TRIAL AT PONTIAC VICTORY FOR MRS. FLOYD LAPHAM.

Brother's Claim that Money Was Loan, Not Made Good.

Attorney C. C. Yerkes of this place, in the circuit court at Pontiac last week, won out in case of John Arthur of Farmington vs. Mrs. Floyd Lapham of this place, he being Mrs. Lapham's attorney.

When John Arthur died four years ago on his fine 200-acre farm two miles northwest of the village of Farmington, at an age several years past eighty, two children survived him, John, Jr. and Jennie, the latter now Mrs. Lapham. The old gentleman had some eccentricities. One of them was a distrust of all banks. At the time of his death he was said to be possessed of between $25,000 and $40,000 worth of property. Most of it went to the son. There has been more or less litigation over the property. The latest being the trial referred to in which John sued to recover $3,500 from his sister which he said he loaned her, but which she said was a gift.

The mother died in 1897. Right away afterward things happened. A cousin of John and Mrs. Lapham, Mrs. James Casey, had been kindly regarded by the old folks. There are some points on which Mrs. Casey's and John, Jr.'s statements do not agree, but the main story is that the day before the mother's funeral John called her into a room upstairs and removing a small panel from the wall, took from the secret closet eight small bags of gold, several packages of currency that bore labels of $1,000, $750 and $500, and a package of government bonds. Mrs. Casey says John then and there told her that it all belonged to the estate and he did not want sister Jennie to know of it. John did not admit that he said this.

Next there was a quarrel between John and the cousin Casey. John had them arrested on a charge of embezzlement. This was in 1907. Then there was a compromise and the criminal suits against the Caseys were dismissed. In the settlement the Caseys were obliged to sacrifice their home.

The next chapter had to do with money. John gave his sister, she says he told her the money was part of the father's estate. The last amount he gave her was $3,500. This was on April 2, 1902. She says that at the suggestion she invested the amount in real estate of the village where the family reside. She says she did not know that he regarded the $3,500 as other than a part of her father's estate which was passing to her until seven years later, when, on May 10, 1909, he sued her for the $3,500. The jury decided in favor of Mrs. Lapham. It was a hard fought case and no end of legal talent was in evidence.

MILFORD LOST

Northville Proved Too Fast for High School Team.

The ball game between Milford high school and the Northville Juniors Friday afternoon at Summit park, was won by Northville by a score of 12 to 4. The batteries were—Milford, Shelters, Arms and Armstrong; Northville, Johnson and Simpson. The Northville team played faster than was expected.

Chester W. Arms was umpire—Milford correspondent in Pontiac Press

Notice to Taxpayers.

The Board of Review for the Village of Northville will meet in Village Hall, on Tuesday and Wednesday, May 17th and 18th, 1910 at 10 o'clock a. m. of each of said days for the purpose of reviewing the assessment roll of said village. Taxpayers deeming themselves aggrieved may be heard at that time.

School Notes.

[By a Pupil.]

The A Fifth pupils are studying about Africa.

Stuart Calf and Lynn Taylor of the Second grade are ill.

Louis Fair of the Sixth grade is absent on account of sickness.

The A class is still ahead in the Fourth grade spelling contest.

Mattie Tyrell of Rochester was an Eighth grade visitor this week.

Henry Holmes drew an Indian scene on the Third grade blackboard.

Margery Dick and Ruth Preston of the Third grade are back in school.

Mary Fuller of the Second grade spelled down the entire grade one day last week.

The Fourth grade potatoes are coming up nicely and will soon be ready to eat.

The Seventh grade has finished the study of the bee and are taking up the ant for nature study.

Mattie Bishop of the Second grade spent the latter part of last week and the fore part of this in Saginaw and Gera.

The Fourth grade pupils are studying the life of Wm. Cullen Bryant and are learning one of his poems, "Robert of Liacola."

The Eighth grade is in hopes of securing the male quartet from Pontiac for Wednesday evening of Commencement week.

Hazel Gladding, Marjop Babbitt and Dorothy Linbright of the Eighth grade have been out of school this week on account of illness.

Harry Morris and Harvey Lanning of the Seventh grade have not missed putting money in the school bank since the beginning of the bank system.

At the time of writing we anticipate a large congregation of applicants for the Eighth grade examinations which will be held here Thursday and Friday.

May 20 the McMillan High plays here. May 28 the boys go to Lansing to play the M. A. C. June 10 they play the return game in Detroit with McMillan and June 15 they play the M. A. C. team here.

If any of the directors of nearby districts wish a teacher trained in the grades we may be able to help them out yet, although nearly the whole normal class has been placed.

If you wish one whom we can recommend the sooner you come the quicker.

Mr. Joanner, who had charge of the Physics class last week, has a reward for his kindness as he has been made superintendent of the Pontiac schools. This might be an inducement for others to visit us and get recommendations for their teaching ability.

Mr. Clapp took charge of the Agriculture period Tuesday of this week and spoke very instructively to the class on the general subject of "Variation of Plants and Animals." The class work Wednesday was a review of the talk. Northville is extremely fortunate to be favored with a man of Mr. Clapp's ability along this line.

The School Savings bank deposit last Friday was smaller than the previous week being $30.15. The total deposit has now reached the $725 mark. The deposit by grades was as follows: Kindergarten $2.39, First $1.11; Second $1.52; Third $3.00; Fourth $1.86; Fifth $2.16; Sixth $3.21; Seventh $3.80; Eighth $2.25. High school $16.05.

Tomorrow, Saturday, afternoon at 2:30 a baseball game between the High school first team and Ann Arbor High team at Athletic Park. The first team is a Junior team with one exception and expect to win a Tiger record. The Ann Arbor team is an especially strong team as their High school numbers from 700 to 800. All interested in baseball should be there.

The Junior play last Friday evening was a huge success, the Opera House being packed. The musical numbers by Misses Arbutus Wolf and Lida Richardson and Male Quartet; also the clogging of Louis Fair were well received, as was also the play, "A Case of Suspension." The Juniors wish to thank those who made the affair so very successful. They anticipate giving the play at Plymouth May 12 so that if any one was unable to be present last Friday night they can still have a chance to witness the production.

We cordially invite any young man who has been out of school sometime just or not graduated who wants to know something of the "new thought" in Agriculture in practical farming to come, phone or write to the office in regard to our new course for next year. Mr. Douglas, the instructor of the whole four courses, has taken special courses in preparation for this work.

Do not forget the Southland Serenaders this (Friday) evening in the Ladies' Library. Children 15c, adults 25c. It would have been impossible to have obtained these Negro minstrels had it not been for a slight accident which deprived them of one date which the Serenaders were lucky enough to secure. The class guarantee them to give absolute satisfaction and it will be the greatest evening of song Northville has seen in many moons. Come!

The Second High school baseball team was, like Pete Jones, "considerable sheek up like" last Saturday afternoon when they ran up against the Wayne team. Although this local team is composed of entirely green material, as that was the first real game for many of them they held the A-A's down for five innings to no runs, but were "up in the air" the last four. Neelands, DesAutel and Dixon pitched while Johnston and Stage did the back stopping act. A feature of the game was the excellent fielding of Shaler.

Brown—Toussaint.

Married at Pontiac on Monday April 25, Mr. Ledger B. Brown of this place and Miss Anna Toussaint of Pontiac. The ceremony was performed by Rev. William F. North.

The bride and groom will reside with the former's father, Frank Brown, of this place.

The best wishes of Northville friends are extended to them.

The Singing Sensation.

The Southland Serenaders will appear in the Ladies' Library this (Friday) evening, May 6, under the auspices of the Senior class of Northville High school. This company needs no introduction to lovers of music here, having sung in our village a number of times in the past, always being well received. It is hoped that everyone who has the interest of the Seniors at heart will see to it that the Library is more than full.

Boost Northville's Census Totals.

The entire village has been covered by the census enumerator, but there are perhaps a few people who have missed through their moving from one locality to another. That no one may be left out, it is desired that all who have not yet been enumerated should notify the enumerator either by Bell phone 127 or by postal card. This is a matter of civic pride and we should all pull together to get our correct population returns. The time is short so get in your notices at once.

Noted Rupture Expert Here

Seelye, Who Fitted the Czar of Russia, Will be at the Cook Hotel, Ann Arbor.

F. H. Seelye, of Chicago and Philadelphia the noted truss expert, will be at the Cook hotel and will remain in Ann Arbor and receive cases this Saturday, Sunday and Monday only, May 7, 8 and 9. Mr. Seelye says: "The Spermatic Shield Truss as now used and approved by the United States government will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly, affording immediate and complete relief, but closes the opening in ten days on the average case, and costing only proportionate to common trusses." This instrument received the only award in England and in Spain, producing results without surgery or harmful injections. Mr. Seelye has documentary evidence from the United States government, Washington, D. C. for your inspection. If any interested call he will be glad to show the truss without charge or fit them if desired. Anyone ruptured should remember the date and take advantage of this unusual opportunity. NEWS OF MICHIGAN.

It is wired from Washington that Senator Burrows may induce President Taft to visit Kalamazoo soon.

Prof. Frederick L. Paxson, Ann Arbor, has been formally notified of his appointment to the chair of American history at the University of Wisconsin.

Plans for a $65,000-Masonic home at Grand Rapids, to replace the structure burned a few months ago, are being made for presentation to the grand lodge. This means that the home will likely remain in Grand Rapids.

Dr. Mason W. Gray, of Pontiac, may be prosecuted by the state board of health for failing to report contagious diseases to the authorities. Many complaints have been received against him, and Pontiac authorities have been notified to act.

Superintendent of State Trespass Munshaw had just returned from the northern part of the state, where he went to aid in the trial of Paul Swinhard, a wealthy lumberman, charged with stealing timber from lands belonging to the state.

Andrew Carnegie has sent a check for $1,000 toward the purchase of a new organ for the Methodist church at Holland, on condition that $1,500 more be raised by the congregation. Already $900 has been pledged, with the remainder in sight.

On July 1 the new $20,000 armory in Ann Arbor for the use of Company I, M. N. G., will be started. Capt. A. C. Pack has been authorized to select the architect and is ready to sign the contract for the building. The city last summer purchased an armory site.

Thinking someone had upset a can of red paint in the granary, Harry, the 16-year-old son of Jacob Grosser, Jr., of Keswick, near Traverse City, found that the stain was his father's blood soaking through the ceiling. The parent had killed himself with a rifle.

Representatives of Emmet county cities and towns met at the Petoskey and decided to renew membership in the Western Michigan Developmental bureau, electing Judge A. L. Deuel, of Harbor Springs, and M. M. Burnham to represent the county in the association.

The Northern Turpentine Co., which has been organized to manufacture and sell turpentine, from the stumps of Norway pine in the upper peninsula, will build its main refinery and first distillation plant at Koss, Menominee county, at a cost of $250,000.

Mrs. Loretta P. J. of Saginaw, celebrated her 85th birthday and there were present five generations—three great-grandchildren, 15 great-grandchildren, 35 grandchildren and two living daughters and one son comprise the family. She has been a resident of Saginaw 60 years.

Funeral services for Maj. E. B. Taylor, who died at the Soldiers home at Grand Rapids where he had been admiral of the institution for twenty years, were held in Port Huron under the auspices of William Sanford post G. A. R. No. 104, at Lakeside cemetery. The deceased was at one time clerk of the city.

Sending the name of Miss Little Schwartz, of La Crosse, Wis., in a list of graduates of a Chicago training school for mission workers, Rev. L. Schwartz, believing she was a long lost relative, wrote her, with the result that she will add a new member to his flock at Kalamazoo.

The first woman officer in the history of Cadillac was appointed by Mayor Guffney. She is Mrs. Esther Higgins who became a member of the board of education. Mrs. Higgins is considered the wealthiest woman in Cadillac and is well known for her philanthropies. Last year she gave the city $69,000 for a new hospital.

According to State Highway Commissioner Ely, who has just returned from a visit to the east shore counties of the state, where considerable road work is now being done, the coming of Oceanic Muskegon and Mason will build more stone roads this year than any three adjoining counties in the state of Michigan. Each county will build a number of miles of stone roads, with Muskegon doing the largest amount.

State Oil Inspector Neal reports the inspection by his department of 6,763,400 gallons of kerosene oil for the quarter ending March 31. Total fees collected, $13,591.33; total fees and expenses paid deputy inspectors, $7,453.66; state inspectors salary and expenses, $650.04, leaving a net balance to turn into the state treasury of $5,487.63. This is nearly a thousand dollars more than for the same period last year and the inspection is half a million gallons greater.

When State Land Commissioner Russell placed on sale between 300 and 1,000 acres of land in Wexford county at Cadillac the other day for back taxes he was unable to get a bid. It is said that the land is not suitable for agricultural purposes. The Commonwealth Power Co. put in a claim to the land, contending that they secured it by right of purchase at $3 per acre. It has since been learned, however, that when the company contracted for the land they failed to look up the tax title and that for several years the tax remained unpaid, therefore reverting to the state under the delinquent tax act. The company values the land at $51 an acre. It is said that the company will require at least 40 acres of this parcel to complete the proposed power-merger.

The Newaygo Chair company, which recently acquired the extensive property known as the former Converse Manufacturing company buildings and Pennoyer creek water power, is engaged in making $100,000 improvements. This means new boiler rooms, additional machinery, new water wheel, etc., cement basements, flume and reservoir and concrete walls will all be one piece of masonry.

Because the Northern Navigation Co. insisted on retaining in its employ 30 Italian laborers, 175 American freight handlers of Port Edward, Ont., declared a strike in that department.

Twelve counties in Michigan have farwelded May 1 to the licensed saloon for at least two years. At the same time 292 saloons and six breweries went out of business for the same length of time.

Contrary to expectations, the closing day was marked by little disturbance in the counties affected. Liquor dealers did a heavy business during the week with those anxious to lay in supplies of beer and booze so heavy, in fact, that many saloons closed Friday for the reason that they had nothing left to sell. Jugs will be scarce article for a time in most of the cities where the saloons went out of business, having been bought in large numbers to hold the aforesaid supplies of booze in household cellars.

The counties which became dry last night, with the number of saloons in each, are as follows: Antrim, 18; Arenac, 11; Cass, 18; Gladwin, 9; Ingham, 54; Lapeer, 23; Lenawee, 61; Ogemaw, 10; Osceola, 1; Otsego, 14; Presque Isle, 31; Shiawassee, 42.

Wholesale Liquor House Barred.
 The Holly Council, elected for the express purpose of keeping the town "dry" if Oakland county should go "wet"—which it did—has again frustrated the liquor interests.

When a license for a saloon was denied the applicant went to the supervisor obtaining permission to open a saloon just outside the corporation limits. It has done nothing to start his saloon and it is not believed he will do so at all. But he came forward with a proposition to establish a wholesale house in town. The council was advised by the attorney general that they could not refuse a license for such a place, but that they might exact bonds up to $6,000. This the council, at a special meeting, proceeded to do. The tax demands two local sureties, and there is but one who can qualify.

Fallout Paroled Men.

According to figures issued by the pardon board of the state an increase of 111 applicants for parole for the year 1909 were received over the previous year 1908. The total number for 1908 was 797, while for the year 1909 the number had reached a total of 908. However, it is rather startling that of 908 applicants for parole in 1909, 450 of this number were granted what they asked for, but 19 of them were sent back to prison for violating the parole issued to them.

It is interesting to note how the number of paroles granted for 1909 was a decrease over that of 1908, while the number of applications, number paroled and number of violations of parole all showed an increase. These figures include the paroles at Detroit, Jackson, Marquette and Holland.

A large number of the violators, it is said, it appears, are returned to prison, not because they have violated the parole, but because they have the influence of honor, committee or politicians that they might not have done under other conditions.

Starr J. Murphy Declares Standard Oil President Has Not Abandoned Foundation Plans

A press dispatch from Washington announced that John D. Rockefeller had abandoned the idea of securing a national charter or his proposed foundation. Starr J. Murphy, personal counsel for Mr. Rockefeller, and speaking for the Standard Oil president said the statement was entirely without foundation. Mr. Murphy said that Mr. Rockefeller had nothing to do with the "economic and General Foundation," for which a charter is being sought from the New York legislature for "an aged man of wealth," said to have $2,500,000 to spend on charity.

Each county will build a number of miles of stone roads, with Muskegon doing the largest amount.

State Oil Inspector Neal reports the inspection by his department of 6,763,400 gallons of kerosene oil for the quarter ending March 31. Total fees collected, $13,591.33; total fees and expenses paid deputy inspectors, $7,453.66; state inspectors salary and expenses, $650.04, leaving a net balance to turn into the state treasury of $5,487.63. This is nearly a thousand dollars more than for the same period last year and the inspection is half a million gallons greater.

When State Land Commissioner Russell placed on sale between 300 and 1,000 acres of land in Wexford county at Cadillac the other day for back taxes he was unable to get a bid. It is said that the land is not suitable for agricultural purposes. The Commonwealth Power Co. put in a claim to the land, contending that they secured it by right of purchase at $3 per acre. It has since been learned, however, that when the company contracted for the land they failed to look up the tax title and that for several years the tax remained unpaid, therefore reverting to the state under the delinquent tax act. The company values the land at $51 an acre. It is said that the company will require at least 40 acres of this parcel to complete the proposed power-merger.

The Newaygo Chair company, which recently acquired the extensive property known as the former Converse Manufacturing company buildings and Pennoyer creek water power, is engaged in making $100,000 improvements. This means new boiler rooms, additional machinery, new water wheel, etc., cement basements, flume and reservoir and concrete walls will all be one piece of masonry.

Because the Northern Navigation Co. insisted on retaining in its employ 30 Italian laborers, 175 American freight handlers of Port Edward, Ont., declared a strike in that department.

THE TWO EXTREMES.

Two friends meeting after an absence of some years, during which time the one had increased considerably in bulk and the other still resembled only the "elfin of man."

Rivers, who was writing an article on the cost of living, found himself temporarily at a loss.

"Brooks," he said, "I want to use that Scriptural phrase: 'from Dan to Bethleub'—what's the rest of it?"

"Bethleub?" suggested Brooks.

"Thanks," said Rivers resuming his writing. "I had it at my tongue's end, but I couldn't quite think of it."

Clear Enough.

"The old gentleman in the sixth seat to our right has a fine head of hair for a man of his age."

"Yes; but I dare say such hair is within the reach of nearly every man who wants it."

"Oh, come now!"

"It's a fact. I don't suppose that old gentleman's hair cost more than $1.50, if that much."

LIGHT DINNER.

Cornelius V. Collins, the brilliant ethnologist and superintendent of New York state prisons, narrated at a dinner in Troy some reminiscences of his interesting work.

"A clever criminal of glaucous proclivities," he said, "once coughed a complaint in rather neat terms.

"My inspector, entering the man's cell one day, found it very hot and stuffy.

"Why have you got your ventilator closed?" he asked.

"The burly and glaucous prisoner answered plaintively:

"Well, inspector, yer honor, the first time I had the ventilator open a waf' few in, you see, and I landed off my dinner while my back was turned."

SOME LITTLE SONGS.

A little song of waiting,
 A little song of bliss
 A little song of happiness
 We can't afford to miss

A little song of work to do,
 A little song of duty,
 A little song of silver rain
 All tumbled upon the lawn

A little song of singing birds,
 A little song of love,
 A little song of summer days
 And flowers beneath the trees

A little song of better luck,
 A song without a tear,
 The sweetest kind of little song
 A little song of cheer!

Browning—Are you interested in the Goldbrick Mining company?
 Greening—Yes, indeed. I got in on the ground floor.

Browning—You're lucky. You won't have so far to fall.

Greening—What do you mean?
 Browning—The bottom dropped out this morning.

Uncertain joys.

"Yes," said the great man, "there was a time when I longed to be famous but that is a thing of the past."

"Why has fame lost its attractions for you?" we asked.

"This morning," answered the g. m., "I smoked a cigar that was named after me."

SYNOPSIS.

Miss Patricia Holbrook and Miss Helen Holbrook, her niece, were entrusted to the care of Laurice Donovan, a widow, summering near Port Annandale. Miss Patricia confided to Donovan that she feared her brother Henry, who, trained by a bank failure, had conspired with her. Donovan discovered and captured an intruder, who proved to be E. Gerald Kelly, sworn for the hand of Helen. Donovan saw Miss Holbrook and Helen meet on friendly terms. Donovan fought an Italian assassin. He met the man he supposed to be Holbrook, but who said he was Harridge, a canoe-maker. Miss Pat announced her intention of fighting Henry Holbrook and not seeking another hiding place. Donovan met Helen in the garden at night. Duplicitous Helen was confessed by the young lady to a night's disguise as a nun. Helen stole from the house. She met Regina Gillespie, who told her his love. Gillespie was confronted by Donovan. At the town postoffice Helen, unless except by Donovan, slipped a draft for her father into the hand of the Italian sailor. A young lady resembling Miss Helen Holbrook was observed alone in the canoe. Helen was thought to have been at home. Gillespie admitted giving Helen $20.00 for her father, who had been left for dead. Miss Helen and Donovan met in the night. She told him Gillespie was nothing to her. He confessed his love for her. Donovan found Gillespie and Helen bound in a cabin, inhabited by the villainous Italian and Holbrook. He released them. Both Gillespie and Donovan admitted their love for Helen. Gillespie told Rosalind a voice, appealed to Donovan for help. She told him to go to the canoe-maker's home and see that no injury fell him. He went to Red Gate. At the canoe-maker's home, Donovan found the brothers Arthur and Henry Holbrook, who had fought each other in consultation. Rosalind appeared. Arthur averted a murder. Donovan returned, met Gillespie alone in the dead of night. The Holbrook brothers and Helen Holbrook, the sailor, and Miss Helen engaged in an argument. It was settled and they departed. They found the real Rosalind, who by night he had supposed to be Miss Helen Holbrook. She revealed the plot. Her father, Arthur Holbrook, was the canoe-maker, while Helen's father was Henry Holbrook, the erring brother. The cousins, Helen and Rosalind, were as much alike as twins. True Helen's supposed duplicity was explained. Helen visited Donovan, asking his assistance in bringing Miss Patricia Holbrook and Henry Holbrook together for a settlement of their money affairs, which had kept them apart for many years. Donovan refused to aid. He met Gillespie and planned a coup. By night Gillespie gave a number of forged notes to Rosalind, who he supposed was Helen, on which to purchase the settlement. Donovan cleared the way for a settlement of the Holbrook troubles. Gillespie had possessed the only evidence of the Holbrook's crime. The Italian is recurrently hidden. Helen suddenly disappeared. Donovan prepared to substitute Rosalind for her. For a time the Russian, however, Arthur Holbrook had agreed to send up a rocket. In darkness, suddenly, he saw the light of a fire. He and Gillespie rushed to Arthur Holbrook's cabin. Henry had struck his brother down. Arthur was retained.

"We Ought to Have Brought Henry Here To-Night."

"I think," she said, turning toward us all, with her sweet dignity, her brave air, that touched me as at first, and always, beyond any words of mine to describe, but strong and beautiful and sweet and thrilling through me, new, like bugles blown at dawn; "I think that we do well, Arthur, to give Henry his money."

And now it was Arthur's voice that rose in the shop, and it seemed that he spoke of his brother as of one who was afar off. We listened with painful inattention to this man who had suffered much and given much, and who still in his simple heart, asked no price for what he had done.

"He was strong, and I was weak; and I did for him, what I could, and what I gave I gave freely, for it is not often in this world that the weak may help the strong. He had the gifts, Pat, that I had not, and tramps of Ireland, and he had ambitions that in my weakness I was not capable of; so I had not much to give. But what I had, Pat, I gave to him, I went to Gillespie and confessed; I took the blame; and I came here and worked with my hands—with my hands—!" And he extended them as though the proof were asked, and kept repeating, between his sobs: "With my hands."

CHAPTER XXV.

Daybreak.

At midnight Gillespie and I discussed the day's affairs on the terrace at Glenarm. There were long pauses in our talk. Such things as we had seen and heard that night, in the canoe-maker's shop on the little creek, were beyond our poor range of words. And in the silences my own reflections were not wholly happy. If Miss Pat and Rosalind had not followed me to the canoe-maker's I might have spared Helen; but looking back, I would not change it now if I could. Helen had returned to St. Agatha's with her aunt, who would have it so; and we had parted at the school door, Miss Pat and Helen, Gillespie and I, with restraint heavy upon us all. Miss Pat had, it seemed, summoned her lawyer from New York several days before, to discuss the final settlement of her father's estate; and he was expected the next morning. I had asked them all to Glenarm for breakfast; and Arthur Holbrook and Rosalind, and Henry, who had broken down at the end, had agreed to come.

As we talked on, Gillespie and I, there under the stars, he disclosed, all unconsciously, new and surprising traits, and I felt my heart warming to him.

"He's a good deal of a man, that Arthur Holbrook," he remarked after a long pause. "He's beyond me. The man who runs the enemy's lines to bring relief to the garrison, or the leader of a forlorn hope, is lame after this. I suppose the world would call him a fool."

"Undoubtedly," I answered. "But he didn't do it for the world; he did it for himself. We can't applaud a thing like that in the usual phrases."

"No," Gillespie added; "only get down on our knees and bow our heads in the dust before it."

He rose and paced the long terrace. In his boat-shoes and white flannels he gilded noiselessly back and forth, like a ghost in the star dust. He paused at the western balustrade and looked off at St. Agatha's. Then he passed me and paused again gazing lakeward through the wood as though turning from Helen to Rosalind, and I knew that it was with her, far over the water, in the little cottage at Red Gate, that his thoughts lingered. But when he came and stood beside me and rested his hand on my shoulder I knew that he wished to speak of Helen and I took his hand, and spoke to him to make it easier.

"Well, old man!"

"I was thinking of Helen," he said. "So was I, Buttons."

"They are different, the two. They are very different."

"They are as like as God ever made two people, and yet they are different."

"I think you understand Helen. I never did," he declared, mournfully.

"You don't have to," I replied; and laughed and rose and stood behind him. "And now there's something I want to speak to you about to-night. Helen borrowed some money of you a little while ago to meet one of her father's demands. I expect a draft for that money by the morning mail, and I want you to accept it with my thanks, and hers. And the incident shall pass as though it had never been."

About one o'clock the wind freshened and the trees swung out their arms, like runners rushing before it; and from the west marched a storm with banners of lightning. It was a splendid spectacle, and we went indoors only when the rain began to wash across the terrace. We still watched it from our windows after we went upstairs, the lightning now blazing out blindingly, like sheets of flame from a furnace door, and again cracking about the house like a fiery whip.

"We ought to have brought Henry here to-night," remarked Gillespie. "He's alone over there on the island with that dog and they're likely celebrating by getting drunk."

"The lightning's getting on your nerves; go to bed," I called back.

The storm left peace behind and I was abroad early, eager to have the first shock of the morning's meetings over. Gillespie greeted me cheerily and I told him to follow when he was ready. I went out and paced the walk between the house and St. Agatha's, and as I peered through the iron gate I saw Miss Pat come out of the house and turn into the garden. I came upon her walking slowly with her hands clasped behind her. She spoke first, as though to avoid any expression of sympathy, putting out her hand.

Filmy face at the wrists gave to her hands a quaint touch akin to that imparted by the cap on her white head. I was struck afresh by the background that seemed always to be sketched in for her, and just now, beyond the bright garden, it was a candle-lighted garret, with trunks of old letters tied in dim ribbons, and lavender-scented chests of Valenciennes and silks in forgotten patterns.

"I am well, quite well, Larry!"

"I am glad! I wished to be sure!"

"Do not trouble about me. I am glad of everything that has happened—glad and relieved. And I am grateful to you."

"I have served you ill enough. I stumbled in the dark much of the time. I wanted to spare you, Miss Pat."

"I know that, and you tried to save Helen. She was blind and misguided. She had believed in her father and the last blow crushed her. Everything looks dark to her. She refuses to come over this morning; she thinks she can not face her uncle, her cousin or you again."

"But she must come," I said. "It will be easier to-day than at any later time. There's Gillespie, calling me now. He's going across the lake to meet Arthur and Rosalind. I shall take the launch over to the island to bring Henry. We should all be back at Glenarm in an hour. Please tell Helen that, we must have her, that no one should stay away."

Miss Pat looked at me oddly, and her fingers touched a stalk of holly-hock beside her as her eyes rested on mine.

"The Reef trust doesn't worry me any."

"What then is your worry?"

"Not just that way, Larry,"—and she continued to gaze at me with a sweet distress in her eyes; then, "Rosalind is very different," she added.

"I have observed it! The ways in which they are utterly unlike are remarkable; but I mustn't keep Gillespie waiting Good-by for a little while!" And some foreboding told me that sorrow had not yet done with her.

Gillespie shouted impatiently as I ran toward him at the boathouse.

"It's the Siletto," he called, pointing to where the sloop lay, midway of the lake. "She's in a bad way."

"The storm blew her out," I surmised, but the night of the boat, listening badly, as though waterlogged, struck me ominously.

"We'd better pick her up," he said; and he was already dropping one of the canoes into the water. We paddled swiftly toward the sloop. The lake was still fretful from the storm's lashing, but the sky was without fleck of raw. The call of the little steamers was crossing from the village, her whistle echoing and reaching round the lake.

"The sloop's about done for," said Gillespie over his shoulder, and we drove our blades deeper. The Siletto was floating stern-on and rolling loggily, but retaining still, I thought, something of the sinister air that she had worn on her strange liness through those summer days.

"She went to bed all right, see, her sails are furled snug and everything's in shape. The storm drove her over here," said Gillespie. "She's struck something, or somebody's smashed her."

It seemed impossible that the storm unassisted had blown her from Battle Orchard across Lake Annandale, but we were now close upon her and seeking for means of getting aboard.

"She's a bit sloppy," observed Gillespie, as he swung round and caught hold. The water gurgled drunkenly in the cuddy, and a broken lantern rattled on the deck. I held fast as he climbed over, sending me off a little as he jumped aboard, and I was working back again with the paddle when he cried out in alarm!

As I came alongside he came back to help me, and when he bent over to catch the painter I saw that his face was white.

"We might have known it," he said. "It's the last and worst that could happen."

Face down across the cuddy lay the body of Henry Holbrook. His water-soaked clothing was torn as though in a fierce struggle. A knife thrust in the side told the story; he had crawled to the cuddy roof to get away from the water and had died there.

"It was the Italian," said Gillespie. "They must have had a row last night after we left them, and it came to this. He chopped a hole in the Siletto to and set her adrift to sink."

I looked about for the steamer which was backing away from the pier at Port Annandale, and signaled her with my handkerchief. And when I faced Gillespie again he pointed silently toward the lower lake where a canoe rode the bright water.

Rosalind and her father were on their way from Red Gate to Glenarm. Two blades dashed in the sun as the canoe came toward us. Gillespie's lips quivered and he tried to speak as he pointed to them; and then we both turned silently toward St. Agatha's, where the chapel tower rose above the green wood.

"Stay and do what is to be done," I said. "I will find Helen and tell her."

THE END.

CANADA FORGING AHEAD

Thomas C. Shotwell, one of the greatest market reporters in America, writes from New York, under date of March 20th, and says:

"The Tariff tangle with Canada which President Taft has taken in hand is of importance chiefly because of the multitude of American farmers that are crossing into the Canadian northwest. Most conservative estimates of their number place it at 150,000 for 1910. Some say as many as 250,000 will cross. These are all expert farmers and their places in the United States are being filled by untrained men from Europe, and from the cities. Canada is gaining rapidly in agricultural importance and within a few years the United States will have to call on the Dominion for wheat. Production of wheat in the United States is not keeping pace with the population. A tariff war would complicate the problem of getting food. Even now Canadian farmers are getting higher prices for their cattle on the hoof and Canadian housewives are paying less for meat in the butcher shops than farmers and housewives are receiving and paying in the United States. The tariff on cattle and wheat must be removed as between the two countries before long."

A Sad Case.

"I can't remember."

WOMAN'S GENTLE NATURE CALLS FOR GENTLE TREATMENT

Delicately formed and gently reared, women will find, in all the seasons of their lives, as maidens, wives or mothers, that the one simple, wholesome remedy which acts gently and pleasantly and naturally, and which may be used with truly beneficial effects, under any conditions, when the system needs a laxative, is—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna. It is well known to be a simple combination of the laxative and carminative principles of plants with pleasant aromatic liquids, which are agreeable and refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system when its gentle cleansing is desired.

Only those who buy the genuine Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna can hope to get its beneficial effects, and as a guarantee of the excellence of the remedy, the full name of the company—California Fig Syrup Co.—is printed on the front of every package, and without it any preparation offered as Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is fraudulent and should be declined. To those who know the quality of this excellent laxative, the offer of any substitute, when Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is called for, is always resented by a transfer of patronage to some first-class drug establishment, where they do not recommend, nor sell false brands, nor imitation remedies. Allan Armstrong Sentenced.

On Monday at Jackson Allan Armstrong, ex-prison warden, was sentenced to pay a fine of $5,000 and to serve one year in the Detroit House of Correction.

There is something about the downfall of Allan Armstrong that elicits sympathy. Pitiable spectacle that he is, taking his way to prison at a time when other men are thinking of retirement with honor from the busy world, he was still more pitiable that day when in the possession of position, reputation, friends and family he cast all these behind him for a few paper bills.

Armstrong's punishment is just, no matter how inexcusably bound up with enemies' cunning and politicians' bitterness was his capture and prosecution. He not only betrayed the office and trust imposed upon him but also the trust and honor of his friends. He has now sacrificed not only his position in society, his good name, his family, his friends, but also his money. His downfall ought to be a warning to others that honesty is not only the best policy but it is the only policy.

Detroit's Pank Roads.

While Detroit is bragging about its great automobile industries it ought to brag about being the leading city of the world for bad roads leading from its limits in all directions. And you are not obliged to go outside the city limits to get in a mule of the worst roads at all times of the year in the state of Michigan. From the boulevard west to the city limits on Grand River there is a mile of road that would be a disgrace to a huckleberry swamp lane. After the fall of a few drops of rain every road leading out of Detroit for about ten miles is almost impassable. One can find no roads any time from Lansing to Redford. Think of it! Seventy five miles of nice roads and then ten miles of impassable mud before reaching the greatest automobile city on the western continent. No greater monument could be left to the equity by some of Detroit's wealth than a few miles of good roads leading out of that city.

(By the Pastor.)

The theme for Sunday morning is "A Revival Fire and How It is Kindled."

The B. Y. P. U. topic for Sunday evening is "The Christian Graces." Leader, Maud Harmon.

The Sunday evening topic "What is your excuse?" A large chorus choir to furnish the music.

The special committee of five of the Baptist ladies made upwards of $25 last month for their society.

The Sunday school has extended the time of the Blue and Red contests to make good for the bad weather in the past.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary society of the Wayne association will be held with the Salem church May 12 morning and afternoon. Notice change in train schedule.

We omitted to mention last week that there will be a special price of twenty five cents for six months subscription to "The Michigan Farmer" provided the subscription is given to one of the boys or girls who are competing for the carnival.

Special evangelical meetings. The public in general is most cordially invited to attend the religious services next week in the Baptist church beginning Monday evening, May 9, at 7:30. Rev. Charles E. Sawyer of Birmingham, Mich., will have charge. Mr. Sawyer will use his stereopticon at the opening of each meeting. The pastors and members of different churches are urged to be present and do good and get good out of the meetings.

Methodist Church Notes.

(By the Pastor.)

The Ladies' Aid will meet with Mrs. Fuller next Tuesday afternoon.

All services will be held at the usual hours Sunday. The pastor will preach morning and evening.

The Epworth League meeting Sunday evening will be led by Gladys Cobb. Young people especially invited.

The Sunday evening sermons on Bible tragedies are interesting a large number of the people. The series will be continued next Sunday evening.

Plans are being talked over for an appropriate celebration of the twenty-first anniversary of the Epworth League organization. The date will be May 16.

An interesting and well attended meeting of the Epworth League was held in the church Monday evening. The business side of the League work received attention, and is evidently in a prosperous condition.

At the Sunday morning service the pastor will give the first of a number of five minute talks which will precede the sermon, and which will deal with what has been gained and lost in the shifting customs in church and community life. These talks will be pointed and practical. You are invited to hear them.

The Hagthen by Gray orchestra last night, was a success. Everyone had a good time. Another will be given May 20th 10c cents per couple. Ladies free.

Cured to Stay Cured

How a Northville Citizen Found Complete Freedom from Kidney Troubles.

If you suffer from backache—From urinary disorders—From any disease of the kidneys, Doan's Kidney Pills make lasting cures. Northville people testify. Henry Priest, Mill street, Northville, Mich., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills with gratifying results and have great confidence in their curative powers. Several years ago I was annoyed by a severe backache which made it hard for me to work. Doan's Kidney Pills had previously been used in my family with great benefit and deciding to try them, I procured a supply at Murdock Bros. Drug Store. Soon after finishing their use, my backache disappeared and now I am free from the trouble." (Statement given November 26, 1906.) On March 1, 1909, Mr. Priest was interviewed and he said: "I am pleased to confirm the statement I gave for publication three years ago recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. Since this remedy cured me I have had no need of a kidney medicine." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

The City in Brief.

Mrs. H. C. Pepper is a little better. Mrs. C. A. Ponsford has been quite ill the past week.

Rain, rain, go away and come round some other day.

A new enclosed and covered grandstand is talked of for Athletic Park.

There will be a meeting of Union Chapter, No. 55, R. A. M., Wednesday evening, May 11.

Jack Frost got in his work Wednesday night. Water left out of doors did the freezing act in regular fall style.

The tickets on the Mrs. Borton sofa pillow will be drawn at White's Dry Goods store Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Dr. Lee S. McClester, of Detroit, will preach in the Universalist church at Farmington next Sunday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Evans and little daughter, who have been living in Detroit the past few months, have returned to Northville.

Last week Mrs. James Chase shipped a barrel of her choice dahlias and gladiolus bulbs to a cousin, H. A. Johns, of Sioux City, Iowa.

Mrs. Paulina Vradenburg was called to Jackson by the death of her aunt instead of her sister, as was stated in last week's Record.

May will not have to make much of an effort to be a better girl than her brother April. And even at that May gets in with a bad start off.

Edmond Yerkes was very ill with grip last week but fully recovered in time to celebrate his third birthday anniversary on Monday of this week.

A letter was received here this week announcing the safe arrival of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Yerkes at Grand Junction, Colo., the latter part of last week.

The entertainment given by the Polmatier Sisters in the Opera House Tuesday evening was one of the best entertainments ever given in this city. There was a large attendance.

The friends and neighbors of Fred Van Valkenburg tendered him a surprise party last Friday night. Dancing and pedro were the amusements of the evening. All enjoyed a pleasant time.

The Northville K. P.'s are to be congratulated on the success of their first attempt in bringing to the village an entertainment of such exceptional merit as that given in the Opera House Tuesday evening by the Polmatier Sisters.

The Junior play in the Opera House last week Friday night was decidedly pleasing and hugely enjoyed by the large audience present. The "actors" and "actresses" handled their parts with more than ordinary skill and their efforts were loudly applauded.

The Northville school was one of the first in the state to adopt the Savings Bank idea and Saturday's report shows the total deposits to date is $725. That is certainly a creditable showing for a village school in a small town the first year.

By the close of the school the pupils hope to push the total up to $1,000.

George Clark has been appointed superintendent of Rural Hill cemetery in place of L. W. Simmons, who thought he could no longer devote the time necessary to the work.

Under Mr. Simmons' supervision the past few years, the cemetery has been greatly improved in appearance and his personal work has had much to do to it.

Mrs. J. E. Morse has received notice that she is the lucky winner of second prize in the "Short Story" contest inaugurated by the Leader Iron Works, manufacturers of hydraulic and pneumatic water systems for suburban and village homes. A check for amount of prize accompanied the notice.

Last Saturday afternoon about thirty members of the Northville Woman's club met at the home of Mrs. N. I. Calf, and in honor of Arbor Day participated in a short program, appropriate to the occasion and planted a fine young maple tree in the village park.

The club has now two trees in our pretty little park, the first being a beautiful elm placed there eight years ago. It is proposed that the club shall make a "tree planting" an annual observance hereafter in furtherance of the forestry and civic improvement interests that are so prominent a feature of the work of women's clubs throughout America.

Don't forget the Southland Serenaders at the library tonight.

Letters for the following persons are advertised at the postoffice this week:

Jan. H. Bolden, Peter Bronner, Fred F. Barnes

H. C. Pepper is taking baths at Mt. Clemens for rheumatism. The May Weather bureau is doing much better work than its predecessor, April.

The Sir Knights of Northville Commandery, No. 39, K. T., will meet at the Asylum Sunday, May 8, at 9:30, a. m. to attend ascension services.

The attorney general for the state of Kansas rules that women may wear men's trousers "if they are at the head of the house." As if any woman is not the head of the house.

A meeting was held in the Presbyterian church last Thursday night for the purpose of deciding on a new edifice. A unanimous vote was taken in favor of rebuilding and enlarging the church and rebuilding and enlarging the organ. The building committee was authorized to commence work at once.

Mr. and Mrs. John Negus now occupy the rooms recently vacated by Mrs. Smith at the home of Mrs. Negus' daughter, Mrs. W. B. Predmore. Mrs. Negus has been very ill for several weeks and is still in a critical condition. Mrs. Smith, who has also been very ill, has gone to live with her nephew's family at Plymouth.

Owing to the cold weather of the past few weeks the workmen have not been able to finish the interior of the Salem Lutheran church and the services which were announced for next Sunday, May 8, has been postponed until further notice.

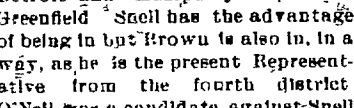

There will be services in the Lutheran church in this village next Sunday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock sun time.

This first senatorial district is likely to see lively times at the primaries next September. Senator Larry Shell of Highland Park is candidate for re-election and Charles O'Neil of Detroit and Humphrey Brown of Greenfield Snell has the advantage of being in but Brown is also in a way, as he is the present Representative from the fourth district.

O'Neil was a candidate against Snell two years ago but lost out in the primaries.

State Oil Inspector Neal reports the inspection by his department 6,763,406 gallons of kerosene oil for the quarter ending March 31. Total fees collected $13,391.33. Total fees and expenses paid deputy inspectors $7,458.66, state inspector's salary and expenses $139.94, leaving a net balance to turn into the state treasury of $5,492.61. This is nearly a thousand dollars more than for the same period last year and the inspection is nearly half a million gallons greater.

Rev. Chas. E. Sawyer

The Evangelist who will conduct special services in the Baptist church beginning Monday night.

Some time ago J. C. Hartz of Detroit commenced proceedings against the township board and highway commissioner of Plymouth to set aside the condemnation for highway purposes, a strip of land now occupied by the electric line in their crossing of the Phoenix pond.

Hartz claimed the property was his by right of purchase from Henry Holecomb, and wanted the D. C. R. to pay a good big price for it. The D. C. R. said $25.00 or tear up the tracks, and then the highway commissioner proceeded to take it over as a highway. Judge Murfin threw the case out of court Monday on constitutional grounds and Hartz will have to go to the supreme court if he gets any further with the case.

Attorney C. C. Yerkes of this place represented the township of Plymouth and the D. C. R. in the case.

NOVI NEWS.

Mrs. Caleb Eix spent Wednesday in Detroit. Mrs. Louisa Hammond is slightly better.

Mrs. Booth returned from Romeo last Saturday. Miss Lulu Dandison spent part of this week at home.

Seymour Brown and family will move to Pontiac this week. Mrs. Gardner of Wayne visited Mrs. Verduyn part of this week.

Rev. J. S. Boyden spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Flint.

Mrs. James Munro and daughter Vis are visiting relatives in Detroit this week.

Joe Pennell of Davidsburg visited his grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sanford, part of last week.

Mrs. Ed. Burt and Mrs. Sara Taylor were at Wixom Saturday and helped to organize a W. C. T. U.

The semi-annual business meeting of the B. Y. E. U. will be held Friday night with Mr. and Mrs. Burton Munro.

Mrs. Lovisa Bathrick received a paper from Akron, Ohio, last week containing the news that her son, E. R. Bathrick is a candidate for member of Congress. A fine picture is given of Mr. Bathrick in the paper.

The What I Can society met Saturday with Vera Clark at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Delos Leavenworth. Election of officers resulted as follows: Pres. Miss M. Munro, vice pres. Miss Effie Risner, sec. Miss Genevieve Durfee, treas. Margie Putnam. Besides the regular sewing on the quilt the girls made quite a number of May baskets with which they decorated the churches on Sunday.

Remember the Cheerful Workers twenty-fifth anniversary to be observed in the Baptist church Tuesday afternoon and evening, May 10. The girls are putting forth every effort to make this meeting a success in every way and they extend a hearty invitation to all who can to be present. They feel quite proud of the fact that theirs is the oldest society of young women and girls in the state. Come and enjoy this anniversary with them. Supper in parlors of church.

Everwear are more than merely guaranteed. Everwear is the final word in hosiery for both men and women. It represents absolute perfection—the triumphant combination of durability, economy, comfort and elegance in hosiery. Every thread of material used in the manufacture of Everwear is the best obtainable—the most expensive of selected raw material. They are made to last, they live up to the letter of our written guarantee that every pair will resist the strain of six months wear. If they don't serve you for six months without a break, hole, rip, or run, you get new hose free. They do not crack or grow damp. They are light in weight, soft, lustrous, and in reality, as well as appearance, the equal of other hose at double the price.

Allan Armstrong Sentenced. On Monday at Jackson Allan Armstrong, ex-prison warden, was sentenced to pay a fine of $5,000 and to serve one year in the Detroit House of Correction.

There is something about the downfall of Allan Armstrong that stirs sympathy. Fitful spectacle that he is, taking his way to prison at a time when other men are thinking of retirement with honor from the busy world, he was still more pitiable that day when in the possession of position, reputation, friends and family he cast all these behind him for a few paper bills. That was a moment more humiliating to him than any stigma a court could fasten on him. It isn't that he is going to prison, it is that in the shadows of a hotel room he took farewell of peace and honor, and chose instead an insignificant sum of money.

Armstrong's punishment is just, no matter how inextricably bound up with enemies cunning and partisans' bitterness was his capture and prosecution. He not only betrayed the office and trust imposed upon him but also the trust and honor of his friends. He has now sacrificed not only his position in society, his good name, his family, his friends, but also his money. His downfall ought to be a warning to others that honesty is not only the best policy but it is the only policy.

Detroit's Funk Roads.

While Detroit is bragging about its great automobile industries it ought to brag about being the leading city of the world for bad roads leading from its limits in all directions. And you are not obliged to go outside the city limits to get in a mile of the worst roads at all times of the year to the state of Michigan. From the boulevard west to the city limits on Grand River there is a mile of roads that would be a disgrace to a back-country swamp lane. After the fall of a few drops of rain every road leading out of Detroit for about ten miles is almost impassable. One can find no roads any time from Lansing to Bedford. Think of it! Seventy-five miles of nice roads and then ten miles of impassable dirt before reaching the greatest automobile city on the western continent. No greater monument could be left to the country by some of Detroit's wealth than a few miles of good roads leading out of that city.

Cured to Stay Cured

How a Northville Citizen Found Complete Freedom from Kidney Troubles.

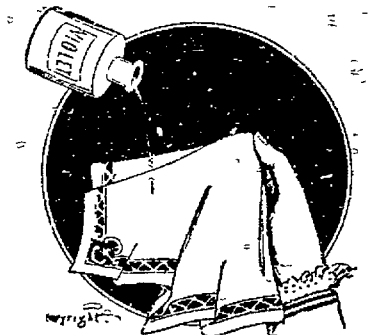

If you suffer from backache—From urinary disorders—From any disease of the kidneys, Be cured to stay cured.

Doan's Kidney Pills make lasting cures. Northville people testify. Here's one case of it: Henry Priest, Mill street, Northville, Mich., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills with gratifying results and have regained confidence in their curative powers. Several years ago I was annoyed by a severe backache, which made it hard for me to work. Doan's Kidney Pills had previously been used in my family with great benefit and deciding to try them, I procured a supply at Murdock Bros. Drug Store. Soon after finishing their use, my backache disappeared and now I am free from the trouble." (Statement given November 26, 1906)

On March 1, 1909, Mr. Priest was interviewed and he said: "I am pleased to confirm the statement I gave for publication three years ago recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. Since this remedy cured me I have had no need of a kidney medicine."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

The City in Brief.

Mrs. H. C. Pepper is a little better. Mrs. C. A. Ponsford has been quite ill the past week.

Rain, rain, go away and come round some other day.

A new enclosed and covered grandstand is talked of for Athletic Park. There will be a meeting of Union Chapter, No. 55, R. A. M., Wednesday evening, May 11.

Jack Frost got in his work Wednesday night. Water left out of doors did the freezing act in regular fall style.

The tickets on the Mrs. Borton sofa pillow will be drawn at White's Dry Goods store Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Dr. Lee S. McColester of Detroit will preach in the Universalist church at Farmington next Sunday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Evans and little daughter, who have been living in Detroit the past few months, have returned to Northville.

Last week Mrs. James Chase shipped a barrel of her choice dahlias and gladiolus bulbs to a cousin, H. A. Johns, of Sioux City, Iowa.

Mrs. Paulina Yradenburg was called to Jackson by the death of her aunt instead of her sister, as was stated in last week's Record.

May will not have to make much of an effort to be a better girl than her brother April. And even at that May gets in with a bad start off.

Edmond Yerkes was very ill with grip last week but fully recovered in time to celebrate his third birthday anniversary on Monday of this week.

A letter was received here this week announcing the safe arrival of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Yerkes at Grand Junction, Colo., the latter part of last week.

The entertainment given by the Palmatier sisters in the Opera House Tuesday evening was one of the best entertainments ever given in this city. There was a large attendance.

The friends and neighbors of Fred Van Valkenburg tendered him a surprise party last Friday night. Dancing and pedro were the amusement of the evening. All enjoyed a pleasant time.

The Northville I. P.'s are to be congratulated on the success of their first attempt in bringing to the village an entertainment of such exceptional merit as that given in the Opera House Tuesday evening by the Palmatier sisters.

The Junior play in the Opera House last week Friday night was a decidedly pleasing affair and highly enjoyed by the large audience present. The "actress" and "actress" handled their parts with more than ordinary skill and their efforts were loudly applauded.

The Northville school was one of the first in the state to adopt the Savings Bank idea and Saturday's report shows the total deposits to date is $725. That is certainly a creditable showing for a village school in a small town the first year.

By the close of the school the pupils hope to push the total up to $1,000.

George Clark has been appointed superintendent of Rural Hill cemetery in place of L. W. Simons, who thought he could no longer devote the time necessary to the work. Under Mr. Simmons' supervision the past few years, the cemetery has been greatly improved in appearance and his personal work has had much to do it.

Mrs. J. E. Morse has received notice that she is the lucky winner of second prize in the "Short Story" contest inaugurated by the Leader Iron Works, manufacturers of hydraulic and pneumatic water systems for suburban and village homes. A check for amount of prize accompanied the notice.

Last Saturday afternoon about thirty members of the Northville Woman's club met at the home of Mrs. A. I. Colt, and in honor of Arbor Day participated in a short program appropriate to the occasion and planted a fine young maple tree in the village park. The club has now two trees in our pretty little park, the first being a beautiful elm placed there eight years ago. It is proposed that the club shall make a "tree planting" an annual observance hereafter in furtherance of the forestry and civic improvement interests that are so prominent a feature of the work of women's clubs throughout America.

Letters for the following persons are advertised at the postoffice this week: Jay. E. Holden, Peter Boemans, Fred F. Barbee.

H. C. Pepper is taking baths at Mt. Clemens for rheumatism. The May Weather bureau is doing much better work than its predecessor, April.

The Sir Knights of Northville Commandery, No. 39, K. T., will meet at the Aylum Sunday, May 8, at 9:30, a. m. to attend ascension services.

The attorney general for the state of Kansas rules that women may wear men's trousers "if they are at the head of the house." As if any woman is not the head of the house.

A meeting was held in the Presbyterian church last Thursday night for the purpose of deciding on a new edifice. A unanimous vote was taken in favor of rebuilding and enlarging the church and rebuilding and enlarging the organ. The building committee was authorized to commence work at once.

Mr. and Mrs. John Negus now occupy the rooms recently vacated by Mrs. Smith at the home of Mrs. Negus' daughter, Mrs. W. B. Fredmore. Mrs. Negus has been very ill for several weeks and is still in a critical condition. Mrs. Smith, who has also been very ill, has gone to live with her nephew's family at Plymouth.

Owing to the cold weather of the past few weeks the workmen have not been able to finish the interior of the Salem Lutheran church and the services which were announced for next Sunday, May 8, has been postponed until further notice.

There will be services in the Lutheran church in this village next Sunday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock sun time.

This first senatorial district is likely to see lively times at the primaries next September. Senator Larry Snell of Highland Park is candidate for re-election and Charles O'Neil of Detroit and Humphrey Brown of Greenfield Snell has the advantage of being in but Brown is also in, in a way, as he is the present Representative from the fourth district.

O'Neil was a candidate against Snell two years ago but lost out in the primaries.

State Oil Inspector Neal reports the inspection by his department 6,763,406 gallons of kerosene oil for the quarter ending March 31. Total fees collected $13,501.33. Total fees and expenses paid, deputy inspectors $7,478.66; state inspector's salary and expenses, $490.01, leaving a net balance to turn into the state treasury of $5,532.67. This is nearly a thousand dollars more than for the same period last year and the inspection is nearly half a million gallons greater.

Some time ago J. C. Hartz of Detroit commenced proceedings against the township board and highway commissioner of Plymouth to set aside the condemnation for highway purposes, a strip of land now occupied by the electric line in their crossing of the Phoenix pond. Hartz claimed the property was his by right of purchase from Henry Holeomb, and wanted the D. U. R. to pay a good big price for it. The D. U. R. said $23.60 or tear up the tracks, and then the highway commissioner proceeded to take it over as a highway. Judge Morfin threw the case out of court Monday on constitutional grounds and Hartz will have to go to the supreme court if he gets any further with the case. Attorney C. C. Yerkes of this place represented the township of Plymouth and the D. U. R. in the case.

The Island of Regeneration

A young woman cast ashore on a lonely island, finds a solitary inhabitant, a young white man dressed like a savage and unable to speak in any known language. She decides to educate him, and mold his mind to her own ideals. She finds evidence that leads her to believe that the man is John Revell Charnock of Virginia, and that he was cast ashore when a certain Katharine Brenton was a highly specialized product of a leading university. Her writings on the subject attracted wide attention, and she became a multi-millionaire. Infatuated with her and they decide to put their theories into practice. With no other money than a handful of dollars they go away together a few days on his yacht. Near the boat in yonder cove there were two skeletons, one of a woman and the other of a dog. I excavated the boat, found that it had belonged to the ship Nansemond of Virginia. I have the stern pieces with the name painted on it in my cave. I put the skeletons of the dog and the woman in the boat and filled it up again with sand. There they lie, waiting for Christian burial. The piece where they had died, the woman and her dog, I carefully inspected. Everything but metal, and most of that, had rusted away, but I found two rings. She stretched forth her hand. "They are here." She stripped them off. "One of them is a wedding ring. You see it is marked." She read the markings off. "J. R. C. to M. P. T. September 10, 1869. H. Cor. XII, 15. The verse of Scripture to which reference is made is I will very gladly spend and be spent for you; though the more abundantly I love you, the less I be loved. There was a piece of silver, also, which had evidently been part of a dog's collar. It, too, was marked: "John Revell Charnock—His Dog, July 22-1875." And that was all.

CHAPTER XVII.—Continued.

"I can answer that," said the woman. "When I landed on this island, I found this man here. He had been here a long time. I believe he had been cast away here as a child and had grown up alone. He had no speech or language. He had no memory of the past. His mind was a blank. I was glad to find him here. He gave me occupation, companionship. I had been well educated. I determined to teach him. I knew that his ignorance was the result of his environment. I believed him to be naturally acute. I found my beliefs warranted. I taught him all that I could of life and letters from memory. For three years my sole and only occupation has been to teach him what I knew. No preceptor ever had a pupil more docile."

"No learner ever sat at the feet of such a teacher," cried the man, touched by the recollection. "Think, man, all that I knew was a childish jumble of prayers which had remained in my memory. I was ignorant of everything, even that I myself existed, that there was any difference between me and the palm tree or yonder bird, that man was made in the image of his God. That there was such a thing as a woman upon earth. I had no ideas of honor or honesty, or purity, or sweetness, or truth, or life or God, until she taught me. I believed in her as I believe in God, and I loved her as I love my mother and my father and the sweet wind I loved her, as I learned to love under her teaching, goodness and truth and every virtue. And to think to think, to think—he threw up his hands in a wild gesture. "But it has come to this."

"And he taught me something, Mr. Whittaker," said the woman. "He gave me back my faith in manhood which you—" she swept Langford with a bitter glance—"had destroyed. He gave me back, I think, my faith in God. He taught me many things. And when two days ago an earthquake buried me within the cave I call my home, and he tore the rocks asunder and freed me and caught me in his arms, I knew that he had taught me what love was, and as he confessed before you all that he loved me, that he did love me, I will confess the same, and say that I at least have not changed in this hour."

"Kate," cried Langford, "for God's sake, think of what you say and do!"

"Sir," said Whittaker, turning to the man of the island "you are a very fortunate man."

"Of all on earth," was the bitter answer. "I cannot think there are any more miserable than I."

"Did you learn nothing of his past, Miss Brenton?" asked Whittaker, uncomfortable unable to answer this strange yet natural assertion. "Could the man remember nothing?"

"I learned a great deal," returned the woman. "In the cave which he had made his home and which he has since yielded up to me—"

"Where is this cave?"

"On the other side of the island. You shall see it presently. I found a Bible. There was a date in it some 30 years back and a name in it."

"What is the name?"

"John Revell Charnock."

"Of Virginia?" asked Whittaker, eagerly.

bring sadness to his heart. I wanted him to hear the voice of the world in comment upon my relation, and I knew he would find it on yonder ship."

"I was happy," said the man, "to go on as we were. I should not have liked that, fire."

"Pray, continue with your story, Miss Brenton," said the lieutenant commander. "I am deeply interested in it. There is a great Charnock estate in Virginia which has been held for 30 years or more by the last survivor of the ancient family. And I remember some romantic story connected with it, too."

"The silver box that inclosed the flint and steel," continued the woman, "was marked 'J. R. C.' Exploring the island I came upon the remains of a boat, and any of you may examine it. Near the boat in yonder cove there were two skeletons, one of a woman and the other of a dog. I excavated the boat, found that it had belonged to the ship Nansemond of Virginia. I have the stern pieces with the name painted on it in my cave. I put the skeletons of the dog and the woman in the boat and filled it up again with sand. There they lie, waiting for Christian burial. The piece where they had died, the woman and her dog, I carefully inspected. Everything but metal, and most of that, had rusted away, but I found two rings. She stretched forth her hand. "They are here." She stripped them off. "One of them is a wedding ring. You see it is marked." She read the markings off. "J. R. C. to M. P. T. September 10, 1869. H. Cor. XII, 15. The verse of Scripture to which reference is made is I will very gladly spend and be spent for you; though the more abundantly I love you, the less I be loved. There was a piece of silver, also, which had evidently been part of a dog's collar. It, too, was marked: "John Revell Charnock—His Dog, July 22-1875." And that was all.

"Do you remember nothing of your early life, nothing whatever, sir?" asked Whittaker, turning to the man.

"I have a dim recollection of some sort of a sea happening, of a long voyage with a woman and some kind of an animal in an open boat, of horrible sufferings, of a few words of prayer; that is all."

"I think that this man, then a child," resumed the woman, "and his mother must in some way have been involved in a shipwreck, and that she and her son and a dog must have been cast away on this island, that the woman died and the child survived. There is nothing here that would in any way harm him and his life and growth under such circumstances and conditions are quite possible. He had probably seen his mother read that Bible. He carried it with him but it was faded and faded. It with the flint and steel in the silver box of which he would have no knowledge and which he could not use. The dog probably lived some time and when he died crawled back to where his mistress lay and gave up his life at her feet. And therefore I believe this man's name to be John Revell Charnock, that he is an American, and that he came from Virginia. I know him to be a Christian and a gentleman. In all the days that we have been together on this island he has done me no wrong. He has been gentle, kind, docile, itself, and despite ourselves we have learned to love each other. Until yesterday we did not know it. Now it is for him to say what we will do."

"Kate, Kate," cried Langford, "you cannot let this untutored savage—"

"No Christian Ever Believed in His God as I Believed in Her."

This man in compliance with any suggestion of the world, following any dictate of society, subservient to any convention. I cannot see but that I would be doing as great or a greater wrong than I did before in flouting all of these forces. I have learned what love is and what marriage should be. I will not give my hand and yield up my person where I cannot yield my heart. And there is no explanation of reparation that requires it of me, no veto that an exorcism into it will not marry you, Valentine Langford. I will accept your expressions as evidenced by your words, by your presence here, as testimony to your regret. Indeed, I realize that your confession was itself a great illumination to a man like you. And perhaps I have spoken harshly of it. But the bare fact remains, I don't love you, I could not love you, I don't even want to love you. My heart, my soul goes to this man, she turned to her companion of the island, whom up to this day I have made and fashioned and taught and trained until these hours when he has broken away from me. I love this man who stands silent, who thinks of me as a thing spotted, polluted, damned. Him I love, though he slay me, yet will I love him. Him I trust, though he disobey me, yet will I love him. Him I will serve, though he cast me off, yet will I love him. And with this in my heart in which I glory and which I confess as openly and with as little hesitation as you confessed your shame, I give you my final, absolute, utterly irrevocable decision. I will not marry you, I will not go back with you. No, not for anything that you can proffer, nor for any reason that you can urge, will I come to you when in my soul I belong to another. There may be no end to this but my despair. This man may cast me off. This man may trample me under foot. The spots upon my soul may loom larger in his view and hide what else is there. I know I have been forgiven by God, I will not be forgiven by men, but I tell you here and now, again and again, that I will not go with your wife. I will be his wife or no man's."

Langford turned away and hid his face in his hands. Whittaker stepped forward and laid his hand upon the shoulder of the man of the island. He shook him for a moment.

"You stand immobile," he cried, sharply, after such a confession as that, after such an appeal? What have you to say, man? You ought to get down on your knees and thank God for the love of such a woman."

"Aye, aye," burst out the deep tones of the old coxswain of the cutter. "So say all of us."

"God help me," cried the man, lifting his hand and releasing his shoulder from the grasp of the officer. "I did love this woman. Think how it was, think how I believed in her. No Christian ever believed in his god as I believed in her. She told me what purity was, what innocence was, what sweetness was, what light was, what truth was; and I looked at her and saw them."

"And you can look at her and see them now," cried the officer.

"No," said the man, "I can never look at her and see her the same."

"Oh, Man! Man!" cried the woman. The test was upon him. He was failing. Her sorrow, her grief were more for him than for herself.

"Don't mistake me," said the man. "I can't help loving you, whatever you are. If you had been as guilty as when he began to speak and when you corroborated him, I fancied that you were, I should have loved you just the same and I should have married you, and I shall marry you. This... this awful thing has come between us, but we will try in some way to live it down, to forget it, to go on as we were."

He stepped toward the woman. She drew herself up to her full height and looked him unflinchingly in the face.

"The island is mine," said the man. "I was here when you came. I shall be here when you return."

"We shall see," returned the woman, looking boldly at him. The clash of wills almost struck fire within the eyes of the two who thus crossed swords. "Meanwhile," she turned to Langford, "if you will leave the island and go back to your ship, I shall be very glad. There is nothing you can do here. You have nothing to gain by remaining."

"Kate," he cried, "one last appeal. It is as unavailing as the first."

"She looked at him steadily. He saw that within her face and bearing which convinced him that what she said was true."

"At least," he said, with the dignity of sorrow and disappointment, "if I have played the part of the fool, I have done my best to play the man."

He turned slowly away. In a step the woman was by his side.

"You have," she said, "whatever else has failed me in this hour; it has not been you. I am sorry that I do not love you, that I never did love you and that I cannot love you." She reached her hand out. "Good-by."

"Good-by," he said, "if you think of me, remember that I did my best to make amends and if you ever change—" "I shall not change," said the woman. "Good-by."

adjusted himself to them, but the opportunity he needed he did not get. He was immediately plunged into an atmosphere of such strangeness to him, filled with such compelling necessity for attention, that, although he loathed the necessity thus imposed upon him, he was constrained to take part in the life that flowed around him. His instinct—and he was almost a woman in his instinctive capacity—was to be alone, but it was impossible, and in spite of himself what he saw distracted him. The people he met did more.

Whittaker hustled him below, of course, as soon as possible and took him into his own cabin. Fortunately they were men of much the same height and build, although the islander was the more graceful, symmetric and strong, and he succeeded in getting him into a trivial suit of clothing for which he had no present use. There were both loss and gain in his appearance. There was no gain in the islander's feelings, at least, he thought not. In view of the irksome restraint of clothing, and yet there was a certain satisfaction to his soul in being no longer singled out from among his fellows by the strangeness of his apparel. As clothes the garments became him, and it all depended upon your point of view as to whether you preferred the handsome, barbarian with a hint of civilization in his carriage, of the civilized gentleman with a suggestion of the barbaric in his bearing. Whittaker reasoned rightly that the sooner he became accustomed to these things the better, and that the time to begin was immediately.

He had had a hasty word or two with the captain before he took him below, and when he was dressed—and it required assistance from the lieutenant-commander are the unfamiliar habits were properly adjusted—the two passed from the ward room to the cabin of the captain in the after part of the ship.

The few sentences in which Whittaker had made his brief report to his superior had in a measure prepared the captain for the more lengthy discourse that followed, and feeling that the situation was one which required more than the simple authority of the master of a ship, he had summoned to conference the surgeon and the chaplain. It was to these three men, therefore, that Whittaker and the islander presented themselves.

The chaplain, Mr. Whittaker, was a Virginian. He had not noted the islander's face when he came aboard in his semi-savage garb, but as his eye dwelt upon him standing clothed and in his right mind before him he gave a start of surprise, and so soon as the formal salutation had been exchanged, with a word to the captain for permission, he asked Whittaker a question.

"I beg your pardon, Mr. Whittaker, but what is this gentleman's name?"

The word gentleman was used naturally and unconsciously, with an absolute sense of its fitness, as every one in the cabin could perceive.

"It is not rightly known," said Whittaker, "but he is believed to be a Virginian of the—"

"I knew it," said the chaplain, impulsively; "he is one of the Charnocks of Nansemond county."

"Your recognition, chaplain," said the lieutenant-commander, eagerly, "will be of great value in determining this stranger's name and station. The evidence of it is circumstantial. I do not know how it will be regarded in a court of law."

"I have always understood that the Charnock estate was a vast one," said Capt. Ashby, "and since coal has been mined on the Virginia lands it has become very valuable."

"It is true," answered the chaplain. "Who holds it now?" asked the surgeon.

"It is held by an old man, my friend of many years' standing, the brother of John Revell Charnock."

"I believe that to be my name," said the islander.

"I have little doubt of it," replied the chaplain, continuing. "The first John Revell Charnock was lost at sea. He and his wife and young child some 30 years ago set forth on a voyage around the world for her health. The ship, in which I believe he had some ownership, was called the Nansemond. Its course was traced as far as Valparaiso, thence it sailed for the Philippines and was never heard of again. I know the story," said the chaplain, turning toward the captain, "because John Revell Charnock was one of my best friends, as is his brother, Philip Norton Charnock, who now holds the estate."

Divided.

The best thing on earth for a man in the islander's position would have been isolation and a chance to think it over. The worst thing on earth for a woman in Katharine's position was isolation and a chance to think it over. If the man had been enabled by lack of outside interests to give free rein to his thoughts and let them draw him whether they would, he might have arrived at a different viewpoint, whence he could have enjoyed a sight of the affair in all its bearings and could have Often Too Many Pictures. Attention was called to the fact that there are no pictures on the walls of the house of Mark Twain, in which his daughter was recently married to the Russian pianist, Ossip Gabrilowitsch, because the author thinks that the natural pictures framed by the casements are much more beautiful than any artificial ones can be. The trouble with most houses is that there are too many pictures, and this is especially often the case where the natural beauty of the landscape ought not to be disregarded.

Does Not Stimulate

Ayer's Sarsaparilla does not stimulate. It does not make you feel better one day, then as bad as ever the next. It is not a strong drink. No reaction after you stop using it. There is not a drop of alcohol in it. You have the steady, even gain that comes from a strong tonic and alterative. We wish you would ask your doctor about this. He knows. Trust him. Do as he says. "MOTHER, what makes everything so good these days?"

"Why, it's that K C BAKING POWDER. Cake, biscuit or giddle-cakes,—it's all the same. Since I've used K C everything comes out just right,—light, crisp and fit for a king. I knew I was safe in trying it,—they were so sure I'd like it. They refund your money if you don't like it better than any other,—better,—mind you. Then it's guaranteed under every Pure Food Law you ever heard of, and, you won't believe it, but it costs less than what I've used,—a real nice saving. I understand it's because they don't belong to the Baking Powder "Trust." My, it's a satisfaction to get good value for your money these days when everything's so high."

REMEMBER, IT'S
K C BAKING POWDER
THE BEST AT ANY PRICE

GET a fan on trial from your grocer. Send us the coupon you will find inside, mentioning this paper, and we will mail you the new "Cook's Book" containing 80 splendid new recipes,—a beautifully illustrated book full of fine baking helps. If you don't like K C Baking Powder better than any other, you get your money back and keep the "Cook's Book" for your trouble. But you can't help liking K C.

DON'T DEPEND ON SHOWERS

to water your lawn or garden. They seldom come when you want them. Better get some of our garden hose, lawn sprinklers, watering pots, etc. They'll make you independent of the weather and insure you a fine lawn or garden. Probably you need other things in garden helps.

Something in Hardware

such as a hammer and some staples to prop up that vine. A saw or a pair of pruning shears to trim the trees and bushes. We have them all and lots more besides.
