

THE NORTHVILLE RECORD.

Vol. XXXIX. No. 6.

NORTHVILLE, MICH., FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 11, 1908.

$1.00 Per Year in Advance.

WARNER'S NOMINATION

IS NOW CONCEDED IN ALL QUARTERS.

"Friends" of Dr. Bradley do not Take Kindly to Turn of Affairs.

From all reliable quarters Governor Warner's re-nomination is assured. The official count will give him a plurality of around 1,700. Last week, $800 to 1,000 seemed to be the figure, but errors of one kind or another have been discovered which has increased the governor's lead until it is about as above noted.

Last week Wednesday it looked as if Dr. Bradley had been nominated and Governor Warner gave to the press at that time the following statement:

"A primary election is for the purpose of having the people decide for themselves who they wish to represent their parties, and they should abide by the result of the primaries. That is what I will do. I thank my friends for what they did for me through-out the state."

As usual the rural counts were slow about coming in, but when they commenced to arrive Thursday, things took on another aspect and by night Governor Warner had a lead, which has since been increased by a considerable amount.

On Wednesday of this week Dr. Bradley gave out the following statement:

"Personally I accept defeat. I have no idea that the results will be altered, unless my friends, who are bringing charges from several counties can substantiate them. They have got to substantiate them. I will not be used merely to keep up an agitation and keep the party disrupted. Not for a minute. Don't you think I am not sure?"

The official count which will be finished at Lansing this week, will show Warner in the lead about as noted at the beginning of this article. The Republicans will now all get together and the whole ticket will be elected again in November as usual.

FRED MARTINDALE.

The senator was heartily endorsed for Secretary of State at the county convention held in Detroit Tuesday and his nomination seemed assured. Senator Martindale will make an ideal officer and Wayne county is certainly entitled to the plum. Judge Brooke was also strongly endorsed for Justice of the supreme court and he will have no opposition in the state convention.

THE WRETCH!

GREATEST TRIP OF THE GREAT LAKES.

The Large D. & B. Line Steamers Cross Lake Erie Daily.

The journey between Detroit and Buffalo on the luxurious D. & B. Line steamers is the most delightful fresh water trip in America. The cabins of these boats are furnished elegantly, the staterooms are comfortable and the service is the best. Then remember, the fare is three dollars less than the all-rail fare. Send two cent stamp for folder and Great Lakes Map. Address, DETROIT & BUFFALO STEAMBOAT CO., 2 Wayne St., Detroit, Mich.

ENGINE DROPS THRU ATWATER ST. BRIDGE

E. B. Thompson and Chas. Bowman Badly Injured.

While Ed Thompson and Charlie Bowman were crossing the bridge on Atwater street at four o'clock yesterday afternoon with the former's threshing engine and water tank, the bridge gave way letting the hind trucks of the engine and the forward trucks of the tank through the bridge.

Both men were on the step of the engine and were hurt, Mr Bowman the more serious. The doctors were summoned and Dr. Henry took the men to their homes in his automobile.

The bridge was a new one having been put down about six weeks ago, but the planks were not heavy enough to bear the weight of an engine.

"FIVE HUNDRED" CLUB

Had Indian Pow-Wow at Mrs. Lizzie Teagan's Tuesday Night

The "First 500" club met with Mrs. Lizzie Teagan Tuesday night for annual organization. The occasion was made unique and enjoyable by the hostess introducing a regular Indian pow wow. On arrival the guests were first decorated with war paint, with a headgear attachment of beads and feathers. Then the "squaws" marched way back on the rear lot where a big tent had been erected. Here the card game was indulged in followed by a feast of roast corn and other Indian relishes. Later in the evening some of the men folks joined the joyous festivities and helped scalp a few ears of corn and join in the war dance.

At the close of the festivities several war whoops were given Mrs. Teagan for the delightful and unique entertainment.

Notice.

The ladies of the Baptist church are planning to serve dinners in Chadwick's hall on "Home Coming" days and on Thursday, Sept. 24, the menu will consist of chicken pie and on Friday, roast beef and pork. They earnestly solicit party and family orders and will prepare special tables for ten or more at 25 cents per plate. All orders must be phoned promptly to the president Home phone 312 2R.

Democratic Caucus.

A Democratic caucus will be held in the Council room Monday evening, Sept. 14, at 7:30 to elect delegates to the county state convention to be held in Detroit Sept. 15.

By order committee

Revived in His Coffin.

A strange case of revivification was that of John Adams of Del Rio, East Tennessee. Adams is a mining engineer and one morning he was found in bed apparently dead. A physician said it was a case of heart failure. The body was made ready for interment and relatives and friends in Philadelphia were notified. A check was received from Philadelphia in payment of the undertaker's bill, but the undertaker declined to accept anything save the hard cash. This caused further delay, and while waiting the coming of the money by express the eyes of the "corpse" opened, there was a yawn and there likewise was a sudden disappearance of the undertaker and others from the room. Mr. Adams recovered and is still alive.

CROCKER'S RHEUMATIC CURE.

Phillips Drug Co., Warren, Pa.
Dear Sirs:—For 17 weeks I was unable to do any work, suffered untold agony. The only way I could live was to sit by the stove and bake my limb from the hip down. I tried the doctors and every known patent medicine. Our druggist advised the use of Crocker's Rheumatic Remedy. I took one 50 cent bottle and was so much better that I got another and am now entirely well. You are at liberty to use this for the benefit of any who are like afflicted. B. E. Blair, Union City. NORTHVILLE, MICH., SEPT. 11, '08

Now for a Fight against the Common Enemy.

The final returns show Warner to have been the victor by a plurality of over 2,000 votes in last week's primary contest. While it is entirely natural for the element in the party which supported Warner for renomination to feel a keen gratification in the result, we should not gloat too much over the victory won. The contest has been one to determine the choice of a republican leader in the campaign in Michigan this fall. That leader has been chosen and is Fred M. Warner. It now becomes the duty of every republican, whether a supporter, or an opponent of Warner's, to take off his coat and work for the success of the ticket.

Responsive Representation.

The nomination and election of Fred M. Warner for governor and the triumph of the progressive element in nearly every one of the state senatorial districts, make certain that the program to be followed in Lansing, when the next legislature convenes will be one of progressive reform and responsive representation, securing to the people those laws and those reforms in administration, which the great majority of the state have been demanding for so long, and which they have been denied because they ran counter to the will and interests of a strongly entrenched state machine.—Soo News

Depends on Whose Ox is Gored.

A month or more before the primary election the Free Press, in a double-leaded editorial article, called upon Governor Warner to withdraw from the race, alleging that there was no possibility of his nomination. When it was supposed that Dr. Bradley had been nominated the Free Press was quite delighted with the workings of the primary law. Now that the returns show Warner's nomination it frantically calls upon the governor to decline it and yells "fraud."—Pt. Huron Times

Home Coming.

It behooves every resident of Northville to take a special interest in the "Home Coming" days Sept. 24 and 25. No steps should be left untaken to not only get the former Northville people back here for a general reunion but in addition to see that they are properly entertained while here. The various committees will do their part but the responsibility of the success of Northville's first undertaking along this line rests with every citizen.

When Dr. Bradley was thought to have had eight or nine hundred plurality over Warner for governor, his friends were loud in their praises of the primary system and told how beautifully it all worked out. But when it is found that Warner has upwards of 2,000 the best of it, then it is all a d—fraud.

In other words if the president has a successful lion hunt in Africa he will be elected to the U. S. senate.

And also Northville never before had a "Home Coming" day but it may get the habit.

SPEAKING HER MIND

"What was Frelberg makin' so many noises about to you this mornin'?" inquired Miss Reifsnider of Miss McNamara at the noon hour. As she spoke she removed the rubber band from her lunchbox and slipped it on her wrist for safekeeping. "Aw, it was about them statements for the old man," replied Miss McNamara, producing a sandwich from the depths of a newspaper parcel. She regarded it critically before biting off a corner of it with an air of satisfaction. "He's always pickin' on me about somethin', though. Seems like he can't be happy without he's jawin' at somebody." She proceeded to consume her sandwich with energy. "He certainly is a fright," agreed Miss Reifsnider, cracking the shell of a hard-boiled egg by tapping with it upon her desk. "He used to be bad enough," resumed Miss McNamara, "but since they give him a roll-top desk he thinks he's the whole thing and then some. A kid like that tryin' to boss me! Would I stand for it? Not any. I made up my mind the next chance I got, I'd show him. I did it this mornin' good and proper. I tell you those 'Droy call him down' Miss Reifsnider's face lighted up with sympathetic interest. "Well, did I? He come out of the old man's office looking awful cheery. I s'pose the boss'd been pattin' him on the back—Frelberg can always get young lady, or first thing you know I'll show you where you get off at." "Well, wouldn't that astonish the Dutch!" exclaimed Miss Reifsnider. "The idea of him sayin' that!" "You bet it made me red-headed," said Miss McNamara. "I just looks him in the eye and I says, just as sarcastic—I can be awful sarcastic when I want to—I says to him, 'Well, you certainly are the most ignorant person that ever come up the pike.' I says 'You show me where I get off at! Not you, sonny. I tell you one thing. I'll get off where I please and when I please and it ain't likely you'll be there to see me do it, I says. Then I walked off and left him standin' there, madder'n the dickens.' "My!" sighed Miss Reifsnider. "I wish I could think of them sarcastic things to say when I get mad, but I never do till afterwards. I bet that'll keep him quiet for a while!" "Well, if it don't it had ought to," returned Miss McNamara, much gratified by Miss Reifsnider's appreciation. Miss Reifsnider wrapped her lunch box neatly in a piece of Manila paper and replaced the rubber band which she had taken from it. Miss McNamara laid a piece of cake on her desk-wadded up the newspaper in which she had carried her luncheon and threw it into the waste-paper basket. "We get 20 minutes yet," she said. "You eat half this piece of chocolate cake and then let's get on our things and go over to State street and rubber in at the store windows." "All right," acquiesced Miss Reifsnider, eating the cake rapidly, while she stood up and brushed the crumbs from the front of her skirt. "Say we do."—Chicago Daily News

"Why'n't you remind me again?" he says. "What'd you want me to do?" says I. "Set off an alarm clock under your chair every 15 minutes?" "His face begun to get red," proceeded Miss McNamara. SYNOPSIS.

Lord Wilfred Vincent and Archibald Terhune are introduced at the opening of the story, in England, the latter relating the tale. The pair on an outing miss their train and seeking recreation meet "the Honorable Agatha Wyckhoff," whose hand is much sought after, because of her wealth. Five other Agatha Wyckhoffs are introduced. The deceased stepfather, in an eccentric moment, made his will so that the real Agatha, heiress to his fortune and the castle at Wyckhoff, England, might wed her affinity. Thus Mrs. Armistead's chaperon, was in duty bound to keep the real Agatha's identity unknown. An attempt by Terhune to gather a clew from the chaperon fails. Terhune finds old books containing picture of a former Baroness Wyckhoff, which is exactly like Agatha Sixth, whom he is courting. Agatha Fifth confesses her love for Vincent, and also that she is the real heiress. He spurns her proposal. Many clews to identity of the real Agatha prove fruitless.

Left to myself I was thinking out my plan of campaign as regarded Agatha Third when a slight noise in the back of the room attracted my attention. I looked up, startled, for it was late, and the large, dimly lighted drawing room was rather an eerie place, and saw over the back of my chair the slight form of the secretary approaching. Her hair was as neat as usual and her dress was the same simple gray gown she wore when I had seen her first.

"I beg your pardon, Mr. Terhune," she said, timidly, yet without hesitation. "Am sorry to disturb you, but would you have the goodness to give me a little of your time?"

"Certainly," I replied, rising, "though the hour is late. Won't you be seated?" and I found her a chair. The secretary leaned back against it and folded her hands.

"I shall be quick," she said, "but I want to ask you something." She spoke in a low voice, but with perfect composure, though she never lifted her eyes. I caught myself wondering whether she cast them down habitually, so that people might observe the length of her black eyelashes.

"Yes?" I said, to encourage her.

"Of course, you know Lord Vincent very well, don't you?" As she asked me this direct question she looked me full in the face, and as my eyes met hers I mentally thanked her for her mercy in not often permitting man to gaze into them.

"Yes," I said, recovering myself, "I know him very well."

"And he tells you things, doesn't he?"

"Most things," I replied, wondering at what she was driving.

"Then could you tell me, please, if—if he accepted Miss Agatha—the one with the hazel eyes that you call Agatha Fifth—when she told him she loved him?"

I was never more astounded in my life. How did she know that Agatha Fifth had told Vincent she loved him, and how did it concern her? Perhaps, however, she was acting under Mrs. Armistead's orders, but if so she ought to have said so.

"That's a question of a very personal nature," I said, and eyed her searchingly; "but I don't think Lord Vincent would mind, as long as you know so much about it, if I tell you that he refused the young lady who was indiscreet enough to ask him to marry her."

The secretary gave a sudden start, and then, by what seemed to be considerable effort, regained control of herself.

"He refused her," I continued—for the girl and her questions and her genuine feeling interested me—"although she told him she was the real Honorable Agatha." I was so proud of Vincent for that that I was glad to be able to tell someone about it.

"She said that—and he refused her?" repeated the girl in an awed tone. "How could he do it, how could he?"

"Then it was true? She is really the daughter of Fletcher Boyd?" I cried eagerly. At last I had stumbled upon the truth, for I knew the secretary was in the secret.

But she only smiled at me. "You are a good man," she said, "a good man."

The room was growing chilly and the fire was getting low, and as she spoke she slipped down from the high chair and seated herself on a little stool at my feet, stretching out her slim hands toward the blaze. "I thank you," she said, simply, and gazed into the fire a moment, while I gazed at her slender young figure, her pink and white skin, straight, little nose, and wide, red mouth with its Du Maurier chin—and all in a moment I felt myself pitying the poor little girl Vincent was such an attractive young scamp, he might be playing fast and loose with her affections without intending it or realizing that he was doing so. Involuntarily I leaned toward her.

"My dear young lady," I said, and as I spoke I caught myself thinking her really good looking. "If she only did her hair decently," I thought, "I'd call her a beauty, I really believe I should." "My dear young lady," I said, "tell me in confidence and perhaps I can help you. Do you—er—are you—er—interested in Lord Vincent? If so, allow me, I conjure you, nay, I beg of you, to put all thought of him out of your head. He doesn't mean it, but he is a graceless young flirt. He doesn't mean a word he says. Let me warn you—be advised—"

I stopped short. In the midst of my well-meant flow of words, I stopped short, for, could I believe my eyes, the secretary was laughing at me.

"My dear old man," she said—she did, actually—"my dear old man, your warnings are superfluous, for I am a married woman," and, still laughing, she left the room.

CHAPTER V.

Alone, I sat for a moment speechless with astonishment, as the secretary left the room, and, as I took my way slowly and thoughtfully upstairs, I resolved that this was another thing that I would not tell Vincent; he would be far more likely to ridicule me than to thank me for my effort in his behalf.

Some time after this, on a perfect day, Agatha Third and I had spent almost every hour since the dinner in her company. I may remark—had planned a little excursion which would keep us outdoors all day. We were going on a picnic up the little river. Have you ever tried a picnic for two? Given the right companion and a day like that, I'd warrant it to cure any attack of the blues. Agatha Third had assured me that the prettiest spot for our luncheon was a little island in the center of the stream where the current ran broad and deep, about three miles below the castle.

The day was fair, the gull was fairer, and the moments were full of joy to me. We had crossed a little bridge about a mile from the castle and were proceeding up the left bank of the river when a sudden turn of the stream brought two others of our house party into view. On the opposite bank was Vincent in high boots, knickerbockers, white shirt with sleeves rolled up, and a farmer's broad-brimmed hat of straw. He was busy over a broken fishing rod which he was trying to mend. In the center of the stream, where the current ran swift and dangerously deep, a girl stood on a large boulder, fishing. Other boulders at intervals between the one she was standing on and the shore where Vincent was indicated the means by which she had attained her precarious position. I recognized the girl as Agatha Second, and smiled pityingly as I thought of poor Vincent, invariably wasting his time with the wrong Agatha.

"Tell Me in Confidence and Perhaps I Can Help You."

"Hullo!" they cried, cheerfully, and we waved our hands and asked them what luck they had. This isn't always a safe question to ask a fisherman, but I notice that people who are not fishing themselves invariably find great satisfaction in asking it. Vincent said he hadn't caught any fish, and asked if I'd landed mine yet. Just like his impudence! He'd say anything if he thought it was funny, no matter how it might annoy other people.

Just as I was thinking of some retort polite enough to utter aloud, Agatha Second's rod began to bend and jerk, and immediately there was so much action going on that in my excitement I forgot what I was about to say. I am a fisherman of some skill myself. Well, the pole began to bend and the Agatha on the rock began to scream, and Vincent shouted directions from the bank—"Easy there, easy," he entreated her; "give him more line, Aggie, more line."

"I can't!" she screamed at the top of her voice; "something's caught, and he pulls so."

"The reel!" I shouted, jumping up and down. "The reel! Press the knob and let her go!"

I knew in a moment the sort she had. It was just like mine, a patent one with a spring reel—mine often stuck that way. All this time the fish was leaping about, sometimes jumping out of the water so that we could see him, and he was a big fellow.

"Let me alone; I can do it myself," cried the girl, as Vincent started to help her, but even as she spoke her trim little foot slipped on the wet stone, and, losing her balance completely, she fell backward into the deep water, while the rod disappeared upstream.

In a moment Vincent was running at top speed along the bank till he came to a little point of land near which the drowning girl must pass. As she approached he leaped into the water, and, striking diagonally upstream, seized her by her clothing, and, fighting his way back, safely gained the point of land. Meantime I had run up the river toward a boat that I had observed near the bank. Jumping in I soon reached the spot where lay the unconscious form of Agatha Second. All this time I was dimly aware of the fact that Agatha Third had never stopped screaming and was now running up and down on the opposite bank sobbing and wringing her hands. When I reached Wilfred he was anxiously bending over the girl, but apparently without the slightest idea what to do.

I immediately fell to chafing her hands and resorting to the other well-known expedients for reviving the drowned, and to enable her to breathe more freely I removed the tight-fitting dicky of her sailor suit. It was not long before she began to regain consciousness, and it was at this moment that I made a most amazing discovery, for around the neck of the girl I saw a little silver chain, and on it was strung a heavy gold ring set with a large cross of old-fashioned emeralds.

I called to Vincent, and as I pointed at the magnificent and telltale piece of jewelry we both gazed at it speechless with surprise at discovering in such a manner the secret of the Honorable Agatha's identity. Before she had quite regained her consciousness I readjusted her dicky, and when she was able to stand we wrapped her in our coats and carried her to the boat. There wasn't room in it for more than two, so I made Vincent sit in with her and row back to the castle. So they left us, and Agatha Third and I, too thoroughly upset by the accident to wish to carry through our picnic, followed them back, walking one on each side of the stream until we reached the bridge, where we joined forces.

As we returned I did a great deal of thinking. So it was Agatha Second, after all, who was the real Honorable Agatha. For certainly her possession of the Wyckhoff ring, mentioned in the will, was proof positive. Now that I thought of it, the suspicious circumstance of Agatha Third's seemingly involuntary rising when Vincent toasted the Honorable Agatha, admitted of many explanations—At any rate, whatever her reason for her action, the presence of the Wyckhoff ring on the neck of Agatha Second had proved to me the falsity of that other clew and the identity of our girl, but mysterious hostess.

HEART BEATS GIVE WARNING.

Irregular Action That Presages Attack of Scarlet Fever.

The scarlet fever heart is a peculiarity lately noticed for the first time, by a German medical man. With the stethoscope it is recognized by a reduplication of the first heart sound, followed by a rough rasping or scappling, and this appears at the onset of many cases of scarlet fever, often when no other symptoms are to be detected. In some epidemics these sounds may be heard in the majority of cases, while at other times they may be quite regularly absent. Their presence is of great value in diagnosis and may be the only warning signal to guard against the spread of infection. A boy who was pale, languid and anemic had no other symptoms except the irregular heart sounds. From these his case was decided to be scarlet fever and subsequent peeling of the skin proved the correctness of the diagnosis. Certain children in the chickenpox ward of a hospital were restless and obviously ill. The heart sounds indicated scarlet fever, and in these cases, too, desquamation followed, although there had been no eruption or other sign. Directly afterward this ward had an outbreak of scarlet fever in its usual form.

HISTORIAN AN IRRITABLE MAN.

Freeman's Temper Flared Up Over Intellectual Differences.

Freeman, the historian, it was said, was apt to grow irritably over matters of intellectual difference. One day he was at the Macmillans, when the conversation turned upon the subject of Ireland. Mr. Macmillan said that, for his part, he was in favor of granting autonomy.

Whereupon Freeman began to growl at the use of a Greek word.

"Why can't you speak English?" demanded he, "and say home rule, in stead of speaking Greek, which you don't know?"

One of the guests flushed with anger and ventured to reprove Freeman, calling his attention to the respect due their host, and at the same time paying tribute to Mr. Macmillan's remarkable abilities. But although Freeman did not apologize in so many words, he smoothed the matter over by a humorous repetition of his criticism. Later, some one mentioned gout. "There you go again!" exclaimed Freeman. "Why can't we call it toe-woe?"

LATEST NEWS OF MICHIGAN.

HILLSDALE TEACHER SAYS SHE WAS ATTACKED BY A HIRED THUG.

MADE IT A RECEPTION.

Various Bits of News Gathered Here and There About the State and Briefly Told.

Hillsdale officers are investigating the story told by Miss Louise Schwartz, a teacher and Hillsdale college student, who says she was attacked late at night on her way home from the depot Miss Schwartz says that while passing the Hillsdale college church a man rushed out and threw her to the ground.

He placed a gag in her mouth, but she pulled it out and pleaded hard for mercy, she says. The man relented, according to her story, and then told her that he had been hired by an enemy to chloroform her and place her in a conveyance waiting near the depot of which was to take her to a designated spot, where the enemy would be waiting. The man then told her to go home, she says, but instead she went to the house of friends near by.

Shortly after a man came to the house where Miss Schwartz lives and handed in her purse and umbrella which she had dropped. He made no explanation but simply said they were the teacher's property. The stranger did not seem at all agitated.

Miss Schwartz says that after she had left the scene of the attack she heard the tramp of horses' feet and saw a carriage driven up to the place where she lives. She gave a good description of the alleged assailant, but the authorities have not been able to locate him. Neither can they find that a carriage was hired to drive to that vicinity.

Miss Schwartz thinks that perhaps an incident which occurred nearly a year ago had something to do with the attack. At that time, she says, she tore an obscene picture which she saw hanging in the caboose of a way freight train, which carried passengers. A brakeman at the time became angry and threatened to get revenge on her, she declares.

Dr. Bradley at Home.

Owing to the uncertainty of the outcome of the Republican gubernatorial primary election the celebration which the friends of Dr. James B. Bradley had planned for Thursday night over his supposed victory was changed in to a reception in honor of the doctor. Dr. Bradley has expressed a wish that the affair might be called off altogether, but it had been so widely advertised that this was impossible.

Nearly 5,000 people assembled at McCauley island. A big delegation came from Charlotte, accompanied by the Charlotte band and all the county officials. Addresses were made by Justice Robert M. Montgomery, of the state supreme court, Clyde Webster, J. M. C. Smith, chairman of the Republican county committee, and other prominent local Republicans. Dr. Bradley responded briefly. He declared that he had not yet given up hope and mentioned some of the reforms that he intended inaugurating if he was elected. An elaborate display of fireworks closed the festivities.

Husband Vanished.

Harver Parker, 22 years old smooth shaven and with unlimited nerve and an automobile, is in no danger of being arrested for leaving a week-old bride and a heavy board bill at a Detroit hotel without notice. His father-in-law at Saginaw has settled the hotel account. Also Ida Schmidtknecht, bride of a week, was taken back home to mother by her brother Parker's disappearance brought to a premature and rather tragic close a honeymoon that started auspiciously a week before when Miss Schmidtknecht came from her home in Saginaw and Mr. Parker came from his home in Connecticut, O., and they were married by a Detroit justice of the peace. They nuptial journey to the justice that they were broke but said their hopes were bright.

Pastor Once More.

Found guilty of improper conduct while pastor of the Third Reformed church in Muskegon Rev. John Van Der Valk returned to Holland, and is now in charge of an successful independent church there. When Rev. Van Der Valk returned to his native land he was reinstated in the church there and given a charge. He had difficulties with his wife and after obtaining a divorce married a 17-year-old girl in London. He then returned to Rotterdam and started the independent church.

Fought a Mad Dog.

In a desperate battle with a mad dog, Frank Anson, prominent farmer of Prairieville township, was badly bitten. Hearing a commotion among his stock, Anson seized a club and attacked the dog which turned upon him. The animal turned toward Richmond, passed through several herds and bit many hogs. A farmer named Chatterton finally shot it. All stock bitten has been quarantined.

Attorney General Clement, of North Carolina, has decided that the state is not required to care for John Earley, the Lynn leper whose affliction was discovered in Washington, where he is now isolated. This puts it up to the United States to care for him. He is an ex-soldier.

A TEXAS CLERGYMAN

Speaks Out for the Benefit of Suffering Thousands.

Rev. G. M. Gray, Baptist Clergyman, of Whitesboro, Tex., says, "Four years ago I suffered miserably with lumbago. Every movement was one of pain. Doan's Kidney Pills removed the whole difficulty after only a short time. Although I do not like to have my name used publicly, I make an exception in this case, so that other sufferers from kidney trouble may profit by my experience."

AND SHE LEFT HIM GUESSING.

Woman's Directions of Little Help to Traveling Lawyer.

A New York lawyer was called recently to a hamlet in Berks county, Pennsylvania, in the interest of a large coal corporation, and now he is telling this story on himself.

He was driving along a country road and feared he might have lost his bearings. The village he wanted to reach seemed elusive, so he halted in front of a farmhouse to make inquiries.

"Madam," he called out to a broad German woman, who stood looking at him from beneath a "poke" bonnet, "can you tell me how far it is to the next village?"

"Oh, yust a leedle ways," came the response.

"But my good woman, how far is it? Is it two, four, six or eight miles? That's what I want to know."

"Yah, I tinks so."

And the Wall street lawyer drove on a wiser man.

THREE CURES OF ECZEMA.

Woman Tells of Her Brother's Terrible Suffering—Two Babies Also Cured—Cuticura Invaluable.

"My brother had eczema three different summers. Each summer it came out between his shoulders and down his back, and he said his suffering was terrible. When it came on the third summer, he bought a box of Cuticura Ointment and gave it a faithful trial. Soon he began to feel better and he cured himself entirely of eczema with Cuticura. A lady in Indiana heard of how my daughter, Mrs. Miller, had cured her little son of terrible eczema by the Cuticura Remedies. This lady's little one had the eczema so badly that they thought they would lose it. She used Cuticura Remedies and they cured her child entirely, and the disease never came back. Mrs. Sarah B. Lusk, Coldwater, Mich., Aug. 15 and Sept. 2, 1907."

Danger in New York Roads. There is an average of seven car collisions a day on the steam, subway, elevated and surface railways of New York.

HOUSE WORK

Thousands of American women in our homes are daily sacrificing their lives to duty.

In order to keep the home neat and pretty, the children well dressed and tidy, women overdo. A female weakness or displacement is often brought on and they suffer in silence, drifting along from bad to worse, knowing well that they ought to have help to overcome the pains and aches which daily make life a burden.

It is to these faithful women that

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND comes as a boon and a blessing, as it did to Mrs. F. Ellsworth, of Mayville, N. Y., and to Mrs. W. P. Boyd, of Beaver Falls, Pa., who say:

"I was not able to do my own work, owing to the female trouble from which I suffered. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me wonderfully, and I am so well that I can do as big a day's work as I ever did. I wish every sick woman would try it."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has aided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

THE MORNING LUNCH.

REATHES there a man with soul so dead, Who never to himself bath said: "Well, set the alarm ahead to-night I must get up before daylight. And see the sun rise o'er the lake. Suppose a picnic lunch I take?" "Yes, I'll fix eggs cro' quettes," she said. "And sandwiches of thin, white bread. When eggs boil hard, they're more nutritious. Chopped up with bread crumbs they're delicious. Then fry in fat—they're quite good cold. A bottle, full as it will hold. Of coffee, dear, you'd better take. In case your dear old head should ache. A grape-fruit would taste mighty nice. I'll sweeten, and put on the ice."

But lo, the early morning sun Had three hours of his journey done. Let this man sleep on tardily. For when the alarm went off at three. With crash and bang and whirling shock. He muttered: "Oh, confound that clock!" And groaned: "We went to bed so late." Turned over—snored—and slept till eight.

TRY TO REMEMBER

That muscatel raisins give the best flavor in cooking, and are not more expensive than others if you will buy them loose, not bunched. That if the sediment be allowed to collect in vases, the flowers will not keep well. Clean them with ammonia and bits of paper.

That common salt, freely sprinkled about the bread box, etc., will keep away the black ants.

That borax used in the laundry will keep the clothes from turning yellow. And, too, that borax "fixes" the colors. That most frosting is spoiled by the addition of too much water to the sugar. Use barely enough to dissolve it.

THAT "HOUSEHOLD" STUNT.

VE forgotten, I've forgotten— Everything I ever knew Since the many "Household" columns Tell us women what to do! "Boiled eggs throw at once in water. That is cold—but, like as not, I'll forget and fall so wondering. If it had not been so hot!" "Jelly, made of quince and apple. Thickens very easily. But I read somewhere: 'Add lemon.' I forget such points, you see."

And I think I've heard, "Clothes whiten if you'll add some peroxide. Yet at times it doubt arises— Possibly it is benzine!" "Water in the double boiler. Quicker boils if you add salt. But if once it added sugar, Was at really my fault?"

For so much advice is given In the many "Household" stunts, Is it really any wonder "That I feel myself a dunce?"

Spanish Pudding.— This has all the ingredients of an ordinary bread pudding, but the style of making gives a change.

Put two tablespoons granulated sugar over the fire, let it get brown, but not black. When it has cooled, add two cups milk. Stir it over the fire, and the sugar will blend with the milk. Now mix together three ounces raisins, three tablespoons sugar, the yolk and juice of one lemon and 1/2 of a pound of bread cut up into small cubes. Add the browned milk, when the mixture cools add two beaten eggs and a glass of wine. Bake in a buttered mold.

One Egg Cake.— One cup sugar and two tablespoons butter beaten to a cream. Beat one egg very light, add to it one cup cold water and beat again. Mix with the sugar and butter; add a pinch of salt and one heaping teaspoon baking powder sifted with two and one-half cups flour. Add flavoring desired, stir all thoroughly together and bake in a moderate oven 45 minutes.

A Tasty Left-Over.— Whatever it is—lamb, veal, beef—anything in the way of meat—chop it fine, add the same quantity of boiled rice, season well, add minced onion, and a teaspoon of curry powder. Make into croquettes and fry in deep fat. If the curry flavor is not liked, omit it; a bit of chopped green pepper may be added instead.

Peach Surprise.— Open freestone peaches and remove the stone; refill with candy—preferably chocolate cream, and fasten together with ribbon or moisten well with melted sugar and the halves will stick.

New Tablecloths.— Should always be made half a yard longer than necessary. Then, when the folded part begins to wear, cut off one end, thus bringing the creases in a new place.

Grass Stains on Linen.— They may be removed by soaking the article in kerosene and tightly wrapping for an hour. Then wash in soap and water as hot as the hands can bear.

A SIMPLE SAFEGUARD IN BUYING PAINT.

Everybody should know how simple and easy it is to avoid all uncertainty in buying paint materials. There are many so-called white leads on the market, which contain chalk, zinc, barytes, and other cheap adulterants. Unless the property owner takes advantage of the simple means of protection afforded him by reliable white lead manufacturers, he runs great risk of getting an inferior and adulterated white lead.

It is to protect the paint-buyer against fraud and adulteration that National Lead Company, the largest makers of genuine Pure White Lead, place their famous "Dutch Boy" trademark on every keg of their product, an absolute guarantee of its purity and quality. Anyone who wants to make a practical test of white lead, and who wants a valuable free book about painting, should address National Lead Company, Woodbridge Bldg., New York, and ask for test equipment.

CARRIED GESTURE TOO FAR.

Boy's Action Possibly Appropriate, But Somewhat Unnecessary.

Vivian Burnett, the original of the still-remembered Little Lord Fauntleroy, at the Chicago convention discussed with a reporter a certain party maneuver.

"They went too far there," said Mr. Burnett. "They made themselves ridiculous by their excess. Do you know what they reminded me of? They reminded me of a juvenile ecstasist my mother often tells about. 'This lad, at a school treat, got up to recite the first piece of his life. He was ambitious; he wished to make a great success of his piece; and he had been told by his teacher that the secret of elocution was the gesture—for every phrase its fitting gesture. The opening line of the boy's selection was 'The comet lifts its tail of fire.' 'The overzealous boy, to fit its proper gesture to this line, lifted up the tail of his coat and held it out in a horizontal position.'"

AN OPTICAL ILLUSION.

The Professor—How remarkable! I can distinctly see a man in the moon. What an exceedingly plain person.

No Automobiles There.— "There are no automobiles on the golden streets of heaven," says the Whitsett Courier, "but they're giving lots of folks a chance to walk those golden streets. One of the contraptions arrived in town last week and during the first spin the owner took in it it pitched a blind mule on top of the town hall, with the man that was ridin' the mule. The mule was so mad it kicked the town clock to pieces, likewise kickin' a hole in the roof an' fallin' on the mayor, just as he had took his seat an' called council to order. Having landed in the midst of them, the mule walked slow and dignified to the front door an' then took to the woods."

Didn't Know Frogs.— A dignified army captain was once stationed in quarters near a pond in which were many bullfrogs.

The captain had never heard bullfrogs, and in the middle of the night, fairly distracted by their continuous bellowing, he descended the stairs in his robe de nuit, and said to the sentry:

"Sentry, tell the sergeant of the guard to drag the cow out of that marsh."

MOTHER AND CHILD
Both Fully Nourished on Grape-Nuts.

The value of this famous food is shown in many ways, in addition to what might be expected from its chemical analysis.

Grape-Nuts food is made of whole wheat and barley, is thoroughly baked for many hours and contains all the wholesome ingredients in these cereals.

It contains also the phosphate of potash grown in the grains, which Nature uses to build up brain and nerve cells.

Young children require proportionately more of this element because the brain and nervous system of the child grows so rapidly.

A Va. mother found the value of Grape-Nuts in not only building up her own strength but in nourishing her baby at the same time. She writes: "After my baby came I did not recover health and strength, and the doctor said I could not nurse the baby as I did not have nourishment for her, besides I was too weak."

"He said I might try a change of diet and see what that would do, and recommended Grape-Nuts food. I bought a pkg. and used it regularly. A marked change came over both baby and I."

"My baby is now four months old, is in fine condition, I am nursing her and doing all my work and never felt better in my life." "There's a Reason." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Cheerful Ignorance.— "You'd be surprised," said the woman who is supposed to be wise, "how many people are perfectly ignorant of the correct way to write acceptances and regrets when they are asked to entertainments. It would pay some enterprising woman to go around writing them for those who don't know how. You'd be amazed to see the people who come to me to ask how it is done or to get me to write them. And," she admitted, "if the truth must be told, I don't know so awfully much about it myself."

Kept Secret Many Years.— After keeping his secret for 24 years, David Henry has informed W. B. Bancroft of Altoona, Pa., that there is gold on the latter's farm on Brush mountain. Henry found the gold a quarter of a century ago when he was putting down a well, and determined to buy it, but he was unable to raise the money. Bancroft will begin prospecting at once.

Moral of the Derby.— It is, no doubt, sad to have to admit that British humanity obstinately declines to be cured of its love of horses and the backing thereof by any amount of experience. But the gambling instinct is ineradicable, and the most wise legislation can do is to control it within such limits as circumstances may prove to be practicable. —Fall-Mall Gazette.

Not Quite What She Meant.— The young man who received the following note from his fiancée would have been better pleased if she had employed a comma or two: "Jack Huggard called yesterday. Jack couldn't have heard of our engagement, for before leaving he proposed. I told him I was sorry I was engaged to you." —Boston Transcript.

The Continent of Lemuria.— There was also supposed to be a prehistoric continent that occupied the greater portion of what is now the Indian ocean. Madagascar is said to be a remnant of it. Scattered, an Englishman, has called this continent Lemuria, after monkey-like animals said to have inhabited it.

Seeking a Happy Medium.— "What do you intend to give to our campaign fund?" asked the political expert. "It's hard to decide," answered Mr. Dustin Stax. "The amount must, of course, be big enough to help the cause and at the same time small enough not to start a scandal."

Valuable Citizen.— "That large man thinks himself a pretty important personage in this place, doesn't he?" asked the stranger. "Important!" exclaimed the native. "Why, if you tell him we're having fine weather here, he swells up as if he thought he made it."

Boy Grades the Clergy.— Bishop Potter, at an ecclesiastical dinner in New York, read a Cooperstown schoolboy's essay on "Clergy men." The essay, which created much amusement, was as follows: "There are 2 kinds of clergymen. Bishops rectors and curates. The bishops tells the rectors to work and the curates have to do it. A curate is a thin married man but when he is a rector he gets fuller and can preach longer sermons and becomes a good man." —Washington Star.

Information and Gossip Picked Up Here and There in Washington.

Husky Babies Is Aim of Uncle Sam

WASHINGTON.—Uncle Sam wants to raise a new brand of babies, one that shall be of beef and brawn, nerve and muscle. And he has set about it in a businesslike way.

In the first place, the bureau of chemistry of the department of agriculture, under the direction of Harvey H. Wiley, will find out what foods now prepared for infants are really foods. If it is discovered that they are not foods at all, but cracked bran and canned mustard-poultices there will be trouble.

After the results of the inquiry is concluded mothers will be sent lists of foods proper for the use of babies.

From physicians, manufacturers, and specialists in children's diseases there will be collected data tending to show the causes which render children ill, and then they will be asked to give information, based on their years of experience, which will advise the proper sort of nourishment and treatment for children, not only to avoid disease, but to build better babies.

Dr. Wiley believes that in a few years he will see the results of his experiments in a race of husky young giants, to whom sickness and ill health will be a rarity. To first remove the cause for illness and then replace poor food with good will be the aim of the experiment, and the results are expected to be evident in the human machine thus constructed.

The movement is the result of numerous inquiries from parents and others who have suggested that there might be a possibility of impurities in children's foods. For a time experiments on a small scale have been carried on, but it has been made apparent to Dr. Wiley that a more extensive investigation into the subject will not only reveal the fact that there are impurities in the foods now offered on the market, but will show a way to bring about better conditions of health for children generally.

THIS town is to be subjected to one of the most thorough housecleaning operations that have ever been performed hereabouts, and it is the belief of those who will have the job in charge that the old town will be quite a decent and sweet smelling place to live in after the cleaning process has been completed.

The reason for so much activity on the part of those interested in the health of the good citizens of Washington is a report in the Canal Zone Record which shows that while the average of temperature and humidity in the zone and Washington are about the same, the death rate in the zone, the difference in population considered, is considerably less than here.

Sanitary experts express themselves as being shocked at the conditions existing here, and in many other American cities, after what has been accomplished under most discouraging conditions on the Isthmus of Panama. They say that there is absolutely no excuse for the prevalence of such conditions, and so far as Washington is concerned, a determined effort will be made to eliminate them.

Government bacteriologists, chemists and experts in other branches of science are now investigating the conditions prevailing in many hotels and restaurants, among them some of the best in the city, and it is said that a number of warrants will be issued for the arrest of some of the proprietors of these establishments. The housecleaning is to be general and thorough; the nation's capital will be turned inside out, stood on its end, and turned upside down, and the scraping, dusting, spraying and touching up it will receive will be a surprise to the natives.

Don't think that piles can't be cured. Thousands of obstinate cases have been cured by Doan's Ointment, 50 cents at any drug store.

Looking for the Angel.
A new city settlement worker was going the rounds of her district one bright spring morning. In a crowded tenement some five or six little children gazed inquiringly at her as she entered. "Well, well, children," she said, "I never saw so many soiled faces in my life. Why don't you use some soap and water?" "We are waiting for the angel, mum," replied Tommy Tuft. "What angel?" asked the young woman. "Why, de lady dat coms frus here last week and give one of de kids a nickel to wash his face."

New Method of Resuscitation.
A simple method for resuscitation from asphyxia is reported by Dr. W. Freudenthal of Berlin. He introduced the index finger into the mouth and moved it to and fro over the epiglottis, causing an effort to swallow, which was immediately followed by a return of respiration. This proved successful when the older methods failed, while it makes severe traction on the tongue unnecessary.

Age of the Legal Wig.
The use of wigs by judges and barristers is not very ancient. It was introduced, I imagine, toward the end of the seventeenth or at the beginning of the eighteenth century, when it had become the fashion at court. Bishops continued to use wigs longer than their clergy, but they have discarded them, to their great advantage, for many years now.—London Morning Post.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL.
Health is Worth Saving, and Some Northville People Know How to Save It.

Many Northville people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all diseases and aches and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is a Northville citizen's recommendation.
J. M. Ambler, living on Main street, Northville, Mich., says: "Some five years ago Doan's Kidney Pills, which I procured at Murdoch Bros' drug store were used by Mrs. Ambler and myself with most satisfactory results. We both suffered from sort of rheumatic pains in the back over the region of the kidneys. I often felt as though it was impossible to go about my work. We tried several remedies but were not benefited until we began using Doan's Kidney Pills. Their use gave us prompt relief. At that time I gave a statement telling our experience for publication in Northville. I can only add now that our faith in this remedy is as great as it was at that time."
