NEW SCHOOL SUPERINT'D

PROF. HORNBERGER IS TO LEAVE NORTHVILLE THIS SUMMER.

Prof. LaRue of the U. of M. Engaged to Fill Vacancy.

After a successful period of six years as superintendent of the Northville schools Prof. Hornberger has tendered his resignation to take effect at the close of the present term. Prof. John D. LaRue, for years superintendent of the South Lyon school, has been engaged to take his place. Mr. LaRue comes to Northville highly recommended, both as a hustling young man and instructor. He is a graduate of the State Normal and holds a state certificate. He has taught ten years with marked success and will graduate from the U. of M. with a B. A. degree in June. Mr. LaRue's home is at Lakeview. He is twenty-seven years of age and is unmarried.

Prof. Hornberger has several good offers under consideration but has not yet made up his mind which he will accept. He has made a great success in the Northville schools and the people here in general will be exceedingly sorry to lose him and his delightful family from their midst.

CASE OF PNEUMONIA.

Little George Meisner Did Not Have Diphtheria.

George, the six year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Meisner died Saturday morning of pneumonia, being first taken down with chicken-pox. Following the death of this little boy an older son, Carl, came down with a mild case of diphtheria from which he is now nicely recovering. "The diphtheria scare in the case," says Dr. Henry the attending physician, "was wholly unwarranted. The boy who died had no symptoms whatever of that disease, not even a sore throat, and his death resulted from pneumonia of the left lung, he first having an attack of chicken-pox."

Health Officer Murdock has caused the family to be quarantined and the school rooms and halls, where the children had been, to be thoroughly disinfected and he does not apprehend any more cases will be heard of. The burial of George followed a brief private service Sunday morning from the home. Much sympathy is expressed for the bereaved parents in their sore affliction.

Methodist Church Notes.

(By the Pastor.)

Epworth League meeting Sunday evening at 6 o'clock. All are cordially invited to attend.

A fine class of members was received into the church Sunday. Five of these were baptized at the morning service.

The monthly business and social meeting of the King's Own Bible class will be held at the home of Mrs. Clyde Vanatta next Monday evening. Important business, a social hour and refreshments are the items that should assure a large attendance.

An enthusiastic meeting of church people was held Tuesday evening at which preliminary steps were taken toward a complete renovation and repair of the church. The meeting was apparently unanimous that the work should be done thoroughly and immediately. Estimates and plans were ordered which will be passed upon by another joint meeting in a short time.

Presbyterian Church Notes.

(By the Pastor.)

The pastor and Elder H. M. White attended the meeting of Presbytery at Mt. Clemens on Tuesday.

The sermon on "Spiritualism" was not given last Sunday evening on account of the storm. It will be given next Sunday at 7 p. m.

HOURLY SERVICE

PLYMOUTH-WAYNE DIVISION GETS IT MAY 3.

All Cars Will Leave Northville on Half Hour.

Spring has its signs in the busy farmer and in the woman with the new fangled hat made out of the inverted peach basket and it also has its sign in the busy street car man.

In compliance with its promise to the people for the installation of the hourly service on the Detroit, Wayne & Plymouth division commencing the first of next month this interurban road will start the cars going May 3. The first of the month begins on Saturday and railway men are adverse to changing any important main line schedule on that day owing to the rush of business. For this reason the hourly schedule will go into effect May 3 following the week end rush.

Under the hourly schedule on this division cars will leave the new interurban waiting room of Northville at half after the hour from 5:30 a. m. until 9:30 p. m. running through to Detroit without change until 9:30 p. m. with another car for Wayne only at 11:20 p. m.

This is not the only improvement in the service for Northville. A change in schedule is easier made where only a branch line is affected and for this reason the Detroit United Ry. is in a position to make a change on the Orchard Lake division on Saturday, May 1, instead of putting this change over until the following Monday. Accordingly the first of the month will see the hourly service on the branch from Farmington Junction to Pontiac in effect as well as the hourly service through to Detroit as now.

In the use of the new waiting room in Northville all conductors will go to that place and call out the departure of all cars and when desired they will also assist women passengers with their valises, suit cases, etc.

THE LAW MAKERS AND PROBLEMS

THE SITUATION AS REGARDS ADJOURNMENT BECOMES ACUTE.

GOOD ROADS WRANGLE

Normal School Appropriations, and Other Matters That Are Before the Two Houses.

(Special Correspondence.)

Laurens, Mich., April 12, 1909.

The present week opens with the situation growing more and more acute. The senate has not yet concurred in the house resolution to adjourn May 6, but it is believed it will do so this week. Therefore with adjournment scarce three weeks ahead, and several important measures pressing for rapid disposition and the appropriation bills still in the hands of the ways and means committee, it will not be strange if a hundred or so of the miscellaneous bills on the general order will be hung up, not to mention as many more that are sleeping in committees. This will not be such a misfortune as might appear, for the reason that there has been a big lot of fool bills introduced and not all of them by new members either. That there will be perhaps two special sessions seems to be a well founded guess, if really important measures that will not be reached are to be acted on.

Mr. Reynolds' Work.
Representative Rush W. Reynolds, of Hillsdale county, is one of the few representatives who have so far introduced no bills, and yet who may be considered one of the strong and popular men of the house.

Mr. Reynolds is a member of the Farmers' club, and a real farmer when he is home. When he comes to voting, however, it is observed that he uses his own judgment, which will usually be found clear and for the best interests of his constituents. Being a seatmate of the celebrated Mr. Whelan, of Shiawassee, the gentleman who has probably spoken on more questions in the house than any other member, Mr. Reynolds feels that there is not much occasion for him to make speeches unless it be on some question of vital importance to his constituents. Although Mr. Reynolds is decidedly a man not to shirk his duty, it is safe to say no member will be more satisfied to hear the last motion to adjourn, and to return to the simple life than he.

A Judge Needed.
Senator Tuttle has introduced a bill to provide for an additional judge for Ingham county, in order that there may be an opportunity for Judge Wiest to take up the state cases now pending, and hear them. Because of the large amount of state work which comes to the circuit, the court is unable to keep up with the cases, and some important state litigation is held up, as well as many local cases. There has been a careful investigation to determine the best way out of the difficulty, and by adding a judge to take part of the work seems to be the only way in which there may be any relief to the situation.

School Money.

The normal school committee of the house has reported out appropriation bills for the state institutions of that character, as follows: Ypsilanti—Current expenses, $320,000; special purposes and buildings, $85,150; total, $405,150. Kalamazoo: Current expenses, $185,770; special purposes and buildings, $86,800; total, $272,570. Mount Pleasant: Current expenses, $170,000; special purposes and buildings, $47,500; total, $217,500. Marquette: Current expenses, $122,600; special purposes and buildings, $55,550; total, $178,150. The total normal appropriations thus recommended is $1,074,370. This report was handed to the house by Chairman Albert La Huis, of the house committee. It goes now to the ways and means.

Home Rule Bill.

It is expected that the Hally Home Rule bill will be reported out by the house committee on city corporations this week, and will pass the house. The home rule proposition has been the toughest one put up to the legislature by the constitutional convention, and there are many who believe that it will not be satisfactorily adjusted for some time to come. Mr. Hally, who is the corporation counsel for the city of Detroit, has drawn what seems to be the most acceptable of the several measures offered to solve the problem. It is a comparatively short bill, but quite comprehensive, and if the bonding limit of cities can be agreed upon, it is believed it will become the first home rule law of Michigan. The limit proposed by the bill is ten per cent, but that is generally regarded as too high.

Railroad Commission Bill.

The bill reorganizing the railroad commission which was introduced by Representative Cramton received rough handling when it came up for passage. Mr. Cramton is one of the ablest and most aggressive members of the house, but has gone out of his way to attack certain measures, with the result that the desire to try his sails was shown to quite a degree. The bill was passed, but several desirable features were stricken out, including the raise in salary of the commissioners, which was considered by those in charge of the bill the most important of all.

Health Primers.

To put into the hands of the teachers in all the schools of Michigan matter which will aid in teaching the dangers of tuberculosis, a number of primers on that disease will be issued under the direction of Dr. Frank W. Shumway, secretary of the state board of health.

Judge Gage's Successor.

Gov. Warner has appointed ex-Judge William R. Kendrick, of Saginaw, as circuit judge to fill the unexpired term of Judge Chauncey H. Gage, who dropped dead recently. Judge Kendrick is a member of the state board of pardons.

D. Z. CURTISS.

The Good Roads Controversy.

Probably no subject before the present legislature has caused more wrangling and discord than that of good roads, or rather the highway commission law, of which Horatio Earle has been for some years the head. Representative Whelan first started the war by introducing a bill to abolish the office. This measure was hung up in the committee on roads and bridges, and although Mr. Whelan resorted to every known method of pressure possible, he was unable to get it before the house in any shape either with or without recommendation. It will be remembered that Mr. Earle contested the nomination for governor against Warner, and it has therefore been considered improbable that he would be re-appointed. The senate, however, came to Mr. Earle's rescue by voting to make the office elective after 1911, and holding Mr. Earle over until that time. This woke the governor up, and he proceeded to appoint ex-Senator Ely, of Gratiot county, to succeed Earle June 30, 1909. The senate first confirmed the appointment, but later on a point of order held it up, so that at the present time the fight is still on. However, the appointment will undoubtedly be confirmed this week, and if it should not there is small chance that the bill making the office elective could be put through the house. Mr. Earle is quoted as saying he does not care, but there are some who are inclined to doubt the statement, as he has been very active in trying to prevent any action that might weaken his hold on the office. In the meantime Senator Fox has a highway bill 150 pages long, which is, before the house, having passed the senate in a mutilated condition. The great trouble is the award paid by the state for good roads to counties, as a few counties have captured most of the money. In the recent election nearly thirty counties voted to abolish the system. In this connection it may be stated that notice has been served that as fast as the bills from the labor, banking and dairy and food departments come up, efforts will be made to put these offices also in the elective list.

Of Good Report.

A resolution thanking the joint committee on waterways for their labor and the thoroughness with which they have performed their duties, also provides that copies of the report be mailed by the clerk of the house, with this resolution attached, to the newspapers of the state; to the county officials and members of the boards of supervisors, the necessary postage for mailing the same to be drawn and paid for as is the postage for mailing the Journal of the House of Representatives, also that 1,500 copies be printed for the use of the members of the legislature.

Hits the P. M. Only.

Senator Anhalt's bill compelling the equipment of all railway cabooses with platforms, came up in the house at the evening session. The railway committee has amended it to Jan. 1, 1912, as the limit when the cars must be so equipped. It was shown the Pere Marquette was the only system affected, and that its fifty cars could be equipped within a period of six months at a cost of $6,000. On this showing the amendment was cut off, leaving the limit January 1, 1910. The bill passed, and is now up to the governor.

Speaker Voted for It.

In the legislative events of the past few days have been of a lively, not to say sensational, character. The good faith of the speaker toward the ad valorem tax bill was questioned by a faction of the house who declared that his rulings affecting the measure were unconstitutional, and on numerous occasions appealed from the decisions of the chair. The speaker's friends promptly rallied to his support, and sustained him in every instance. When the ad valorem bill finally came up for passage, only five votes were recorded against it, the speaker voting for the bill.

Railway Bond Issues.

At the hearing before the senate committee for the benefit of the railways who are opposing Senator Mapes' bill to regulate the bond issues of railway and other corporations, the representatives of several big roads explained their objection by claiming that the railway commission, which is given authority to review proposed bond issues, is not competent to pass upon such questions.

Watch Appropriation Bills.

Auditor General Fuller will inspect all appropriation bills passed during the present session before they are signed by the governor. It will be remembered that two years ago an appropriation bill for the Mt. Pleasant Normal school was passed, and through an error, Gov. Warner signed a bill which did not pass, and it was necessary to call a special session of the legislature to correct the error.

Health Primers.

To put into the hands of the teachers in all the schools of Michigan matter which will aid in teaching the dangers of tuberculosis, a number of primers on that disease will be issued under the direction of Dr. Frank W. Shumway, secretary of the state board of health.

Judge Gage's Successor.

Gov. Warner has appointed ex-Judge William R. Kendrick, of Saginaw, as circuit judge to fill the unexpired term of Judge Chauncey H. Gage, who dropped dead recently. Judge Kendrick is a member of the state board of pardons.

A Ready-Made Verdict.

Fargo, North Dakota, once boasted a composite postmaster and coroner. He was called one day to give his verdict upon the case of a stranger who had been the victim of a fit on the main street. As the man was known to nobody, he was hurried to the much-prized new "City Hospital." There the case was diagnosed as appendicitis, but when the operation took place the attending surgeon discovered that the patient had been previously relieved of his appendix. The doctor endeavored to retract his steps, but the strange man died from the effects of the operation.

The postmaster-coroner, in rendering his verdict, filled in the space after "Cause of Death" with a rubber stamp which read: "Opened by mistake."—Success Magazine.

Youngest Great-Grandmother.

Mme. Edna Bertonelle, a seamstress in the Quartier Montmartre, Paris, is held to be the youngest great-grandmother in the world. She was married at the age of 14, and her first child, a girl, married at the same early age. When Edna was 31 she was a grandmother. Her grandson married at 17 a young woman a few days his junior. On her forty-eighth birthday, Mme. Bertonelle was a great-grandmother.

Air's Weight.

There is no uniform weight for air. For instance, saw the weight of a cubic foot of air at sea level is 1,700 grains, the pressure removed, say, by its elevation to an altitude of 10,000 feet its weight would be about the half of 1,700 grains. In other words, the cubic foot, at ten or twelve thousand feet above the sea, would expand to two cubic feet, each of about 850 grains weight.

Keeps Heat "Just Right" Both Day and Night

This "boss" of the heating plant looks after your comfort, stands guard over your coal bin and safeguards the family from colds due to uneven temperature in the home.

The Jewell Controller

with Time Clock attachment

is the only device that automatically provides for a higher temperature in the morning without losing thermostatic control through the night.

For example:

Suppose you want to reduce the temperature of the house to 60 degrees during the night, but would like to have it at 70 degrees by the time the family arises.

Before retiring, you set back the controller to 60 degrees. Then you set the time clock attachment to bring the temperature up to 70 at seven o'clock.

In spite of any sudden changes out-doors during the night, the Controller will maintain the temperature you wish, and the faithful clock will open the drafts in time to give you the desired warmth in the morning.

And then all day the Controller goes right on keeping your house warmed "just right."

It is adapted for use with steam, hot water or hot air. Why not unload your heating worries on the "Jewell" and save money too?

Investigate this wonderful device. Shown and sold by

SYNOPSIS.

Senator Morley Vernon's visit with his daughter, Maria Greene, was interrupted by a call from his political boss at the state capitol. Both regretted the girl more than he, because she had arranged to attend a dinner that evening with him. She said she yearned for a national office for him. On Vernon's desk in the senate he found a red rose, accompanied by a plea for suffrage for women. He met the authoress, pretty Miss Maria Greene of Chicago, who proposed to convert him into a woman's suffrage resolution. No. 10. Miss Greene secured Vernon's promise to vote for the suffrage resolution. He also asked her by convincing others. He took a hiding to the fair suffragette. Miss Greene consulted with the lieutenant-governor. Vernon admitted to himself that the suffragette had stirred a strange feeling within him. He forgot to read his daughter's letter.

Once or twice he glanced into the pamphlets Miss Greene had given him, but he could not fix his mind on them; their types danced meaninglessly before his eyes. He was angry with himself for this nervousness. Why must it assail him now, just when he wished to be at his best? He had spoken before, a hundred times; he knew his audience, and he had the proper contempt for his colleagues. He had never, to be sure, made a set speech in that presence; seldom did any one do that; the speeches were usually short and impromptu, and there was no time for anticipation to generate nervous dread. And yet his mind seemed to be extraordinarily clear, just then; it seemed to be able to comprehend all realms of thought at once.

But it was not so much the speech he thought of, as the effect of the speech; already he could see the newspapers and the big headlines they would display on their first pages the next morning; he could see his mother reading them at breakfast, and then he could see Amelia reading them. How her dark eyes would widen, her cheeks flush pink! She would raise her hand and put back her hair with that pretty mannerism of hers; then impulsively resting her arms on the table before her, she would eagerly read the long columns through, while her mother reminded her that her breakfast was getting cold. How proud she would be of him! She would never chide him again; she would see that at last he had found himself.

The Eltons, too, would read, and his absence from their dinner would react on them impressively. And Maria Greene—but a confusion arose—Maria Greene! He had not thought of Amelia all the morning until that very instant; Amelia's letter lay still unopened on his desk back there in the senate chamber. Maria Greene! She would hear, she would color as she looked at him, and her eyes would glow; he could feel the warm pressure of the hand she would give him in congratulation.

And it was this handsome young woman's presence in the chamber that gave rise to all this nervousness. He was sure that he would not have been nervous if Amelia were to be there. She had never heard him speak in public, though he had often pressed her to do so; somehow the places where he spoke were never those to which it would be proper for her to go. She would wish she had heard this speech, for in 24 hours it would be the one topic of conversation throughout the state; his picture would be in the newspapers—"The brilliant young Chicago lawyer who electrified the Illinois senate with his passionate oratory and passed the woman-suffrage measure." It would be an event to mark the beginning of a new era.

But his imaginings were broken, his name was spoken; he turned and saw Miss Greene.

"Come," she said. "It's up! Hurry!"

She was excited and her cheeks glowed. His teeth began to chatter. He followed her quick steps in the direction of the chamber.

"But," he stammered. "I—I didn't know—I haven't even arranged for recognition."

"Oh, I'll fix all that!" the woman said. "The lieutenant-governor promised me." She was holding her rustling skirts and almost running.

CHAPTER V.

As they entered the senate chamber, Vernon heard the lieutenant-governor say: "And the question is: Shall the resolution be adopted? Those in favor will vote 'aye,' those opposed will vote 'no,' when their names are called; and the secretary will call the—"

"Mr. President!" Vernon shouted. There was no time now to retreat; he had launched himself on the sea of glory. A dozen other senators were on their feet, likewise demanding recognition.

"The senator from Cook," said the lieutenant-governor.

Vernon stood by his desk, arranging complacently the documents Miss Greene had given him. Once or twice he cleared his throat and wiped his lips with his handkerchief. The other senators' subsided into their seats, and, seeing that they themselves were not then to be permitted to speak, and like all speakers, not caring to listen to the speeches of others, they turned philosophically to the little diversions with which they walled away the hours of the session—writing letters, reading newspapers, smoking. Vernon glanced around. Maria Greene was sitting precariously on the edge of a divan. Her face was white and drawn. She gave a quick nod, and a smile just touched her fixed lips. And then Vernon began. He spoke slowly and with vast deliberation; his voice was very low. He outlined his subject with exquisite pains, detail by detail, making it clear just what propositions he would advance. His manner was that of the lawyer in an appellate court, making a mastery and purely legal argument; when it was done, the senate, if it had paid attention—though it seldom did pay attention—would know all about the question of woman-suffrage.

In his deliberation, Vernon glanced now and then at Maria Greene. Her eyes were sparkling with intelligent interest. As if to choose the lowest point possible from which to trace the rise and progress of legislation favorable to women, Vernon would call the attention of the senate first to the decision of the Illinois supreme court in Bradwell, 55 Ill. 525. That was away back in 1869, when the age was, virtually dark; and that was the case, gentlemen would remember, just as if they all kept each decision of the court at their tongues' ends, in which the court held that no woman could be admitted, under the laws of Illinois, to practice as an attorney at law. But Vernon implored his colleagues to mark—long years afterward, the court of its own motion entered a nunc pro tunc order, reversing its own decision in the Bradwell case. Vernon dilated upon the importance of this decision; he extolled the court; it had set a white milestone to mark the progressing emancipation of the race. Then, briefly, he proposed to outline for them the legislative steps by which woman's right to equality with man had been at least partly recognized.

He fumbled for a moment among the papers on his desk, until he found one of the pamphlets Miss Greene had given him, and then he said he wished to call the senate's attention to the employment act of 1872, the drainage act of 1885, and the sanitary district act of 1890. Vernon spoke quite familiarly of these acts. Furthermore, gentlemen would, he was sure, instantly recall the decisions of the courts in which those acts were under review, as, for instance, in Wilson vs. Board of Trustees, 133 Ill. 443; and in Davenport vs. Drainage Commissioners, 25 Ill. App. 92.

Those among the senators who were lawyers, as most of them were, looked up from their letter writing at this, and nodded profoundly, in order to show their familiarity with Vernon's citations, although, of course, they never had heard of the cases before.

"This recognition of woman's natural right," Vernon shouted, "this recognition of her equality with man, cannot be overestimated in importance!" He shook his head fiercely and struck his desk with his fist. But then, having used up all the facts he had marked in Miss Greene's pamphlets, he was forced to become more general in his remarks, and so he began to celebrate woman, ecstatically. He conjured for the senators the presence of their mothers and sisters, their sweethearts and wives; and then, some quotations fortunately occurring to him, he reminded them that Castiglione had truly said that "God is seen only through woman;" that "the woman's soul leads eth us upward and on." He recounted the services of women in time of war, their deeds in the days of peace, and in the end he became involved in an allegory about the exclusion of the roses from the garden.

The senators had begun to pay attention to him as soon as he talked about things they really understood, and were interested in, and now they shouted to him to go on. It was spread abroad over the third floor of the statehouse that some one was making a big speech in the senate, and representatives came rushing over from the house. The correspondents of the Chicago newspapers came over also to see if the Associated Press man in the senate was getting the speech down fully. All the space on the floor was soon crowded, and the applause shook the desks and made the glass prisms of the chandeliers jingle. The lieutenant-governor tapped from time to time with his gavel, but he did it perfunctorily, as though he enjoyed the applause himself, as vicariously expressing his own feelings; his eyes twinkled until it seemed that were it not for certain traditions, he would join in the delighted laughter that made up most of the applause.

Once a page came to Vernon with a glass of water, and as he paused to wipe his brow and to sip from the glass, he glanced again at Maria Greene. Her face was solemn and a shadow was growing in her eyes. Beside her sat old "Doc" Ames, scowling fiercely and stroking his long white beard. There were sharp cries of "Go on! Go on!"

But Vernon, not accustomed to thinking on his feet, as talkers love to phrase it, and having stopped, could not instantly go on; and that awkward halt disconcerted him. He was conscious that the moments were slipping by, and there were other things—many other things—that he had intended to say; but these things evaded him—doated off tantalizingly, out of reach. And so, for refuge, he rushed on to the conclusion he had half formed in his mind. The conclusion was made up mostly from a toast to which he had once responded while in college, entitled "The Ladies." The words came back to him readily enough; he had only to apply them a little differently and to change his figures. Thus it was easy to work up to a panegyric in which Illinois stood up as a beautiful woman leading her sister states up to new heights of peace, of virtue and of concord. He had a rapt vision of this woman, her sweet and gentle influence settling all disputes and bringing heaven down to earth at last.

The senate was in raptures. "This is the face," he cried, "that launched a thousand ships and burned the topless towers of Ilium!" "She is wholly like in feature to the deathless goddesses!" So he went on. "Age cannot wither, nor custom stale, her infinite variety."

He was growing weary. He already showed the impressive exhaustion of the peroration. He had sacrificed a collar and drunk all the water from his glass. He fingered the empty tumbler for a moment, and then lifted it on high while he said:

I filled this cup to one made up
Of loveliness alone.
A woman, of her gentle sex
The seeming paragon—
Her health and would on earth there stood
Some more of such a frame,
That life might be all poetry,
And weariness a name.
(TO BE CONTINUED.)

She Got the Letter.

The post office official put on his severest manner.

"You say you mailed the letter about half an hour ago at a window in the east corridor?" he asked.

The beautiful woman dabbed a handkerchief at her soulful eyes and at the tip of her classic nose.

"Yes, yes," she said.

"To whom was it addressed?"

She told him.

"And now you want to stop that letter?" he went on, still more sternly.

"You want to get it back? Why?"

"Because," said the woman with unpremeditated frankness. "I am afraid his wife will get it."

"Oh," said the stern official.

She got the letter.

A Great Pro-Consul.

Lord Cromer, the great pro-consul of Egypt, in writing of missions in that land, says in his great work, "Modern Egypt": The missionary, the philanthropist, and social reformer and others of the same sort, should have a fair field. Their intentions are excellent, although at times their judgment may be defective. They will, if under some control, probably do much good on a small scale. They may even, being carried away by the enthusiasm which pays no heed to worldly prudence, effect reforms more important than those of the administrator and politician, who will follow cautiously in their track, and perhaps reap the result of their labors.

Some authorities claim that a diet of goat's milk makes one immune from tuberculosis.

GRAIN LADEN STEAMER SUNK

FIVE SAILORS PERISHED IN THE DISASTER—TEN WERE SAVED.

CUT THROUGH BY ICE

Filled and Sunk So Rapidly Some of the Crew Had No Chance to Save Themselves From Death.

Five sailors were drowned when the steamer Eber Ward, bound from Milwaukee to Port Huron with a cargo of grain, struck a heavy ice field and sank six miles west of Mackinaw Tuesday morning. The names of the lost are: John Hern, James Perry, John Mebaroth, Kinney McKay and a deckhand, name unknown.

Ten of the crew were saved. The heavy ice crushed the wooden timbers of the boat like pulpwood and she went down almost immediately. The men who were thrown into the ice-cold water were numbed and went down without a struggle.

The following were saved: T. LeMay, captain, of Detroit; A. P. Galino, first mate; Frank Baldwin, chief engineer, of Detroit; S. R. Shipman, second engineer; Charles Lester, wheelman; Frank Gutch, August Palmer, John Witherhall, steward, and wife.

The steamer was on her first trip of the season and her log had not yet been turned into the office. It probably was carried down in the wreck. Kinney McKay, fireman, who lost his life, had sailed with Capt. LeMay for several seasons. Several other members of the crew are said to live in Bay City. At the local headquarters of the Marine Engineers' Beneficial association it was said that Frank Baldwin, chief engineer, is also a Detroit man.

The steamer had a capacity of 1,343 tons, was 213 feet long, with 37 feet beam and was built in 1884 for D. M. Ferry. She was engaged mostly in the grain carrying trade and plied all over the great lakes. She is supposed to be owned in Bay City.

The Naval Militia

Naval maneuvers on the great lakes on a larger scale than before have been participated in by the naval militia of Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, and Minnesota, bordering on those waters, are in prospect for the coming summer. The assistant secretary of the navy, Beekman Winthrop, signified his willingness to do everything possible to assist the citizen sailors. It is probable that Commander Chas. C. Marsh may be ordered to take command of the squadron during the cruise.

The flagship probably will be the gunboat Nashville, which has been under repairs at the Boston navy yard for some time. This vessel has been assigned to the Illinois naval militia. Capt. W. F. Purdy, of that organization, will take the Nashville from Boston up the St. Lawrence and through the lakes to Chicago. The Nashville will leave Boston April 30 and will be manned by a crew from the Illinois naval militia.

Plans for the maneuvers on the lakes this summer have not been perfected, but it is expected that the squadron will be composed of eight vessels. These will be the Wolverine, the only regular naval vessel on the lakes; the Nashville and Dorothea, of the Illinois naval militia; the Yankee and Don Juan de Austria, of the Michigan naval militia; the Hawk and Essex, belonging to the Ohio militia, and the Gopher, manned by the Minnesota naval reserve.

Cost a Life.

The hurried attempt of Louis Finney, a wealthy Leoni farmer, to light a kitchen fire by the aid of kerosene, cost him his life and his wife and 7-year-old son are terribly buried, the wife probably fatally.

Attired in his night robe, Finney, after filling the stove with wood, began to pour on kerosene. The flames leaped up, the can exploded and the blazing contents was splattered over him. His screams attracted his wife and son, who rushed to his rescue and received their injuries trying to extinguish the flames that enveloped him. Finney died after eight hours of terrible agony.

Neighbors extinguished the blaze, which threatened the Finney home.

Yeggs Get $5,000.

Securing $5,000 and missing $2,000 in currency, burglars who blew up the safe in the Alcona County Savings bank at Harrisville Thursday night got away leaving no clue. Entrance to the bank was gained from the rear door by knocking out one of the panels so that the burglars could reach in and unbolt it. The car house of the D. & M. Railroad was broken open and the thieves got their tools there. They left all the papers, silver, pennies and the $2,000 in bills.

Though an explosion was heard at 2 a. m., the robbery was not discovered till 8 a. m.

Mrs. Clarence Miller, aged 26, is determined to live in Ohio. Her husband is equally determined to live in Michigan. As a result Clarence Miller is in a Saginaw police station for wife desertion and an adjudication of the marital dispute is in the hands of two governors.

Mayor John W. Bailey, the Democrat elected at the last election in Battle Creek, has dismissed every city official coming up for reappointment "for cause." The council refused to confirm several appointments which the mayor made and the latter means to have his men act as temporary officials until the aldermen see fit to sanction them.

While attempting to jump a Grand Trunk train Saturday night before it made the Charlotte station stop, James Crandall was thrown under the cars and loses one leg as a result. Crandall is married and works in Battle Creek.

STATE BRIEFS.

Pontiac schools have adopted a system of medical inspection which is now in effect.

Flint saloonkeepers have withdrawn their petition for a recount of the local option ballots.

With an increase of population Lansing has succeeded in getting two more carriers for its postoffice.

The official canvass of Grand Traverse county shows the good roads proposition to have carried by 851 votes.

Ill health and despondency are given as the reasons why Oliver Mosher, aged 98, a farmer living near Stanton, killed himself by hanging.

Driven out of the saloon and brewery business by the local option victory in the county, several wealthy Germans will start a bank in Petoskey.

Almeda, the 9-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Bobler, of Pontiac, was severely bitten through the hip, by a large rat, while asleep in her bed.

The board of supervisors of Branch county have promised the prosecuting attorney their assistance in a rigid enforcement of the local option laws.

Mine officials in the copper district say that 75 per cent of the foreigners who left for the old country during the recent financial panic have returned.

After bleeding from the nose for a week, Harry Platt, of Calumet, is dead. Physicians were unable to stop the flow of blood which continued till death.

Asked regarding his intentions of running for Senator Burrows' seat in the United States senate, Gov. Warner said he had no idea of being a candidate next year.

Herman Gierkey, aged 7, is missing, and it is thought that he was either drowned or kidnapped. The dam sluice has been dragged, but no trace of the boy was found.

David McAlphin, a Delta township farmer, while plowing unearthed what proved to be a portion of a mastodon. Other farmers are digging in hope of finding other bones.

The recount of the ballots in the recent election has been completed by the supervisors of Hillsdale county, and the dry majority is increased by 27 votes, making 1,385.

James E. Vincent, business partner of Arthur Hill, denies the report that Mr. Hill is in a critical condition, and says that the latter will return to Saginaw the latter part of this week.

Joseph Israel, formerly a prominent business man of Kalamazoo, and for several years an invalid, killed himself by jumping from the window of a New York hotel where he was living.

The Michigan & Ohio Railroad Co. has applied for a franchise to run its lines through Ann Arbor. The plan is to build a line from Toledo to Ann Arbor and later to extend it to Whitmore Lake.

David Laboe, of Newport, killed himself by taking carbolic acid. He had been missing for several days. His body was found in his own house. Family trouble is said to have been the cause of his deed.

Charles Featherstone, of Grant, died in Butterworth hospital as the result of having been struck in the eye by a splinter while he was chopping wood. A blood vessel was ruptured when the splinter struck the optic.

A bullet was taken from the body of T. J. Quinn, aged 50, at the hospital in Hillsdale. Quinn got the bullet in the battle at Antietam. He served in the Sixty-ninth New York regiment of Crook's Irish brigade.

Mrs. Joseph Sager was fined $150 and sentenced to six months in the workhouse in Toledo for torturing her adopted daughter, 10 years old. She used a red-hot poker on the girl's bare back and legs to punish her.

After hearing the testimony of Amelia and Ada Schmeibach, sisters, of Onondaga, that they knew nothing of how Clyde Saben met death, the jury brought in a verdict placing the blame on no one.

Elmer Snelton, 50, station agent at Bath, placed the muzzle of a shotgun in his temple and blew out his brains. Sharon had been a cripple for many years and it is thought that this probably was partly the cause of his act.

James Freshman, the fourth of the quartet charged with robbing the Hillsdale postoffice, was sentenced to seven and one-half to fifteen years in Marquette prison. The other three are now serving sentences in Jackson.

Because he believed he was going insane, Robert Dawson, 30 years old, a prominent Hastings attorney, and secretary of the Democratic county committee, committed suicide in his office today by blowing the top of his head off with a shotgun.

In the hope of putting out of business the two saloons that are already there, and discouraging others that are thinking of locating, the township board of Onondaga, just over the line in Ingham county, has voted to raise the liquor bond to $6,000.

A large and enthusiastic gathering of boys and some older ones gathered at the court house here to listen to instructions given them on the subject of corn growing, such as the testing of seeds, and the fertility of the soils, and different plans and experiments used at the several experimental stations, by Mr. F. W. Howe, who is assistant in agricultural education, in the office of the experimental station, United States department of agriculture.

Brought back from Billings, Mont., over 2,000 miles, to face a charge of robbing Matthew Shinner of $500, John Edwards admitted his guilt, while Shinner, in an unbridled condition, was being led home by John Hodges. But Edwards charges that Hodges was not doing the good Samaritan stunt in taking Shinner home, but that he was also in on the deal.

It is said that the doom for President J. L. Snyder for secretary of agriculture in President Taft's cabinet is still alive in Washington, and now friends look for his appointment in case the rumored retirement of Secretary Wilson occurs.

HIS LUCK.

"Why didn't you come around earlier? The snow is all melted away." "Dat's just my luck, lady. Every time I feels like workin' de sun comes out and does me out of a job!"

BABY'S WATERY ECZEMA

Itched and Scratched Until Blood Ran—$50 Spent on Useless Treatments—Disease Seemed Incurable.

Cured by Cuticura for $1.50.

"When my little boy was two and a half months old he broke out on both cheeks with eczema. It was the itchy, watery kind and we had to keep his little hands wrapped up all the time, and if he would happen to get them uncovered he would claw his face till the blood streamed down on his clothing. We called in a physician at once, but he gave an ointment which was so severe that my babe would scream when it was put on. We changed doctors and medicine until we had spent fifty dollars or more and baby was getting worse. I was so worn out watching and caring for him night and day that I almost felt sure the disease was incurable. But finally reading of the good results of the Cuticura Remedies, I determined to try them. I can truthfully say I was more than surprised, for I bought only a dollar and a half's worth of the Cuticura Remedies (Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills), and they did more good than all my doctors' medicines I had tried, and in fact entirely cured him. His face is perfectly clear of the least spot or scar of anything. Mrs. W. M. spot or scar. Mrs. W. M. Combs, Burnt Cains, Pa., Sept. 15, 1908." Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston.

Intruder Among the War Dogs.

Prof. William Lyon Phelps of Yale went to West Point last fall to lecture. He was lecturing in the chapel, the cadets were, rigidly paying attention, erect, eyes front, each man a ramrod of military etiquette. An Irish setter entered the chapel door and ambled amiably down the aisle and up on to the platform. The cadets squirmed under the eagle eyes of their officers but not a man smiled. "Billy" noticed the strain. He looked down at the dog wagging its tail benevolently on the rostrum. "What! How's this?" said Prof. Phelps. "A setter? Why, I expected to see nothing but West Pointers up here." Yale Alumni Weekly.

Question of the Hour.

"We are really at a loss to know how to punish Earle," she said. "We have tried all the punishment in our kindergarten list without effect. We have reasoned with him and told him that he will cease to be our pretty pet and will grow up to be a bad, bad man, and—"

"Madam," interrupted the gentleman of the old school, who was visiting them, "you will find on the trunk in my room a very excellent strap that I shall not need temporarily."

But, of course, he didn't know anything about modern methods.

Not Our Discovery.

The Greek, Eratosthenes, 250 B. C., taught the doctrine of the rotundity of the earth, and the ideas of the sphere, its poles, axis, the equator, arctic and antarctic circles, equinoctial points and the solstices were quite generally entertained by the wise men of that time. There were plenty of men in Rome, therefore, who were prepared to talk about the earth as a sphere and to make globes illustrating their ideas.

"COFFEE DOESN'T HURT ME"

Tales That Are Told.

"I was one of the kind who wouldn't believe that coffee was hurting me," says a N. Y. woman. "You just couldn't convince me its use was connected with the heart and stomach trouble I suffered from most of the time."

"My trouble finally got so bad I had to live on milk and toast almost entirely for three or four years. Still I loved the coffee and wouldn't believe it could do such damage."

"What I needed was to quit coffee and take nourishment in such form as my stomach could digest."

"I had read much about Postum, but never thought it would fit my case until one day I decided to quit coffee and give it a trial and make sure about it. So I got a package and carefully followed the directions."

"Soon I began to get better and was able to eat carefully selected foods without the aid of pepsin or other digestants and it was not long before I was really a new woman physically."

"Now I am healthy and sound, can eat anything and everything that comes along and I know this wonderful change is all due to my having quit coffee and got the nourishment I needed through this delicious Postum."

"My wonder is why everyone don't give up the old coffee and the troubles that go with it and build themselves up as I have done, with Postum."

Easy to prove by 10 days' trial of Postum in place of coffee. The reward is big.

"There's a Reason."

A Tree That is Worshipped

Ficus Religiosa Held Sacred by Buddhists and Hindoos.

In most of the countries of South-eastern Asia, the Indian Ficus religiosa, the sacred and consecrated fig tree, or peepul tree, is found. It is held preeminently sacred by the Buddhists, and is revered also by the Hindoos, the birth of Vishnu having occurred beneath its branches.

It is a handsome tree growing frequently to a great height. It is an evergreen, which puts forth its flowers in April, and the bark yields freely upon incision an acrid milk containing a considerable proportion of india rubber. The leaves are heart-shaped, long, pointed and vibrate in the air like those of the aspen.

A branch of one of these trees, having a notable history, was sent to a city in the interior of Ceylon, where it was planted, and became known by the name of the bo tree. For 200 years it received the highest reverence, and is still the chief object of worship to the pilgrims who every year flock to the ruins of the city.

The Home Merchant.

Without any thought of sentiment or suggestion that we owe allegiance to anyone, the cold, hard truth is that the retail merchants of our home town are the best business friends we have.

The retail merchant conducts a school of commerce for our education—and the tuition is free. Every man, woman and child gets the benefit of seeing in the home town about anything that is of real importance. He protects us against fraud and deceit. He stands for the square deal.

You never ordered a $10 lightning rod of your home merchant and then found your note for a thousand dollars in the bank next day as a result. You never paid him $40 or $60 for a range that warped out of shape in six months—without your wife getting the money back. He never charged you $75 for a "trailer" buggy that you found out afterwards could be bought anywhere for $60.

No, the home merchant is just like you. He lives where he does business and his success depends on making a friend of you and your neighbor. Like you, he has to make good.

The retail merchant is now the one great factor in our commercial system and this is true solely because he renders us better service than we can get elsewhere. Take him away and our home town is gone; take our home town away and you deprive your children of the retail store, which is the greatest single educational factor in modern life. No, it cannot be. The retail merchant will continue to abide in our affections so long as we value our homes, because the average citizen is proud of his town (he always tells how close his farm is to it) and he secretly despises the method of peddlers—and the peddler system is now known to be the legitimate father of the whole catalogue house buyers.

Ex-Senator Townsend A. Ely, of Gratiot county, was named by the Governor last week for State Highway Commissioner, to succeed Horatio S. Earle, whose term expires July 1. Mr. Ely was father and introducer of the Good Roads law four years ago, when he was a senator from his district, and has always taken a great interest in good roads, especially from a farmer's standpoint. Mr. Ely was a soldier in the civil war and has lived on his farm in Gratiot county for over fifty years, and was a strong supporter of the measures advocated by Governor Warner during the last legislature, such as the two-cent bill, a good primary law, ad valorem tax laws, etc. His appointment will be very pleasing, especially to the farming interests of the state.

The Record wants the news. We will take it over the telephone, over the counter, on the street, any hour of the day or night, and be thankful for it. We are cut for the news, and if you know of anything in our line, it will be considered a favor and no breach of propriety on your part if you will communicate the fact to this office. If you do not know all the details, give us the tip, and we will do the rest; that is part of our business.

Joe Montgomery is having an addition built on his house.

Mrs. W. G. Yerkes has been a victim of grip the past week.

The new Ernest Miller house on West street is nearly inclosed.

Mrs. John Guthrie is confined to her bed at the present writing.

Mrs. Andrew Harmon entertained the Jolly Euchre club Monday evening.

Henry Aspenletter and family moved to Wixom the fore part of the week.

This is house cleaning time and everybody too busy to visit or have company.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rorabacher are rejoicing over the recent arrival of a baby girl.

L. L. Brooks has commenced the foundation for his new house on Wing street.

Regular P. meeting will be held next Tuesday evening. Work in Second Rank.

Wouldn't that woman on the teeter board over in Parsons' store make you dizzy?

Rev. Wm. S. Jerome attended the Presbyterian meeting at Mt. Clemens the fore part of this week.

Jewett Cranson has been confined to the house the past two weeks with lumbago in his back.

The approaches to the street crossing corner of Center and Dunlap is badly in need of repairing.

Mrs. Lydia Hubbard and family have moved into the Geo. Thomas house on north Center street.

Stanley & Balden are removing their machinery from Butler avenue to one of the Hirsch buildings.

G. L. Darby, who has been working for W. H. Cattermole the past few weeks, has gone to Mt. Clemens.

Mr. Stillson moved his family from Randolph street over to the house, corner Roger and Cady streets, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Taft have moved into the house back of B. A. Wheeler's store on south Center street.

The North Farmington "Elephants" and the Northville team will cross bats in a lively game of ball here Saturday afternoon.

Capt. Kurth and Chief Engineer McVicar are waiting for the seamen's strike to blow over before taking hold of their boats on the great lakes for the season.

The Record would like the names of all business houses, machine shops and factories that would make use of electricity for power if the electric light plant would run day times.

The attention of the council is called to the sad need of a new walk along the Methodist church property. The walk is not only bad but it is really in a dangerous condition.

The regular meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held in the Baptist church parlors next Monday afternoon. Subject, "An Hour with the Prophets." Leader, Miss Mary Power.

The new council could not make a better start than to pave the east side Center street from Filkins property to the corner of Main street. At no place in the village is it more needed.

The First Division of the Ladies' Aid society of the Presbyterian church will hold a sale of baked goods and aprons in Carpenter & Hunt's hardware store tomorrow (Saturday) May 1st.

Mrs. Wm. S. Jerome will go to Milwaukee next Monday to attend the Northwest Board of Foreign Missions as a delegate from the Presbyterian which was held in Pontiac a couple of weeks ago.

Mrs. Angie Hueston, Mrs. A. J. Rickel, Mrs. L. W. Simmons and Mrs. W. P. Payne entertained the "First 500" club at the home of the former Tuesday evening. On Wednesday evening Mrs. Hueston entertained the "400" club.

What's the matter with the "Juniors" this spring? It's time they got in a game or two.

Mrs. C. B. Bristol was called to Rochester this week to care for her mother, who is again seriously ill.

The Northville "all stars" played a game of ball with the Ninth grade Wednesday and won in a score of 7 to 3.

The ladies of the Baptist church will have a bake sale in the corner store occupied by W. E. Ambler on May 1.

J. G. Alexander has purchased the strip of land between the race track and River street. He expects to use it for pasture.

F. A. Guthrie is taking a little pleasure trip through Lapeer, Tuscola, Sanilac and other counties this week.

There will be a special Communication of Northville Lodge No. 136, F. & A. M., Monday evening, Apr. 26, for work in the Second degree.

Herb Lowe, who recently began work for the D. U. R., has had his line extended. His section now reaches from Northville to Dix avenue, Detroit.

Arch Capell and family, who have been living in Toledo, Ohio, the past five or six years have gone to Leadville, Colo., where Arch is employed by the U. S. fish commission.

Gardner has something new in the way of an individual quart ice cream box. It forms the cream in a brick for each customer and the cream can be sliced up on reaching home.

Miss Blanche Yradsburg, who graduated last Thursday from the Baptist Sanitarium in St. Louis, Mo., was chosen as valedictorian of her class. She is expected home tomorrow, Saturday.

Edna Jeanette, the little two weeks' old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Will Wain of Bealton, died Wednesday. The funeral was held from the house yesterday and the remains taken to Wayne for burial.

At the regular meeting of the O. E. S. Friday evening four new members were received into the order. After the work was finished light refreshments were served. Visitors were present from Plymouth, Farmington and Redford.

Miss Nellie Thompson was the victim of a pleasant surprise by twenty-six of her young friends Friday evening. The time was spent in games and after refreshments had been served the guests returned home declaring they had had the best time ever.

The electric light plant has been running nights for several months past and the extra use made of the fluid at night is now nearly paying the extra expense. The convenience to the people of the village is such that no one would consent to go back to the system of no lights after midnight.

There is quite a demand for the electric light plant to run day times. Business places, factories and shops are clamoring for electricity for power for machinery. Supt. Wilkinson believes that very soon after its inauguration enough "juice" would be used to make it a profit for the village.

The latest Auto man is C. A. Sessions. He is the possessor of a new Maxwell runabout and it is a peach, too. Mostly he will use it between Northville and his big glassing farm. For a few months Lyme Brooks has offered to accompany Charlie on his trips with his horse and buggy so as to insure his safe return home.

A very pleasant surprise was given Mrs. A. W. Hoamer Friday evening at her home by the "Fun-makers" club. The evening was spent in games and music after which refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. S. W. McLean, who were also there, were presented with a beautiful sugar bowl and creamer, it being a farewell for them before their departure for the west.

Last Friday evening Mrs. Katharine Strong, assisted by Mrs. E. A. Merritt, gave a musical at the home of the latter. The following young piano pupils participated: Helen Holmes, Leatha and Donald Yerkes, Sylvanus Curtis and Lester Vandecar of Plymouth, a violin pupil of Mrs. Merritt. Also Miss Cobb, a vocal pupil of Mrs. Strong. Mendelssohn and Chopin were the special composers selected for the program.

The Independent Telephone Co. will give you the Base Ball score by innings. "Ask the operator." 37w2

CHAPTER I.

Dust.

In the dull but dusk of a summer's day a green touring car, swinging out of the East drive, pulled up smartly, trembling, at the edge of the Fifty-ninth street car tracks, then more sedately, under the dispassionate but watchful eye of a mounted member of the traffic squad, lurched across the Plaza and merged itself in the press of vehicles south bound on the avenue.

Its tonneau held four young men, all more or less disguised in dust, dusts and goggles; forward, by the side of the grimy and anxious-eyed mechanic, sat a fifth, in all visible respects the counterpart of his companions. Beneath his mask, and by this I do not mean his goggles, but the mask of modern manner which the worldly wear, he was, and is, different. He was Daniel Maitland, Esquire, for whom no further introduction should be required, after mention of the fact that he was, and remains, the identical gentleman of means and position in the social and financial worlds, whose somewhat sober but sincere and whole-hearted participation in the wildest of conceivable escapades had earned him the affectionate regard of the younger set, together with the sobriquet of "Mad Maitland."

His companions of the day, the four in the tonneau, were in that humor of subdued yet vibrant excitement which is apt to attend the conclusion of a long, hard drive over country roads. Maitland, on the other hand (judging him by his preoccupied pose), was already weary of, if not bored by, the bare-brained enterprise which, initiated on the spur of an idle moment and directly due to a thoughtless remark of his own, had brought him 100 miles (or so) through the heat of a broiling afternoon, accompanied by spirits as ardent and irresponsible as his own, in search of the dubious distraction afforded by the night side of the city.

As, picking its way with elephantine nicety, the motor car progressed down the avenue—twilight deepening, arcs upon their bronzed columns blossoming suddenly, noiselessly into spheres of opalescent radiance—Mr. Maitland ceased to respond, ceased even to give heed, to the running fire of chaff (largely personal) which amused his companions. Listlessly engaged with a cigarette, he lounged upon the green leather cushions, half closing his eyes, and heartily wished himself free for the evening.

But he stood committed to the humor of the majority, and lacked entirely the shadow of an excuse to desert. In addition to which he was altogether too lazy for the exertion of manufacturing a lie of serviceable texture. And so abandoned himself to his fate, even though he foresaw with weariful particularly the programme of the coming hours.

To begin with, 30 minutes were to be devoted to a bath and dressing in his rooms. This was something not so unpleasant to contemplate. It was the afterwards that repelled him: Dinner at Sherry's, the subsequent tour of roof gardens, the late supper at a club, and then, prolonged far into the small hours, the session around some green-covered table in a close room reeking with the fumes of good tobacco and hot with the fever of gambling.

Abstractedly Maitland frowned, tersely summing up "Beastly!"—in an undertone.

At this the green car wheeled abruptly round a corner below Thirty-fourth street, slid half a block or more east, and came to a palpitating halt. Maitland, looking up, recognized the entrance to his apartments, and sighed with relief for the brief respite from boredom that was to be his. He rose, negligently shaking off his duster, and stepped down to the sidewalk.

Somebody in the car called a warning after him, and turning for a moment he stood at attention, an eyebrow raised—quizzically, cigarette drooping from a corner of his mouth, hat pushed back from his forehead, hands in coat pockets; a tall, slender, sparsely built figure of a man, clothed immaculately in flannels.

When at length he was able to make himself heard: "Good enough," he said clearly, though without raising his voice. "Sherry's in an hour. Right now, behave yourselves."

"Mind you show up on time!"

"Never fear," returned Maitland over his shoulder.

A witticism was flung back at him from the retreating car, but spent itself unregarded. Maitland's attention was temporarily distracted by the unusual—to say the least—sight of a young and attractive woman coming out of a home for confirmed bachelors.

The apartment house happened to be his own property. A substantial and old-fashioned edifice, situated in the middle of a quiet block, it contained but five rooms and comfortable suites—in other words, one to a floor; and these were without exception tenanted by unmarried men of Maitland's own circle and acquaintance. The janitor, himself a widower and a convinced misogynist, lived alone in the basement. Barring very special and exceptional occasions (as when one of the bachelors felt called upon to give a tea in partial recognition of social obligations), the foot of woman never crossed its threshold.

In this circumstance, indeed, was comprised the singular charm the house had for its occupants. The quality which insured them privacy and a quiet independence rendered them oblivious to its many minor drawbacks, its lack of many conveniences and luxuries which have of late grown to be so commonly regarded as necessities. It boasted, for instance, no garage; no refrigerating system maddened those dependent upon it; a dissipated electric lighting system never went out of nights, because it had never been installed; no brass-bound hall; boy lounged in desuetude upon the stoop and took too intimate and personal an interest in the tenants' correspondence. The inhabitants, in brief, were free to come and go according to the dictates of their consciences, unsupervised by neighborly women folk, unhindered by a parasitic corps of menials not in their personal employ.

Wherefore was Maitland astonished, and the more so because of the season. At any other season of the year he would readily have accounted for the phenomenon that now fell under his observation, on the hypothesis that the woman was somebody's sister or cousin or aunt. But at present that explanation was untenable; Maitland happened to know that not one of the other men was in New York, barring himself; and his own presence there was a thing entirely unforeseen.

Still incredulous, he mentally conked the last Barnes, who occupied the first flat, was traveling on the continent; Conkling, of the third, had left a fortnight since to join a yachting party on the Mediterranean; Bannister and Wilkes, of the fourth and fifth floors, respectively, were in Newport and Buenos Aires.

"Odd!" concluded Maitland. "So it was. She had just closed the door, one thought; and now stood poised as if in momentary indecision on the low stoop, glancing toward Fifth avenue—the while she fumbled with a refractory button at the wrist of a long white kid glove. Blurred though it was by the darkening twilight and a thin veil, her face yet conveyed an impression of prettiness; an impression enhanced by careful grooming. From her hat, a small affair, something green, with a superstructure of gray ostrich feathers, to the tips of her russet shoes—including a walking skirt and bolero of shimmering gray silk—she was distinctly 'smart' and interesting.

He had keenly observant eyes, had Maitland, for all his detached pose; you are to understand that he comprehended all these points in the flickering of an instant. For the incident was over in two seconds. In one the lady's hesitation was resolved; in another she had passed down the steps and swept by Maitland without giving him a glance, without even the trembling of an eyelash. And he had a view of her back as she moved swiftly away toward the avenue.

Perplexed, he lingered upon the stoop until she had turned the corner; after which he let himself in with a latch key, and, dismissing the affair temporarily from his thoughts, or pretending to do so, ascended the single flight of stairs to his flat.

Simultaneously heavy feet were to be heard clumping up the basement steps, and surmising that the janitor was coming to light the hall, the young man waited, leaning over the balusters. His guess proving correct, he called down.

"O'Hagan! Is that you?"

"Th' saints preserve us! But 'twas yerself gave me th' start, Mister Maitland, sor!" O'Hagan paused in the gloom below, his upturned face quaintly illuminated by the flame of a wax taper in his gaslighter.

"I'm dining in town to-night, O'Hagan, and dropped around to dress. Is anybody else at home?"

"Nivver a wan, sor. Shure, th' house do, be quiet's anny tomb."

"Then who was that lady, O'Hagan?"

"Liddy, sor!"—in unbounded amazement.

"Yes," impatiently. "A young woman an' left the house just as I was coming in. Who was she?"

"Shure an' I think ye must be dr'amin', sor. Divvie a female—ray-spicks to ye!—has been in this house for many an' munny th' wake, sor."

"But, I tell you—"

"Belike 'twas somewan jist stepped into the vestibule, mebbe to tie her shoe, sor, and ye thought—"

"Oh, very well," Maitland relinquished the inquiry as unprofitable, willing to concede O'Hagan's theory a reasonable one, the more readily since he himself could by no means have sworn that the woman had actually come out through the door. Such had merely been his impression, honest enough, but founded on circumstantial evidence.

"When you're through, O'Hagan," he told the Irishman, "you may come and shaye me and lay out my things, if you will."

"Very good, sor. In wan minute."

But O'Hagan's conception of the passage of time was a thought vague, his one minute had lengthened into ten before he appeared to wait upon his employer.

Now and again, in the absence of the regular "man," O'Hagan would attend one or another of the tenants in the capacity of substitute valet; as in the present instance, when Maitland, having left his host's roof without troubling even to notify his body-servant that he would not return that night, called upon the janitor to undertake the more trained employee; which O'Hagan could be counted upon to do very acceptably.

Now, with patience unfruffed, since he was nothing keen for the evening's enjoyment, Maitland made profit of the interval to wander through his rooms, lighting the gas here and there and noting that all was as it should be, as it had been left—save that every article of furniture and bric-a-brac seemed to be sadly in want of a thorough dusting. In the end he brought up in the room that served him as study and lounge—the drawing room of the flat, as planned in the forgotten architect's scheme—a large and well-lighted apartment overlooking the street. Here, pausing beneath the chandelier, he looked about him for a moment, determining that, as elsewhere, all things were in order—but, gray with dust.

Finding the atmosphere heavy, stale, and oppressive, Maitland moved over to the windows and threw them open. A gust of warm air, humid and redolent of the streets, invaded the room, together with the roar of traffic from its near-by arteries. Maitland rested elbows on the sill and leaned out, staring absently into the night; for by now it was quite dark. Without concern, he realized that he would be late at dinner. No matter; he would as willingly miss it altogether. For the time being he was absorbed in vain speculations about an unknown woman whose sole claim upon his consideration lay in a certain but immaterial glamour of mystery. Had she, or had she not, been in the house? And, if the true answer were in the affirmative, to what end, upon what errand?

His eyes focused insensibly upon a void of darkness beneath him—night made visible by street-lamps; and he found himself suddenly and acutely sensible of the wonder and mystery of the City; the City whose secret life ran fluent upon the hot, hard pavements below, whose voice throbbed, sibilant, vague, strident, inarticulate, upon the night air; the City of which he was a part equally with the girl in gray, whom he had never before seen, and in all likelihood was never to see again, though the two of them were to work out their destinies within the bounds of Manhattan island. And yet.

"It would be strange," said Maitland thoughtfully, "if . . . He shook his head, smiling. "Two shall be born," quoted Mad Maitland, sentimentally.

"Two shall be born the whole wide world apart."

A piano organ, having maliciously sneaked up beneath his window, drove him indoors with a crash of metallic melody.

As he dropped the curtains his eye was arrested by a gleam of white upon his desk—a letter placed there, doubtless, by O'Hagan in Maitland's absence. At the same time, a splashing and gurgling of water from the direction of the bathroom informed him that the janitor-valet was even then preparing his bath. But that could wait.

Maitland took up the envelope and tore the flap, remarking the name and address of his lawyer in its upper left-hand corner. Unfolding the inclosure, he read a date, a week old, and two lines requesting him to communicate with his legal adviser upon "a matter of pressing moment."

"Bother!" said Maitland. "What the dickens—"

He pulled up short, eyes lighting. "That's so, you know," he argued. "Bannerman will be delighted, and— even business is better than rushing round town and pretending to enjoy yourself when it's hotter than the seven brass hinges of hell and you can't think of anything else. I'll do it!"

He stepped quickly to the corner of the room, where stood the telephone upon a small side table, sat down, and, receiver to ear, gave central a number. In another moment he was in communication with his attorney's residence.

"Is Mr Bannerman in? I would like to—"

"Why, Mr Bannerman! How do you do?"

"You're looking 100 per cent. better—"

"Bad, mad word! Naughty!"

"Maitland, of course."

"Been out of town and just got your note."

"Your beastly penchant for economy. It's not stamped; I presume you sent it round by hand of the future president of the United States whom you now employ as office boy. And O'Hagan didn't forward it for that reason."

"Important, eh? I'm only in for the night."

"Then come and dine with me at the Primordial. I'll put the others off."

"Good enough. In an hour, then? Good-by."

Hainging up the receiver, Maitland waited a few moments ere again putting it to his ear. This time he called up Sherry's, asked for the head-waiter, and requested that person to be kind enough to make his excuses to "Mr. Cressy and party," he, Maitland, was detained upon a matter of moment, but would endeavor to join them at a later hour.

Then, with a satisfied smile, he turned away, with purpose to dispose of Bannerman's note.

"Bath's ready, sor."

O'Hagan's announcement fell upon heedless ears. Maitland remained motionless before the desk—transfixed with amazement.

"Bath's ready, sor!"—imperatively. Maitland roused slightly.

"Very well; in a minute, O'Hagan."

Yet for some time he did not move. Slowly the heavy brows contracted over intent eyes as he strove to puzzle it out. At length his lips moved noiselessly.

"Am I awake?" was the question he put his consciousness.

Wondering, he bent forward and drew the tip of one forefinger across the black polished wood of the writing-bed. It left a dark, heavy line. And beside, clearly defined in the heavy layer of dust, was the silhouette of a hand; a woman's hand, small, delicate, unmistakably feminine of contour.

"Well!" declared Maitland, frankly, "I am damned!"

The Missionary Mule.
"That mule," said the old farmer, "is what I call a 'missionary mule.' An' I'll tell you why: It throwed one man on his head, an' when the man wuz able to be up an' about ag'in, he went to 'prachin'; an' the last time the sheriff come to levy on that mule the critter kicked him 'cross the county line, whar they wuz holdin' a campmeetin' an' I'm blest ef the sheriff didn't git religion an' quit runnin' fer office—whar wuz uncommon hard to do, spein' that the office habit run in his blood. I tell you, nuthin' in this here worl' is to be despised, w'en as humble a critter as a mule kin be a missionary!"

Usually They Are.
"Professor, what is the meaning of the word 'monologue'?"
"My dear sir, consider the derivation of it. 'Mono' is slang for 'money,' and 'logos' means 'a word.' Monologue, words for money."

Paris Doctors May Wear Badges.
The Paris Medical society is considering asking physicians to wear badges in the streets and public places so that they can be easily found in case of accidents. It is not infrequent for a person in need of medical aid or acting as a messenger for some one who is to run for blocks before encountering a doctor's sign, and at any time he might unknowingly pass a physician.

Foolish Rules for Museum.
In the early days of the British museum a century or more ago the place was open for only six hours daily on five days a week in the summer and four hours daily during the rest of the year. Nobody could remain in the building for more than two consecutive hours, and the number admissible at one time was strictly limited to 15. Each batch of visitors was shepherded by an attendant.

Let Me Tell You Something

A woman who is sick and suffering, and won't at least try a medicine which has the record of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, is to blame for her own wretched condition.

There are literally hundreds of thousands of women in the United States who have been benefited by this famous old remedy, which was produced from roots and herbs over thirty years ago by a woman to relieve woman's suffering.

Read what these women say:

Camden, N. J.—"It is with pleasure that I send my testimonial for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, hoping it may induce other suffering women to avail themselves of the benefit of this valuable remedy."

"I suffered from pains in my back and side, sick headaches, no appetite, was tired and nervous all the time, and so weak I could hardly stand. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me a well woman—and this valuable medicine shall always have my praise."—Mrs. W. P. Valentine, 902 Lincoln Ave., Camden, N. J.

Erie, Pa.—"I suffered for five years from female troubles, and at last was almost helpless. I tried three doctors but they did me no good. My sister advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has made me well and strong. I hope all suffering women will just give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial, for it is worth its weight in gold."—Mrs. J. P. Endlich, R. F. D. 7, Erie, Pa.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, is it not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering from the same trouble.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

If the slightest trouble appears which you do not understand, write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for her advice—it is free and always helpful.

Your Last Chance to Get Good Land Cheap

lies in Idaho. Good land at such prices will soon be gone forever. Fine farm tracts can be had now at low prices, on easy terms. By the time your last payment is made the land will have doubled in value, at least.

New towns—needing trades—are growing up fast in the wonderful Snake River country. Men who went there poor a few years ago are now well to do.

Own An Idaho Farm

Idaho's variety of resources is unsurpassed anywhere in the world—money is made easily and quickly in farming, in fruit, stock and dairying. Alfalfa alone is making hundreds rich.

Save money, that might otherwise be spent in tickets and hotel bills, by going direct to Idaho and buying a farm now. Write today for our free booklet.

Keep the Kidneys Well and the Kidneys Will Keep You Well.

Sick, suffering, languid women are learning the true cause of bad backs and how to cure them. Mrs. W. G. Davis, of Groesbeck, Texas, says: "Back-aches hurt me so I could hardly stand. Spells of dizziness and sick headaches were frequent and the action of the kidneys was irregular. Soon after I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills I passed several gravel stones. I got well and the trouble has not returned. My back is good and strong, and my general health is better."

Howell—How did you come to break your engagement with that girl?
Powell—I had reason to think that she hadn't enough practical knowledge to make her a good helpmeet.

Howell—What gave you that idea?
Powell—I told her one day that the hens weren't laying, and she said she supposed that would affect the price of egg coal.

Foolish Question.

A New York chap wants to be told why theater tickets in that city do not indicate the hour of the beginning of the performance. Should think he would know. The hour is not mentioned because nobody is ever on time at the beginning of the performance. What would be the good of wasting printer's ink?

Unlikely.

Whale—What are you going to tell your wife when you get home?

Jonah—I don't know; I don't suppose she would believe me if I should tell her that I had been to a fish dinner.—The Bohemian.

TURKEY'S LATEST LITTLE TURMOIL

NOW A REPORT COMES THAT THE SULTAN WILL NOT BE DETHRONED.

YOUNG TURKS IN POWER.

The Occupation of the Turkish Capital May Be a Very Peaceful Affair at Last.

A special dispatch from Constantinople says a definite agreement between the government and the Committee of Union and Progress has been concluded.

Abdul Hamid is to remain as sultan of Turkey, but the present cabinet will resign immediately.

Negotiations for a peaceful settlement are proceeding with high hopes of success and there are increasing evidences that there will be no encounter between the army of investment and the First Army corps within the city.

Wednesday morning four Turkish battleships and a torpedo cruiser anchored off the Yildiz Kiosk in the Bosphorus. As the navy is with the Young Turk's move is significant. Also the commanders of most of the warships were changed with parts of the crews.

Everything is quiet at the Yildiz palace. The sultan is outwardly calm and is awaiting developments with apparent imperturbability.

The First Army corps, which garrisons Constantinople, has been completely won over to the constitutionalists. Various units of this corps, in accordance with the demands of Husni Pasha, commanding the army of investment, taking oath to obey their superiors, not to mix in politics, and not to interfere with the measures adopted to secure the punishment of those guilty of starting the revolt of last week.

Civilians and some foreigners express fear that at the last moment there may be resistance, or that some of the soldiers will get out of hand and as a result a general chaos has begun.

Exceptional measures are being taken to preserve order within the capital and numerous patrols are moving through the streets, but excesses of individual soldiers are feared. The men guilty of the disorders of a week ago are deserting and are making their way by rail and on foot into Asia Minor.

The agitators caught among the constitutional troops trying to undermine their loyalty were shot after a court-martial. Forty other men have been arrested by the constitutionalists on similar charges.

Izzet Pasha, chief of the general staff and principal member in Constantinople of the Committee of Union and Progress, has handled the situation so skillfully that the First Army corps has been won over to the constitutional cause to the point, in any event, of not offering any opposition. Izzet Pasha is making every disposition of the troops within the city to the advantage of Husni Pasha, the commander of the constitutionalists, should the committee deem it necessary to occupy the city.

Izzet Pasha's most able assistant in handling the affairs of the committee within the city has been Rifat Pasha, minister of foreign affairs in the cabinet that was forced to resign April 13.

The Mysterious Mrs. Boyle.

The attorneys who will prosecute the kidnapping cases against Mr. and Mrs. James H. Boyle are finding the woman's reticence an obstacle which is causing them some difficulty. Not a word has been uttered by the woman that would throw any light upon her identity, her past career or her line of defense in the pending cases. The one thing she has insisted upon is that she is the wife of Boyle. If this is proven or admitted she and Boyle cannot be used as witnesses against each other and a conviction in either case, but especially in the woman's case, will be rendered more difficult.

It is said that the prosecution has been working on the theory that Boyle and the woman have been married and can show a marriage certificate, but that the woman may have been married before and never secured a divorce. Should testimony of this character be produced the state would gain a valuable witness in each case.

Attorney T. C. Cochran, in charge of the prosecution, seems so confident of conviction it is believed he has some sensational new evidence up his sleeve.

Frank Carr, clerk on the steamer City of Cincinnati, playing between Cincinnati and Louisville, is positive he knows Mrs. James H. Boyle. He declares Mrs. Boyle was in Louisville last summer and went by the name of Mildred Getty.

George S. Ward, a Pittsburgh baker, has appealed to Sec. Knox to have Uncle Sam end the corner in wheat. His telegram reads: "The manipulation and selling of futures in wheat and other food products on margin should have the immediate attention of congress in order that it may be prohibited by law, thereby relieving the burden of the wage-earners."

Mme. Castro, wife of the deposed president of Venezuela, when prevented from landing in La Guaira, Venezuela, yelled at the government officials: "You'd better make hay while the sun shines."

Margaret Clark and Helen Miller, two young American girls who committed suicide on board the liner Lancia, bound for England, are said to have been members of a suicide club. Although the girls occupied the same stateroom they were apparently strangers. Their revolvers had the same secret mark, however.

SAVING PAINT MONEY

It Cannot Be Done by Using Cheap Material and Cheap Painters.

In arranging for painting, a good many property-owners try to save money by employing the painter who offers to do the job cheapest—or try to save money by insisting on a low-priced paint. But no property-owner would run such risks, if he realized what must be taken into consideration in order to get a job that will wear and give thorough satisfaction.

No householder will go wrong on the painting question if he writes National Lead Company, 1902 Trinity Building, New York, for their House-owner's Painting Outfit No. 49, which is sent free. It is a complete guide to painting. It includes a book of color schemes for either exterior or interior painting, a book of specifications, and an instrument for detecting adulteration in paint materials.

Nearly every dealer has National Lead Company's pure white lead (Dutch Boy Painter trademark). If yours has not notify National Lead Co., and arrangements will be made for you to get it.

Too Literal.

"Well, yes," said Old Uncle Lazzerberry, who was intimately acquainted with most of the happenances of the village. "Aimira Stang has broken off her engagement with Charles Henry Tootwiler. They'd be going together for about eight years, during which time she had been incognito into him, as you might call it, the beauties of economy; but when she discovered, just lately, that he had learnt his lesson so well that he had saved up 217 pairs of socks for her to darn immediately after the wedding, she 'peared to conclude that he had taken her advice a little too literally, and broke off the match."—Puck.

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

SIGNS PRESIDENT'S NAME

A Washington woman signed the name of Theodore Roosevelt 80,000 times to public documents in the year 1908, and will probably write that of President Taft as often in 1909.

This unique office of autograph substitute, or as it is officially termed "special secretary" to the president, is now held by Mrs. Margaret Wilson Young, a daughter of Ohio and a woman of great personal distinction and charm. Mrs. Young comes of old colonial stock, being a great granddaughter of Gen. Stokely, one of the officers in Washington's staff during the revolutionary war.

It was this Stokely who equipped at his own expense and personally commanded a regiment at Brandywine.

Previous to her appointment as special secretary, which was made in January, 1908; Mrs. Wilson occupied an important position in the post-office department at Washington, where she was auditor of New England accounts of the fourth class postmasters. She had hitherto made a specialty of mathematics, auditing and bookkeeping, but these prosaic acquirements have not prevailed against an inborn sense of the artistic. Her delightful taste in form and color is so well recognized that the government has frequently called upon her to select the furnishings of public buildings in different parts of the country, notably at Louisville, Ky.

No attempt is made by Mrs. Wilson to copy the signature of the president in signing his name to public documents, and no resemblance whatever existed between hers and that of the late chief executive, which last, as some joker has said, with a grain of truth, "looks as if it had been written with a big stick."

While the signature writing is an important detail of public business regarding land, it is not one requiring much mental work—only a tremendous outlay of patience.

The appointment of women to this office dates back to the administration of President Arthur, when, through the influence of the president and other officials, the Forty-eighth congress passed a law creating the office for "one female clerk to be designated by the president to sign land patents at a salary of $1,200." Prior to that time a male clerk had filled this place at $1,500 a year, having his business office at the White House.

JUST DOUBLE

320 ACRES INSTEAD OF 160 ACRES

As further inducement to settlement of the wheat-raising lands of Western Canada, the Canadian Government has increased the acre that may be taken by homesteaders to 320 acres—160 free and 160 to be purchased at $3.00 per acre. These lands are in the grain-raising area, where mixed farming is also carried on with unequalled success. A railway will shortly be built to Hudson Bay, bringing the world's markets a thousand miles nearer these wheat-fields, where schools and churches are convenient, climate excellent, railways close to all settlements, and local markets good.

"It would take time to assimilate the revelations that a visit to the great empire lying to the North of us unfolded at every turn."—Correspondence of a National Editor, who visited Western Canada in August, 1908.

WHAT JOY THEY BRING TO EVERY HOME

as with joyous hearts and smiling faces they romp and play—when in health—and how conducive to health the games in which they indulge, the outdoor life they enjoy, the cleanly, regular habits they should be taught to form and the wholesome diet of which they should partake. How tenderly their health should be preserved, not by constant medication, but by careful avoidance of every medicine of an injurious or objectionable nature, and if at any time a remedial agent is required, to assist nature, only those of known excellence should be used; remedies which are pure and wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, like the pleasant laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna has come into general favor in many millions of well informed families, whose estimate of its quality and excellence is based upon personal knowledge and use.

Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna has also met with the approval of physicians generally, because they know it is wholesome, simple and gentle in its action. We inform all reputable physicians as to the medicinal principles of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, obtained by an original method, from certain plants known to them to act most beneficially, and presented in an agreeable syrup in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to promote the pleasant taste; therefore it is not a secret remedy, and hence we are free to refer to all well informed physicians, who do not approve of patent medicines and never favor indiscriminate self-medication.

Please to remember and teach your children also that the genuine Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna always has the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package and that it is for sale in bottles of one size only. If any dealer offers any other than the regular Fifty cent size, or having printed thereon the name of any other company, do not accept it. If you fail to get the genuine you will not get its beneficial effects. Every family should always have a bottle on hand, as it is equally beneficial for the parents and the children, whenever a laxative remedy is required.

A WOMAN'S BACK.

The Aches and Pains will Disappear if the Advice of this Northville Citizen is Followed.

A woman's back has many aches and pains. Most times 'tis the kidneys' fault. Backache is really kidney ache. That's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure it.

Many Northville women know this. Read what one has to say about it: Mrs. M. V. Kingsley, Randolph street, Northville, Mich., says: "My first experience with Doan's Kidney Pills took place about a year ago. I had a severe attack of backache and I also suffered from headaches and pains across my joints. Doan's Kidney Pills were procured from Murdock Bros., drug store and they soon removed the backache and other annoyances. Another member of my family has also taken this remedy and it has proven very satisfactory."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

A Startling Statement

New York Medical Authorities Claim Dyspepsia Causes Consumption.

The post mortem statistics of the big New York hospitals show that some cases of consumption are due to unchecked dyspepsia, especially when the victim was predisposed to tuberculosis.

Dyspepsia wears out the body and brain, the weakened, irritable stomach is unable to digest food, the body does not receive the required nourishment, constipation ensues and the victim becomes thin, weak and haggard. As a result, the body becomes a fertile field for the germs of disease to lodge and flourish.

Therefore, the person who permits dyspepsia to progress unhindered is guilty of contributing toward the development of one of the most insidious and fatal diseases known to mankind.

Dyspepsia is curable if properly treated. A. E. Stanley & Co. sell a remedy which they positively guarantee will cure indigestion or dyspepsia or they will pay for all the medicine used during trial. The remedy is an absolutely new medical discovery and has been named Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets. Certainly no offer could be more fair, and the offer of A. E. Stanley & Co. is proof positive that Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets are a dependable and infallible remedy inasmuch as the medicine will cost you nothing if it does not benefit you. We urge you who are suffering with indigestion or dyspepsia to try this remedy. A twenty-five cent box of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets contains enough medicine for fifteen days' treatment. Remember Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets are only sold in Northville by A. E. Stanley & Co.

CHICHESTER'S PILLS

THE DIAMOND BRAND. Ladies! Ask your Druggist for Chichester's Diamond Brand Pills in Red and Gold wrapper. Take no other. If you are suffering from any of the following ailments, ask for CHICHESTER'S PILLS. They are known as Best, Sober, Always Reliable. SOLD BY DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE.

No Indigestion or Dyspepsia.

Misery from an Upset Stomach goes in five minutes.

Take some Diapiesin now and forever end all distress from a Disordered Stomach.

Every family here ought to keep some Diapiesin in the house, as any one of you may have an attack of Indigestion or Stomach trouble at any time, day or night.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour stomach five minutes afterwards.

If your meals don't tempt you, or what little you do eat seems to fill you, or lays like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of Indigestion.

Ask your Pharmacist for a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapiesin and take one triangle after supper tonight. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or Intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapiesin is a certain cure for all stomach misery, because it will take hold of your food and digest it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Actual, prompt relief for all your stomach misery is at your Pharmacist, waiting for you.

These large 50-cent cases contain more than sufficient to cure a case of Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Dyspepsia or Indigestion 37-40

A Cross-Eyed Hit. That handsome cross-eyed boy makes a great hit when he gives a recitation, whispered one whose eyes are straight. "He seems to be so impartial. They think he is looking at them all at one and the same time when the fact of the matter is that he can't look a single one of them straight in the face."

Tonic or Stimulant?

There is an immense difference between a tonic and a stimulant. Up one day, way back the next; that's a stimulant. Steady progress day by day toward perfect health; that's a tonic. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is a tonic, a strong tonic. The only Sarsaparilla entirely free from alcohol. Do not stimulate unless your doctor says so. Heknows. Ask him. Do as he says. J. C. Constipation is the one great cause of sick-headache, biliousness, indigestion, bad breath, debility, nervousness. Has your doctor ever recommended Ayer's Pills to you?
