STIMPSON SCALE CO.

BIG FACTORY CLOSED DOWN HERE SATURDAY NIGHT

Definite Information Cannot Yet be Obtained.

The Stimpson Scale plant here closed down Saturday night, throwing about fifty men out of employment.

Financial trouble is given as the cause and an application has been made for the appointment of J. A. Babbitt as receiver.

It is understood that a big manufacturer from Ohio will purchase the plant soon as a settlement can be made with the creditors.

It is estimated the liabilities are $86,000 with not much in the way of assets.

Northville people own stock to the amount of about $10,000 and there are creditors in the village for as much more. Just how much of this will be paid is not yet learned as no one seems to know anything about the matter as yet.

C. C. Yerkes, Mr. Stimpson's attorney, has been busy for a week trying to get matters straightened out and says everything possible will be done to adjust things for the best interest of Northville.

A MINISTER'S CONSTIPATION

Rev. Kemp Tells of His Digestive Troubles and How He Overcame Them—You Can Do So Free.

The lack of exercise in a minister's life makes him very prone to constipation, but for that matter, most everybody is constipated now and then. It is the national disorder. Many already know that a sure way to cure constipation and other stomach, liver and bowel troubles is with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Many church people have been buying twenty years.

For years, Dr. W. B. Caldwell has been a victim of constipation. He has never found anything to equal Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. I also had indigestion and heart trouble. I can certainly recommend it.

Very Fishy. She was a fisherman's daughter, she wore her hair in a net, and she preferred to live in a piscatorial way. "My love," he whispered, "you hold first place in my heart! Although I 'boulder' about in expressing myself, my 'sole' wish is that you will save me from becoming a 'crabbed' old bachelor. I shall stick to you closer than a 'limpet,' from you a 'wink' will be the road to guide me. Together we will 'skate' over life's 'rocks,' and when I look at your hand beside me I shall say to myself: 'Fortune was mine when I put 'herring' there!'"

Willing to Pay for Rammer. When the British ship at the battle of Abou Klea, in the Nubia desert, was attacked by the dervishes, one of them attempted to open a gunner who was in the act of ramming home a charge. The British brained the Sudanese, but the rammer head split or the man's head skull. Next day the gunner was sent for. Mistaking the reason, and knowing from experience that soldiers are charged for government property which they break, he led off with "Please, sir, I'm very sorry I broke the rammer, but I never thought the fellow's head could be so hard. I'll pay for the rammer so as to bear no more of the case."

Old Men in Responsibility. The American business system, which gives mere boys responsible positions before they have acquired practical experience, is to an Englishman quite unaccountable. He wonders whether it does not cause reckless trading and wild speculation. In other countries they prefer to keep elderly men in responsible positions because they can be depended upon. Messrs. Dyke & Sons, Somerset, England, employ 66 men. More than half have completed 20 years' service, 20 have been there 40 years, nine over 50 years and one 70 years.

VENETIAN NIGHT AT G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT

SPECTACLE WILL BE REPRODUCED AT G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT AT HOLLAND.

Preparations for Entertainment of the Boys of '61 Are Making Headway.

Dr. Meyers, of Ann Arbor, Chosen President of the State Homoeopathic Society.

Members of the Grand Army and the guests who will attend the state encampment at Holland, June 21, 22, 23, will be given just a touch of Venetian night as one part of their entertainment. Venetian night on Black Lake has become one of the most widely known and grandest water spectacles produced in Michigan. At that time hundreds of launches, and thousands of other boats decorated with flowers, bunting and electric lights and the parks around the shores similarly decorated, transform the lake into a sea of beauty. While it will be impossible to produce all the features of this grand spectacle for the veterans because it is so early in the season, no small part of the display will be made for their enjoyment.

The military department of the state has promised to have present during the week the battalions of sailors serving from Benton Harbor, and invitations have been sent to the naval reserves of Illinois, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Ohio to send their boats to Black Lake for the occasion. It is expected some of them will be able to accept as every year these boats visit the resort during their annual cruises. This in addition to the great military feature of the week will be added the naval feature in which the inland fleet will take a prominent part.

The life-saving crew at Macatawa Park will give exhibitions daily for the enjoyment of the crowds and this is no small feature.

Deceased in Michigan.

Capt. H. E. Honeywell, of St. Louis, Mo., and his balloon "Centennial" landed at the little town of Shiloh, 10 miles north of Ionia, after being in the air 22 hours out of St. Louis and covering 450 miles in an attempt to capture the Lahm cup for long-distance flights.

"We got along nicely," said Honeywell, "enjoying a fine trip until we encountered a dead calm over central Michigan. Whether we went up or down we could find no favorable current, and so decided to land. We dropped gently and landed without the least jar or jolt in front of the Pine Valley resort at Shiloh and put up for the night. In the morning we were not strong enough to put in our wings and catch the air but left by train over Illinois to Rockford, Ill., and in the evening were entertained and we made good time."

70,000 GET WAGE INCREASE.

Standard Oil Adds Many Millions to Pay Envelopes of Its Employees.

New York.—A voluntary wage increase that will affect approximately 70,000 men has been made by the Standard Oil company. The remarkable increase to workmen who in the entire history of the concern have never been on strike, ranges from 6 to 10 per cent.

The order is retroactive and became effective May 1. It is estimated that the company will add from $67,000,000 to $10,000,000 to its annual pay roll expense.

The new scale affects employees engaged in the company's works and factories, but the office men will not be benefited by this increase. Most of the employees who will get the increase are laborers, and the advance applies to all the subsidiary companies in the United States.

The board of electric light and water commissioners of Marshall announce that it will rearrange the power house and add an additional water wheel so that about 600 horse power can be developed. Instead of the 300 horse power, as at present, this will cost about $5,000, all of which will be paid for out of the surplus on hand. There is also a plan on foot to have the city purchase the Rice Creek water power with which to furnish power to the city water works pumping station.

Judging from the interest shown in the premium list by fruit growers, this branch of the state fair entertainment will be bigger and better than ever this year. It is expected there will be displays from growers never before represented on the tables at the fair, and competition promises to be keen in this department.

Superintendent C. A. Peter of the live stock department of the state fair is one of the busiest men around the state fair office at the fair grounds. He is up to his eyes in work, and he is doing it. The body of the medalion is to be of rose gold and the trees in the oak ground of the miniature landscape in which the stamp appears are to be finished in green enamel.

Four daily flights by the noted Wright Bros' aeroplanes have been secured by the state fair management as the principal feature of the outdoor entertainment during fair week this year September 19-24. This will be the first appearance in Michigan of these world famous aviators and it is thought this feature of the fair alone will be worth a trip to Detroit. So popular have the Wright aeroplanes become that there is now a class of 20 young men in training to become expert aviators to show the machines around the country in various exhibitions.

Many thousands of dollars will be spent by the state fair board in furnishing free outdoor attractions. Liberator's Band and the Big Highlanders, the celebrated Scottish musical organization, will give daily concerts. Besides this there will be four flights daily by Wright Bros' aeroplanes, there will be diving horses, John's glass blowers, the best attraction of its kind in the country, the Midway will contain only highest class attractions and there will be a mammoth automobile show in the new automobile building which is being erected. "Bigger and better than ever" is the watchword of the state fair officials this year.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

Boy In Knickers a Wireless Wonder

WASHINGTON.—Dr. J. B. G. Gossip, a member of the United States senate committee on commerce, has been recently with respectful attention to the argument of a 13-year-old boy in knickers, who had been told by his father that he was a wireless wonder.

The youthful orator was William D. Stokes, Jr., of New York, and his theme was wireless telegraphy and telephony. He is president of the United Wireless Club of America, Ltd., and he is opposed to certain features of the DeWitt bill, which provides for government regulation of wireless telegraphy.

Master Stokes said the members of his organization were amateur wireless telegraphers, all of tender years. He told the committee that the boys favored a nominal license fee for wireless operators, the license to be revocable for "malpractice."

The boy lobbyist's voice was youthful, but his words were those of a grown man and a scientist and his hearers smiled broadly at hearing him roll fluently from his tongue the polysyllabic technical terms of his craft. However, they paid respectful attention to his arguments and appeared impressed by what he said.

When he had finished his argument against the bill the boy turned prophet. He said that in ten years it would be possible for persons on land to communicate with distant points by wireless.

"If a man has an automobile breakdown 25 miles from home, ten years from now," he said, "all he will have to do will be to take out his wireless kit, call up his father and tell him he will not come home to dinner."

Master Stokes also informed the members of the committee that for eight nations were far ahead of the United States in the development of wireless telegraphy and blamed the era of wireless stock speculation this country has experienced. He said there were between 25,000 and 40,000 boys in the United States interested in wireless telegraphy and expressed the belief that their experiments would prove of great value to the nation in the future.

Young Stokes is the son of the proprietor of the Ansonia apartment hotel in New York, and will be remembered as the first person to devise a receiving box for the interception of wireless telephone and telegraph messages.

This device was perfected in September, 1908, on the roof of his father's hotel. It was the result of long and secret experiments in which the boy was unaided. When his invention was examined by wireless experts they pronounced him an electrical prodigy.

Enough extent to demand protection under the contract labor law? Foolish question No. 667,765? No, not at all, but the chances are it will be a mighty serious question with the honorable the attorney general of the United States and the honorable the solicitor general, ditto, ditto, to say nothing of the president of the same place, who needs the cook.

Just how serious are the intentions of the president toward his former cook's relative in Sweden time alone will divulge, but labor union officials are not so reserved. They, through Secretary Frank Morrison of the American Federation of Labor, cannot understand how the president can even consider the importation of a cook from Sweden.

Mr. Morrison said he could not go into the details of the affair, because he did not know them but he said the president ought to know all about the law and ought not to think of doing such a thing. The contract labor law is plain and its provisions are not to be evaded.

THE CIRCULAR STAIRCASE

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

SYNOPSIS.

Miss Innes, spinster and guardian of Gertrude and Halsey, established summer headquarters at Sunnyside. Amidst numerous difficulties the servants deserted. As Miss Innes looked up for the night, she was startled by a dark figure on the veranda. She passed a terrible night which was filled with unseemly noises.

"There's going to be a death!" she wailed. "Oh, Miss Rachel, there's going to be a death!"

"There will be," I said grimly. "If you don't keep quiet, Liddy Allen."

"And so we sat there until morning, wondering if the candle would last until dawn, and arranging what trains we could take back to town. If we had only stuck to that decision and gone back before it was too late."

The sun came, finally, and from my window I watched the trees along the drive take shadowy form, gradually lose their ghostlike appearance, become gray and then green. The Greenwood club showed itself a dab of white against the hill across the valley, and an early robin or two hopped around in the dew. Not until the milk-boy and the sun came, about the same time, did I dare to open the door into the hall and look around. Everything was as we had left it. Trunks were heaped here and there, ready for the trunk-room, and through an end window of stained glass came a streak of red and yellow daylight that was eminently cheerful. The milk-boy was pounding somewhere below, and the day had begun.

Thomas Johnson came ambling up the drive about half-past six, and we could hear him clattering around on the lower floor, opening shutters. I had to take Liddy to her room upstairs, however—she was quite sure she would find something uncanny in fact, when she did not, having lost the courage of daylight, she was actually disappointed.

Well, we did not go back to town that day.

I warned Liddy not to mention what had happened to anybody, and telephoned to town for servants. Then, after a breakfast which did more credit to Thomas' heart than his head, I went on a short tour of investigation. The sound had come from the east wing, and not without some qualms I began there. At first I found nothing. Since then I have developed my powers of observation, but at that time I was a novice. The small card-room seemed undisturbed. I looked for footprints, which I believe, the conventional thing to do, although my experience has been that as clues both footprints and thumb marks are more useful in fiction than in fact. But the stairs in that wing offered nothing.

At the top of the flight had been placed a tall wicker hamper, packed with linen that had come from town. It stood at the edge of the top step, almost hailing passage, and on the step below it was a long, fresh scratch. For three steps the scratch was repeated, gradually diminishing, as if some object had fallen, striking each one. Then for four steps nothing. On the fifth step below was a round dent in the hard wood. That was all, and it seemed little enough, except that I was positive the marks had not been there the day before.

It bore out my theory of the sound, which had been for all the world like the bumping of a metallic object down a flight of steps. The four steps had been skipped. I reasoned that an iron bar, for instance, would do something of the sort—strike two or three steps, end down, then turn over, jumping a few stairs, and landing with a thud.

Iron bars, however, do not fall down stairs in the middle of the night alone. Coupled with the figure on the veranda, the agency by which it climbed might be assumed. But—and here was the thing that puzzled me most—the doors were all fastened that morning, the windows unmoled, and the particular door from the card room to the veranda had a combination lock of which I held the key, and which had not been tampered with.

I fixed on an attempt at burglary, as the most natural explanation—an attempt frustrated by the falling of the object, whatever it was, that had roused me. Two things I could not understand; how the intruder had escaped with everything locked, and why he had left the small silver, which, in the absence of a butler, had remained downstairs over night.

In the afternoon a hack came up from Casanova, with a fresh relay of servants. The driver took them with a flourish to the servants' entrance, and drove around to the front of the house, where I was awaiting him.

"Two dollars," he said in reply to my question. "I don't charge full rates, because, bringin' 'em up all summer as I do, it pays to make a special price. When they got off the train I sez, sez I, 'There's another bunch for Sunnyside, cook, parlor maid and all.' Yes'm—six summers, and a new lot never less than once a month. They won't stand for the country and the loneliness, I reckon."

But with the presence of the

"I Was Roused by a Revolver Shot."

"bunch" of servants my courage revived, and late in the afternoon came a message from Gertrude that she and Halsey would arrive that night at about 11 o'clock, coming in the car from Richfield. Things were looking up; and when Beulah, my cat, a most intelligent animal, found some early catnip on a bank near the house and rolled in it in a feline ecstasy, I decided that getting back to nature was the thing to do.

While I was dressing for dinner, Liddy rapped at the door. She was hardly herself yet, but privately I think she was worrying about the broken mirror and its augury, more than anything else. When she came in she was holding something in her hand, and she laid it on the dressing table carefully.

"I found it in the linen hamper," she said. "It must be Mr. Halsey's, but it seems queer how it got there."

It was the half of a flask cut but- ton of native design, and I looked at it carefully.

"Where was it? In the bottom of the hamper?" I asked.

"On the very top," she replied. "It's a mercy it didn't fall out on the way."

When Liddy had gone I examined the fragment attentively. I had never seen it before, and I was certain it was not Halsey's. It was of Italian workmanship, and consisted of a mother-of-pearl foundation, encrusted with tiny seed pearls, strung on horsehair to hold them. In the center was a small ruby. The trinket was odd enough, but not intrinsically of great value. Its interest for me lay in this: Liddy had found it lying in the top of the hamper which had blocked the east wing stairs.

That afternoon the Armstrongs' housekeeper, a youngish good-looking woman, applied for Mrs. Ralston's place, and I was glad enough to take her. She looked as though she might be equal to a dozen of Liddy, with her snapping black eyes and heavy jaw. Her name was Anne Watson, and I dined that evening for the first time in three days.

CHAPTER III.

Mr. John Bailey Appears.

I had dinner served in the breakfast room. Somehow the huge dining room depressed me, and Thomas, cheerful enough all day, allowed his spirits to go down with the sun. He had a habit of watching the corners of the room, left shadowy by the candles on the table, and altogether it was not a festive meal.

Dinner over I went into the living room. I had three hours before the children could possibly arrive, and I got out my knitting.

The chug of the automobile as it climbed the hill was the most welcome sound I had heard for a long time, and with Gertrude and Halsey actually before me, my troubles seemed over for good. Gertrude stood smiling in the hall, with her hat quite over one ear, and her hair in every direction under her pink veil. Gertrude is a very pretty girl, no matter how her hat is, and I was not surprised when Halsey presented a good-looking young man, who bowed at me and looked at Trude—that is the ridiculous nickname Gertrude brought from school.

"I have brought a guest, Aunt Ray," Halsey said. "I want you to adopt him into your affections and your Saturday-to-Monday list. Let me present John Bailey, only you must call him Jack. In 12 hours he'll be calling you 'Aunt'; I know him."

We shook hands, and I got a chance to look at Mr. Bailey; he was a tall fellow, perhaps 30, and he wore a small mustache. I remember wondering why he seemed to have a good mouth and when he smiled his teeth were above the average. One never knows why certain men cling to a messy upper lip that must get into things, any more than one understands some women building up their hair on wire atrocities. Otherwise, he was very good to look at, stalwart and tanned, with the direct gaze that I like. I am particular about Mr. Bailey, because he was a prominent figure in what happened later.

Gertrude was tired with the trip and went up to bed very soon. I made up my mind to tell them nothing until the next day. And then to make as light of our excitement as possible. After all, what had I to tell? An inquisitive face peering in at a window; a crash in the night; a scratch or two on the stairs, and half a cuff Liddy! As for Thomas and his forebodings, it was always my belief that a negro is one part truth, one part pigment, and the rest superstition.

It was Saturday night. The two men went to the billiard room, and I could hear them talking as I went up stairs. It seemed that Halsey had stopped at the Greenwood club for gasoline and found Jack Bailey there, with the Sunday golf crowd. Mr. Bailey had not been hard to persuade—probably Gertrude knew why—and they had carried him off triumphantly. I roused Liddy to get them something to eat—Thomas was beyond reach, in the lodge—and paid no attention to her evident terror of the kitchen regions. Then I went to bed. The men were still in the billiard room when I finally dozed off, and the last thing I remember was the howl of a dog in front of the house. It wailed a crescendo of woe that trailed off hopefully, only to break out afresh from a new point of the compass.

At three o'clock in the morning I was roused by a revolver shot. The sound seemed to come from just outside my door. For a moment I could not move. Then I heard Gertrude stirring in her room, and the next moment she had thrown open the connecting door.

"O, Aunt Ray! Aunt Ray!" she cried hysterically. "Some one has been killed!"

"Thieves," I said shortly. "Thank goodness, there are some men in the house to-night." I was getting into my slippers and a bath-robe, and Gertrude with shaking hands was lighting a lamp. Then we opened the door into the hall, where, crowded on the upper landing of the stairs, the maids, white-faced and trembling, were peering down, headed by Liddy. I was greeted by a series of low screams and questions, and I tried to quiet them. Gertrude had dropped on a chair and sat there limp and shivering.

I went at once across the hall to Halsey's room and knocked; then I pushed the door open. It was empty; the bed had not been occupied.

"He must be in Mr. Bailey's room," I said excitedly, and followed by Liddy, we went there. Like Halsey's, it had not been occupied! Gertrude was on her feet now, but she leaned against the door for support.

"They have been killed!" she gasped. Then she caught me by the arm and dragged me toward the stairs. "They may only be hurt, and we must find them," she said, her eyes dilated with excitement.

daring to stay behind. We found the living room and the drawing room undisturbed. Somehow I felt that what ever we found would be in the card room or on the staircase; and nothing but the fear that Halsey was in danger drove me on; with every step my knees seemed to give way under me. Gertrude was ahead and in the card room she stopped, holding her candle high. Then she pointed silently to the doorway into the hall beyond. Huddled there on the floor, face down, with his arms extended, was a man. Gertrude ran forward with a gasping sob. "Jack," she cried, "Oh, Jack!"

CHAPTER IV.

"Where is Halsey?"

Gertrude gazed at the face in a kind of fascination. Then she put out her hands blindly, and I thought she was going to faint.

"He has killed him!" she muttered almost inarticulately; and at that, because my nerves were going, I gave her a good shake.

"What do you mean?" I said frantically. There was a depth of grief and conviction in her tone that was worse than anything she could have said. The shake braced her, anyhow, and she seemed to pull herself together. But not another word would she say; she stood gazing down at that gruesome figure on the floor, while Liddy, ashamed of her flight and afraid to come back, drove before her three terrified women servants into the drawing room, which was as near as any of them would venture.

Once in the drawing room, Gertrude collapsed and went from one fainting spell into another. I had all I could do to keep Liddy from drowning her with cold water, and the maids huddled in a corner, as much use as so many sheep. In a short time, although it seemed hours, a car came rushing up, and Anne Watson, who had waited to dress, opened the door. Three men from the Greenwood club, in all kinds of costumes, hurried in. I recognized a Mr. Jarvis, but the others were strangers.

"What's wrong?" the Jarvis man asked, and we made a strange picture, no doubt. Nobody hurt, is there?" He was looking at Gertrude.

"Worse than that," Mr. Jarvis, I said. "I think it is murder."

At the word there was a commotion. The cook began to cry, and Mrs. Watson knuckled over a chair. The men were visibly impressed.

"Not any member of the family?" Mr. Jarvis asked, when he had got his breath.

"No," I said, and motioning Liddy to look after Gertrude, I led the way with a lamp to the cardroom door. One of the men gave an exclamation, and they all hurried across the room. Mr. Jarvis took the lamp from me—I remember that—and then feeling myself getting dizzy and light-headed I closed my eyes. When I opened them their brief examination was over, and Mr. Jarvis was trying to put me in a chair.

"You must get upstairs," he said firmly, "you and Miss Gertrude, too. This has been a terrible shock. In his own home, too."

I stared at him without comprehension. "Who is it?" I asked with difficulty. There seemed a band drawn tight around my throat.

"It is Arnold Armstrong," he said, looking at me oddly, "and he has been murdered—in his father's house."

After a minute I gathered myself together and Mr. Jarvis helped me into the living room. Liddy had got Gertrude upstairs; and the two strange men from the club stayed with the body. The reaction from the shock and strain was tremendous; I was collapsed—and then Mr. Jarvis asked me a question that brought back my wandering faculties.

"Where is Halsey?" he asked.

"Halsey!" Suddenly Gertrude's stricken face rose before me—the empty room upstairs. Where was Halsey?

"He was here, wasn't he?" Mr. Jarvis persisted. "He stopped at the club on his way over?"

"I don't know where he is," I said feebly.

One of the men from the club came in, asked for the telephone, and I could hear him excitedly talking, saying something about corners and detectives. Mr. Jarvis leaned over to me.

"Why don't you trust me, Miss Innes?" he said. "If I can do anything I will. But tell me the whole thing." I did, finally, from the beginning, and when I told of Jack Bailey's being in the house that night he gave a long whistle.

"I wish they were both here," he said when I finished. "Whatever mad prank took them away, it would look better if they were here. Especially—"

Animals In Kitchen Peril to Health

INSECTS play a large part as mechanical carriers of disease and none is worse than the common house fly, yet it is allowed to infest meat exposed for sale, bread and sweetmeats, berries, the edge of the milk pail and the food on the kitchen table.

The keynote of cleanliness is especially sounded with respect to keeping pet animals in the kitchen. The fur of the cleanest of them must come in contact with many things which we would not care to have touch our food.

This information is imparted in a bulletin issued by the department of agriculture, prepared under the supervision of the office of experiment stations. It is entitled, "Care of Food in the Home," and is for free distribution. Its author, Mrs. Mary Hinman Abel, has advanced many new ideas and called attention to many simple house methods that make for cleanliness and wholesomeness of foods in the home.

One of the most important suggestions is that in regard to plomatom poisoning. On this subject the author says:

"I had many become dangerous even before it shows outward signs of decomposition and the danger hardly to be recognized without laboratory apparatus. It is no uncommon thing to hear that a large number of persons attending a banquet were taken violently ill within a few hours. These cases of wholesale poisoning generally occur in summer after a heated term. It is a safe rule to cut sparingly of foods liable to changes in hot weather and where the serving of a large number at one time brings a strain on the culinary forces, when material is certain to be served which has been prepared a considerable time in advance."

Mrs. Abel thinks ordinary kitchen methods fall short of today's requirements, especially with respect to sanitary science. The old fashioned method for dirt is not enough. This applies especially with respect to the cleaning of kitchen utensils. For instance, boiling has long been known to kill whatever was the cause of "spoiling" food. However, most housekeepers did not "boil out" the milk cans, etc., but simply scalded them.

As a reward for cleanliness it is suggested that the merchant who keeps his goods in a sanitary condition merits patronage for his efforts. The praise and blame of the buyer has much to do with the keeping up of the standards of the dealer and it is held by some writers that the growing use of the telephone in ordering the dinner, thus bringing about absentee buying, is responsible for many bad conditions.

The author further states that "not one customer in a thousand sees the conditions under which bread and pastry are manufactured and it is this removal from public view and criticism, that constitutes the chief difficulty in enforcing existing laws for the proper construction of bakeries and for sanitary methods for carrying on the business."

The concluding topic in the bulletin has to do with cleanliness in public eating places and calls attention to the results of the inspection of restaurants and lunchrooms. Kitchen in this city by the board of health, which indicated that the matter is one which needs to be under control. Proper ventilation in kitchens and suitable sanitary conveniences making for clean food, are matters of public hygiene.

NORTHVILLE, MICH., MAY 27, '10.

"Tis 'Tis True"

Without the slightest pretentious conversation to lighten the shock or extenuate the impoliteness of it, the Record of Northville, Mich., stands right up editorially and sagely.

While Detroit is bragging about its great automobile industries it ought to brag about being the leading city in the world for bad roads leading from its limits in all directions. From the boulevard west to the city limits on Grand River there is a mile of roads that would be a disgrace to a huckleberry swamp lane. After the fall of a few drops of rain every road leading out of Detroit for about ten miles is almost impassable. Think of seventy-five miles of nice roads and then ten miles of impassable just before reaching the greatest automobile city on the western continent.

The particularly irritating and embarrassing feature of this abrupt assault upon our metropolitan dignity is the indisputable fact that it is all entirely true. Detroit, not only the greatest automobile center on the western continent but in the world, is likewise, quite consciously and most humiliatedly, the radial center of the worst roads in all the neglected and impassable highways of Michigan.

In splendor and pride we dash about Detroit's streets in our fifty-seven varieties of motor cars, leading, entrancing and "selling" the world, only to drop off into quagmires when we approach our own sacred city limits. They're atrocious—that is, the suburban roads out of Detroit. As the Record points out the automobile world tours to the automobile center of the world only to find the worst roads in the world hemming us in on three sides.

They are the citizens of Detroit who should organize a campaign for better roads, get appropriations and if necessary, subscriptions for it. Let us all do something about it—Detroit town.

As the result of the above editorial from the Record and the Journal W. K. Anderson, a big automobile manufacturer of Detroit, has offered to donate $1,000 towards the betterment of roads leading out of Detroit. Would there were more moneyed men of the enterprise of Mr. Anderson. If this controversy will even result in the building of the half mile stretch leading from the boulevard on Grand River avenue to the city limits, where the automobile highways, a great good will have been accomplished.

The Wayne County Road Commission is doing all it can along this line but it is handicapped for appropriations and also because it is compelled by the superiors to do the work in a patch-work manner, putting in a mile or so roads and thus cannot complete any one road for some years.

Plenty of Backbone.

There are a lot of things yet to take place which may elect the gubernatorial situation. It is quite natural that Patrick H. Keller should get the support of the political clans around Lansing. He is a genial man who makes friends naturally. We have yet failed, however, to note any inclination on his part to make friends at the expense of the state. We do remember one occasion when Mr. Keller, then, as now, lieutenant governor, was called upon to decide by his vote between the sixteen immortals and the sixteen men who stood for progressive legislation. On that occasion, and always so far as we have observed, the affable, educated official has made good. Isn't it true that a Michigan born boy who has educated himself, and who graduated from the State Normal college, became an educator of state wide reputation, graduated in law from the U. of M., made a record as a lawyer, held the important offices above named, presided over the state senate and kept his record clean, isn't it just possible that all this experience has just fitted him for a rare governor?—Charlotte Tribune

Mrs. J. R. Cranson, 8 Center St., Northville, Mich., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been used in our household and have given entire satisfaction. A member of my family was troubled by a lame back and pains in the joints and when Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended, we decided to give them a trial. A supply was procured from Murdock Bros. drug store and they soon brought relief. There has been no return of the trouble since. I have been convinced that Doan's Kidney Pills are an effective kidney remedy."

FRIDAY AND SAT.

BALL GAMES

NORTHVILLE TEAMS WINNERS IN BOTH CONTESTS.

Circle N Boys White Washed the Holly High School.

Those who attended the ball games Friday and Saturday were well paid for their time and money. Friday's was between the High school teams of Northville and the McMillan of Detroit. Up to the 8th inning the score was 2 to 0 in Detroit's favor and then the Detroit pitcher went up and before he came down again Northville had run in 7 scores. There was nothing doing in the 9th.

Ball pitched a remarkable game for the home team, allowing the Detroiters only four hits. E. Stimpson caught and the support on the field was about as perfect as could be asked for. Supt. LaRue was very proud of his team at the end of the game.

Saturday's game commenced with the grandstand black with people.

(See picture.) It was the Circle N boys against the Holly High school Johnson pitched a shut out game and the white wash was applied to the Holly fellows with a big brush. Only a couple of times did they see a base beyond the initial neck.

The score wound up 10 to 0, eight of them being made in the first two innings. The home team played all around the batters in base running, sliding and with the stick.

Johnson and E. Stimpson were the batters for the home team and

Johnson and Atkinson for Holly. (Top much Johnson, but no relation.) Bobber Brown did the usual good umpire stunt. The Northville band furnished delightful music for this game.

"Pity Tis 'Tis True"

Without the slightest preface conversation to lighten the shock or extenuate the impoliteness of it, the Record of Northville, Mich., stands right up editorially and saucily:

While Detroit is bragging about its great automobile industries it ought to brag about being the leading city in the world for bad roads leading from its limits in all directions. From the boulevard west to the city limits on Grand River there is a mile of roads that would be a disgrace to a huckleberry swamp lane. After the fall of a few drops of rain every road leading out of Detroit for about ten miles is almost impassable. Think of seventy-five miles of nice roads and then ten miles of impassable just before reaching the greatest automobile city on the western continent.

The particularly irritating and embarrassing feature of this abrupt assault upon our metropolitan dignity is the indisputable fact that it is all entirely true. Detroit, not only "the greatest automobile center on the western continent" but in the world, is likewise, quite conclusively and most humiliatedly, the radial center of the worst roads in all the neglected and impassable highways of Michigan.

In splendor and pride we dash about Detroit's streets in our fifty-seven varieties of motor cars, leading, entrancing and "selling" the world, only to drop off into quagmires when we approach our own sacred city limits. They're atrocious—that is, the suburban roads out of Detroit. As the Record points out, the automobile world tours to the automobile center of the world only to find the worst roads in the world hemming us in on three sides.

They are the citizens of Detroit who should organize a campaign for better roads, get appropriations and if necessary, subscriptions for it. Let us all do something about it.—(Detroit Journal)

As the result of the above editorial from the Record and the learned W. K. Anderson, a big auto manufacturer of Detroit, has offered to donate $1,000 towards the betterment of roads leading out of Detroit. Would there were more moneyed men of the enterprise of Mr. Anderson. If this controversy will even result in the building of the half mile stretch leading from the boulevards on Grand River avenue to the city limits, where the macadam begins, a great good will have been accomplished.

The Wayne County Good Roads commission is doing all it can along this line, but it is handicapped for appropriations and also because it is compelled by the supervisors to do the work in patch work manner putting in a mile or so roads and thus cannot complete any one road for some years.

Plenty of Backbone.

There are a lot of things yet to take place which may effect the gubernatorial situation. It is quite natural that Patrick H. Kelley should get the support of the political clans around Lansing. He is a genial man who makes friends naturally. We have yet failed, however, to note any inclination on his part to make friends at the expense of the state. We do remember one occasion when Mr. Kelley, then, as now, lieutenant governor, was called upon to decide by his vote between the sixteen immortals and the sixteen men who stood for progressive legislation. On that occasion, and always so far as we have observed, the affable, educated official has made good. Isn't it true that a Michigan born boy who has educated himself, and who graduated from the State Normal college, became an educator of state wide reputation, graduated in law from the U. of M., made a record as a lawyer, held the important offices above named, presided over the state senate and kept his record clean, isn't it just possible that all this experience has just fitted him for a rare governor?—Charlotte Tribune

The tickets for Commencement week will be reserved at Murdoch's drug store Monday, May 30, at 9 a. m. We hope that everyone will take advantage of this exceptionally low price for the week and get a reserved seat a week from Monday, June 6, the board will be up for the Senior Class Day and Commencement. Single ticket for these.

Some of the patrons will receive notes from the different teachers in regard to the work of their boys and girls if they are not up to the standard. These notices are sent in the hope of some few cases that by the hearty co-operation of parent and teacher something may be done to improve the condition.

The School Savings bank deposit last Friday was the lowest it has been in some time. This was due to the large number who forgot their money at the morning session and as there was no school in most of the grades in the afternoon a small deposit was the result. There is still three weeks in which to raise $70. We hope that the parents will help as much as they can. The deposit by grades was as follows: Kindergarten $51; First $70; Second $233; Third $90; Fourth $1.64; Fifth $12.55; Sixth $1.45; Seventh $2.00; Eighth $8.60; High school $8.05 Total $29.63.

A wife will insist that the husband shall not go out of the house without a razor without two undershirts, a liver pad, and a muffler on, in addition to his regular clothes. Yet as soon as he is safely down town she will rush out of the hot kitchen bare headed and bare armed to hang out clothes, so as to get ahead of the woman next door, or she will tramp off down town, from house to house to work up some society or church enterprise with nothing on her head but a little pince-nez or a hat, and shoes not thicker than a newspaper. Isn't this so?

FRIDAY AND SAT.

BALL GAMES

NORTHVILLE TEAMS WINNERS IN BOTH CONTESTS.

Circle N Boys - White Washed the Holly High School.

Those who attended the ball games Friday and Saturday were well paid for their time and money. Friday's was between the High school teams of Northville and the McMillan of Detroit. Up to the 8th inning the score was 2 to 0 in Detroit's favor and then the Detroit pitcher went up and before he came down again Northville had run in 7 scores. There was nothing doing in the 9th.

Ball pitched a remarkable game for the home team, allowing the Detroiters only four hits. D. Simpson caught and the support on the field was about as perfect as could be asked for. Supt. Laflue was very proud of his team at the end of the game.

Saturday's game commenced with the grand stand black with people.

(See picture) It was the Circle N boys against the Holly High school. Johnson pitched a shut-out game and the white wash was applied to the Holly fellows with a big brush. Only a couple of times did they see a base and the initial sack.

The score wound up 10 to 0, eight of them being made in the first two innings. The home team played all around the Hollyites in base running, hitting and with the stick.
