WATER WORKS PROBLEM IMPORTANT

NEED FOR MORE SPRINGS OR PUMPS TO HELP OUT.

People and Property Suffer Every Summer from Short Supply.

The water works problem in Northville is getting to be a serious one. People want, above all other things, to be sure of fire protection but at the same time they want for water for lawn and street sprinkling and other purposes is nearly as great.

The dryer the season the greater the want. People do not care to sprinkle lawns and streets in the winter or the rainy seasons. If Northville's $60,000 water system cannot furnish sufficient water for the needs of the lawns then some steps should be taken to put it in shape so that it will be adequate.

Supt. Huff says so far as he has investigated there is not much water being wasted now and that there is apparently no leakage in the mains or reservoir. The only solution of the problem that he knows of is the developing of another spring or putting in a pump at the electric light station to fill up the reservoir from springs in the lower part of the village.

This matter is seemingly important enough to warrant the council in employing an expert engineer to come here and look the matter over and ascertain the most practical and economical plan of procedure.

While Northville is suffering every year in this respect, and just when the water is most needed, Plymouth and other villages, with apparently not half as good a system, have all the water they want and their well kept green lawns and blossoming flowers place Northville in a very unfavorable contrast to say nothing of the inconvenience to our householders.

Mrs. Melissa Dingman Dead.

Mrs. Melissa Tubbs Dingman, a well known Northville woman, died Sunday afternoon, aged seventy-five years. Born in New York state, she married Mr. Fox in 1887. He died in 1894, and three years later she married Chas. Dingman, who died ten years ago. Mrs. Dingman had been in poor health for years and had been in bed four weeks. Deceased leaves one brother and sister. The funeral was held Wednesday at her home, Rev. Mnaser officiating. The burial was in Novi cemetery.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank the friends and neighbors for their kind help during the illness and burial of our dear aunt, Melissa Dingman. To the pastor for his words of sympathy and the choir for the beautiful songs.

CONVENIENT FOR D. U. R. APPLICANTS

WILL BE AT NORTHVILLE TUESDAYS AND FRIDAYS

To Receive Applications for Conductors and Motormen Positions.

For the convenience of men desirous of applying for positions of motormen and conductors, John Twomey, superintendent of the Orchard Lake division of the Detroit United Ry. has set aside the afternoons of Tuesday and Friday of each week so that he can meet the applicants in person. At 1:30 p. m. he will be at the Northville waiting room; at 2:00 p. m. he will be at the Farmington car house and at 4:00 p. m. he will be at the Pontiac car house.

The employes of the company in charge of these several places have all been supplied with application blanks which can be had upon application. At the same time these employes will answer such questions as may arise in the minds of applicants so that the blanks can be properly filled up and signed before presentation to Mr. Twomey.

The Detroit United Ry. is giving preference to men for employment with the division upon which they live but these preferring employment upon the city lines may also make application. There are many opportunities for excellent advancement in the street railway business by those who are in earnest, as is evidenced by the promotions that have already been made.

NOTICE TO WATER USERS.

We believe the city water supply is now sufficient, with proper usage from patrons, to warrant the use of the hose for sprinkling purposes.

The use of lawn sprinklers or aprays of any kind, or set hose and nozzle is prohibited indefinitely or until further notice. We must and will eliminate the useless waste of our city water supply.

After the date of this paper the hours of 6:30 to 7:30 a. m. standard time and 5:30 to 6:30 p. m. standard time will be allowed for the use of the hose for sprinkling. Violations of this notice will receive our present prompt attention.

There will be no other notices sent out. Patrons will consider this as official.

SYNOPSIS.

"Mad" Dan Maitland, on reaching his New York bachelor club, met an attractive young woman at the door. Janitor O'Hagan assured him no one had been within that day. Dan discovered a woman's finger prints in dust on his desk, along with a letter from his attorney, Maitland and with Hannerman, his attorney. Dan set out for Greenland to get his family jewels. During his walk to the country seat, he met the young woman in gray, whom he had seen leaving his bachelor's club. Her auto had broken down. He fixed it. By a ruse she "lost" him. Maitland, on reaching home, surprised by a woman, cracking the safe containing his gems. She, apparently, took him for a well-known crook. Daniel Anisty, half-hypnotized, Maitland opened his safe, took the gems from the woman and gave them to her, first forming a partnership in crime. The real Dan Anisty, sought by police, appeared on the same mission. Maitland overcame him. He met the girl outside the house and they sped on to New York in her auto. He and the crowd and the promised to meet him that day. Maitland received a "Mr. Smith" introducing himself as a detective. He shielded the girl in gray. Maitland, about to show him the gems, supposedly lost, was stricken by a blow from "Smith's" cane. The latter proved to be Anisty himself and he secured the gems. Anisty, who was Maitland's double, masqueraded as the latter. The girl kept Maitland's engagement with the girl in gray. He gave her the gems after falling in love at first sight. They were to meet and divide the loot. Maitland, revised and regretted missing his engagement. Anisty, masquerading as Maitland, narrowly avoided capture through mysterious tip. The girl in gray visited Maitland's apartments during his absence and returned gems, being discovered on return. Maitland, without cash, called up his home and heard a woman's voice, exclaiming Anisty, disguised as Maitland, told her real identity and realizing himself tricked. He fled from her the location of the gems. Then he proposed marriage. A crash was heard at the front door. Maitland started for home. He found Anisty and the girl in his rooms. Again he overcame the crook, allowing him to escape to shield the young woman.

"Not quite," Maitland contradicted, brusquely, wearying of the complication. "You say you met me on the stoop here. At what o'clock?"

"One; 'nd yeh takes me to lunch at Eugene's."

"Ah!—When did I leave you?"

"I leaves yeh there at two."

"Well, O'Hagan will testify that he left me in these rooms, in dressing-gown and slippers, at about one. At four he found me on this divan, bound and gagged, by courtesy of your friend, Mr. Anisty. Now, when was I with you in Harlem?"

"At seven o'clock, to the minute, yeh comes."

"Never mind. At ten minutes to seven I took a cab from here to the Primordial club, where I dined at seven precisely."

"And what's more," interposed the cabman, eagerly, "I took yer there, sir."

"Thank you. Furthermore, sleuth, you say that you followed me around town from seven o'clock until—when?"

"E said—" stammered the plainclothes man, purple with confusion.

"No matter I didn't leave the Primordial until a quarter to eleven. But all this aside, as I understand it, you are asserting that, having given you all this trouble to-day, and knowing that you were after me, I deliberately hopped into a cab 15 minutes ago, came up Fifth avenue at such breakneck speed that this officer thought it was a runaway, and finally jumped out and ran upstairs here to fire a revolver three times, for no purpose whatsoever beyond bringing you gentlemen about my ears?"

Hickey's jaw sagged. The caddy ostentatiously covered his mouth with a huge red paw and made choking noises.

"Pass it up, sarge, pass it up," he whispered, hoarsely.

"Shut yer trap," snapped the detective. "I know what I'm doin'. This crook's clever all right, but I got the kibosh on him this time. Lemme alone." He squared his shoulders, blustering to save his face. "I don't know why yeh done it—"

"Then I'll tell you," Maitland cut in, crisply. "If you'll be good enough to listen." And concisely narrated the events of the past 24 hours, beginning at the moment when he had discovered Anisty in Maitland Manor. Save that he substituted himself for the man who had escaped from Higgins and eliminated all mention of the gray girl, his statement was exact and convincing. As he came down to the moment when he had called up from the Bartholdi and heard mysterious sounds in his flat, substantiating his story by indicating the receiver that dangled useless from the telephone, even Hickey was staggered.

But not beaten. When Maitland ceased speaking the detective smiled superiorly to such invention. "Very pretty," he conceded. "Yeh can't tell it all to the magistrate to-morrow morning. Meantime yeh'll have time to think up a yarn explainin' how it come that a crook like Anisty made three attempts in one day to steal some jewels, 'nd didn't get 'em. Where were they all this time?"

"In safe-keeping," Maitland lied, manfully, with a furtive glance toward the alcove.

"Whose?" pursued Mr. Hickey, truculently.

"Mine," with equanimity. "Seriously—sleuth—are you trying to make a charge against me of stealing my own property?"

"Yeh done it for a blind. 'Nd that's enough. Officer, take this man to the station; I'll make the complaint."

The Detective Stepped Forward and Unlocked the Handcuffs.

The policeman hesitated, and at this juncture O'Hagan put in an appearance, lugging a heavy brown-paper bundle.

"Beg pardon, Mither Maitland, sor—?"

"Well, O'Hagan?"

"The crowd at the dure, sor, is dish pased," the janitor reported. "A couple av cops kem along an' fanned 'em. They're askin' for the two av yees," with a careless nod to the policeman and detective.

"Yeh heard what I said," Hickey answered the officer's look.

"I'm thinkin'," O'Hagan pursued, calmly ignoring the presence of the outsiders, "that these do, be the soot that donned thafe av the worruld stole off ye the day, sor. A la-ad brought ut at ayeleven o'clock, sor, wid particular rayquest that ut be daylivered to ye at once. The paper's tore, an'—"

"O'Hagan," Maitland ordered sharply, "undo that parcel. I think I can satisfy you now, sleuth. What kind of a suit did your luncheon acquaintance wear?"

"Gray."

"An' here ut is," O'Hagan announced, arraying the clothing upon a chair. "Ivry down' thing, aven down to the socks. And a note for ye, sor."

As he shook out the folds of the coat a square white envelope dropped to the floor; the janitor retrieved and offered it to his employer.

"Dear Mr. Maitland," he read aloud; "As you will probably surmise, my motive in thus restoring to you a portion of your property is not altogether uninflected by personal and selfish considerations. In brief, I wish to discover whether or not you are to be at home to-night. If not, I shall take pleasure in calling; if the contrary, I shall feel that in justice to myself I must forego the pleasure of improving an acquaintance begun under auspices so unfavorable. In either case, permit me to thank you for the use of your wardrobe—which, quaintly enough, has outlived its usefulness to me; a fat-headed detective named Hickey will tell you why—and to extend to you expression of my highest consideration. Believe me, I am enviously yours, Daniel Anisty.—Signed," added Hickey mechanically, his face working.

"Satisfied, sleuth?"

By way of reply, but ungraciously, the detective stepped forward and unlocked the handcuffs.

Maitland stood erect, smiling. "Thank you very much, sleuth. I shan't forget you." O'Hagan, tossing the janitor the keys from his desk, "you'll find some—ah—lemon-pop and root-beer in the buffet. This officer and his friends will no doubt join you in a friendly drink downstairs. Cabby, I want a word with you. Good morning, gentlemen. Good morning, sleuth."

And he showed them the door. "I shall be at your service, officer," he called over the janitor's shoulder, "at any time to-morrow morning. If not here, O'Hagan will tell you where to find me. And, O'Hagan!" The janitor fell back. "Keep them at least an hour," Maitland told him guardedly. "And say nothing."

The Irishman pledged his discretion by a sly look. Maitland turned back to the caddy.

"You did me a good turn, just now," he began.

"Don't mention it, sir; I've carried you hoften before this evenin', and—excuse my sayin' so—I never 'ad a fare as tipped 'andsomer. It's a real pleasure, sir, to be of service."

"Thank you," returned Maitland, eying him in speculative-wise. "I wonder—"

The man was a rough, burly Englishman of one of the most intelligent, if not intellectual, kind; the British caddy, as a type, has few superiors for sheer quickness of wit and understanding. This man had been sharpened and tempered by his contact with American conditions. His eyes were shrewd, his face honest if weather-beaten, his attitude respectful.

"I've another use for you to-night," Maitland decided, "if you are at liberty and discreet?" The final word was a question, flung over his shoulder as he turned toward the escritoire.

"Yes, sir," said the man thoughtfully. "I allus can drive, sir, even when I'm drinkin' 'ardest and can't see nothink."

"Yes? You've been drinking to-night?" Maitland smiled quietly, standing at the small writing-desk and extracting a roll of bills from a concealed drawer.

"I'm fair blind, sir."

"Very well," Maitland turned and extended his hand, and despite his professed affliction, the caddy's eyes bulged as he appreciated the size of the bill.

"My word!" he gasped, stowing it away in the cavernous depths of a trousers pocket.

"You will wait outside," said Maitland, "until I come out or—or send somebody for you to take wherever directed. Oh, that's all right—not another word!"

The door closed behind the overwhelmed nighthawk, and the latch clicked loudly. For a space Maitland stood in the hallway, troubled, apprehensive, heart strangely oppressed, vision clouded by the memory of the girl as he had seen her only a few minutes since; as she had stood beneath the chandelier, after acting upon her primary clear-headed impulse to give her rescuer the aid of the light.

He seemed to recall very clearly her slight figure, swaying, a-qaiver with fright and solicitude—care for him!—her face, sensitive and sweet beneath its ruddy crown of hair, that of a child waking from evil dreams, her eyes seeking his with their dumb message of appeal and or—He dared not name what else.

Forlorn, pitiful, little figure! Odd it seemed that he should fear to face her again, alone, that he should linger reluctant to cross the threshold of his study, mistrustful and afraid alike of himself and of her—a thief.

For what should he say to her, other than the words that voiced the hunger of his heart? Yet if he spoke . . . words such as those to—a thief . . . what would be the end of it all?

What did it matter? Surely he, who knew the world wherein he lived and moved and had his being, knew better well the worth of its verdicts. The world might go hang, for all he cared. At least his life was his own, whether to make or to mar, and he had not to answer for it to any power this side of the gates of darkness. And if by any act of his the world should be given a man and a woman in exchange for a thief and an idler, perhaps in the final reckoning his life might not be accounted altogether wasted.

He set back his shoulders and inspired deeply, eyes lightening; and stepped into the study, resolved.

"Miss—" he called huskily, and stopped, reminded that not yet did he even know her name.

"It is safe now," he amended, more clearly and steadily, "to come out, if you will."

He heard no response. The long gleaming folds of the portieres hung motionless. Still, a sharp and staccato clatter of hoofs that had risen in the street, might have drowned her voice.

"If you please—" he said again, loudly.

The silence sang sibilant in his ears, and he grew conscious of a sense of anxiety and fear stifling in its intensity.

At length, striding forward, with a swift gesture he flung the hangings aside.

CHAPTER XII.

On Reconsideration.

Gently but with decision Sergt. Hickey set his face against the allurements of his wine-cup and the importunities of his fellow-officers.

He was tired, he affirmed with a weary nod; the lateness of the hour rendered him quite indisposed for convivial dalliance. Even the sight of O'Hagan, seduction incarnated, in the vestibule, a bottle under either arm, clutching a box of cigars jealously with both hands, failed to move the temperate soul.

"Nah," he waved temptation aside with a gesture of finality. "I don't guess I'll take nothin' to night, thanks 'G'night all."

And, wheezing, shaped a course for Broadway.

The early morning air breathed chill but grateful to his fevered brow. Oddly enough, in view of the fact that he had indulged in no very violent exercise, he found himself perspiring profusely. Now and again he saw fit to pause; removing his hat and utilizing a large soiled bandana with grim abandon.

At such times his face would be upturned, eyes trained upon the dim infinities beyond the pale moon smitten sky. And he would sigh profoundly—not the furnace sigh of a lover thinking of his mistress, but the heartfelt and moving sigh of the man of years and cares who has drunk deep of that cup of bitterness called Unappreciated Genius.

Then, tucking the clammy bandana into a hip pocket, and withdrawing his yearning gaze from the heavens, would struggle on, with a funereal countenance as the outward and visible manifestation of a mind burdened with mundane concerns, such as (one might shrewdly surmise) that autographed portrait of a deputy commissioner of police which the detective's lynx-like eyes had discovered on Maitland's escritoire, unhappily, toward the close of their conference, or, possibly, the mighty processes of departmental law, with its attendant annoyances of charges preferred, hearings before an obviously prejudiced yet high-principled martinet, reprimands and rulings, reductions in rank, "breaking" transfers; or—yet a third possibility—with the prevailing rate of wage as contrasted between detective and "sidewalk-pounder," and the cost of living as contrasted between Manhattan, on the one hand, and Jamaica, Bronxville, or St. George, Staten Island, on the other.

A dimly-lighted side-entrance presently loomed invitingly in the sergeant's path. He glanced up, something surprised to find himself on Sixth avenue; then, bowed with the fatigue of a busy day, turned aside, entering a dingy back room separated from the bar proper (at that ill-fitted hour) by a curtain of green baize. A number of tables whose sloopy imitation-rosewood tops shone dimly in the murky gaslight, were set about, here and there, for the accommodation of a herd of sleepy-eyed, case-hardened habitués.

Into a vacant chair beside one of these the detective dropped, and familiarly requested the lantern-jawed waiter, who presently hustled to his side, to "Back meh up a tub of suds, George. . . . Nah," in response to a concerned query, "I sin't feelin' up to much to-night."

TROUBLE IN ROYAL PALACE.

Tidings Borne by Amateur Actor Sufficient to Lead Hearers to Expect the Worst.

The Shakespeare club of New Orleans used to give amateur theatrical performances that were distinguished for the local prominence of the actors. Once a social celebrity, with a gorgeous costume, as one of the lords in waiting had only four words to say: "The queen has swooned." As he stepped forward his friends applauded vociferously. Bowing, his thanks, he faced the king and said, in a high-pitched voice: "The swoon has queened."

There was a roar of laughter; but he waited patiently, and made another attempt:

"The swoon has cooned."

Again the walls trembled and the stage manager said in a voice which could be heard all over the house: "Come off, you doggoned fool!"

But the ambitious amateur refused to surrender, and in a rasping falsetto, as he was assisted off the stage, he screamed: "The coon has swooned."—Success Magazine.

DISCOURAGED WOMEN.

A Word of Hope for Despairing Ones.

Kidney trouble makes weak, weary, worn women. Backache, hip pains, dizziness, headaches, nervousness, languor, urinary troubles make women suffer untold misery. Ailing kidneys are the cause. Cure them. Mrs. S. D. Ellison, N. Broadway, Lamar, Mo., says: "Kidney trouble wore me down till I had to take to bed. I had terrible pains in my body and limbs and the urine was annoying and full of sediment. I get worse and doctors failed to help. I was discouraged. Doan's Kidney Pills brought quick relief and a final cure and now I am in the best of health."

Aid Fight Against Tuberculosis.

At the recent meeting of the National Association of Bill Posters, held in Atlanta, Ga., it was decided to donate to the campaign against tuberculosis $1,200,000 worth of publicity. The bill posters in all parts of the United States and Canada will fill the vacant spaces on their 3,500 bill boards with large posters illustrating the ways to "prevent and cure consumption. The Poster Printers' association has also granted $200,000 worth of printing and paper for this work. This entire campaign of billboard publicity will be conducted under the direction of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis in co-operation with the National Bill Posters' association.

Those two musical organizations have reputations all over the country for playing thrilling music with cimeters that bring audiences to their feet with a bound. The Navassar Ladies' band will come to Detroit direct from the Toronto exhibition, where they have been engaged to play during the first week of that fair.

Each of these organizations is filled with artists of international fame. The fair management engages these two bands for their educational value as well as for entertainment. Eminent soloists will also sing at various times during the fair, which is an added treat not usually enjoyed at such exhibitions.

The City in Brief.

Henry White is not so well this week. Rice little showers we had Monday afternoon. Joe Montgomery is able to walk out in the yard. Mrs. L. N. Starkweather is some what better this week.

Mrs. W. H. Hutton has been quite ill the past week, but is better. Regular meeting of Orient Chapter No. 77, O. E. S. this Friday evening. Supt. Wilkinson has erected a new light over the bridge at McKahan's pond.

The days of cucumbers, green corn, beans and green apples are here once more. Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Simmons entertained a few friends at cards Monday evening. L. W. Hutton is quite ill but his many friends will be pleased to hear that he is recovering.

Preparations are going ahead very extensively for the Firemen's great water battle Sept. 15. During the heavy storm in Detroit Sunday afternoon, the Northville park was certainly a better place to be in than Belle Isle.

Lieutenant Governor P. H. Kelly and Congressman C. E. Townsend made great hits in their speeches at Tashmoo Park Tuesday. Catholic services will be held in their house, corner Dunlap and Center streets, Sunday morning at 8:00 o'clock standard time.

Robert Parks, who is visiting W. E. Ambler and family, gave a nice talk to the scholars of the M. E. Sunday school Sunday morning. Northville park is being liberally patronized by men, women and children in the afternoons and evenings. It is a charming little spot.

Through special arrangement with the State fair management, the Record offers the special rate of thirty-five cents each for the tickets. Wilbur Harrington enjoyed his first auto ride this week as the guest of C. M. Joslin in his handsome little run-about, the "Lady Maxwell."

Prof. J. J. Hornberger and family expect to leave tomorrow for Ann Arbor where they will make their home. Northville people will be sorry to lose him and his delightful family from the village. The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Talmage of Northside, died Saturday of cholera infantum, aged eight months. The funeral was held Monday from the home. The parents have the sympathy of the community.

Smith, who are to leave Northville soon for new homes. The library was tastily decorated in golden glow. Ice cream and cake were served and a short program of toasts and readings was given making it a delightful affair. The club regrets to lose these faithful members.

A feature of the new saloon law will make it difficult for some of them to secure bondsmen owing to the fact that non surety can go upon more than one bond and he cannot obligate himself to a greater amount than the assessed valuation of his property in the county free from all incumbrance and indebtedness. Heretofore one man has gone upon many bonds and while his assessed valuation might be but $5,000, he has claimed he was worth $10,000 and has been allowed to obligate himself to that extent.

Quite a remarkable co-incidence occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gutherat last Thursday when they each had four generations come to visit them, they being great-grand-uncle and aunt to the youngest children. CHILDREN AT THE FAIR

THURSDAY, SEPT. 7, HAS BEEN SET APART AS DAY FOR THE LITTLE FOLKS.

Program of Games and Other Features Have Been Arranged—Liberal Prizes Will Be Awarded to the Successful Contestants—Admission Free to Those Under 12.

Tuesday, Sept. 7, has been set apart by the Michigan State Fair this year as children's day. It is estimated that at least 35,000 youngsters will avail themselves of the invitation to attend the fair on this date. Every child in Michigan under the age of 12 years who comes to the gate on Sept. 7 will be admitted free, no ticket being required. A program prepared especially for the little folks will be announced later, which provides for one continuous round of pleasure from morning until night. Besides the attractions prepared especially for the little folks there will continue the regular fair features that will fill every hour of the day.

Children's day last year was one of the greatest events of the fair. Thousands of parents from every part of the state attended and brought with them the children. Special attention will be given to lost youngsters. A department of the fair will receive every stray child and care for it until it is safely returned to the parents. Ample police protection will constantly be maintained and parents need have no fear of harm coming to their little ones. Officials of the Michigan State Fair announce that the grounds will be turned over to the children on Sept. 7, and that there will be no "keep off the grass" signs to hamper the pleasure of the event.

Confirmed Proof

Residents of Northville Cannot Doubt What has been Twice Proved.

In gratitude for complete relief from aches and pains of bad backs—from distressing kidney ills—thousands have publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills. Residents of Northville, who so testified years ago, now say their cures were permanent. This testimony doubly proves the worth of Doan's Kidney Pills to Northville kidney sufferers.

Mrs. George Brown of Northville, Mich. says: "I cannot say too much in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills. For almost a year I suffered from kidney complaint. I had acute pains across my back and hips and the kidney secretions passed far too frequently, showing that my kidneys were disordered. Often at night the muscles in my back began to contract and the pain was so terrible that I was obliged to get up and walk the floor. I had often heard about Doan's Kidney Pills and finally I had my husband procure a supply at Murdock Bros.' drug store. They soon brought relief and I continued taking them until my condition had improved in every way. I heartily recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to other sufferers from kidney complaint." The above statement was given on November 28, 1906 and on March 6, 1909 it was confirmed in detail by Mrs. Brown. For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Capitalistic Reflections.

The pronoun "I" and the interjection "O" are never written without using a capital. Let "I" be added, and it signifies that the writer has got no capital at all.—Judge.

STATE FAIR'S MIDWAY

GREATEST AGGREGATION OF SHOWS EVER GATHERED FOR EXHIBITION.

Mammoth Hippodrome, Wild West, Flea Circus, Animal Congress, Palace of Illusions, Human Laundry, and Lots of Other Interesting Features.

The Midway at the Michigan State Fair this year will be one of the prettiest attractions to be found anywhere on the grounds. The shows are owned and managed by Frank Spellman of Cincinnati, a well-known amusement man. The midway court this year will be in the shape of a hollow square. The front will be one solid section and entrances to the different attractions have the appearance of theater doors. Everything about the scheme is elaborate, even to the illumination. The apparatus used for this was secured from the city of Cincinnati and used to illuminate Fountain Square in that city during the recent Turner convention. It consists of thousands of lights radiating from a common center, that make the Midway court as brilliant as day. The following are some of the attractions that will be seen on the fair Midway:

Hippodrome and Wild West—Show contains rough riding, cowboy scenes, breaking wild and untamable horses, trick riding, broncho busting, and in fact all big scenes as seen by the leading Wild West Shows, carrying a company of 30 people and 12 head of horses.
The Spellman Show—The most unique and pretentious show ever produced in the way of equipment, built at a cost of $1,500 for equipment. This is a new idea in the way of an open-front and contains four platform shows combined into one show, and one price of admission is charged to all four shows, namely 10c. It is called "Congress of World's Novelties" and includes the two fattest women in the world, also the two smallest midgets in the world, a three-legged boy and one other clean freak as yet to be secured.

European Wild Animal Congress—Largest and best wild animal show, with no superior, containing lions, tigers, leopards, and an array of the world's greatest and best animal trainers—ten in number. This is the finest and best equipped wild animal congress today in America with no exception.

The Whirlwind—A new show—never seen before 1909. Composed of unusual and wholesome amusement devices, including dippy walks, moving stairways, dark passages, and also the human roulette wheel. Size of show 40 feet by 20 feet.
The Human Laundry—A new mechanical amusement device—interior in darkness, comprising wringers, wash tubs, bamboo slides, movable staircases, flying walks, win blowers, the canvass walk, etc. This show has been the biggest money-maker at all the leading amusement parks throughout the country.

The Devil in Art—A new departure in the line of Girl Shows, being taken from the famous Marceau's Living Picture craze, using ten ladies, carrying a gold frame for interior exhibition and using the latest electrical and cloud effects in behind the pictures, making it one of the most entertaining shows that can be produced.
The Palace of Illusions—Consists of one large pebble illusion, "Spider and Fly" illusion, "Herod's Daughter" illusion, the "Vanishing Boy's" illusion, and the "Queen of Roses" illusion.
Midget City—This is a miniature of a small city and embraces the world's smallest people, using nothing in same but small miniature equipment and four small midgets, who give an entertainment and various performances. Interior is handsomely equipped in every detail.

The Whirlpool—A new amusement device used for the first time in 1909 and being constructed by the Chester Park Amusement Co.; Cincinnati, O. Comprises a set of large rollers, large staircases that close up and down. A show that will please the most fastidious.
Determination—A remarkable performance given by a person who has neither arms nor legs.
Tynymite, the Smallest Horse in all the World—Tynymite is seven years old, weighs 31 pounds, is 18 inches high, and has the most beautiful equipment ever introduced with a show of this caliber. A show that particularly appeals to ladies and children.

The Nut College—A series of new devices, including the slide-out stairway, and underground grotto, electric walks. The interior is composed of passages with rattan obstructions, buzzers, bells, air blasts, etc., all which create laughter and amusement.
Cremation—An electrical spectacular show, picturing birth and then the death by cremation, with varied electrical effects, making a very fine finished performance.
The Limit—A new fast and furious show, filled with laughter from start to finish, comprising the revolving swing, the house upside down, the movable and collapsible floors, and a solid interior of amusement from the start to the finish.

Dreamland—A new spectacular stunt written around the "Feast and Furies" show and comprised of spectacles embracing the service of twelve people in the Birdland ballet. An entire new show in every detail.
The Eruption—A graphic description of the late holocaust, showing the volcano at its height, being preceded by a series of poses plastique.
The state fair buildings are now undergoing a thorough renovation for the opening. When the exhibition starts on Sept. 2 everything will be in fine condition. The grounds never looked better. The nursery firms have an enormous line of shrubs and flowers that will be in full bloom during the exposition and make the grounds more attractive than ever. These plants were started early in the season and after much labor have been brought to perfection. With the flower bed and foliage plants maintained by the State Fair itself, the grounds are made to appear like a great city park.
