LIFE'S DISAPPOINTMENTS

GREAT BALL GAME HERE SATURDAY

WAS COMPLETE SHUT-OUT FOR NORTHVILLE

The Final Score Was Only 17 to 0.
That's All.

Some time ago the "Circle N" boys went to North Farmington to play the Farmington "Elephants." The occasion was a family reunion picnic and the scene being rural, the game was held in a near by cornfield. Maybe it wasn't one. Anyhow it was nearly as bad, being full of stones and so rolling that only the outfielders' caps were visible from the catcher's box. Notwithstanding these conditions, the final score showed two for Northville. But the Elephants, being used to stumbling around in corn fields, got four runs and of course were tickled to death. Hadn't they, beaten the well known invincible "Circle N's"?

When the return game was scheduled for Saturday, August 3, they were sure of an easy victory and bets were up on every side. But the Athletic Park grounds come far from resembling a cornfield. The third inning gave Northville a lead of five scores with Farmington's expressed by an 0. In hopes of turning the tide, Elephant "Charley" was taken out of the box and Frank Keats of Pontiac, who has pitched two games for the Southern Michigan League, was pushed to the front. Nothing doing. The "Circle N" boys were hitting unusually well and gathered in seventeen scores, while the "Elephants" were 0 from the beginning to the end of the game. Now how about it, "Elephants"?

Don Ball earned the dollar bill offered by our chief router, "Bill" Ambler, for the first two bagger, getting a three base hit in the first of the second inning.

We hope that hereafter the management will furnish overcoats for grand stand routers. It sure was something here.

Three deaths by drowning were narrowly averted here Tuesday noon. Harlan Rogers who is occupying the Chas. Yerkes cottage was helping in a boat with his daughter and her chum, when the boat tipped over, probably caused by the girls leaning too far to one side. The three people were thrown into the water but managed to hold onto the boat. They were picked up by another boat in a very short time, as there were many people on the lake at that time of day.

Simple Diet the Best.

The fewer foods we eat together at a single meal the better, from the health standpoint, of that there can be no reasonable doubt. The poor man who can afford but a few simple dishes is far better off, in reality, than the rich man with his extensive "course dinners" as many millionaires have found out when they are reducing to living on milk for a while.

Duel Has Happy Ending.

At Edinburgh, two Italians met at midnight to settle a dispute. Having but one pistol, they drew lots to see which one should shoot first. The winner fired and missed, and then politely handed over the pistol to his adversary. The second shot likewise proving accurate, the bloodthirsty combatants fell upon each other's necks, then quit the field arm in arm.

Invigorating Bath.

A salt rub is most beneficial to the health, and can be obtained by procuring a bowl of moistened salt with which the body should be rubbed. Another invigorating plan is to buy the rock salt, draw a tub of water and let the cups full of salt dissolve in it before taking the morning plunge.

Sunday Trading Discouraged.

For selling an egg and an orange to a child on a recent Sunday a dealer was fined 15 and 95 cents, or seven days in prison, at Borwick, Scotland. The chief constable said Sunday trading was being put down in the town, and there had been complaints about the accused.

PROGRESSIVE PARTY STARTED HERE

EVERY TOWN IN THE STATE TO BE ORGANIZED

Nathan Clapp Will Be the Town
Chairman

About twenty enthusiastic voters met in Ambler's hall Wednesday night and a "Bull Moose" club was organized with N. A. Clapp as town ship chairman and N. E. Bogart as temporary secretary. Mr. Ferris, county secretary, of Detroit presided at the meeting and told of its aims and purposes.

Mr. Ferris stated that every town in Michigan would be organized with a view of not only electing President Roosevelt but the whole state and county ticket as well.

Need of Greater Production.

If every immigrant that shall enter the ports of the United States and Canada during the next decade were to engage in cultivation of the soil the production resulting would be none too great for the reasonable needs of the people who have to be supplied.—New York Sun.

Unsuccessful Experiment.

"Wonder," mused little Harry, who was studying his Sunday school lesson, "if men will ever live to be 500 or 600 years old again?" "No, I guess not," replied his six-year-old sister. "The Lord tried the experiment once and they got so bad he had to drown most of them."

Turn to Motor-Vehicles.

The advent of motor vehicles in Madras is of comparatively recent date, but within a very brief interval they have to a great extent supplanted carriages drawn by horses, which formerly constituted the chief means of transportation among the European contingent.

Ideal of the Philistine.

"What is your idea of classical music?" "Well," replied Mr. Cumrox, "I don't profess to know much about it. But it always seems to me that when a man writes classical music he simply takes a tune and sees how much he can muss it up."—Washington Star.

TRADE AT RYDER'S

WILSON ACCEPTS THE NOMINATION

Is Told by Committee. He Is Party's Choice for President.

GIVES HIS IDEAS ON ISSUES

Declares Coming Campaign Is Unusual
One and That Candidates Must Face Awakened Nation on Many Important Problems.

Sea Girt, N. J., Aug. 7.—Woodrow Wilson was today officially notified that he had been nominated by the Democratic party as their candidate for president. The speech of notification was delivered by Ollie James, chairman of the nomination committee.

In reply Governor Wilson, after thanking the committee, commented on the unusual nature of the coming campaign in which the candidates must address an awakened nation, impatient of partisan make-believe and never more susceptible to unselfish appeals or to the high arguments of sincere justice. The forces of the nation, he said, are asserting themselves against every form of special privilege and private control, and are seeking bigger things than they have ever heretofore achieved.

Two Great Things to Do.

"How do we expect to handle each of the great matters that must be taken up by the next congress and the next administration?" said Mr. Wilson, and he answered his own query as follows:

What is there to do? It is hard to sum the great task up, but apparently this is the sum of the matter. There are two great things to do. One is to set up the rule of justice and of right in such matters as the tariff, the regulation of the trusts and the prevention of monopoly, the adaptation of our banking and currency laws to the varied uses to which our people must put them, the treatment of those who do the daily labor in our factories and mines throughout all our great industrial and commercial undertakings, and the political life of the people of the Philippines, for whom we hold governmental power in trust, for their service, not our own. The other, the additional duty in the great task of protecting our people and our resources and of keeping open to the whole people the doors of opportunity through which they must, generation by generation, pass if they are to make conquest of their fortunes in health, in freedom, in peace, and in contentment. In the performance of this second great duty we are face to face with questions of conservation and of development, questions of forests and water powers and mines and water ways, of the building of an adequate merchant marine, and the opening of every highway and facility and the setting up of every safeguard needed by a great industrial, expanding nation.

These are all great matters upon which everybody should be heard. We have got into trouble in recent years chiefly because these large things, which ought to have been handled by taking counsel with as large a number of persons as possible, because they touched every interest and the life of every class and region, have in fact been too often handled in private conference. Our difficulty is not that wicked and designing men have plotted against us, but that our common affairs have been determined upon too narrow a view, and by too private an initiative. Our task now is to effect a great readjustment and get the forces of the whole people once more into play. We need no revolution, we need no excited change, we need only a new point of view and a new method and spirit of counsel.

We are servants of the people, the whole people. The nation has been unnecessarily, unreasonably at war with itself. Interest has clashed with interest when there were common principles of right and of fair dealing which might and should have bound them all together, not as rivals, but as partners. As the servants of all, we are bound to undertake the great duty of accommodation and adjustment.

Revision of the Tariff.

Coming to the tariff question, the governor said the schedules "have been made up for the purpose of keeping as large a number as possible of the rich and influential manufacturers of the country in a good humor with the Republican party, which needed their constant financial support. The tariff has become a system of favors, which the phraseology of the schedule was often deliberately contrived to conceal."

Reasserting the Democratic conviction that the only legitimate object of tariff duties is to raise revenue for the support of the government, he continued:

There should be an immediate revision, and it should be steady and downward, it should begin with the schedules which have been most obviously used to kill competition and to raise prices in the United States, arbitrarily and without regard to the prices pertaining elsewhere in the markets of the world, and it should, before it is finished or interrupted, be extended to cover every schedule which affords any opportunity for monopoly, for special advantage to limited groups of beneficiaries, or for subsidized control of any kind in the markets of the enterprises of the country; until special favors of every sort have been absolutely withdrawn and every part of our laws of taxation shall have been transformed from a system of government patronage into a system of just and reasonable charges which shall fall where they will create the least burden. When we shall have done that, we can fix questions of revenue and of business adjustment in a new spirit and with clear minds. We shall then be partners with all the business men of the country, and a day of freer, more stable prosperity shall have dawned.

Control of the Trusts.

The governor spoke of how recent investigations have revealed the connection between the tariff and the movement of prices, and this brought him to the subject of trusts, concerning which he said in part:

I am not one of those who think that competition can be established by law against the drift of a world-wide economic tendency, neither am I one of those who believe that business done upon a great scale by a single organization—call it a corporation, or what you will—is necessarily dangerous to the liberties, even the economic liberties, of a great people like our own, full of intelligence and of indomitable energy. I am not afraid of anything that is normal. I dare say we shall never return to the old order of individual competition, and that the organization of business upon a great scale of co-operation is, up to a certain point, itself normal and inevitable.

Power in the hands of great business men does not make me apprehensive, unless it springs out of advantages which they have not created for themselves. Big business is not dangerous because it is big, but because its bigness is an unwholesome inflation created by privileges and exemptions which it ought not to enjoy. While competition cannot be created by statutory enactment, it can in large measure be revived by changing the laws and forbidding the practices that killed it, and by enacting laws that will give it heart and occasion again. We can arrest and prevent monopoly. It has assumed new shapes and adopted new processes in our time, but these are now being disclosed and can be dealt with.

Concentration of Credit.

But the problem and the difficulty are much greater than that. There are not merely great trusts and combinations which are to be controlled and deprived of their power to create monopolies and destroy rivals; there is something bigger still than they are and more subtle, more evanescent, more difficult to deal with. There are vast confederacies (as I may perhaps call them for the sake of convenience) of banks, railroads, express companies, insurance companies, manufacturing corporations, mining corporations, power and development companies, and all the rest of the circle, bound together by the fact that the ownership of their stock and the members of their boards of directors are controlled and determined by comparatively small and closely interrelated groups of persons who, by their informal confederacy, may control, if they please, and when they will, both credit and enterprise.

There is nothing illegal about these confederacies so far as I can perceive. They have come about very naturally, generally without plan or deliberation, rather because there was so much money to be invested and it was in the hands, at great financial centers, of men acquainted with one another and intimately associated in business, than because anyone had conceived and was carrying out a plan of general control; but they are none the less potent, a force in our economic and financial system on that account. They are part of our problem. Their very existence gives rise to the suspicion of a "money trust," a concentration of the control of credit which may at any time become infinitely dangerous to free enterprise. If such a concentration and control does not actually exist, it is evident that it can easily be set up and used at will. Laws must be devised which will prevent this, if laws can be worked out by fair and free counsel that will accomplish that result without destroying or seriously embarrassing any sound or legitimate business undertaking or necessary and wholesome arrangement.

Question of Conservation.

Of conservation and allied matters Governor Wilson said:

I do not know any greater question than that of conservation. We have been a spendthrift nation and must now husband what we have left. We must do more than that. We must develop, as well as preserve, our water powers and must add great waterways to the transportation facilities of the nation, to supplement the railways within our borders as well as upon the isthmus. We must revive our merchant marine, too, and fill the seas again with our own fleets. We must add to our present postoffice service a parcels post as complete as that of any other nation. We must look to the health of our people upon every hand, as well as hear them with justice and opportunity.

There are many sides to these great matters. Conservation is easy to generalize about, but hard to particularize about wisely. Reservation is not the whole conservation. Development of great states must not be stayed indefinitely to await a policy by which our forests and water powers can prudently be made use of. Use and development must go hand in hand. The policy we must not be protective, not negative, merely, as if we did not know what to do. With regard to the development of water and more numerous waterways and the building up of a merchant marine, we must follow great constructive lines and not fall back upon the cheap device of bounties and subsidies. In the case of the Mississippi river, that great central artery of our trade, it is plain that the federal government must build and maintain the levees and keep the great waters in harness for the general use. It is plain, too, that vast sums of money must be spent to develop new waterways where trade will be most served and transportation most readily cheapened by them. Such expenditures are no largess on the part of the government; they are national investments.

Merchant Marine.

The question of a merchant marine turns back to the tariff again, to which all roads seem to lead, and to our registry laws, which, if coupled with the tariff might almost be supposed to have been intended to take the American flag off the seas. Bounties are not necessary, if you will but undo some of the things that have been done. Without a great merchant marine we cannot take our rightful place in the commerce of the world. Merchants who must depend upon the carriers of rival mercantile nations to carry their goods to market are at a disadvantage in international trade too manifest to need to be pointed out; and our merchants will not long suffer themselves—ought not to suffer themselves—to be placed at such a disadvantage. Our industries have expanded to such a point that they will burst their jackets; if they cannot find a free outlet to the markets of the world, and they cannot find such an outlet unless they be given ships of their own to carry their goods, they will go the routes they want them to go—and perforce the interests of America in their sailing orders and their equipment. Our domestic markets no longer suffice. We need foreign markets. That is another force that is going to break the tariff down. The tariff was once a bulwark; now it is a dam. For trade is reciprocal; we cannot sell unless we also buy.

The very fact that we have at last taken the Panama canal seriously in hand and are vigorously pushing it to wards completion is eloquent of our re-awakened interest in international trade. We are not building the canal and pouring out millions upon millions of money upon its construction merely to establish a water connection between the two coasts of the continent, important and desirable as that may be, particularly from the point of view of naval defense. It is meant to be a great international highway. It would be a little ridiculous if we should build it and then have no ships to send through it. There have been years when not a single ton of freight passed through the great Suez canal in an American bottom, so empty are the seas of our ships and seamen. We must mean to put an end to that kind of thing or we would not be cutting a new canal at our very doors merely for the use of our own ships.

We shall not manage the revival by the mere plying device of tolls. We must build and buy ships in competition with the world. We can do it if we will but give ourselves leave. There is another duty which the Democratic party has shown itself great enough and close enough to the people to perceive, the duty of government to share in promoting agricultural, industrial, vocational education in every way possible within its constitutional powers. No other platform has given this intimate vision of a party's duty.

Free to Serve the People

In concluding the governor said: A presidential campaign may easily degenerate into a mere personal contest and so lose its real dignity and significance. There is no indispensable man. The government will not collapse and go to pieces if any one of the gentlemen who are seeking to be entrusted with its guidance should be left at home. But men are instruments. We are as important as the cause we represent, and in order to be important must really represent a cause. What is our cause? The people's cause? That is easy to say, but what does it mean? The common as against any particular interest whatever? Yes, but that, too, needs translation into acts and policies. We represent the desire to set up an unentangled government, a government that cannot be used for private purposes, either in the field of business or in the field of politics; a government that will not tolerate the use of the organization of a great party to serve the personal aims and ambitions of any individual, and that will not permit legislation to be employed to further any private interest. It is a great conception, but I am free to serve it, as you also are. I could not have accepted a nomination which left me bound to any man or any group of men. No man can be just who is not free; and no man who has to show favors ought to undertake the solemn responsibility of government in any rank or post whatever, least of all in the supreme post of president of the United States.

To be free is not necessarily to be wise. But wisdom comes with counsel, with the frank and free conference of untrammelled men united in the common interest. Should I be entrusted with the great office of president, I would seek counsel wherever it could be had upon free terms. I know the temper of the great convention which nominated me; I know the temper of the country that lay back of that convention and spoke through it. I need with deep thankfulness the counsel of those men from whom I feel that I am surrounded by men whose principles and ambitions are those of true servants of the people. I thank God, and will take counsel.

DESIGNS IN DRAPERIES

STYLES OFFERED GIVE HOUSE-WIVES A WIDE CHOICE.

For Summer Curtains, Coolness and Fresh Appearance Is All Important—
Cretonne or Chintz Sash
Are the Present Favorites.

The city housekeeper who must stay in town all summer does not bother with draperies. Her sole need is air and light, and she is sensible she sticks to undraped windows and doors. For the suburban and country house, however, curtaining is all-important.

Never has the choice of these been wider or more artistic than this season, and the woman who must rearrange her house or furnish a new one is to be envied.

In selecting summer curtains two things are important. The fabrics chosen must be cool and fresh looking and they must be washable. Heavy draperies are inappropriate, because they are inappropriate. This eliminates brocades, silks and satins, velvets and wools.

In curtaining a summer house choose nothing that will be ruined by open windows. Where double curtains are used they should be easily manipulated on the rods.

Unless a bedroom has plenty of windows double curtains should not be used. Some housekeepers prefer the cretonne or chintz sash curtains. These hang to the sill and work loosely on rods. While they shut out more air than the net or lace curtain they darken a room better, and if properly hung can be pushed into small compass at night.

There is a fancy now for the valance across the top of the window. This may be a ten-inch ruffle run on a rod, but the shaped and stiffened valance is enjoying quite a revival.

In treating any window or door, remember the simpler the effect and the straighter the lines the better taste. Puffed and much draped hangings are bad form.

For these heavy curtains or draperies are shown a variety of printed chintzes, taffetas—linen and cotton—and cretonnes of foreign and domestic make. The coloring of even the cheaper grades is artistic and one can find flowers, foliage and birds in any desired color. The English glazed chintz is especially effective and washes well. Its chief objection is easy wrinkling.

Yeast Cakes.

One quart thick buttermilk, one pint corn meal, one half pint flour, one large yeast cake soaked in just enough water to cover. One half teaspoon ginger may be added, but it is not necessary.

Put the buttermilk over the fire in a granite pan and bring to a boil, then stir in the corn meal and flour, which have been sifted together. If ginger is used it can be added as it is cooked also. This should be of about the consistency of mush when cooked. When lukewarm add the soaked yeast cake and set in a moderately warm place to sour, which should take from twelve to twenty-four hours. When it bubbles or smells quite sour it is ready to be mixed with more meal, enough to roll out on a bread board. Then cut and place when it will dry.

"Devil's Food."

Cream overcup of light brown sugar with one-fourth of a cupful of butter and one egg. Add one cupful of sour milk or cream, first dissolving in it one teaspoonful of soda. Stir in one tea spoonful of vanilla, and one-fourth cupful of sifted flour and two squares of bitter chocolate dissolved in three-fourths of a cupful of boiling water. If sour cream is used instead of milk, use half the quantity of butter. Bake in two layers or in a loaf in a moderate oven.

Hints About Steel.

To clean articles made of steel, rub with a piece of raw potato, unskated lime or powdered pumice. Skates, sled runners, etc. may be prevented from rusting when they are stored away for the summer, by coating them with a mixture of lard, pulverized black lead and camphor.

To remove rust from steel, rub with salt wet with hot vinegar, scour and rinse with boiling water.

Dry with a clean flannel cloth and polish with sweet oil.

Washing Eggs.

The ordinary way to break an egg is to hit it against another egg or over the edge of the mixing bowl and let the contents stream over the side of the shell without considering whether the latter is clean or not. Even if there is no visible dirt, the shell may not be as clean as it seems, for it may have come from a dirty nest or have been untidily handled. Eggs should therefore always be washed before breaking.

Ice Cream Coffee.

Put a good-sized spoon of vanilla ice cream into the bottom of a tall, large glass and fill up with chilled and iced coffee made with sugar and cream. Do not stir. Serve with long-handled spoon.

When Drying Clothes.

The next time you prepare your drying water add a little salt. This helps to distribute the color and prevents the clothes from becoming streaked or blotched from the dyes.

Children will do much for a woman, but it will not permit her to sneeze gracefully.

A Puzzle.

"Birds of a feather flock together."
"How about a rooster and a crow?"

Too Sleepy.

Physician—What can I do for you?
Patient—My foot gets asleep often and I want something to give it insomnia.

In Practice.

Husband—Your extravagance is awful. When I die you'll probably have to beg.

Wife—Well, I should be better off than some poor woman who never had any practice.—London Opinion.

Sounds Better.

The feeling of many men with regard to public office is much the same as that which certain distinguished Frenchmen had toward the academy—that group of forty who are called "the immortals." He was asked one day why he did not propose his candidacy for the academy.

"Ah," said he, "if I applied and were admitted, some one might ask, 'Why is he in it?' and I should much rather hear it asked, 'Why isn't he in it?'"—Christian Register.

Making Himself at Home.

Doris was radiant over a recent addition to the family, and rushed out of the house to tell the news to a passing neighbor.

"Oh, you don't know what we've got upstairs!"

"What is it?"

"It's a new baby brother!"—and she settled back upon her heels and folded her hands to watch the effect.

"You don't say so!—Is he going to stay?"

"I guess so,"—very thoughtfully "He's got his things out."

Awful.

A West End woman called the attention of her husband to a little baby which was trying to sleep on the porch of its home on the opposite side of the street.

"It's lying on the bare boards, isn't it?" he observed.

"Yes, they haven't even placed a rug for the little chap to rest his head on."

The husband took another look.

"And what do you think of that?" he ejaculated. "They haven't even painted the boards."—Youngstown (O.) Telegram.

Red Cross Seals Being Printed.

Seventy-five million Red Cross seals are now being printed for the holiday sale of these anti-tuberculosis stickers for 1912. The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, which in co-operation with the American Red Cross will conduct the sale, makes this announcement and states further that the outlook this year is bright for a higher sale than ever before.

The seal this year is said to be the best of its kind that the Red Cross has ever issued. The design is in three colors, red, green and gray. A Santa Claus head in the three colors is shown in the center surrounded by holly wreaths. In each corner is a small red cross. The seal bears the greeting, Merry Christmas, Happy New Year, American Red Cross, 1912.

FAMILY RUNT

Kansas Man Says Coffee Made Him That.

"Coffee has been used in our family of eleven—father, mother, five sons and four daughters—for thirty years. I am the eldest of the boys and have always been considered the runt of the family and a coffee toper.

"I continued to drink it for years until I grew to be a man, and then I found I had stomach trouble, nervous headaches, poor circulation, was unable to do a full day's work, took medicine for this, that and the other thing, without the least benefit. In fact I only weighed 116 when I was 26.

"Then I changed from coffee to Postum, being the first one in our family to do so. I noticed, as did the rest of the family, that I was surely gaining strength and flesh. Shortly after I was visiting my cousin who said, 'You look so much better—you're getting fat.'

"At breakfast his wife passed me a cup of coffee, as she knew I was always such a coffee drinker, but I said, 'No, thank you.'

"What!" said my cousin, 'you quit coffee? What do you drink?'

"Postum," I said, 'or water, and I am well.' They did not know what Postum was, but my cousin had stomach trouble and could not sleep at night from drinking coffee three times a day. He was glad to learn about Postum, but said he never knew coffee would hurt anyone. (Tea is just as injurious as coffee, because it contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee.)

"After understanding my condition and how I got well I knew what to do for myself. He discovered that coffee was the cause of his trouble as he never used tobacco or anything else of the kind. You should see the change in him now. We both believe that if persons who suffer from coffee drinking would stop and use Postum they could build back to health and happiness." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

TWO TERRIBLE CASES OF RINGWORM CURED

By Resinol. Itching and Disfiguring.

Chicago, Ill., June 8, 1912: "My little daughter had a terrible case of ringworm, which was told was a wet ringworm, on the back of her head from ear to ear, and also one which spread from one hip to the other, extending from the waist down. They itched her continually. She had to be carried on a pillow, and she could not sleep on account of the sore. She suffered terribly and I tried several remedies without much relief until a happy thought struck me to try Resinol Soap and Ointment. It made short work of the ringworm." (Signed) E. S. The trouble began with severe itching, affecting my face and neck. Then burning set in, causing me to lose a lot of sleep. In all, there were a dozen fairly large sores, with many small ones. "Exclamatory" Was Right.

Mrs. Mason's colored washerwoman, Martha, was complaining of her husband's health.

"Why, is he sick, Martha?" asked Mrs. Mason.

"He's very polly, ma'am, polly," answered the woman. "He's got the exclamatory rheumatism."

"You mean inflammatory, Martha," said the patron. "Exclamatory means to cry out."

"Yes, ma'am," replied Martha, with conviction; "dat's what it is. He hollers all the time."—Judge.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT'S "CONFESSION OF FAITH"

COLONEL ANNOUNCES LONG LIST OF RADICAL
PLANKS FOR NEW PROGRESSIVE PARTY.

Leader of New Movement in Record Speech Calls for Short Ballot, Short Hours, Age Pensions, Woman's Suffrage and Other Reforms.

Theodore Roosevelt made his "confession of faith" to the National Progressive convention in Chicago Tuesday.

The former president struck out boldly into new ground, advocating measures which he said frankly would be denounced as either socialism or anarchy. The delegates listened to his speech with the understanding that they must either adopt a platform substantially in consonance with his views or look elsewhere for a nominee for the presidency.

The convention was called to order for Tuesday's session at 12:30, the delegates having been slow to arrive. Chairman Beveridge introduced Col. Roosevelt, and when cheering had ceased he immediately began his two-hour declaration of principles.

These are the conspicuous points in the Roosevelt program: Recall of judicial decisions, as first advocated by Col. Roosevelt in the spring campaign, and for which he was subjected to wide criticism. Col. Roosevelt now advocates its extension to apply to federal as well as state courts. He favors the establishment of machinery to make easier of amendment both the national and state constitutions, especially with the view of prompt action on certain judicial decisions.

Use of the government to assist workmen to become part owners of the business in which they are employed.

The government system should be shaped so that "the public servant, when he cannot conscientiously carry out the wishes of the people, shall at their desire leave his office and not misrepresent them in office."

Would Alter System of Government.

Col. Roosevelt did not suggest the method by which he would bring this about, and there was much speculation as to whether he had in mind a fundamental change in the American system of government. In some quarters it was interpreted as a declaration in favor of extension of the recall to include legislative, executive and judicial officers of the national government, from the president down.

Control of the trusts through retention of the Sherman anti-trust law and establishment of an interstate industrial commission to regulate corporations as the interstate commerce commission regulates railroads. Corporations which come voluntarily under this commission and obey its orders to do so to be subject to prosecution, and if the prosecution is successful, thorough dismemberment, the constituent parts not to be allowed to do business save under conditions laid down by the industrial commission. Conditions determining monopoly prices to be controlled where these concerns deal with the necessities of life.

Adoption of a number of measures to secure "social and industrial justice to the wage workers."

Plan for Industrial Justice.

Included in the list are establishment by law, immediately of minimum wage scales for women, minimum wage commissions to fix standards of wages for all workers, old age pensions, a living wage, which Col. Roosevelt defines as an amount sufficient to provide for education, recreation, care for immature members of the family, maintenance of the family during sickness, and accumulation of reasonable saving for old age, prohibition of night labor for women and children, eight hour shifts for workmen in industries in which men are employed 24 hours a day; national and state workingmen's compensation laws, guaranteed by law of one day a rest in every seven, old age insurance and insurance against sickness, invalidism and involuntary employment, the cost of such insurance to be distributed among employer, employee and perhaps the people at large.

Legislation to increase popular control over governmental agencies, including a national law for presidential primaries, election of U. S. senators by direct vote, the short ballot, corrupt practices acts applying to primaries as well as elections, qualified adoption of the initiative, referendum and recall.

Woman's suffrage.

Strengthening of the pure food law.

Establishment of a national health department.

Creation of a permanent tariff commission to study the effects of protection and the relations of the tariff to labor.

Col. Roosevelt declared against blanket reductions of the tariff, saying that changes should be made schedule by schedule.

Cost of Living Remedy.

Measures to relieve the high cost of living, among which are suggested elimination of the infant mortality, legislation to stop speculation which inflates prices, maintenance of the farmer by state and national government, one of improved business methods, good roads, reclamation of arid and swamp lands and an expert examination into any tariff schedule which seems to increase the cost of living.

Development by the federal government of the Mississippi river as a deep waterway, by use of the plant employed on the Panama canal upon completion of the canal.

Fortification of the Panama canal. Free passage through the canal for coastwise traffic and imposition of equal tolls for all other ships of whatever nation.

May be to build up steadily until reduction of armaments is made possible by international agreement.

Col. Roosevelt denounced the Republican and Democratic parties as "larks, with no real soul in either, and as boss ridden and privileged classes." He asserted that the chief concern of the "privileged interests" was to defeat the new party, and that they cared little whether they beat it with President Taft or Woodrow Wilson, regarding the difference between them as trivial.

"I hope we shall win," he said, "and I believe if we can wake the people to what the fight really means that we shall win."

COMPARISON OF PLATFORMS.

Planks Not Found in Other Party Platforms, But Favored by Roosevelt.

Recall of all public servants (taken to mean legislators, president and judges).

Recall of judicial decisions.

Extension of recall of judicial decisions even to federal courts.

Make amendment to assist the workman to become a part owner of business, of his employer.

National control of all trusts dealing in necessities of life.

Minimum wage for women workers.

Enforce a living wage.

Old age pensions.

Bar women and children from all night labor.

Extend eight-hour day.

Enforce one day's rest in every seven.

Governmental insurance against sickness and non-employment.

Minimum wage scale to fix standard of wages for all workers.

Short ballot.

Restricted initiative and referendum and recall.

Woman's suffrage.

Eliminate commission men and other middlemen as one cause of high cost of living.

Connect Gulf of Mexico with Lake Michigan by making Mississippi river a deep waterway for big ships.

Authorities at the Ingham county jail in Mason have been ordered to remedy conditions at the institution or the state will close it. The jail is held to be unclean.

Because the demand for labor in Saginaw was too great and there was no unemployed to enlist, the navy recruiting office, which has been operated in the federal building for several years, will be discontinued October 1 and moved temporarily to Ray City, Chief Quartermaster C. V. Kinney has been in charge of the local office, which has been a disappointment.

A rich vein of ore has been uncovered in the Tilden mine, near Bessemer, property of the steel trust, at a 2,000-foot level. It is thought it is a continuation of the Palms mine strike adjoining.

A new kind of intoxicating liquor has been discovered in Missouri. At the bottom of every silo is discovered a liquor produced by the fermentation of the silage. It is similar to ordinary corn whisky before being distilled. While it is not expected to become fashionable at city bars, the liquor is pronounced good for medicinal purposes.

PROGRESSIVE PARTY IN SESSION

SENATOR BEVERIDGE IN KEY.
NOTE SPEECH USES SLOGAN
"PASS, PROSPERITY AROUND."

COL. ROOSEVELT IN CHICAGO TO ATTEND CONVENTION.

Beveridge Names Evils of Big Business and the Tariff as Two Principal Problems to Overcome.

The progressive party was formally launched as a national political organization in Chicago Monday afternoon at 12:47. At that hour the national convention which will nominate Theodore Roosevelt for the presidency was called to order.

The delay of 47 minutes in opening the proceedings was due to an extended conference which the progressive leaders held with Col. Roosevelt at his hotel. On their arrival the proceedings began.

Dixon Calls to Order.

Senator Joseph M. Dixon of Montana called the convention to order and a new political party was ushered into being. Amid the usual delay while the clerks shouted orders to clear the aisles Dixon stood waiting his chance. It was some minutes before he was able to speak.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he said, "the convention will now come to order. Twenty-eight days ago in the city of New York it was decided there would be a new political alignment in these United States. They thereupon issued a call for a convention to take up the subject and try to accomplish an alignment."

Has Seen Evolution.

"In the past 28 days the nation has seen evolution in its democracy, a new alignment in political parties. Now in four weeks the nation has seen a political convention of a new party sending the largest number of delegates ever seen at a political convention in this country."

While Dixon was speaking some one shouted "Hurrah for Teddy," and for two or three minutes delegates indulged in a shouting spree.

Timothy Dixon resumed and introduced O. K. Davis, who read the call for the convention. The reading of the call twice occasioned cheers.

The reading of the names that were appended to the call was also a signal for cheers. Hiram W. Johnson, of California, and Ben Lindsey were both loudly cheered.

When the name of Dixon, of Montana, was reached the delegates had the occasion to give the provisional chairman a small ovation.

Woodruff and Straus Cheered.

Timothy J. Woodruff and Oscar Straus of New York, were cheered and James R. Garfield's name was greeted with a round of cheers.

When the reading of the call ended, Senator Dixon called on Rev. P. I. Hornblower, who pronounced the prayer.

The Rev. Hornblower's prayer was rather lengthy and he was interrupted by cries of "Amen, Amen."

Former Senator A. J. Royce, of Indiana, was then elected temporary chairman and made a keynote speech.

The senator devoted more than half of his 5,000-word address to what he termed the business evil that faces Americans, as embodied in the trust issue. He laid down as the motto of the progressive party "Pass prosperity around," and made the assertion that the progressives mean to put laws on the statute books that will tell American business men what they can and what they cannot do.

Roosevelt in Chicago.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—The National Progressive party greeted today in the second session of its convention in the Coliseum, the man who is to be its first candidate for the presidency, ex-President Theodore Roosevelt.

Col. Roosevelt appeared before the convention on this occasion to make what he has described for the last several weeks his "Confession of Faith."

This act was an innovation in the annals of American politics. No candidate for the presidency of either an old or a new party has appeared before the body which was to nominate him.

Indictments to Accuse Becker of Graft.

Three or more indictments against Lieut. Becker of the New York police department for extortion are expected this week.

While the police are hunting in the Catskills for two of the men that Jack Rose says were hired at Becker's orders to kill Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, the district attorney's office is at work preparing extortion evidence for the grand jury.

"A cleaner, brighter, better Newport," is to be for one year the slogan of Mrs. Elsie French Vanderbilt and her fellow workers in the Newport Improvement association. The first work will be to clean up the fish market section.

A bona fide lodge of Elks has purchased the Beebe block, near the center of the city, for $16,000. The building will be remodeled into a temple.

A ragadamad road, eight feet wide, from Chicago to the straits of Mackinac, will be the project that a special committee of the board of supervisors and the board of county commissioners will advocate at a meeting of special supervisors, and road commissioners' boards of every county on the east shore of Lake Michigan to be held in Muskegon in the first part of October.

AMERICAN SOLDIER THE BEST

World's Records for Marksmanship All His, and He is Trained to Act on His Own Initiative.

"If there is one big, distinguishing trait of the United States regular, it is individuality. In every one of the great foreign military nations, particularly Germany and Japan, battalion and company officers and enlisted men are carefully trained not to think for themselves. They are used as mere chess pieces under the guidance of a master mind. In this country, where our melting pot has yielded us an extraordinary self-reliant, cool thinking, intensive initiative product, it is only natural that our soldiers should be trained as are our civilians."

The United States army spends annually on rifle target practice five times the sum spent by any other army of an equal number of men. This applies, too, to our field and coast artillery. As a result, no better marksmen can be found than the American soldier and his cousin, the national guardsman, who is trained along the same lines. Every world's fire control and accuracy record with rifle and big gun is today held by the American soldier.

The United States army is small, in accordance with the will of the people not to support a large standing military establishment. But what we have is almost 100 per cent. efficient, the splendid nucleus of the big army of regulars, militia and volunteers which we should place in the field if occasion required. "It is only in equipment—a quartermaster, commissary, medicine and particularly ordnance stores—that our army is lacking—Leslie's."

He Got the Name.

A snob was once put up for a prominent club, where men met nightly to discuss political or billiard questions of the hour. Unfortunately for him, he was not elected, and his wrath was terrible.

Forgetful of English manners and customs, he wrote an indignant letter to the secretary of the club, demanding the name of the member who had blackballed him.

The secretary's reply was brief: "Dear Sir—His name is Legion."—London Tit-Bits.

Inevitable Result.

"I am surprised to hear that Dubleigh has broken down," said Spibbs. "He used to have a splendid constitution." "Yes," said Wiggletope, "but he began amending it."—Harper's Weekly.

THE WORKER BEHIND THE LOOM

"William H. Taft is one of the most successful presidents the nation ever had in point of actual achievement. And he is one of the least successful in impressing the people he serves with a proper sense of his merits. He is like a tapestry weaver, working behind his loom. The people do not see the worker. They see the tapestry, and they approve of it, but there are men in front, whom they do not see, who claim the credit for the work, and who blame the unseen worker for their defects. And the people may yet prefer one of these gabblers to the real master weaver."

There is a lot of wholesome truth in the above statement from the Detroit Journal. Wm. Taft is a poor press man. He does great things and gets little credit but when the critic wake up to the least slip in a cog then William H. gets all the darts. If there is something wrong with this country, then for heaven's sake seek congress and the senate for it. The whole machinery of this government lies right there. The U. S. senate and the U. S. congress is the whole works. The president has little or nothing to do with the management of affairs. If the Republican vote do not like the progressive, prosperous condition of this country right now, then they should vote a Democratic ticket. The Democratic ticket not only for president but for every other office. Let's be consistent. If it's principles we are after, then let's have those principles all down the line. Let go the hot air hum comb, which has been thrown out from first to last only to get votes, and support the whole ticket whether it be Republican, Democratic, or Bull Moose.

NEED OF ROAD IMPROVEMENT.

There is a great clamor for the improvement of the driveway over the bridge that crosses the dam between the Stimpson scale works and the Globe factory. There is about a foot of poor dirt over the cement driveway and when the weather is the least bit wet, the roadway at this point is one awful mud hole. This, and the street from the Union Mfg. Company's offices east to the curve, should soon be put in a condition in keeping with the beautiful roads that lead into Northville from all directions.

The old Republican party would have been all right if it had nominated Teddy, but it didn't and therefore the whole republican party is made up of robbers, liars and thieves.

In other words Roosevelt went down to Chicago and demanded he be nominated for president or else he would organize a fourth party. He got it.

Virtue in Silence.
Silence is one great art of conversation. He is not a fool who knows when to hold his tongue; and a person may gain credit for sense, eloquence, wit, who merely says nothing to lessen the opinion which others have of those qualities in themselves. —William Hazlitt.

Power of Radium.

Suppose that the energy of a ton of radium could be utilized in 30 years, instead of being evolved at its invariable slow rate of 1760 years for half disintegration. It would suffice to propel a ship of 15,000 tons, with engines of 15,000 horsepower, at the rate of 15 knots an hour for 30 years—practically the lifetime of the ship. To do this actually requires one and one-half million tons of coal.—New York World.

The DIAMOND CIPHER

A Baseball Romance

By W. A. PHELON

SYNOPSIS.

Secret Service Chief Wilkins, puzzled over the theft of the government's cipher, calls to his old detective, Pinkett. They think they have discovered a new cipher, when the office boy, Brockett, tells them it is "The Diamond Cipher" and starts for the ball park. Brockett, Chuck Len Fox, a Slammer, Ramon Solano, a Cuban, together with some twenty other youngsters, practices baseball, playing until dark. One of Wilkins' men, who seems to have a paper to a mysterious stranger, as a counter-measure of Brockett's cipher, the ball player and Solano are engaged by government for mysterious mission. Yezimoto, mysterious Jap calls on Brockett.

CHAPTER III.—(Continued.)

"Something doing, sure," commented Solano. "I can see one thing clearly. He fancied that you would sell him a duplicate of your diamond cipher—though I cannot figure out how he could get in touch with that idea, so quickly. Yes I can too. The stenographer! By the way, Harry, I forgot to tell you—I have seen that girl chatting with this same Japanese two or three times. You remember that when we saw them together I was trying to recall some place, some occasion, when I had noticed one or both of them?"

"Looks as if we would have to watch out for Mr. Yezimoto. He may try some jin jitsu tricks if he really wants to get that cipher."

"Quite likely, Harry. Do you know anything about jin jitsu?"

"Only what I have read. I have always believed that a good American swimmer in the jaw would discount all the jin jitsu in the world, and if that wouldn't be enough, I learned a few wrestling tricks from an old grappler some months ago. Nevertheless, I will watch out for the Yezimoto man. He must mean trouble."

The bell rang, and Harry, eagerly responding, welcomed a sturdy, red-headed cherub of fifteen—Mike McKane, a well liked, much-trusted department messenger, and an especial favorite with General Cole. The boy held in a box concealer, a thick envelope which he surrendered to Brockett with a grunt of surprise.

"The old man," explained the messenger, "told me to give this to you, and nobody else. You didn't tell me Japanese guy to relay the letter to you, did you?"

"Why, no—not to a hundred years. Would you mean, Mike?"

"Tell you just now. It was, Harry."

Brockett opened the door, and stepped out into the darkness. As he left the threshold, he noted, with surprise, that the city lamp which was supposed to burn directly in front of the building was unlighted. His eyes had not yet accustomed themselves to the unexpected gloom, when something seemed to snap and whirl in the wide of his head, his feet were struck from under him, and he sank in a helpless heap upon his own doorstep.

CHAPTER IV.

When Brockett's senses returned, his head was humming and buzzing, while strange, confused noises seemed to struggle with one another for the right to add extra discomfort to his dazed and throbbing brain. He pulled himself to his knees, and was immediately tumbled down again by the fall of some heavy body across his back. A vigorously kicking foot, attached to a squirming leg, caught him in the side, and helped to drive the dizziness away. A twisting mass, jerking and heaving spasmodically, carried him against the wall, upsetting him for the third time just as he was regaining his balance. Part of the mass came almost under his own face as he struck the wall, and even in the darkness, he could recognize the features of Mr. Yezimoto, distorted with fury and with pain. Brockett reached over, clutched the throat of the little man with fast returning strength, and grappled grimly, mercilessly, till the fight choked out of him. Then a small solid figure climbed off the legs of the prostrate prisoner, and scurried in the direction of the street lamp. A moment later the light gleamed out in all its prime radiance, giving the bewildered Brockett a chance to survey the scene of battle.

Mr. Yezimoto, very limp and very unoffensive, was stretched out under Brockett's knees. Ten feet away, Ramon Solano was vigorously kicking a man who was still fighting, although down and at an overpowering disadvantage. Evidently badly hurt, and hardly able to drag himself along the ground, this doubtful warrior was trying to crawl to closer quarters with the Cuban, who stopped lightly backward, and told his victim came in range, and then drove his foot crash

Bertha, after assuring themselves that none of the three champions had received serious injury, sat huddled and wide-eyed near the door, while Brockett interrogated the badly damaged Yezimoto.

"Seems to me, Mr. Yezimoto," Brockett began, "that you owe me quite an explanation. What's the meaning of all this excitement, anyhow?"

Mr. Yezimoto looked up at his jailer, and then at his fellow-captive—a dark little man, as plainly Oriental as Yezimoto himself, but as plainly neither a Japanese nor a Chinaman. Then a smile, a really pleasant, amiable smile, overspread his bruised visage.

"I make mistake, Mr. Brockett. Most unfortunate error. I plan honorably well, but this boy, this small fellow, disarrange plans excellently executed."

"Surest thing you know, pal," approved Mike McKane, gleefully. "I'm the disarranging kid when I get started."

"I had suppose," Mr. Yezimoto went on, "that there was excellent chance that you might step from doorway during evening. You did so, with exactitude. With the honorable assistance of my friend—we not necessary to mention his name—I strike you, not serious, not with brutality. There was not, I honorably assure you, the desire to kill or cause most unfortunate inconvenience. I trust you will accord me the honor of frank belief."

"Why, with pleasure, Mr. Yezimoto," laughed Brockett. "Go on with your story."

Mr. Yezimoto smiled amicably again. "I take, as you say, in honorable discourse, the long chance. Also I do—I hear your colleagues speak thus—the rough stuff that I may accomplish the honorable purpose. You understand, I have nothing of doubt, my wish. I must accomplish what I am required to do."

"I understand you perfectly, Mr. Yezimoto. You wanted to get certain documents from my pocket, and thought they would doubtless be in that pocket when I stepped out into the dark."

"You speak of perfect knowledge. Mr. Brockett. So we make you in the unconscious condition, using no force greater than essential. But before we can take what we required from your pockets, we are attacked. We are overpowered. I, myself, am expert in the jin jitsu, but while I am occupied seeking for your pocket this boy, this young Samurai, for he most honorably great as a fighting man, spring upon me, seize me by the ankles and throw me prostrate, so that the jin jitsu cannot aid me."

Mike McKane giggled gleefully. "That's one trick you've overlooked, Mr. Yez," he chuckled. "You get a guy round the ankles, and give him one jerk—whoo, say, a guy could throw Jack Johnson that way. A little 'cawling'—say, 'scuse me, Harry. I'm home' in on your game."

Mr. Yezimoto eyed the stocky wasp-herd not at all resentfully.

"It was honorable to as the boy explain. I shall remember that at last some time I may make estimable use of it. I am thrown down with this assault of the boy, Mr. Brockett—then you return to consciousness, and I am with great speedness defeated."

"How about your friend, Mr. Yezimoto?" put in Solano. "He didn't seem to have any jin jitsu ready for me. I followed Mikey through the door, your partner tried to stop me, and one good kick brought him down in a heap. Couldn't you have picked a better helper?"

Mr. Yezimoto looked rather ruefully upon his associate, who had not opened his mouth since entering the house, and was simply nursing his bruises.

"My friend," said the Japanese, "is not what you would say of expertness in personal encounter. With the help, possibly, he should do admirably well, but he has not of sufficient skill for honorable battle."

"He's no Jap, at right," commented Mike McKane, studying the silent prisoner.

"No. Not of Nippon," exclaimed Mr. Yezimoto. "He is of long long duration ray friend, however, and for many reasons he is in accompaniment with me this evening."

"Elipino, I should judge," remarked Solano. "Let me talk to him." The Cuban spoke briefly but emphatically in Spanish, and the prisoner returned a short and equally emphatic answer. Solano looked somewhat crestfallen as he translated.

"He says," interpreted the Cuban youngster, "that he has no information to give me; that Mr. Yezimoto can do all the talking necessary, and that I am a rascally dog to be mixed up with Yankee pigs."

There was a general laugh, in which Mr. Yezimoto joined as heartily as anyone. Then the Japanese looked up at Brockett with a quizzical air.

"The explanations are honorably finished, Mr. Brockett. You have now the fullest comprehension of the complete proceedings. It is now to ask—what shall you, being victorious, do with us, being honorably defeated?"

"I suppose," responded Brockett, "that we ought to have you run in. Still, that might cause unpleasant complications. I don't care to have the morning papers—and everyone who reads them—fully posted as to the reasons for your attack upon me, Mr. Yezimoto. On careful consideration of the whole affair, I am strongly tempted to let you go. Don't you think that would be best, Ramon?"

The Cuban gave unqualified assent. "They didn't get what they were after, Harry—and they did get a trimming that they won't forget in a hurry."

"Let them be on their way, and in a hurry."

Brockett conducted his prisoners to the door, and dismissed them with a ceremonious bow.

"Good-night, Mr. Yezimoto. Come again."

The Filipino limped sullenly away, but Mr. Yezimoto turned, with a smile that illuminated his scarred face for an instant.

"Good-night, Mr. Brockett. You have been most honorably generous. It may be so, sometime, I have excellent opportunity to repay. Good-night."

CHAPTER V.

After the vanquished Orientals had departed, Brockett and Solano proceeded to investigate the thick envelope which Mike McKane had brought them. The messenger sat by—a wise little owl and a loyal one.

while Mrs. Brockett and Bertha fluttered to and fro, still more or less excited by the events of the evening.

A packet of yellow backed bills was first brought to light, and then a letter, penned in the firm hand of Chief Wilkins. Another sheet was next opened, revealing the handwriting of General Cole, which was not unfamiliar to young Brockett. Both boys were relieved and pleased to find that nothing typewritten had been sent them.

No chance for any treachery there," remarked Solano, as Chief Wilkins' letter was placed upon the table. "If your stenographer counted on getting a copy of this particular document, she loses."

Brockett laughed light heartedly, and then whistled in surprise. Excepting a few unimportant sentences at the beginning and the close of the letters, both were in his own cipher, and even the addresses upon two smaller envelopes folded between the sheets were, in the same cryptographic script. Harry rapidly read through Chief Wilkins' letter, and found it to be as follows:

TO TC A 2B W TC BB A TC
PO PO 2BH TC AB WP Pos L E HR

"Simple enough," remarked Brockett as he finished the letter. "Tomorrow morning, you will go by as circuitous a route as can be traveled within eight days to Rancho Nogal. Where you will find Gomez Esteral. Give him letter and cipher key. Bring reply."

"Easily understood," commented Solano. "We can doubtless find Rancho Nogal on the maps, and we are to go there by as roundabout a road as possible—within a limited space of time. Reasons for the circuitous journey are easily seen. Our tropical friends, the little brown men, might be trailing us. What does the general say?"

"His letter is short and to the point," answered Brockett, spreading out the sacred words in this fashion:

Pos TO SH PO FA Pos L TC 2BH
HR T SH PO SH TO TC SH W PB
BA SH WP TO TC R TC PO TC E
SIF PO PO SH BB 3BH L Brooklyn

"At El Paso, give letter and key to Colonel Lewis, Sixth cavalry. Simple enough, but do we see the Colonel on our way there, or coming back?"

"Probably left to our own judgment and convenience," answered Solano. "Now, then, let's locate Rancho Nogal."

"I think I have found the place," Harry spoke up. Bertha, Brockett

"While you were reading the last message, I glanced along the map of the Mexican border—good thing we have an atlas—and located Rancho Nogal. It seems to be a small station, perhaps ten miles south of Presidio del Norte, in Chihuahua."

"Some names, then," remarked Mike McKane. "How will I ever get the hang of 'em?"

"You, Mickey," laughed Solano. "Forget them before you sprain your tongue."

"Forget nothing," replied the messenger boy. "I gotta learn 'em just the same as youse two."

"How do you figure that, out, Mike?" queried the amused Brockett. The stubby messenger grinned back at him.

"Because I'm going along with youse two. See? I got in on this thing so far, and it looks better'n all the Old South an' Nick Carter stuff that was ever read."
