TEACHERS COMING IN THOUSANDS

CONVENTION OF MICHIGAN TEACHERS IN DETROIT TO BE LARGEST IN MANY YEARS.

SUBSIDIARY ASSOCIATES ALSO TO HOLD MEETINGS.

Speakers Will Include Educators of National Reputation; Excellent Banquets Are Part of Program.

It is probable that between 8,000 and 10,000 school teachers will attend the annual convention of the Michigan Teachers' Association, which meets in Detroit on Thursday and Friday of this week. In addition to the big gathering, several subsidiary conventions will meet. These will include the County Normal School Teachers' Association, the Association of High School Principals, the penmanship teachers, the psychology teachers, and the physical training teachers.

There also will be college banquets by graduates of the University of Michigan, Michigan State Normal College, Central Normal School, Western Normal College, Hillsdale College, Olivet College and Albion College. The week probably will see the greatest influx of teachers since the National Educational Association met here.

Though much time will be given to consideration of serious subjects, some hours will be devoted to amusement. Thursday evening a complimentary concert or concert will be given in the Light Guard armory by Mrs. Pasquall and the Frank Croton quartet of New York City. Mrs. Pasquall is one of the very finest coloratura singers of the day and the quartet is made up of singers of national reputation. They will alternate between the two halls. The demand for tickets from delegates can spare time from the regular found necessary to arrange for a matinee, Friday at 1:30 p. m. It is likely that few concerts have been given here since 1908.

Thursday will be visited by the public generally, so far as the delegates can spare time from their regular sessions and all the children are expected to be on their good behavior. There will be no school Friday.

The speakers will include a number of men and women of national reputation and ability. Among them will be Prof. H. A. Loomis of the Michigan State Normal College, Prof. R. S. Ruzzo, of the University of Chicago, and Prof. J. H. Loomis, of the University of Michigan. The program of the convention will be held in the armory and in the Wayne auditorium. The sessions will meet for the most part in the Central high school.

Will Enforce Law, Says Taft

Addressing an audience at the First Regiment armory in Chicago President Taft aroused a storm of applause and cheering by his remarks on trusts. In his speech, which was regarded as having a direct bearing on the government's prosecution against the Steel corporation, he declared in vigorous language that the administration is being influenced by political motives. "I would rather cut off my right hand," he exclaimed, "than to do anything to disturb the business of the country, especially with a motive of entangling political success."

Statements as to what I may be responsible for in bringing about business troubles, however regretful I may be that it is so, cannot turn me from the duty that lies straight before me, continued Mr. Taft.

Give 300 Lectures Throughout State

The regents of the University of Michigan have appointed a committee to work with the extension work which will be taken up this winter, with 300 lectures throughout the state. It is a work intended to bring the university to the people who cannot come to it. The university will furnish the lecturers from the faculty and all the expenses to be borne by the towns where lectures are given will be the rent of the auditorium. In arranging the programs, a committee will attempt to furnish lectures that will interest the greatest number of people, including lectures on forestry, art and health.

Thanksgiving Day Named By Taft

President Taft has issued his annual Thanksgiving proclamation, calling on citizens of the United States to celebrate Thursday, the 30th of November, next, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer.

The hunting season so far has not proved very successful. But every mail brings news of accidents in the woods.

A new bank to be known as the Wayne County Bank is being organized at Plymouth by E. B. Jerney, president of the Lytle Savings Bank at Dowagiac. A building centrally located has been purchased and every effort will be put forth to open the bank for business by January 1.

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION

Cov. Osborn Calls for Soul Prayer on Thanksgiving Day.

Gov. Osborn's Thanksgiving day proclamation, issued from the executive office, is as follows:

"The loving and merciful God has vouchsafed benediction upon the people of Michigan during the year 1911, now rapidly drawing to its close. The elements of their devastation have been removed, but the loss of human life has been small as a result. Vital statistics show a decrease in death tolls. From the soil has come to those who till it and those who must be fed a reward of more than that which is barely sufficient. The state is free from famine, contagion, and abnormal lawlessness. Human life is held sacred, homes are inviolable, property is secure, and the conditions for which our people should be profoundly thankful. Observation of Thanksgiving day may be fairly said to be the duty of every individual to give thanks unto God. This should not be merely lip service, but should touch the recesses of the heart and the deepest elements of the soul.

"Man is recreant and coward who thanklessly accepts divine blessings in strength, happiness and prosperity and then turns to God in weakness, misfortune and extremity. A meaningful way to celebrate Thanksgiving would be to make a contribution only of a penny to some Christian church. These institutions of God should be remembered wholeheartedly in the glory of our best days, when the nation's evening tide arrives there shall be that comfort which shall cure fear and trembling."

Proclamation, in consideration of the blessing of Almighty God, so beautifully visited upon the people of Michigan, I, Chase S. Osborn, governor of the state of Michigan, do appoint and declare Thursday, Nov. 30, as a day of prayer, feasting and thanksgiving.

CHINESE THRONE YIELDS DEMANDS

CONSTITUTIONAL GOVERNMENT IS CONCEDED WHEN ARMY AND NAVY THREATEN.

THE SLAUGHTER AT HANKOW WAS APPALLING.

China's Yielding to Rebels May Be Too Late to End Revolt; Preparations for Defense Made.

Victory has crowned the revolutionary movement in China and by an imperial decree the demands of the Young China movement, as advocated by the national assembly, are met by the ruling Manchus.

In the edict the throne humbly apologizes for its past neglect and grants an immediate constitution, with a cabinet from which nobles shall be excluded and a free pardon for the rebels and all political offenders.

Whether cooler counsels among the insurrectionary leaders will prevail and the anti-Manchu movement will halt with the government's concessions, or whether the radical element will prevail and the rebel army of 27,000 will attempt to sweep over the north to invest the capital is being vigorously discussed in Peking.

The capitulation to the revolutionary party, according to the present program, means a reorganization of the Chinese government into a constitutional monarchy, with the immediate formation of a national parliament. The red, white and blue banner of the Young China party will fly over the army and navy.

Manchus Concede Everything.

The state of terror which has taken possession of the entire imperial court was further evidenced by a long list of edicts supplementing the remarkable proclamation conceding constitutional government and offering further concessions of the most radical character.

Edicts indicate that even though the dynasty survives, Manchus rule is at an end. The transfer even of the cabinet offices to native Chinese is ordered, and the throne swears that hereafter Manchus and Chinese shall be regarded equally, meaning that the elaborate system of Manchu pensions which are now paid to practically every member of the race will be discontinued and the Manchus left to earn a living by their own enterprise.

At Peking, the first edict is a compromise between the emperor himself, who is an ardent and a devoted devotee of the throne's survival, and a patriotic attempt to create among the people a feeling of personal loyalty for their emperor.

The edict makes a complete capitulation to the demands of the national assembly, and even so far as to offer extraordinary tribute to the rebels for bringing about the great reforms which are promised. The throne abjectly acknowledges its incapacity, pleads ignorance of affairs, asks that its hopes be pardoned and requests the assistance and advice of all citizens.

RICHESON IS INDICTED

Grand Jury Returns Bill Charging Murder of Avis Linnell.

An indictment in five counts charging that Rev. Clarence V. T. Michelson, pastor of Immanuel Baptist church, Cambridge, murdered Miss Avis Linnell of Hyannisport, October 13, by giving her a can of potassium cyanide, was returned by the Suffolk county grand jury in Boston. The jury had been in session for three full days.

Richeson was not present, but a copy of the indictment was served on him in his cell at the Charles street jail. He will be called on within a day or two to plead to the indictment and a date for the commencement of his trial will be fixed. This probably will be early in January.

Federal Control of Railroads.

The supreme court, in an opinion by Justice Van Devanter, which was unanimously concurred in, upheld the constitutionality of the safety appliance act of March, 1903. Complete control of all the railroads of the country by the interstate commerce commission and virtual elimination of the state commissions from such control is foreshadowed in this opinion.

The case was argued at the last term of the court. It arose in the United States district court for the northern district of Alabama. The government proceeded against the Southern railway in a civil action to recover penalties for the failure of the railroad company to equip certain cars with safety appliances. The railroad defended on the ground that three of the cars were moving in interstate traffic and were not connected with cars in interstate traffic. The real issue was as to the power of congress to require the use of automatic couplers or other safety appliances on "highways of commerce" used in interstate commerce.

5,000 ITALIANS KILLED.

Reported That 7,000 Were Taken Prisoners at Tripoli.

There is a report in circulation to the effect that the Italian forces at Tripoli have met with a grave disaster. The report says that they lost 5,000 killed besides 7,000 prisoners. Also it is stated the Turks captured many guns and much ammunition. While the war office refuses to confirm or deny the hint is thrown out that the Turkish forces have won an important victory.

Semi-official confirmation has been given out of the report that Enver Bey has reached Tripoli and has joined the forces there.

It is added that he has issued a proclamation in which he urges the people to resist the Italians to the death.

Speaker Clark Lives Simple Life.

Speaker Champ Clark is to have a private dining room in the Capitol building. In remodeling the restaurant quarters of the House of Representatives the capitol architects have provided the extra room but Speaker Clark's friends desire he will not use it. The house of representatives has a full-dinner service which is seldom used. It also has a $5,000 automobile which has been idle in the official garage since Mr. Clark became speaker.

SYNOPSIS.

The story opens in a Confederate tent at a critical stage of the Civil War. General Lee imparts to Captain Wayne an important message to Longstreet. Accompanied by Sergeant Craig, an old army scout, Wayne starts on his mission. The two, after a wild ride, get within the lines of the enemy. In the darkness, Wayne is taken for a Federal officer who came to keep an appointment, and a young lady on horseback is given in his charge. She is a northern girl and attempts to escape, but falls. One of the horses succumbs, and Craig goes through with the dispatches, while Wayne and My Lady of the North are left alone. They seek shelter in a hut and enter it in the dark a huge assassin attacks Wayne. The girl shoots the brute just in time. The owner of the hut, one Jed Bunday, and his wife appear and soon a party of horsemen approach.

"Do not permit the darkness to alarm you," I whispered softly, bending down as I spoke until I could feel her quick breathing against my cheek. "Our visitors are not likely to remain longer than will be necessary to get something to eat. They need never suspect our presence, and all we have to do is to wait patiently until they move on. I only wish I could discover something upon which you might sit down."

"Pray do not think me a coward," she answered, "but I have heard of this man Lowrie in the Federal camps, and I would rather die than fall into his hands."

I had heard of him also, and of his outrageous treatment of women. The memory caused me to clasp my hand warmly over hers, and set my teeth hard.

"It may not prove to be Lowrie at all," I said soberly. "But all these gentry are pretty much alike. I fear. However, I promise that you shall never fall alive into the hands of any of their breed."

Before she could answer me other than by a slight nestling closer in the darkness, Bunday whispered: "This yere hole, Cap, leads down ter the right, an' comes out in a sort o' gully 'bout a hundred feet back. That's light 'nough ter see ter walk by after ye turn the corner, 'bout twenty feet or so. You uns kin go on down that if ye'd rather, fellerin' ter dogs, but I reckon as how I'll stay right yere an' sorter see how ther ol' woman comes out."

"Where, where was Boderlek then?" One blast upon his single horn.

"Were worth a thousand men!"

"If you uns, like ter see a durned good fight maybe ye better stay tew—ther ol' woman is placen if she once gits her dander up."

His voice was expressive of great expectations, and I had reason to believe his faith in Maria would be justified. Before any of us, however, had time to change our positions we heard the fellows come stamping roughly into the cabin. The thin slabs which divided us scarcely muffled their loud voices.

"Well, old woman," exclaimed one in voice so gruff as to seem almost as aimed, "pretending to be alone, are you, with all those dishes sitting out on the table; just b—, eaten off, too. Have n't seen no strange party along the road this morning, have ye?"

"Nary a one," said Maria, and I knew from her voice she was standing close beside the fireplace.

"Are you Mrs. Bunday?"

"I reckon I am, if it's any o' yer business."

"Don't git huffy, old woman, or we're liable to give you a lesson in politeness before we leave." The leader dropped the butt of his gun with a crash on the floor. "Where is the little sneak, anyhow?"

"What do you want of him?"

"Want him to go 'long with us; we're hunting some parties, and need a guide. They tol' us up the road a bit he knew every inch o' these yere mountains."

There was a pause, as if Maria was endeavoring to decide as to the honesty of the speaker. Her final answer proved the mental survey had not proven satisfactory.

"Wal, I reckon," she said calmly, "as you uns 'll be more likely ter find him down 'bout Connersville."

"Then what's all these yere dirty dishes doing on the table?"

"Bed sun Yankee officers yers: they just rode on down ther trail as you uns cum up."

"Take hell!" ejaculated the fellow with complete loss of temper. "See here, old woman, we're ter old birds to be caught with any such chaff. We'll take a look aroun, the old snob anyhow, and while we're at it you put something on the table fer us and my mates to eat."

The voice and manner were rough, but I was impressed with a certain accent creeping into the man's speech bespeaking education. More, in spite of an apparent effort to make it so, his dialect was not that of those mountaineers.

Even as he uttered these last words, throwing into them a threat more in the tone than the language, I became aware of a thin ray of light penetrating the seemingly solid wall just in front of me, and bending silently forward could dimly distinguish the elliptical head of Bunday as he applied one eye to a small opening he had industriously made between the logs.

Grasping Mrs. Brennan firmly by the hand, so that we should not become separated, I crept across the intervening blackness, and reached his side. "Holy smoke, Cap," the little man muttered in suppressed excitement, as he realized my presence. "It's a goin' ter be 'dillin' hot in thar mighty soon. Marlar's steam is a flin!"

He silently made room for me, and bending down so as to bring my eye upon a level with his, I managed to gain some slight glimpse of the scene within the cabin.

Mrs. Bunday stood with her back to the fireplace, an iron skillet firmly gripped in one hand. Her face was red with indignation, and there was a look in her eyes, together with a defiant set to her chin, which promised trouble. In front of her, carelessly resting on the table, his feet dapping in the air, was a sturdy-looking fellow of forty or so, with red, straggling beard covering all the lower half of his face, and a weather-worn black hat pulled so low as almost to conceal his eyes. His attire was nondescript, as though he had patronized the junkshop of both armies. In his belt were thrust a revolver and a knife, while within easy reach of his hand a musket leaned against a chair. Two others of the party, younger men, but even more foully dressed than their leader, were lounging between him and the door.

Bunday chuckled expectantly. "O Lord! if they only git the ol' gal just a little more riled," he whispered hoarsely, jumping up and down on one foot in his excitement, "they'll hev ther fight of ther life!"

"Do you know the fellows?" I asked. "Is that Red Lowrie?"

He shook his head.

"Never laid eyes on any of 'em afore, but ye bet they're no good. Reckon they're a part o' his crowd."

The man who posed as the leader of the party picked up the empty coffee pot beside him and shook it.

"Come, now, Mrs. Bunday," he commanded, "I tell you we're hungry, so trot out some homecake and fill up this pot, unless you want to reckon with Red Lowrie."

The woman stood facing him, yet never moved. I could see a red spot begin to glow in either cheek. If I had ever doubted it I knew now that Maria possessed a temper of her own.

"You ain't no Red Lowrie," she retorted.

"This fellow laughed easily."

"No more I ain't, old woman, but I reckon we ain't so diffin far apart when it comes to getting what we go after. Come, honest now, where is the little white-throated cat that runs this shabang?"

Whatever Maria might venture to tell her lord and master in the privacy of home, it evidently did not soothe her spirit to hear him thus spoken of by another.

If Jed Bunday was hum, she answered fiercely, her eyes fairly blazing. "I reckon you would n't be sprawl in on ther table fer long."

"Wouldn't I, now? Well, old hen, we've fooled here with you about as long as I care to. Bill, go over there and put some of that bacon on to fry. If she doesn't get out of the way I'll give her something to jump for." And he patted the stock of his gun.

Instinctively I drew my revolver, and pushed its black muzzle into the light under Jed's nose.

"Shall I give him a dose?" I asked eagerly.

"Not yet, O Lord, not yet!" he exclaimed, dancing from one foot to the other in excitement. "Let ther ol' gal hev a show. I reckon she's good fer ther whole three of 'em, less they shoot."

Bill came up grinning. He evidently anticipated some fun, and as he reached out a grubby hand for the slab of bacon, took occasion to make some remark. What it was I could not hear, but I noted the quick responsive flash in the woman's eyes, and the next instant with a crash she brought the iron skillet down with all her strength on top of the fellow's head. Without even a groan he went plunging down, face foremost, in front of the fire. In another moment she was battling like a wild fury with the other two.

It was a quick, intense struggle. The man near the door chanced to be the first in, and he received a blow from the skillet that most assuredly would have crashed his skull had he not dodged; as it was it landed upon his shoulder and he reeled back sick and helpless. By this time the fellow with the red beard had closed upon her, and wrested the skillet from her hand. Struggling fiercely back and forth across the floor, Maria tripped over the body of the dead dog and fell, but as she did so her fingers grasped the red beard of her antagonist. It yielded to her hand, and bare of face, save for a dark moustache, the man stood there, panting for breath, above her. Then suddenly, almost at my very ear, a voice cried,

"Frank! Frank! I am here!"

CHAPTER IX.

In the Hands of the Enemy.

In the first surprise of that unexpected loyal cry ringing at my very ears all my senses seemed confused, and I stood motionless. Then I heard Bunday utter a smothered oath, and knew he had wheeled about in the darkness. Unable to distinguish the slightest outline of his figure, I was yet impressed with the thought that he was endeavoring to muffle the girl, to prevent her uttering a second cry, impelled by this intuition I flung out my arm hastily, and by rare good luck it came in contact with his hand.

"None of that, you little cur!" I muttered sternly, unmeaningful of his efforts to break away. "No hand on her, mind you! Mrs. Brennan, what does this mean?"

She made no attempt to answer, but I could hear her now groping her way through the darkness toward the place of our entrance. Bunday detected the movement, also, and made a violent effort to break loose from my grip, that he might hurry after her.

"You lit' go 'b' me," he cried excitedly, "er, by god, I'll use a knife. She'll give this whole thing away if she ever gits out."

For answer I hurled him backward with all my strength and sprang after the fleeing woman. But I was already too late to stop her, even had that been my intention. With strength yielded her by desperation, she thrust aside the heavy cupboard, and as the light swept in, sprang forward into the rude shed. With another bound, gathering her skirts as she ran, she was up the steps and had burst into the outer room. A moment later I also stood in the doorway, gazing upon a scene that made my blood like fire.

The fighting had evidently ceased suddenly with her first cry. Maria stood panting in one corner, the deadly skillet again in her hand, her hair hanging in wisps down her back. Still unconscious from the blow he had received, one fellow lay outstretched on the floor, his head barely missing the hot ashes of the fireplace; while his companion nursed his bruises and scowled from a safe refuge behind the table. The unshaven faces of several others of the gang were peering curiously in through the open door. I knew now I saw all this, for the picture of it is upon the retina of memory, but at the moment everything I appeared to perceive or hear occurred in the centre of the room.

The man who had posed as the leader stood there alone facing us, his expression a strange mixture of amazement and delight. He was a powerfully built man, with keen gray eyes deeply set in their sockets. His right hand rested heavily upon the hilt of a cavalry sabre, the scabbard of which was concealed beneath the folds of the long brown coat he wore. As Mrs. Brennan burst through the doorway he stepped eagerly forward, his eyes brightening, and they met with clasped hands.

"Is it possible—Edith?" he cried, as the recognition could scarcely be credited.

"Oh, Frank!" she exclaimed, eagerly. "It seems all too good to be true. How came you here?"

"Hunting after you, my fair lady. Did you suppose you could disappear as mysteriously as you did last night without my being early on the trail? Have these people injured you in any way?" And he glanced about him with a threat in his gesture.

"Oh, no, Frank," hastily, "every one has been most kind. It was a mere mistake. But how strangely you are dressed! how very rough you look!"

He laughed, but still retained his warm clasp of her hands.

"Not the pomp and circumstance of glorious war which you expected, girl?" he asked lightly. "But we have all sorts of conditions to meet down here, and soon learn in Rome to do as the Romans do."

As he finished speaking he perceived me for the first time, and his face changed instantly into cold sternness. I saw him sweep one hasty glance around, as though he suspected that I might not be alone, and his hand fell once more upon his sword hilt. In posture suggestive of readiness for action.

"Who have we here?" he asked, staring at me in amazement. "A Johnny Reb?"

"Whatever I am," I retorted, my gorge rising suddenly at his contemptuous term, and stepping out into the room before him, "I at least wear the uniform of my service and rank, and not the nondescript uniform of a guerilla."

The scornful words stung him; I noticed the quick flush of anger in his eyes, and was not sorry.

"You are insolent, sir. Moreover, you go too far, for as it chances you are well within our lines, and we will see to what extent honor is consistent with the work of a spy. The uniform of your service, indeed," he echoed hottly, pointing as he spoke across the room; "that cavalry cloak over yonder tells its own story. Peters, Steele, arrest this fellow."

"Frank, don't do that," she urged earnestly. "You mistake; that was the cloak I wore."

If he heard her he gave no sign.

"Bind him," was the stern order as the two men advanced. "Use your belts if you have nothing else handy."

Angry as I most assuredly was, swept also by a new emotion which I did not in the least comprehend, I yet fully realized the utter helplessness of my position in point of resistance. They were twenty to one. However much I longed to grapple with him who mocked me, the very thought was insanity; my only possible chance of escape lay in flight. To realize this was to act. I leaped backward, trusting for a clear field in my rear, and an opportunity to run for it, but the door by which I had just entered was now closed and barred. Bunday had made sure his retreat.

The man, watching my every movement, with sword-half drawn in his hand, saw instantly that I was securely trapped, and laughed in scorn.

"You're not making war on women now," he said with a cutting sneer. "You will not find me so easy a victim."

The taunt stung me, but more the tone and manner of the speaker, and the hot blood of youth cast all caution to the winds. With a single spring, forgetful of my own wound, I was at his throat, dashed aside his uplifted hand, and by the sheer audacity of my sudden, unexpected onset, bore him back crashing to the floor. He struggled gamely, yet I possessed the advantage of position, and would have punished him severely, but for the dozen strong hands which instantly

If he heard her he gave no sign.

"Bind him," was the stern order as the two men advanced. "Use your belts if you have nothing else handy."

Angry as I most assuredly was, swept also by a new emotion which I did not in the least comprehend, I yet fully realized the utter helplessness of my position in point of resistance. They were twenty to one. However much I longed to grapple with him who mocked me, the very thought was insanity; my only possible chance of escape lay in flight. To realize this was to act. I leaped backward, trusting for a clear field in my rear, and an opportunity to run for it, but the door by which I had just entered was now closed and barred. Bunday had made sure his retreat.

The man, watching my every movement, with sword-half drawn in his hand, saw instantly that I was securely trapped, and laughed in scorn.

"You're not making war on women now," he said with a cutting sneer. "You will not find me so easy a victim."

The taunt stung me, but more the tone and manner of the speaker, and the hot blood of youth cast all caution to the winds. With a single spring, forgetful of my own wound, I was at his throat, dashed aside his uplifted hand, and by the sheer audacity of my sudden, unexpected onset, bore him back crashing to the floor. He struggled gamely, yet I possessed the advantage of position, and would have punished him severely, but for the dozen strong hands which instantly stood in the doorway, gazing upon a scene that made my blood like fire.

The fighting had evidently ceased suddenly with her first cry. Maria stood panting in one corner, the deadly skillet again in her hand, her hair hanging in wisps down her back. Still unconscious from the blow he had received, one fellow lay outstretched on the floor, his head barely missing the hot ashes of the fireplace; while his companion nursed his bruises and scowled from a safe refuge behind the table. The unshaven faces of several others of the gang were peering curiously in through the open door. I knew now I saw all this, for the picture of it is upon the retina of memory, but at the moment everything I appeared to perceive or hear occurred in the centre of the room.

The man who had posed as the leader stood there alone facing us, his expression a strange mixture of amazement and delight. He was a powerfully built man, with keen gray eyes deeply set in their sockets. His right hand rested heavily upon the hilt of a cavalry sabre, the scabbard of which was concealed beneath the folds of the long brown coat he wore. As Mrs. Brennan burst through the doorway he stepped eagerly forward, his eyes brightening, and they met with clasped hands.

"Is it possible—Edith?" he cried, as the recognition could scarcely be credited.

"Oh, Frank!" she exclaimed, eagerly. "It seems all too good to be true. How came you here?"

"Hunting after you, my fair lady. Did you suppose you could disappear as mysteriously as you did last night without my being early on the trail? Have these people injured you in any way?" And he glanced about him with a threat in his gesture.

"Oh, no, Frank," hastily, "every one has been most kind. It was a mere mistake. But how strangely you are dressed! how very rough you look!"

He laughed, but still retained his warm clasp of her hands.

"Not the pomp and circumstance of glorious war which you expected, girl?" he asked lightly. "But we have all sorts of conditions to meet down here, and soon learn in Rome to do as the Romans do."

As he finished speaking he perceived me for the first time, and his face changed instantly into cold sternness. I saw him sweep one hasty glance around, as though he suspected that I might not be alone, and his hand fell once more upon his sword hilt. In posture suggestive of readiness for action.

The True Test

Tried in Northville. It has stood the Test.

The hardest test is the test of time, and Doan's Kidney Pills have stood it well in Northville. Kidney sufferers can hardly ask for stronger proof than the following:

J. W. Kator, of Northville, Mich., says: "A year ago I began to have trouble from my kidneys and I was caused much misery by pains across the small of my back. The kidney secretions were irregular and painful in passage and led me to believe that my kidneys were out of order. Hearing about Doan's Kidney Pills, I began their use and in a few weeks I was completely cured. I consider Doan's Kidney Pills an effective medicine for kidney complaint and I do not hesitate to recommend them."

The above statement was given in November 1908 and on March 31, 1909, Mr. Kator said: "I can still recommend Doan's Kidney Pills and I have no objection to the continued publication of my testimonial. The cure this remedy made in my case has been permanent."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

There are only three cases of diphtheria in town, little Robert Houghton, Harry Shafer and Clifford Harmer. Reports which have been circulated to the effect that there are eight or more such cases, are entirely groundless. Antitoxins have been given, the patients and all are getting better rapidly. Extra precautions have been taken by closing the schools for a week, so that it is hardly possible that it will become an epidemic.

Mrs. Gertrude Swift is suffering from a badly broken arm as a result of a collision with W. H. Ambler's auto. The accident occurred Sunday evening just at dusk. Mrs. Swift was coming down DuPont street on the sidewalk just as Mr. Ambler crossed the walk to enter his own yard. Mrs. Swift is fifty years of age, making the accident more serious than with a younger person. Dr. Turner reduced the fracture and she is doing as well as could be expected.

The play of "Rip Van Winkle," which was given Tuesday evening, was a fine sample of the other numbers offered in the Ladies' Library lecture course. The performers, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert A. Sprague, held the attention of the large audience every minute and were warmly applauded. They certainly deserved all the credit they have been given. The next number which will be given soon, will be another enjoyable entertainment which no one can afford to miss.

How many of our readers can tell us what the stripes on the barber pole signify? You see the pole with its stripes and you know there is a barber shop back of the pole, but here the knowledge of the average person ceases. In the early days barbers did the bleeding for the community and surgeons were not as plentiful as now. The first thing thought necessary, way down to the time of George Washington's death, was that any patient should be bled. Tap him, and take a few ounces of blood from him, no matter how weak he might be. When Washington was at the last gasp, the fools bled him. Well, the red stripes on a barber pole mean the red ribbon bandages that barbers bound over the wounds caused by bleeding people.

WINCHESTER Repeating Shotguns

USED IN THE U. S. ARMY.

The U. S. Army authorities know a gun; that is why, when they decided to equip some troops with repeating shotguns, they selected the Winchester in preference to all other makes. The experts of the U. S. Ordnance Board also know a gun; that's why, after submitting a Winchester Repeating Shotgun to all sorts of tests, they pronounced it safe, sure, strong and simple. If you want a shotgun—buy the one whose strength and reliability led the U. S. Army authorities to select it and the U. S. Ordnance Board to endorse it—that's the Winchester.

Now and again a traveler jogs by, with a muttered "Buenos días"—a salutation that is never omitted by man, woman or child. The rider wears a conical straw hat, a cotton shirt, flapping free in the wind, and a pair of blue jeans.

Ten miles out from David we came to Alanje.

The owner of Divisla has worked hard and intelligently for ten years on the improvement of his property. Today he has 5,000 acres of as fine land as any in Chiriqui, well stocked and furnished with all the necessary buildings. The ranch is easily worth $50,000. Not a bad result of an enterprise started twelve years ago with $200 capital.

Kidney Trouble Is Very Deceptive

Few Realize They're Affected Till Danger Point Is Reached—Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills Work Wonders—Sample Free!

Kidney disease is much more common than most people imagine. Many sufferers do not know what is ailing them—until the trouble becomes serious. Some trifling affection may run into the dread diabetes, dropsy or Bright's disease before one realizes there is anything wrong with his kidneys.

Usually the most noticeable symptoms which first appear are far from the seat of the trouble, and the sufferer mistakes the nature of his ailment. Dull headaches or nervousness, for instance, he never thinks of as signs of diseased kidneys.

Even the aching back and sides, rheumatism, pains or twitching in groins or limbs, sore, inflamed muscles, he may consider indications of some other trouble. Unnaturally colored or cloudy urine, too frequent or too scanty urination, burning sensation, are of course readily recognized as symptoms of such disorders.

Because of this deceptive and dangerous character of these ailments, if you suspect your kidneys are diseased, lose no time in beginning treatment. The best possible remedy for you is Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills. They are quite different from anything else in the market. They act in two ways:—cleanse the clogged kidneys of their poisonous impurities, strengthen them so they perform their duties normally, naturally. There is no other way to really cure kidney derangements, resultant bladder troubles and rheumatism—and permanently banish those frightful aches and pains.

Get a package of these marvelous Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills at once. 25¢ and 50¢ packages. If you want to try them first—ask your druggist for a free sample package, or same will be sent direct by Derby Medicine Co., Eaton Rapids, Mich.

THE SECRET OF SUCCESS

Genuine Merit Required to Win the People's Confidence

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfil the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been cured, to those who are in need of it.

In an interview on the subject a prominent local druggist says: "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows immediate results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy that I know of has so large a sale."

The success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact that it fulfils every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder diseases, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

A free trial bottle will be sent by mail, absolutely free. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and mention this paper. Regular size bottles sold at all druggists—50¢, and $1.00.

A GOOD BEEF TYPE HEAD

By R. S. SHAW

"Good Beef Type Head."

From the standpoint of the butcher or packer the head from the carcass of a beef animal is only worth a few cents commercially while the rest of the animal may reach a value of from fifty to one hundred dollars, depending on its size and quality. On the other hand, however, the head is a valuable factor to the feeder in selecting animals to prepare for market with prospects of profitable returns for the feed consumed. Standards of excellence describing all the points of a perfect beef animal have been devised as well as those for feeder cattle which differ very materially in conformation and quality from the finest animal. It is extremely difficult to apply a scale of points to the feeder as there are so many varied degrees of flesh and condition.

The score card for a finished beef animal calls for a compact, blocky form, deep, thick and square, with broad, level, well fleshed black, long deep thick quarters, broad, well covered shoulders, deep wide chest and good handling qualities. The same standard calls for a short broad head with large mild eyes and large muzzle and big expansive nostrils. Now the butcher—a good head animal becomes the less will fit body conformation correspond to the standard, until the very opposite conditions may be reached as a state of great enunciation.

MUSHROOMS AND TOADSTOOLS

By ERNEST A. BESSEY, East Lansing, Mich.
"Professor of Botany, Michigan Agricultural College"

The abundant fall of rains having brought out a large crop of fungi in the woods, fields and lawns, the old question has come again to the fore: "How can I tell mushrooms from toadstools?" In the first place, the words mushrooms and toadstools are practically synonymous, is being incorrect to reserve the first name for the edible and the second for the poisonous species. To put the question in correct form, one should ask "How shall I distinguish edible from poisonous mushrooms?"

In the first place, there is no one rule which can be used to distinguish the two. The following rules are dangerous, because they do not distinguish the edible from the poisonous ones, viz.: Cooking the mushrooms with a silver spoon; putting salt upon the under side of the gills to "test" whether they change color; the presence of pink gills; the fact that the skin of the cap will peel off easily; the fact that the taste is mild, etc. As for the silver spoon, nearly every mushroom, whether edible or poisonous, will turn a silver spoon black, if the mushroom is a little old, while most mushrooms whether poisonous or otherwise, if fresh, will not blacken the spoon. The change of color of the gills due to salt has nothing to do with their poisonous quality. It is true that the common cultivated mushroom, which is the same as the common field mushroom, has pink gills when young, but there are some species of pink gills which are looked upon by botanists with great suspicion. As for the peeling off of the skin of the cap, that is a characteristic which is common to some of the poisonous ones as well as to some of the edible ones. Indeed some of the edible ones do not peel well. The taste cannot be used as a criterion, for some of the most deadly mushrooms are "pleasant to the taste, while some of the most wholesome ones are, before cooking, very peppery."

There is one good rule, and it is the only safe one, namely, know the particular mushroom you wish to eat as well as you would know your best friend. Never eat a mushroom on the description given by some neighbor unless the description enables you to definitely locate certain plants. Even then, do not eat them unless you have full confidence in your neighbor's ability to know the good kinds from the bad. For more cases of poisoning are due to people ignorantly mistaking poisonous forms for harmless mushrooms than if they have been accustomed to collecting. For this reason one must know his mushrooms well enough to be sure of his identification of the mushroom. When in doubt, do not eat, is a safe rule that ought to be followed by every would-be mushroom eater. Another point always to be observed is, do not look at just one or two of the specimens in your basket, and on finding them good, judge that the whole basketful are safe to eat. It may happen that the ones you picked up were wholesome ones, while others in the same basket were of poisonous kind.

It is only by trial of the different species that it has been determined which ones are poisonous and which ones are not. If you find certain mushrooms are abundant and you have no one to inform you whether they are edible or not, this can be determined by trial. Eat first a small piece, no bigger than the head of a very small hatpin. If, after one-half hour or so, there is no discomfort, try a piece as large as a pea. Wait two or three hours before eating any large piece. If you still have no trouble, eat a piece as big as the end of your little finger. If this still has no bad effect, it probably will be safe to eat the whole of a small specimen. If this is harmless, you probably can eat that variety with safety.

One last word about mushrooms, never eat them after they are old and infected with maggots or after they have become very dark color or, in the case of the puffballs, after the inside has begun to get spongy and somewhat brownish rather than firm and white. Again I repeat, never eat a mushroom that you do not know, for although it is true that there are probably dozens of wholesome kinds for every poisonous kind, yet, if you make a mistake and eat the poisonous one, it may be that they will say about you as they have said of others, "When he was dead he was very dead and will probably stay dead for a long, long while."

For packing use only perfectly fresh eggs, for stale eggs will not be saved and may prove harmful to the others. Do not wash the eggs before packing, for by so doing you injure their keeping quality, probably by dissolving the mucilaginous coating on the outside of the shell.

Of the 182 calf births recorded by the New York experiment station, the average period of gestation was about exactly 280 days. The shortest period was 264 days; the longest 296 days. Approximately the same number of births occurred on each day from the 27th to the 29th day, inclusive.

BABY'S TERRIBLE SUFFERING

"When my baby was six months old, his body was completely covered with large sores that seemed to itch and burn, and cause terrible suffering. The eruption began in pimples which would open and run, making large sores. His hair came out and finger nails fell off, and the sores were over the entire body, causing little or no sleep for baby or myself. Great scars would come off when I removed his shirt."

"We tried a great many remedies, but nothing would help him, till a friend induced me to try the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment but a short time before I could see that he was improving, and in six weeks' time he was entirely cured. He had suffered about six weeks before we tried the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, although we had tried several other things, and doctors, too. I think the Cuticura Remedies will do all that is claimed for them, and a great deal more." (Signed) Mrs. Noble Tibbman, Dodson, Mont., Jan. 25, 1911. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. 18 K, Boston.

Literary Criticism.

They were discussing a certain author at dinner, and a well known critic raised a laugh by remarking: "Well, her hairs red, even if her books are not."

The mild young man in the corner made a mental note of the sally for future use, and at another party shortly afterward he carefully guided the conversation into literary channels. Titbits informed its readers. Fortunately, some one mentioned the desired name, and he triumphantly cried out: "Well, she's got red hair, even if her books haven't!"

Synonyms.

The French Canadian always has trouble with the aspirate "h." At a debating club in the Province of Quebec members were required to draw a slip from a hat and debate upon the subject they received. A young countryman arose.

"I have drew the word 'bat.' I must told you dere is two tree different kind of bat. Dere is de bat wot you play de baseball wit, de bat wot fly in de air at night and also de bat where you take de swim."—Success Magazine.

The Bishop and the Boy.

The late Bishop Williams of Connecticut was very fond of children, and it was always a joy to us youngsters when he came for his visit to my father's parish. His anecdotes and stories, enlivened the whole household. Once when he was staying with us he told the following story:

"One Sunday morning, just after breakfast, I repaired to the rector's study, where I was soon followed by his little four-year-old son, who climbed up on my knee and began to talk. Suddenly the little fellow looked up into my face and said: 'Bishop, do you want to see my piggy book?'"

"Yes, indeed," said I. So the child laid down and started to get the book. When half-way across the room a sudden idea seemed to strike him, and, running back and putting one hand on my knee, he looked up in my face and shook his little forefinger at me, whispering: 'Bishop, it's Sunday. We must do zis on ze sly!'"—Harper's Magazine.

Hardly as Bad as That.

The boy whose business it was to answer the telephone rushed into the room of the senior partner.

"Dear me," returned the senior partner, in a bewildered sort of way. "I knew my wife was pretty hot about something when I left home this morning, but I didn't think it was so bad as to set the house on fire!"—Stray Stories.

Weak Heart

Many people suffer from weak hearts. They may experience shortness of breath on exertion, pain over the heart, or dizzy feelings, oppressed breathing after meals or their eyes become blurred, their heart is not sufficiently strong to pump blood to the extremities, and they have cold hands and feet, or poor appetite because of weakened blood supply to the stomach. A heart tonic and alterative should be taken which has no bad after-effect. Such is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which contains no dangerous narcotic or alcohol.

The ingredients, as attested under oath, are Stone root (Collinsonia Canadensis), Bloodroot (Sanguinaria Canadensis), Golden Seal root (Hydrastis Canadensis), Queen's root (Sagittaria Syriatica), Black Cherry bark (Prunus Virginiana), Mandrake root (Podophyllum Peltatum), with triple refined glycerine, prepared in a scientific laboratory in a way that no drug could imitate.

This tonic contains no alcohol to shrink up the red blood corpuscles; but, on the other hand, it increases their number and they become round and healthy. It helps the human system in the constant manufacture of rich, red blood. It helps the stomach to assimilate or take up the proper elements from the food, thereby helping digestion and curing dyspepsia, heartburn and many uncomfortable symptoms. Stomachic food waste in consequence from fever, for the run-down, anemic, thin-blooded people, the "Discovery" is refreshing and vitalizing. Stick to this safe and sane remedy, and refuse all "just as good" medicines offered by the druggist who is looking for a larger profit. Nothing but Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will do you half as much good.

Why Do I Use HENKEL'S FLOUR?

That's simple. I like good flour. Henkel's Bread Flour makes my best bread and lots of it. My best cakes are made with Velvet Pastry Flour. Of course I use it.

NOTE—Henkel's Pancake and Graham Flour and Henkel's Corn Meal are mighty good.

Avoid Harsh Drugs

Many Cathartics tend to Cause Injury to the Bowels

If you are subject to constipation, you should avoid strong drugs and cathartics. They only give temporary relief and their reaction is harmful and sometimes more annoying than constipation. They in no way effect a cure and their tendency is to weaken the already weak organs with which they come in contact.

We honestly believe that we have the best constipation treatment ever devised. Our faith in it is so strong that we sell it on the positive guarantee that it shall not cost the user a cent if it does not give entire satisfaction and completely remedy constipation. This preparation is called Rexall Orderlies. These are prompt, soothing, and most effective in action. They are made of a recent chemical discovery. Their principal ingredient is odorless, tasteless and colorless. Combined with the other well-known ingredients, long established for their usefulness in the treatment of constipation, it forms a tablet which is eaten just like candy. They may be taken at any time, either day or night, without fear of their causing any inconvenience whatever. They do not gripe, purge, nor cause nausea. They act without causing any pain or excessive looseness of the bowels. They are ideal for children, weak, delicate persons, and aged people, as well as for the most hearty person.

They come in three size packages, 12 tablets, 10 cents, 36 tablets, 25 cents; 80 tablets, 50 cents. Remember, you can obtain them only at my store—The Rexall Store, A. E. Stanley, Northville.
