Water Power Aids State.

The development of water powers in California has helped boom the state by bringing in new industries and helping old industries with plenty of cheap electric power available.

THE RECRUIT.

Political Notes.

Hon. Larry Snell, Humphrey Brown and Chas. O'Sell are candidates for senatorial honors from this first district.

There are three candidates for Lieutenant governor: A. T. Rice of Berlin, L. D. Dickinson of Eaton Rapids and John Q. Ross of Muskegon county.

Representative Fred Burnham is candidate for reelection from this district and has no opposition. He has made a splendid record and deserves well of the people again.

According to the Detroit Journal there is to be a spirited contest on between Judge Harry Hulbert and George H. Carlisle for the office of associate probate judge at the September primaries.

The venomous Herald-Leader is a staunch supporter of Chase Osborn for governor, but Editor Andrews does not approve of its candidate's attacks on Gov. Warner. Thus the Herald-Leader in its issue of Aug. 8: 'What is Warnerism in Michigan, and for what has Warner stood? Since he became governor the railroads have been added to those present on tax-paying day. The primary law has been safeguarded, the sleeping car, telegraph and express companies have been forcibly added to the tax lists.

'The state is richer and better and fairer because of Warnerism.'

'Governor Warner is as square as a die. Crooked and unscrupulous men have wormed themselves into his confidence and his administration, but they have been discovered and slowly, but surely, found their just deserts.'

'Armstrong is serving behind the bars. Corrupt and bloodthirsty political buccaners, who plundered the state under the uniform of republicanism, have been captured on Warner's trail for years. He has been hounded and tempted and plotted against, but the character of the man as a man and as a public official remains spotless.'

'This is no eulogy of Warner to repay any favor. He has been square, he has been honest, he has kept the faith. That is Warnerism.'

'The record of the last six years will stand in Michigan history, insofar as Fred Warner is concerned, as the story of a man who was unafraid, and whose enemies felt themselves into the pit they dug for him. Warnerism is Warner. But his enemies would have it that Warnerism is every crook who has been caught masquerading as an honest man in republican state politics.'

'The future will straighten it all out.'

LIVONIA NEWS.

C. F. Smith and wife entertained company from Detroit Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kincade buried their ten months' old baby Sunday.

The social given in the hall Saturday evening was well attended and a good time had.

Mr. and Mrs. George Flint of Detroit are visiting at Joseph McEachran's this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Radford and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Radford and two daughters came out from Detroit Sunday and spent the day with Frank Peck and wife.

Oscar Minkley, an old and respected citizen at the Center, passed away Monday morning after about ten days' failing. Buried Wednesday in Center cemetery.

As She Is Spoken.

'English is a funny language, after all, isn't it? Why so?' 'I heard a man talking of a political candidate the other day, say. 'If he only takes this stand when he runs he'll have a walk-over.'''

Requisite for Happiness.

The best conditions for future happiness lie in the largest possible appreciation of the present.—C. B. Newcomb.

Root—Risner.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Risner at Novi was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock, when their youngest daughter, Ella M., was united in marriage to Mr. Eugene M. Root by Rev. Mr. Carr of Green Oak. About thirty guests were present and as Miss Camilla Risner, sister of the bride, played the wedding march the guests passed from an outside door around the house, the ladies on one side and the gentlemen on the other, when, at the front porch, they met and the bridal party stepped onto the porch which was prettily decorated with evergreens and water lilies. Rev. Carr then pronounced the very impressive, though pretty ring service, after which the father of the bride offered prayer.

The bride wore a dress of pink batiste over lavender silk mull and carried water lilies. She was attended by Mrs. Luella Ward of South Lyon, as matron of honor, and Miss Lucile Curtis of Salem as bridesmaid. Messrs. Clarence Hake and Guy Nichols were groomsmen.

Immediately after congratulations had been extended to the bride and groom a dainty wedding breakfast was served on the lawn, the tables being decorated with water lilies.

The presents were numerous and very useful.

Mr. and Mrs. Root left on their wedding trip for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Saratoga Springs, Lake George, Adirondack Mountains down the Hudson River to New York City.

The bride was a former Northville resident and her many friends here unite in wishing herself and husband a life of happiness and prosperity.

The happy couple will be at home to their many friends on their farm home one-half mile north of Novi after October 1.

Strange Things Are Happening Politically.

The first desertions in the ranks of the three candidates for the republican gubernatorial nomination have been registered, and Chase S. Osborn is the unfortunate leader who has been renounced.

The Charlevoix Courier, a paper which has vigorously supported the candidacy of the Soo man, publicly announces that it cannot consistently endorse him to the republican voters of Charlevoix county because Mr. Osborn's persistent attacks upon the republican party have made it impossible for them to advocate him as a fitting leader for the party during the next election. In a fair but determined manner the Courier says:

"It is with a feeling of regret that we read of the campaign he is making, one in which he leaves out all consideration of his own merits and his splendid equipment for the office of governor of Michigan, but devotes himself to seeking to create a prejudice against Mr. Kelley, whom he considers his strongest opponent, and belittling the candidacy of Mr. Munro. We will still advocate Mr. Osborn's nomination on those grounds, although we do not believe he is equipped for the office and will probably vote for him next September."

"When we think of the splendid services of Patrick H. Kelley as lieutenant governor and how his vote and influence was always used in the people's favor, we refuse to subscribe to the doctrine whether made by our favorite or any other man, that he is a crook and a dishonest fellow. We are not going to let a man who has done so much for the state, and who will be so completely brushed aside by the candidate of that splendid Grand Rapids business man, Mr. Munro, be injured by the campaign and by the cause of the republican party by these tactics which are alienating his friends and supporters all over the state, and we hope that during the balance of his campaign he will change his tactics, and talk about the affairs of state as he has announced in his platform, and not let his time be taken to create a prejudice in the minds of the people against his opponents."

The general tone of this editorial leaves no doubt that the Courier regrets the fact that it is compelled to desert its leaders just as the campaign waxes hot, and it leaves no doubt that the Courier in taking the step is doing so for what it considers the good of the party as a whole. It is this that makes its desertion so significant.—Lansing Republican

A Steady Drain.

Sick Kidneys Weaken the Whole Body—Make You Ill, Languid and Depressed.

Sick kidneys weaken the body through the continual drainage of life-giving albumen from the blood into the urine, and the substitution of poisonous uric acid that goes broad-cast through the system, sowing the seeds of disease. Loss of albumen causes weakness, languor, depression. Uric poisoning causes rheumatic pain, nervousness, nausea, cricks in the back, gravel and kidney stones. The proper treatment is a kidney treatment, and the best remedy is Doan's Kidney Pills. Great Northville cures prove it.

W. H. Denton, Horton Ave., Northville, Mich., says: "Some years ago my kidneys were badly disordered and I was annoyed by too frequent and painful passages of the kidney secretion. I suffered from severe pains in the small of my back and I was unable to get relief. Finally I procured Doan's Kidney Pills from Murdock Bros. Drug Store and they soon drove away the pain in my back and strengthened my kidneys. I do not hesitate to recommend this valuable kidney medicine to anyone afflicted with kidney complaint."

For sale by all druggists. Price 50 cents. Foster-McMunn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

The City in Brief.

Mrs. Elsie Dodge is quite ill.
Mrs. Fred VanSickle is still very poorly.
Mrs. S. J. Lawrence was numbered among the sick last week.
Mrs. Roy Clark, who was ill last week and part of this, is convalescent.

A cement cross walk has been laid on High street across Randolph street.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Claude Walters on Tuesday, August 9, a daughter.

Mrs. John Crommer will entertain the Larkins club August 17th at the home of Jake Crommer.

James Sessions has been very poorly of late and confined to the house most of the time.

Fred Hixson and family have moved into the Mrs. Fred Carpenter house on north Center street.

This is the time of year when people are entertaining company or visiting out of town. Just let the Record know about it.

A Noble has commenced repairs on his place on south Center street and when completed will be one of the finest places in town.

About seventy six members of the G. A. R. Post and W. R. C. took in the excursion to Rutolo last week and had a jolly good time.

In the memorable battle in the senate of 1907, when sixteen senators were fighting sixteen others, Lieutenant Kelley stood by the sixteen who were fighting for legislation the people demanded. There never was no question as to where he was in the fight. He went right out where the clubs were thickest and gave and took as occasion offered, but through it all he retained the respect of his opponents. That's characteristic of Patrick H. Kelley.—Almont Herald.

A PLACE in the CITY.

For a Girl Seeking Pleasant and Profitable Employment the Bell Telephone Office, in Detroit, Offers Attractive Inducements.

AT WORK AND AT PLAY.

PAID WHILE LEARNING

LUNCH AT ALL HOURS.

The opportunities for ladylike, attractive, and congenial work in the city of Detroit have frequently been the subject of conversation among those persons who study sociological conditions, but not enough importance has been given to the equally interesting fact that these opportunities are also accessible to girls who live at a distance from Detroit.

Yet there are hundreds of bright girls living in the many smaller towns of Michigan just as eager to make use of their intelligence, capacity, and ability for steady work as there are in the largest city of our State. It seems odd, at first glance, why attention has not already been drawn to this fact, and it may be that the distance between two apparently remote towns was supposed to be an insurmountable obstacle against such girls taking advantage of their own intelligence and ability. But this need no longer be considered in the same light as heretofore.

The Michigan State Telephone Company, a corporation which is part of the immense body supplying telephone service all over the United States, is in a position not only to provide congenial employment to the right kind of girl but also to protect her as an individual from the annoyances and inconveniences experienced by so many others earning their own living in Detroit, and this, too, no matter how far her home may be from that city.

The story of how this is done is an interesting one, but will be told as briefly as possible.

We will consider, for the sake of example, the case of a girl living in a town one hundred miles from Detroit. We will suppose her to be a refined girl, of good parentage, but with a dash of that fine American independence which leads her to want to help support herself. She feels that she has the power of doing good work when the kind of work given appeals to her sense of refinement, she is clever, she has common sense and she can be depended upon. These qualities have come to her naturally and she says to herself that she has the right to make proper use of them. To some of these young women the idea of work at a telephone switchboard must undoubtedly have come some time or other. They know little or nothing about it, perhaps, but they do know that the work is dignified. They realize that the telephone girl, as she makes desired connections, one after the other, with deft fingers and alert brain, is an all-important unit in the throbbing business life of today.

The girl of whom we write thinks of this among other things, and perhaps she laments the fact that she lives so far away from the scene of such attractions. Yet she is the very girl that the telephone company is willing to take, teach and protect as she does her allotted part of the great work.

Any fear that she may be lost in a big strange city may be dismissed at once. The Michigan State Telephone Company has established a series of boarding houses near its various exchanges. Each is in charge of a trustworthy matron, who sees that bed and board are provided for her at reasonable living rates, and that she shall never come into contact with undesirable persons. As for the exchanges themselves, they possess most of the comforts of home and many which our heroine could not obtain at home at all.

Take, for example, the Main exchange, the other eight exchanges have the same facilities, but we will consider this one because it is the largest. We will follow our out-of-town girl as she enters the building. Arrangements have been made ahead of her arrival, and the various steps are already smoothed out for her.

She goes first to the Operators' School. There she fills out her application blank, if she has not already done so, and is introduced to the instructor. The girl will probably start right away as a pupil in the school.

So much time lost, she may think, before beginning to earn money? Not at all. The company pays her a salary right away! That salary begins from the moment she enters the school, and continues, whether she takes two weeks or four, weeks, or even six weeks, to learn her work. It may be mentioned, incidentally, that some of those who have turned out the best and most reliable operators have been longest in the school.

Our out-of-town girl will then come to learn that there is a beautiful rest-room provided for the operators, where, for intervals of fifteen minutes, her morning and afternoon shifts are broken for that length of time so that she may return refreshed to the board. In this rest-room there is a player piano, to which she may dance when in the mood. There is a branch of the Detroit Public Library, put there so that she may draw freely what book she wants simply by filling out a card and it will be sent to her. There are beautiful, refreshing bath tubs, and above all, there is a popular matron in charge of everything.

Lunch? Dinner? Why, yes. The girl does not have to go out of the building for that. A cafe and kitchen, maintained by the telephone company at great expense, await her daily appetite. Food is sold there at quite nominal prices—ridiculous prices, some people might say. Think of a piece of homemade pie for three cents, a glass of pure milk for the same queer price, and as for such a meal as may be obtained for fifteen cents, well, we doubt if the St. Regis Hotel in New York could do better for fifteen dollars!

But to get back to the work. Our heroine, after she has been in the school and been thoroughly grounded in her work—the company never puts inexperienced girls at the board—is now ready to be a real telephone girl. She may be a little nervous at first, but she finds that the two experienced girls on both sides of her will take care of that. They help her out with her calls, to say nothing of the Supervisor, or "Captain of Nine" who walks up and down behind nine girls and sees that none of them gets into difficulties.

Now, the particular quality of telephone work, and that which appeals to many girls, is that they never come into contact with the public. They do not have to meet undesirable people. Even over the telephone wires, when an unreasonable or impatient subscriber "abuses" her, she is not compelled to listen to any tirades. She could not make the other connections wanted by the public if she did. But whether she is busy or not, the company protects the telephone girl from the abusive subscriber by directing her to "switch" him to the Chief Operator's desk, where he (or she) can be handled at more leisure by employees who will smooth out the difficulties of which the subscriber may complain.

The telephone girl does not have to handle any soiled or dangerous equipment, or to get in the way of any machinery. She takes hold only of cords, keys and plugs, which are necessarily kept free from dust, or they would deteriorate. And the same equipment which protects the subscriber and the switchboard tender from lightning protects also the telephone girl.

The young woman of whom we are writing will find that while, in the telephone business as in other kinds, there is no royal road to learning, yet she has nevertheless but few difficulties to encounter, and that the company has made her way as smooth as possible. This is not philanthropy on the part of the Michigan State Telephone Company. It makes no such claim. Of course there is the natural respect which the men at the head of the organization feel for the girl who earns her living—all decent men possess that feeling—but this making of things to be as attractive as possible for the girls is one dictated by business motives. The better the girl, and the better she may be made by the company itself, the better she will do its work. The prosperity and success of a telephone company depend upon the class of service which it furnishes, and this depends upon its standard of employee.

And the first-class operator need not always remain an operator. There are innumerable opportunities for advancement not only with the telephone company, but also with hotels and great corporations which have private branch exchanges.

The girl who lives at a distance from Detroit may reflect upon these things. She may address a letter to the Operators' School, Michigan State Telephone Co., Detroit, and the reply sent will give her abundant information on what to do if she wishes to apply for a position. It will be worth while.

A BAD THING TO NEGLECT.

Don't neglect the kidneys when you notice lack of control over the secretions. Passages become too frequent or scanty; urine is discolored and sediment appears. No medicine for such troubles like Doan's Kidney Pills. They quickly remove kidney disorders.

A. Daskin, 241 N. Grant St., Worcester, O., says: "The doctor diagnosed my case as gravel, but my agony increased under their treatment, and I soon became too weak to stand alone. I had given up all hope of living more than a few weeks at the best. I was strongly urged to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and after twelve days' use, I passed two gravel stones. After that, I improved rapidly until cured."

A COOL PROPOSITION

And a Sure One.

The Body Does Not Feel Heat Unpleasantly if it has Proper Food—

Grape-Nuts

People can live in a temperature which feels from ten to twenty degrees cooler than their neighbors enjoy, by regulating the diet.

The plan is to avoid meat entirely for breakfast; use a goodly allowance of fruit, either fresh or cooked. Then follow with a saucer containing about four heaping teaspoons of Grape-Nuts, treated with a little rich cream. Add to this about two slices of crisp toast with a meager amount of butter, and one cup of well-made Postum.

By this selection of food the bodily energy is preserved, while the hot, carbonaceous foods have been left out. The result is a very marked difference in the temperature of the body, and to this comfortable condition is added the certainty of ease and perfect digestion, for the food being partially pre-digested is quickly assimilated by the digestive machinery.

Experience and experiment in food, and its application to the human body has brought out these facts. They can be made use of and add materially to the comfort of the user.

Curious Incident.

Harry Bennetts, a miner from Cambridge, Cornwall, England, has been awarded the King Edward medal for bravery at the Randfontein mine, Johannesburg, South Africa, December 31 last. He descended the mine after an explosion and rescued nine natives from suffocation, and was himself eventually taken up unconscious. His mother at Comberne affirms that she was awakened from her sleep on the same night by a loud report, and her rest was greatly disturbed. She was sure something had happened to her son in South Africa.

Welcome News.

"What's the news, Jimmy?" asked the tall messenger boy. "Uncle Sam has seized a million ice-cream cones," announced the short messenger boy with the newspaper. "Data good. Now, if he'll only seize all de ice cream in de country maybe a chap what's keeping company will have de price of a ticket to a ball game occasionally."

Something for Hubby.

"I think I'll go to town this morning. Will and buy you a birthday present."

"What are you going to get me, dearest?" "I haven't quite decided yet, what color do you think I look best in?"

Getting Sensitive.

"I don't understand why" she divorced her husband, he was most devoted, he used to make a great fuss over every birthday she had.

"I think that was the reason."

Artistic Temperament.

"I hear that your husband has come to New York," said Mrs. Oldcastle.

"Yes," replied her hostess. "We found out one of them old masters, we had in the gallery wasn't the real thing, and he's gone to see if he can find something else about the right size to fit the place where it hung. Joshua is so artistic that he can't bear to see the gallery thrown out of proportion by having more pictures on one side than the other."—Ideas.

Lock-the-Medicine Chest.

The nursery medicine chest may be a source of danger if left unlocked, for even such things as mustard kept there for plasters, or cloudy ammonia, cough mixtures, or sedative powders may become sources of danger in the hands of a small child.

The cupboard may be ever so high, but an inquisitive and exploring child, if it has a mind to, will find a way of reaching it. Keep it locked and you will have the "key-of-the situation."

Can You Beat It?

"Sit, are you against the railroad power?" interrupted the man in the audience.

"I am," shouted the Socialist orator. "Huh! You're traveling on a passenger now!"

"Sure I am! I hate 'em so that I refuse to pay 'em money!"

In Fashion.

"What monogram would you like on your stationery, madam?" "Why, I don't know; but the one that is most in fashion, of course."

Gambling in Insurance.

The Britisher's favorite gambling is insurance gambling. He will take out a policy against anything from the death of the king to the loss of a horse race by a thoroughbred. Marine insurance gambling by those who have no direct interest in the safety of a ship or its cargo grew into such abuses that parliament has been compelled to pass a drastic act to prevent such gambling on marine accidents and losses by those not otherwise concerned.—New York Press.

Early St. Louis Preacher.

St. Louis lays claim to the distinction of having the oldest beginner in the ministry. He is Col. F. J. Hart, age sixty-five years and a veteran of the Civil war, who was ordained and installed pastor of a Congregational church recently. Having made a good deal of money in mining and having been interested in Y. M. C. A. and church work for many years, Colonel Hart says he wants to end his days with the title of reverend.

Willie Knew.

"Willie," said the teacher, "can you tell me what happens when a man's temperature goes down as far as it can go?"

"Please, mum," replied Willie, "he would have cold feet."—Scraps.

Unaccountable.

"Those people who lately moved in next door have every appearance of having moved in good society."

"Yes; that's why the language their parrot uses seems so peculiarly shocking."

Stage Rocks.

I recollect being annoyed by a scene in grand opera representing the sea-shore. The rocks were most artistically placed at regular intervals, like the hoops on a croquet lawn. It was a Balfe opera, in which the heroine dies of thirst, and I was informed that as a certain prima donna who sang this dry part could not get through the great effort without refreshment, she rolled over stage rocks, behind which were placed pots of porter at frequent intervals, at each of which she had a pull as she turned over in supposed anguish.—Strand.

Highly Indecorous.

"Were you at the wedding of that rich tobaccoist's daughter last night?"

"Yes, and it was a swell affair."

"Everyting pass off pleasantly?"

"Yes, except that when the guests left the house a parcel of unmanly boys near the front door stopped every one of them and said, 'Won't you please give me your kewpon?'"

Recognition.

"At last," said the literary young man, "I have succeeded in having my poetry taken seriously."

"How did you manage it?"

"Put it into the love letters on which a breach of promise suit is now being based."

When Women Vote.

"My dear madam, don't you know that repeating is a serious thing?"

"Judge, I had to do it. Both candidates are in my set. I couldn't possibly discriminate, you know."

The Lure of the National Capital

BY EDWARD B. CLARK
COPYRIGHT BY W. A. PATTERSON

THEY cannot keep away from the Washington lure is strong upon them. The attraction of the capital draws former senators and former representatives here just as surely as the call of duty summons the present officeholders. They drift down in November and scores of them stay until the adjournment, and other scores stay all through the summer.

Some men who before they were sent to congress rarely left the environments of their home villages have found after a term or two in the capital city, that the district had few attractions to offer them, provided there was money enough in their bank accounts to keep them in comfort in the city by the Potomac.

There are former senators and representatives whose influence has been sufficient to secure them government positions in the capital which will not only allow them to remain here, but which will pay them for their stay. The lot of these men seems to be particularly fortunate, and they are the objects of more or less envy on the part of those who would like to stay here, but who owing to pecuniary reasons and to inability to get office are compelled to return home.

There are plenty of evidences that former representatives who have chosen, after having once been defeated in the home district, to stay away from the native hearth, are not altogether free from the criticisms of the home people, and perhaps there is no reason why they should be. When a man who has spent his entire life among certain people is weaned away from them by a short residence elsewhere, it seems that recent springs, and few doubts probably will come to the statement that a good many of the former officials who stay in Washington in preference to going home are not without frequent intimations that the people back in the district regard them in some degree as deserters.

Of course there are exceptions to every rule and in the case of senators and representatives of long service, who are poor and perhaps too old to renew the practice of the law, or to take up again their mercantile business where they dropped it to serve their constituents, there is excuse for the acceptance of office in Washington in order that the way of old age may be smoothed.

Then again there are the cases of men who have been in Washington so long representing their states, or their districts, that Washington has become their real home, and here they stay after a change of party administration has removed them from representative office.

Of the men who stayed in Washington because the place was like home, there should be mentioned former Senator Stewart, "Silver" Stewart of Nevada, who died recently. He was a noted figure on the Washington streets all through his congressional career, and through the few years of his retirement prior to his death. Stewart's hair and beard were as white as the snow on the top of the Nevada mountains, but until within a few hours of his death he was apparently as strong as any tree that grows below the mountain timber line.

Frequently the former senators and representatives who live in Washington appear upon the floor of congress. They have the right there to appear because of their former services. There is one marked and shining exception, however, to this rule of occasional return to the chamber where the legislative service was rendered. When Senator Spooner of Wisconsin left congress in 1891, to be gone six years, he declared that he would never appear upon the floor of the senate while he was out of office, nor would he go to the capitol unless his professional business called him to practise before the Supreme Court. Spooner kept his word. He always had objected to the rule which admitted former senators to the floor of the senate. He did not say so, but he thought that in some few cases the lobbying opportunity might be too strong to be resisted by some of the senators who were not above using their personal influence with their former colleagues on behalf of some specific legislation.

In the spring of 1907, John C. Spooner resigned from the United States senate. After the six years of his absence from congress was ended he had been returned again to the upper house, but in the spring three years ago he resigned to enter the private law. Since the day that Senator Spooner left for this supposedly the last time, he has not been seen in the senate of the United States, nor has he been seen in the corridors of the capitol. He is in law practice in New York, and occasionally he comes to Washington, but unlike many other former representatives he shuns the actual scene of his legislative activities.

Gen. Charles Grosvenor of Ohio, who was in the house of representatives for years, and who was considered one of its most picturesque characters, a man lively and energetic in debate and appealing personal qualities, stays in the Buckeye state most of the time now that he has retired from congress, but the Washington lure draws him here occasionally, and he is seen always in his old haunts. General Grosvenor was such a fixture that it seems impossible to realize when he comes back and appears in the old places that he has been away at all.

No one misses Charles Grosvenor more than Champ Clark, the Democratic leader. Grosvenor is a standpatter of such strength that Mr. Cannon it was said, used to sit abashed in his presence.

Mr. Clark is a free trader so sturdy that the other strong ones are weaklings; but he never allows these two tariff extremes meet and formed a friendship that time and separation have not been able to break.

It was said by some of the high tariff Republicans when General Grosvenor retired, that they were not entirely hopeless as long as John Dazell of Pennsylvania remained with them. Dazell recently had a narrow escape from losing the nomination for congress. If he by any chance should be defeated at the election it is believed that the lure will be as strong upon him as it has upon the others.

Dazell is a picturesque in his way as Grosvenor is in his way. It always was said of him that he never slept. He is nervous energy in the essence, and more watchful of Republican interests generally on the floor than is the titular Republican leader. Mr. Dazell is always looking out for the interests of his constituents.

One dreary June day when the house was heavy and business was simply droning its way through, Dazell, yielding to environment, nodded and then nodded. Instantly the wily, wide awake Democrats put through something to which no one saw any objection. It touched Pittsburgh.

Dazell awoke too late. He had been asleep at the switch. Had his eyes never known night since that hour he could not have lived down the memory of that one unconscious moment. One day last fall the close of the last session, as he was leaving the White House, three voices in unison called to him so that all within a block could hear: "Are you asleep this session, John?"

Dazell was wakened to this emergency and his answer carried little comfort to the inquirers for none of the three was a standpatter.

"Not if the tariff is up," he said. During the closing days of the last session of congress something of a filibuster was attempted by the Democrats in the senate in order to make sure that action should be taken on the statehood bill. A filibuster is known to the parties as an attempt to delay legislation. The senate has no set rules like those of the house, and so if one man chooses to talk on any particular subject, he can delay the consideration of any measure that he chooses, and the limit of his endurance is the limit of the delay that he can force although if he has other senators of his own mind they can "spell" him in the speaking, and thus in relays continue the filibuster almost indefinitely.

One of the most noted filibusters of recent years was conducted by three men, still in the service, and curiously enough the arrangement for the filibuster was made by members of both parties. The active participants were Senators Stone of Missouri and Gore of Oklahoma, Democrats and Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, Republican.

These three senators made up their minds that they did not wish to have a vote taken on the currency bill which had been introduced by Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island, a bill which some of the senators said was a mere makeshift and would accomplish no good purposes.

In these days it is hard to find in congress a typical Yankee voice which the Englishmen say is our national characteristic. Gore of Oklahoma, however, has it. Why, it is hard to tell, but he has it in full measure, and no Maine coast man in Yankee voice characteristics can surpass this senator of the western plains state.

The filibuster in which Gore, La Follette and Stone took part was continued through a night and a day when Washington was hotter than it ever had been known to be before, at least so the natives say. When Washington heat takes possession of the capitol's interior it lays hold on the premises not to let go until November. It is impossible to keep cool in either house of congress when the heat of this climate strikes in.

During the fearful heat and humidity all one night long, Senator La Follette spoke in an endeavor to keep the currency bill from coming to a vote. He held the floor for 13½ hours practically without stopping. Senator La Follette is fortunate in one respect. When he was a boy, and a little later, he had a thorough training in elocution. If his teacher taught him nothing else, he gave him the secret of strengthening his voice.

At the end of 13½ hours of strenuous effort, La Follette spoke as clearly as he did at the beginning. Perhaps this is not the exact truth, for as a matter of fact, curiously enough, the Wisconsin senator's voice seemed to be actually in better condition during the closing hour of his address than it was during the opening hour.

The Wisconsin senator naturally has rather a rasping voice which like the voice of Gore of Oklahoma, is open to the Yankee characterization, but twang, accent, idiosyncrasy of whatever you may choose to call it, passes with the first few minutes of utterance. The roughness is smoothed away and the words fall smooth and rounded and with a certain spreading force, even though the subject have nothing of appeal.

When a senator has the floor in his own right, he can talk upon any subject under the sun. He does not of necessity have to confine himself to the subject in hand. So it was that La Follette did not speak entirely of the currency question, but also of other matters as well. Occasionally in order that he might spare his brain the trouble of thought, and so keep it unwearied, he read from a book of fiction.

During many of the hours La Follette spoke there were comparatively few senators in the chamber. Hour after hour he spoke, and then taking up his book of fiction, he read with a perfect regard for the rules of elocution. His auditors were all sleepy and most of them were out of humor because there were only two who were in sympathy with the speaker, and yet perforce every person in the chamber gave heed to what La Follette was reading. For his subject matter perhaps they cared not a whit, and yet by the force of his reading eloquence he drove it home to their attention.

When La Follette had ceased speaking Senator Stone of Oklahoma, who as had been planned, took up the work and kept it for some hours. He was relieved by Senator Stone of Missouri, who already was tired with his previous vocal attempt to keep the senate from a vote. The Missourian kept it up for seven hours and then Gore relieved him once more. That filibuster ended because Gore being blind, failed to note, and no one told him, that Senator Stone whom he expected was to relieve him, was not present in the chamber when the Oklahoma senator sat down for the third time. The vice president instantly put the vote and the filibuster had been in vain.

WALKING FOR HEALTH.

Who has not heard that certain exercises are good for us because they "shake up" the liver? But it is not the best thing in the world to shake up the liver violently unless one is a trained athlete, and ordinary men and women are very far from being in that category. Exercise increases largely by the liver's production both of bile and of sugar. Hence if it be more violent than that to which one is accustomed, more bile and sugar may be formed than can be taken care of by the system, and the subject may have what is called in popular parlance a "bilious attack." Now this is where walking comes in as a happy medium in exercise. We can often "walk off" a headache or a digestive disturbance when running would only aggravate the trouble.

It is a fact, supported by the highest authority, that a moderate exercise, such as walking, is a great aid to digestion. To run would retard digestion. In other words, you will digest your dinner better if you walk immediately after having eaten it than if you sit still. Try this; and if you are thin you will gain in weight, besides saving more in the cost of living than you will lose in the wear and tear of shoe leather.

But suppose you are already corpulent, will walking after meals, in that case, make you stouter? No. Paradoxical as the statement may sound, walking will in that case make you thinner. Fat is a very unstable compound, and when it is present in excess more of it is destroyed by the increased amount of oxygen in the blood—due to the exercise—than is deposited by the blood, while on the other hand when adipose tissue is deficient the oxygen-bearing blood, which also carries fatty particles, deposits more fat than it can destroy, and thus the thin subject grows heavier.

Walking, then, in the open air is an exercise par excellence for everybody. It shakes up the liver just enough to keep it in good working order, it enriches the blood by increasing its amount of oxygen, thus favoring the destruction and elimination from the system of poisonous waste products, particularly by the lungs, skin and kidneys, and finally by stimulating activity of nutrition in the muscles it tends to prevent the deposition of morbid matters of a tuberculosis or cancerous nature.

A Sufficient Reason.

Alphonse had just returned from a child's party. "O, mamma!" he cried, "we had a fine time, playing kissing games, and kissing all the girls. But, nobody kissed the little girl who gave the party."

RAW ECZEMA ON HANDS.

"I had eczema on my hands for ten years. I had three good doctors but none of them did any good. I then used one box of Cuticura Ointment and three bottles of Cuticura Resolvent and was completely cured. My hands were raw all over, inside and out, and the eczema was spreading all over my body and limbs. Before I had used one bottle, together with the Cuticura Ointment, my sores were nearly healed over, and by the time I had used the third bottle, I was entirely well. To any one who has any skin or blood disease I would honestly advise them to fool with nothing else, but get Cuticura and get well. My hands have never given me the least bit of trouble up to now."

"My daughter's hands this summer became perfectly raw with eczema. She could get nothing that would do them any good until she tried Cuticura. She used Cuticura Resolvent and Cuticura Ointment and in two weeks they were entirely cured. I have used Cuticura for other members of my family and it always proved successful. Mrs. M. E. Aunt Pardon's Scheme

By LAWRENCE ALFRED CLAY

Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press

When Aunt Pardon arrived at the home of her sister in a New England village on a certain date she was met at the depot by her niece, Miss Jean Travers, who had tears in her eyes. When she reached the house she was kissed by her sister, who had tears in her eyes. A little later she was welcomed by Mr. Travers, who looked grim and determined.

It did not take the little old woman more than half an hour to discover that something in that family was out of joint, and to demand an explanation. She was told to get ready to hear something awful.

Miss Jean had been away to school in Boston. She knew that, because, being rich, and because Miss Jean was her favorite, she was paying the bills. What had the girl done, on her third term of schooling, and just as she had arrived at that point where she could almost ask for gumdrops at the store in French, but fall in love?

She had not only fallen in love with a young man, but she had failed to notify her parents by special delivery letter. Further, she had broken a rule of the school. On her arrival there she had been told in the plainest of plain English that under no circumstances must she fall in love with a man, either old or young, while to write or receive a note was an offense so heinous that it could not possibly be overlooked. All this was as nothing to what was to come. Aunt Pardon must square herself in her chair and keep from fainting away, if she could.

Miss Jean had written notes—little pink notes. She had received notes—little robin's egg notes. And some of those notes had got into the hands of Miss Bonezet, the president of the school, and by her had been sent to Miss Jean's parents. And now the girl was about to tremble. Aunt Pardon would tremble with the earth.

Miss Jean had been caught when on the verge of eloping with the young man aforesaid. She had her window up and was about to descend a rope ladder when she was seized and hauled back. She was talked to for the rest of the night and sent home next morning. It was the most flagrant case Miss Bonezet had encountered in her fifty years of maidenhood, and she must make a shining example of the guilty party.

There it was, and what had Aunt Pardon to say about it? Had she ever, in her whole life, heard of such a thing? She replied that she had—just one case and she knew exactly the remedy for it. Then in turn, she asked what was the matter with the young man. Neither father nor mother could exactly tell, and Miss Jean had locked herself in her room.

The fact of the matter was that Mr. Travers had been speculating and made a lot of money, and was going to keep on speculating and making more, and for the honor of the family he wanted the daughter to make a good match. There was no reason why she shouldn't marry a lord instead of an adventurer. Other girls had done it, and why shouldn't Jean?

The girl's story, told amid tears and in the privacy of her room, differed somewhat. Yes, she had written and received notes, but he was such a lovely young man. There was a rope ladder, but one of the girls had dared her to descend it. Perhaps she might have met the young man and told him to go away, but she certainly had no thought of eloping.

"Do you know what I'm going to do?" asked Aunt Pardon of the heads of the family after a day or two. "I'm going to take Jean and go down to Atlantic City for a month. I need the sea air, and she needs to forget this young man. I've read that there are always from ten to fifteen lords hanging around there, and I'll bet my old shags she captures one of them. There'll be your money and my money behind her, and she'll go off like hot cakes. The biggest relative we've got is only a member of the legislature, and I believe they are investigating him for grafting. I'd kind of like to be aunt or something to a lord to see how it seems."

Miss Jean was ordered to make ready for the trip. She demurred a little and shed a few tears. She wasn't told in so many words that it was an excuse to further separate her from her young man, but she figured out things pretty well for herself. She might have jumped off the barn or down the well and made her parents lots of trouble, but when the time came she went along as humble as Mary's little lamb.

 Aunt Pardon was a hustler. If her sex had had the right to vote she would have been governor of the state years before. Four hours after reaching Atlantic City she was promenading the boardwalk looking for a lord. Miss Jean wasn't. She was still demurely unpacking. She had been chastened, and it was not for her to go galloping around like a young colt.
 For three days Aunt Pardon looked for her lord. She got all the papers and scanned the hotel arrivals. She didn't find one, but she was not discouraged.

On the fourth day, after considerable argument, she persuaded Miss Jean into a promenade. It was for the girl's health. It was also to show her off to the sight of any stray lord. At one point of the walk the railing had been carried away by the waves kicked up by a heavy storm. The drop down was twelve feet, and pedestrians bugged the far side in passing. Aunt Pardon can't remember to this day just how the thing came about. Of a sudden, Miss Jean was seized with vertigo and went staggering toward the gap. Several persons screamed. The aunt was petrified. An old man waved his cane. She must have taken the drop but for the young man who rushed forward and caught her and swung her to safety. He didn't wait for thanks. He thrust his card into Aunt Pardon's hand and modestly disappeared. The vertigo disappeared at the same time, and Miss Jean did not require the ambulance to get back to the hotel.

"If he isn't a lord then I'm an old turnip," said Aunt Pardon to herself as she looked at the name on the card. "It says Guy Livingstone, but that of course is his incog. Nobody but a lord could have jumped in the way he did." Why, he seemed to be waiting right there for the chance to do something heroic. That's where lords differ from other folks. I didn't see him write the name of his hotel on the card, but here it is, and he must receive a note of gratitude and an invitation to call."

Such a note was written. It was written by Miss Jean, and she concealed her blushes as she wielded her pen. And that she hummed to herself. It was her first hum for many days.

The "incog" called. He was a gentleman; he was good looking, he was entertaining. He didn't say right out that he was a lord, but he couldn't fool sharp old Aunt Pardon. He was asked to call again, and he said he would be charmed. He did call, and one day, a month later, Aunt Pardon sat down to write a letter to her brother-in-law in New England, and among other things she said:

"So you speculated and lost all you made, eh? Well, I've made a fool of myself, too. That incog lord I wrote about has turned out to be the very chap Jean was going to elope with. She must have got him down here. He says he's bound to marry her, and she says she'll drown herself if she can't marry him, and as he has more money than both of us put together, and has no relative under investigation for graft in the legislature, I guess we'd better make the best of it.

"He Thrust His Card Into Aunt Pardon's Hand."
