SATURDAY'S GAME WAS GREAT ONE

NORTHVILLE BOYS RIGHT ON THE JOB.

Cleaned Up on Wyandotte by a Score of 10 to 1.

The "Circle N" boys played a great game Saturday and trounced the Wyandotte Cubs by a score of 10 to 1. Dubuar pitched a great game for the home team and was given perfect support. D. Stimpson caught his usual fine game and showed a great whip. In throwing to second in the few times the "dote" had a chance to get down in that territory. Hall in the 5th came in with a home run which was good for 2 bags only for the errors and bone work of the Cub players. However the rap was a good long one and Ball certainly did no lively leg work. Probably the real feature of the game was the work of C. Stimpson

Long of Wyandotte who let half a dozen good ones puncture his anatomy.

Through him. Remembering the motto of "Everything comes to him who waits" he finally did get one in the sixth and retired the third "Circle N" boy. Stenham pitched for Wyandotte and besides being hit hard he received poor support. Cohn caught Bobber Brown did the usual artistic umpire feat. The Holy Champions play the "Circle N" boys Saturday and another big game is promised.

RUMMAGE SALE; MANUF'CT'RS SALE

Don't miss the chance for great bargains, May 27 and 28, at Macomber's house, Main street, Northville. Goods contributed by many manufacturers all new and fresh as advertised.

In the rummage sale there will be second hand goods, household goods, clothes of every description for men, women and children, including dress suits, farm suits, children's play clothes, women's waists, dresses, etc. Benefit of Presbyterian church building fund. Don't forget the date.

"Do We Need A Cleaning-Up Day?"

A comprehensive tour of our village these days gives an impression of such general neatness of lawns and streets that a "clean-up day" seems almost a superfluous thing to speak of, but we are informed that after all there are alleys, backyards and by-ways that still "strongly" plead for renovation in the interest of both health and appearances. If we do need a more thorough spring cleaning for our pretty town of which we are all so proud, let us by all means ask our "village fathers" for a special day devoted to that laudable purpose.

at short. He certainly was a regular Owgie Bush, picking up what seemed impossible ones and getting them to bases in time to retire a runner. In the 9th he made a long run toward second and reaching out with his extension left picked up with one hand a hot one that looked good for two bags. He then shot it to first in time to retire the batter and make a double play. It was a great play. Stimpson is in the game every minute and plays with his head as well as with his hands and legs.

Turner at third was also right there with the goods and more than made up for his slowness of last week. He cracked all his chances to Boyden at first without an error and Boyden gobbled them in just like Tom Jones. Reed Stimpson played a dandy game at second and did some excel-

CHAPTER I.

I Take a Country House.

This is the story of how a middle-aged spinster lost her mind, deserted her domestic gods, in the city, took a furnished house for the summer out of town, and found herself involved in one of those mysterious crimes that keep our newspapers and detective agencies happy and prosperous. For 20 years I had been perfectly comfortable, for 20 years I had had the window-boxes filled in the spring, the carpets lifted, the awnings put up and the house covered with warm sunbeams; for as many summers I had said good-by to my friends, and, after watching their perspiring heads, had settled down to a delicious quiet in town, where the mail comes three times a day, and the water supply does not depend on a tank on the roof.

And then—the madness seized me. When I look back over the months I spent in Sunnyside, I wonder that I survived at all. As it is, I show the wear and tear of my harrowing experiences. I have turned very gray. Liddy reminded me of it only yesterday by saying that a little bluing in the rinse water would make my hair silvery instead of a yellow white. I hate to be reminded of unpleasant things and I snapped her off.

"No," I said sharply, "I'm not going to use bluing at my time of life, or starch, either."

Liddy's nerves are gone, she says, since that awful summer, but she has enough left, goodness knows! And when she begins to go around with a lump in her throat, all I have to do is to threaten to return to Sunnyside, and she is frightened into a semblance of cheerfulness—from which you may judge that the summer there was anything but a success.

The newspaper accounts have been so garbled and incomplete—one of them mentioned me, but once, and then only as the tenant at the time the thing happened—that I feel it my due to tell what I know. Mr. Wainwright, the detective, said himself he could never have done without me, although he gave me little enough credit, in print.

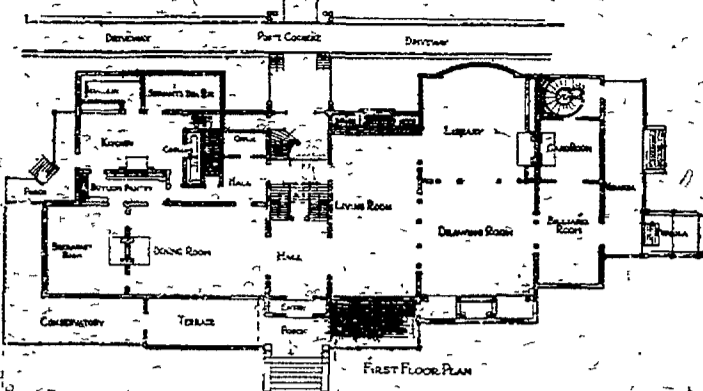

I shall have to go back several years—12, to be exact—to start my story. At that time my brother died, leaving me two children. Halsey was 11 then and Gertrude was seven. When Halsey had finished his elementary course and Gertrude her board school both came home to stay. The winter Gertrude came and was nothing but a succession of fits, up late at night to bring her from this, a fading due to the dressmakers between hope the next day, and all encouraging little white vouches with other money than money. By spring I was quite frantic. So when Halsey suggested camping in the Adirondacks and Gertrude wanted Har Herber, we compromised on a good country house with links near, within motor distance of town and telephone distance of the doctor. That was how we went to Sunnyside.

We went out to inspect the property, and it seemed to deserve its name. Its cheerful appearance gave no indication whatever of anything out of the ordinary. Only one thing seemed unusual to me: The housekeeper, who had been left in charge, had moved from the house to the gardener's lodge a few days before. As the lodge was far enough away from the house, it seemed to me that either fire or thieves could complete their work of destruction undisturbed. The property was an extensive one; the house on the top of a hill, which sloped away in great stretches of green lawn and clipped hedges, to the road, and across the valley, perhaps a couple of miles away, was the Greenwood Club house. Gertrude and Halsey were infatuated.

The property was owned by Paul Armstrong, the president of the Traders' bank, who at the time we took the house was in the west with his wife and daughter, and a Dr. Walker, the Armstrong family physician. Halsey knew Louise Armstrong—had been rather attentive to her the winter before, but as Halsey was always attentive to somebody, I had not thought of it seriously, although she was a charming girl. I knew of Mr. Armstrong only through his connection with the bank, where the children's money was largely invested, and through an ugly story about the son, Arnold Armstrong, who was reported to have forged his father's name for a considerable amount to some bank paper. However, the story had no interest for me.

I cleared Halsey and Gertrude away to a house party, and moved out to Sunnyside the first of May. The first night passed quietly enough. I have always been grateful for that one night's peace; it shows what the country might be under favorable circumstances. Never after that night did I put my head on my pillow with any assurance how long it would be there; or on my shoulders, for that matter.

On the following morning Liddy and Mrs. Ralston, my own housekeeper, had a difference of opinion, and Mrs. Ralston left on the 11 train. Just after luncheon, Burke, the butler, was taken unexpectedly, with a pain in his right side, much worse when I was within twenty feet of him. He was sitting in a chair, and I saw that he was started cityward. That night the cook's sister had a baby—the cook, seeing indecision in my face, made it twins on second thought—and, to be short, by noon the next day the household staff was down to Liddy and myself. And this in a house with 22 rooms and five baths!

Liddy wanted to go back to the city at once, but the milkboy said that Thomas Johnson, the Armstrongs' colored butler, was working as a waiter at the Greenwood Club and might come back. I have the usual scruples about coercing people's servants, away, but few of us have any conscience regarding institutions or corporations—witness the way we beat railroads and street car companies when we can—so I called up the club, and about eight o'clock Thomas Johnson came to see me. Poor Thomas!

Well, it ended by my engaging Thomas on the spot, at outrageous wages, and with permission to sleep in the gardener's lodge, empty since the house was rented. The old man—he was white-haired and a little stooped, but with an immense idea of his personal dignity—gave me his reasons hesitatingly.

"I ain't sayin' nothing," Mrs. Innes, he said, his hand on the door-knob, "but there's been goin' on here this last few months as ain't natchal. I ain't one thing an' 'taint another—it's just a door squeakin' here, an' a winder closing there, but when doors an' widders gets to cuttin' up capers and there's nobdy nigh 'em, it's time Thomas Johnson sleeps somewhar's else."

That Completed Our Demoralization.

Liddy, who seemed to be never more than ten feet away from me that night, and was afraid of her shadow in that great barn of a place, screamed a little, and turned a yellow green. But I am not easily alarmed.

It was entirely in vain I represented to Thomas that we were alone, and that he would have to stay in the house that night. He was politely firm, but he would come over early the next morning, and if I gave him a key, he would come in time to get some sort of breakfast. I stood on the huge veranda and watched him shuffle along down the shadowy drive with mingled feelings—irritation at his cowardice and thankfulness at getting him at all. I am not ashamed to say that I doublelocked the hall door when I went in.

"You can lock up the rest of the house and go to bed, Liddy," I said severely. "You give me the creeps standing there. A woman of your age ought to have better sense." It usually braces Liddy to mention her age; she owns to 40—which is absurd. Her mother cooked for my grandfather, and Liddy must be at least as old as I. But that night she refused to brace.

"You're not going to ask me to lock up, Miss Rachel!" she quavered. "Why, there's a dozen French widders in the house, and every one opens on a porch. And Mary Anne said that last night there was a man standing by the stable when she locked the kitchen door."

"Mary Anne was a fool," I said sternly. "If there had been a man there she would have had him in the kitchen and been feeding him what was left from dinner, inside of an hour, from force of habit. Now don't be ridiculous. Lock up the house and go to bed. I am going to read."

But Liddy set her lips tight and stood still. "I'm not going to bed," she said. "I am going to pack up, and to-morrow I am going to leave." "You'll do nothing of the sort," I snapped. Liddy and I often desire to part company, but never at the same time. "If you are afraid, I will go with you, but for goodness' sake don't try to hide behind me." The house was a typical summer residence on an extensive scale. Wherever possible, on the first floor, the architect had done away with partitions, using arches and columns instead. The effect was cool and spacious, but scarcely cozy. As Liddy and I went from one window to another, our voices echoed back at us uncomfortably. There was plenty of light—the electric plant down in the village supplied us—but there were long vistas of polished floor, and mirrors which reflected us from unexpected

CHAPTER II.

A Link Cuff-Button.

Liddy's knees seemed to give away under her. Without a sound she sank down, leaving me staring at the window in petrified amazement. Liddy began to moan under her breath, and in my excitement I reached down and shook her.

"Stop it," I whispered. "It's only a woman—maybe a maid of the Armstrongs. Get up and help me find the door." She groaned again. "Very well," I said, "but I'll have to leave you here. I'm going."

She moved at that, and, holding to my sleeve, we felt our way, with numerous collisions, to the billiard-room and from there, to the drawing-room. The lights came on then, and, with the long French windows unshuttered, I had a creepy feeling that each one sheltered a peering face. In fact, in the light of what happened afterward, I am pretty certain we were under surveillance during the entire ghostly evening. We hurried over the rest of the locking-up and got upstairs as quickly as we could. I left the lights all on, and our footsteps echoed cavernously. Liddy had a stiff neck the next morning, from looking back over her shoulder, and she refused to go to bed.

"Let me stay in your dressing room, Miss Rachel," she begged. "If you don't I'll sit in the hall outside the door. I'm not going to be murdered with my eyes shut."

It was 11 o'clock when I finally prepared for bed. In spite of my assumption of indifference, I locked the door into the hall, and finding the transom did not catch, I put a chair cautiously before the door—it was not necessary to rouse Liddy—and climbing up put on the ledge of the transom a small dressing-mirror, so that any movement of the frame would send it crashing down. Then, secure in my precautions I went to bed.

I did not go to sleep at once. Liddy disturbed me just as I was growing drowsy, by coming in and peering under the bed. She was afraid to speak, however, because of her previous snoring, and went back, stepping in the doorway to light dimly.

Somewhere downstairs a clock with a chime rang away the hours—seven thirty, forty five, twelve. And then the lights went out to play the Columbia Electric Company's shadow play and gone home to bed it midnight. When one has a party, I believe it is customary to let the company with will drink hot coffee and keep awake a couple of hours longer. But the lights were gone for good that night. Liddy had gone to sleep, and I knew she would be a very unreliable person. I was a little ready to tuck when she wouldn't wanted and dozing off to sleep when she would I called her once or twice, but only result being an explosive snore that threatened her very windpipe, then I got up and lighted a bedroom candle.

My bedroom and dressing room were above the big living room on the first floor. On the second floor a long corridor ran the length of the house, with rooms opening from both sides. If the wings were small corridors crossing the main one—the plan was simplicity itself. And just as I got back into bed, I heard a sound from the east wing, apparently, that made me stop, frozen, with one bedroom slipper half off, and listen. It was a rattling metallic sound, and it reverberated along the empty halls like the crash of doom. It was for all the world as if something heavy, perhaps a piece of steel, had rolled clattering and jangling down the hardwood stairs leading to the card-room.

In the silence that followed Liddy stirred and snored again. I was exasperated; first she kept me awake by silly alarms, then when she was needed she slept like Joe Jefferson, or Rip—they are always the same to me. I went in and aroused her, and I gave her credit for being wide awake the minute I spoke.

"Get up," I said, "if you don't want to be murdered in your bed."

"Where? How?" she yelled vociferously, and jumped up.

"There's somebody in the house," I said. "Get up. We'll have to go to the telephone."

"Not out in the hall!" she gasped. "Oh, Miss Rachel, not out in the hall!" trying to hold me back. But I am a large woman and Liddy is small. We got to the door, somehow, and Liddy held a brass andiron, which it was all she could do to lift, let alone braid anybody with. I listened, and, hearing nothing, opened the door a little and peered into the hall. It was a black void, full of terrible suggestion, and my candle only emphasized the gloom. Liddy squealed and drew me back again, and as the door slammed, the mirror I had put on the transom came down and hit her on the head. That completed our demoralization. It was some time before I could persuade her she had not been attacked from behind by a burglar, and when she found the mirror smashed on the floor she wasn't much better.

An Interruption.
Among the primary pupils enrolled in a Baltimore school this term is the son of a prominent business man of that city.

One afternoon, at close of school, the youngster sought out his father in his office, to whom he said:

"Dad, I'm getting tired of school. I think I'll quit."

"Why?" asked the astonished parent.

"Well, dad," responded the youngster, suppressing a yawn, "but it breaks up the day so."—Harper's Weekly.

"Hullo, Dusty," said Weary Waggles, as the two humps met in the street.

"How's livin'?"

"Somepln awful," replied Dusty Rhodes. "The cost of everything's gone up so a feller can't hardly get his three meals per."

"Humph!" ejaculated Weary. "I never knowed you to pay for nothin'."

"No," returned Dusty, "but it's the solemn fact that along my route, where I used to have to ask only once for a breakfast, they make me ask twice these days."—Harper's Weekly.

Mrs. Frederick H. Snyder is the only woman impresario on earth, she says. She decided that grand opera would be a good thing for St. Paul and made her first venture so successful that she has continued in the business after the fashion of men engaged in the same work.

The Jeweled Set.
An actress said of Eleanor Robson: "She is a dear. She has married August Belmont. Now she is in the set that I once heard her so wittily ridicule."

"She said that in conversation with a reading man, on of this planet, this Jeweled set also said."

"And where do you think you'll spend the summer, Mrs. Van Golt?"

"Er—the North Cape, I believe," Mrs. Van Golt answered. "One can get aking there all through August, you know."

"And where will you spend the winter, then?"

"Oh, Florida, by all means. There's such ripping January bathing at Palm Beach."

Regular communication of Northville Lodge No. 138, F. & A. M. on Monday evening.

The Memorial sermon will be delivered by Rev. J. W. Turner in the Methodist church Sunday evening, May 29.

The "First 500" club were very pleasantly entertained at the home of Mrs. Nelson Schrader on Tuesday evening.

Catholic services will be held in their house, corner Dunlap and Center streets, Sunday morning at 8:00 standard.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Schenitz, enter-tained several Northville friends last Friday night. A pleasant time was enjoyed by all.

The F. of A. memorial services will be held in the Baptist church May 29. All members are requested to meet at hall at 9 o'clock.

Regular meeting of the O. E. S. tonight. A good attendance is desired as there is important business to transact.

E. K. Simonds has been confined to the house the past week with a severe cold. He is better and able to be around again.

The remains of Mrs. Richards, mother of Mrs. Williams, of this place, were brought here Tuesday from Milford for burial.

Don't forget the baseball game this (Friday) afternoon between McMillan High, Detroit, and Northville High school at Athletic Park.

Starkweather & Rattenbury's team made things lively up through Main street Monday by "running wild" hitched to a big wagon. No damage.

Henry Riley of Greenville died of his lungs last week after a short illness. Mr. Riley is an uncle of M. R. Seelye of this place and was well known around here.

The "Good Luck" defeated Plymouth Saturday in a score of 7 to 3. Plymouth batteries Letch and Baker. Northville batteries Percy Shuler and Milo Ferguson.

Rev. L. W. Turner left Monday for Evanston, Ill., to attend the commencement exercises and annual of the Theological Seminary of that city. He will also visit his parents in southern Illinois.

The band went over to Plymouth last week and played for the opening of the Alseum theatre and the Alseum people are deeply appreciative for the kindness as well as for the delightful music.

The Alseum theatre moving picture program this week will include: The Earthquake of Messina, The Vestal, The Mexican Crime, A Young Bachelor's Dream, A Put-Up Job, Paddle Prize, A Pig.

Tom Gleason was quite badly burned about the face and neck at the Bell Foundry Monday, as the result of the flame from the furnace unexpectedly bursting out of the door instead of going up the chimney.

There will be a meeting at the Thayer cemetery Thursday, May 26, at 8 a. m. for the purpose of cleaning and doing what work is necessary for Decoration Day. All those who are interested please be present at this meeting.

Memorial day program will be printed next week. The outlying cemeteries will be decorated on Sunday. Miss Babbitt will give a reading at the Monday exercises, which are to begin at one o'clock and Congressman Townsend will deliver the address.

"Ripples," the new two step sensation from the pen of Fredrick Sutton has proven such a big success that he was unable to secure any copies from the publishers of the first edition for his Northville friends. The critics who have heard this piece pronounce it very good. A few copies of the second edition have been secured and will be placed on sale here. Mrs. Jones of the Alseum theatre will feature this piece this week.

Be sure and get some of the clean, fresh manufacturers goods at the sale May 27-28.

Matinee races at the ball park on the afternoon of May 30. Also ball game between Northville and Milford.

Patriotic exercises at the school all next week, commencing Monday, under the supervision of the superintendent and teachers.

The pupils of Dist. 11, teacher Hazel Pinner, will give an exhibition of their work next Friday p. m. including program. All interested in rural work welcome.

The Presbyterian ladies will have a Rummage Sale in the vacant Macomber house, Main street, next week Friday and Saturday. Manufacturers' articles as well as donations.

The Wayne county board of highway commissions, has begun the building of new roads out of Detroit again and the Grand River road will this year be put in shape practically all the way to Redford from the city limits.

The hitting of the Comet was celebrated around town and until the early hours Thursday. In regular Fourth of July style, Buchner bill was thronged with sight seers but the comet made no demonstration whatever.

As a token of encouragement our local hardware dealer, James A. Hall, will give a $2.50 glove or mitt to the high school or Circle N player obtaining the best batting percentage in this week's Friday and Saturday's games. Managers will please call Saturday evening 8 p. m. for premium.

School Notes.

[By a Pupil]

The Fourth grade drew tulips Wednesday.

The Second grade has an apple blossom calendar for May.

Nettle Jacobus of the Sixth grade is absent on account of illness.

Pauline Green of the Seventh grade returned to school this week after an illness.

Carroll Ambler of the First grade is still out of school on account of sickness.

The Seventh grade pupils are studying the life of the British artist, Reynolds.

Miss Hurlston was ill Wednesday and Miss Cole very acceptably filled the vacancy.

The Juniors will present for their class day program a play entitled, "The Graduates."

Marion Phillips and Albert Ryder of the Kindergarten are back in school after illness.

Variety in the High school morning exercises was obtained one day this week by readings from Mark Twain's "A Connecticut Yankee at the Court of King Arthur."

One of the features of the Senior class day exercises will be President Taft's Defense of His Administration, while his fellow sufferer Howard West, will describe and illustrate the "Simple Life."

The Junior banquet takes place tonight with covers laid for 120. Mr. Wedemeyer is the principle speaker and the president and other members of both Senior and Junior classes will give toasts with Mr. Dubois as the toastmaster.

Full arrangements have been made for the game with the M. A. C. Freshman and High school team. Coach Brewer of the M. A. C. generously invited our boys there to stay over Friday night and also to see the "Varsity" game with Wabash. Our game will be called Saturday morning and in the meantime every boy will have his eyes, ears and mouth open.

The School Savings bank deposit last Friday was higher than the previous week being $39.21. The total deposit is now over the $505 mark. Only four more weeks left to make the whole deposit $500. The deposit by grades was as follows: Kindergarten $75. First $78; Second $136; Third $22; Fourth $1.45; Fifth $1.03; Sixth $8.62; Seventh $6.20; Eighth $7.70; High school $18.10.

The High school Physiography class took an all day field trip Tuesday, beginning at the old river bed back of Athletic Park and following this to Plymouth. Some very interesting physiographic features, in which the region abounds were studied and many evidences of former glaciation were found. The account of this field trip forms one chapter in a set of five to be used in a book written by each student on "Glaciers and Glaciation."

Don't forget the ball game today with McMillan High of Detroit. Johnson-Stimpson battery. C. Stimpson on short. A good game is expected and, as the game is today, Friday, it will allow many people to attend the game who are not able to on Saturday. The High school and most of the grades get a half holiday as a result of no tardy marks. As this game and the one with the M. A. C. are the only two remaining games to be held here we are expecting a good attendance.

Only three more weeks of school and it's "up to" the parents to see that work is kept up to the top notch. There is sometimes a tendency to let things slide the last few weeks of school but the ordinary school life is expected to continue until the last minute. We realize that this is the time when the sound of the turtle is heard in the land and we know that in some cases it will take both teacher and parent to keep the mills of the gods grinding, but we're certain that the patrons will give us their hearty support in this endeavor.

Tickets for Commencement week may be obtained at any time after Monday. The board will be put up for reserved seats Monday, May 30. These tickets will admit to all the exercises excepting Senior Class Day and Commencement exercises. All of these indoor events will take place in the Opera House and tickets may be reserved free for the entire week with the two above named exceptions, so the first to purchase tickets will secure the best seats. The money over and above expenses will be put into sanitary drinking fountains for both buildings. We hope that every one will take this occasion to show their interest and loyalty to our school. The prices of tickets will be 25c and 35c for entire week, while a single admission will be 10c and 15c with 5c extra for seat reservation. Thus two single admissions would more than pay for a ticket for the entire week.

Card of Thanks.

We shall long remember our friends for the deeds of kindness shown during the illness and loss of a wife and mother. Many thanks for the beautiful flowers.

LOUIS MILLER,
MR. AND MRS. H. C. MILLER.

READING, PA.

May 15, 1910.

Mr. Wm. Gorton,

Northville, Mich.

Dear Sir:

As you are a purchaser of our line of Pants we realize you would be interested in knowing that Jeffries and Johnson, the big fighting men, are wearing our Pants while in training for their big match July 4th, next. After trying out the several lines they both decided that our Pants stood the strain of violent exercise and gave more freedom of action than any others.

Yours truly,
