AN ALFALFA FIELD NEAR NORTHVILLE.

A SECTION OF A LARGE FIELD OF ALFALFA GROWN ON THE STARKWEATHER STOCK FARM THIS SEASON.

FIREMEN HAD A GREAT DAY

REGULAR FOURTH OF JULY
CROWD OUT FOR THE OCASION.

There Were Water Battles and Athletic Sports Galore.

Wednesday was a great gala day for Northville. Despite the threatening weather in the morning, the people began to gather about ten o'clock and at one o'clock the streets were black with all sorts and sizes. The parade, consisting of the Milford, Plymouth and local fire companies, two very pretty floats from W. H. Cattermole's and one from the American Bell Foundry Co., C. E. Ryder with a fancy booth on wheels, with two clowns and a color'd driver distributing matches, and an automobile with the village council, the callthumpans, headed by the Foresters' degree team in full regalia, with Henry VanAken and his goat bringing up the rear, all headed by the Plymouth and Milford cornet bands, made a good appearance and deserve special mention. The juvenile water battle afforded lots of amusement and the little fellows showed a lot of grit. Charlie Freydl's team won the contest. The battle between the Plymouth and Northville companies was a tie and was witnessed by a large crowd of people. The afternoon sports were participated in by the young people and were won as follows:

Boys' running race—Yerkes 1st, Freydl 2nd, Clark 3rd.

Girls' running race—Taska 1st, DesAutel 2nd, Withee 3rd.

Three legged race—Jewell and Bolton 1st, West and Haddock 2nd.

Barrel race—Bolton 1st, Hanchett 2nd.

Wheel barrow race—Jewell 1st, Brown 2nd, Fredericks 3.

Potato race—Percy Shafer 1st, Volght 2nd, Hollis 3rd.

Sack Race—Jewell, 1st. Ryel 2nd, West 3rd.

Boys' shoe race—Shafer 1st, DesAutel 2nd, Barber 3rd.

Night shirt race—Jewell 1st, Hanchett 2nd.

Pie eating contest—Freydl 1st, Lanning 2nd.

Plymouth won the tug of war with Milford.

Plymouth won the regulation race with Northville.

The tub race and walking greased pole were won by Leo DesAutel.

The drill by the Lady Macabees was exceptionally fine and they certainly deserved the liberal praises bestowed upon them.

About 118 tickets were sold for the dance and a goodly sum was realized for the benefit of the fire department.

The Plymouth and Milford bands discoursed excellent music all day. Altogether it was a complete success.

Auction Sale of Buggies.

There will be an auction sale of buggies and road wagons at the Exchange hotel barns, commencing at 1:30 next week Saturday, Sept. 25, by the Pontiac Spring Wagon works.

JUST ATE UP NCVI B. B. TEAM

Northville Juniors Found Easy
Picking Saturday.

The Novi base ball team came down again Saturday just to even up the former trimming the Juniors gave 'em a couple weeks previous. They were fortified with recruits from Wixom, Salem, North Farmington but the Juniors were right on their metal and seemingly could have made mince meat of the Tigers on that date. Johnson did most of the twirling for the Juniors and he did it well, though Dubuar relieved him in the eighth after his arm began to sore up. E Stumpson did the backstop act and did it in his old time manner looking a good bit like Catcher Johnnie Killing of the Cubs in some of his wing stunts to first and second. The score was 23 to 7 and the Juniors apparently could have made it as many more.

What An Automobile Is.

A newspaper exchange gives this as a definition of what an automobile is. "The automobile is a large iron and rubber contrivance for transforming gasoline into speed, luxury, excitement and obituaries. It consists of a leather upholstered carriage body mounted on fat rubber-tired wheels and containing a gizzard full of machinery suffering from different ailments. It is the speediest and most stylish form of transportation known. It has run over 100 miles an hour and has cost $1,000 a minute. It can transport seven people from the front porch to the police station, the bankruptcy court or the golden gates in less time than any other known method."

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank all those who assisted us in so many ways during the sickness and death of our dear one; also for the many beautiful flowers.

Mrs. R. M. JOHNSON AND CHILDREN.

Death of An Old Resident.

Mrs. Catharine Warrington, wife of James Warrington, died at her home in this village Tuesday. The funeral was held yesterday and the remains taken to Mt. Elliott cemetery, Detroit, for burial. Deceased was a sister of Mrs. Margaret Mohan, Mrs. Mary Kelly and Mrs. Fannie Kandall. She was 85 years of age.

Card of Thanks.

The Fire Department desires to thank all those who so kindly helped out in their Firemen's Tournament program, the Lady Macabees, the Foresters, those who donated money and those who took part in the parade and all others who lent a hand to make it a success.

Auction Sale.

School Notes.

[By a Pupil.]

Averil Miles of the First grade, is ill.

The Sixth grade room has several new pictures.

The Second grade has a cat tail calendar for this month.

Ralph Taylor of the First grade was in Detroit last week.

Arlene Smith and Herbert Mollis are new pupils in the Kindergarten.

The Fourth grade pupils are learning the song, "Don't Give Up the Ship, Boys."

Friday morning exercises are devoted to current events in the Seventh grade.

The Freshmen reception, given by the Seniors last Friday night, was a "huge" success, everyone enjoying themselves.

The four lower grades would appreciate the giving of Queen Anne soap heads for the rest room pictures, by any lady in town.

The Seventh grade pupils have taken up the study of the ant in their Nature study course, having just "completed" the bee.

The Second grade enjoyed a quarter of a day holiday last Friday, in reward for their room being the neatest room in the grade building.

The six best workers in the Third grade have their names on the blackboard. Others will follow as soon as they come up to the standard set for them.

The pupils of the grade school house wish to thank the unknown donor of the couch for their rest room which is greatly appreciated by them.

Tuesday was "bird day" for the Kindergarten pupils, Miss Wills, the teacher, bringing her canary to school, and also pictures of every kind of birds. The pupils are all very much interested.

Bertha White and Frances Hertzler were chosen captains of the High school girls' two basket-ball-to-be teams. Tuesday night a little practicing was done and the girls are all in a hurry to get to be experts.

SICK PEOPLE SHOULD INVESTIGATE

I Know the Diseases of Both Sexes Like an Open Book. I have Been Curing Them for 49 Years. In fact, My Entire Life Has Been Devoted to Curing Where Others Have Failed.

I Have Changed Hundreds Upon Hundreds of Nervous Wrecks Into Fine, Strong Men and Women. I Accept No Case I Cannot Cure.

ESPECIALLY invite all discouraged and dissatisfied ones who have been treated without a cure to write me fully and frankly about their case. It will cost you nothing to write me, and I will gladly tell you your condition, truthfully, honestly—accepting no case that I cannot cure—holding out no false promises. I have spent my whole life in the study and cure of chronic diseases, and my study and investigation have been blessed by the discovery of many new and marvelous methods of treating disease. Forty-nine years ago I graduated from the Western Homeopathic Medical College of Cleveland, O., for two years, Head Physician at the Alma Sanitarium, Alma, Mich. I have spent many long years as a specialist, treating chronic diseases of all kinds with wonderful success, and am now owner of one of the largest sanitariums in the country, giving my entire time to the treatment of Nervous Diseases of both sexes. I cure the worst forms of Epilepsy, St. Vitus Dance, Paralysis, etc.

My long experience in diagnosing cases and my understandings of the different diseases that I treat enable me in almost every case to prescribe by mail a perfect, thorough cure. All correspondence in plain envelopes and sacredly confidential.

I CURE NERVOUS TROUBLES—Wasting Away, Loss of Vitality in Both Sexes. Whether from excesses or overwork, I promptly and positively cure, no matter of how long standing.

I CURE BLOOD POISON—I cure Blood Poison in the first, second and third stages—drawing the poison from the system, the taint from the blood; curing pimples, copper spots, sores in the mouth, tumors and ulcers.

I CURE FITS—Epilepsy, St. Vitus Dance, Paralysis, etc., by striking direct at the cause, restoring the diseased nerves to perfect health.

I CURE PILES—in 30 days to stay cured and to never return.

I CURE CONSUMPTION, the Great White Plague, in the first and second stages. I have made a special study of this disease for fifty years. Have cured hundreds given up by home doctors. Those I cannot treat at home by seeing or by mail, I will take to my Sanitarium, where the best of medical skill, nursing and private rooms are given, for Ten Dollars a week.

I GUARANTEE TO CURE, to stay cured, liquor, morphine, cocaine, nicotine or cigarette habits. Most cases treated at home.

Call and see me or write to either Sanitarium as below.

No matter what disease you are suffering from, write me fully today. I will answer at once, and my advice, which costs you nothing, may be worth hundreds of dollars—life itself—to you. If I cannot cure you I will tell you so. WRITE TODAY.

SUBJECT TO CONDITIONS.

Gimlet—Fibbs claims to have caught a catfish weighing 50 pounds down in the creek, does he? Well, it's safe to say he's lying to the extent of about 40 pounds.

Why We Are Stronger.

The old Greeks and Romans were great admirers of health and strength; their pictures and statuary made the muscles of the men stand out like cords.

As a matter of fact we have athletes and strong men—men fed on fine strength making food such as Quaker Oats—that would win in any contest with the old Roman or Greek champions.

It's a matter of food. The finest food for making strength of bone, muscle and nerve is fine oatmeal. Quaker Oats is the best because it is pure, no husks or stems or black specks. Farmers' wives are finding that by feeding the farm hands plentifully on Quaker Oats they get the best results in work and economy. If you are convenient to the store, buy the regular size packages; if not near the store buy the large size family package.

No Short-Haul for Him.

"This is where you get off," said the railroad conductor.

"But I haven't rid fur enough," said the Billville man.

"Can't help that. You can't go any further on this ticket."

"My friend," said the man, "it's the first time I ever rid on a railroad train, an' ef you aint a better man than wot I am I'm a goin' to set right here 'till I see whar the road ends. I know it must end some're, an' I'm curious to see whar. Here's one more dollar. Now, go 'leng an' let me alone!"

By Automobile Up Mount Rainier.

United States Engineer Eugene Ricksecker celebrated Independence day by throwing open the government road in the Mount Rainier National park. Vehicles and horsemen now have an excellent thoroughfare from tidewater to Narada falls, near snow line in Paradise valley. Mr. Ricksecker says that autos and wagons can now make the trip with comfort. The maximum grade on the road is four per cent. Nearly a score of automobiles, all loaded, went to the mountain.

VICTIMS OF CLUB AND A SNAKE

LAD INHUMANLY AND FATALLY BEATEN FOR LOSING A KEY.

SNAKE BITE WAS FATAL.

Late Happenings in and About the State Noted and Told in Brief Form.

With his face beaten and bruised almost to an unrecognizable mass, and with big black and blue marks all over his body, made, it is alleged, by a club in the hands of his uncle and the latter's boots, Archie Stringham, 11-year-old son of a Shiawassee county farmer, was taken to the sheriff's home in Flint for medical attention. The doctors did not regard recovery as hopeful. Arthur Stringham, an uncle and a bachelor farmer living in Flint township, is in a cell at the jail charged with assault with intent to do great bodily harm less than murder. The beating which will probably cost the boy's life was administered because the lad had lost the key to a grain box on the uncle's farm. Two weeks ago Arthur Stringham went to the home of his brother and asked that Archie be allowed to come to his farm, saying that the boy would be useful to him, as hired help was scarce. Since then, according to the story told by the lad in his intervals of consciousness, his life has been anything but pleasant, the uncle beating him frequently for minor offenses.

Rattlesnake Bite Fatal.

Thomas Dam, a farmer living near Hudsonville, is dead as the result of a rattlesnake bite. He was chopping wood on a farm a mile from his home, Thursday evening, and when he picked up a stick from the pile a rattlesnake which was coiled underneath bit him on the left arm. Realizing the seriousness of the wound, Dam started for home. He was overcome several times on the way by the effects of the poison, but managed to crawl into the house with his arm swollen to three times its natural size.

A physician was called and worked over the man all night, but the effort was useless and Dam died Friday morning. He was 35 and leaves a widow and four children.

Those Water Powers.

The Saginaw Power Co., a part of the big water merger whose incorporation has aroused the state, has filed a mortgage in Saginaw covering all its properties, holdings and assets. The mortgage runs to the Michigan Trust Co. of Grand Rapids as trustees.

The transaction is taken as the next step in the plan to bring all the power companies allied under a single management. The transaction is said to cover a large amount although the consideration is not stated. There is reason to believe that the local traction and lighting companies are concerned in the deal.

Another Power Merger.

A general mortgage issued by the Flint Electric Co. to the Michigan Trust Co. of Grand Rapids as trustee, has been filed in the office of the register of deeds, Genesee county. The instrument covers all properties, privileges and franchises of every kind now or hereafter owned by the company, including the works, plants, machinery, buildings, etc. The consideration named is $1. The mortgage is in book form and covers 39 pages. Local attorneys state that they know nothing of the mortgage or its purposes.

Missing Girl Found.

Myrtle Colegrove, pretty, 16 and a high school junior, has been found. She had been missing from the home of her adopted parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert, since Sunday, and there was talk of an elopement, a suicide and various other terrible things. The girl was found, however, living in a scantily furnished attic in Battle Creek, and explained that she had left her home because of a quarrel with the Alberts over their demand that she give up her closest girl friend, Miss Colegrove returned home.

RAILROAD KING.

The Funeral of Harriman Was Not Made Ostentatious.

Edward H. Harriman, who controlled 65,000 miles of the railroads of this country, was buried from his late home on Arden Heights, N. Y., Sunday. There was a profusion of flowers sent by hundreds of his employees ranking from heavy laborers to superintendents and managers each being an individual gift. The service in St. John's church at 11 o'clock was in the nature of a memorial to Mr. Harriman. It was open to the public. Mr. McGuinness spoke in appreciation of his dead patron. Mr. Harriman's superintendents made all the plans to protect the procession and services from interference by the curious. The town councils of Tuxedo and Woodbury passed resolutions granting Mrs. Harriman's request to close all the roads leading to St. John's church, which lies 300 yards up the hill from Arden. Uniformed men from the Tuxedo police force came over to see to it that nobody but the friends of Mr. Harriman went up to the churchyard.

"Paralytic anemia," which Dr. Lyle assigns as the primary cause of Mr. Harriman's death, is a disease which in nearly all recorded cases has resulted, fatally. In the earlier stages of the disease, the symptoms, lassitude, headache, palpitation and shortness of the breath, make their approach in so slow and insidious a manner that the patient is unable to fix the date of their onset and seldom seeks medical advice until he is incapacitated for mental or bodily work. The patient is usually middle-aged, and there is nothing to account for the disease.

The Tariff Commission.

President Taft has appointed the new tariff commission, which is to assist him in the execution of his duty, applying the maximum and minimum clauses to nations which are unfriendly or friendly in their tariff relations with the United States. The new board consists of three members, Prof. Henry C. Emery, of Yale, chairman; James B. Reynolds, of Massachusetts, now assistant secretary of the treasury, and Alvin H. Sanders, of Chicago, at present editor and proprietor of the Breder's Gazette.

Col. Reuber E. Fox, 68, ex-secretary of the New York Republican state committee, on his way to meet ex-Gov. B. B. Odell at Harriman's residence, was killed. He fell out of his automobile while standing up to put his coat on.

REPORT OF THE DISCOVERY OF THE NORTH POLE BY ROBERT E. PEARY, COMMANDER U. S. N., Copyright, 1909, by the New York Times Company.

Peary Denies Cook's Claim.

Battle Harbor, Labrador (via Marconi wireless, Cape Ray, N. F.), Sept. 10.—Do not trouble about Cook's story, or attempt to explain any discrepancies in his statements. The affair will settle itself. He has not been at the pole on April 21, 1909, or at any other time. He has simply handed the public a gold brick. These statements are made advisedly, and I have proof of them. When he makes a full statement of his journey over his signature to some geographical society, or other reputable body, if that statement contains the claim that he has reached the pole, I shall be in a position to furnish material that may prove distinctly interesting reading for the public.

ROBERT E. PEARY.

Battle Harbor, Labrador (via Marconi wireless, Cape Ray, N. F.), Sept. 9.—The steamer Roosevelt, bearing the north polar expedition of the Peary Arctic club, parted company with the Erik and steamed out of Etah harbor late in the afternoon of August 13, 1909, setting the usual course for Cape Sabine. The weather was dirty, with fresh southerly winds. We had on board 22 Eskimo men, 17 women, and 10 children, 226 dogs, and some forty odd walrus.

We encountered the ice a short distance from the mouth of the harbor, but it was not closely packed, and was negotiated by the Roosevelt without serious difficulty.

Find Much Water.

As we neared Cape Sabine the weather cleared somewhat and we passed by Three Voort island and Cape Sabine, easily making out with the naked eye the house at Hayes harbor occupied by me in the winter of 1901-02.

En Cape Sabine there was so much water that we thought of setting the lug sail before the scuttly wind, but a little later appearance of ice to the northward stopped this.

There was clean open water to Cape Albert and south to the northward to a point about abreast of Victoria Head thick weather and dense ice bringing us some ten or fifteen miles away.

From here we drifted south somewhat and then got fast to the northward out of the current. We worked a little further north and stopped again for some hours. Then we again worked westward and northward till we reached a series of lakes, coming to a stop a few miles south of the northward winter quarters at Thank God Harbor.

From here, after some delay, we slowly worked a way northward through fog and broken ice of medium thickness through the next day, only emerging into open water and clear weather off Cape Fraser.

Strike Ice and Fog.

From this point we had a clear run through the middle of Robeson channel uninterrupted by either ice or fog, to Lady Franklin bay. Here we encountered both ice and fog, and while working along in search of a practicable opening were forced across to the Greenland coast at Thank God Harbor.

The fog lifted there and enabled us to make out our whereabouts and we steamed north through a series of leads past Cape Lupton, and thence southward toward Cape Union. A few miles off that cape we were stopped by impracticable ice and we drifted back south to Cape Union, where we stopped again.

Ship Forced Aground.

We lay for some time in a lake of water, and then, to prevent being drifted south again, took refuge under the north shore of Lincoln bay, in nearly the identical place where we had our unpleasant experiences three years before. Here we remained for several days during a period of constant and at times violent northeasterly winds. Twice we were forced aground by the heavy ice; we had our port quarter rail broken and a hole stove in the bulwarks, and twice we pushed out in an attempt to get north, but were forced back each time to our precarious shelter.

Heavy Running Ice.

Finally on September 2 we squeezed around Cape Union and made fast in a shallow niche in the ice, but after some hours we made another short run to Black Cape as being on to a grounded bit of ice. At last a little after midnight of September 5, we passed through extremely heavy running ice into a stream of open water, rounded Cape Rawson and passed Cape Sheridan.

Within a quarter of an hour of the same time we arrived three years before—seven a. m., September 5—we reached the open water extending beyond Cape Sheridan.

Put Up for Winter.

The season was further advanced than in 1905, there was more snow on the ground and the new ice inside the floe bergs was much thicker. The work of discharging the ship was commenced at once and rushed to completion. The supplies and equipment were sledged across ice and sea and deposited on shore. A house and workshop were built of board, covered with sails, and fitted with stoves, and the ship was snug for winter in shoal water, where it could be towed at low tide. The settlement on the story shores of the Arctic ocean was christened Hubbardville.

Prepare for Sledge Trip.

On September 15 the full work of transferring supplies to Cape Columbia was inaugurated. Marvin with Dr. Goodsell and Borup, and the Eskimos, took 16 sledge loads of supplies to Cape Belskap and on the 27th the same party started with loads to Porter bay.

The work of hunting and transporting supplies was prosecuted continuously by the men, Borup and the Eskimos, until November 5, when the supplies for the spring sledge trip had been removed from winter quarters and deposited at various places from Cape Cook to Cape Columbia.

The latter part of September the movement of the ice subjected the ship to a pressure which lasted it to port some eight or ten degrees, and it did not recover till the following spring. On October 1 I went on a hunt with two Eskimos across the field and Pass bay and the peninsula, made the circuit of Clements Markham inlet, and returned to the ship in seven days with 15 musk oxen, a bear, and a deer.

Later on October I repeated the trip, obtaining five musk oxen, and hunting parties secured some 40 deer.

Supplies Moved to Base.

In the February month Bartlett went to Cape Egede, Goodsell moved some more supplies from Etah to Cape Cook, and Borup went to Markham inlet on a hunting trip. On February 15 Bartlett left the Roosevelt with his division for Cape Columbia and Parr bay.

Goodsell, Borup, MacMillan and Hansen followed on successive days with their provisions. Marvin returned from Cape Bryant on February 17 and left for Cape Columbia on February 21. I brought up the rear on February 22.

The total of all divisions leaving the Roosevelt was seven members of the party, 59 Eskimos, 140 dogs and 23 sledges.

Make Ready for Dash.

By February 27 such of the Cape Cook depot as was needed had been brought up to Cape Columbia, the dogs were rested and double rationed and harnessed, and the sledges and other gear overhauled.

Four months of northerly winds during the fall and winter had made the ice so hard and compact that it was necessary to make a great deal of rough ice, and I was prepared to hew a road through the jagged ice for the first hundred miles or so, then cross the big lead.

Bartlett Leads the Way.

On the last day of February Bartlett, with his pioneer division, accomplished this, and his division got away due north over the ice on March 1. The rest of the party got away on Bartlett's trail and followed as hour after hour.

The party now comprised seven members of the expedition, 17 Eskimos, 133 dogs and 19 sledges. One Eskimo and seven dogs had gone to pieces. A strong easterly wind, drifting snow and temperature in the minus marked our departure from the camp at Cape Columbia, which I had christened Crane City. Rough ice in the first march damaged several sledges and smashed forward marches, the teams going back to Columbia for other sledges in reserve there.

Pass British Record.

We camped ten miles from Crane City. The easterly wind and low temperature continued. In the second march we passed the British record made by Markham in May, 1876—82.20—and were stopped by open water, which had been formed by wind after Bartlett passed. On this march we negotiated an open lead and reached Bartlett's third camp, Borup had gone back from here, but missed his way, owing to the faulting of the trail by the movement of the ice. Marvin came back also for more fuel, but was delayed by open water. At the end of the fourth march we came upon Bartlett, who had been stopped by a wide lake of open water. We remained here from March 4 to March 11.

Gets Glimpse of Sun.

At noon of March 5 the sun, red and shaped like a football by excessive refraction, just raised itself above the horizon for a few minutes and then disappeared again. It was the first time I had seen it since October 1. I now began to feel a good deal of anxiety because there were no signs of Marvin and Borup, who should have been there for two days. Besides, they had the alcohol and oil, which were indispensable for us.

The trail or road that they had either lost or were imprisoned on, was a land by open water, probably the latter. Fortunately, on March 11 the lead was practicable and, leaving a note for Marvin and Borup to push on after us by forced marches, we proceeded northward. The sounding of the lead gave 110 fathoms.

During this march we crossed the eighty-fourth parallel and traversed a succession of just frozen leads, from a few hundred yards to a mile in width. This march was really simple.

On the fourteenth we got free of the leads and came on decent going. While we were making camp a courier from Marvin came and informed me he was on the march in the rear. The temperature was 59 below zero.

The following morning, March 15, I sent Hansen with his division north to pioneer a trail for five marches, and Dr. Goodsell, according to the program, started back to Cape Columbia.

MacMillan Turns Back.

At night Marvin and Borup came splashing in with their men and dogs, steaming in the bitter air like a squadron of battleships. Their arrival relieved me of all anxiety as to our oil supply. In the morning I discovered that MacMillan's foot was badly frost bitten. The mishap had occurred two or three days before, but MacMillan had said nothing about it in the hope that it would come out all right.

A glance at the injury showed me that the only thing was to send him back to Cape Columbia at once. The arrival of Marvin and Borup enabled me to spare sufficient men and dogs to go back with him.

On leaving the camp the expedition comprised 16 men, 12 sledges and 10 dogs. The next march was satisfactory as regards distance and the character of the going. In the latter part there were pronounced movements in the ice, both visible and audible. Some leads were crossed in one of which Borup and his team took a bath, and we were finally stopped by an impracticable lead opening in front of us. We camped in a temperature of 50 degrees below.

At the end of two short marches we came upon Hansen and his party in camp, mending their sledges. We devoted the remainder of the day to overhauling and mending sledges and breaking up our damaged ones for material.

Make Forced Marches.

The next morning I put Marvin in the lead to pioneer the trail, with instructions to make two forced marches to bring up our average which had been put down by the last two short ones. Marvin carried out his instructions admirably. A considerable amount of young ice assisted in this.

At the end of the tenth march, latitude 82° 25', Borup turned back in command of the second supporting party, having traveled a distance equivalent to Nansen's distance from this far to his farthest north.

I was sorry to lose this young Yale runner, with his enthusiasm and pluck. He had led his heavy sledge over the floes in a way that commanded everyone's admiration and would have made us father's eyes glisten.

Changes His Plan.

From this point the expedition comprised 20 men, 10 sledges, and 10 dogs. It was necessary for Marvin to take a sledge from here, and I put Bartlett and his division in advance to pioneer the trail.

The continual daylight enabled me to make a moderate march that brought my advance and main parties closer together and reduced the likelihood of their being separated by open leads.

After Bartlett left camp with Henderson and his division, Marvin and I remained with our division 20 hours longer and then followed. When we reached Bartlett's camp he broke out and went on and we turned in. By this arrangement the advance party was traveling while the main party was asleep, and vice versa, and I was in touch with my advance party every 24 hours.

Moves Expeditiously.

I had no reason to complain of the going for the next three marches, though for a less experienced party, less adaptable sledges, or less perfect equipment it would have been an impossibility.

At our position at the end of the second march, Marvin obtained a satisfactory sight of latitude in clear weather, which placed us at 84° 43'. The result agreed satisfactorily with the dead reckoning of Marvin, Bartlett and myself.

Up to this time, the slight altitude of the ice had made little or no difference in our observations.

On the next two marches the going improved, and we covered good distances. In one of these marches a lead delayed us a few hours. We finally ferried across the ice.

Makes Record Run.

The next day Bartlett let himself out, evidently, for a record, and reeled off 20 miles in 20 hours, obtaining another satisfactory sight of latitude, which gave the position as 85° 33' (or beyond the farthest north of Nansen and Abuzzi), and showed that we had covered 50 minutes of latitude in three marches.

At this point we had passed the Norwegian record of 84.14, by Nansen, and the Italian record of 85.34, by Cagni.

From this point Marvin turned back in command of the third supporting party. "By all means," he said, "be careful of the leads, my boy."

The party from this point comprised nine men, seven sledges, and 60 dogs. The conditions at this camp and the apparently unbroken expanse of fairly level ice in every direction, reminded me of Cagni's description of his farthest north.

Danger Is Encountered.

But I was not deceived by the apparently favorable outlook, for available for any length of time in the Arctic regions.

The next march was over good going, but for the first time since leaving land we experienced that condition, frequently encountered in the Arctic, in which the light is equal everywhere. All relief is destroyed, and it is impossible to see for any distance.

We were obliged in this march to make a detour around an open lead. In the next march we encountered the heaviest and deepest snow of the journey, through a thick, smothering mantle lying in the depressions of heavy rubble ice.

Temporarily Discouraged.

I came upon Bartlett and his party, fagged out and temporarily discouraged by the heart-breaking work of making road.

I knew what was the matter with them, they were simply spayed by the good going on the previous marches. I rallied them a bit, lightened their sledges and sent them on encouraged again.

During the next march we traveled through a thick haze drifting over the ice before a blinding air from the north-east. At the end of the march we came upon the captain camped beside a wide open lead with a dense black water sky northwest, north and northeast.

The next march was also a long one. I was Bartlett's last hit. He let himself out over a series of large old floes, steadily increasing in diameter and covered with hard snow.

Wind Helps Out.

During the last few miles I walked beside him in advance. He was solemn and anxious to go further, but the program was for him to go back from here in command of the fourth supporting party, and there were no supplies for an increase in the main party.

Bartlett Did Good Work.

When he left I felt for a moment pang of regret as he disappeared in the distance, but it was only momentary. My work was still ahead, not in the rear.

Bartlett had done good work and had been a great help to me. Circumstances had thrust him out of the pioneering upon him instead of dividing it among several, as I had planned.

He had reason to take pride in the fact that he had bettered the Italian record by a degree and a quarter and had covered a distance equal to the entire distance of the Italian expedition from Franz Josef's land to Cagni's farthest north.

I had given Bartlett this position and part of honor in command of my fourth and last supporting party, and for two reasons, first, because of his magnificent handling of the Roosevelt; second, because he had cheerfully stood between me and many trifling annoyances on the expeditions.

Then there was a third reason. It seemed to me appropriate in view of the magnificent British record of Arctic work, covering three centuries, that it should be a British subject who had been nearest the pole.

Ready for Final Effort.

With the disappearance of Bartlett I turned to the problem before me. This was that for which I had worked for 32 years, for which I had lived the simple life, for which I had conserved all my energy on the upward trip, for which I had trained myself as for a race, crushing down every worry about success.

Then, when speaking of his being in these exclusive regions, which no mortal has ever penetrated before. "It is just like every day."

Of course I had my sensations that made sleep impossible for hours, despite the fatigue—the sensations of a lifetime, but I have no room for them here. The first 30 hours at the pole were spent in taking observations, in going some ten miles beyond our camp and in carrying out the right of it; in taking photographs, planting my markers, depositing my records, studying the horizon with my telescope for possible land, and searching for a practicable place to make a sounding.

Men All Tried and True.

Four of them possess the technique of dogs, sledges, ice, and cold as their heritage. Two of them, Hansen and Ootam, were my companions to the farthest point reached before. Two others, Egniwuk and Sigloo, were in Clark's division, which had such a narrow escape at that time, and now were willing to go anywhere with my immediate party, and willing to risk themselves again in any supporting party.

The fifth was a young man who had never served before in any expedition, but who was, if possible, even more willing and eager than the others for the prize—a boat, a rifle, a shotgun, ammunition, knives, etc., which I had promised to each of them when they reached the pole with me, for he knew that these riches would enable him to wrest from a stubborn father the girl whose image filled his hot young heart.

All Followed Him Blindly.

All had blind confidence so long as I was with them and gave no thought for the future, sure that whatever happened I should somehow get them back to land. But I dealt with the party equally. I recognized that all its impetus centered in me, and that whatever pace I set it would make good. If any played out, I would stop for a short time.

I had no fault to find with the conditions. My dogs were the best, the pick of 122 with which we left Columbia. Almost all were powerful males, hard as iron in constitution, but without a superfluous ounce, and what was better yet, they were all in good spirits.

My sledges, now that the repairs were completed, were in good condition. My supplies were ample for 45 days, and with the repairs represented by the dogs themselves, could be made to last 50.

At a little after midnight of April 1, after a few hours of sound sleep, I hit the trail, leaving the others to break up camp and follow.

As I climbed the pressure ridge back of our igloos I set another hole in my belt, the third since I started. Every man and dog of us was lean and flat belled as a board and as hard.

Fine Morning for Start.

It was a fine morning. The wind of the last two days had subsided, and the going was the best and most equitable of any I had had yet. The floes were large and old, and clear, and were surrounded by pressure ridges, some of which were almost stupendous.

The biggest of them, however, were easily negotiated, either through some crevice or up some huge brink. I set a good pace for about ten hours. Two miles and five miles took me well beyond the eighty-eighth parallel.

While I was building my igloo a long lead forward by the east and southwest of us at a distance of a few miles.

Few Handicaps Are Faced.

A few hours' sleep and we were on the trail again. As the going was now practically horizontal, we were unhindered and could travel as long as we pleased and sleep as little as we wished.

The weather was fine and the going like that of the previous day, except at the beginning, when pickaxes were required. This and a brief stop at another lead cut down our distance. But we made 20 miles in ten hours and were half way to the eighty-ninth parallel.

Going Improves on Way.

Again there was a few hours' sleep and we hit the trail before midnight. The weather and going were even better. The surface, except as interrupted by infrequent ridges was as level as the glacial fringe from Etah to Columbia, and harder.

We marched something over ten hours, the dogs being off on the trail and made 20 miles. Near the end of the march we rushed across a lead 100 yards wide, which buckled under our sledges and finally broke as the last sledge left it.

We stopped in sight of the eighty-ninth parallel in a temperature of 40 degrees below. Again a scant sleep and we were on our way once more and across the eighty-ninth parallel. This march duplicated the previous one as to weather and going. The last few hours it was on young ice and occasionally the dogs were galloping.

We made twenty-five miles or more, the air, the sky, and the bitter wind burning the face till it cracked. It was like the great interior ice gap of Greenland. Every native complained of the bitter air. It was as keen as frozen steel.

A little longer sleep than the previous one had to be taken here, as we were all in need of it. Then on again. Up to this time, with each successive march, our fear of an impassable lead had increased. At every inequality of the ice I found myself hurrying breathlessly forward, fearing that it marked a lead, and when I arrived at the summit would catch my breath with relief—only to find myself hurrying on in the same way at the next one.

But on this march, by some strange shift of feeling, this fear fell from me completely. The weather was thick, but I gave me no uneasiness.

Before I turned in I took an observation which indicated our position as 89 degrees 25 minutes. A rise in temperature to 15 degrees below reduced the friction of the sledges and gave the dogs the appearance of having caught the spirits of the party. The more sprightly ones as they went along with tightly curled tails, frequently tossed their heads, with short, sharp barks and yelps.

In 12 hours we had made 40 miles. There was no sign of a lead in the march.

Pole Reached at Last.

I had now made my five marches, and was in time for a busy noon observation through a temporary break in the clouds, which indicated our position as 89° 51'. I quote an entry from my journal some hours later:

The pole at last. The prize of three centuries, my dream and goal for 30 years, mine at last. I cannot bring myself to realize it.

It all seems so simple and commonplace. As Bartlett said when turning back, when speaking of his being in these exclusive regions, which no mortal has ever penetrated before. "It is just like every day."

Of course I had my sensations that made sleep impossible for hours, despite the fatigue—the sensations of a lifetime, but I have no room for them here.

the fifth, and at the big lead lost it finally.

Eskimos Wild with Joy.

From here we followed the captain's trail; and on April 23 our sledges passed up the vertical edge of the glacier fringe, a little west of Cape Columbia.

When the last sledge came up, I thought my Eskimos had gone crazy. They yelled and called and danced themselves helpless. As Ootah sat down on his sledge he remarked, in Eskimo: "The devil is asleep or he is making trouble with his wife, or we never should have come back so easily."

A few hours later we arrived at Crane City, under the bluffs of Cape Columbia, and after pushing four pounds of pemmican into each of the faithful dogs to keep them quiet, we had, at last, our chance to sleep.

Sleep Finally in Safety.

Never shall I forget that sleep at Cape Columbia. It was sleep, sleep, then turn over and sleep again. We slept gloriously, with never a thought of the morning or having to walk and, too, with no thought that there was to be never a night more of blinding headache.

Cold water to a parched throat is nothing compared with sleep to a numbed, fatigued head and body.

Modern Ideas Grafted on Ancient.

The ceremony of cutting the wedding cake, which falls to the bride, is a survival of the old Roman "eating together," which signified that the bride was reconciled to her lot and that the husband granted her a share of his property, and the habit of putting back her veil is a remnant of savage custom, which decrees a woman must dress differently after her marriage to signify she is a wife.

The Printer's Children.

The case of the printer's man who named his four daughters after the eight notes of the musical scale is matched by that of the provincial printer who named his children from the type-fonts he used—Ruby Pearl Diamond. The first two are no uncommon names for girls, only Ruby happened to be a boy. He followed in his father's footsteps and afterward became a printer's manager in London.

Old and New.

Elizabethan drama appears, instead of love, as the meanest samples of their principal characters or imagined the situation of depressing humanity what a pitiful thing to inspire and encourage, what a fine time were men of it.

National Development of Colleges.

One of the differences between love and a puppy is that a puppy ceases to be blind when it is about nine days old. Sometimes it takes love a little longer to get its eyes open.

One of Lamb's Writings.

Charles Lamb was invited to a party where the room was crowded with children. Their noise and tricks plagued him not a little and at supper, when toasts were flying to and fro, he rose to propose the health of the "much-cacacalumniated good King Herod."

The City in Brief.

Mrs. O. N. Barnhart is able to sit up a little.

Ed. Vanderhoof and wife have moved to Detroit.

David Vanderhoof and family have moved to Hartwick, Osceola county.

James Woolley and mother have moved into the Ed. Vanderhoof house.

Chas. Decker has sold L. L. Brooks' Nori farm to Wm. Bogert of Livonia for $10,000.

Miss Grace Lyke is the new clerk in Ambler's Ice Cream parlors in the absence of Miss Wells.

J. G. Alexander has purchased the little bay driving horse of J. S. Haddock for his livery stable.

Paul Dubuar left Wednesday morning for Seattle, Wash. He has the best wishes of a host of friends.

E. Brigham passed his seventy-seventh birthday yesterday and he is as hale and hearty as most men at sixty.

Don't forget the regular meeting and election of officers of Orient Chapter, No. 77, O. E. S. this (Friday) evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Stanley have moved from the Ardell boarding house into the Irving flats on west Main street.

Mrs. H. J. James of Walnut street was taken suddenly ill Sunday afternoon with neuralgia of the heart. She is some better.

The "Playlet" advertised in last week's Record to be given under the auspices of the Presbyterian ladies has been "called off."

A fine basket full of elegant grapes has reached the Record office from the Sunnyside farm with the compliments of Dr. Burrows.

The Starkweather stock farm exhibited twenty-four head of draft horses and mules at the State Fair and carried off sixteen first premiums three seconds, two thirds and three fourths.

Cards are out announcing the marriage of Dr. William A. Hart, formerly of this place, to Miss Grace Higbee. The wedding will take place at the bride's home at Ionia September 28.

Ex-Congressman Barragh of Gratiot county, Senator Dickinson of Eaton and President Fred Postal of the State Agricultural Society, seem to be about the only candidates thus far mentioned for Lieutenant Governor.

Both Northville banks publish very flattering reports in this issue. Together they denote deposits of nearly 400,000. This shows the prosperity of the people of Northville and vicinity. The combined footing of the two banks is $456,741.60.

The funeral of Dr. R. M. Johnson was held in the Methodist church Saturday afternoon and was largely attended and Rev. J. W. Turner officiated. The uniformed rank of Knights Templar attended and took charge of the services at the grave.

Twenty-one gentlemen friends of George Farwell came over from Plymouth Friday night and gave him a genuine surprise at the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Paulina Vradenburg. Cards were indulged in for a time and a most enjoyable time had.

E. H. Lapham received word this week of the death on August 21, at Lake Geneva, Switzerland, of his uncle, Edward P. Baker of Chicago. Mr. Baker lived in Northville as a boy and young man and many of the older residents will be sorry to learn of his death.

While it is claimed that the new cigarette law is defective in some particulars, it at least has some redeeming features, and chief among these is the fact that it does prohibit the smoking of cigarettes in public places by young men under the age of twenty-one.

A sort of a bee-bug with a boring machine in the rear end about three and one-half inches long is busy killing one of the fine maple trees in front of the Methodist church property. Charlie Filkins captured one of 'em yesterday and for the present he is caged at the Record office.

Some smart Alecks while driving think it cuts to refuse to stop or take the side of the road to let an automobile, coming up behind them pass. The law is very explicit in this respect and when an auto driver signals that he wants to get by a horse or team the wagon driver is liable to a good sized fine for holding back the auto.

SYNOPSIS.

"Mad" Dan Maitland, on reaching his New York bachelor club, met an attractive young woman at the door. Janitor O'Hagan assured him no one had been within that day. Dan discovered a woman's finger ring in dust on his desk, along with a letter from his attorney. Maitland dined with Bannerman, his attorney. Dan set out for Greenfield, to get his family jewels. Maitland, on reaching home, surprised lady in gray, cracking the safe containing his gems. She, apparently, took him for a well-known crook. Daniel Anisty, half-hypnotized, Maitland opened his safe, took therefrom the jewels, and gave them to her. To shield the girl in gray, Maitland, without cash, called up his home, and the real Dan Anisty, sought by police of the world, appeared. Maitland overcame him. He and the girl went to New York in her auto. He had the jewels. She was to meet him that day. A "Mr. Smith" introduced himself as a detective. To shield the girl in gray, Maitland, about to show him the jewels, supposedly lost, was felled by a blow from "Smith's" cane. The latter proved to be Anisty himself and he secured the gems. Anisty, who was Maitland's double, masqueraded as the latter. The criminal kept Maitland's engagement with the girl in gray. He gave her the gems. The girl in gray visited Maitland's apartments during his absence and returned gems. Maitland, without cash, called up his home, and heard a woman's voice expostulating. Anisty, disguised as Maitland, tried to write from her the location of the gems. A crash was heard at the front door. Maitland overwhelmed the crook, allowing him to escape to shield the young woman. The girl in gray made her escape, jumping into a cab in instant later, by working a ruse. Anisty was at her side. He took her to Attorney Bannerman's office. There, by torture, he tried in vain to write from her the location of the gems. He left her a moment and she phoned O'Hagan, only getting in the words "Tell Mr. Maitland under the brass bowl" the hiding place in the latter's rooms, when Anisty heard her words. Bannerman also was revealed as a crook. He and Anisty set out to secure the gems and leave town. The girl was still imprisoned.

CHAPTER XV.

The Price.

Slowly Maitland returned to the study and replaced the lamp upon his desk; and stood briefly in silence, long fingers stroking his well-shaped chin, his face a little thin and worn-looking, a gleam of pain in his eyes. He sighed.

So she was gone!

He laughed a trace harshly. This surprise was nothing more than he might have discounted, of course, he had been a fool to expect anything else of her, he was enjoying only his just deserts both for having dared to believe that the good in human nature (particularly in woman's nature) would respond to decent treatment, and for having acted on that asinine theory.

So she was gone, without a word, without a sign!

He sat down at the desk, sideways, one arm extended along its edge, fingers drumming out a dreary little tune on the hard polished wood, and thought it all over from the beginning. Nor spared himself!

Why, after all, should it be otherwise? Why should she have stayed? Why should he compliment himself by believing that there was aught about him visible through the veneer acquired in a score and odd years of purposeless existence, to attract a young and pretty woman's heart?

He enumerated his qualities specifically, and condemned them all implicitly, he was a conceited ass. A fascinating young criminal had but to toss her head at him to make him think that she was pleased with him, to make him forget that she was what she was and believe that, because he was willing to stoop she was willing to climb. And he had betrayed him self so mercilessly! How she must have laughed in her sleeve all the time, while he pranced and bridled and preened himself under her eyes, blinded to his own idiocy by the flame of a sudden infatuation—how she must have laughed!

Undoubtedly she had laughed; and, measuring his depth—or his shallowness—had determined to use him to her ends. Why not? It had been her business, her professional duty, to make use of him in order to accomplish her plundering. And because she had not dared to ask him for the jewels when he left her in the morning, she had naturally returned in the evening to regain them, very confident, doubtless, that even if scot-free. Unfortunately for her, this fellow Anisty had interfered. Maitland presumed cynically that he ought to be grateful to Anisty. The unaccountable scoundrel! Why had he returned?

How the girl had contrived to escape was, of course, more easy to understand. Maitland recalled that sudden clatter of boots in the street, and he had only to make a trip to the window to verify his suspicion that the cab was gone. She had simply overheard his concluding remarks to the caddy, and taken pardonable advantage of them. Maitland had looted the bill. She was welcome to that, however. He, Maitland, was well rid of the whole damnable business. Yes, jewels and all!

What were the jewels to him? Beyond their sentimental associations, he did not hold them greatly in prize. Of course, since they had been worn by his mother, he would spare no expense or effort to trace and re-collect them, for that dim sainted memory's sake. But in this case, at least, the traditional usage of the Maitlands would never be carried out. It had been faithfully observed when, after his mother's death, the stones had been removed from their settings and stored away; but now they would never be reset, even should he contrive to reassemble them, to adorn the bride of the Maitland heir. For he would never marry. Of course not.

Maitland was young enough to believe, and to extract a melancholy satisfaction from, this.

Puzzled and saddened, his mind harked back forever to that carking question. Why had she returned? What had brought her back to the flat? If she and Anisty were confederates, as one was inclined at times to believe—if such were the case, Anisty had the jewels, and there was nothing else of any particular value so persistently to entice such expert and accomplished burglars back to his flat. What else had they required of him? His peace of mind was nothing that they could turn into cash; and they seemed to have reaped him of nothing else.

But they had that; unquestionably they had taken that.

And still the riddle haunted him. Why had she come back that night? And, whatever her reason, had she come in Anisty's company, or alone? One minute it seemed patent beyond dispute that the girl and the great plunderer were hand-in-glove; the next minute Maitland was positively assured that their recent meeting had been altogether an accident. From what he had heard over the telephone, he had believed them to be quarreling, although at the time he had assigned to O'Hagan the masculine side of the dispute. But certainly there must have arisen some difference of opinion between Anisty and the girl to have drawn from her that frantic negative Maitland had heard, to have been responsible for the overturning of the chair—an accident that seemed to argue something in the nature of a physical struggle, the chair itself lay upon its side, mute witness to a hasty and careless movement on somebody's part.

But it was all inexplicable. Eventually Maitland shook his head, to signify that he gave it up. There was but one thing to do—to put it out of mind. He would read a bit, compose himself, go to bed.

Preliminary to doing so, he would take steps to insure the flat against further burglarizing, for that night at least. The draught moving through the hall stirred the portiere and reminded him that the window in the trunkroom was still open, an invitation to any enterprising sneak-thief or second-story man. So Maitland went to close and make it fast.

As he shut down the window-sash and clamped the catch he trod on something soft and yielding. Wondering, he stooped and picked it up, and carried it back to the light. It proved to be the girl's hand-bag.

"Now," admitted Maitland in a tone of absolute candor, "I am damned. How in the dickens did this thing get there, anyway? What was she doing in my trunk closet?"

Was it possible that she had followed Anisty out of the flat by that route? A very much mystified young man sat himself down again in front of his desk, and turned the bag over and over in his hands, keenly scrutinizing every inch of it, and whistling softly.

That year the fashion in purses was for capacious receptacles of grained leather, nearly square in shape, and furnished with a chain handle. This which Maitland held was conspicuously of the mode—neither too large, nor too small, constructed of fine soft leather of a gun-metal shade, with a frame-work and chain of gun-metal itself. It was new and seemed well filled, weighing a trifle heavy in the hand. One face was adorned with a monogram of cut gun-metal, the initials "S" and "G" and "L" interlaced. But beyond this the bag was irritatingly non-committal.

Undoubtedly, if one were to go to the length of unsnapping the little, frail clasp, one would acquire information; by such facile means would much light be shed upon the darkness. But Maitland put a decided negative to the suggestion.

No. He would give her the benefit of the doubt. He would wait, he would school himself to patience. Perhaps she would come back for it—and explain. Perhaps he could find her by advertising it—and get an explanation. Pending which, he could wait a little while. It was not his wish to pry into her secrets, even if—even if—it was something to be smoked over. Strange how it affected him to have in his hands something that she had owned and touched!

Opening a drawer of the desk, Maitland produced an aged pipe. A brazen jar, companion piece to the ash receiver, held his tobacco. He filled the pipe from the jar, with thoughtful deliberation. And scraped a match beneath his chair and ignited the tobacco and puffed in contemplative contentment, deriving solace from each mouthful of grateful, evanescent incense. Meanwhile he held the charred match between thumb and forefinger.

jewels; somehow (and one wondered at what risk) she had contrived to take them from him and bring them back to their owner. And Anisty had followed.

Poor little woman! What had she not suffered, what perils had she not braved, to prove that there was honor even in thieves! It could have been at no inconsiderable danger—a danger not incommensurate with that of robbing a tigress of her whelps—that she had managed to filch his loot from that pertinacious and vindictive soul, Anisty!

But she had accomplished it; and all for him!

If only he could find her, now! There was a clasp in his hand in that bag, of course, but by this act she forever removed from him the right to investigate that.

If he could only find that caddy.

Perhaps if he tried at the Madison square rank, immediately— Besides, it was clearly his duty not to remain in the flat alone with the jewels another night. There was but one attainable place of safety for them, and that the safe of a reputable hotel. He would return to the Bartholdi at once, merely pausing on his way to inquire of the cabman if they could send their brother-nighthawk to him.

Maitland shook himself into his top-coat, jammed hat upon head, dropped the jewels into one pocket, the cigarette case into another, and on impulse—Anisty's revolver, with its two unexploded cartridges, into a third, and pressed the call button for O'Hagan, not waiting, however, for that worthy to climb the stair, but meeting him in the entry hall.

"I'm going back to the Bartholdi, O'Hagan, for the night. You may bring me my letters and any messages in the morning. I should like you to sleep in the flat to-night and answer any telephone calls."

"Yiss, Misher Maitland, sor." "Have the police gone, O'Hagan?" "There's a whole bottle full yet, sor." "You've not been drinking, I trust?" The Irishman shuffled. "Shure, sor, an' wud that be hospitable?"

Laughing, Maitland bade him good night and left the house, turning west to gain Fifth avenue, walking slowly because he was a little tired, and enjoying the rather unusual experience of being abroad at that hour without company. The sky seemed cleaner than ordinarily, the city quieter than ever he had known it, and in the air was a sweet smell, reminiscent of the country-side—reminding one unhappily of the previous night when one had gone whistling to one's destiny along a perfumed country road.

"Good evening, Mister Maitland, sir! It can't be you!"

Maitland looked up, bewildered for the instant. The voice that hailed him out of the sky was not unfamiliar.

A cab that he had waited on the corner to let pass, was reined back suddenly. The driver leaned down from the box and in a thunderstruck tone advertised his stupefaction.

"It aren't in nature, sir—if yer'll pardon my mentionin' it. But 'ere I leaves you not ten minutes ago at the St. Luke building and finds yer 'ere, when you 'aven't 'ad time."

Maitland woke up. "What's that?" he questioned, sharply. "You left me where ten minutes—?"

"St. Luke buildin', corner Broadway an'—"

"I know it," excited, "but—"

"avin' took yer there with the young lady—"

"Young lady!"

"That comes outer the 'ouse with yer, sir."

"The devil!" Maitland hesitated no longer; his foot was on the step as he spoke. "Drive me there at once, and drive for all you're worth!" he cried. "If there's an ounce of speed in that plug of yours and you don't get it out—"

"Never fear, sir! We'll make it in five minutes!"

"It'll be worth your while."

"Right-o!"

Maitland dropped into his seat, dumfounded. "Good Lord!" he whispered; and then, savagely: "In the power of that infamous scoundrel!" And felt of the revolver in his pocket. The cab had been headed north; the St. Luke rears its massive bulk south of Twenty-second street. The driver expertly swung his vehicle almost on dead center. Simultaneously it careened with the impact of a heavy bulk landing upon the step and falling in a heap on the deck.

"My word, what's that?" came from aloft. Maitland was altogether too startled to speak.

The heap sat up, resolving itself into the semblance of a man; who spoke in decisive tones:

"If yeh're goin' there, I'm goin' with yeh, 'r yeh don't go—see?"

"The sleuth!" gasped Maitland, astounded.

HOLDS LAMP WHILE

ARDENT SUITORS FIGHT

CAPTIVATING WIDOW SAYS THEY BATTLED FOR ABOUT TWENTY MINUTES.

St. Louis.—Mrs. Mary Ann Eichner, widow, held a lamp above her head to light the rear yard of her home at 1317 South Third street, while two men, one a soldier, fought with knives for her affections. She is a prisoner, and locked up with her is James Ober-shon, a Jefferson Barracks recruit, one of her admirers. James O'Mara, the other, is in the City hospital with a knife wound in his right cheek and a deep cut over his left eye.

O'Mara is a roomer at Mrs. Eichner's home and occupied the apartment which Ober-shon vacated when he joined the army. The fight is said by the police to have started when Ober-shon accused O'Mara of trying to supplant him in the favor of Mrs. Eichner.

"I was just having a little party," she said, "and I was pouring beer, my guests, when I heard a dis-ance in the back yard. "Taking a lamp from the table, I ran out to see what was the matter. O'Mara and Ober-shon were fighting and two other men were trying to pull them apart."

"If they fought about me I don't know it. I regard both as friends, but I am not in love with either."

Mrs. Eichner says that the fight fascinated her and that for 20 minutes she held the lamp while the battle was in progress.

"I didn't want to scream and have my friends arrested," she said, "and I was afraid that if I took the lamp back in the house somebody would get killed in the dark."

Mrs. Eichner says she was impartial and didn't care which of the combatants won the fight.

STEALS FOR STARVING WIFE

New York Man Breaks Into Butcher Shop and When Arrested Tells Story of Destitution.

New York.—Asserting he was once wealthy, but had lost his money through circumstances over which he had no control, a man was arraigned and held for burglary in the Harlem police court the other day, charged with breaking into a meat shop and stealing a quantity of beef. The prisoner declared his wife was dying from lack of nourishment and he had been forced to steal in hope of saving her life.

He gave his name as William E. Bancker, 45 years old, of 219 East One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street. He was seen walking along One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street carrying a suit case. Policeman Zapke of the East One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street station stopped him and demanded to be shown the contents of the suit case. Bancker told him his story and was taken to the station house where he was locked up until court opened.

Bancker was held in $1,500 bail for further examination. In the meantime the condition of his wife will be investigated by the probation officer, who is instructed to have shoes, food, and whatever other things are needed at the expense of the magistrate.

Men Act as Ballast.

Mount Vernon, Ill.—During the progress of a men's service at a union revival in a gospel tent in this city, the other day, a windstorm struck the tent, which would have been blown away had it not been for the quick thinking of the men, who ran to the ropes, making human ballast of themselves, keeping the tent from being blown away. Some of the men were lifted from the ground, only to be thrown back to earth with force. Poles were loosened from their moorings, but no one was seriously hurt.

Girl "Hobo" Arrested.

Providence, R. I.—While disguised tenced to 20 days in jail, returned to Altona after serving his sentence and hunted up Harry Parrish, a business man, who appeared against him, and stabbed Parrish three times on the chin, across the forehead and in the side. Johnson escaped.

CUTICURA CURED HIM.

Eczema Came on Legs and Ankles—Could Not Wear Shoes Because

Of Bad Scaling and Itching.

"I have been successfully cured of dry eczema. I was inspecting the removal of noxious weeds from the edge of a river and was constantly in the dust from the weeds. At night I cleansed my limbs but felt a prickly sensation. I paid no attention to it for two years but I noticed a scum on my legs like fish scales. I did not attend to it until it came to be too itchy and sore and began getting two running sores. My ankles were all sore and scabby and I could not wear shoes. I had to use carpet and felt slippers for weeks. I got a cake of the Cuticura Soap and some Cuticura Ointment. In less than ten days I could put on my boots and in less than three weeks I was free from the confounded itching. Capt. George P. ## Women in Postal Service.

The distinction of first appointing a woman postmaster does not belong to America, nor is the employment of women in the postal service a new idea. As early as 1543 a woman postmaster was appointed to look after the mails of Braine le Comte, an important town of France. In the trying times of the Thirty Years' war, the principal office in the postal service of Europe was held by a woman, Alexandrine de Rue. From 1623 to 1646 she was in charge of the mails of the German empire, the Netherlands, Burgundy and Lorraine. She was known as a master general of the mails. In America, Elizabeth Harvey was the first to hold a place in the postal department. She had charge of the letters in Portsmouth, N. H., in the beginning of the seventeenth century. A half century afterward Lydia Hill was placed in charge of the post office in Salem, Mass.

WHAT IS PAINT?

The paint on a house is the extreme outside of the house. The wood is simply a structural under layer. That is as it should be. Unprotected wood will not well withstand weather. But paint made of pure white lead and linseed oil is an invulnerable armor against sun and rain, heat and cold. Such paint protects and preserves, fortifying the perishable wood with a complete metallic casing.

And the outside of the house is the looks of the house. A well-constructed building may be greatly depreciated by lack of painting or by poor painting.

National Lead Company have made it possible for every building owner to be absolutely sure of pure white lead paint before applying. They do this by putting upon every package of their white lead their Dutch Boy Painter trademark. That trademark is a complete guarantee.

PRESIDENT STARTS ON LONG TOUR

Mr. Taft Leaves Summer Home at Beverly for Boston.

ON A 13,000 MILE JOURNEY

Details of the Chief Executive's Great Swing Through the West and South Lasting Nearly Two Months.

Beverly, Mass., Sept. 15.—Today, the fifty-second anniversary of his birth, President William H. Taft started from his summer home here on what will be one of the most notable tours ever undertaken by a president of the United States. For almost two months his private car will be a moving White House, and he will journey 13,000 miles and traverse most of the west and south before he lands in Washington on November 10. He went direct to Boston by motor car today and will attend a banquet there, starting immediately after for Chicago.

Besides the president, the party includes Capt. Archibald Butt, military aide; Wendell W. Mischler, assistant secretary; Dr. J. J. Richardson of Washington, D. C.; James Sloan, Jr., and L. C. Wheeler of the secret service, and Maj. Arthur Brooks, the president's confidential messenger. Six newspaper men will accompany the president throughout the entire trip. Shortly before noon to-morrow, the president will arrive in Chicago and be the guest of the Commercial club at luncheon. Next, the Hamilton club takes him in charge and will escort him, with a bodyguard of 1,400 members, to the West side ball park, to witness a game between Chicago and New York. After that will come a dinner at the Congress hotel, and then a meeting in Orchestra hall, where Mr. Taft will make a speech. To wind up the day, the president will put in his appearance at a reception and ball given by the Chicago bankers in the Auditorium.

In Wisconsin and Minnesota. Leaving Chicago at 3 a. m. Friday morning, the presidential party will stop at Milwaukee, Madison and Portage, and will spend the night at Wisconsin, Minn., and will reach Minneapolis early on the morning of Saturday, September 18. He will spend all Saturday and Sunday in Minneapolis and St. Paul, leaving Sunday night at eight o'clock in order to reach Des Moines on the morning of September 20.

Five hours will be spent in the Iowa capital, where Mr. Taft will review 5,000 troops of the regular army and make a speech, and then the president moves on to Omaha, where he will spend the late afternoon and evening. Denver will be reached the afternoon of September 21, and the president will go almost direct from his train to the state capital for a reception to be tendered by state officials, by the chamber of commerce and civic organizations. At 9 p. m. the president will make an address in the Denver Auditorium, where Mr. Bryan last year was nominated for the presidency.

The president and his party will breakfast with Thomas F. Walsh, at Wolhurst, near Denver, the morning of Wednesday, September 22, and then return to the city for the chamber of commerce banquet at noon.

Leaving Denver at 5 p. m., September 22, the president and his party will stop for an hour's visit at Colorado Springs, and then go on to Pueblo, where in the evening they will be guests at the state fair.

In Wonder Region of Colorado. The morning of September 23 will find the president at Glenwood Springs for a brief visit and that afternoon he will visit Montrose, where he will formally open the great Gunnison river tunnel built by the government for the irrigation of the Uncompaghe valley.

Returning to Grand Junction to resume the journey westward, the president will arrive at Salt Lake City, Utah, Friday afternoon, September 24, to remain there until Sunday afternoon, the twenty-sixth, when the party leaves over the Oregon Short Line for Pocatello, Ida., and Butte, Mont., the latter city being reached Monday, September 27, at 6:40 a. m. John Hays Hammond joins the party at Salt Lake City.

After spending half a day in Butte, there will be a brief excursion into Helena, Spokane, Wash., will be reached early Thursday morning, the twenty-eighth, and the entire day will be spent in that city.

The forenoon of the twenty-ninth will be spent at North Yakima and the party will arrive at Seattle at 8:15 that evening.

Two Days at Seattle Exposition. President Taft will spend two days—September 30 and October 1—doing the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition, leaving Seattle late in the evening of the second day and arriving at Portland, Ore., October 2 at 7 a. m.

Two days will be spent in Portland, the party leaving there at 6 p. m. Sunday, October 3, for a trip down the famous Shasta route, through the Siskiyou mountains and in view of Mount Shasta, to San Francisco.

The president will stop the evening of October 4 at Sacramento, reaching Oakland, Cal., early on the morning of October 5. He will spend four or five hours in and around Oakland and Berkeley before taking the ferry at 12:30 o'clock for San Francisco.

After spending the afternoon and evening of the fifth in San Francisco the president will leave early the morning of the sixth for the Yosemite valley.

He will spend the seventh, eighth and ninth in the valley, and, coming out the morning of Sunday, October 10, will proceed to Los Angeles, stopping for three hours at Fresno Sunday afternoon.

The president will spend Monday and Tuesday, October 11 and 12, in Los Angeles visiting his sister.

Will Meet President Diaz.

He will arrive at the Grand Canyon the morning of October 14 and will leave again that night for Albuquerque, N. M., where he will spend the evening of the fifteenth, reaching El Paso early the following morning for the meeting with President Diaz of Mexico.

President Diaz will arrive from Mexico City at Ciudad Juarez about the same time and he will then cross the frontier and meet President Taft at El Paso. An hour later the president of the United States will return the visit to President Diaz at Ciudad Juarez on the Mexican side. The authorities of the latter city have appropriated $20,000 for decorations and a bull fight.

Arriving at Corpus Christi the evening of October 15, the president will go at once to his brother's ranch, where he will spend Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Charles P. Taft has had golf links built on the ranch.

Trip Down Mississippi River.

Visiting Houston the forenoon of Saturday, October 23, the president will proceed to Dallas that afternoon to spend Saturday evening and all Sunday.

From Dallas the president will proceed direct to St. Louis to begin his four days' trip down that historic waterway.

He will reach St. Louis at 7:27 a. m. the morning of Monday, October 25, and will leave at 4 p. m. on the steamship assigned to him by the Deep Waterways association, which is to hold its convention in New Orleans on the president's arrival there.

Following the president's boat will be a spectacular flotilla of river craft. One of the trailing boats will be assigned to make the trip down the river and to attend the convention. Another boat will be assigned to the congressional delegation of more than 100 members. Yet another boat will carry members of the Illinois Manufacturers' association.

First Stop of Voyage at Cairo.

The first long stop of the river trip will be at Cairo at 8:30 a. m. Tuesday, October 26. The second stop will be at Hickman, Ky., at 2:30 p. m., the president making brief addresses at both places.

Arriving at Memphis, Tenn., at 8 a. m. Wednesday, October 27, the president will make an address at 9 o'clock and that afternoon at 5 o'clock will speak at Helena, Ark.

On Thursday, October 28, at 2:30 p. m., Mr. Taft will make a speech at Vicksburg. New Orleans will be reached about four o'clock Friday afternoon. The river journey also will include short stops at Cape Girardeau, Mo., and Natchez, Miss.

The president will remain in New Orleans from Friday afternoon, the twenty-ninth, to Monday morning, November 1. He will address the Waterways convention on October 30 at 2:30 p. m.

From New Orleans the president will go to Jackson and Columbus, Miss., Birmingham, Ala., Macon, Savannah, Charleston, Augusta, Wilmington, and Richmond, reaching Washington November 10.

Troubles of People on Venus.

Inhabitants of Venus, if there are any, must feel it extremely difficult to establish units of time. Venus always turns the same face toward the sun; so the planet has no day, and the lack of a moon deprives it of a month. Finally, it has no year, for its axis of rotation is perpendicular to the plane of its orbit, and the latter is almost circular.

True Thrift.

When visiting a certain town in the Midland, says a medical man, "I was told of an extraordinary incident wherein the main figure, an economical housewife, exhibited, under trying circumstances, a trait quite characteristic of her. It seems that she had by mistake taken a quantity of poison—mercurial poison—the antidote for which, as all should know, comprises the whites of eggs. When this antidote was being administered, the order for which the unfortunate lady had overheard she managed to murmur, although almost unconscious: 'Mary, Mary! Save the yolks for the puddings!'—Tit-Bits.

The Doctors' Orders.

A lady whose husband seemed to be doing little but lie in the hammock and eat apples, was asked by a sympathetic neighbor what the trouble with him was. "Doctors," she replied, sadly. "No, he hasn't come into a fortune." A writer in To Day's Magazine tells the story.

"You see," explained the wife, "he's been having some sort of matter with his stomach, and he consulted two different doctors about it. One told him to eat a ripe apple every hour, and the other said to rest an hour after eating. So he's trying to do both."

When a man has enough money laid aside to keep him on Easy street the rest of his days, he ought to give others a chance.

PRESSED HARD

Coffee's Weight on Old Age.

When prominent men realize the injurious effects of coffee and the change in health that Postum can bring, they are glad to lend their testimony for the benefit of others.

A superintendent of public schools in North Carolina says:

"My mother since her early childhood, was an inveterate coffee drinker and had been troubled with her heart for a number of years, and complained of that 'weak all over' feeling and sick stomach."

"Some time ago I was making an official visit to a distant part of the country and took dinner with one of the merchants of the place. I noticed a somewhat peculiar flavor of the coffee, and asked him concerning it. He replied that it was Postum."

"I was so pleased with it, that after the meal was over, I bought a package to carry home with me, and had wife prepare some for the next meal. The whole family liked it so well, that we discontinued coffee and used Postum entirely."

"I had really been at times very anxious concerning my mother's condition, but we noticed that after using Postum for a short time, she felt so much better than she did prior to its use, and had little trouble with her heart and no sick stomach; that the headaches were not so frequent, and her general condition much improved. This continued until she was as well and hearty as the rest of us."

"I know Postum has benefited my self and the other members of the family, but not in so marked a degree as in the case of my mother, as she was a victim of long standing."

TOURISTS IN PANIC

How to Keep Within $100 Exemption Has Them Guessing.

Collector Loeb Has Homecomings Worried as to What Will Happen to Baggage—Declare or Not to Declare.

Berlin.—The remaining days in Europe of countless thousands of homeward bound Americans are being made miserable with worry over what is likely to happen to them and their baggage when they reach the New York customhouse.

Stories of excessive activity on the part of Collector Loeb's inspectors called to this side have spread a genuine panic among the returning fraternity.

Usually the problem of how to crowd a summer's European purchases into the $100 exemption schedule is allowed to await solution on board the steamer 24 hours before landing, when the passengers are accustomed to get together and compare notes.

The merciless rigor with which Collector Loeb seems determined to enforce the law this year has caused the home-going brigade to do their figuring longer ahead than usual. The result is that "to declare or not to declare" is the favorite soliloquy among the throngs marking time in Berlin, Munich, Dresden, Carlsbad, Marienbad, and other resorts between how and the date of their various sailings.

The ease with which Americans run the customs blockade throughout Europe unites them to appreciate the beauties of the system in vogue in their own country. According to the statements of various purveyors throughout the continent, they enjoyed an exceedingly prosperous American season, so that Collector Loeb probably is justified in believing that a more than ordinary amount of trinkets is westward bound.

There is a fair degree of unanimity among the home goers, however, that their total acquisitions do not exceed $100 per person. Animated annoyance is expressed that Mr. Loeb's sleuths seem inclined to doubt these assurances.

"If the globe-trotting contingent," said a congressman in Berlin this week, "would air their grievances during the congressional campaign as vigorously as they do on the eve of their arrival in New York there would be fewer 'sawdusters' in Washington and a better chance of eliminating the protective tariff."

And that most of the customs kickers are Republicans. It is a good thing for them to get such convincing proof of the workings of their pet theory.

Yankess to Build Turk Road.

Constantinople.—After a long debate the chamber in substance approved the proposed concession to an American company to construct a railroad from Sivas to Mossul in Asiatic Turkey. The concession was granted on condition that if in the 16 months' time the company asks to study the route, better terms are offered, the latter shall be accepted. The ministers of works and finance heartily supported the American application.

Arm Yields Many Pins.

Paterson, N. J.—A bent and headless pin was taken out of the arm of Miss Adelina Wyckoff, 18 years old, a few days ago. Since then 16 similar pins have been extracted from the arm. Miss Wyckoff has no idea how the pins came to be in her body. Her parents believe that when she was a child she swallowed them.

"He is ignorant?" asked his wife

"He is a pig of a donkey head"

"Then listen, my Carlo," said his wife.

"I will write a letter that shall bring him here to-morrow morning. You will be in your studio, dressed in your cloak with your beard shaved."

"My beard!" he shouted. "You are mad, Minna."

"And you will agree to everything I say."

The next morning, seated despondently in his studio, passing his hand in agony of soul across his newly shaven chin, the Italian heard footsteps outside. The door opened. His wife and Mr. Hopkins stood on the threshold.

URNS BURGLAR FOR LOVE

Prisoner Gives Romantic Excuse for Intrusion, But Judge and Jury Take No Stock in It.

London.—Was he a burglar or simply a "lovelorn" youth prepared to brave all risks in order that he might feast his eyes upon the countenance of his adored one? It was a romantic problem which the recorder of Hull was asked to settle.

That he should take the prosaic, matter-of-fact view of the circumstances and decide that the man in the dock was a bold criminal and not a passionate Don Juan was perhaps inevitable. But it seemed sad that so picturesque a story should be of no avail.

The prisoner, an alien, said he was an officer on a Dutch dredger lying in the Humber, and the day before the affair he saw two young women in the window of the prosecutor's house. He had wished to see them, and that was why he broke into the house. He had no felonious intentions. He used the flash lamp and skeleton keys on board the dredger.

Griffiths Jones submitted that, improbable as was the prisoner's story, it was the most probable. This house was a small one, and not one which would tempt a burglar. Of course, the man would take off his boots if he wished to gaze upon a woman's sleeping form, and if that were his way of satisfying his sudden love for her.

At all events, he had not awakened the young women. The reason he had run away was because he was afraid of a thrashing. Was not that the likely frame of mind of a man on being discovered in a girl's bedroom by the parent?

The recorder, in summing up, pointed out that he had never heard of a case like that argued by the prisoner in which there were skeleton keys and a flash lamp, and he would leave it to the common sense of the jury to say whether the prisoner was guilty or not guilty. He was sentenced to 12 months' hard labor.

Donati regarded them resentfully.

Acknowledge It.

Northville Has to bow to the Inevitable—Scores of Citizens Prove It.

After reading the public statement of this representative citizen of Northville given below, you must come to this conclusion: A remedy which cured years ago, which has kept the kidneys in good health since, can be relied upon to perform the same work in other cases. Read this:

L. W. Hutton, retired, Main street, Northville, Mich., says: "A year or two ago I was troubled by pains across the small of my back. The doctor said that my suffering was due to disordered kidneys, but the medicine he gave me did not bring relief. At last I decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills and accordingly procured a supply at Murdoch Bros. drug store. I was relieved almost immediately after I commenced their use and soon I was in good health. Doan's Kidney Pills are certainly an excellent remedy for kidney and bladder complaint."

The above statement was given on November 22, 1906 and on March 1, 1909, when Mr. Hutton was interviewed, he said: "I am pleased to confirm my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills. You are at liberty to continue the publication of my statement. I still have the greatest confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

You're Not Dealing With Strangers When You Trade at This Store

An old house in a new location. At the head of this concern are two of Detroit's best known business men—Willard E. Pardridge and Henry Blackwell. They are personally in charge of the business, and have nothing to do with any other store. The various department managers here held similar positions in the store formerly owned by Messrs. Pardridge and Blackwell. Many of the salespeople, as well, are from the old house. So you're not dealing with strangers when you trade at this store.

Same old fair and square methods, too—giving customers the fullest value possible for their money—handling nothing but good goods, and telling the truth about them.

New merchandise throughout the entire store, carefully selected stocks, the best the market affords.

Women's Wear, Specialties, Dry Goods, Curtains, Draperies, Rugs

Come in any time, if only to renew old acquaintance or to inspect the big showings of new Fall styles. Whether you make a purchase or not is a matter for your own decision—but our prices offer a strong inducement to economical buyers.
