In accordance with the customs of the place and the time the one who is defeated in such a contest is unworthy the hand of the girl. Seffy goes to sleep and begins snoring. Seffy leaves the room in a huff, saying "Good night, gentlemen." Seffy tells his father of his dream of how Sam Fritz had pinned to his bosom while he slept a pasteboard comb—bearing the inscription "Seffy Fritz." Seffy, old Baumgartner, went to his rest. June 10, 1911, in the twenty-third year of his age. Seffy, old Baumgartner, went to his rest. Seffy and Seffy, old Baumgartner, went to his rest. Seffy and Seffy, old Baumgartner, went to his rest. Seffy and Seffy, old Baumgartner, went to his rest.

IX.

It Was Seffy Who Was "Sacked."

So they three went to church on a certain Sunday. Seffy sat on the "women's side" and Seffy and Sam on the "men's side" in full view of the "audience"—which perceived and understood and was ready at the proper time to applaud, from the preacher to the sexton—to raise or lower its thumbs upon the combatants.

When the benediction had been said Seffy hastened out and found himself a place—close to the door, according to his father's word—in one of the lines of young men which stretched on either side of the path from the church door to the road beyond, at least a quarter of a mile. But he did not see Sam. Some one pushed in front of him. And instead of combating for his position, he yielded it and found one further down, still seeking the location of his rival. He was crowded from this one, too, and he let it go and sought another one because he had not seen Sam. And it was necessary to his father's scheme he remembered, that Sam and he should be about opposite. Of course, all this was error. His place was right by the church door. That was where Seffy had a right to expect to find him. It had become a public matter too. The public had its rights. It expected him there, even if he had to shed the blood of noses to stay there. This had often happened. But he was bewildered in the contradictory courses advised by his father, and finally, seeking that which seemed best, found that which was worst. Dull Seffy.

He at last discovered Sam and found a lodgment for himself opposite and away down near the gate, where only the married men were—such as still waited for their wives—who amiably smoked until they came along. No unmarried maiden ever expects to be matched there. And had Seffy been as wise as he was not, he would not have halted there. But he was deluded by Sam. There he was in the opposite line, the wrong one, indifferently chatting, and even smoking, with Hilary Groat—a married man. Seffy was now so sure of his conquest, that Sam's indifference vexed him. Evidently he did not mean to contend with him for Sally's arm, and it was to be a cheap and bloodless victory. For Seffy was one of those who grow brave as opposition diminishes.

And now they were slowly coming down—the maidens running the gantlet of love. One—two—three—four—five—a dozen happy matings were made. Seffy was counting. One poor chap was "sacked." He crushed his hat over his eyes and charged back through the lines and across the fields—no matter where. And then came Sally—in a trim little hat with a fluttering ribbon that looked for all the world like the white signal, bearing straight down upon him! But there was something in her eyes—expectant—militant—that made them starty. On she came with her head in the air—looking neither to the right nor to the left, as if she expected to walk home alone, nearly three miles!

"Oh, no!" thought Seffy—and Sam.

But a bit of terror smote her face while she had passed the door—

alone—and showed more and more as she went on. Some one laughed—then there was an unmistakable titter along the line. Still Sally passed on, keeping her temper as never before. Was not the old man right about the effect of laughter?

But now the temper loosed itself slowly—her face was scarlet. She had nearly reached the married men. Sam—one whispered—

"Gosh! He's getting even by sacking her!"

This was repeated. There was more laughter—and more tittering. The crowd deserted the lines nearest the church and followed Sally down on either side in huge tumultuous phalanxes to see what would happen—it was possible that she would have to go home alone. Several young men who had never dared to approach her began to think of it. They knew that rather than not as taken at all she would take any one of them! There was more tumult now than laughter. And Sally's face grew so white that her eyes glared like stars in the midst of it.

Seffy quailed. He recognized the temper—only he had never seen it as terrible as this. He had forgotten Sam! It was only Sally he saw, as one sees with fear-stalled nerves the locomotive as it leaps upon him.

And the caloblers, crowding at the sides thought it a great and terrible hand to hand battle—to wait that way till the last moment and then to spring like tigers—on a piece of tremendous foolishness.

"Both of you must be absolute sure," said Hilary Groat to Sam, or absolute fools! And you got no pity on the girl!"

Sam answered Sam "and watch. I'm calculating on him leaving town to-morrow. That's my game. And I'm playing for the pot."

You see that Sam had not forgotten Seffy for a moment, even if Seffy had forgotten him. He stepped noiselessly three paces toward Sally, crossed in front of Seffy and took her arm. There was a laugh almost inaudible. Seffy could not see clearly—he could least of all, think clearly—he did not know what had happened. He saw only the little white signal before him and blindly put out his arm.

It did not reach Sally at all but Sam who turned and said with an imitation of girlish politeness

"Thank you, M. Baumgartner, I'm suited."

And, Sally, her face flaming with vengeance took the trouble to turn back and cry—not into his ear, but into his very heart.

"Thank you, I'm suited."

There are some people to whom no punishment seems sufficient while any remains to be administered. One of the onlookers was of such a sort. He cried out as poor Seffy slunk away "Give her back her doll!"

And another

"Or ninety-nine cents anyhow!"

Seffy quailed and drew back from the line—it was the instant that makes or mars—and he had lost. He might still have knocked Sam down and won—this would have been perfectly proper—but he followed the man who had but a moment before crushed through the line, and wild jeers followed him.

X.

The Huge Fist of the Farmer.

From that day Seffy avoided all public places—and all men. He was no body—nothing. He fell rapidly into that kind of disrepute which is common to persons with failing reputations. It was to his discredit that he did not leave town, but this his father prevented. Again he took to the cotton woods and the Poison springs, with, perhaps, the dim hope that Sally might again find him there, and that the peeping moon might again interfere on his behalf.

But the moon went through all her phases and then slowly turned her back on him—and Sally never came. In their casual meetings she was ice. Once they passed on the road to the store. She was in precisely the dear garments he remembered so well—that first day—and as gay as then. He trembled, and then looked up like a mortally wounded animal. She was looking calmly over his head. To the rest of the world she was gayer than ever, though that Sunday night laugh still echoed in her head—kept her maddened. After all, it wasn't worth while to care for even Seffy with such a little spirit. Why didn't he fight—kill Sam or somebody? And the cunning Sam set the story more widely going that for revenge Seffy had deserted her at the church door and that he had first laughed—Seffy. This was too piquant to be passed over, and it was heard far and wide.

To Seffy's father, who, even in this dire strait, strove for happiness for them both—and, of course, the pasture field—she said with more abandon disrespect than she had ever addressed to any one:

"You ought to be glad that I do not take revenge on him! If he wasn't so little I would. But he's not worth bothering about. Sacked me, did he? I'll show him!"

Why, Sally? What would you do?"

"I'll hit him over my knee and spank him and then pen him in the cellar!"

Sally, don't talk like that," pleaded the old man. "It spiles your voice."

And Sally gave him then and there a rude specimen of how her voice was being spoiled—which I may not reproduce. But it was expressed in anathema. Indeed, others had noticed that her voice, somehow, had lost its soft lincness. She was particularly kind to the young storekeeper now, and he was particularly reckless and drunken. And rumor presently said that she was known to be drunk with him sometimes!

"Sally—," said Seffy timorously, one day (he had waited to tell her this) "you don't think—you don't believe—that I—"

"I know," said Sally in voice—that froze him, "that you are a fool—and I am not fond of fools. Go away! Be glad I don't lick you!"

And then rumor had it that she and Sam were to be married—"for spite."

But, curiously enough, the person most affected by all this was not Sally, nor Seffy nor Sam. It was Seffy's father, whose sufferings were nearing agony. Nothing could be done with Seffy. And course of the love between them which had never been ruffled since Seffy was born, was often ruffled now. The old man, as their relations grew strained, became more and more exasperated at Seffy's lack of initiative.

Gosh a migh! You gonn' to let that molasses-tapper set right down on you and nigger gib off? Can't you see that she wants you? R don't matter what she says? Don't you know it's a dare? Air you going to take a dare? Why you usen't to when you was a baby! When you year that durned new laugh of Sally's can't you see that somesing's wrong? She's drinking! That's what! You think she'd laugh so and drink if she was happy? You was a fool—as a durn fool. It's your fault. Go right up to her like a man and say so."

"I did," said Seffy.

"Hah, you did? An' what she says?"

"She said she knowed it!"

"Well—begoshen! She's a worse fool! Gather her in and make a fool off of her and git even! Turnin' her back on an ol' man that harms no one—and her guarden yit!"

Alas, this was another thing he had done to secure the pasture-field—made himself her legal guardian!

"I'll gife it up—the guarden. Yas sir. She ken take keer herself. Fool—of course. Bese fools? You tell her marries that durn molasses tapper if you want to see fun!"

There was such real agony in the old man's voice that Seffy suffered, too.

"Pappy, I'm sorry—I ain't no good, I expect. I guess I'll go away before the wedding."

"Wedding—wedding? You gonn' to let that wedding go on? And him git the pasture field? P it him between us and the railroad!"

"How can I stop it, pappy?"

"By marrying ner yourself!"

"I got enough, pappy," said Seffy hopelessly. "They'd lynch me if I tried it again. I guess I'd better go away."

Quick anger flamed in his father's face at this invertebrate submission. And his voice, when he spoke, was harsher than Seffy had ever heard it.

"Got enough—got enough—that's all you know. And go away! That's all you ken say, you bull-headed idiot! Go and apologize and git her back. Don't run. Then marry her next day. That'll settle the molasses tapper, I expect, and show that you got an inch or two of backbone! Choke her—chloroform her and carry her off!"

LOST ART OF LETTER WRITING.

Men and Women of To-Day Have No Time for Such Occupation.

It is a well-known fact that nobody writes letters nowadays. It is true we spend a vast deal of time at our writing table, that we consume untold quantities of ink and nibs, while our stationery bill is by no means the most modest item of our ever-increasing expenditure. But we neither write nor receive letters. The utmost we do is to "dash off notes" in answer to invitations, to "scribble a few lines" of congratulation or sympathy, as the case may be, with a friend; to express briefly but forcibly our satisfaction with our dressmaker, or our surprise at our milliner's account. As for our absent relations, on the rare occasions when we remember their existence at all, we send them our love on a post card with a few details about the weather, ending in "tearing haste" with the hope that they will write soon and tell us all their news. Of course, they never do, which is just as well, as if they did we should in all probability never have time to wade through their letters.—L'Inconue, in Ladies' Field.

Test Satisfactory—to Himself.

A recent number of Simplicissimus tells this "story with a moral": "The Union Bank of St. Petersburg has its own police service. One night the director was sleepless. He wondered whether the bank police were really trustworthy. He concluded to make a trial. He disguised himself and rushed, pistol in hand, into the bank vault. The police were good for nothing. They looked on quietly while the director pocketed 2,000,000 rubles and carried them away. Since then no one has seen the director."

Making His Plea to the People.

Governor Warner is making a strong, dignified plea to the people, explaining to them in detail the several measures which he urged upon the last legislature in their interests, but which were defeated by the very same people and the same interests and influences that are now endeavoring to defeat his re-nomination. He is going to the people direct in this matter and is not seeking to drive them like flocks of sheep through the agency of a few self constituted bosses and leaders. The people appreciate this evidence of confidence in them and are making their own investigation of the issues involved. The time has gone by when they can be "delivered" by the bosses in blocks of fifty or any other number. The people know they have the power in their own hands and propose to exercise it. They know who their friends are, too, and are showing no disposition to support candidates who are identified with those interests and individuals which so ruthlessly denied them the relief which they sought from the last legislature. Wherever he goes Governor Warner is greeted by vast crowds of the rank and file of the state and these are the people who will re-nominate him September 1st.

Reducing Expenses in a Practical Manner.

For a number of months Governor Warner gave much time and attention to the subject of purchases for the maintenance of inmates of various state institutions. Several weeks ago he commissioned a thoroughly competent man to visit the institutions and make a thorough investigation of the system governing all purchases, prices paid for commodities, etc. A result of this investigation has been the publication for some time of a monthly cost sheet showing the prices paid at each institution for numerous commodities. These cost sheets have been sent to the several superintendents with a view to showing them how the prices compare and thus forcing reductions where it is demonstrated that any article can be purchased at a lower cost. As a result of this movement a meeting of the executive heads of the various institutions was held with Governor Warner at his office last week for the purpose of going over the whole matter and agreeing on plans for reducing this necessarily expense item.

The Free Press quotes a "prominent Holly business man" as being against a third term for Warner and then devoted a half column editorial knock to it. Now to show how reliable the interview was it need only be added that the man in question is not in business in Holly nor any other place and never was.

The "boxer" organs announce with a great flourish of trumpets that one of the republican candidates for governor of Michigan has been endorsed by a local lodge out in Hutchinson, Kansas. That is certainly "going some."

The Record suggests that when our Northville boys—and perhaps men too—get real patriotic on the 4th with a handful of giant crackers they put a base ball mitten on each hand and thus save a finger or two.

The Cheerful Workers are urged to meet with Miss Harding next Wednesday evening, July 1st. All the young people are invited to come as plans are being made for entirely new work. This will be an interesting meeting so all make an extra effort to come.

The Misses Harding, Irwin, Wood, ruff, Ryel, Banks, Selden, Mrs. Brown and Mr. Harding were very pleasantly entertained at the home of Mrs. Mosher in Salem Tuesday. The girls can tell how it feels to be a cyclone which swept over the country, tearing down buildings, trees and fences, the house being damaged in several places. All escaped injury and arrived home as soon as the roads were cleared.

Miss Estella Angell and Mr. J. C. Button were married Saturday, June 20, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Angell in East Novi. There were 100 guests at the wedding. The parlor was very prettily decorated with white ribbon and blue forget-me-nots, blue and white being the wedding colors. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Brent Harding of Novi after which the company repaired to the basement of the Angell house and there enjoyed a very sumptuous dinner. The happy couple will go to Hamilton, Mont., their future home about July 1st, taking with them the very best wishes of their many friends.

A Piano at a Nominal Price.

Chicago's largest music house, Lyon & Healy, announces a Triple Clearing sale of Pianos. Nearly one thousand splendid instruments are offered without reserve until all are sold. In this stock are all the fine new Mehlin, Hardman, Ivers & Pond, Smith & Nixon and other noted pianos formerly owned by the Thompson Music Co., the Healy Music Co., and the big F. G. Thearle Piano Co. All these concerns were bought out for spot cash by Lyon & Healy and the public may now share the advantage. In this sale are also a number of Stelway and Weber pianos. In upright pianos neat instruments at $100, $120, $140, $150, $165, $190, $200 and upwards. This is an unprecedented opportunity that will not occur again. Any piano not proving entirely satisfactory may be returned at their expense. Address Lyon & Healy, 77 Adams street, Chicago. Distance is no obstacle, for in proportion to the saving to be made the freight charges are insignificant. Any banker will assure you of the entire responsibility of Lyon & Healy, and their record of 44 years for honorable dealing. Write today so as to avoid disappointment.

Dear Sir:—December 25, 1901, was taken with what physicians pronounced Muscular Rheumatism. I had it bad. I took as I thought, every known remedy; paid out enough money anyhow. I was entirely helpless for nearly eighteen months; about that time I saw your ad in the National Tribune; sent and got a bottle; then sent for another; then another, and now I am out of the medicine business entirely. I give Crocker's Rheumatic Cure the credit of curing me. I can heartily recommend it. Very Truly, I. F. Tower. Prepared by Phillips Drug Co., Warren, Pa. For sale by Murdock Bros.

Marlin

WHETHER you live in the city or country, you'll find no 22 calibre repeating rifle like the Marlin Model 1897.

For the city man it's a perfect companion for the vacation or outing trip. It's light, takes down and packs in a small space. The ammunition is inexpensive. The gun can be used with 22 short for target and is equally capable of handling 22 long or long-rifle cartridges without change of mechanism.

On the farm the rifle is a necessity. The short cartridge is sufficient for sprouting sorrows and small game; and the long-rifle cartridge makes the Marlin Model 97 a dangerous weapon for game, foxes, hawks, etc. up to 200 yards.

The "Marlin Book" of 128 pages, with hand-colored art cover, is jam full of up-to-date information for all sportsmen and gives full description of all Marlin repeaters. It's FREE for 3 stamps postage.

YOU'RE TOO THIN.

Each Slight Catarrhal Derangement of the Stomach Produces Acid Fermentation of the Food.

It's Stomach Catarrh

Some people are thin and always remain thin, from temperamental reasons. Probably in such cases nothing can be done to change this personal peculiarity.

But there are a large number of people who get thin, or remain thin, who naturally would be plump and fleshy but for some digestive derangement. Thin people lack in adipose tissue. Adipose tissue is chiefly composed of fat.

Fat is derived from the oily constituents of food.

The fat-making foods are called by the physiologists, hydrocarbons. This class of foods are not digested in the stomach at all. They are digested in the duodenum, the division of the alimentary canal just below the stomach.

The digestion of fat is mainly, if not wholly, the work of the pancreatic juice. This juice is of alkaline reaction, and is rendered inert by the addition of acid. A hyperacidity of the digestive fluids of the stomach passing down into the duodenum, destroys the pancreatic fluid for digestive purposes. Therefore, the fats are not digested or emulsified, and the system is deprived of its due proportion of oily constituents. Hence, the patient grows thin.

The beginning of the trouble is a catarrhal condition of the stomach which causes hyperacidity of the gastric juices. This hyperacidity is caused by fermentation of food in the stomach. When the food is taken into the stomach, if the process of digestion does not begin immediately, acid fermentation will take place. This creates a hyperacidity of the stomach juices which in their turn prevent the pancreatic digestion of the oils, and the emaciation results.

A dose of Peruna before each meal hastens the stomach digestion. By hurrying digestion, Peruna prevents fermentation of the contents of the stomach, and the pancreatic juices thus preserved in its normal state. It then only remains for the patient to eat a sufficient amount of fat-forming foods, and the thinness disappears and plumpness takes its place.

Bank Note.

"What occupation did you follow before you came here?" asked the visitor.

"I used to be an author, mum," replied the prisoner with the big brow.

"An, indeed? Well, they say authors make a note of everything."

"That's the trouble, mum. I made a note of a piece of blank paper, tried to pass it and landed here."

Peace for Once.

"I tell you, Judson is a sick chap," laughed Silas Rytrop. "He took his wife to Washington and kept her in the congressional library four hours."

"What did he do that for?" asked Hiram Hardapple.

"Why, begosh, they fine you if you talk in that building, and for four hours she didn't speak a word."

The Last Trip of Little Betsy

By Howard E. Morton

(Copyright, by Shortstory Pub Co.)

"Get yo'self 'long, Miss Fannie. Ain't no use o' loafin'. Go 'long, Miss Fannie. Jes' looka Miss Jennie. She's done run clear 'way an' mos' pull her purty neck off. Go 'long, Miss Fannie, go 'long."

An old negro, with white hair that fell almost to his shoulders, sat on the high seat of a heavy mountain wagon, and after having thus delivered himself to the off leader of a 12-mule team, relapsed into silence.

Black Jim, for that was the only name he had known for nearly 40 years, prided himself on his ability to handle horses and mules. Many a time in his young days on the old California ranches, when some wild bronco, fresh from the range, defied every vaquer in the corral, Black Jim mounted the animal and brought it back in half an hour, thoroughly tamed and tractable. His fame was known through more than one California county and for years he traveled from ranch to ranch earning a living as a horse breaker.

On the first day of each month the quicksilver output of the New Idria mines was shipped to the metropolis. The heavy iron flasks, filled with the metallic fluid, were loaded into Black Jim's big wagon at the refinery, and then Jim and his mules would clatter away through the town on a hundred-and-twenty-five-mile drive to Moss Landing, on Monterey bay. The trip, down across the San Benito valley and over the range of low mountains that fringes the shore of the Pacific, usually occupied five or six days, and it was necessary to take food for himself and the animals. This was packed in a small, light rig, the tongue of which was coupled to the heavier wagon with a stout chain. Jim called his smaller vehicle Little Betsy, to distinguish it from Big Betsy, which carried the quicksilver, and in it he stowed his supply of hay and grain, blankets and teamster's paraphernalia, besides enough provisions to suffice for the journey. At Moss Landing Jim would deliver the shipment to the captain of a little coasting schooner, who took it up to San Francisco.

It was on one of these monthly trips that Black Jim found it necessary to rebuke Miss Fannie for lagging behind her running mate. Big Betsy rumbled briskly along for some miles and Little Betsy trailed behind with a merry staccato rattle. The road wound higher and higher among the mountains and the level floor of the San Benito valley had long since disappeared behind the foothills. It was midsummer, and the sun beat down at its fiercest. There was no breeze to stir the air and the heavy adobe dust, kicked up by the mules hung in a thick, choking cloud about the outfit. Jim amused himself for a time clipping off the tops of wild flowers with the lash of his long whip, but as the heat became more and more oppressive he closed his eyes and finally dozed.

He was awakened suddenly from his nap by a snort from the leaders, followed by the crisp command, "Hands up!"

Jim rubbed his eyes stupidly and stared ahead through the cloud of dust. The wheel mules were humped up in their breeching, with the rest of the team backed in against them confusedly. The leaders were kicking and squealing. Again the voice said sharply, "Hands up!" And as the dust cleared away, a man with a double-barreled shotgun at his shoulder gradually took shape at the side of the road.

"Deys' up, deys' up! Put down de gun, fo' de Lord's sake! Deys' up!" Two dark brown palms were raised skyward. The man lowered the gun and looked searchingly into the ebony face.

The man was tall and roughly dressed and his features were masked by a thick, matted black beard that covered the face almost to the points of the cheek bones. Another man, shorter than the first, swarthy like an Indian, and hideous from the loss of an eye, emerged from behind the leaders' heads and the two held a whispered consultation. Jim sat on the high seat with upraised hands watching them covertly, his small eyes still blinking. The men conversed for a few moments and then the one with the gun advanced and propped up his foot on the spokes of the forewheel.

"Look here—you," he said savagely, his fingers playing with the trigger of the weapon that lay across his knee. "Kin you drive this here outfit over Tucker's Cut in the dark?"

Jim looked down at the shotgun and then at the one-eyed man, whose single eye glared at him ominously from under the dirty remnant of a Mexican sombrero.

"I ain't gone an' train dese yere mules fo' nothin'," was the enigmatical reply. The man below made a gesture of satisfaction.

"Well, that's what we want. Let's come to business. We've got a schooner at Goodall's old landing, 'bout ten miles above Moss. This here load of quicksilver is worth 'bout ten thousand dollars to us an' we're goin' to have it. Now, there'll be five hundred dollars in yer pocket if you haul it safe to the landing. You git yer money when we git the stuff aboard. Stand in on this deal an' you kin go back an' tell 'em you wuz held up, or any old thing. We'll be on the way to Mexico—we won't care. If you won't stand in—well—"

He patted the stock of the gun significantly and glanced at his companion, whose visage distorted itself into a horrible grin. Jim took off his hat and nervously mopped his head with a red bandana handkerchief.

"Well, what d' you say? Are you goin' to stand in an' make the five hundred, or are we goin' to throw yer corpse under the bridge an' take the team ourselves?" He impatiently jerked his thumb toward a little stream crossing the road a hundred yards ahead.

"Ef Miss Fannie an' Miss Jennie goes ober de cut, ole Jim goes too." He paused a moment and looked at the two men expressively. "I reckon de five hundred bucks doan' grow on many ob de trees round 'ere, so ole Jim's goin' to make hay 'fer shore while de sun shines."

He smiled broadly, and in spite of the mixed metaphor involved the two seemed to understand him perfectly. "That's the business," affirmed the man with the gun. "We don't want to have no shootin' or nothin' like that in this job. Do we, Joe?"

Again the horrible grimace spread over the face of the man with one eye. He shook his head by way of answer, clambered into Little Betsy and stretched out at full length on the sacks of grain. The other man, followed and seated himself on the pile of hay, the shotgun resting on his lap. "Now go ahead," he commanded. Jim whistled to the leaders and the outfit moved forward once again with the jingle of trace chains and hame bells and the rumble and rattle of the tandem wagons.

It was almost dusk when they reached the point where Tucker's Cut branched off from the main road. This cut was a short route over the mountains to Goodall's Landing and was little used because of the heavy grades and poor condition of the roadbed, which in some places was even dangerous. A stream crossed the road here and Jim got down to water the animals before the long ascent. The man with the gun had been nodding, but as the teams came to a standstill he woke up with a start and gripped his weapon alertly. After the thief of the animals was satisfied Jim looked over the harness and spent considerable time adjusting the cup lugs which bound Little Betsy to her ponderous sister. Joe slept soundly on the grain sacks, the empty socket where his eye once had been staring upward into the gathering gloom.

Again the bells and chains jingled and the team began to climb the cut. The road became rougher and wound in and out along the sides of a steep ravine. It was almost dark now, but the leaders picked the way, avoiding washouts and other obstructions with marvelous sagacity. Above them the black shadow of the mountain side sloped upward to the stars. On the other side, so near sometimes that the outer wheels crumbled the edge yawned a steep canon. Along the bottom, several hundred feet below, a small stream flowed over a bed of stones and boulders.

Several times Jim looked furtively back over his shoulder at the two men in the rear wagon. Joe lay outstretched on the sacks, snoring heavily. The man with the gun sat on the hay, his chin drooped forward on his breast and his head swaying from side to side, as the wheels bumped over the ruts and stones in their path. He, too, was sound asleep. Jim peered through the darkness for some time at the limp figure, then stooped and quietly wound the jerk line around a cleat on the footboard. The mules remembered their training and continued their steady pull up the grade. Noiselessly the negro climbed down from the high seat and crawled over the iron flasks to the rear of Big Betsy. Here he paused and listened intently. He could hear the heavy breathing of the two men only a few feet away. In a moment he shipped over the end of the heavy vehicle and, clinging with one hand to the tail board, deftly unwound the chain that fastened the tongue of the smaller wagon in place. Again he looked back into the darkness and listened. He could see the faint outline of the man sitting upright and ock of that the dark figure on the sacks. With a quick tug he loosed the last loop of the chain and shoved the tongue back ward and outward with all the strength in his black arm.

Little Betsy hovered for an instant on the edge of the descent and then with a creak toppled over into the canon. An awful shriek came up through the darkness, and then the air was filled with the sound of breaking wood and metal as the mass shot, end over end, down the rocky declivity. A miniature avalanche of stones and dirt rattled down into the creek bed, and the surrounding mountains and ravines sent back an echo of that blood-curdling human cry.

The mules stopped, trembling in their tracks. Black Jim slowly mounted to the high seat and mopped his forehead with the red bandana. "I reckon ole Jim ain't goin' to get hung fo' doin' his duty by de boss," he murmured reflectively as he glanced down into the blackness of the canon. The jerk line whistled sharply, the hame bells and trace chains jingled and Big Betsy moved up the grade again into the night.

No Night's Rest for a Year and Limit of His Endurance Seemed Near—Owes Recovery to Cuticura.

"My son Clyde was almost completely covered with eczema. Physicians treated him for nearly a year without helping him any. His head, face, and neck were covered with large scabs which he would rub until they fell off. Then blood and matter would run out and that would be worse. Friends coming to see him said that if he got well he would be disgraced for life. When it seemed as if he could possibly stand it no longer, I used some Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Resolvent. That was the first night for nearly a year that he slept. In the morning there was a great change for the better in about six weeks he was perfectly well. Our leading physician recommends Cuticura for eczema. Mrs. Algy Cockburn, Shiloh, O., June 11, 1907."

One of Bill Nye's. Referring to a real estate transaction made by one Peter Minuit, way back in the year 1623, Bill Nye, in his history of the United States, declared: "New York was afterwards sold for $24, the whole island. When I think of this I go into my family gallery, which I also use as a swear room, and tell those ancestors what I think of them. Where were they when New York sold for $24?"

The humor of this strikes deeply when one stops to consider what has been the outcome of this original investment. Peter Minuit, with trinkets and a few bottles of rum, so delighted the native Indians that they gladly turned over to him the whole of Manhattan Island, now the heart of Greater New York—"New York, the Giant City," National Magazine.

He Had Broken Something.

Mrs. Wilson had a young Japanese servant who had a habit of trying to conceal from his mistress any breakage of dishes of which he chanced to be guilty. The good lady explained that it was wicked to deceive, and directed the Japanese to tell her whenever he broke anything. The boy promised to do as she advised. One day, while Mrs. Wilson was entertaining some friends in the parlor, the Japanese suddenly appeared in the doorway. His teeth were bared in a childlike smile, and his eyes sparkled with the light of conscious virtue.

"Meesa Wilson, you ter-ra me, when break somesing to ter-ra you. I break my pants!"—Success Magazine.

Grape-Nuts a Perfectly Balanced Food.

No chemist's analysis of Grape-Nuts can begin to show the real value of the food—the practical value as shown by personal experience.

It is a food that is perfectly balanced, supplies the needed elements of brain and nerves in all stages of life from the infant, through the strenuous times of active middle life, and is a comfort and support in old age.

"For two years I have used Grape-Nuts with milk and a little cream, for breakfast. I am comfortably hungry for my dinner at noon."

"I use little meat, plenty of vegetables and fruit in season, for the noon meal, and if tired at tea time, take Grape-Nuts alone and feel perfectly nourished."

"Nerve and brain power, and memory are much improved since using Grape-Nuts. I am over sixty and weigh 155 lbs. My son and husband seeing how I have improved, are now using Grape-Nuts."

"My son, who is a travelling man, eats nothing for breakfast but Grape-Nuts and a glass of milk. An aunt, over 70, seems fully nourished on Grape-Nuts and cream." "There's a Reason."

People Talk About Good Things.

Twelve years ago a few people knew of such a preparation as a Powder for the Feet. To-day after the genuine merits of Allen's Foot-Ease have been told year after year by grateful persons, it is indispensable to millions. It is clean, wholesome, healing and antiseptic and gives rest and comfort to tired aching feet. It cures while you walk. Over 30,000 testimonials. Imitations pay the dealer a larger profit otherwise you would never be offered a substitute for Allen's Foot-Ease, the original foot powder. Ask for Allen's Foot-Ease, and see that you get it.

What the Fox Really Said. The fox that Aesop made looked up at the grapes.

"Grapes sour!" heoted the old owl far up in the vines.

"They may be," yawned the fox, indifferently, "or they may be preserved sweet by some chemical process. You know the pure food laws are not as strict as they might be. Any way, I don't care for them because I am afraid of appendicitis."

And sly Reynard carted away to enjoy the sport of a fox hunt.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When the tube is inflamed it has a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever. It is not a matter of time, but of degree. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send circulars free. F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists. See that Hall's Catarrh Cure is on the wrapper.

Innovation in Politics.

The recent municipal elections in Paris were remarkable not only for the candidature of M. Laloe, who was soundly beaten, but for the first recorded candidature of a domestic servant. The liveried class is supposed to take on the political color of its surroundings and to be ultra-conservative as a rule, but this candidate stood as a republican socialist, and he is said to have been strongly supported by his kind.

After suffering for seven years, this woman was restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Read her letter.

Mrs. Sallie French, of Painesville, Ind. Ter., writes to Mrs. Pinkham: "I had female troubles for seven years—was all run-down, and so nervous I could not do anything. The doctors treated me for different troubles but did me no good. While in this condition I wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for advice and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am now strong and well."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Don't hesitate to write to Mrs. Pinkham if there is anything about your sickness you do not understand. She will treat your letter in confidence and advise you free. No woman ever regretted writing her, and because of her vast experience she has helped thousands. Address, Lynn, Mass.
