MEMORIAL EXERCISES

DAY TO BE OBSERVED AS USUAL IN NORTHVILLE.

Chas. P. O'Neil of Detroit Speaker of the Day.

Memorial Day is again at hand and will be observed in Northville in the usual manner. This (Friday) afternoon at 3 o'clock the school will hold patriotic exercises in Princess Rink to which everyone is cordially invited.

The Memorial services will be held in the Presbyterian church Sunday evening, Rev. Wm. S. Jerome preaching the sermon. All old soldiers, soldiers of the Spanish-American war, and W. R. C. are requested to join with the Post in attending these services.

Details from the G. A. R. Post will visit and decorate graves in the outlying cemeteries Monday forenoon.

On Monday afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock, public exercises will be held in Princess Rink where Chas. P. O'Neil of Detroit will deliver the Memorial address.

After the exercises the G. A. R., W. R. C. and all who desire, headed by the Plymouth band, will march to Oakwood and Rural Hill cemeteries where the graves of the heroes, who offered up their lives for their country, will be appropriately decorated.

G. R. PRESS PICKS KELLEY

THINKS HE WILL HAVE POLE IN RACE

For Governorship in Campaign 1910; Aitkin Running Mate.

[Grand Rapids Press, May 17]

"Who will be candidates for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in 1910?"

"This question is being considered freely among the legislators and especially in the senate. And one of the answers is: Patrick H. Kelley. Friends of Chase's Osborn of the Soo are working tooth and nail for him in the house, but Osborn himself has not even admitted he would consider the nomination, while

Lieut. Gov. Patrick H. Kelley returns no evasive answer on the question of his candidacy.

"Next comes that question of lieutenant governor. In the senate the answer is almost unanimous: Senator William H. Aitkin, representing the Twelfth district of Huron and Sanilac.

"In the opinion of those who set aside their political preferences and look upon the situation without bias Kelley seems to have the pole. There even is some question if he won't get the nomination without a contest. In all the four times he has run for a state office Patrick H. Kelley never has had a contest for the nomination and his friends are optimistic enough to believe this rule will prevail in the coming campaign. Chase Osborn is a warm personal friend of the lieutenant governor. When he left to go abroad he was not of a mind to make the run himself and there can be no doubt that, if he does not become a candidate, he will be a supporter of the lieutenant governor.

"So far as Lieutenant Governor Kelley's campaign is concerned gubernatorial matters will not be mixed with the coming senatorial fight. He has a staunch following in both the Burrows and Townsend camps and Senator Wm. Alden Smith, who most assuredly will be one of the powers in the coming race for the choice of a successor to Julius Caesar Burrows, has no reason to be otherwise than friendly to the lieutenant governor.

"Another evidence of his strength is shown in the editorial comment of the Hartford Day-Spring, a paper that was one of the governor's bitterest opponents and whose utterances of an anti-Warner character had not a little to do in choosing, or rather the failure to choose, a certain person upon the board of regents. The Day Spring speaks of Kelley as a sure winner.

"Senator William H. Aitkin—if the senate could be put to a poll—would have at least thirty of the thirty-two votes for lieutenant governor. He seems almost certain to be the choice for Kelley's running mate and the Kelley-Aitkin team should be a hard one to beat.

"Aitkin is one of the strongest members of the senate, a fine, eloquent, logical talker, a student and a man with a record that will bear all the penetrating publicity of a bitter campaign. In the 'thumb' district he is a tower of strength and his influence will reach up and down the eastern side of the state doubtlessly cutting into Detroit somewhat, even should Chase Osborn decide to take up the fight in the senate.

"Senator Aitkin, with his string of banks and other commercial interests, is a man eminently well fitted financially to go through the campaign. This is a material view of the situation, but a mighty important one."

DETROIT GROCER FINED.

Did Not Obey the Red-Can Gasoline Law.

Deputy Oil Inspector Chequon of Detroit made a complaint against E. H. Lankin of Jarvis & Lankin, Michigan avenue grocers, two weeks ago and Judge Stein found the firm guilty and a fine of $5.00 and costs were assessed.

A number of dealers about the state are said to be careless about obeying the law and deputies have been instructed to give the matter still closer attention and to make complaints wherever violations are discovered.

IN HAPPY HOURS OF BOYHOOD

Fleeting Memory of the School Picnic and Its Accompanying Joys and Sorrows.

You gather about the cloths, kneeling or sitting "tailor fashion" on the moss and the leaves. Covers come off the lunch baskets. Ah, these mothers of ours! Who but a mother would spend hours of a busy day in preparing stuffed eggs and sandwiches and apple puffs and cake? Cake? There are no less than 75 different kinds of cake in those baskets and boxes, and every kind light and feathery and delicious. You eat it all, all you can get, but you do not then appreciate the love and self-denial animating the tired hands which made it. Now you do, now when those hands have been at rest for so many years.

You've eaten all you can possibly stuff and have moistened the cargo with two tin cupsful of lemonade. Therefore you are ready for the ice cream which the ubiquitous Hackett is dealing out. His is certainly a bully job—none better—but, like all great men filling responsible positions, Zephaniah has his troubles.

"Hey? Well, wait a minute, can't ye?" he inquires, brandishing a saucer in one hand and an iron spoon in the other. "Hold on till it's your turn! I never see such a gang of young lugs in my born days. All right! All right! Which'll it be—lemon or vanilla? Lemon you said? There you be! Clear off my feet! Mr. Hallett, for the land sakes make a couple million of these young ones keep in line, can't ye?"

You had a great scheme, product of "Crocodiles" inventive brain, by which you were to obtain both kinds of ice cream. You were to get the lemon first, swallow it as quickly as possible, hide your saucer and spoon in the bushes and then line up once more, innocent and bland, to be helped to vanilla, the supposition being that Mr. Hackett, in the rush of his occupation, would not remember and would think it was your first trip. It was a good plan and might have worked—if it had not been for teacher—Joseph C. Lincoln, in Success Magazine.

Nurse and Nursery Combined. A recent visitor to Brittany describes, in the New Orleans Times-Democrat, the two-story closed bed of the Breton peasant, in many cases a richly carved and ornamented heirloom, and always highly prized.

One day the visitor was expressing her admiration of a certain "lit-clos," when madame pulled the sliding panels apart, and revealed the figure of her husband sleepily rubbing his eyes and wanting to know what was the matter. She calmly explained to him that the visitor wanted to see the inside of the bed, and then explained to the visitor that her good man had been out fishing since dawn, and was very tired.

The visitor begged him to close the panels and go to sleep again, which he immediately did, but not before she noticed that he was fully dressed. It seems that the Breton peasant always disappears into the "lit-clos" fully dressed, and always emerges therefrom in the same condition.

While her husband slept madame enlarged on the advantages of a "lit-clos" in bringing up a family.

"I have had six children," she said, "and when they were little I used to put three in the top story and three in the bottom, then close the panels and leave them with an easy mind."

HORROR PRECEDES HIS WEDDING

THE MYSTERIOUS MURDER OF MRS. CORYEON, WEALTHY BAY CITYAN.

GRANDSON'S STORY TOLD.

Who Killed the Aged Woman is the Problem to Be Solved, and There Seems no Motive for Crime.

Struck down in her home on the wedding morning of her grandson by a blow which fractured her skull, Mrs. Christine Coryeon, aged 70, a wealthy Bay City widow, died a few hours later at Mercy hospital.

After Mrs. Coryeon was removed to the hospital, it was decided to go on with the wedding, as neither of the principals, Roland Rich and Miss Annie Kaiser, knew how seriously injured the aged woman was. The wedding, which was largely attended, as both parties are well known and their families well-to-do, took place at St. Boniface Roman Catholic church an hour and a half after the finding of Mrs. Coryeon on the floor of her home.

After the ceremony, Rich, who is 23 years old, was asked by the police and the prosecuting attorney to attend the confab at the chief's office. The bride has not yet been told of Mrs. Coryeon's death. The couple were to have left town on a wedding trip, but it is now doubtful if the police will let the bridegroom go for a time, at least.

The deepest mystery surrounds the aged woman's death. The grandson found her, he says, lying on the floor of her bedroom. He declares the first he knew that anything was wrong was while he was in the kitchen. He heard a noise as of a falling body and rushed to his grandmother's room, where he said he discovered the bedding was on fire.

Rich says he dragged the aged woman partly to another room and then rushed out of the house to give the alarm. He found Mrs. Coryeon's daughter, Mrs. Harry Tierney, at the door and she hurried to her mother's room, where Mrs. Coryeon still lay unconscious. Rich asserts he did not know his grandmother was hurt until after Mrs. Tierney's arrival when the wound in the head was discovered.

Rich gave the impression that he supposed his grandmother had fallen in a faint at the shock over finding her bed on fire or else that she had held something lighted in her hand when she fell.

The police are suspicious that whoever struck the aged woman her death blow started to set the bed on fire in an effort to destroy the body and hide the crime.

Rich explains his presence at his grandmother's house by the statement that he had been tormented by practical jokes "joshing" him about his coming wedding for the last few days, that he had come to Mrs. Coryeon's house that he might escape them. He had brought his wedding clothing with him expecting to give his annoyances the slip.

A singular feature of the affair is that the wedding suit which young Rich says he brought to his grandmother's home, is missing, with the $100 he says he had in the pocket for wedding expenses.

Rich was Mrs. Coryeon's favorite grandson and she had just given him a house and lot for a wedding present.

Rich says he did not see anyone in the house before the sound of Mrs. Coryeon's fall brought him to her room.

The Woman in White. A Colombian Joan of Arc has appeared. A woman in white, carrying a sword, leads the band of rebels who are using Panama as a base in an attempt to overthrow President Rafael Reyes, of the United States of Colombia.

The recruits, with the woman in white at their head, are now in Chiriqui. Their plan is to get arms by seizing rifles belonging to the Panama police and to capture a coastwise steamer in which to effect a landing on the Pacific side of Colombia. A strong police force is pursuing the intruders.

WIRELETS. Gov. Eben S. Draper, of Massachusetts, and his chauffeur, were caught in an automobile trap in Wellesley, Mass. by the police and summoned to appear in court to answer to a charge of speeding. When the police officers learned they were about to arrest the governor one of them apologized "Oh, that's all right," replied the governor. "If I'm a law-breaker, I'm just as gully as anybody else. You are simply doing your duty."

American millionaires, according to Guglielmo Ferrero, the Italian historian, who is now in Paris after a visit in this country, are the prototypes of the ancient Greeks. They feel themselves surrounded by public hostility and are bound to assume public responsibilities and vindicate themselves. He attributes much of the nobility to John D. Rockefeller to the fact that he denied himself so thoroughly to the public. Carnegie is popular for the opposite reason.

Asked in Winchester, Va., how long he intended to stay in politics, Uncle Joe Cannon replied: "I guess I'll stay in the game until I die. My constituency is very kind to me, and as long as they continue to want me, I'll be on the job. I cannot bear the idea of giving up and loafing around while the other fellows are at work having fun. I'll stay until I die and then be buried at public expense."

There are more and better horses at the state fair grounds, Detroit, than ever have been training on a Michigan track this early season.

Interested Party. Johnny—"Why do you want your father to be a detective?" Freddy—"Because a gumshoe wouldn't hurt so!"—Puck

When She Doesn't. It is seldom that a woman wishes to stand up for her rights in a street car.

His Limitations. "Yes, indeed," averred the impecunious party, "I enjoy automobiles—enjoy them very much, in fact—but I am never carried away by them."

Good Field for Corn Production. The soil and climate of southern Manchuria, especially throughout the fertile Liao valley, is naturally adapted to the production of Indian corn.

Keeps Heat "Just Right" Both Day and Night

This "boss" of the heating plant looks after your comfort, stands guard over your coal bin and safeguards the family from colds due to uneven temperature in the home.

The Jewell Controller with Time Clock attachment is the only device that automatically provides for a higher temperature in the morning without losing thermostatic control through the night.

For example: Suppose you want to reduce the temperature of the house to 60 degrees during the night, but would like to have it at 70 degrees by the time the family arises.

Before retiring, you set back the controller to 60 degrees. Then you set the time clock attachment to bring the temperature up to 70 at seven o'clock.

In spite of any sudden changes out-doors during the night, the Controller will maintain the temperature you wish, and the faithful clock will open the drafts in time to give you the desired warmth in the morning.

And then all day the Controller goes right on keeping your house warmed "just right." It is adapted for use with steam, hot-water or hot air. Why not unload your heating worries on the "Jewell" and save money too? Investigate this wonderful device. Shown and sold by RECORD OFFICE, Northville, Mich., or GEO. W. HOTALING, Bank Building.

NORTHVILLE, MICH., MAY 28, '09.

Congratulations to the Governor and Legislature.

Practically every bit of legislation advocated by Governor Warner was passed by the last legislature. That is a credit to both the governor and the legislature.

Just to mention a few of the many satisfactory things done by the legislature: There was the ad valorem tax bill, whereby telephone and telephone corporations will pay their taxes on the same basis as that on which the cottager pays his taxes.

Another important piece of work, done in the face of opposition of the subservient party press of the state, was the widening of the application of the primary reform bill.

The legislature tackled the regulation of the liquor trade in a way that showed no pandering to either party to the controversy. Without apology, our representatives went ahead and drafted a statute which is a far step towards a better state of affairs in this commonwealth.

It has provided for the confiscation of licenses and has restrained increase in the number of saloons. Then there was the legislation looking towards the ultimate abolition of the prison labor contract system from our prisons.

Then there is the better highway law; better railroad commission law; guarding the investing public from stock watering manipulations and home rule for cities.

Both Governor Warner, Lieutenant Governor Kelley and the state legislature are to be congratulated.

LEAD THE IDEAL SIMPLE LIFE.

Finns Devote Summer Months to Enjoyment and Pursuit of Health.

In Finland everybody lives the simple life in summer time. They camp out on islands, in the forests and all ways somewhere near the water, for everybody swims and bathes. Almost all classes sleep and eat al fresco at this time of year, and the town councils of the towns in this progressive and altogether delightful little country provide public fireplaces and public bathing sheds in all places where the working classes go in search of fresh air.

But the simple life is by no means dull with the frisky Finns. They combine it with a surprising amount of gaiety. They eat, drink and are merry in their picturesque little log cabins outside the cities.

When they are tired of bathing and splashing they dance, they sing, they watch fireworks and practice gymnastics, they all become like children and are the happiest, merriest, most good natured, most easily pleased and most healthy holiday makers in the world. We might take many leaves from the Finns' book.—Ladies' Pictorial.

TOOK UMBRAGE AT ASPERSION.

Citizens Resented Being Voted for as Town's "Meanest Man."

Old Scrooge might be a philanthropic Carnegie alongside certain tightwads in Mount Vernon, but William Friedberg has no license to determine publicly who are the men who would squeeze a dollar until the eagle yelled: "Help! I'm melting!" For conducting a voting contest to determine the meanest man in Mount Vernon Friedberg, who keeps a cigar store there, was fined five dollars by Judge Platt here. A warning went with the fine.

Friedberg lives in Astoria, but does business in Mount Vernon. He placed in his window a placard: "Come in and vote for the meanest man in Mount Vernon!" This was followed by a list of names. Conspicuous in the list were the mayor and chief of police. Then came many solid and snip citizens. After every name was a number signifying the votes the owner of the name had received so far.

Great was the wrath of the so called "meanest men." Friedberg was ordered to take the sign out of the window, but he refused to do so. His indictment for libel followed. In court he pleaded guilty, but asserted he did not know he was violating any law.—White Plains Cor. New York Sun.

BOY ROSE TO THE SITUATION.

Quick Wit and Intelligence Displayed by Youngster.

His parents are convinced that Clarence will be a great man, the only doubt is whether it will be as a statesman or scientist. He is only four years old, and their confidence is based largely on one incident. The boy never told of it, and it would have been lost to history if a neighbor had not been a chance witness.

Clarence lives in the suburbs, and has a cat and kittens. One day he went into the yard next door with one of the little ones to play. There was a big pile of brushwood here, and he shoved his pet into a hole in this. She crawled so far back that all his efforts to get her out were vain.

Had he been a man he would have pulled the pile of brush apart, but lacking strength for this he resorted to cunning. Running home, he soon returned with the mother cat. He shoved her into the hole after her offspring, and she soon came out with the little one between her teeth. Clarence bore them both home in triumph.

Frivolous Person.

"A man about town, as near as I kin figger it out," remarked Uncle Goshall Hemlock, "is a feller who wants to loaf around from pillar to post. Ain't satisfied to take up a place with the solid citizens every evenin' in the grocery."

"Can't Afford to Paint."

The man who says that, forgets that painting properly done is economy, and the fact is he can't afford NOT to paint.

How often you require to paint is largely dependent upon the paint you use.

THE SHERWIN-WILLIAMS PAINTS

outlast others. They are the most economical paints you can use, because they cover most and wear longest. Add to this their good appearance, and you have perfect paints—The Sherwin-Williams Paints.

They are made for many different kinds of painting. Whatever it is you want to paint—a house, or anything in or out of the house—we make the right paint for that particular purpose—not one slap-dash mixture for all.

NORTHVILLE, MICH., MAY 28, 1909.

Congratulations to the Governor and Legislature.

Practically every bit of legislation advocated by Governor Warner was passed by the last legislature. That is a credit to both the governor and the legislature.

Just to mention a few of the many satisfactory things done by the legislature: There was the ad valorem tax bill, whereby telephone and telephone corporations will pay their taxes on the same basis as that on which the cottager pays his taxes.

Another important piece of work, done in the face of opposition of the subservient party press of the state, was the widening of the application of the primary reform bill.

The legislature tackled the regulation of the liquor trade in a way that showed no pandering to either party to the controversy. Without apology, our representatives went ahead and drafted a statute which is a far step towards a better state of affairs in this commonwealth. It has provided for the confiscation of licenses and has restrained increase in the number of saloons.

Then there was the legislation looking towards the ultimate abolition of the prison labor contract system from our prisons.

Then there is the better highway law; better railroad commission law; guarding the investing public from stock watering manipulations and home rule for cities.

Both Governor Warner, Lieutenant Governor Kelley and the state legislature are to be congratulated.

The Legislature Makes A Good Record.

It is as rare as it is welcome, this duty of commending the legislature for its attention to state needs and the excellence of most of its legislation. Many of the questions handled this session have been of vital importance, have related to issues that long have been debated by the people, and the result has been a fair approximation to what public opinion at this time is ready to concede. It is a pleasant thing to say, after having so many legislatures that assumed a "people be damned" attitude, that the legislature of 1908-9 seemed always to keep one ear public wards and gave full heed to what vox populi suggested. This is the triumph of representative government, although to win this triumph it was necessary for the people to take such steps in primary reform as would make each legislator directly responsible to his constituents for his actions.—Detroit News.

And Not Until Then.

Just as soon as we hear of the government selling hardware, groceries, clothing and other articles of general use to the public, and delivering them through the mails at a less price than the local dealers can buy them at wholesale we will quit kicking about the government printing envelopes and selling them at a loss. The post office deficit would be wiped out if a lot of that sort of senseless competition was cut out. Why doesn't the government allow us to print return cards on envelopes and deliver the envelopes free to our customers.

In the May-time.

The vivid green of the quickening Spring
Vivets the fields and hills
The myriad songbirds' melodies ring
In tune with the rippling rills
Soft bud and leaf on the awakening trees
Unfold to the wooing sun
And the minor notes of the bustling bees
Through the nature-harmony run.

Uprising sweet from the leafy morn
The forest blooms spread far;
The dandelions' glittering gold
Gleams, wide-sung star on star;
The event of the soil in the furrowed field
Up-flouts on the perfumed air,
With promise of free and fruitful yield—
Of harvest, full and fair.

Then—up from beyond the horizon's rim
Looms a cloud-mass, heavy and dun,
And the light on the smiling fields grows dim,
Deep-veiled from the smiling sun;
The rumbling roll of the thunder-bass
Reounds through the echoing sky,
And the lightnings are cleaving the cloud's dark face.

As the first wind-wait shrieks by,
The tender leaves on the bending trees,
And the blossoms, shivering, sway
In terror before the boisterous breeze
Abit rows on its reckless way.
The sweeping charge of the rushing rain
Comes fast on the wing of the blast,
While the hiding song birds soft complain
As the smothering sheets swirl past.

But swiftly the thunder's howling crash
Booms far on its stormy way,
And fainter the lightning's rending flash
Cuts the gloom of the darkened day,
Then—the sun smiles down on a world washed new.

And the birds and the bees and the flowers
Awake, orer-arched by the glorious blue,
To the joys of the spring-tide hours

Teaching Girls to Ride Horses.

Almost all the little girls who are taught to ride horses these days are put on cross saddles. They may or may not ride astride when they get bigger, but they all learn that way. It is a safer position in the first place and it gives confidence never acquired by a youngster in a side saddle. As a rule the small equestrienne is clad in bloomers and the briefest of skirts. Often she discards the skirt when the lessons are given in the country. The instructor holds her pony by a leading strap and, of course, he rides a horse easily able to overtake her mount in the event of a bolt. Only for the first few lessons is the child's belt buckled to the pommel of her saddle. Until she acquires a firm seat she is kept close enough to the instructor to be caught by him if she starts to fall.

Perplexity, Beauty's Mar.

The forehead filled with lines is not always a sign of years. Often it is nothing but evidence of bad facial habits. Do you knit your eyebrows when you are thinking of perplexing matters or are down on your luck? If you do you will have a forehead seamed with lines and several deep furrows between the eyes.

AFTER SUFFERING ONE YEAR

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Milwaukee, Wis. — "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made me a well woman, and I would like to tell the whole world of it. I suffered from female trouble and fearful pains in my back. I had the best doctors and they all decided that I had a tumor in addition to my female trouble, and advised an operation. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me a well woman and I have no more backache. I hope I can help others by telling them what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me." — Mrs. Emma Lasse, 833 First St., Milwaukee, Wis.

The above is only one of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which prove beyond a doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, actually does cure these obstinate diseases of women after all other means have failed, and that every such suffering woman owes it to herself to at least give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation, or giving up hope of recovery.

Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health and her advice is free.

JUST DOUBLE 320 ACRES INSTEAD OF 160 ACRES

As further inducement to the settlement of the Western Canada, the Canadian Government has increased the area that may be taken by a homesteader to 320 acres—160 free and 160 to be purchased at $3.00 per acre. These lands are in the grain-raising area, where mixed farming is also carried on with unqualified success. A railway will shortly be built to Hudson Bay, bringing the world's markets a thousand miles nearer these wheat-fields, where schools and churches are convenient, climate excellent, railways close to all settlements, and local markets good.

It would take time to assimilate the revelations that a visit to the great empire lying to the North of us unfolded at every turn.

For pamphlets, maps and information as to low railway rates, apply to Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or the authorized Canadian Government Agents.

SYNOPSIS.

"Mad" Dan Mattland, on reaching his New York bachelor club, met an attractive young woman at the door. Janitor O'Hagan assured him no one had been within that day. Dan discovered a woman's finger prints in dust on his desk along with a letter from his attorney. Mattland died with Banderman, his attorney. Dan set out for Greenfield, to get his family jewels. During his walk to the country seat, he met the young woman in gray, whom he had seen leaving his bachelor's club. Her auto had broken down. He fixed it. By a ruse she "lost" him. Mattland, on reaching home, surprised lady in gray, cracking the safe containing his gems. She, apparently, took him for a well-known crook, Daniel Anist.

Did he catch a gleam of admiration in the eyes behind the goggles? "Now, if ever they get hold of my portrait and print it—Well!" sighed the girl wickedly, lifting slim, bare fingers in affected concern to the mass of ruddy hair, "in that event I suppose I shall have to become a natural blonde!"

Her humor,—her splendid fearlessness, the lightness of her tone, combined with the half-laughing, half-serious look that she swept up at him, to ease the tension of his emotions. For the first time since entering the room, he smiled; then in silence for a time regarded her steadfastly, thinking.

So he resembled this burglar, Anisty, strongly enough to be mistaken for him—eh? Plainly enough the girl believed him to be Anisty. Well, and why not? Why shouldn't he be Anisty for the time being, if it suited his purpose so to masquerade?

It might possibly suit his purpose. He thought his position one uncommonly difficult. As Mattland, he had on his hands a female thief, a hardened character, a common malefactor (strange that he got so little relish of the terms), caught red handed, as Mattland, his duty was to hand her over to the law, to be dealt with as what she was. Yet, even while these considerations were urging themselves upon him, he knew his eyes appraised her with open admiration and interest. She stood before him, slight, delicate, pretty, appealing in her ingenuous candor, and at his mercy. How could he bring himself to deal with her as he might wish—well, Anisty himself? She was a woman, he a gentleman.

As Anisty, however—if he chose to assume that expert's identity for the nonce—he would be placed at once on a plane of equality with the girl, for a fellow of her craft she could hardly refuse attentions. As Anisty, he would put himself in a position to earn her friendship, to gain—perhaps—her confidence, to learn something of her necessities, to aid and protect her from the consequences of her misdeeds, possibly—to sum up—to divert her footsteps to the paths of a calling less hazardous and more honorable.

Worthy ambition—to reform a burglar! Mattland regained something of his lost self-esteem, applauding himself for entertaining a motive so laudable. And he chose his course, for better or worse, in these few seconds. Thereby proving his incontestable title to the name and repute of Mad Mattland.

His face lightened, his manner changed; he assumed with avidity the role for which she had cast him and which he stood so ready to accept and act.

"Well and good," he conceded with an air. "I suppose I may as well own up—"

"Oh, I know you," she assured him, with a little, confident shake of her head. "There's no deceiving me. But," and her smile became rueful, "if only you'd waited ten minutes more! Of course I recognized you from the first—down there by the river, and knew very well what was your—lay; you gave yourself away completely by mentioning the distance from the river to the Manor. And I did so want to get ahead of you on this job! What a feather in one's cap, to have forestalled Dan Anisty!"

But hadn't you better be a little careful with those lights? You seem to forget that there are servants in the house. Really, you know, I find you most romantically audacious, Mr. Anisty—quite in keeping with your reputation."

"You overwhelm me," he murmured. "Believe me, I have little conceit in my frame, such as it is." And, crossing to the windows, he loosed the heavy velvet hangings and let them fall together, drawing their edges close so that no ray of light might escape. She watched him with interest. "You seem well acquainted here."

"Of course. Any man of imagination is at pains to study every house he enters. I have a map of the premises—house and grounds—here." He indicated his forehead with a long forefinger.

"Quite right, too—and worth one's while. If rumor is to be believed, you have ordinarily more than your labor for your pains. You have taught me something already. Ah, well!" she sighed, "I suppose I may as well acknowledge my inferiority—as neophyte to hisophant. Master!" She courted him. "I beg you proceed and let thy cheeks profit through observation!" And a small white hand gestured significantly toward the collection of burglar's tools—drills and chisels, skeleton keys, putty, and all—neatly displayed upon the rug before the massive safe.

"You mean that you wish me to crack this safe for you?" he inquired, with inward consternation.

"Not for me. Disappointment I admit is mine, but not for the loss I sustain. In the presence of the master I am content to stand humbly to one side, as befits one of my lowly state in the ranks of our profession. I resign, I abdicate in your favor, claiming nothing by right of priority."

"You are too generous," he murmured, confused by her thinly veiled ridicule. "Not at all," she replied briskly. "I am entirely serious. My loss of today will prove my gain to-morrow. I look for incalculable benefit through study of your methods. My own, I confess, with a contemptuous toss of her head toward the burglar's kit, are clumsy, antiquated; out of date."

But then, I'm only an amateur. "Oh, but a woman—" he began to apologize on her behalf.

"Oh, but a woman!" she rapped out, smartly. "I wish you to understand that this woman, at least, is no mean—" And she hesitated.

"The?" he supplied, crudely. "Yes, chief. We're two ota feather, at that."

"True enough. . . . But you were first in the field; I fail to see why I should reap any reward for tardiness. The spoils must be yours."

It was a test, Mattland watched her keenly, fascinated by the subtlety of the game.

"But I refuse, Mr. Anisty—positively refuse to go to work while you stand aside and—laugh."

"Self preservation," he corrected, with magnificent gravity.

She hesitated but a moment longer, then with a quick gesture removed her mask. Mattland's breath came fast as he bent forward, peering into her face; though he schooled his own features to an expression of intent and inoffensive studiousness, he feared the loud thumping of his heart would betray him. As he looked it became evident that the witchery of moonlight had not served to exaggerate the sensitive, the almost miniature, beauty of her. If anything, its charm was greater there in the full glare of the electric chandelier, as she faced him, giving him glance for glance, quite undismayed by the intenceness of his scrutiny.

In the clear light her eyes shone lustrous, pools of tawny flame; her hair showed itself of a rich and luminous coppery hue, spun to immeasurable fineness; a faint color burned in her cheeks, but in contrast her forehead was as snow—the pure, white, close-grained skin that is the heritage of red-headed women the world over, and their chiefest charm as well; while her lips—

As for her lips, the most coherent statement to be extracted from Mr. Mattland is to the effect that they were altogether desirable, from the very first.

The hauteur of her pose, the sympathy and laughter that lurked in her mouth, the manifest breeding in the delicate modeling of her nostrils, and the firm, straight arch of her nose, the astonishing allurement of her eyes, combined with their spirited womanliness—these, while they completed the conquest of the young man, abashed him. He found himself of a sudden endowed with a painful appreciation of his own imperfections, the littleness of his ego, the inherent coarseness of his masculine fiber, the poor futility of his ways, contrasted with her perfections. He felt as if rebuked for some unwarrantable presumption.

For he had looked into eyes that were windows of a soul; and the soul was that of a child, unsullied and immaculate.

You may smile; but as for Mattland, he deemed it no laughing matter. From that moment his perception was clear that, whatever she might claim to be, however damning the circumstances in which she appeared to him, there was no evil in her.

But what he did not know, and did not even guess, was that, from the same instant, his being was in bondage to her will. So Love comes, strangely masked.

CHAPTER IV. Midsummer Night's Madness. At length, awed and not a little shamefaced, "I beg your pardon," he stammered, wretchedly.

"For what?" she demanded, quickly, head up and eyes alight.

a gibe she tried to pass off her astonishment.

"The thief apologizes to the thief?" "Unkind!" Briefly hesitant, with an impulsive gesture she flung out a generous hand.

"You're right; I was unkind. Forgive me. Won't you shake hands? I do want to be a good comrade, since it has pleased Fate to throw us together like this, so—so oddly." Her tone was almost plaintive; unquestionably it was appealing.

Mattland was curiously moved by the touch of the slim, cool fingers that lay in his palm. Not unpleasantly. He frowned in perplexity, unable to analyze the sensation.

"You're not angry?" she asked. "No—but—but—" "Yes?"

"Why do you do this, little woman? Why do you stoop to this—this trade of yours? Why sully your hands—and not only your hands—impair your good name, to say nothing of your liberty?"

She drew her hand away quickly, interrupting him with a laugh that rang true as a coin new from the mint, honest and genuine.

"And this," she cried, "this from Dan Anisty? Positively, sir, you are delightful! You grow more dangerously original every minute! Your scruples, your consideration, your sympathy—they are touching—in you!" She wagged her head daintily in pretense of disapprobation. "But shall I tell you?" more seriously, doubtfully. "I think I shall . . . truly, I do this sort of thing, since you must know, because—imprimis, because I like it. Indeed and I do! I like the danger, the excitement, the exercise of cunning and—and I like the rewards, too. Besides—"

The corners of her adorable mouth drooped ever so slightly. "Besides—?"

"Why—? But this is not business. We must hurry. Will you, or shall I—?"

A crisis had been passed; Mattland understood that he must wait until a more favorable time to renew his importunities.

"I will," he said, dropping on his knees by the safe. "In my lady's service!"

"Not at all," she interposed. "I insist. The job is now yours; yours must be the profits."

"Then I wash my hands of the whole affair," he stated in accents of finality. "I refuse. I shall go, and you can do as you will—blunder on," scornfully, "with your nitroglycerin, your rags, and drills and—and rouse the entire countryside, if you will."

"Ah, but—"

"Will you accept my aid?" "On conditions, only," she stipulated. "Halvers?"

He shook his head. "Half shares, or not at all!" She was firm. "A partnership?"

DIFFERENCE IN THEIR VIEWS

Uncle Si Eggmann Discourses on Relative Sizes of Farms East and West.

"Yes, sir, gentlemen; that's a little difference between farmin' out west an' back here in Old Vermont," said Uncle Si Eggmann to the cronies around the stove at the Crossroads store, on his return from a visit to his brother in Dakota. "Now, out there in the west they don't think they've really got a farm unless it totals about three or four thousand acres; an' if they air raisin' stock they speak o' 5,000 head as bein' a 'leettle bunch o' cattle.' An' takes 'em 'bout half a day to hoe one row o' corn, the rows air so long, an' they harvest corn an' wheat enough on one farm to fill our town hall. Now, that's a leettle different from what it is here in New England, where we call 20 acres o' ground—a fourth of it graveyard—a couple o' dozen heas an' a rooster, six or eight keows, an' a rozzberry patch, a farm! Yes, sir, gentlemen; that's a turrible difference between farmin' east an' farmin' west—a most turrible difference!"—Puck.

THE HEIR'S HAIR-MOVING.

Mr. White—It's no use, my dear, I shall have to have my whiskers off; baby is pulling 'em out by the roots. Mrs. White—How unfeeling of you. It's the only thing that keeps baby quiet. Now you threaten to take the dear's enjoyment away!

Opposed to Slang. Donald had been to Sunday school, and on coming home was asked what he had learned. The lesson was the story of Joseph, and the small learner was evidently very full of his subject.

"Oh," he said, "it was about a boy, and his brothers took him and put him in a hole in the ground; and then they killed another boy, and took the first boy's coat and dipped it in the blood of this boy and—"

"Oh, no, Donald, not another boy!" his sister interrupted, horrified. But Donald stood his ground.

"It was, too," he insisted. Then he added: "The teacher said 'kid,' but I don't use words like that."—Woman's Home Companion.

Our Wonderful Language. "Out of sight in that gown, isn't she?" observed a gentleman in the balcony, pointing to Mrs. de Koltay, who occupied a front seat in one of the lower tier of boxes.

"Out of sight? Well, hardly. It strikes me it is the other way about," responded his companion dryly.

THE WARDENSHIP AND TWINE

JACKSON PRISON BOARD MAKE NO CHOICE OF WARDEN TILL JUNE.

BINDER TWINE MARKET.

Large Product on Hand, Market Slow and Lower Prices Offered by Some Unknown Party.

Contrary to expectations the prison board of control did not take up the matter of the appointment of a warden Tuesday evening. The special meeting was called to consider matters relating to the binder twine business. Not a word was spoken regarding the warden until adjournment, when Mr. Navin laid some letters on the table and remarked that they would be considered when the warden appointment was taken up. When this will be is problematical. The next meeting of the board will be held on June 4.

The so-called trust is bucking the prison twine manufactured in this and other states. The Michigan prison plant has established a price of $7.50 per 100 pounds for cash and $7.25 for payment after harvest in October, and the sisal of which twine is manufactured six cents a pound and upwards. The state pays the gleaners 25 cents a hundred pounds for selling the twine, so the margin of profit is small enough. But some twine is offered in the market at a price which enables dealers to sell it at seven cents—hence the problem. Previous to the past week orders have been coming in slowly, and it looked as though the state might have a lot of twine on hand at the end of the year, as the capacity of the plant is between two and a half and three million pounds. But recently reorders from the gleaners, who are acting as selling agents for the prison product, have come in more rapidly, and the twine is being shipped. In the last 10 days orders amounting to 300,000 pounds have been received.

The prison has about 1,000,000 pounds of sisal on hand, and this year it is buying at better prices it paid 43-16 cents per pound for part of this and five cents for the rest.

Gov. Warner expressed the belief that the situation is favorable for the prison twine plant. Sisal has increased in price a cent a pound during the past week and he believed the quality of the prison twine—which he alleged is a lot better than the cut-late twine—will sell it, in spite of everything.

Gov. Warner has a plan of making some members of every school board in the state a twine agent.

Duggan's Evil Spirit.

"I wish I had killed him, I wouldn't have gotten any more."

This remark, made by James Duggan on his way back to jail after being sentenced to life imprisonment for assault on Representative W. H. Schantz at Lansing, would indicate that there was some motive which has not been disclosed for Duggan's peculiar assault, though Duggan on the trial insisted to the contrary saying that he did not know why he attacked Schantz.

The case was given to the jury after the dinner hour Saturday, and after fifteen minutes' deliberation the jury came in with a verdict of guilty of assault with intent to murder. Judge West immediately called Duggan to the bar and sentenced him to imprisonment for life at Marquette. Duggan asked to be sent to Jackson, but the judge told him he thought Marquette was a better place for him.

Planned Disappearance.

No further investigation will be made by the Detroit police in the case of Frank S. Curtis, the mechanical engineer who disappeared from the Wayne hotel April 27 last. Capt. McDonnell has received a letter from New York from a man closely connected with the Curtis family, and this man says that Curtis' family is convinced that he is alive and well, that he disappeared of his own volition, and that the disappearance was probably planned by him before he left New York on his trip west.

"I was convinced right along that Curtis was alive and well," declared Capt. McDonnell. "The fact that he wrote so many letters before dropping out of sight aroused my suspicions, and the more we investigated the more convinced I became that there was something behind the whole matter and that Curtis had planned his disappearance."

Heavy Fire Loss.

Fire wrecked the interior of the seven-story Gilbert block, one of the leading office buildings in Grand Rapids. The largest loser is the Ira M. Smith Co.'s department store, which occupied the lower floors and all the rear of the structure. The loss to the department store is estimated at between $150,000 and $250,000, with insurance of about $160,000.

The loss on the building itself is estimated at between $50,000 and $100,000, with insurance on the building amounting to $100,000.

The first three weeks of local option in Coldwater have been absolutely dry. There have been no drunks in the city, no arrests, and the city police are enjoying an enforced rest.

The Flint postoffice officials are wondering what to do with a letter which arrived there recently, addressed to "The Leading Saloon" as since the advent of the local option law, on May 31, both the leaders and followers in the sale of intoxicating liquors have been out of commission.

An exhibition of coolness was given by Basil Cleveland, a 15-year-old high school lad, of Muskegon when three of his fingers were severed by a buzz saw at the Hackley Manual Training school. The boy did not utter a cry, but calmly pulled a lever to stop the saw and brushed the severed fingers off the saw table onto the floor.

STATE BRIEFS.

Louis Harris, aged 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris, of Chaping, drank a bottle of carbolic acid he found and will die.

Fruit growers in Holland and vicinity are jubilant over the bright prospects for a bountiful harvest. The trees are laden with buds.

Instead of going to jail for the theft of a bicycle, Robert Miller, 18, was sentenced in Traverse City to keep out of Michigan. The boy will be sent to the home of a brother in Kansas City, Mo.

John Mawrovitz, the 10-year-old Port Huron boy who was charged with burning a barn in addition to committing several other crimes several months ago, has disappeared from home.

Ex-Rep. J. H. McCallum, of Manistiquie, has been appointed to a position in the auditor general's department at Lansing. He goes on the pay roll of the commonwealth as examiner of state lands.

Mrs. Mary Bloch, the Sault Ste. Marie woman, who killed her infant daughter by striking her on the head with her fist and then throwing her into a pool of water in the woods, has been adjudged insane.

John Peltona, of Negaunee, committed suicide by shooting himself through the head. He was a prominent business man and was in love with a girl who recently arrived from Italy, but who rejected him.

Since Carl Decker, 16 years old, left his mother's home in Kalamazoo on May 4 and went up town to look for work, not a trace of his whereabouts has been found, and his mother is nearly frantic with anxiety.

Thomas Wilson, Port Huron, while on his way home with an armful of groceries, was shot in the right arm by an unknown man, who escaped from Wilson after a long chase. The wound will not prove serious.

Frank P. Glazier, ex-state treasurer, and Paul Schaible, former cashier of Glazier's defunct Chelsea bank, have been served with notices to appear at the bankruptcy proceedings on the affairs of the bank, to be held June 2.

Mrs. Otto Otersky, aged 26, of Saginaw, was found dead in bed, she having evidently gotten a carbolic acid bottle by mistake when looking for headache medicine, during the night. She is survived by a husband and two children.

Penned in by flames that made the only ordinary means of exit a tunnel of flaming fire, Paula, the 7-year-old daughter of Martin Nowicki, of Detroit, was burned to death in a blaze that started from the explosion of a gasoline stove.

Suit has been started in circuit court by Mrs. Edward A. Stewart against the Detroit United Railway for $20,000 damages because of the death of Edward A. Stewart June 24, 1908. Stewart was the victim of a collision between a limited and a local car east of Jackson.

Gov. Warner is reported to have said that he had decided not to sign the bill removing the prohibition of the use of oleomargarine in the state institutions. He said he considered the measure in the interests of a few Chicago packers and against the Michigan farmers.

Three men, convicted of crimes against young girls, were sentenced in the circuit court at Port Huron, Saturday. Edward J. Lafferty, of St. Clair, goes to prison for one to ten years; Elmer Quilman of Capac, for two to fifteen years, and Otto Schroeder, of China township, for six months to one year.

William and Mark Hubbard, brothers who have police records, were arrested in Tonia after exchanging several shots with Gene Blackmore and Earl Alexander, Pere Marquette watch men. They were working around the depot, and when the officers attempted to arrest them, opened fire. No one was hurt in the battle.

Rep. John O. Mavey, of Ontonagon county, leader in the movement for the adoption of the reforestation bill, which recently passed both houses of the legislature, says that he is pleased with the result of his labors. He says the new law will increase the price of waste lands in Michigan from $2 to $5 and $10 per acre.

Representatives of the coal operators and miners met in Bay City Monday in an effort to settle the strike trouble at the Handy mines at Akron, Tuscola county but at the close of the conference matters looked no better than before. The delegates could not agree on a suitable and satisfactory compromise. Three hundred men are out of work on account of the trouble.

Mrs. Minnie Raser, the wife of a Pulaski township farmer, who attempted to kill herself by shooting, Saturday, while despondent and hysterical, is in a critical condition, not from the wound but because after she became conscious after the shooting and realized what she had done, she became violently insane. Physicians say that this state of affairs makes her recovery doubtful.

Failing to find the co-operation which it has expected, the Ann Arbor Railway company has about decided not to straighten its road through the city and that means that the hope of the citizens regarding certain grade separations will fail of fulfillment. The railway company had expected to expend about $50,000 in new bridges and straightening the crooked course of its road, but the property owners, it is said, have boosted the valuations on their land, sometimes to 200 and 300 per cent its real value.

Charles Bartlett says the coffin containing the body of his 5-year-old daughter, Grace, carried from his home in Flint Tuesday, while he lay in bed too ill to even view the little one's remains. The father and daughter were taken ill several days ago with pneumonia. Tuesday night the child died. Bartlett has a chance for recovery.

The Anti-Saloon league, through Supt. George W. Morrow, of Detroit, requested the Congregational ministers while holding a convention in Muskegon, to assist in the fight for the abolishment of the saloons in Michigan.

Senators Quay and Stewart.

Here are two of the many good stories that are absolutely true in relation to Senator Quay, dead years ago, and Senator Stewart of Nevada, who died a few days ago. They were unlike in nature, and therefore they liked each other supremely.

"Quay," said Stewart one day in the senate restaurant, "I am fond of you because you talk so little. It gives me the larger chance to talk too much."

"I will not sin in that way again," said Quay, and the following day saw his desk in the senate piled high with volumes containing tariff enactments and history, and the Pennsylvania spoke for days, in the hours open for debate, blockading amendments to a tariff bill in which Quay was interested, with Stewart on the other side.

Stewart was always deeply curious in regard to methods by which Quay held his grasp on Pennsylvania dominant politics.

"Matt," he exclaimed one day, "tell me how you so successfully run the politics of your state."

"By making my opponents run," responded the laconic, word-saving Quay.

Kindness That Is Frozen.

The world is full of kindness that never is spoken, and that is not much better than no kindness at all. The fuel in the stove makes the room warm, but there are great piles of fallen trees lying on rocks and on tops of hills where nobody can get them. These do not make anybody warm. You might freeze to death for want of wood in plain sight of these fallen trees, if you had no means of getting the wood home and making a fire of it. Just so in a family. Love is what makes the parents and children, the brothers and sisters happy. But if they take care never to say a word about it, if they keep it a profound secret as if it were a crime, they will not be much happier than if there was not any love among them; the house will seem cool even in summer; and if you live there, you will envy the dog when anyone calls him "Poor fellow."

—Dr. J. G. Holland.

The Usual Experience.

"What are you going to do with the money you made speculating in stocks last fall?"

"Nothing."

"I should think you could find some better use for it than letting it lie in the bank."

"I'm not letting it lie in the bank. I speculated in some more stocks with it."

In 1930.

"I suppose you had hardships in your early days, grandpop?"

"Yes; many a time I got up of a winter morning and walked four blocks to borrow a book from a Carnegie library. They didn't deliver the books in those days."

SEEN and HEARD NEW YORK

Giulia Morosini Re-enters Gotham Society

NEW YORK.—Another mystery, and one that has come to a quarter of a century has been full of mystery and romance—Elmhurst, the Riverdale home of the rich Morosini family.

Miss Giulia Morosini, who inherited most of the $7,000,000 estate of her father, Giovanni Morosini, and is just as picturesque in her way as he was in his, is the central figure of an interesting situation existing about the beautiful estate. She has just re-entered society after her period of mourning for her father, who died last September. That fact of itself has proved an attractive gossip subject to those who know her.

Giulia Morosini's friends were doubly surprised when they recognized her escort. The man with her was Arthur N. Werner, a former policeman of the mounted squad who is in reward for a piece of bravery a couple of years ago, was appointed by Morosini, first as manager of the string of blooded show horses which Miss Giulia maintained, and later as manager of the estate.

Werner, a tall, good-looking fellow, with the straight back and clear eyes of an accomplished horseman, brought Miss Morosini to an affair at the Waldorf-Astoria, had dinner with her there after it was over, was presented to her friends, and, altogether, was treated as at least a social equal.

Following this incident at the Waldorf, it developed that Werner was no longer, apparently, merely a manager. He has become Miss Morosini's constant companion in riding, driving and automobile, both on a private track which he caused to be built about the grounds at Riverdale and on the pretty Westchester roads.

Not only that, but he has become her associate, at least in the administration of the financial affairs of the place.

The heiress to Elmhurst and to the picturesque old banker's millions is now about thirty-five, tall, slender and athletic. She is undoubtedly striking and is magnificent on a horse.

Werner is about forty. He tops the six-foot mark and has the heavy yet lithe physique of a skilled boxer.

Women Now Lead Children with Chains

CHILDREN in leash have appeared in Fifth avenue in New York City from Thirty-fourth street to Fifty-ninth four boys and two girls were sent in one afternoon in the custody of elder persons to whom the children were connected by bonds of affection and dog chains.

The custom is an innovation from Los Angeles and Santa Barbara, Cal., where for several weeks persons who have been responsible for the safety of children have insured it by putting the children in leash.

The children whose appearance in Fifth avenue made them pioneers in the movement in New York seemed to have more fun than those children whose parents of guardians grew frightened while keeping their charges away from the hoofs of horses and the wheels of automobiles.

The chains were twice the length of the ordinary dog chain.

Persons in front of Sherry's and Delmonico's, at Forty-fourth street and fifth avenue, looked on with interest, as the women with the chained children piloted them across the street in the midst of traffic.

The children were evidently strangers to each other. Three of the women who were in charge wore maids' caps, and the other three were seemingly mothers of the children or friends of the mothers.

William Jennings Bryan buys a farm in the Gulf Coast Country

He has purchased 160 acres of irrigated land near Mission, Hidalgo Co., Texas. Forty have been cleared and planted to orange, lemon, grape fruit, fig, olive, pecan, almond trees, etc., and if they "do as well as he expects" he will build a home and spend a portion of his winters there. Mr. Bryan has long contemplated improving a place in the South, and it is not surprising that his selection should be made in the heart of the Gulf Coast Country, whose climate is almost ideal and whose soil is so wonderfully productive.

William Volz, from ten acres in the same neighborhood, shipped 5,000 crates of Bermuda Onions from 10 acres at an average price—after all expenses paid—of $1.00 per crate; $500 an acre. Think of it!

On a small tract of land in the Gulf Coast Country you should be able to make a good living and lay away a snug sum each year.

Investigate this proposition while the land is within your reach. Next year it will cost more.

Very low rate excursions twice each month.

If you would like to know more of the big profit growers are making in the Gulf Coast Country, write me today for some very interesting literature and a set of colored post-cards. Rock on-request.

The high military officials in Germany are equally highly decorated. According to a Paris contemporary, the eight adjutants of Frederick III. possessed but 35 decorations between them. Count Hulsen Huesler had 54 and his successor, Gen. von Plessen, has already 53. The five personal adjutants of the kaiser possess together 100. Marshal Bluch could boast of only 15 in all.

Upset Stomach or Indigestion

Ends five minutes after taking some Diapepsin.

Stops Food Fermentation and cures Stomach Trouble before you realize it.

Take your sour stomach—or maybe you call it indigestion, dyspepsia, Gastritis or Catarrh of Stomach; it doesn't matter—take your stomach trouble right with you to your Pharmacist and ask him to open a 50-cent case of Pepp's Diapepsin and let you eat one 22-grain Triangule and see if within five minutes there is left any trace of your stomach misery.

The correct name for your trouble is Food Fermentation—food souring, the Digestive organs become weak; there is lack of gastric juice; your food is only half digested, and you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, vomiting, nausea, heartburn, griping in bowels, tenderness in the pit of stomach, bad taste in mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleeplessness, belching of gas, biliousness, sick headache, nervousness, dizziness and many other similar symptoms.

If your appetite is sickly, and nothing tempts you, or you belch gas or if you feel bloated after eating, or your food lies like a lump of lead on your stomach, you can make up your mind that at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself, after your next meal, that your stomach is as good as any; that there is nothing really wrong. Stop this fermentation and begin eating what you want without fear of discomfort or misery.

Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a matter of how soon you take a little Diapepsin.

TO HESITATE LONG IS TO FAIL.

Successful Business Man Must Have Attribute of Courage.

Many a man fails because he does not dare to take risks, to take the initiative.

When do you expect to do anything distinctive in life? When do you expect to get out of the ranks of mediocrity? The men who do original things are fearless. There is a lot of dare in their make-up, a great deal of boldness. They are not afraid to take chances, to shoulder responsibility, to endure inconvenience and privation.

There never was a time when the quality of courage was so absolutely indispensable in the business world as it is to-day. It does not matter how many success qualities you possess, young man, if you lack courage, you will never get anywhere. Not even honesty or perseverance will take its place. There is no substitute for courage.

It does not matter how well educated you may be, or how good a training you may have had for your vocation, if you are a hesitator, if you lack that courage which dares to risk all on your judgment, you will never get above mediocrity.

The men who stand at the top of their line of endeavor stand there because they have the courage of their convictions. They had the courage to climb, had the nerve to undertake even against the advice of others.—Success Magazine.

MAKES KNOTTY POINT IN LAW.

Owners of Property Have Right to Forbid Flight of Airships.

A law framed thousands of years ago by the ancient Romans, and the only one bearing on the subject, may have to be amended or wholly nullified before airships go shooting about through space at their own sweet will. This important fact was brought out at a meeting of aeronauts in London. At present nobody has the right to fly across occupied land. The world is governed by the ancient Roman law, "Usque ad Coelum." It means that every landowner has a right to the air above his head as far up as he chooses to go, and can get an injunction to restrain anyone from flying through it. So far nobody has attempted to put the law in force. It would be most uncomfortable, not to say disastrous, for a farmer suddenly to emerge from his barn or smokehouse and pepper one's airship with bullets. The fact that the aeronaut from his lofty perch could not be expected to see the "No Trespass" sign might not prove a mitigating circumstance with the rural magistrate.

SHOW HATRED OF FOREIGNERS.

Chinese Historical Plays That Keep Alive Race Prejudice.

Historical plays are acted everywhere in China. They are popular in the quiet villages, the homes of the rich, in the crowded cities, and in the busy market towns. These plays are written with the object of intensifying the bitterness and contempt of the people against the foreigner. The story of plunderings and massacres of their forefathers is vividly portrayed with all the dramatic power that the actors possess. The foreigner is represented as a monster in appearance. His face is dragged out of shape and his mouth is made to appear near his ear. His beard on one side is red and on the other blue. His eyes are fierce and staring, and murder is stamped upon his hideous features. The people of the interior, who have never come into actual contact with the foreigner, have this conception of the hated barbarian. To their minds Americans, French, English, Germans are all alike, barbarians to be destroyed.

The Quaint Belluga.

Caviare can be made of the roe of any fish; but the principal supply comes from the sturgeon and the belluga. The latter is about the most curious fish in the world. It weighs up to 1,000 pounds and inhabits the waters of the swift-flowing Volga. It is so abundant that the natives of Astracan throw away the flesh—which is whiter than veal and very dainty—and preserve only the spawn, of which they sometimes take as much as 200 pounds out of one fish. This belluga lies on the bottom of the river at certain seasons and swallows many large pebbles of great weight to ballast itself against the force of the stream; that is, the pebbles act as an anchor. When the flood subsides and the waters are less violent the belluga disgorges itself; that is, it unballasts, hauls in its anchor and swims about for provender.
