DAN ROGERS DIED SATURDAY

LIVED NEAR NORTHVILLE MANY YEARS.

Funeral Held Tuesday, Rev. E. E. Webber Officiating

Daniel Rogers died at his farm home four miles north-east of this village, last Saturday morning of heart disease. He was 79 years old. Deceased was born on the John Powers' farm west of Novi, in 1834. Seven years later his parents moved to the farm where Mr. Rogers has lived ever since. Nearly everyone in and about town was acquainted with him and there are many friends who will regret his death.

Deceased leaves a widow to mourn his death. The funeral was held from the late home Tuesday afternoon, Rev. J. E. Webber officiating. Interment in Yerkes cemetery.

THE MASONIC PARTY.

The annual Washington birthday ball under the auspices of the Masonic order and Eastern Stars has always been one of Northville's pleasant social events. This season's ball of Feb. 21 will be no exception to the rule. Invitations are being prepared and will be sent out within a few days at the direction of members of the above societies.

DEAL VANAKEN WEDDING

Miss Orie VanAken and Garry Deal were united in marriage by Rev. R. M. Pierce at the home of the bride, Wednesday morning. Immediately after the ceremony they left for a visit with relatives in Kalamazoo and other cities. Both are well known among the young people of our town and their many friends extend their best wishes. It is expected that they will soon return to Northville, where they will make their home.

I wish to thank the members of the Quality club and of the King's Daughters for the flowers sent me during my recent illness. MRS. RAY RICHARDSON.

EACH ONE WON ONE OF GAMES

PRESBYTERIANS AND METHODISTS IN A DEADLY BASKET BALL GAME.

The Senior Game Was Cracker Jack From Start To Finish.

The basket ball games played in the rink Wednesday evening were fast and furious, with the Presbyterian boys matched against the Methodists.

The preliminary was played by the Junior teams of these societies, resulting in a score of 12 to 7 in favor of the M. E.'s. This is the first of his series of games to be played by these 15 year old teams. Others will be played on future dates. The Senior teams of both churches were pretty evenly matched. Score keeping was pretty difficult as first one side and then the other would gain the lead. Good guarding and swift passing of the ball were the features of both teams. The Presbyterians managed to obtain three more points than the Methodists, the score being 31 to 28 in the former's favor.

Not a very large crowd was present, due no doubt, to the inclement condition of the atmosphere. Door receipts were $11.00 and after the expenses are paid each church receives one-half of the remainder. The Presbyterians will devote their share to the fund for pulpit furniture, while the M. E.'s goes to swell the piano fund of the Epworth League.

The line-up of the Senior teams was as follows:
Methodist: Presbyterian:
G. Johnston E. Bogart
D. Miller L. Alexander
F. VanValkenburg E. Montgomery
F. Wilkinson A. Power
R. VanValkenburg R. Sampson
Referee—Mr. Pierce of Farmington

B. M. ENROLLMENT ONLY TWENTY-TWO

THAT MANY NEW ONES HAVE BEEN ADDED HERE.

Progressives Now Have an Enrollment of Just Fifty-one.

To show that the Bull Moose's really mean business there was the tremendous crowd of 22 to enroll as National Progressives here January 25. Inasmuch as there was 29 previously enrolled, their total reaches 51. Yet at the last November election that party cast a vote in Northville of about 200 average. The probability is that not enough Progressives enrolled in Wayne county to put up a ticket at the spring election. In Northville township however the required 25 per cent is enrolled and that party can now put up a township ticket and it is said that they are planning to get in the race with a good strong one from Supervisor on down to constable.

It is understood that the Democrats seeing the prospects of a nice three cornered fight will also get in the game with more vim than usual and real lively political times are in prospect with the coming of the spring plowing.

The Republicans are said to be in a quandry as to who they will put up for Supervisor but Jud Lansing seems to be the favorite thus far and he could easily win out if the party is not all split up.

Adepts, who make a business of burgling, learn sooner or later in some way, of people who are suspected of keeping considerable sums of money or valuables, about their home or on their person, and this often leads not only to robbery, but murder. CHAPTER I.

An Unpleasant Situation.

When, late in May, 1868, Major Daniel McDonald, Sixth Infantry, was first assigned to command the new three company post, established southwest of Fort Dodge, designed to protect the newly discovered Cimarron trail leading to Santa Fe across the desert, and, purely by courtesy, officially termed Fort Devere, he naturally considered it perfectly safe to invite his only daughter to join him there for her summer vacation. Indeed, at that time, there was apparently no valid reason why he should deny himself this pleasure. Except for certain vague rumors regarding uneasiness among the Sioux warriors north of the Platte, the various tribes of the plains were causing no unusual trouble to military authorities, although, of course, there was no time in the history of that country utterly devoid of peril from young raiders, usually aided and abetted by outcast whites. However, the Santa Fe route, by this time, had become a well-traveled trail, protected by scattered posts along its entire route, frequently patrolled by troops, and merely considered dangerous for small parties, south of the Cimarron, where roving Comanches in bad humor might be encountered.

Fully assured as to this by officers met at Fort Ripley, McDonald, who had never before served west of the Mississippi, wrote his daughter a long letter, describing in careful detail the route, set an exact date for her departure, and then satisfied all was well arranged, set forth with his small command on the long march overland. He had not seen his daughter for over two years, as during her vacation time (she was attending summer school on the Hudson) he traded her home with an aunt in Connecticut. This was the aunt who, in Europe, not expecting to return until fall, had the father had happily counted on having the part with him once again in Kentucky. Then, coming his sudden, unexpected transfer to the Andalusian division to take her to him there. Why not? As the command of this small light-armed force, and the world through which they were to travel, was a new and unexplored one, and the only hard-earned privilege would be the long drive from Ripley. This, however, was an altogether pardonable (and, moreover, as enough surely, but without special danger and he could doubtless arrange to meet her there at Kansas City, or, as one of his officers for that purpose.

This was the situation in May, but by the middle of June conditions had greatly changed throughout all the broad plains country. The spirit of savagery had spread rapidly from the Platte to the Rio Pecos, and finally a wild tribe remained disaffected. Arapahoe, Cheyenne, Pawnee, Comanche, and Apache alike espoused the cause of the Sioux, and their young warriors, breaking away from the control of older chiefs, became ugly and warlike. Devere, isolated as it was from the main route of travel (the Santa Fe stages still following the more northern trail), heard merely rumors of the prevailing condition through traveling hunters, and possibly an occasional army courier yet soon realized the gravity of the situation because of the almost total cessation of travel by way of the Cimarron and the growing insolence of the surrounding Comanches. Devere, from the small garrison were, under urgent orders from headquarters at Fort Wallace, kept constantly scouting as far south as the fork of the Red river, and then west to the mountains. Squads from the single cavalry company guarded the few caravans venturing still to cross the Cimarron desert, or bore dispatches to Fort Dodge. Thus the few soldiers remaining on duty at the home station became slowly aware that this outpost of savagery was no longer a mere tribal affair. Outrages were reported from the Solomon, the Republican, the Arkansas valleys. A settlement was raided on Smoky Fork; stages were attacked near the Caches, and one burned, a wagon train was ambushed in the Raton pass, and only escaped after desperate fighting. Altogether the situation appeared extremely serious and summer promised war in earnest.

McDonald was rather slow to appreciate the real facts. His knowledge of Indian tactics was exceedingly small, and the utter isolation of his post kept him ignorant. At first he was convinced that it was merely a local disturbance, and would end, as suddenly as it began. Then, when realization, finally, came, it was already too late to stop the fight. She would be already on her long journey. What could he do? What immediate steps could he hope to take for her protection? Ordinarily he would not have hesitated, but now a decision was not so easily made. Of the command scarcely thirty men remained at Devere, a mere infantry guard, together with a small squad of cavalrymen, retained for courier service. His only remaining commissioned officer at the post was the partially disabled cavalry captain, acting temporarily as adjutant, because incapacitated for taking the field. He had waited until the last possible moment, trusting that a shift in conditions might bring back some available officer. Now he had to choose between his duty as commander and as father. Further delay was impossible.

Devere was a fort merely by courtesy. In reality it consisted only of a small stockade hastily built of cottonwood timber, surrounded in partial protection a half dozen shacks, and one fairly decent dog house. The situation was upon a slight elevation overlooking the ford, some low bluffs, bare of timber but green with June grass to the northward while in every other direction extended an interminable sand-desert, ever shifting beneath wind blasts presenting as desolate a scene as eye could witness. The yellow flood of the river, still swollen by melting mountain snow, was a hundred feet from the stockade gate, and on its bank stood the local cavalry stables. Below, a scant half mile away, were the only trees visible, a clump of cottonwoods, and across the face of the bluff and across the flat ran the slender ribbon of trail. Monotonous, unending, lay, it was a desolate picture to watch after day in the hot summer.

In the gloom following an early night the two officers sat together in the single room of the dining, a candle guttering on the table behind them, smoking silently or moodily discussing the situation. McDonald was alone and he had built his own little hut, built by hand, a fine month, while the Captain was of another type, tall, with dark eyes and hair. The latter he chance opened the important topic.

"By the way, major, he said carelessly, 'I guess it is just as well to stop my daughter from coming out to this hole. Lord, but it would be an awful place for a woman.'

But I didn't, returned the other moodily. I put it off too long."

Pat it off! Good heavens, man,

"Damme, I haven't thought of anything else for a week."

didn't you write when you spoke about doing so? Do you actually mean the girl is coming—here?"

McDonald groaned.

"That is exactly what I mean, Travers. Damme, I haven't thought of anything else for a week. Oh, I know now I was an old fool even to conceive of such a trip, but when I wrote her, I had no conception of what it was going to be like out here. There was not a rumor of Indian trouble a month ago, and when the tribes did break out it was too late for me to get word back east. The fact is, I am in the devil of a fix—without even an officer whom I can send to meet her, or turn her back. If I should go myself, it would mean a court-martial."

Travers stared into the darkness through the open door, sucking at his pipe.

"By George, you are in a pickle," he acknowledged slowly. "I supposed she had been headed off long ago. Haven't heard you mention the matter since we first got here. Where do you suppose the lass is by now?"

"Near as I can tell she would leave Ripley the 18th."

"Humph! Then starting tonight, a good rider might intercept her at Fort Dodge. She would be in no danger traveling alone for that distance. The regular stages are running yet, I suppose."

"Yes; so far as I know."

"Under guard?"

"Only from the Caches to Fort Union; there has been no trouble along the lower Arkansas yet. The troops from Dodge are scouting the country north, and we are supposed to keep things clear of hostiles down this way."

"Supposed to—yes; but we can't patrol five hundred miles of desert with a hundred men, most of them dough-boys. The devils can break through any time they get ready—you know that. At this minute there isn't a mile of safe country between Dodge and Union. If she was my daughter—"

"You'd do what?" broke in McDonald, jumping to his feet. "I'd give my life to know what to do!"

"Why, I'd sent somebody to meet her—to turn her back if that was possible. Peyton would look after her there at Ripley until you could arrange."

"That's easy enough to say, Travers, but tell me who is there to send? Do you chance to know an enlisted man out yonder who would do—whom you would trust to take care of a young girl alone?"

"The captain bent his head on one hand, silent for some minutes.

"They are a tough lot, major; that's a fact, when you stop to call the roll. Those recruits we got at Leavenworth were mostly rough necks—seven of them in the guard-house tonight. Our best men are all out, with a wave of his hand to the south. 'It's only the riff-raff we've got left, at Devere."

"You can't go."

The captain rubbed his lame leg regretfully.

"No, I'd risk it if I could only ride, but I couldn't sit a saddle."

And my duty is here, it would cost me my commission."

There was a long thoughtful silence, both men moodily staring out through the door. Away in the darkness unseen sentries called the hour. Then Travers dropped one hand on the other's knee.

"Dan," he said swiftly, how about that fellow who came in with dispatches from Union just before dark? He looked like a real man."

"I didn't see him. I was down river with the wood cutters all day."

Travers got up and paced the floor.

"I remember now. What do you say? Let's have him in, anyhow. They never would have trusted him for that ride if he hadn't been the right sort."

He strode over to the door without waiting an answer. "Here, Carter, he called, 'do you know where that cavalryman is who rode in from Fort Union this afternoon?"

A face appeared in the glow of light, and a gloved hand rose to salute.

"He's asleep in 'B's' shack, sir," the orderly replied. "Said he'd been on the trail two nights and a day."

"Reckon he had, and some riding at that. Rouse him out, will you? Tell him the major wants to see him here at once."

The man wheeled as if on a pivot, and disappeared.

"If Carter could only ride," began McDonald, but Travers interrupted impatiently.

"If But we all know he can't. Worst I ever saw, must have originally been a sailor." He slowly refilled his pipe.

"Now, see here, Dan, it's your daughter that's to be looked after, and therefore I want you to size this man up for yourself. I don't pretend to know anything about him, only he looks like a soldier, and they must think well of him at Union."

McDonald nodded, but without enthusiasm; then dropped his head into his hands in the silence a coyote howled mournfully not far away; then a shadow appeared on the log step, the light of the candle flashing on a row of buttons.

"This is the man, sir," said the orderly, and stood aside to permit the other to enter.

CHAPTER II.

"Brick" Hamlin.

The two officers looked up with some eagerness, McDonald straightening in his chair, and returning the cavalryman's salute instinctively, his eyes expressing surprise. He was a straight-limbed fellow, slenderly built, and appearing taller than he really was by reason of his erect, soldierly carriage; tall of waist, broad of chest, dressed in rough service uniform, without jacket, just as he had rolled out of the saddle, rough shirt open at the throat, patched, discolored trousers, with broad yellow stripes down the seams, stuck into service riding boots, a revolver dangling at his left hip, and a soft hat, faded, sadly, crushed in one hand.

The major saw all this, yet it was at the man's uncovered face he gazed most intently. He looked upon a countenance, browned by sun and alkali, intelligent, sober, heavily browsed, with eyes of dark-gray rather deeply set; firm lips, a chin somewhat prominent, and a broad forehead; the light colored hair above closely trimmed; the cheeks were darkened by two days' growth of beard. McDonald unclosed, then clenched his hand.

"You are from Fort Union, Captain Travers tells me."

"Yes, sir," the reply slow, deliberate, as though the speaker had no desire to waste words. "I brought dispatches; they were delivered to Captain Travers."

"Yes, I know; but I may require you for other service. What were your orders?"

"To return at convenience."

"Good, I know Hawley, and do not think he would object. What is your regiment?"

"Seventh cavalry."

"Oh, yes, just organized; before that?"

"The Third."

"I see you are a non-commissioned corporal."

"Sergeant, sir, since my transfer."

"Second enlistment?"

"No, first in the regulars—the

He was a straight limbed fellow.

Seventh was picked from other companies."

"I understand. You say first in the regulars, that means you are a volunteer, is that right?"

"Three years, sir."

"All? His eyes brightened instantly."

"Then how does it happen you failed to try for a commission after the war? You appear to be intelligent, educated."

The sergeant smiled.

"Unfortunately my previous service had been performed in the wagon, uniform, sir," he said quickly. "I was in a Texas regiment."

There was a moment's silence, during which Travers smoked, and the major seemed to hesitate. Finally the latter asked:

"What is your name, sergeant?"

"Hamlin, sir."

The pipe came out of Travers' mouth, and he half arose to his feet.

"By all the gods!" he exclaimed. "That's it! Now I've got you placed—'you're 'Brick' Hamlin!"

The man unconsciously put one hand to his hair, his eyes laughing.

"Some of the boys call me that—yes," he confessed apologetically.

Travers was on his feet now, gestulating with his pipe.

"Damn! I knew I'd seen your face somewhere. It was two years ago at Washita. Say, Dan, this is the right man for you; better than any fledgling West Pointer. Why, he is the same lad who brought in Lujan—you heard about that?"

The major shook his head.

(TO BE CONTINUED)

Looking for Owner of Fingers.

A farmer near Kansas City, Mo., is looking for the owner of a couple of fingers he has in his possession.

He went to market with a load of potatoes and started to sleep in his wagon during the night before market opened. He was disturbed by the moving of the canvas over the load and, waking, saw a hand slip beneath the canvas and abstract a couple of the tubers. The operation was repeated so many times that he could foresee nothing but the disappearance of the entire load unless he took summary action. Raising a sharp hatchet he had with him, the farmer smote the hand the next time it appeared and the next morning found two guilty fingers in the wagon. The remainder of his potatoes were not molested.

English "Society."

There are three classes of society in England—the aristocrats, who are barbarians; the middle class, who are philistines; and the dregs of society, who are nothing at all. It is a funny thing that the late King Edward, who had all the vices of the aristocrats, was beloved by the middle class, and that his son, King George, who has all the virtues of the middle class, is despised by the aristocrats. He and the queen are always spoken of as George and the Dragon.

Most men make good loafers who can't make good at anything else.

ADRIANOPLE SHELLED

Fierce Bombardment by 400 Guns
Deafening Death to City.

A terrific bombardment of the forts around Adrianople was begun Monday evening by the Bulgarians and Servians surrounding the city, to the number of over 100,000. Almost at the moment of the conclusion of the armistice at 7 o'clock siege guns and field guns from various points commanding the forts opened fire. Not even the residential part of the city was spared.

There is considerable difference of opinion as to how long the fortress will be able to hold out. One dispatch from Mustafa Pasha which reported that heavy cannonading continued throughout the night, concluded with the prophecy, made by the Bulgarian staff that two weeks would suffice for the besiegers to force the Turks to capitulate.

Military men, however, who know something about the general lines of forts which form the defenses of Adrianople for the outer ring which the besiegers have been facing since the war began is connected with and supported by other circles of forts just as strong—look for a prolonged defense by the besieged garrison.

The boarding house of Mike Kaimak in Battle Creek was partially destroyed by dynamite, which was placed under the kitchen. Although 21 men, a woman and two children were in the house, no one was injured. Mike Luked, Joe Golec and Joe Passo are held on suspicion. This is the latest development in the vendetta between two Austrian factions of the city. Sunday night Joe Bobvick was stabbed by Louis Lishore and the latter was shot by Jake Bobrick, a brother of Joe.

Owosso officers are searching for a man who they declare has been having a number of "four" boys cash worthless checks for him.

INCOME TAX ASSURED BY WYOMING'S O. K.

UNEXPECTED ACTION BY WESTERN LEGISLATURE COMPELS NECESSARY RATIFICATION OF CONSTITUTION.

FOUR STATES OF 40 WHICH PASSED ON ACT TURNED IT DOWN.

Will Produce Revenue of $100,000,000—Likely That Act Will Affect Income of More Than $5,000, Possibly $4,000.

An income tax is now one of the provisions of the constitution of the United States.

Wyoming's ratification of the income tax amendment—the sixteenth change in the constitution and the first since the reconstruction—completed a list of 36 states—three-fourths of the union, which have approved the provision.

Congress now will enact a law to levy the tax and it probably will become effective during the extraordinary session to be called by President-elect Wilson in March. The tax itself, its provisions and limitations are, all left to congress.

The new law probably would supersede the corporation tax and provide for a tax on all incomes above $5,000, although there has been some sentiment in favor of making the limit as low as $4,000. Congressional leaders, who have been preparing for the final ratification by the states, estimate an income tax would bring in about $100,000,000 a year to the government. Now that the act is provided for, the proposed income tax framed by demagogic leaders in 1912 to meet the supreme court's decision which held a former income tax unconstitutional, will be dropped and some of its provisions may be included in the new law.

West Virginia ratified the amendment last week. One house in New Jersey and one in New Mexico have approved it. Wyoming's ratification was, however, unexpected at the time.

PASSES SIX YEAR TERM

Senate Takes Action That Will Shut Out Teddy, Taft and Wilson

The first step was taken in the senate toward the adoption of a constitutional amendment fixing the term of president of the United States at six years and making the chief executive ineligible to succeed himself.

By a vote of 47 to 23, the worst single term resolution was adopted by the senate. The advocates of the reform succeeded in mustering just two more than the necessary two-thirds.

Under the terms of the resolution as it passed the senate, Colonel Roosevelt, Mr. Taft and Woodrow Wilson are eliminated from the field of possibilities for the presidency in future contests. The resolution, if it should be ratified by three-fourths of the states before the expiration of Mr. Wilson's term will, however, have the effect of adding two years to his tenure, giving him a six instead of a four year term.

The resolution now goes to the house and the likelihood is that it will be passed by that body by a more decisive vote than resulted in the senate.

2,000,000 Britons to Strike for 8 Hours.

A resolution calling for an eight hour day for all classes of workmen and work-women was adopted by the Trades Union Congress, at which over 2,000,000 British workmen and women are represented.

The agitation for an eight-hour day without any overtime has been in progress for some time under the auspices of the parliamentary committee of the Trades Union Congress, whose intention is to gain an eight-hour day or 48-hour week for every member of every union allied with the congress. This means practically all the organized labor in the United Kingdom.

The miners already have an eight-hour day fixed by the law, but outside of London nearly all workmen have longer hours of labor.

Fears that the number of seats for the republican state convention to be held in Lansing on Feb. 11 might be nearly exhausted have been allayed by the selection of the Coliseum on East Ottawa street instead of the Gladstone theater as originally planned.

The Michigan State Dairy men's association and the state ice cream manufacturers will hold their annual convention in Saginaw this week.

A reward of $1,000 has been offered for the capture of Phillip H. Galvick, who is alleged to have defrauded Charles McGinn, of Kalamazoo, out of $25,000 through a mortgage.

State Dairy and Food Commissioner James W. Helms will be in Muskegon Sunday.

"From your drugist get half ounce of Globe Pine Compound (Concentrated) and two ounces of Glycerine. Take these two ingredients home and put them into a half pint of good whisky. Shake well and use in doses of one to two teaspoons after each meal and at bedtime. Smaller doses to children according to age. But be sure to get only the genuine Globe Pine Compound (Concentrated) and Glycerine. Each half ounce bottle comes in a sealed tin screw-top case. If your drugist does not have it, he will quickly get it. Many mixtures are of large quantity and cheap, but it is risky to experiment. This formula comes from a reliable doctor and is certain. This was first published over six years ago and local drugists say it has been in constant demand ever since. Published by the Globe Pharmaceutical Laboratories of Chicago.

WHY THE MEAL WAS HALTED

Nothing Seriously Wrong, but Old Gentleman Had Some Trouble With the Elusive Onion.

An aged country couple, on the urgent invitation of a grandson who lived in the city, were on for a visit. The grandson's wife was very anxious that the first meal should be one which the aged couple would enjoy after their long ride in the train, and accordingly the table groaned under its burden of good things to eat.

In the course of the repast she noticed several times that the old man seemed to be making little progress with the meal.

"What is the matter, grandfather?" she asked, "don't you like my dinner?"

"No, no, grandfather," mumbled the old man, "it isn't that. Only I've a pickled onion in my mouth, and I can't get but one tooth left, so it's harder'n Sam Hill to catch it, it's so lively. Just rest easy a spell till I get a holt on it and I'll be all right!"

Good Cause.

"Will you donate something to a good cause?" said the caller, as he held a paper on the business-man's desk.

"What is it?" asked the business-man.

"One of the tenants in this building killed a book agent this morning," replied the caller, "and we are taking up a subscription to reward him."

"Put me down for $10,000," replied the business man.

To Pop Corn.

Very often corn will not pop quickly, even over a very hot fire. If you will put the corn to be popped in a sieve and pour cold water over it, not allowing the water to stand on the corn, it will not only pop quickly, but the open kernels will be larger and lighter and more flaky than they otherwise would have been.
