W.C.T.U. CONVENTION GREAT SUCCESS

LARGE ATTENDANCE OF DELEGATES FROM VARIOUS PLACES.

Miss Agnes Fairfax Winner in Grand Gold Medal Contest.

The thirty first Annual convention of the First district W. C. T. U. was held in the Methodist church here Thursday and Friday of last week and largely attended. It was a success from start to finish.

Mrs. E. L. Calkins, state president, was present and Thursday evening gave an address on the work of the W. C. T. U., what it had done in the past and what it expected to do in the future. Mrs. J. B. Tinham, Miss Anne Jerome and a ladies' quartet furnished excellent music for the occasion.

On Friday evening occurred the Grand Gold Medal contest under the direction of Mrs. M. E. Butler of Detroit. There were seven contestants, among them one colored girl, Miss Agnes Fairfax, who was awarded the medal. The program was interspersed with several fine selections of vocal music.

The ladies of the Northville W. C. T. U. are to be congratulated on their part in conducting the meetings and the tasteful manner in which the church was decorated.

Library Benefit Entertainment.

As previously noted, Mrs. Helen Chaffee Workman, principal of the Noble school of elocution in Detroit, has been secured by the Library association to give another of her charming recitals next Tuesday, Nov. 17, in the Library. Everyone who heard Mrs. Workman when last here was delighted and all are anxious to hear her again, as her work is of a class not often obtainable outside the cities. This program will be entirely different from the other and those who miss hearing her will certainly miss a rare treat. The admission price is 20 cents, the same as last year.

GEORGE A. WALTERS.

Former Northville boy and well known newspaper reporter on the Detroit Free Press has been appointed secretary of the Detroit police commission. Mr. Walters married some years ago Miss Ethel Johnson, daughter of Mrs. Hoel Johnson, of Northville and he is well and favorably known here where his many friends will be glad to know of his promotion.

OPERA HOUSE NORTHVILLE

Christy & Basset are Coming Friday Evening, Nov. 20, at 8 o'clock.

Christy and Basset, the foremost entertainers at the present day, will be at the Northville Opera House on Friday evening, Nov. 20, in their up to date marvelous art of ledger-main, magic, sleight-of-hand, spirit slate writing, Indian strength test, the Hindoo mystery old English stocks—bring along your padlocks for this number—the great sack and packing box trick greatest of mystery.

Flowers for the ladies, a clean, refined and educating entertainment for old and young. Concert by Michigan Military Academy orchestra. Admission, first 5 front rows, 35c; rest of lower house 25c; balcony 15c. Advance ticket sale at Park House.

William Christy entertained the company for about an hour with sleight of hand tricks. Christy did some very fine tricks and mystified every one present. Among other stunts he released himself from a chair where he had been firmly tied with double rope and removed every knot in the rope, while two men held firmly hold of the ends of the same.

—Pontiac Press.

One of the pleasantest entertainments of the year was given on Friday evening by Mr. Christy. As a sleight of hand performer Mr. Christy is an accomplished artist and he aroused the interest and enthusiasm of the large audience of cadets and friends of the school—M. M. A. Athletics.

Presbyterian Church Notes.

(By the Pastor.)

Mrs. Marshall and Miss Berry of Detroit were welcome visitors in our congregation on Sunday morning.

The kind friend who has supplied the pulpit with flowers through the winter has again remembered us this year.

Many of the Sunday school children have expressed their sympathy for little Freddie Neil by gifts of toys and flowers.

The Ladies' Missionary society held a successful meeting at Mrs. E. H. Lapham's on Wednesday and a large number of guests enjoyed the bountiful supper.

The sermon Sunday morning will treat the subject of Prayer which has been discussed in the Bible class for several Sundays.

Next Sunday evening the pastor will begin a series of sermons on "The Gospel of the Body." The first sermon will be "The Gospel of the Eye."

Card of Thanks.

We wish to express our appreciation of all the assistance rendered us during our convention, especially that given by the ministers, speakers and musicians.

Northville W. C. T. U.

Auction Sale.

G. D. Spencer will have a Chattel mortgage sale of the household goods of John Taylor at the Banfield House in Wixom on Saturday, Nov. 21, beginning at 1 o'clock sharp.

Methodist Church Notes.

(By the Pastor.)

The Pastor attended the State Sunday school convention in Detroit yesterday.

The chicken pie dinner Tuesday evening was well patronized and the ladies realized about $44.

Baptist Church Notes.

(By the Pastor.)

The Cottage prayer meeting will be announced from the desk Sunday.

The B. Y. P. U. topic next Sunday evening is, "Temperance." Besides the usual meeting some recitations will be given.

We hope the ladies will not forget to save their old papers and when they have a bundle if they will notify Mrs. Brock they will be called for.

Rev. Musser closed his series of sermons on "The Church" topic last Sunday morning and will speak next Sunday morning on the theme "Set Your Mind on Things Above."

Rev. Musser will speak Sunday evening on the topic "The Road to Heaven." If you are an aspirant to this elder will help you to attain it. Are you anxious? So is he. Come and hear him.

School Notes.

(By a Pupil.)

Hazel Gladding of the Seventh grade is ill.

Clyde Card is a new pupil in the First grade.

The Second grade pupils are studying about the Pilgrims.

The Third grade pupils are studying about Thanksgiving.

Ethel Carpenter and Helen Ward are new pupils in the Seventh grade.

The Second grade's spelling books for this week are shaped like pumpkins.

The Second grade pupils have done some very pretty scenes in charcoal this week.

The Fifth grade has a new window box which the pupils intend to fill with flowers.

In the Third grade calendar for November there is no Thanksgiving day as a turkey is running away with the date.

The A. Seventh pupils have finished reading Shakespeare's Hamlet and have taken up "The Tempest" by the same author.

On the blackboard in the First grade room is a pumpkin coach drawn by a turkey and the calendar for the month is printed on the coach.

The Second grade pupils have evidently begun to think about Thanksgiving as their calendar for this month is decorated with turkeys.

Miss Ranger has resigned her position as teacher of the Kindergarten for the present on account of illness and Miss Willis of Detroit is taking her place.

Mrs. Preston, one of the W. C. T. U. workers, spoke to the High school pupils last Friday afternoon, ending with a comic recitation which was enjoyed by all.

GOVERNOR'S STATEMENT REVIEWING THE BATTLE

Is Re-elected by Majority Approximating 10,000.

Gov. Warner last week issued the following statement:

"During the campaign, both for nomination and election, it was a pleasure for me to visit numerous sections of the state and have a chance to meet such a large number of our people. While my majority was not as large as I had hoped, yet it must be remembered in this connection that I had arrayed against me every dissatisfied element in the politics of our state and was charged with almost everything with which a man in public life could be charged. These charges were wholly groundless. In many cities, candidates who stood for the strict enforcement of the liquor laws were snowed under, while in the same cities my opponent received overwhelming majorities. And yet one of the most persistent charges made against me throughout the state was that I was in league with the liquor interests. In Grand Rapids many temperance voters joined hands with the liquor element in opposing me, the one because I appointed as circuit judge a man who regularly stood for the strict enforcement of the liquor laws.

"In view of the nature of the campaign made against me it is gratifying to have received a majority of the more than a half million votes cast by the electors of Michigan last Tuesday.

"In this campaign the head of the ticket was singled out for attack and the entire energies of the combined opposition centered upon me. This seems to have been quite general throughout the country this year, the result being that in Ohio, Indiana and three other states the democrats elected their candidate for governor in spite of the fact that Taft carried the states by good majorities, while in New York and Illinois Gov. Hughes and Gov. Deneen, who are deservedly such prime favorites with the people of the country generally, fell behind Taft even farther than I did in Michigan.

"I wish to assure the people of Michigan that I harbor no resentment against anyone and that as chief executive of the state I shall, as during the past four years, know no clique or faction in any party or element of our population, but shall endeavor to deal fairly and justly with all parties and all interests, having in mind solely the protection and advancement of all the people of our great state. And to this end I cordially invite the co-operation of all good citizens."

A Day with Dollars in It.—"It was such a clear bright, beautiful weather yesterday," says a Georgia editor, "that you could see a silver dollar half a mile, with a bill collector ten steps behind it—and, of course, he had a better chance to get it than you had. Heaven send us more beautiful weather, and more silver dollars!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Baldheads as Immunes.—It has been said that there are no bald headed men in the asylums for the insane. We suspect this is true; at least, save for rare and unimportant exceptions. This is an important thing for the anti-baldheads to speculate upon, it may well furnish them food for serious and earnest thought.

Clara Morris and Husbands.—It is folly to call the husbands the head of the house; he is not, says Clara Morris, the famous actress in housekeeper. It is but a courtesy title at best, since in truth he is but an indent in the home life, while the wife and mother is its whole existence; literally the sun of domestic happiness rises and sets in the face of the wife and mother.

Beware of Mind Wobbling.—To a certain degree we are the masters of our fate and the captains of our souls—as the poet says. By strong will and fidelity to ideals we can rise superior to circumstances. The trouble is that many waste time in letting their minds wobble. Get over the undecided habit of mind wobbling.

SYNOPSIS:

Mr. Solomon Pratt began comical narration of story, introducing well-to-do Nathan Scudder of his town, and Edward Van Brunt and Martin Hartley, two rich New Yorkers seeking rest. Because of latter pair's lavish expenditure of money, Pratt's first impression was connected with lunatics. The arrival of James Hopper, Van Brunt's valet, gave Pratt the desired information about the New Yorkers. They wished to live what they termed "The Natural Life." Van Brunt, it was learned, was the successful suitor for the hand of Miss Agnes Page, who gave Hartley up "The Heavens" hear a long story of the domestic woes of Mrs. Hannah Jane Purvis, their cook and maid of all work. Decide to let her go and engage Sol. Pratt as chef.

"And while we're giving you the story of our lives, skipper," says Hartley, with one of his half smiles, "I want to say right here that our present surroundings aren't all that fancy painted 'em. They're too much in the line light." This was just one of his crazy ways of saying things; I was getting used to 'em a little by now. "We're too prominent," he says. "The populace are too friendly and interested."

"Also," says Van, "the select bunch of females from the hotel have taken to making our front walk a sort of promenade. Martin and I are naturally shy, we pine for solitude."

There was more of this, but I managed to find out that what they wanted was a quiet place than Scudder's. A place off by itself, where they could be as natural as a picked chicken. I agreed to try and help 'em find such a place. And I said, too, that I'd think about the cooking idea. Money didn't seem to be no object—I could have my wages by the hod or barrelful—just as I see fit.

"Well," says I, getting up to go. "I'll see. Let me sleep on it for a spell, same's you fellows have done on Nate's pin-leaf beds. But I ain't so sure about your staying all summer. How about that young lady friend of yours, Mr. Van Brunt? She may take a notion to send for you to introduce her to the king of China or the grand panjandrum with the little round bottom on top. Then you'd have to pack up and cut your cable."

"Van," he looked hard at me for a minute. I thought first he was mad at me for putting my oar in where it wasn't supposed to be. Then he laughed. "Sol," says he, "that young lady and I are kindred spirits. For a year I'm natural and happy, and she can nurse her Heavens and go on charky sprees. Then—well, then we fall back on our respected parents and wedded—er—bliss. Hey, Martin?"

Hartley, in the shadow of the vines, lit another cigar and nodded. But he didn't say nothing.

For the next three or four days I chased around trying to find a house and lot where them Heavenly lunatics could be natural. I located a couple of bully summer places, all trees and windmills and posy beds and hot and cold water and land knows what. But they wouldn't do, they "smelled of coupons," Van said. What they really wanted, or thought they wanted, was a state's prison in a desert. I judged.

For a week or ten days we kept the hunt up, but didn't have no luck. Whenever I'd think I'd uncovered a promising outfit the Heavens would turn to and dump in a cargo of objections and bury it again. After five or six funerals of this kind I got sort of tired and quit. It got to be July and their month at Nate's was 'most over. I was up there the evening of the third and I happened to ask 'em if they wanted me and the sloop for the next day. There was to be a Fourth of July celebration over to Eastwich and some of the boarders wanted to go and see the balloon and the races and the greased pig chase, and such like. If the Twins didn't care I'd take the job, I said. But they took a notion to go themselves. Van said 't would be an excuse for me to give 'em another chowder, if nothing more. So, on the morning of the Fourth we started, me and Van Brunt and Hartley and Lord James, in the Dora Bassett. Talk about cruises. If I'd known—and yet out of it come—But there! let me tell you about it.

CHAPTER IV.

The Pig Race.

I don't callate that I ever had a better run down the bay than I done that morning. 'Twas a fair wind, and a smooth sea, not the slick, greasy kind, but with little blue waves chasing each other and going "Spit! spit!" under the Dora Bassett's quarter as she danced over 'em. And that's just what she did—dance. There wasn't any hog-wallowing for her; she just picked up her skirts, so to speak, and tripped along—towing the little landing skiff astern of her—like a 16-year-old girl going to a surprise party.

An early July morning on the bay down our way is good enough for yours truly, Solomon Pratt. Take it with the wind and water like I've said; with the salt smell from the marshes drifting out from the shore, mixed up with the smell of the pitch-pines on the bluffs, and me in the stern of a good boat with the tiller in my hand and a pipe in my face—well, all right! That's my natural life; and I don't need no book to tell me so, neither.

The Heavens enjoyed it, and they'd ought to. 'Twas clear then, though it got hazy over to the eastward later on. But then, as I say, 'twas clear, and you could see the schooners strung out on the skyline, some full up, with their sails shining white in the sun, and others down over the edge, with only their tops'ls showing. Far off, but dead ahead, just as if somebody had dipped their finger in the bluing bottle and smouched it along the bottom of the sky, was the Wapatomac shore, and away aft, right over the stern, was the Trumet lighthouse, like a white chalk mark on a yellow fence, the fence being the high sand bank behind it.

The Twins laid back and soaked in the scenery. They unbuttoned their jackets and took long breaths. They actually forgot to smoke, which was a sort of miracle, as you might say, and even Hartley, who had been bluer than a spoiled mackerel all the morning, braced up and got real chipper. By and by they resurrected that book of managed to smile. As for Lord James he looked at me like I'd trod on the queen's corns.

Blessed if I could see what there was funny about it. Solon can play like an Injun. Why, I've seen him bust two strings at a Thanksgiving ball and then play "Mrs. McLeod's Reel"—you know, "Buckshee, nanny-goat, brown bread and beans"—on t'other two, till there wasn't a still foot in the hall.

We made Eastwich-Port about noon and had dinner. I cooked up a kettle of chowder—fetched the clams along with me from home—and 't would have done you good to see the Heavens lay into it. Lord James he skipped around like a hoppergrass in a hot skillet, fetching glasses and laying out nine or ten different kind of forks and spoons side of each plate, and opening wine bottles, and I don't know what all. When he hove in sight of the wharf that morning he was totting a basket pretty nigh as big as he was. I asked him what it was.

"Why, the 'amper," says he. "The which?" says I. "The lunch 'amper, of course," he says. "The 'amper for the heatables."

Well, I wondered then what in the nation was in it, for 'twas heavier than lead. I remember that the heft of it made me ask him if he fetched along some of the late Hannah-Jane's leftover-iz biscuit. But now I see why 'twas heavy. There was enough dishes and truck for ten men and the cook in that basket. We had my chowder and four kinds of crackers with it, and chicken and asparagus, and nine sorts of pickles, and canned plum pudding with sars, and coffee and good loud healthy cheese, and red wine and champagne. When I'd hoisted in enough of everything so my hatches wouldn't shut tight, and pulling on one of the Twins' cigars, I says to Van.

"Mi. Van Brunt," says I, 'is this part of what you call the Natural Life?"

"You bet, skipper!" says he. He hadn't finished the chowder end of the layout yet.

Well, I heaved a sigh. 'Twas kind of unnatural to me, having come on me all to once; but I cal'lated I could get used to it in time without shedding no tears. Didn't want to get used to it too quick, neither, I wanted the novelty to linger along, as you might say.

When the dinner was over—the Heavens was well enough acquainted with the family to nickname it "lunch"—I started in to help his lordship wash dishes. The Twins sprawled themselves under a couple of pine trees and blew smoke rings.

"Hurry up there, messmate," says I to the valet. "I want to get through time enough to run up to the fair grounds and see that greased pig race."

Hartley had been keeping so still I cal'lated he was dropping off to sleep, but it seems he wasn't. He set up, stretched, and got to his feet.

"T'll go with you, skipper," says he. "Might as well do that as anything. I've never seen a greased pig race. They don't have 'em on the Street."

"Chase nothing but lambs there," draws Van Brunt, lazy, and with his eyes half shut. Then he turned over and looked at his chum.

"Great Caesar! Martin," he says, "you don't mean to tell me that you're going up into that crowd of hayseeds to hang over a fence and watch some one run, do you? Why any one on God's earth should want to run," he says, "when they can keep still, is beyond me; and why you, of all men, should want to watch 'em do it—that's worse yet. Come here and be natural and decent."

But Hartley wouldn't do it. His blue streak seemed to have struck in again and he was kicking the sand, nervous-like, with his foot.

"Come on, Van," he says. "I want the walk."

"Not much," says Van. "Walking's almost as bad as running. I'll be here when you get back."

It may be that Hartley did want that walk, same as he said, but he didn't seem to get much fun out of it. Went pounding along, his cigar tipped up to the visor of his cap, and his eyes staring at the ground all the time. And he never spoke two words till we got to the fair grounds.

There was a dickens of a crowd, five or six hundred folks, I should think, and more coming all the time. Everybody that could come had borrowed the horses and carryalls of them that couldn't and had brought their wives and mothers-in-law and their children's children onto the third and fourth generation. There was considerable many summer folks—not so many as there is at the cattle show in August—but a good many, just the same. I counted five automobiles, and I see the Barry folks from Trumet riding round in their four-horse coach and putting on airs enough to make 'em lop-aided.

Hartley gave one look around at the gang and his nose turned up to 15 o'clock.

"Gad!" says he, "this, or something like it, is what I've been trying to get away from. Come on, Sol. Let's go back to the boat."

But I hadn't seen so many shows as he had and I wanted to stay.

"You wait a spell, Mr. Hartley," says I. "Let's cruise round a little first."

So we went shoving along through the crowd, getting our toes tramped on and dodging peddlers and such like every other minute. There was the "test-your-strength" machine and the merry-go-round and the "ossified man" in a tent. "Walk right up, gents, and cast your eyes on the greatest marvel of the age all alive and solid stone—only two nickels a dime ten cents," and all the rest of it. Pretty soon we come to where the feller was selling the E Pluribus Unum candy—red, white and blue, and a slab as big as a brick for a dime.

Hartley stopped and stares at it.

"For heaven's sake!" says he.

"What do they do with that?"

"Do with it?" says I. "Eat it, of course."

"No?" he says. "Not really?"

"Humph!" I says. "You just wait a shake."

There was a little red headed youngster scooting in and out among the folks' knees and I caught him by the shoulder. "Hi, Andrew Jackson!" says I. "Want some candy?"

He looked up at me as pert and sassy as a blackbird on a scarecrow's shoulder.

"Bet your natural!" says he. I jumped.

"Lord!" says I, "I cal'late he knows you."

Hartley, smiled. "How do they sell that—that Portland cement?" says he. "Give me some," he says, holding a half dollar to the feller behind the oil cloth counter. The man chiseled off enough for a fair sized tombstone and handed it out. Hartley passed it to the boy. He bit off a hunk that made him look like he had the mumps all on one side, and commenced to crunch it.

"There!" says I. "That's proof enough, ain't it?"

But he wasn't satisfied. "Wait a minute," says he. "I want to see what it does to him."

Well, it didn't do nothing, apparently, except to make the little shaver's jaws sound like a rock crusher, so we went on. By and by we come to the fence alongside of the place where they had the races. The sack race was on, half a dozen fellers hopping around 'tied up in meal bags, and we see that Then Hartley was for going home again, but I managed to hold him. The greased pig was the next number on the dance order and I wanted to see it.

Maj. Philander Phinney, he's chairman of the Eastwich selectmen and pretty nigh half as big as he thinks he is; he stood on tip-toe on the judge's stand and bellowed that the greased pig contest was open to boys under 15, and that the one that caught the pig and hung on to it would get five dollars. In less than three shakes of a herring's hind leg there was boys enough on that field to start a reform school. They ranged all the way from little chaps who ought to have been home cutting their milk teeth to "boys" that had yellow fuzz on their chins and a plug of chewing tobacco in their pants' pocket. They fetched in the pig shut up in a box with laths over the top. He was little and black and all shining with grease. Then they stretched a rope across one end of the race field and lined up the pig-chasers behind it.

"Hello!" says Hartley, "there's our Portland cement youngster. He'll never run with that marble quarry inside of him."

Sure enough, there was the boy that had tackled the candy. I could see his red head blazing like a lightning bug alongside of a six-foot infant with overalls and a promising crop of side whiskers. Next thing I knew the starter—Issachar Tiddit, 'twas—he opens the lid to the pig box and hollers "Go!"

The line dropped. That little lone pig see 20 odd pair of hands shooting towards him, and he fetched a yell like a tugboat whistle and put down the field, with the whole crew behind him. The crowd got on tiptoe and stretched their necks to see. Everybody hollered and hurrahd and "haw, hawed."

Warner's Victory.

The political enemies of Governor Warner are welcome to such cold comfort as they may get from the comparatively small majority with which he won. The thing which will stick in their crop, however, is that Warner will be governor of Michigan for a third time, quite as much selected by a majority equalled Taft's.

The supporters of Governor Warner may well congratulate themselves upon the victory achieved. The proportions of this victory may only be realized when one gives consideration to the strength of the opposing forces. First, Warner was compelled to meet the unrelenting, indelible and unscrupulous opposition of the political corporations of the state. He was also confronted with the combined opposition of the remnants of what once was an all-powerful state machine. He was embarrassed because of the Glazier episode, and the Glazier affair, for which no reasonable, unprejudiced man could hold Warner in the slightest degree responsible, probably cost him more votes than all of the other causes of disaffection combined. An unfriendly element, local in character, was the undivided hate of Arthur Hill and his friends in the Saginaw valley. It becomes not at all difficult to understand the size of Warner's majority.

To the people of the state at large Warner's victory means much, since his election is accompanied by the election of a legislature, the majority whose members are progressive. It means that Michigan will for the first time have effective and adequate control of public service corporations, that the criminal practice of over-capitalization will be checked; that an intelligent effort will be made to eliminate a corrupt lobby; that all corporate property will be taxed upon an ad valorem basis and best of all, that Michigan will be given a plainly worded, easily-worked, state-wide primary election law.

The state campaign in Michigan which just closed was a crucial one in which the people themselves placed their mark of approval upon the progressive reforms of the Warner administration.—Soo News.

Not Bankrupt.

Some Democratic papers are having a cat-nip fit telling that the state treasury is bankrupt. The fact of the matter is that Auditor General Bradley has just paid out all the primary school money in one lump instead of a part of it now and the balance in January or February as he had done in previous years. This leaves a shortage until the taxes come in in January. We might just as well say the township of Northville is bankrupt because it has borrowed a few hundred dollars to take care of the town's expenses until the taxes are paid in December and January. Quite often the village of Northville borrows money for a month or two but Northville comes a good way from being bankrupt. It is just as well to borrow once in a while as to force the taxpayers to raise a half million dollars extra to lay idle in the state treasury for eleven other months.

If the Republican party can only keep Bryan in the presidential race another twelve years.

TRADE MARKS.

Sherlock Holmes Picks Out the Vagabonds and Labels Them.

Sherlock Holmes, seated on the board walk, languidly inspected a pair of oysters in his hand.

"My dear Watson," said the detective, "let us begin at once by picking out the occupations of these vagabonds. In their cheap white flannels they all look like millionaires, but—ba, ha—what a delusion!"

There goes a waiter. Waiters are to be told by the size of their feet and the soft, careful way they set them down.

The man in the imitation Panama hat is a tanner. His clear and ruddy complexion gives him away. The tanning trade imparts to the face a peculiar healthy look. Why shouldn't it? What is good for dead skins must be good for living ones.

She is a cook, the stout, scarlet lady getting weighed. Her fire, of course, gave her that unmistakable color, but it was not the eating of food that made her so fat. No; cooks have notoriously poor appetites. It was the inhalation that filled her out.

He little, thin chap in the large walking suit is a groom. All good combs are small and bowlegged and have all wear tight trousers and are apt to brown.

Do you see, my dear Watson, the tiny man whose overtures the girl in white just repulsed? Well, he is a man. The muscles in his face tell it. Actors, you know, by the constant practice of expression, develop muscles as marked as the muscles of a baseball pitcher.

CURIOUS P.

Tribe Where Sister, a Man's P.

A Methodist minister, Rev. W. E. Brown, of the world's known, and little known, north Pacific island, and partial taming.

The race in question, 23,000 blacks, living in the Dobu. The customs are most curious.

The immigration is more drastic than that of Italy, for all strangers are to be given full members of the tribe. When dining, the brown low, however, the man was got over by making him a member of the tribe.

Each tribe and each family had their own land, and no man is allowed to go out of the possession except as a loan for a season's crop. The men marry out of their own tribe and on their death their land becomes the property of their sisters' children.

Women have great influence in the affairs of the tribe, and their duties are quite distinct from those of the men. The men clear the bush and dig the ground, then the women prepare it and plant yams the crop being theirs. If a man wants any yams he has to ask for them. The banana patch, however, is his own property.

Wives are obtained by purchase. If a man pays well for his wife he can thrash her occasionally, but she could leave him if she did not like it, and go back to her own village.

Their heaven is a place where the healthy, strong and good-looking go. All the others go to hell.—London Chronicle.

Thieves and Humor.

The reason why crooks are such thieves is that they have a car case of humor. The street is their pocket while he grins.

"It is only stupid thieves who are serious. Poor Oliver Twist's seriousness was the cause of his arrest."

The humor of the Artful Dodger and Charlie Bates saved them.—Strand Magazine.

Charity Begins at Home.

In regard to the duties of the clubwoman to her own family a writer, in a current periodical says: "The husband and home have the first claim on a wife's individual attention, it being a consideration of the proper meeting of domestic demands that she receives her board, lodging and such other emoluments as are her portion."

For, apart from sentimental considerations marriage is a business arrangement on a cash basis and a woman is no more justified in delegating her obligations to a hireling, who can not possibly be a qualified substitute, than she would be in undertaking a commercial position on a salary and then turning over a part of her important work to the office boy while collecting the pay for full service."

DANGER IN DELAY.

Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous for Northville People to Neglect.

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get a firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease follow in merciless succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Cure the kidneys with the certain and safe remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, which has cured people right here in Northville.

Mrs. George Brown, living two miles west of Northville, Mich., says: "I cannot say too much in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills. I suffered from kidney trouble for about a year, having terrible pains across my back and in my hips. The kidneys were irregular in action and my sleep at nights was disturbed. After sitting for a time my back would pain me acutely if I attempted to arise. I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and had my husband procure a box at Murdock Bros' drug store. I obtained great relief from their use and my backache entirely left me and my kidneys became normal and regular. My health also greatly improved and I give Doan's Kidney Pills the credit."

Freddie, the little four year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Neil of Bealton, while trying to catch onto a wagon Monday, was thrown under the wheels, the wagon passing over him crushing his leg between the knee and hip. The driver picked the little fellow up and carried him into the Presbyterian parsonage where he was cared for by Mr. and Mrs. Jerome until Dr. Burgess arrived and reduced the fracture. Later he was taken to his home and is getting along as well as can be expected.

Delicate Instruments.

The amount of work done by the work of an eye equals 100,000,000,000 of the winks marked on the scale of a delicate instrument; but even this performance is surpassed by the "coherers" of Branley of Paris, by which the Hertz waves of wireless telegraphy are caught in their pulsings through space.

MOTHERS CAN'T RESIST IT.

With a pony as a "property," on the part of photographers have been taking a harvest. The pony is of the red and white variety and "cacho" in its color.

A mother who can not find the position of having her child photographed, astride of "the pony," has not yet been found," one of the photographers explained. "We get from four to ten orders in each block in a well populated neighborhood. All sorts of subterfuges are used by the women. One of them forced us to 'rehearse' baby on the pony for a half hour before the picture was taken. She wanted some of the pictures on post cards, she said, so she could send copies to friends back east. She wished baby to look natural on the animal so that the eastern friends would think the family out here had 'struck it rich' and were maintaining a stable of saddlers."

"Another woman who was not satisfied to allow the picture taken with her modest home in the background, asked us to take the picture over in the next block, where there was an unoccupied house of rather pretentious exterior. We did it and the woman ordered two dozen copies. Babies look so 'cute' on the pony, the women say. Next year we are going to introduce a big, kind-faced Newfoundland dog as a property. Don't be surprised if you receive a picture of somebody's darlingest darling with its chubby hands lost in the wavy hair on the dog's neck. We've got Chauncey Olcott beaten to a whisper in rigging up 'cut' scenes."—Kansas City Star.

Less Beef, More Bacon.

The London Meat Trades' Journal figures that the United Kingdom imports of American and Canadian cattle show an 18 per cent. decrease for the first five months of this year, compared with last year, and 23 1/2 per cent with 1906. The American shipments of refrigerated beef fell off 404,479 hundredweight (of 112 pounds each) compared with the 1907 period, while the total increase of 30,889 was due to the heavy consignments from Argentina. A substantial increase of 37,238 hundredweight in the weight of bacon is due to the heavier shipments from the United States. The supplies from Canada and other countries being less.

Where the Octopus Abounds.

"The rocky coast of Brittany," said a life guard, "abounds in octopus; the weaver as they say down there."

"Walk a Breton beach at low tide—the beach of St. Lunaire, for instance—and you will easily find in a half mile a score or more of perfect cuttlefish of those friable white bones that birds love."

"They are" six inches to a foot or more in length, snowy and very prettily marked, they make nice ash trays. The peasants gather them for bird food, for ash trays, and also, I believe, for cigarette cases."

"They are bones of the octopus, and their abundance is a convincing proof of the octopus in those rock-strewn waters of France"—Minneapolis Journal.

The Cause of Colds

Good Advice Regarding the Prevention of Coughs and Colds.

If people would only properly fortify and strengthen their system about ninety-eight per cent of coughs, colds and pneumonia might be avoided. These troubles are simply the result of weakness, which produces a catarrhal condition of the mucous membrane, which is as an internal skin of the body. When this skin is weakened, it becomes infected with germs which are carried through the system by the blood. These parasites attack and break these delicate tissues and set up a soreness which produce what is in reality an external scrofula.

The only thing that will cure coughs and colds and prevent pneumonia is a medication which is absorbed and carried by the blood so that the diseased membrane is disinfected, cleaned, soothed and healed.

We have a remedy which we honestly believe infallible and unsurpassable for the prevention and cure of coughs, colds and all catarrhal conditions. It is the prescription of a famous physician, who has an enviable reputation of 39 years of cures gained through the use of this medicine. We promise to either effect a cure in every case or make no charge for the medicine. We urge everybody in Northville who has need of such a medicine to try Rexall Muc-Tone.

It stands to reason that we could not afford to make such statements and give our own personal guarantee to this remedy if we were not absolutely positive that we could substantiate our claim in every particular, and we see no reason why anyone should hesitate to accept our liberal offer and try it. We have two sizes of Rexall Muc-Tone. Prices 50c and $1.00. Some times a 50c bottle is sufficient for a cure. As a general thing, the most chronic case is cured with an average of three large bottles. Remember the medicine will cost you nothing if you are not satisfied in every particular. A. E. Stanley & Co., Northville, Mich.

BY WHEELBARROW IN CHINA.

Two Passengers Go 20 Miles a Day for Ten Cents Each.

Probably more freight and more passengers are transported in China by the wheelbarrow than by any other land method. The wheelbarrow used in China differs from that used in America in the fact that the wheel is set in the center and thus supports practically the entire load, while the handles are supported in part by a strap or rope over the shoulders of the man who operates it.

As a result the coolie in China will transport nearly half a ton on his wheel. Wheelbarrows are much used in the country where the roads are but little developed, and I have heard that passengers sometimes make the entire trip from Shanghai to Peking, a distance of 600 miles, by barrow.

A two passenger barrow will make about 20 miles a day, and the coache is content with a pay of about 20 cents a day, or an average of about half a cent a mile for each passenger.

On the level, well-kept streets of the foreign quarters of such cities as Hong Kong, Shanghai and Peking the wheelbarrow can be seen struggling along with its load of goods and people.
