- The Opening Session.

Amidst confusion and shouting the fifteenth national convention of the Republican party was born in Chicago Tuesday Chairman Rosewater's gavel banged at 12 ol, just one minute behind the schedulc. It was still banging 15 minutes later as Sergeantal-Arms Win. F. Stone, with a negaphone, ordered the police to clear the fields and prepare for a photographer to take a flashlight of the scene. The fight over the commation, the climax of a campaign that has seen a former president and a president trail through half the states of the Union, was reflected in the attitude of the delegates

A shiver passed through Betty. She was seeing it all again-Charley as he groped among the graves with the hand of death heavy upon him.

A moment later she was alone. The girl had disappeared. There were only the shifting shadows as the wind tossed the branches of the trees; and the bands of golden light that signted along the empty path. The fear of the unknown leaped up afresh in Bet-15's soul; in an instant flying feer had borns her to the boy's side.
"Come come quick, Hannibal!"

she gasped out, and seized his hand "What is it Miss Betty? What's the matter?" asked Hannibal as they fled panting up the terraces.

I don't know-only we must get away from here just as soon as we can!" Thea, seeing the look of alarmon the child's face, she added- more quietly, "Don't be frightened, dear, only we must go away from Belle Plan at once." But where they were to go, she had not considered.

Reaching the house, they stole to Delty's room. Her well-filled purse was the important thing; that, together with some necessary clothing went into a small hand-beg.

"You must carry this, Hannibal; it any one sees us leave the house they'll think it something you are tak-ing away," she explained. Hannibai nodded understandingly

It occurred to him that an adequate ex plansiion of their flight would require prepartition, since the judge was at all times singularly alive to the slight est discrepancy of statement. Phey had issued from the corn field and went along the road toward fixleigh.

Suddenly Betty paused "Hark!" she whispered.

"Il were nothing, Miss Betty," said Habuibal reassuringly, and they hur ried forward again In the utter still ness through which they moved Betty heard the basting of her own heart and the soft and all but inaudible par ter of the boy's bare feet on the warm dust of the read. Vague forms that resulved themselves into trees and bushes seemed to creep toward them out of the night's black uncertainty Once more Betty paused and her hand stole up to her heart, Hannibat as define, and he returned to his consideration of the judge. He sensed something of that intellectual nimbleness which his perron's physical make up in nowiec suggested, since his face was a mask that usually left one in doubt as to just how much of what he heard succeeded in making its impression on him; but the boy knew that Slocum Price's blind side was a shelterless exposure. 'You don't think the carriage could. have passed us while we were crossing the corn field? said Betty.

"No, I recken we couldn't a-missed hearing it," answered Hannibal. He had bearcely spoken when they caught the rattle of wheels and the beat of hoofs. These sounds swept nearer and nearer, and the darkness disgorged the Belle Plain team and Carriage.

"How dare you stop my carriage 'It were nothing, Miss Betty," said cried Betty, with a very genuine anger which for the moment dominated all her other emotions. She struggled to her feet, but Slosson put out a heavy hand and thrust her back.

"There now," he urged soothingly. Why make a fuse? We sin't going to harm you; we wouldn't for no sum of-money. Drive on, Jim drive like acil!" This last was addressed to The man who had taken George's place on the box, where a fourth member of Slosson's band had forced the coachman down into the narrow space between the seat and dashboard, and was holding a pistol to his head while he sternly enjoined stience

With a word to the horses Jim swong about and the carriage rolled off through the night at a breakneck Betty's shiking bands drew Hannioal closer to her side as she elt the surge of her terrors rise with-Who were these men-where could they be taking her-and for what purpose? The events of the past week linked themselves in tragic sequence in her mind. What was it she had to fear. Was it Tom for whom these men were acting? Tom who would profit greatly by her disappearance or death!

They swept past the entrance at Belle Plain past a break in the wall of the forest where the pale light of stars showed Betty the cornfield she and Hannibal had but lately crossed, and then on into pitchy darkness again. She clung to the desperate hope that they might meet some one on the road, when she could cry out and gire the alarm She held herself in readiness for this, but there was unly the steady pounding of the big bays as Jim with toice and whip urged them forward. At last be abimptly checked them, and Bunser and Slesson spring from their seats.

but none of em was like him-i trained 'em up to the minute!" Mr Slosson seemed to have passed completely under the spell of his domes tic recollections, for he continued with just a touch of reminiscent socness in his tone. "There was all tour four Mrs. Slossons: two of 'em was South Carolinians, one was from Geor gia, and the last was a widow lady out of east Tennessee. She'd buried three husbauds, and I figured we could start perfectly even." trinsic fairness of this start made its strong appeal. Mr. Slesson dwelt upon -it with setisfaction. "She had three to her credit. L had three to mine; neither could crow none over the other.

POINTERS FOR THE MOTORIST

Tells flow to Repair Punctures in Inner Inbes.

When a tube is punctured, the first thing to do les to find out if the puncture is in one wall of the 'tube only or if both walls are perforated. Next a careful examination should be made to determine that no part of the article which caused the puncture has lodged inside the tube Then select'a red-para patch: says a recent Michelin instruction book, considerably larger on all sides than the injury to be repaired and clean the patch carefully on its flat or unbeveled side with emery paper,

Now lay the tube on a donsenlent and with emery-paper clean a space around the puncture elightly larger than the patch to be used. Cont both the sleaned surinces with cement and after this has dried apply a second coat. In about ten minutes when the surfaces are still 'tacks' press the patch firmly th place taking care that the edges do not curl. If the patch is beveledged. little difficulty will be experienced. Sow tap lightly all over its surface with some round, smooth object like the end of a toll handle. If done chrefully this will exclude every particle of hir and the nir cemented surfaces will adhere perfectly. - Put smooth flat-surfaced weight on the patch and leave the repair thus as long as practicable

Own Your Home

It is easier to pay a dollar a week for 52 weeks than $52 at the end of the year. That is the beauty of the Loan method.

A METHOD THAT IS HIFTING FOUR ALL THE TIME.

One dollar a week is the payment required on a $400 Joan from the Acsociation. Looks easy to make. Is. On the other hand if you pay $52 at the end of the year you have got to save on the average of $1 each week. But will you? CHAPTER XXVIII.

At a small hour of the morning they made Diamond Harbor in nitch darkness and without misadventure were successful in causing themselves to be transhipped, bag and baggage, fo the twinscrew steamship Poonah, which vessel rode at anchor in midstream Toward eight o'clock of the whitebot forenoon that followed, O'Rourke, n the shadow of a long boat on the Poorah's promenade deck, stood fin the addition of a beard to his physiogishing a matutinal cigar and watching narrowly a tender ferry out a final disguise. And it seemed reasons ern river bank :-

Slowly the tender forged toward the steamer's side; and as it drew near; O'Rourke forgot to smoke and bent over the rail to inspect with unremitting interest those upon as decks

The forward deck of the tender held his regard but briefly, those who waited there, exeing impassively the towering flanks of the liner, were one and all of the east, of races, creeds and types too numerous to catalogue. These the adventurer might not read, save individually upon personal confact. If trouble was to come from them, collectively or individually, he would not know until the blow had fallen On the other hand, he might se able to hazard shrewd surmises as to the potential animus inherent in any one of the Europeans who were to be his fellow passengers.

-The latter were a more handful; half a dozen, commercial travelers from London, Paris, Berlin, their avocations evident beyond dispute; a sal-low English missionary with his withered wife, sombre figures in the stark sunlight, a red-faced deputy-sub something or other of the Lidian governible accessors, for all homes do it, and new pith helmet with a gay puggaree;

a lone English girl, and a Frenchman. The two latter held the Irishman's attention, fhe girl because, even at a distance, her slim white-clad figure and well-poised head seemed singularly fresh and attractive; the man because-well, because O'Roucke was susceptible to premonitions. 200

He was a tall man and broads the Franchman-well made, well-groomed, carrying himself with an indefinable making by a neatly wimmed and pointed beard and musiache.

O'Rourke could not have said that he had ever seen the man before; yet there was this and that about him which struck a spark of reminiscence from his memory. A suspicion fisshed through his mind which he put uside with disdain, as abourd and far letched. On the other hand. He knit his brows in puzzlement.

The very fixity of his regard drew the eyes of its object upwards. encountered O'Rourke's, lingered brief-Ir in an unveiled, inquiring stare in which there was not to be detected the least hint of recognition, and passed onward casually, indifferently, Ignoring the impertinence.

The tender's passengers began to stumble up the gang plank to a lower deck of the liner; and O'Rourke, with a sober face, went below, taking some cere to avoid contact with the incom-

He found Danny was in his state room, engaged with some details of cepair to the adventurer's wardrobe

O'Rourke remained for a brief-apace standing in the middle of the cabin, visibly abstracted. Then abrapily some whimsical consideration seemed to resolve his dublety—as lightning will clear saliry, brooding air; a smile deepened the corners of his mouth, the flicker in his eye merged magically into a twinkle, the shrug of his broad shoulders conveyed an impression of casting care to the winds:

Danny, lad,? he remarked reflect ively, throwing himself ungracefully upon the cushioned trainsom opposite to his berth. Danny, ye wouldn't fle to me, would ye now

"Aw-w!" reproved Danny "Shure, yer honor knows ut isn't in me at all."
And to himself; "Phat the divile

"Theu tell me, Danny truthfully did ye ever see a shost?

since it had become a ghost, Danny?"
"Awaw-w!"—still willing! to be amused, if "himself" chose to be facetious '

"Because," continued O'Rourke with a slight frown, "I have, and that not five minutes since."

"Wance I left a man for dead, Danr, with a clean sword thrust through the body of him-a misherotten blackguard he was; but I killed him in fair fight, sword to sword, and no fa-vor . . And this bright and beautiful morning, lo and behold yet who should come tripping up the gangplank but his ghost, as lively as ye please, and with a neat new beard."
"An-w?"- incredulously.

O'Hourke frowned impatiently "Des Trebes," be explained

The valer left with circumspect ala crity,

Alone, O'Rourke rose, and turned thoughtfully to a revolver that made a conspicuous black spot on the while counterpane of the borth, with hereous, strong flugers unlimbering the weapon and taking account of the brats dials of the cartridges that nextled soug in its six-chambered cylinder. The machine was in perfect condition; O'Rourke snapped the breech shut and thrust if in his pocket Then he sat down to tnink, sub consciously aware from noises with out that the tender had swung off and the anchor was being tripped.

Could the resemblance be accidental? It seemed bardly possible. The Des Trebes he had known had been a type distinct, so clear and alsof from the general Frenchman that not even notay could rave proven a thorough enough to assume that, airs. Prynne having failed in ber undertaking, Des Trebes would resume his office as ac tive head of their conspiracy. If it were andeed he whom O'Rourke had just seen, there was every chance imaginable that the final chapter in the history of the Irishman's connection with the Pool of Flame would prove an eventul one "Maybe tet," admitted O'Roucke, "maybe I coceive meself. But I'm persuaded II' do well to keep both me cyes open pro-! the day I'm rid of the damned thing
