A SUCCESSFUL MANUFACTURER.

Tom Swan, a Former Carriage Trim-- mer in Northville.

Many Northville people will remember Tom Swan, who for some years back in the "90's" was carriage trimmer here for John Hirsch. Today Tom is at the head of the big Detroit Auto Wind Shield company and also a Cleveland concern that manufactures tops for a number of the leading automobile companies Tom has certainly "struck it rich" and is on one of the high hills that lead to prosperity. The writer met the genial Tom-at the Detroit ball park this week—the same old Tom, who fifteen years ago used to visit the old Record print shop about every day and get a whifi of printers ink. After a hearty handshake we had the pleasure of riding back to the city in his five thousand dollar Packard auto in which he had just over from Cleveland. Well, here's to Tom Swan! Everybody is glad of his success and it shows what push, pluck, perseverance and industry will do.

School Notes.

Leita Bartrum is a new pupil in-the Third grade. The High school had several risitora last week. The Third grade has a golden rod alendar for September. The First grade has a delicious ooking apple calendar for Septem-

Many pupils attended the State Fair Tuesday which, was children's day.

The Sixth grade pupils are collecting caterpillars and worms for nature study.

Gersrude Kenyon and Irls Merritt of the Kindergarten were absent this week on account of illness.

The Eighth grade pupils are gathering a fund for the drinking aid has been done to restore him to fountain for the High school build-

The Kindergarten and First grade pupils are each bringing pennies with which to help along the work of the rest room.

A collection of fifty-four fossils and invertebrates have been received from the Smithstonian institution at Washington, owing to the courtesy of Congressman Townsend.

The basement floor of the new laboratory in the High school building has been cemented and the north room will be arranged immediately for the agriculture, physics and physiography classes.

Parents will please see that a pupil brings an excuse when her returns after an absence, stating the date and reason, which are absolutely necessary to allow the pupil to make up the work he has lost.

The Seniors proved to be better 'hustlers" than the other grades of the High school in getting the furnshings of the rest room ready for use. They have "planted" two beautiful rockers and a table in the room already and are very proud of the fact.

The Fourth, Fifth and Sixth grade pupils are getting up Larkin soap orders, the premiums of which they will give to the rest room. The Fourth a rocking chair, Flith grade s working for a Mission Library table and the Sixth arug and stenciled curtains.

The Second grade pupile were promised by their teacher, Miss Withey, that if they would be neither absent nor tardy last week, they might have their names in the school notes Now they all tried very hard but did not quite succeed but we hope they will next week.

The first four grades of our school are to farnish pictures for the rest room of the grade building and they send out a request that if any of the ladies in town have Queen Anne soap wrappers, to please donate them to these grades, as they will help towards getting the pictures.

The morning exercises in the High school are hugely anjoyed by the pupils. Prof. LaRue reads sections Burdette's, Homan Dava and many other works, the majority of which are humorous with new and then a touch of sadness. Tuesday and Thursday mornings are given over to singing and the pupils are now learning the song "The Orange and the Black "

Under the auspices of the Seniors ussisted by the "old" pupils of the High school, a reception will be tendered to every Freshman in every grade, in the High school this evening, to which the teachers of the entire school are also invited. The purpose of this reception is to get the new pupils acquainted with each other and with the old pupils and make them feel at home. A musical program will be given after which, for once in the history of the High school, the pupils have full privilege to talk as much as they please.

The pupils of the High school and upper grades organized an Athletic association Monday night, adopting rules, electing officers, and ordering an assessment of twenty cents, with which they will purchase their apparatus, which is ordered. The members of the board of managers for the boys are Howard West, Starr Tafft and Milo Ferguson; the girls', Edith Miller, Frances Hertzler and Marion Babbitt. Four basket balls, Marion Babbitt. Four basket balls, two sets of baskets, standards and an indoor base ball outfit have been or his urual heavy bunts.

SENSE ABOUT FOOD Facts About Food Worth Knowing.

It is a segious question sometimes to know just what to eat when a person's scomach is out of order and most foods cause trouble.

Grape-Nuts food can be taken at any trime with the certainty that it will digest. Actual experience of people is valuable to anyone interested in foods

A Terre Haute woman writes: had suffered with indigestion for about our years, ever since an attack of typhoid fever, and at times could eat nothing but the very Eghtest food, and then suffer such agony with my stomach I would wish I never had to eat anything.

"I was urged to try Grape-Nuts and gince using it I do not have to starve myself any more, but I can eat it at any time and feel nourished and satisfied, dyspepsia is a thing of the past, and I am now strong and well "My husband also had an experience with Grane-Nuts. He was very weak and sickly in the spring Could not attend to his work He was under the doctor's care but medicine did not seem to do him any good until he began to leave off ordinary food and use Grape-Nuts. It was positively surprisway to see the change in him. He grew better right off, and naturally he had none but words of praise for Grape-

Nuts. "Our boy thinks he cannot eat a meal without Grape-Nuts, and he learns so iast at school that his teachor and other scholars comment on it. I am satisfied that it is because of the great nourishing elements in

The real Dan Anisty, sought by police of the world, appeared Maitland overcame him He and the girl went to New York in her auto He had the jewels Sike was to meet him that day A "Mr Snath" introduced himself as a detective To shield the girl in gray, Maitland, about to show him the jewels, supposedly lost was felled by a blow from 'Snaith's' cane The latter proved to be Anistry himself and he secured the gens Anisty, who was Maitland's double masqu-raded as the latter. A crash was heard at the front door Maitland overwhelmed the crook, allowing him to escape to shield the young woman The girl in gray made her escape, jumping into a cab An instant later, by working a ruse, Anisty was at her side He took her to Attorney Bannerman's office and there followed a thud as a bolt was, shot. An instant-later Anisty caught her by the arm and, roughly now and without wasting speech, hur ried her into the next 100m Then releasing her, he turned up the lights and, passing to the windows, threw or three of them wide, for the air in the room was stale and lifeless.

"And now," said the criminal in a tone of satisfaction, 'now we can talk busıness, my dear."

He removed his evercoat and had venient crair, drew his fingers thoughtfully across his chin, and, standing at a little distance, regarded the girl with a shadow of a saturnine If you scream for help, no one will smile softening the hard line of his

if volition was no longer hers. Her shiver of disgust. "What is it you arms hung slack at her sides and she want?" was swaying a trifle, her face vacant, eyes blank; very near the breaking-down point. The man was not without perception; and recognized her state-one in which, he felt assured, he could get very little out of her. She must be strengthened and revived before she would or could respond to the direct catechism he had in store for her. In his own interest, therefore, more than through any yielding to motives of pity and compassion, he piloted her to a chair by a window and brought her glass of clear cold water from the filter in the adjoining room.

The cold, fresh breeze blowing in her face proved wonderfully invigorat-She let her head sink back upon whatever to make you speak."

"This afternoon," he said, harshly You stole from me the Maitland jewels. Where are they?"

"I shall nöt tell." He bent swiftly forward and took one of her hands in his. Instinctively she clenched it; and he wrapped his strong hard fingers around the small white fist, then deliberately inserted a hard finger joint between her sec-ond and third knuckles, slowly in-creasing the pressure. And watched with absolute indifference the lines of agony grave themselves upon her smooth unwrinkled forehead, and the color leave her cheeks, as the pain grew too exquisite. Then, suddenly discontinuing the pressure, but retain-ing her hand, he laughed shortly.

Will you speak, my lady, or will ou have more?"

"Don't," she gasped, "please..."
"Where are the jewels? Will you?"

"Have you given them to Maitland?"

"Never_Ah-h!"

An abrupt and resounding hammer ing at the outer door forced him to eave off. He dropped her hand with an oath and springing to his feet drew this revolver; then, with a glance at the girl, who was silently weeping, tears of pain rolling down her cheeks, mouth set in a thin pale line of de ermination, strode out and shut the door after him.=- <

As it closed the girl leaped to her feet, maddened with torture, wild eyes casting about the room for a weapon of some sort, of offense or defense; for she could not have endured the tor ture an instant longer. If forced to it, to fight, fight she would. If only she had something, a stick of wood, to defend herself with. But there was nothing, nothing at all

The room was a typical office, well but severely furnished. The rug that covered the tile floor was of rich uality and rare design. The neutral tinted walis were bare, but for a couple of steel engravings in heavy wooden frames. There were three heavily upholstered leather arm-chairs and one revolving desk-chair; a roll top desk, against the partition wall, a waste-paper basket, and a flat-topped desk, or table. And that was all.

Or not quite all, else the office equipment had not been complete. There

He took his own advice, and for a ittle time the conference was con ducted in guarded tones that did not penetrate the dividing wall save as a deep rumbling afternating with an im passioned squeak.

But long ere this had come to pass the girl was risking all at the tele phone. Receiver to ear she was imploring central to connect her with Ninety-eight-nine Madison. If only she might get Maitland, tell him where the were hidden, warn him to remove them—then she could escape further suffering by open confession. "What number?" came central's languid query, after a space. say mine-ought-nine-eight?"

"The brass bowl, please—tell him that," she cried clearly into the receiver.

And Anisty was upon her, striking the telephone from her grasp with one swift blow and seizing her savagely by the wrist. As the instrument clattered and pounded on the floor she was sent reeling and staggering half way across the room.

As she brought up against the flat topped desk, catching its edge and saving herself a fall, the burglar caught up the telephone. "Who is that?" he shouted, imperatively, into the transmitter.

Whatever the reply, it seemed to please him. His brows cleared, the wrath that had made his face almost unrecognizable subsided; he even smiled. And the girl trembled, knowing that he had solved her secret; for she had hoped against hope that the only words he could have heard her sueak would-have had too cryptic a significance for his compréhension. As, slowly and composedly, he re-placed the receiver on its hook and returned the instrument to the desk. a short and rotund figure of a man, in rumpled evening dress and wearing a wilted collar, hopped excitedly into the room, cast at the girl one terrified glance out of eyes that glittered with excitement like black diamonds, set in a face the hue of yeast, and clutched the burglar's arm.

"Oh, Anisty, Anisty!" he cried, piteously. "What is it? What is it? Tell me!"

"It's all fight," returned the burglar "Don't you worry, little man. Pull yourself tegether." And laughed. "But what—what—" stammered the

Avoid Round Shoulders

Are you letting yourself sag a bit at the shoulders? Don't, if you want to keep either young or well. There is nothing so fatally easy as to grow round-shouldered. Keep a sharp watch on yourself to prevent it. Each morning stand up against the jamb of a door and see if you have begun to sag. Also walk around your room each day with a piece of broomstick or short umbrella under your arm and brought across the back. This keeps the chest up and head well poised. Deen-breathing exercises, whenever you think of them, will help ward off those round shoulders, also making a practice to work with the chest up This last is the simplest of all preventives, for if it is siways practical the rest will follow.

DANGER NOT CLOSE AT HAND

Men Will Run Things a Few Years Yet is the Prophecy of the Observant Drummer.

A group of men were discussing the possibilities and dangers of woman suffrage. All but one expressed the fear that the movement was gaining such momentum that in a comparatively short time this fair land would be transformed and man no longer would be master. The exception, a commercial traveler, with years of experience in studying human nature, scoffed at their alarm.

"Don't worry," he said. "We'll be safe for a good many years yet. In all my trips about the country I find that two-thirds of the women travelers, two-thirds of the women even those who are self-reliant enough to gallivant about alone, can't go bed even in a sleeping car without first looking under the berth to see if there is a man there. So long as that primifive feminine instinct survives our institutions are safe."

THE NORTH POLE

THE PEARY AND COOK RACE FOR FIRST DISCOVERY IS NOW OVER.

PEARY CLAIMS PRIORITY

Reports Are Meager But Peary's Discovery One Year After Cook Will Open Great Controversy.

While Commander Peary, on board his Arctic exploration steamer Roose-yelt, is on his way from Indian Har-bor, Labrador, to Chateau Bay, on the Straits of Belle Isle, the world awaits anxiously for the details of his suc-cessful trip to the North Pole, of-which he gave information in brief-but-stirring messages late Monday from Indian Harbor. Chateau Bay is the reariest point to Indian Harbor where Commander Pears on reach 8 where Commander Peary can reach a telegraph line by which to tell to the world the story of his dash to the pole. The Roosevelt was due at Cha-teau Bay Tuesday afternoon, barring accident or delay.

Indian Harpor is connected with the rest of the world only by wireless telegraph, and a full story of the trip could hardly be expected from that distant station. The number of messages received from that station both from Commander Pearly and from his companions on his Arctic voyage show that every effort was made to inform friends and associates of their success.

Friends in New York regard it as Friends in New York regard it as characteristic of Commander Peary that he should give the credit of his achievement to the club which hears. his name and which aided him in un-dertaking his last trip at a time which his funds were low and assistance was needed more than ever before.

The coming details will be an elab-oration of Commander Peary's first oration of Commander Peary's first word to the civilized world after he had reached the pole. This first bulletin from the famous explorer was in every large city of the world a half hour after its receipt in New York, and from all nations come reports of the excitement it caused, following as closely on the convence. ports of the excitement it caused, for-lowing so closely on the announce-ment of Dr. Frederick A. Cook, cf Brooklyn, who is now receiving the homage of the world in Copenhagen, that he was the first discoverer of the North Pole.

Dr Cook was at a banquet in his Dr Cook was at a banquet in his honer in Copenhager when Commander Peary's dispatch to the Associated Press was read to him. Dr Cook lost little time in sending to New York a number of cablegrams, in all of which he expressed his gratification that Peary had also reached the pole and ennounced his belief that Peary's observations would amply ventry his run, claim that he had been reary's observations would amply verify his twn claim that he had been to the furthermost point of the compass Dr Cook was particularly joyous that, with Commander Peary's success, which he did not in the least doubt, all the honor for the achievement was now surely American. In ment was now surely American In one cablegiam to New York Dr. Cook declares that the silence of exploration will benefit immeasurably through the fact that Peary reached the pole by a route different from his, thus covering another large unknown space and, with the Cook observations clearly a metery with servations, clearing a mystery which has perplexed geographers for many centuries.

That the North Pole should be ound and its announcement chronicled at approximately the same time is but one coincidence in a strange series of facts which has kept the reading public of the world excited, perhaps as never before, for a week Among these coincidences are mentioned that the pole was found by two Americans, that for the first time two polar explorers attempted to reach the apex of the earth at the close of the winter season over the frozen polar seas; that their first an-nouncements of their success were quite similar; that both men had devoted their lives to exploration of polar areas; that they previously had been associated with each other sin their scientific work, and lastly, and perhaps immaterially, the wives and families of the two great rivals have been spending the summer at the same little out of the way town of the Maine coast...

While Dr. Cook sat at a banquet in Copenhagen the news from Peary came. One correspondent, forgetting for the instant that he was a guest, asked Dr. Cook point blank, "Do you believe it?

"It is not a question of believing Peary at all; it is a question of believing the telegram,' replied Dr.

Cock. "Yes, I shall be very glad if this is true," declared Dr. Cook, after a con-firmatory cable had been received 'His observations and story will cor-

Later the explorer jocularly remarked, "Amunsden will be there next and pretty soon we will be running excursions to the pole."

Dr. Cook, however, is not at all sanguine that Commander Peary found the brass tube containing the records of his exploit.

"On account of the drift of the ice." a thing is improbable," he declared.

"That two men go to the pole along different paths," added Dr. Cook, "should furnish a large addition to scientific knowledge."
