Both bride and groom are popular young people and the Record wishes with all their friends in wishing their long years of happiness, health and prosperity. They left the same day, Wednesday, for a two week wedding trip to Washington, D. C., New York and other points, after which they will be at home to their friends in the Barnhart bungalow just south of the Library.

BANQUET WAS GREAT SUCCESS

OVER 250 ENJOYED ST. MARY'S SUPPER

This Was the Eleventh Annual Affair Held Here

As usual, the Princess riot was filled to overflowing on the occasion of the banquet given by the local St. Mary's society last evening. Like the ten annual affairs previously held here by this society, both the food and speakers were the best of their kind. The addresses given by Edgar Guest and W. J. Burns of Detroit, and Rev. D. G. Needam of Whiteford were very interesting and the several musical selections rounded out a very enjoyable evening's entertainment. Tom May, the famous cartoonist, made an admirable toastmaster. The society netted a neat sum.

DARWIN NORTHROP DIED WEDNESDAY

WAS ABOUT TOWN SATURDAY AS USUAL

Taken with Pleural Pneumonia; Funeral Held Today

Darwin B. Northrop died early Wednesday morning of pleural pneumonia. He had been in apparent good health until Saturday, though about town that day. He was one of Northville's most respected citizens and universal regret will be expressed at his death, rendered all the more shocking because of its suddenness.

Born in New York State in 1834, Mr. Northrop came to Northville sometime in the early fifties. At the time of the gold fever in California he went there, where he remained eight years. Returning to this place, he was united in marriage to Miss Helen Morse, daughter of Ellhu Morse. To this union were born two sons, George, who died a short time ago, and Charles H., who resides in Detroit. Mrs. Northrop died about nine years ago.

Mr. Northrop, an expert accountant, was for many years cashier in the J. S. Lapham company bank, now dissolved; assistant cashier in Northville State Savings bank for some time, and also acted as book keeper for the Stimpson Scale factory during its time in the hands of the receiver. He had held various township offices, and was at one time a member of the legislature from this district. Deceased was the last of the charter members of the Masonic order of this place.

The funeral will be held in the Presbyterian church this Friday, afternoon at 2:30, Rev. J. E. Webber officiating.

Live Each Day.

Foresight is very wise, but foresorrow very foolish. Advertisements, at any rate, better than dunces in the air. — Sir John Lubbock.

DEMOCRATS HAD RALLY SAT. NIGHT

A Goodly Crowd Out Considering The Night.

The Democrats had a rally in the rink Saturday night and considering that Saturday night is not usually a real good night for a political meeting there was a goodly attendance. One hundred and fifty were present at one stage of the count.

There were but five of the county candidates present but they all made good talks.

Chas. E. Downing of Romulus candidate for Representative made a fine talk as also did Ed. Minnock, of Redford, candidate for circuit court commissioner. Other speakers were Mr. Hanley and P. Greene county chairman. The meeting was interesting from the fact that a Democrat rally in Northville is something of a novelty, but with the thoughts of possible victory in sight, this fall there is unusual enthusiasm.

The DIAMOND CIPHER

A Baseball Romance

By W.A. PHELON

SYNOPSIS.

Secret Service Chief ... puzzled over the fact that the government's cipher calls to his aid Detective Pinkwell. They think they have discovered a new cipher when the office boy, Brockett, tells them it's "The Diamond Cipher," and starts for the ball park. Brockett, Chula, Lon Kang, a business man named Solano, a Chinese waiter with some friends, and the youngsters practice baseball, playing until dark. One of the youngsters is sent to pass a paper to a mysterious stranger. As a result of Brockett's cipher, the ball player and Solano are engaged by government for mysterious mission. Brockett, mysterious Japanese, and Chula are taken to a mysterious trap. A fight follows, Brockett coming out on top. Messenger McKane coming to the rescue, McKane was one of the mysterious cipher in a ball player. McKane returns to headquarters and reports to Baron Solano his belief in the cipher. McKane's report is the start of a series of events. The secret cipher, also reports to the baron, Brockett and Solano have encountered with the baron in which the cipher comes out in second place. Brockett and Solano arrive in Jersey City, make appointment to meet McKane at the Iron Man baseball manager. Brockett and Solano are taken to a Chinese hotel. The place was rescued by a white man. The place was a refuge found to be a trap. McKane arrives in Chicago, the messenger is robbed by a Chinese man. The baron assists in recovering the stolen papers. The messenger and the stolen papers are found in a safe. The messenger and the stolen papers are found in a safe. The messenger and the stolen papers are found in a safe.

whoop scared the boys. Hence it can hardly be considered startling or even remarkable to find good games in full blast upon the Rio Grande—games which may not be played with big league skill but which are filled with liveliness and pepper, loud outcries and troubles for the umpire. The second game of the great series between the fourth cavalry and the common citizens promised to be the warmest battle seen on the banks of the big river in several moons. While the cavalry had won the first contest 17 to 9 on heavier hitting, the common citizens—war correspondents and camera artists in the main—had been reinforced the night before the second tussle. Two litle, sinewy youngsters had blown into camp, asserting that they had some small, unimportant business with the commander. As that official had temporary business at San Antonio, the boys had been made welcome and given quarters while awaiting his return. Baseball, of course, had been one of the earliest topics of conversation, and the newcomers showed intense eagerness to break into the game. As anyone outside of army circles is eligible and the common citizens were short-handed, the new arrivals were promptly drafted into service. Brockett was detailed to guard centerfield, while Ramon Solano was listed for third base. Both youngsters, while wild to have at least one day of diversion, were modest and diffident when asked to play, and declared that they didn't want to crowd any other fellows off the team. It was explained, however, that Sanborn, the estimable war correspondent of the New York White, had counted himself out with a charley-horse, while Summerson, Kodakman of the Chicago Blitzard, had been stung by a scorpion—not seriously, but squarely on the right wrist, disabling him from further baseball duties. That left two vacancies, and the appearance of the boys was a blessing to the common citizens' array.

CHAPTER XXIII.—(Continued.) "No, son, they don't look that way, and they ain't," gurgled the delighted Mr. Morgab. "What's more, there never was no man-entip dawgs used ter chase nobody, not even niggers. In the old slavers days, when a nigger run away, the thing to do was tub catch him, but not tub kill him. Kill a $1,000 nigger? Son, that would be plumb idiotic, wouldn't it? The bounds was simply used tub foller him, to catch him, an' make a rascal till the hunters could come up an' get the man."

"In Cuba," put in Solano, "the Spaniards used real bloodhounds, and these ones too, to run down and kill the Indians."

"Well," assented Mr. Morgab, "that would be plumb duffant. An Injun is a different beast from a nigger. Your nigger was mighty valuable—you had to look out for his hide. Your Injun was mighty dangerous, an' better deal than livin'." See the difference, sonny? Tell me, whar did you pick up that pepper trick?"

"Cuban scheme," explained Solano. "In the Ten Years' war, my father and his friends threw the Spaniards off the trail a dozen times that way."

"Great idea," quoth Mr. Morgab. "I don't bear you boys the least it will fer it—but somebody's got tub make good for them dawgs, an' I reckon it'll have tub be the German."

Brockett and Solano warmed up with real delight when the teams were summoned to the field. They had found friends—a loyal crowd of newspaper men and photographic experts—and the minor officers of the regiment had likewise extended them a warm welcome. The polo grounds, as the troopers proudly styled the ball yard, was somewhat humpy in places, and rather diversified with cactus in others, but everybody concerned had seen far worse arenas for the game. Grandstand, there was none, but long lines of cracker boxes, boot cases and brush heaps afforded sitting room while hundreds of the enthusiastic

CHAPTER XXV. It doesn't take long for a crowd of husky athletes to traverse the distance between the home plate and centerfield. As Brockett disappeared behind the mesquite, half a dozen ball players, with a yell of surprise and rage, dashed across the diamond. It was less than half a minute before they reached the point where the baserunner had last been visible, but all that they found was Brockett himself, still mixed up with the coils of a lariat, his shirt half torn off, the waistband of his trousers ripped, and his pockets inside out. His assailants, however they might have been, had vanished into the chaparral and the crackling of the underbrush gave evidence that they were rapidly widening the distance between themselves and the avenging cavalry. "What was it?" "Who roped you?" "Are you hurt?" the players chorused, as they picked up the ruffled but unharmed centerfielder. Brockett freed from the tangling rope, shook himself made an effort to readjust his torn clothing, and then sat down on the grass, rocking with laughter. "I'm not hurt," he explained, between spasms of merriment. "But I think somebody's feelings will be injured. Somebody is going to be badly stung."

"Your belt is gone!" cried Solano. "Yes. That's the best part of it, gurgled Brockett. "Half an hour before the game, not wishing to be too heavily weighted, I took my money, my packets of letters—everything of any value or any weight—and placed them in the safe at headquarters. The captain of Company E fixed it all up for me. That took two or three pounds and a lot of bulk off my waist, and gave me a chance to work more freely. Whoever assailed me wanted that belt. They jerked me in among these bushes, flung me on my face, and went through me in less than five seconds' time. And they got the belt, they got the belt, and ran away with it!" Brockett again collapsed with laughter.

"Didn't you see them at all, my boy?" questioned the chaplain. "No, sir," Brockett replied. "They jerked me in here so fast I had no chance to turn, and then laid me face downward, so that I couldn't see them. They didn't even speak, but robbed me and were gone before I could even roll over and look after them. It was finely done—just the way the wild west melodramas used to have the Mexican villain lasso the heroic cowboy."

"Didn't they get anything besides the belt?" asked Solano. "Yes, they did." And again Brockett was convulsed. "They got a nice set of nonsensical messages and false ciphers that I put in four hours constructing on the train. I hope they get rich with their plunder."

An old trooper, a veteran of the plains, had pushed a short distance into the camp while this conversation was going on. "There was three of 'em, sir," he ears open—all tell me that no Japanese gentlemen have been seen in this vicinity." Solano snorted significantly. "That may be—but did it ever occur to you that the average Chinaman looks very much like the average Japanese? And there are quite a few Chinamen along this river, so I'm told."

The boys looked out of the tent and gazed upon the dreary panorama of brush, rock, sand and turbid river. Then, smitten with the pang of excellent appetites and remembering an invitation to the eating-place of the war correspondents, they stepped over the threshold. A Mexican—poorly clad, miserable of appearance, intercepted them.

"I beg pardon, señores." "I'll tell it in Spanish, if you can't in English," said Solano, amiably. The Mexican at once started a brief, but energetic oration in the Castilian tongue, and wound it up by pressing a soiled piece of cardboard into Solano's hand. "He says," interpreted Solano, "that he was a poor peon, very much in debt; that he had saved a little money, and took a gambling chance to-day by staking it on the ball game. Says he got five to one for his money. He says that the catch you made saved him; that he can now not only pay off his debt, but that he will be quite a rich man, for Mexico. Just to express his gratitude he also says that his brother, Juan Torrejon, is a very noted bad man on the Mexican side of the river, and that if we should ever encounter Mr. Torrejon the rard he has just handed me will recommend us quite highly to his good graces. Very civilized of the gentleman, isn't it?"

"You can never tell. That card may be more than useful yet. Let's hurry along to supper."

Diplomacy in Small Things. Little Eloise Cave aged seven years, was visiting her grandmother in Madison, Va. and was sent to carry a saucer of ice cream to a neighbor. By the exercise of infinite care she conveyed her burden safely to the house and gave it into the hands of the lady for whom it was intended. The lady, however, was less careful than Eloise had been and dropped the saucer and broke it.

"You shouldn't mind about that," said the little diplomat without an instant's hesitation. "I don't think grandmamma has a cup to match the saucer. If she has I will go right home and break it myself."—Popular Magazine

Accelerated Brain Activity.

In the early days of Wisconsin, two of the most prominent lawyers of the state were George H. Smith and I. S. Sloan, the latter of whom had a habit of injecting into his remarks to the court the expression, "Your honor, I have an idea." A certain case had been dragging along through a hot summer day when Sloan sprang to his feet with his remark, "Your honor, I have an idea!" Smith immediately bounded up, assumed an impressive attitude, and in great solemnity said, "May it please the court, I move that a writ of habeas corpus be issued by this court immediately to take the learned gentleman's idea out of solitary confinement."—Popular Magazine reported to the captain of Company C. "Two was Mexicans, one a cheap fellow that didn't amount to much, and the other a vaquero, with new, high-heeled shoes, and a new black velvet jacket. His arm caught on some thorns, sir, and here's a bit of the goods. The third one was a little man—at least, his feet were very small—and he wore regular city shoes. That's all the trail tells, sir. I suppose they had horses the other side of this brush, and are a long ways from here by now."

"Six troopers rode out, beating the chaparral, but with little hope of overtaking the lasso-throwers. The triumphant common citizens and the defeated cavalry returned to camp, exchanging much persiflage, and mapping out the preliminaries for the third game of the series. Brockett and Solano, assigned to a comfortable tent, started a debate as to the identity of their latest adversary.

Business Judgment.

It is a strange thing how some sollicitors from out of town can go into this or any other village and get three-quarters of the business men for an advertisement in some kind of a book or paper scheme, which so far as the benefit to the merchant is concerned, is like money thrown away.

E. J. Hines And County Roads.

When E. J. Hines was first appointed a member of the Board of County Road Commissioners, there was not a mile of good country road in Wayne county.

It is not enough that a man should be good in a merely negative way, he must make good and this we feel Hines has done and in substantiation of this assertion, he is willing and anxious to be judged solely by results accomplished.

That which has been said of Mr. Hines' ability along this line, is also true of William F. Butler, who is a candidate for re-election as a member of the Board of County Road Commissioners.

The Detroit News claims to be astonished because Mayor Thompson's campaign manager wanted a man given a job at the water board office, because he was able to deliver 100 votes.

WEDEMEYER IS VERY CONFIDENT

And Sees No Anti Sentiment in Second District.

Congressman W. W. Wedemeyer of Ann Arbor, reports that in his canvass for re-election, he has found little or no anti-sentiment against himself, and that whatever adverse sentiment there is in other spots on the ticket, there is none manifest so far as he is concerned.

Mr. Wedemeyer has been progressive enough for anyone, and should receive the endorsement of both the Republicans and Progressives. He has voted for every progressive measure, introduced in congress during the last session and he also voted against the Reciprocity measure, therefore the farmers who are still fighting mad about that measure, need not feel anything but friendly towards their present congressman from this district.

HUGH SHEPHERD PROSECUTING ATTORNEY

Hugh Shepherd was appointed to the office of Prosecuting Attorney of Wayne county on the 4th of October, 1911, to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of the previous incumbent. Since that time Mr. Shepherd has devoted every moment of his time to the duties devolving upon him. The city and county have been rid of the Loan Sharks, who were fleecing the public out of thousands of dollars. The vice den of the city have been put out of business, and little girls saved from ruin. The medical quacks and fakers who operated upon the innocent citizens have been suppressed, as a result of which large sums of money, and unlimited suffering have been saved to our poor people. Over five hundred slot machines and gambling devices that were teaching young boys to gamble have been seized and confiscated. Cases implicating certain Detroit aldermen in corrupt practices have been vigorously prosecuted, with the result that twenty-one such cases have been bound over to the Recorder's Court for trial.

Since Mr. Shepherd has been in office he has surrounded himself with a capable staff of assistants, regardless of political affiliations, and has insisted that all persons accused of crime be given a speedy trial, with the result that the present criminal docket is free from all old cases, and cleaned up to date.

Mr. Shepherd is running entirely on his record as a public prosecutor, and if you approve of his manner of conducting his office, he earnestly solicits your vote at the coming election on Tuesday, November 5th.

Well Deserved

The Praise That Comes From Thankful Northville People.

One kidney remedy has known merit. Northville's people rely upon it. That remedy is Doan's Kidney Pills. Northville testimony proves it reliable.

J. W. Kator, Northville, Mich., says: "A year ago I began to have trouble from my kidneys and I was caused much misery, by pains across the small of my back. The kidney secretions were irregular and painful in passage and led me to believe that my kidneys were out of order. Hearing about Doan's Kidney Pills, I began their use and in a few weeks I was completely cured. I consider Doan's Kidney Pills an effective medicine for kidney complaint and I do not hesitate to recommend them."

The above statement was given in November, 1906, and on March 31, 1909, Mr. Kator said: "I can still recommend Doan's Kidney Pills and I have no objection to the continued publication of my testimonial. The cure this remedy made in my case has been permanent."

We omitted to mention the name of Oswald Wilcox as one of the violin players in the High school orchestra, in one of last week's items.

Miss Ethel Lauray returned to her duties as teacher in the school near Power's station Monday, after a two week's illness with pleurisy of the heart.

Myron White has received news of the death of his brother, Lafayette White, in a Soldiers' Home in New York. Mr. White was formerly a resident of this place.

Miss Rachel Obadwick of Detroit and Edward Bogart of this place are two of the four nominees for the office of secretary of the Junior class of the Ypsilanti Normal.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Saville and family have moved to Detroit, where they will make their home. Northville people are very sorry to lose such desirable citizens from their midst.

The members of the Ladies Aid Society of the Baptist church were entertained at the home of Mrs. Scott near Newburg at an all day session on Wednesday of this week.

The following men have been sent out in the interests of the Northville Fish station, A. T. Stewart to Charlevoix, Bert Phillips to St. Joe, Ward Cook to Detroit, and Carl Hogie to Grand Haven.

A block system has been installed here by the D. U. R. Under this system, a red light burns at the foot of the hill on south Main street, showing the car following that there is already a car up town, and the former is forced to wait until the block is removed before coming up town.

The Progressives claim that they had 200 out to their meeting week before last. The Record reporter only counted 125 during Judge Hislop's speech but there may have 75 more come after that. Anyhow we give the Moosey's the benefit of the doubt and place the number at 200.

A neat surprise was perpetrated on Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Schrader last Friday evening, by the members of the First 509 club. Shields, Mrs. Joseph Ames, Howard Ames and Miss Mable Lyons of Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. James Savage and Mr. and Mrs. Milton Brown and children of this place were also present.

The entertainment given by the Northville band on Wednesday evening of this week was a very enjoyable affair. Selections by the full band were directed by Prof. Chaffers, under whose instruction they have made much progress. Mrs. J. Butterfield of Washington and Leola Keyon rendered vocal solos in a very pleasing manner, while a novelty act was introduced by Louis Fair and Lisle Alexander in the way of a comic dialogue, with appropriate costumes and makeup. A tub solo by L. E. Ball, vocal solo by Ray VanValkenburg and several selections by the band quartet completed an unusually fine program. Additional music was furnished by the High school orchestra. Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury

Mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and acts in the blood. Sold by Druggists, price 50c per bottle. Hall's Family Pills are the best. —Advertisement.
