PONTIAC NOT IN IT SATURDAY

CARTER-CARS HARDLY GOT A LOOK IN

And Our Old Friend Frank Keys Was Here

Northville fans were out in full force Saturday to witness the ball game between the Carter-car team of Pontiac and the (Style N's, knowing that Frank Keys was to occupy the pitcher's box. Most of them got acquainted with Frank and his work when he pitched here for the North Farmington Elephants a week ago. He had a lot to do that day, but he certainly had his hands full Saturday, doing all the infield work and assisting in nearly every out, and was the only Pontiac man to cross home plate.

These extra duties had a bad effect on his pitching, and he succeeded in striking out only three men; while Bell counted off nine. Just two Carter-car men managed to reach second base and one of these on an error. The final score was six to one in Northville's favor.

Moffitt and Bell were Northville batters, Kelly playing right field.

Matson—Manson.

H. Walter Matson of this place and Miss Blanche Manson of Detroit were married at the home of the bride's parents in that city one day last week. Mr. Matson is well known in Northville and his many friends will unite in wishing he and his bride a long and happy life.

Mr. and Mrs. Matson are visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Matson for a short time and will then go to Detroit where they will make their home.

LOAN BOOKS FREE

All School Districts Can Secure Libraries at Cost of Transportation

School districts of this vicinity may secure the use of an excellent library of fifty well selected books by paying the the freight and cartage charges from Lansing and return. Educators throughout the country recognize that proper books of fiction, history, science and government compose the most essential equipment for the school room and state of Michigan is willing to help the school districts in this matter. Those in charge of the state library have arranged to make the splendid resources of that institution available for the people of the entire state instead of merely the residents of Lansing.

TO LOAN PICTURES

State Library Offers to help Schools Districts Decorate Their Buildings

Excellent prints of the world's great masterpieces, suitably framed may be loaned from the state library by the various school districts of Michigan, at no expense to the districts except for the freight and cartage from Lansing and return. Applications should be made to State Librarian Mary C. Spencer, Lansing, Michigan. The educational value of good pictures is everywhere conceded among educators and the offer of the state makes it possible to transform the barren walls of many schoolhouses with works of art at practically no expense to the district.

Thomas F. Farrell's Administration of County Clerk's Office Commended.

(From Detroit Free Press July 28, 1912)

Thomas F. Farrell, candidate for re-election for county clerk, has received many commendations during his administration from men and women whose business makes frequent reference to the records necessary. "The conduct of Mr. Farrell's office is a credit to this county," said J. T. Cowles, manager of the title and abstract department of the Union Trust Co. He has not only been exceptionally industrious, but he has been wise in his judgment of what is best to be done, and this means a great deal, for there are many who work very industriously, but whose efforts do not direct their labors along the best channels. Mr. Farrell has certainly been a very efficient man in the county clerk's office.

"Mr. Farrell has done especially good work in having the old records back of 1850 arranged for ready reference," said Mr. C. M. Burton. "We do a great deal of business with the county clerk's office, and could ask for no improvement in the efficiency of the office."

Mrs. Mauk Dead.

Mrs. Mary Mauk died at the home of her sister near Wixom Tuesday, at the age of seventy years. She had been ailing for some time.

Mrs. Mauk was for many years a resident of Northville and was greatly loved by all who knew her. The funeral was held at Wixom Thursday. Burial at Oakwood Cemetery, Northville.

Baker Suffocated in Dough.
A baker employed in an East end bakery in New York city met with a strange death some days ago, when he fell into a huge steel cup used for mixing dough. The cup is stationary, but a number of steel paddles operated by electricity revolve about its interior, stirring the dough. A piston operating these paddles extends from the roof. The man mounted to the top of the cup with a pail of flour to throw in as a mixer. He grasped the moving piston and his hands slipped, throwing him headfirst into the dough and the revolving paddles. The foreman heard him scream, and shut off the power immediately, but life was extinct.

Walnut Tree as Bell Tower.
A church bell hung on a walnut tree at Thetford, England, which for 40 years had summoned the villagers to divine service, has been taken down and towed to a new place. The newly erected tower of the church, when the present church, which is a tower, could not be built, was hung on the walnut tree, which is near the church.

MRS. MARVIN BOVEE DIED TUESDAY

WAS ONE OF NORTHVILLE'S EARLY PIONEERS

Had Been a Great Sufferer for Many Years

Mrs. Marvin Bovee died at her home on Main street early Tuesday morning after many years of suffering.

Lucy, daughter of Wm. and Ursula Ambler, was born in the township of Salem, Washtenaw county, in 1840. Fifteen years later she moved with her parents to Northville, where she has since made her home.

In 1861 she was united in marriage with Marvin Bovee. To this union were born three children, Mrs. Perry Woodworth of Newburg and Mrs. B. G. Filkins and Harry Bovee of this village.

Home was to her the dearest spot on earth and those who knew her there, knew her at her best. She has been a patient sufferer for many years.

The funeral services were held at the home Thursday afternoon, her former pastor, Rev. Jacklin of Detroit, officiating.

FATAL ACCIDENT TUESDAY NIGHT

ELLA BORTLES FELL FROM OFF BACK PORCH

The Iron Railing Gave Way at the Stanley House

Mrs. Ella Bortles died at 10:30 Tuesday night of concussion of the brain, caused by a fall. She stood on an upstairs back porch at the Stanley House listening to the music from the dancing party in the rink. An iron railing against which she was leaning gave way and she fell to the ground, striking on her head. Her sister was with her at the time and quickly summoned help but nothing could be done to help her. Dr. D. B. Henry and T. H. Turner pronounced it concussion of the brain. The fall occurred a little before nine o'clock and she died two hours later without having regained consciousness.

Mrs. Bortles was employed at the Thomas Tavern, and was well liked by all who knew her. She leaves a sister and five children, who live in Detroit, Milan and Columbus. She was about 35 years of age, and came from Milan here about six months ago.

The remains were taken to Milan for burial Wednesday afternoon.

Kitchen Luxuries

Don't confine all your luxuries to your parlor. There's plenty of luxury in nice kitchen ware. You spend a great deal more time in your kitchen than in your parlor, anyhow, so why be stingy with yourself just to please the people who come to see you? Our new Aluminum Ware and Pure White Granite Ware is a big improvement over the old black pots and pans. Both of these wares are beautifully clean, and make things taste good. Strong and durable, proof against rust, and above all, absolutely safe to use. Our Aluminum ware is absolutely pure, and our White Granite ware is made of steel, covered with two coats of enamel inside and out, with a smooth glossy finish, giving a handsome and attractive appearance. It will make your kitchen a pleasure resort, if you add to your household utensils a piece or two of either of the above, or both.

STANDARD BEARERS OF THE PROGRESSIVE PARTY.

ROOSEVELT AND JOHNSON WILL LEAD NEW PARTY

Chosen Unanimously by Progressives Amid Scenes of Great Enthusiasm.

TELL DELEGATES THEY ACCEPT

Standard Bearers Appear Before Convention and Promise to Fight to the Finish—Demonstration Lasting 45 Minutes Follows Placing of Roosevelt's Name in Nomination—Platform is Unanimously Adopted—Beveridge Wields Gavel at All Sessions.

PROGRESSIVE TICKET.

For President:

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

For Vice-President:

HIRAM W. JOHNSON.

Chicago, Aug. 15.—Theodore Roosevelt and Hiram W. Johnson were unanimously selected as the standard bearers of the new Progressive party amid scenes of the wildest enthusiasm ever witnessed in a political convention.

Both candidates appeared before the convention and accepted the nomination in brief speeches that were received with deafening applause.

In keeping with its record as the single convention, the first national gathering of the Progressive party wound up with the singing of the doxology.

Prendergast Names Roosevelt.

Colonel Roosevelt's name as the first candidate for president of the Progressive party was presented to the convention by William A. Prendergast of New York.

As Mr. Prendergast concluded his nominating speech with the words "I present you America's greatest statesman and lionhearted citizen, Theodore Roosevelt," the convention—audience and delegates—again transported themselves into a frenzy of delight. The demonstration that followed was in all respects similar to that which had followed the appearance of the colonel in the same hall twenty-four hours before, only yesterday's demonstration was even more wildly enthusiastic, more frenzied, more noisy than the former one.

Seconding Speeches Made.

The uproar continued for 45 minutes. When order finally was restored by Chairman Beveridge, Judge Ben B. Lindsey began the first of the seconding speeches.

His speech, too, evoked a demonstration, as did the others all the way down the line.

Jane Addams of Hull house followed him and she was given an ovation such as never before has been given to a woman.

Other seconding speeches were made by A. T. Hamilton, Georgia; Horatio King, New York; Col. T. P. Lloyd of Florida, a Confederate veteran, who had lost an arm in the Civil war; John M. McDowell and Lucius F. C. Garvin.

Johnson Is Chosen.

After the nomination by acclamation the vice-presidency was taken up and Governor Johnson of California was unanimously chosen.

John M. Parker of Louisiana presented the name of Governor Johnson in a speech that was wildly cheered. Seconding speeches were made by a number of delegates.

The platform presented by the resolutions committee was unanimously adopted.

The temporary organization of the convention was made permanent when the convention met at noon yesterday and Chairman Beveridge was given an ovation when he briefly expressed his appreciation of the honor.

Demonstration for Colonel.

Before a vast audience of glorious, enthusiastic followers, Colonel Roosevelt Tuesday presented his new political creed. It was an epoch-making speech, marking a new era in the political, and perhaps the economical, history of the country.

The scenes attending the arrival and reception of Colonel Roosevelt at the Coliseum were of remarkable interest. Seemingly everyone knew that the occasion was historical.

It was a personal greeting such as has been given to few men in public assemblies. For one hour the demonstration continued.

It began with a long, western yell, and dropped into a steady eastern roar, which continued, interspersed with songs, parades, state cheers and parades on hymns for the better part of the hour.

A more colorful scene has been rarely witnessed. The great hall was a sea of waving handanna handkerchiefs. Roosevelt, himself, had on almost as big as a tablecloth, which he shook in recognition of the cheers. The building was crowded.

Is Real Pleased

Far from showing displeasure, or trying to stop the noise, the colonel was as delighted as a football hero in a college game. He waved to every corner of the hall, and his teeth gleamed in a pleased recognition of the ovation.

The cheering started at 12:52 and at 1 o'clock it was still too loud to allow the business to proceed. Instead, a march of the states began.

Ohio, New York, Missouri and Pennsylvania in the order named, started a march to the platform with their state banners and warblers. Other states fell into line and it seemed something must give way the way they crowded and surged about the very front of the speaker's stand. Arizona, Montana, Iowa and Georgia were in the front and Delaware, Virginia and Colorado were crowding them.

The band at the back of the hall strove to play. Perhaps it did. The snare drummer had a revolver and he could be seen shooting from time to time. But the other efforts of the band that came in with the Roosevelt parade were lost. They worked and worked, but it did not do any good. It was all lost in a volume of shouts.

While the demonstration was at its height a woman, borne on the shoulders of two stalwart delegates, was taken past the press stand and in front of the speaker's stand.

The woman was Mrs. Ferdinand White of Chicago. She wore a long yellow "Votes for Women" streamer pinned across the bosom of her white dress. She smiled and seemed happy, and as she was carried past the speaker's stand she looked into the face of the former president and screamed, "Teddy! Teddy!"

The Eighteenth Pennsylvania district carried a big ring wrapped in a flag and there was a real Rough Rider hat suspended in it.

As the cheering eased up the colonel drew one of the red handannas from his own pocket and waved it.

The crowd could make no more noise, but it could wave more handkerchiefs and it did.

When the demonstration had lasted 15 minutes the crowd began singing "John Brown." For a little while the rolling clamor of the song nearly drowned out the cheering. But not quite. The crowd had to give way to a stored up enthusiasm that was too great for push and in spite of the rhythmic swing of the music there was a staccato of handclapping and a booming accompaniment of cheers.

NEW YORK PROGRESSIVE LEADERS

Over it all some one started the old rebel yell and it thrilled above singing, shouting and blaring brass.

In a momentary lull the mooring of the moose could be heard as the undertone of the basis of the noisy demonstration.

As the singing died down, the "We Want Teddy" yell, the key of the 102d demonstration for Roosevelt at the Republican convention, broke forth and kept up in all parts of the building.

It beat in "increasing volume and regular rhythm against a background of other sounds that seemed to make it more distinct."

Miss Jane Addams, Illinois delegate at large, was lifted to the speaker's stand. As she appeared there, was a renewed burst of cheers and Roosevelt stepped from the "moose pen," in which he had been standing, and strode forth to meet her.

For 25 minutes the shouting had endured. The delegates began to get hoarse. Their voices played out ahead of their enthusiasm and there was a session of whistling. Then the crowd returned to song.

"John Brown's Body" was the air again.

They sang it slowly, but there was plenty of vim in the singing.

Beveridge Calls for Order.

Ex-Senator Beveridge stepped to the "moose pen" beside Roosevelt. He evidently thought the time had come when it might be possible to hear Roosevelt's speech. The crowd did not think so. The noise came back.

A few delegates took the stand. They were greeted with a handshake and a smile. The women in the delegation were led to the stand. All the women with the California delegation went to the stand. It was a signal for more cheers.

At last the colonel began to speak, and the audience settled back with breathless interest.

The speech was followed with close attention and was frequently interrupted with outbursts of cheering.

New Party Launched.

The national Progressive party was launched in the Coliseum here Monday when the followers of Colonel Roosevelt held their first national convention. Albert J. Beveridge, former United States senator from Indiana, was chosen temporary chairman and made the keynote speech. He criticized the Republican and Democratic parties for their attitude, and explained what would be the stand of the new party on that subject.

The Beveridge speech was the feature of the first day's session. The Indiana man was assisted at the birth of the new party by Senator Dixon of Montana, chairman of the provisional national committee of the national Progressive party.

The convention was called to order at 12:46 p. m.

Dixon Gets First Applause.

Senator Dixon, in his opening speech, got the first ripple of applause when he declared more representative delegates were seated in this than in any convention ever held. He referred to the dual sets of delegates sent giving one-half a vote to each. He was interrupted in his speech when some one in the gallery shouted: "Hurrah for Teddy!"

The delegates stood up and yelled. The applause was of short duration and the call for the convention was read.

Beveridge Is Introduced.

Ex-Senator Beveridge was introduced as temporary chairman at 1:30 amid applause.

He was escorted to the platform by Governor Johnson of California, Governor Vessey of South Dakota and Frank R. Fulk of Illinois, third ticket candidate for governor of Illinois.

"The Progressive party stands for a nobler America," was his first sentence and he got a cheer from the audience. It was renewed when he said: "We stand for a mutual helpfulness instead of mutual hatred."

When he declared the Progressive party was going to set the south men free from sectionalism the delegates stood up and yelled.

"The Progressive party motto is to pass prosperity around," declared Mr. Beveridge, and he again set his auditors on edge. This thrust at the old system went home to the assemblage.

"At the present moment notorious bosses are in the saddle of both old parties in various important states which must be carried to elect a president. This black horse cavalry is the most important force in the practical work of the Democratic and Republican parties in the present campaign."

Able to Conserve Them.

A beautiful girl seldom finds it necessary to use the tears which she always has ready for an emergency.

STATE HAPPENINGS

Pontiac.—Hepman, Wigle, foreman of the chassis test department, and Frank Hull, a tester, narrowly escaped death when a test car driven by Wigle turned turtle, pinning Wigle underneath. He was badly cut and bruised, but no bones were broken. Hull jumped just as the car turned over, and escaped injury. The men were driving into town on Auburn avenue. The car struck a stretch of mud, skidded into the ditch on one side and then shot across to the other side of the road, where it cut down a big telephone pole and turned over. The machine is said to have been going 50 miles an hour when the accident occurred.

Bay City.—The body of an unidentified man was found floating in the river, a short distance out from the south pier of Wenonah park. A search of the clothing failed to reveal anything which would indicate the identity of the man. He was neatly dressed in gray, had on a new shirt with a soft collar to match, and a blue necktie, and in the pockets were a Sunday paper of August 4, a $1 bill, $1.35 in small change and a watch with a gold-filled case. There were also in the pockets a medal inscribed "Michigan State Aerie, F. O. E. Saginaw, June 16, 17, 1903," and a small key, evidently for a suitcase.

Port Huron.—No new cases of typhoid fever, of which disease there was an epidemic in this city two months ago, have developed here since July 24, and the result of the analysis of water sent on 19 occasions, taken indiscriminately from taps throughout the city, has proved negative. As a result the city authorities are now convinced that the typhoid situation is well in hand and that there will be no further outbreak of the fever in this vicinity.

Lansing.—John Spar, a Lansing youth in the county jail at Mason, escaped from that institution. He was to be arraigned in municipal court on a charge of perjury, it being alleged that he swore falsely regarding the age of his wife. Her parents were to the warrant, claiming that their daughter was not of a marriageable age. The bars of the cell where Spar was confined were broken. Several other prisoners made no effort to follow him.

Traverse City.—The exhibit of 10 varieties of apples taken to the international apple shippers' convention at Chicago by Secretary John I. Tibben of the Western Michigan Development bureau received four prizes in competition with apples from all over the world. It was only decided about a week before the convention to make the exhibit and the apples were hastily gathered in Grand Traverse and Leelanau counties.

Lansing.—Governor Osborn has named the following delegates to the national congress of colored educators to be held in Washington September 21: Mrs. Lucy Thurman, Jackson, Miss Cora B. Shewcraft, Miss Fannie M. Richards, Miss Marjorie Stovers, Detroit, Miss Edith White, Bay City, Miss Henriette Lauzon, Cassopolis.

Saginaw.—The members of the local W. C. T. U. have taken steps to have all women taxpayers vote at the street car franchise election August 20, and then to launch a campaign to carry the suffrage constitutional amendment at the polls in November. Several speakers of prominence will be brought here during the campaign.

Lansing.—The state railroad commission has authorized the merger of the Michigan State, Home Telephone company and the other independent companies doing business in the immediate vicinity of Detroit. The decision was reached after a conference between the commissioners, which all attended.

Pontiac.—Curtis Dunham rescued Misses Webber and Freeman of Detroit, in Cass lake when their canoe overturned. Miss Webber was unable to swim and was going down the third time when rescued.

Escanaba.—Two department stores were struck by lightning during a severe electrical storm. The city was plunged in darkness by the burning out of the transformer in the power station.

Menominee.—Otto Larson, sixty-five years old, a farmer at Ingals, Menominee county, was struck by lightning and killed during a storm.

Jackson.—Bernard Gillette, eighteen years old, of Hillsdale, was arrested here on a charge of forgery and taken to that city.

Detroit.—The Oakland County Horticultural society will hold its next meeting at Mr. L. B. Flint's farm at Novi, August 10. O. K. White, field agent in horticulture from the agricultural college, will speak on "Grading and Packing of Apples" and "Orchards in the West." R. J. Coryell, expert landscape gardener, will speak on "The Value of Exhibits at the State Fair." L. B. and W. D. Flint will meet all persons going on the car that reaches Northville at 10:30 a. m., if they get off at Griswold's corner, the nearest stop to the Flint farm.

Quite a Walter Raleigh and Queen Elizabeth incident occurred at a military camp lately with Wilhelmina as Elizabeth. The queen was visiting the camp to see a review in her honor.

Despite the rain her majesty walked to one of the batteries to watch the loading and firing of a gun. She was about to return when the artillerymen, noting the wet and muddy ground, hastened to fetch boards, which they placed on the ground to form a pathway for the queen. As there were not enough for a complete path, the men picked up the boards behind her as she advanced, and set them again in front. At the end of the walk, her majesty held out her hand to the man who had placed the last board, whereupon having removed his cap, he bent down and kissed the royal hand.

Willing to Die for Companion.

"If you can, save the other fellow, do so, because he has a wife and children and I have not, and if one of us must die I would rather perish." This was the remark made the other day by William Dietz to men endeavoring to free him and a companion from tons of dirt and rock that had fallen upon them while they were at work in a ditch at Newport, Ky. Both were submerged when one wall of the ditch in which they were stringing telephone wires gave way. The rescuing party had succeeded in removing the debris so the men could breathe more freely, when Dietz, with the above remark, offered them to save Moore, who, after being liberated, helped to rescue his fellow workman. Neither of the men were badly injured.

Patents.

Application for a patent must be made in writing to the commissioner of patents at Washington. The applicant must also file in the patent office a written description of the invention or discovery and of the manner and process of making it, in such full, clear, concise and exact terms as to enable those skilled in the arts and sciences to which it appertains, or with which it is most nearly concerned, to construct and use the same. When the nature of the case admits of drawings, the applicant must furnish them of the required size. In all cases which admit of representation by model the applicant, if required by the patent office, must furnish a model for exhibition.

Nature.

The best definition of Nature is perhaps Mill's in his "Three Essays on Religion." In that most able and interesting work Mill says: "Nature is a collective name for all facts, actual and possible, or a name for the Mode, partly known to us and partly unknown, in which all things take place." Continuing, Mill says: "The nature of a thing means its entire capacity of existing phenomena. As the nature of any given thing is the aggregate of its powers and properties, so Nature, in the abstract, is the aggregate of the powers and properties of all things."

Sterilization of Water by Light.

At the recent hygiene exhibition at Dresden apparatus was shown by means of which water may be purified on a large scale through the use of ultra-violet light. This method is now in use in France on a large scale, and is found to be both practical and economical. The amount of electrical current required to produce the ultra-violet light is small. The efficiency is so great that the water, after treatment, is found to contain not more than twenty-five or thirty germs to the ounce, which is far better than anything that has ever been accomplished by a filtering process.—Good Health.

Birthplace of Columbus.

Garcia de la Riega, the great Spanish authority on Columbus, declares himself to be in possession of documents which prove that the explorer's birthplace is Porto Santo, a small village in the vicinity of Madrid and not Genoa, as popular belief will have it. This declaration has aroused a storm of protest, and a society has been formed for the purpose of making researches in order to refute de la Riega's statement.

THE SHERIFF CANDIDATE

Of the three republican candidates for sheriff, probably none is quite so well and favorably known in the rural districts as Milton R. Oakman, at present one of the county auditors. Oakman has made a splendid record as auditor, and has had the tact, or common sense, if that's what it may be called, to keep out of the petty political scraps that have flooded the county building during the past few years, and at the same time, he has conscientiously, and carefully as well, looked after the affairs of the county and its taxpayers as county auditor. Mr. Oakman has been in public life for a number of years and has made good. He is honest, square toed, careful and painstaking, and besides that, he has the backbone and executive ability to make a splendid sheriff for Wayne county, and he will undoubtedly poll a big vote in the primaries August 27.

Women Workers in Japan.

The Chugai Shogyo Shimbu has been investigating the question of female labor in Tokio, and announces that various economic causes are driving women to seek their occupation in fields which have hitherto been occupied solely by men. The total of the female population is 7,520,000, of whom 161,000 seek their livelihoods outside their own family circle. Of these, maid servants number 54,000, dressmakers 26,000, and shop assistants 24,200. The barmaids and hotel servants number 20,000, while teachers and professional women are 14,500. The women workers of Tokio form 80 per cent of the total working population of the capital. Among them widows and girls ranging in age from 16 to 50 predominate.

Flowers in a Bedroom.

Opinions differ as to the feasibility of having plants in a bedroom. However, almost all authorities agree that plants and trees, through their leaves absorb obnoxious gases and give off oxygen, and that plants require a gas called carbonic acid to promote a rank, luxuriant growth. The gas thus breathed by the plants is poisonous to air-breathing animals, including man, and as it is also given out in the breathing of animals it is poisonous to be re-breathed; but the plants thrive on it. This being the case the decision would be in favor of having the plants in the room to absorb the poisonous exhalations.

Frog Hunting in Russia.

There are frogs in Russia, with powerful lungs, which one may hear barking cheerfully any summer night in the ponds of the islands where St. Petersburg society foregatherers to watch the sunset. Last year it occurred to some enterprising Russians that frogs might be caught, slain, salted and exported to the French allies who appreciate these delicacies. The Yankees of the state of Minnesota, it was said, made thousands of dollars a year by sending frogs to France; why should not Russians do the same? Frog hunting began in Russia last year, and in the end many tons of salted frogs' legs were sent abroad.

Where the Devilry Begins.

"All the devilry between the sexes begins at their separation. They're foreigners when they meet, and their alliances are not always binding. The chief object in life, if happiness be the aim, and the growing better than we are, is to teach men and women how to be one; for if they're not, then each is a morsel for the other to prey upon."—George Meredith.

Not Much Consequence.

Two fishermen named Jeffs living near each other, had met with misfortune, one having lost his wife and the other his boat. A lady visitor called on the one who had lost his boat, thinking it was the one who had lost his wife, and the following conversation ensued: "Good morning, Mr. Jeffs, I am sorry to hear of your sad loss."

"Oh, it ain't up to much." "Dear me, you don't say so!" "Ay, she was a rickety old crook. When I went out with her I was always in danger of my life."

"Indeed!" "I offered her to my mate only last week, but he wouldn't have her; but I have had my eye on another for some time now, and—"

"But the old lady could stand no more of the old man's innocent denunciation of the weaker sex, and hurriedly took her departure."

Dramatic Form of Suicide.

A variation of the suicide drama has just come to light in Morena, northern Italy, where a wealthy manufacturer the other day met a fantastic death. He bought a coffin, took it home, and setting fire to some carbon in his room took his place in the coffin to await death. When the maid went to call her master next day, she found a card on his door on which was written: "Bring the undertaker to take away my corpse." The police were summoned, and entering the room, they found the coffin with the lid lying open. In the coffin was the manufacturer, wearing his decorations. His arms were folded, and lying at his feet was a document directing the manner of his obsequies and granting a pourboire to all who attended his funeral.

Ox Made Investigation.

At a recent auction sale in Echt, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, a good deal of amusement was occasioned when a large ox, which the auctioneer was trying to dispose of, took into its head to walk into the auctioneer's box, and, after he had cleared the office of officials, made a minute inspection of the books, and retired from the rostrum evidently quite pleased with the way the sale was being conducted, and also with the state of the books. It is needless to say that the officials were much more excited than the ox, and made a quick exit, while the ox walked with the utmost deliberation.

Eccentric Tides.

Owing to the effects of shore lines and other influences which are more or less obscure it is very difficult to account for the peculiarities exhibited by tidal waves in various parts of the world. Intertiding waves cause once-a-day tides at Tahiti and in some other places, while on the other hand in the harbors back of the Isle of Wight and in the Tay in Scotland there are three tides in a day. The latter have been ascribed to overflows, produced by the modification of tidal waves running ashore and resembling the overtones of musical sounds.

A healthy man is a king in his own right, an unhealthy man is an unhappy slave. Burdock Blood Purifiers build up sound health—keeps you well.

Northville Proof

Should Convince Every Northville Reader.

The frank statement of a neighbor, telling the merits of a remedy, bids you pause and believe. The same endorsement, by some stranger far away, commands no belief at all. Here's a Northville case. A Northville citizen testifies. Read and be convinced. G. B. Sinclair, High St., Northville, Mich., says: "I recommend Doan's Kidney Pills highly in return for the benefit they brought me. For several months my kidneys gave me a great deal of trouble and the kidney secretions contained sediment and scalded during passage. I tried doctors' medicines but found no relief and finally I was led to get a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills. They helped me wonderfully and restored my kidneys to a normal condition. I willingly tell of my experience with Doan's Kidney Pills." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. ### The City in Brief.

Mrs. Eliza Stark is treating her house on west Main street to a new coat of paint.

Five automobiles were stalled in the mud on the gravel road west of North one day last week.

Ralph Ryder has accepted a position as draftsman with the Detroit Electric Appliance Company.

Mrs. Belle McCully and Mrs. G. A. Tinham attended the fall millinery openings in Detroit Monday.

F. A. Miller, last week, harvested a fine field of hay on his farm just south of town. Twenty tons was the result.

Earl and Carl Stimpson, and Fred Moffet played with the Plymouth ball team at the home coming in Milford last week Friday.

More rain has fallen so far in August than for almost any other month in the year, and no August has previously shown such wetness.

Special communication of Com. Gregory No. 39, Tuesday evening, August 20. Work in order of the Red Cross. Peaches and cream.

T. J. Perkins, who has been quite ill the first of the week, left Wednesday for his home in Bennington, where he will remain until the first of next week.

Henry A. Caughey, candidate for County Drain Commissioner, was in the village Wednesday. Mr. Caughey was county clerk under Judge Brooks and Judge Martin.

Governor Osborn has announced the appointment of John J. Owens of Beaton Harbor as state oil inspector to succeed F. S. Neal, whose term of office expires September 1.

A recent card from Rev. Wm. S. Jerome states that he and Mrs. Jerome leave Orleans, N. Y. where they have been visiting for some time, today, for Harbor Beach, Mich.

The young ladies of the town gave a very enjoyable leap year dancing party in the Park Tuesday evening. Ice cream and cake was served by the Catholic ladies and Roy Gray furnished the music.

W. F. Holly of Fawcett, O. has purchased Fred Egan's home and lot on Wagon street and will move here about November 1. He intends to make all the modern improvements on the home before moving in.

The pretty little Alhambra theatre has added to its attractiveness by the addition of two beautiful oil paintings, each incased in a handsome wicker frame, the latter being the work of Mr. Thompson, the all around man.

Several of the Circle N. boys were heavy losers at the Milford home-coming last Thursday in other ways than base ball. One member lost a brand new twenty five dollar suit coat and others had various pieces of jewelry lifted.

The ice cream social given by the local St. Mary's society Tuesday evening, was a great success both socially and financially. The hand embroidered table cloth was drawn by Muriel Lindsay of Detroit, a former Northville lady.

The Circle N. ball team suffered a defeat at the Milford home-coming last Thursday at the hands of that city's team. It was an off day for Bell so Reilly took his place in the pitchers box but too late to help. The score was seven to eleven.

East main street certainly ought to look good. Extensive repairs are being made on the Institute in the way of painting, redecorating, etc. Mrs. Francis Horton is having her house painted; Ray Van Valkenburg is reshingling the roof of his home, and Dr. T. S. Ball's residence is also undergoing repairs.

The roads from Northville to Detroit are simply impassable. The limit is reached from the Five Points to Redford and from the city limits to the Boulevard. After a while there will be a rule that before one road is all torn up the road commission will see that at least one other road in the county is made passable to get into Detroit on.

W. R. Robinson, who for the past two years has been living on the old Leeward farm north of Northville will in the near future move back to Detroit and take up his old occupation, that of black smithing.

Sport the pet of little Ruth and Mary Ellen Pettibone died Thursday. Some "queer" person poisoned him. Sport was a favorite among all the business men, calling on most of them each day beside making his headquarters at the Pettibone garage.

Street Commissioner Green is doing some nice work in the way of repairs on the approaches to the creek bridges in town and in putting gravel on Cady and other streets, where it is so badly needed. That part of Main street below Dubois' factory will be the next to receive attention.

The piano pupils of Miss Emily Snyder gave a very enjoyable recital at the home of one of them, Miss Anna Nowles, last Friday evening. Piano selections, papers on famous composers and humorous recitations made up a fine program. Ice cream and cake was served to the twenty five guests present.

A few weeks ago, Miss Edna Gunbolls, assistant manager and bookkeeper for the Plymouth and Northville Independent phone office, went to York State to spend her vacation with relatives. While there she received and accepted a position as bookkeeper for a large concern in Brooklyn, N. Y. She will leave to take up her new duties September 1. Miss Gunbolls has been a resident of Northville a number of years and will be greatly missed by her many friends both in Northville and Plymouth.

Charles Miller, son of Joe Miller of this place suffered a serious accident the first of last week. He was working on a new building in Detroit and when ready to descend from the scaffold, that it unnecessary to get down with the aid of a ladder near by, dropping down instead. His right foot struck a rusty nail which drove itself thru his shoe and nearly thro the top of his foot. He was taken to the hospital for treatment and brought home Thursday evening. He is doing as well as could be expected.

The condition of the streets about Northville, so far as mud is concerned is just about the limit. What is apparently needed is the hauling off of a lot of the mud from the top of the roads and then the hauling on of gravel. Randolph street and the foot of Main street looks like the roads in the huckleberry swamps, but Chairman Montgomery of the street committee says this will all be remedied as soon as the gravel can be drawn. Rogers street will also have attention. The council is doing the best it can with the money it has to use, and the scarcity of help and teams.

"A Mighty Man Was He."

At a concert for charity in a country town Miss Carter obliged by reciting "The Village Blacksmith." At the conclusion of her recital the rural audience cheered. "Answer!" they cried. "Answer!" Miss Carter was about to grant the request when a burly fellow, very much out of breath, tapped her on the shoulder. "I've just come around from in front," whispered this man, excitedly. "I want you to do me a favor." "Well, what is it?" queried Miss Carter. "It's this," whispered the intruder. "I happen to be the fellow you've been talkin' about, and I want you to put in a verse this time saying how I let out bicycles."

No preaching services in the Presbyterian church Sunday morning and evening, but the Sunday School services will be held as usual.

What Happened to Jackson.

Mr. Jackson, superintendent of the poorhouse at Portland, Ore., repaired a zinc bath with a preparation of enamel purchased in a local shop, which was warranted to dry hard. A couple of days later he took a hot bath, and while reclining comfortably in the water, went to sleep. Waking up, he found to his horror, that his hair, back and legs were securely glued to the bath. He could not reach the bell; the door was locked. The only thing was to shout. The water was nearly cold by the time his cries were heard, and then the door had to be broken down. Even after that it was a most difficult and painful piece of work to pry him loose and the required a doctor's attention when finally liberated.

Turkey Behind the Times.

Very few dairies of any kind exist in or near Constantinople, and with one exception none is conducted on a scientific plan.

OSTEOPATHY and MEDICINE.

Osteopathy treats cause, medicine the effect. If your body is not well, there must be some mechanical reason. Every medicine necessary is already present in the human body, and when this body begins to run out of its normal path, and strikes back to demonstrate its power, then must the machinery of the body be looked into. I, myself, was a cripple, and the medical profession claimed there was no cure, and that osteopathy was too severe for me. But osteopathy cured me, and out of my faith and gratitude for the wonderful cure it made for even worse cases than my own, and what great benefits I derived from same, I took up the study. Came from a family of medical beliefs. My father for thirty years practiced medicine and my mother twenty five years.

SYNOPSIS.

The scene at the opening of the story is laid in the library of an old worn-out southern plantation, known as the Barony. The place is to be sold and its history and that of the owners, the Quintardes, is the subject of discussion by Jonathan Crosshaw, a business man, a stranger known as "Blades" and Bob Yancy, a farmer, when Hannibal Wayne Quintard, a mysterious child, of the old southern family, makes his appearance. Yancy tells how he adopted the boy, Nathaniel Ferris, the Barony, but the Quintardes deny any knowledge of the boy. Yancy, to keep Hannibal, Captain Murrell, a friend of the Quintardes, appears and asks questions about the Barony. Trouble at Scratch Hill, a plantation, is mentioned by Dave Blount, Captain Murrell's agent. Yancy, overcomes Blount, gives him a thrashing and secures the boy. Yancy appears before Judge Ralston, and is discharged with costs for the plaintiff, Betty Malroy, a friend of the Quintardes, who is suing Yancy. Captain Murrell, who forces his attentions on her, and is rescued by Bruce Carrington, who sets out for his Tennessee home. Carrington takes the same stage, Yancy and Hannibal disappear, with Murrell on their trail. Hannibal arrives at the home of Judge Blount, Price, the judge recognizes in the boy the grandson of an old friend, Murrell. Carrington arrives at Belle Plain. Hannibal's rifle discloses some startling things to the judge. Hannibal and Betty meet again. Murrell arrives in Belle Plain. Is playing for big stakes. Yancy awakes from long dreamless sleep on board the raft. Judge Price makes startling discoveries in looking up land titles. "Charley Norton," a young planter, who assists the judge, is mysteriously assaulted. Norton informs Carrington that Betty has promised to marry him. Norton is mysteriously shot. More light on Murrell's plot. He plans upbringing of negroes. Judge Price, with Hannibal, visits Betty, and she keeps the boy as a companion. In a duel Betty takes with Hannibal their meet again. Judge Price, daughter of the overgrown, who warns Betty of danger and, counsels her, to leave Belle Plain at once. Betty, terrified, acts on her advice, and on their way their carriage is stopped by Slosson, the tavern keeper, and a confederate, and Betty and Hannibal are made prisoners. The pair are taken to Hiko cabin, in an almost inaccessible spot, and there Murrell visits Betty and reveals his part in the plot and his object. Betty spurns his proffered love and the interview is ended by the arrival of Ware, judged at possible outcome of the crime. Judge Price, hearing of the abduction, makes action. The judge takes charge of the situation, and search for the missing girl is instituted. Carrington visits the judge and allies are discovered. Judge Price visits Captain Murrell, where he meets Yancy and Carrington. Carrington, in the color of the day, is arrested. Murrell is revealed for negro dealing and his bubble bursts. The judge and Murrell discuss the coming day.

CHAPTER XXVII.—(Continued.)

He waited now for the light to come and to him the light seemed fixed in the heavens. At Belle Plain Tom Ware was watching it with a shuddering awe of the softness of its light. But at last the tops of the tall trees obscured it, it sank quickly then and blazed a ball of fire beyond the Arkansas coast, while the dying glory spread aloft the heavens, turning the flanks of the gray clouds to violet and purple and gold.

With the first approach of darkness Carrington made his way to the shed hidden in the shadow he pushed to listen, and fancied he heard difficult breathing from within. The door creaked miserably on its wooden hinges when he pushed it open, but as it swung back the last remnant of the day's light showed him some dark object lying prone on the dirt floor. He reached down and his hand rested on a man's booted foot.

"George," Carrington spoke softly, but the man on the floor gave no sign that he heard, and Carrington's questioning touch stealing higher he found that George—like it were George—was lying on his side with his arms and legs securely bound. Thinking he slept, the Kentuckian shook him gently to arouse him.

"George?" he repeated, still bending above him. This time an articulate murmur answered him. At the same instant the woolly head of the negro came under his fingers and he discovered the reason of his silence. He was as securely gagged as he was bound.

"Listen, George—it's Carrington—I am going to take off this gag, but don't speak above a whisper—they may hear us!" And he cut the cords that held the gag in place.

"How do you get here, Mas'r Carrington?" asked the negro guardedly, as the gag fell away.

"Around the head of the bayou," "Lard!" exclaimed George, in a tone of wonder.

"Where's Miss Betty?" "She's in the cabin yonder—for the love of God, cut these here other ropes with yo' knife, Mas'r Carrington—I'm perishable with 'em!" Carrington did as he asked, and growling, George sat erect. "I'm like I was gone to sleep all over," he said.

"You'll feel better in a moment. Tell me about Miss Malroy?"

"They done fetched us here last night. I was divin' Missy into Ralston—her and young Mas'r Hazard—when for men stop us in the road."

"Who were they, do you know?" asked Carrington.

"Lard—what's that?" Carrington, knife in hand, swung about on his heel. A lantern's light flashed suddenly in his face and Boss Hicks, with a low startled cry breaking from his lips, paused in the doorway. Springing forward, Carrington seized her by the wrist.

He Was as Securely Gagged as He Was Bound.

"Hush!" he grimly warned. "What are you doing here?" demanded the girl, as she endeavored to shake off his hand, but Carrington drew her into the shed, and closing the door, got his back against it. There was a brief silence during which Boss regarded the Kentuckian with a kind of cold fearfulness. She was the first to speak. "I reckon you all have come after Miss Malroy," she observed quietly.

"Then you reckon right," answered Carrington. The girl studied him from her level brows. "And you'll think you can take her away from here, she speculated. 'I ain't afraid of yo' knife—you all might use it fast enough on a man, but not on me. I'll help you," she added. Carrington gave her an incredulous glance. "You don't believe me? That would fetch our men up from the keel boat. No—you'll stop me!"

"Don't be too sure of that," said Carrington sternly. The girl met the menace of his words with soft, full-throated laughter.

"Why, yo' hand's shakin' now, Mr. Carrington?"

"You know me?"

"Yes, I seen you once at Hogshead. She made an impatient movement. "You can't do nothing against them to men unless I help you. Miss Malroy's to go down river tonight; they're only waiting for a pilot—you all's got to act quick!"

Carrington hesitated. "Why do you want Miss Malroy to escape?" he said.

The girl's mood changed abruptly. "I reckon that's a private matter. Ain't it enough for you all to know that I do? I'm showing how it can be done. Them four men on the keel boat are strangers in these parts; they're waiting for a pilot, but they don't know who he'll be. I've heard you all was a river-man; what's to hinder yo' taking the pilot's place? Looks like yo' was willing to risk yo' life for Miss Malroy or you wouldn't be here."

"I'm ready," said Carrington, his hand on the door.

"No, you ain't—just yet," interposed the girl hastily. "Listen to me first. They's a dugout tied up 'bout a hundred yards above the keel boat; you must get that to cross in to the other side of the bayou, then when yo're ready to come back yo're to whistle three times—it's the signal—we're expecting—and I'll row across to you in one of the skiffs."

"Can you see Miss Malroy in the meantime?"

"If I want to, they's nothin' to hinder me," responded Boss sullenly.

"Tell her then—" began Carrington, but Boss interrupted him.

"I know what yo' want. She ain't to cry out or pother when she sees you all. I got sense enough for that."

Carrington looked at her curiously. "This may be a serious business for your people," he said significantly, and watched her narrowly.

"And you all may get killed. I reckon if yo' want to do anything bad enough you don't mind much what comes after." She answered with a hard little laugh, as she went from the shed.

"Come!" said Carrington to the negro, who he had seen the cabin door close on him and her lantern, and they stole across the clanking reach of the bayou side they began a noiseless search for the dugout, which they quickly found, and Carrington turned to George. "Can you swim?" he asked.

"Yes, Mas'r."

"Then go down into the water and drag the canoe further along the shore—and for God's sake, no sound!" he cautioned.

They placed a second hundred yards between themselves and the keel boat in this manner, then he and George bring the dugout to the bank, and they embarked. Keeping within the shadow of the trees that fringed the shore, Carrington paddled silently about the head of the bayou.

"George," he at length said, bending toward the negro; "my horse is tied in the woods on the right-hand side of the road just where you were taken from the carriage last night—you can be at Belle Plain inside of an hour."

"Look here, Mas'r Carrington; those folks yonder is kin to Boss Hicks. If he gets his hand on me first don't you reckon he'll stop my mouth? I been here helps of times for chum letters for Mas'r Tom," added George.

"Who were the letters for?" asked the Kentuckian, greatly surprised.

"They was for that Captain Murrell; seems like him and Mas'r Tom was mixed up in a sight of business."

"When was this—recently?" inquired Carrington. He was turning over this astonishing statement of the slave over in his mind.

"Well, no, Mas'r; seems like they ain't so thick here recently."

"I reckon you'd better keep away from the big house yet a while," said Carrington. "Instead of going there, stop at the Belle Plain landing. You'll find a raft tied up to the shore, it belongs to a man named Cavendish. Tell him what you know—that I've found Miss Malroy and the boy; tell him to cast off and drift down here. I'll run the keel boat around the first chance I get, so tell him to keep a sharp lookout."

CHAPTER XXVIII.

The Keel Boat. A few minutes later they had separated, George to hurry away in search of the horse, and Carrington to pass back along the shore until he gained a point opposite the clearing. He whistled shrilly three times, and after an interval of waiting heard the splash of oars and presently saw a skiff steal out of the gloom.

"Who's there?" It was Boss who asked the question.

"Carrington," he answered.

"Lucky you ain't met the other man!" she said as she swept her skiff alongside the bank.

"Lucky for him, you mean. I'll take the oars," added Carrington, as he entered the skiff.

Slowly the clearing lifted out of the darkness, then the keel boat became distinguishable; and Carrington checked the skiff by a backward stroke of the oars.

"Hello!" he called.

"There was no immediate answer to his hail, and he called again as he sent the skiff forward.

"What do you want?" asked a surly voice.

"You want Slosson?" quickly prompted the girl in a whisper.

"I want to see Slosson!" said Carrington, glibly and with confidence.

"Who be you?"

"Murrell sent you," prompted the girl again, in a hurried whisper.

"Murrell—And in his astonishment Carrington spoke aloud.

"Murrell!" cried the voice sharply.

"sent me!" said Carrington quickly, as though completing an unfinished sentence. The girl laughed nervously under her breath.

"Row, closer!" came the sullen command, and the Kentuckian did as he was bidden. Four men stood in the bow of the keel boat, a lantern was raised aloft and by its light they looked him over. There was a moment's silence broken by Carrington, who asked:

"Which one of you is Slosson?"

"I'm Slosson," answered the man with the lantern. The previous night Mr. Slosson had been somewhat under the influence of corn whiskey, but low he was his own cheerless self, and rather faded by the passing of the hour which he had sacrificed to an ink some responsibility. "What word do you fetch from the captain, brother?" he demanded.

"Miss Malroy is to be taken down river," responded Carrington. Slosson swore with surprising fluency.

"Say, we're five able-bodied men risking our necks to oblige him! You can get married a damn sight easier than this if you go about it right—I've done it lots of times." Not understanding the significance of Slosson's allusion to his own matrimonial career, Carrington held his peace. The tavern keeper swore again with unimpaired vigor. "You'll find me a few men with more experience than me," he asserted, shaking his head.

"But if you say the word—" "I'm all for getting shut of this!" answered Carrington promptly, with a sweep of his arm. "I call this pretty close quarters!"

Still shaking his head and muttering, the tavern keeper sprang ashore and mounted the bank, where his slouching figure quickly lost itself in the night.

Carrington took up his station on the flat roof of the cabin which filled the stern of the boat. He was remembering that day in the sandy baron road, and during all the weeks and months that had intervened, Murrell working in secret, had moved steadily toward the fulfillment of his desires! Unquestionably he had been back of the attack on Norton, and it sprang his subsequent murder, and the man's sinister and mysterious power had never been suspected. Carrington knew that the horse-thieves and slave stealers were supposed to maintain a loose-knit association; he wondered if Murrell were not the moving spirit in some such organization.

"If I'd only pushed my quarrel with him!" he thought bitterly.

He heard Slosson's stuffing step in the distance, a word or two when he spoke gruffly to some one, and a moment later he saw Betty and the boy; their forms darkly silhouetted against the lighter sky as they moved along the top of the bank. Slosson, with out any superfluous gallantry, helped his captives down the slope and aboard the keel boat, where he locked them in the cabin, the door of which fastened with a hasp and wooden peg.

"You're boss now, pardner!" he said, joining Carrington at the steering oar.

"We'll cast off then," answered Carrington.

Thus far nothing had occurred to mar his plans. If they could but get the bayou before the arrival of the man whose place he had taken, rest would be, if not easy of accomplishment, at least within the reach of the possible.

"I reckon you're a river-man," observed Slosson.

"All my life."

The line had been cast off, and the crew with their setting poles were forcing the boat away from the bar. All was quietly done; except for occasional order from Carrington words was spoken, and soon the widely craft glided into the slugs current and gathered way. Mr. Slosson, who clearly regarded his relation to the adventure as being of an official character, continued to stand Carrington's elbow.

SCHOOLS TO PARTICIPATE

For Honors at the Great Michigan State Fair.

(By Thos. M. Sattler, Superintendent of Education.)

The educational department of the Michigan State Fair, which opens Sept. 16 next and closes Sept. 21, has a most wonderful growth in the last ten years. It has grown from a small exhibit covering barely 240 square feet in 1898 to an exhibit covering over 30,000 square feet at the present time. The present year promises much greater returns in exhibits than any previous year. In the time specified above the cash prizes awarded have increased from a paltry $397 to $1,100; the growth in the prize list having been very steady. The money is paid to the schools of Michigan.

Ten years ago the exhibits came from a comparative few schools in Michigan and now they come from nearly every section of Michigan. This year there will be exhibits from such cities as Houghton, Hancock, Sault Ste. Marie, Iron Mountain, Bay City, Saginaw, Cheboygan, Marquette, Port Huron, Pontiac, Monroe, Three Rivers, Adrian, Charlotte, Grand Rapids, Lansing, Owosso and many others. There will also be exhibits from rural schools and county normal schools.

One of the most interesting facts is that year after year the exhibits have gained the steady effort on the part of each school to do better than it did before. The rivalry between the schools is intense. To say that every school has gained much by being held to a keen competition with their sister city or school would be putting the exhibit value very mildly. The State Fair management is making every effort to give good space and extra care and attention to every exhibit in this department. The management realizes the importance of this department and has given it an exclusive building 105 feet in length and 45 feet in width and has invited every school in Michigan to make an exhibit this fall.

The Boys' State Fair School, promises to be one of our leading features this year for practically every county of Michigan has selected a boy for this school and we will pay that boy's expenses to the fair and provide competent instructors to give to him a practical knowledge of agriculture. I have been surprised at the intense interest shown in this plan of the Michigan State Fair and believe that the school will become an annual feature which will prove of great benefit to the boys of the state.

WIRE BULLETINS.

That there is "too much slip shod selection of music in American churches," is the charge made by the convention of American organists which is meeting in Astoria Park, N. J., this week. Speakers at the opening session freely criticized what they termed "raggy" music in the churches and said it was sacrilegious.

All attempts to settle the strike of cotton cloth workers in New Bedford, Mass., which is in its fourth week and which is now keeping 13,000 hands idle, have been set at naught by the action of the workers' union, which has voted to yield to nothing but the total abolition of the grading system, which they claim is a method of taking.

V. V. Green, Superintendent of Agricultural Implements and Machinery at the Michigan State Fair, Sept. 16 to 21, next, left Detroit recently for an extensive trip through the west, his trip to extend several weeks. Mr. Green will visit Montana, cities, Oregon, Washington and California and during his journey, will gather data for use in future State Fairs in Michigan.

Prof. Carl Duisberg of Berlin, first to arrive in New York of the foreign delegates to the Quadrennial International Congress of Chemistry, will discuss his method of producing artificial rubber. Before leaving Germany he presented to the German emperor a pair of motor car tires made of the artificial rubber, which is a product of coal tar.

The price of rice in Japan, according to mail advices, has advanced to a figure never before known, failure of the crop in Siam and Burma being given as the reason, and large shipments of wheat and flour from the North Pacific Coast to Japan are looked for. An advance of fifty cents a ton in wheat and flour rates to the Orient will take place in September.

Orchard owners throughout the Lake Ontario fruit belt, New York, predict one of the largest apple yields this year that has ever been harvested. The Baldwin crop will show the heaviest yield of all. Greenings, which were unusually heavy last fall, are not so bounteous this year, although there will be a good average yield. Kings, spies, russets, Ben Davis and other varieties are showing up well.

W. C. Morgan, Superintendent of the Night Horse Show for Michigan State Fair, Sept. 16 to 21, next, has received assurances of the entry of a record-breaking number of great harness and saddle horses, fairs and tandems and the management is extending its efforts to make the horse show for 1912 a record-breaking attraction. Owners of splendid exhibition horses have been frequent callers at the State Fair offices and have invariably promised the entries for their stables for this leading event of the Michigan Fair.

A collision between two monoplanes near the Garden City aerodrome in New York brought both machines crashing to earth. The fall was a short one, and while both monoplanes were badly damaged, neither aviator was injured seriously.

The conquest of Mount Sir Sandford, the highest peak of the Selkirk, by Howard Palmer, secretary of the American Alpine club, is announced in a message sent by Mr. Palmer to the American Geographical Society in New York. The ascent of the mountain, which is 11,531 feet high, was made on June 10.

What He Bought.

A Syracuse business man living in one of the suburbs decided to give up his spacious back yard to the raising of currants as a profitable side issue. So, wishing to absorb all the information he could acquire on the subject of the currant industry, he went down town one Saturday afternoon recently and returned with his arms full of books.

"Well, Teddy," inquired his enthusiastic spouse, as he dumped the volumes on the table, "did you succeed in getting what you wanted?"

"Sure, I did!" he replied, proudly pointing to the books. "I bought a whole year's edition of a standard work on current literature."—Ex-change.

In the Meantime.

There had been a row at recess time, and Miss Martin had called to all of the pupils, and had a sort of a school court, which lasted until time for school to be dismissed. The trouble had started with some of the older boys in a misunderstanding over a game. After hearing both sides of the question, she decided proper punishment for the combatants, and told them to remain in their seats after the others had gone home. She remembered something she wanted to say to a little boy who did not take part in the affair, so she turned to him and said:

"Now, in the meantime, Guy—" "I wasn't in it, Miss Martin," Guy interrupted hastily.

"Wasn't in what?" asked Miss Martin.

"Why, in the mean time," said the eight-year-old. —Mack's "National Monthly."

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Mother of Skill. "Does your wife ever object when you find it necessary to stay down town late at night?" "Oh, no, she knows that I never stay away from home in the evening unless it is a matter of business that keeps me. Does your wife make a fuss when you get home late?" "Always I congratulate you." "Thanks, old man. Yes, I think I'm to be congratulated. My wife is a mighty sensible little woman, even if she isn't as beautiful as some who could be mentioned. Give me an amiable, reasonable woman rather than a pretty one, who can't listen to reason." "It isn't the amiability of your wife that causes me to offer my congratulations." "No? Why then?" "Your ability as a liar."

Banana Flour Introduced into France. Banana flour specially prepared as a food is making its appearance in Paris. Within a recent period this fruit was but little used in France and even now its consumption is limited. However, measures are being taken to increase the importation, and it is said that seventy vessels were recently fitted up for bringing the fruit to Europe. Banana flour has a much more extended use in England than on the continent, but efforts are now made to introduce it in France owing to its great nutritive value.

Preserve Your Health. A well person can make a fair success; a healthy person a better success; a wholesome person cannot only do the biggest things in life but he can help others succeed. He is the individual who leaves a trail of sparks after him, whom you visit and feel refreshed, whom you leave with renewed inspiration. He makes people feel better by his presence.

If you are a housewife you cannot reasonably hope to be healthy or beautiful by washing dishes, sweeping and doing housework all day, and crawling into bed dead tired at night. You must get out into the open air and sunlight. If you do this every day and keep your stomach and bowels in good order by taking Chamberlain's Tablets when needed, you should become both healthy and beautiful. For sale by all dealers.

DR. J. E. BURGESS ROOTHACHER

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES FOR CORONERS

In seeking the nomination for re-election for the offices of Coroners they do so on their past record. It is conceded by all parties that the office during the past two years has been run on strictly business principles. The records show that the expense of running the office for the past year, when 1030 cases were investigated, was less than one-fourth the expense a few years ago when only 342 cases were investigated. Kindness and courteous treatment to all has been the rule in the past and with the return to office of Drs. Burgess & Rothacher, will continue to be so.
