P. M. OFFICIALS ORDER FORENOON TRAIN SOUTH TO STOP

Good Showing of Village President Convincing Company of Their Error

Village President Schrader, Mr. Richardson, Mr. Harmon, Mr. Stumpson had a conference Saturday morning in Detroit with General Manager Frank Alfred of the Pere Marquette and after a good friendly talk and showing the injustice being done the town, Mr. Alfred said he thought the company made an error in putting Northville on the no stop for the 10:21 train south, and told Mr. Schrader that an order would immediately be issued to have the morning train make a regular stop and that as soon as the block system was completed between Plymouth and Detroit that the 2:23 p. m. train south would also stop.

This seemed satisfactory to the committee for the present at least and the meeting ended with a general good feeling all around.

UNION SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC

SPECIAL CARS GO TO ORCHARD LAKE WEDNESDAY, JULY 16.

The Sunday schools of Northville are to hold their Union picnic at Orchard Lake next Wednesday. Preparations are under way to make this picnic an unqualified success. Every one who attends will be assured of a royal time. Every member of the churches and Sunday schools are urged to cast aside their cares and be on hand for a good time. An earnest invitation is extended to every one to attend. The committee asks that this be a community rather than a church affair. There will be athletic sports of all kinds; peanut scramble for the little folks; potato races for the boys; running race for the girls; a 50 yard dash for the church officers; championship tug of war and a baseball game to decide the Sunday school championship. Another big drawing card along the entertainment line is the Northville City band which will accompany the picnickers for the purpose of furnishing music during the day.

A sufficient number of cars have been secured to carry all of Northville, if necessary. Children under 12 years of age will be carried free; fare for others will be 30 cents for round trip. Cars will leave Northville at 9 o'clock returning about 6 o'clock that evening. Tickets will be on sale at Murdoch's and Brock's stores. Secure them as soon as

Strange.
It is strange that so many men make fools of themselves when there are so many others who desire to do the job for them.

for the next hatching season.

Moreover, the old hen, having no mate with which to flirt and waste her time on, will put in all her time and energy in egg production. She will produce more eggs without Mr. Rooster than with, and these infertile eggs will not rot. To our poultry keeping friends let us again say with emphasis "as soon as the hatching season is over Swat the rooster." It may save you a fine and costly. It will likewise have a great moral effect on the prevention of the profanity which occurs when a rotten egg blows up. It will be especially appreciated by stock companies in country towns. Remember, it is the old rooster that produces all the rotten eggs."

SATURDAY NIGHT IN NORTHVILLE

The program of street contests for the evening of the Fourth was postponed on account of rain, till tomorrow, Saturday evening. Be on hand early. You will miss something if you don't.

LOSE ANOTHER SON.

Within the two weeks past Mr. and Mrs. Lester Cook have been bereft of two sons, grown to manhood. The youngest son, Louis, died at their home here June 17, at the age of 20 years. On Wednesday of last week another son, Czar, died in a Detroit hospital from an operation for appendicitis. He was 35 years of age and made his home in Detroit, with his wife and two small children, one of whom underwent a similar operation just previous to his father's illness.

Mr. Cook's body was brought to his parents' home here last Thursday by Mr. Sofradet, and the funeral was held Friday afternoon, Rev. J. E. Webber officiating.

"SWAT ROOSTERS" SAYS MR. HELME

STATE FOOD COMMISSIONER'S REMEDY FOR BAD SUMMER EGGS.

Kill Chanticleer in June and Sell to Summer Resorts.

With the advent of hot weather, State Dairy and Food Commissioner Holme has turned his attention to bad eggs and in a special bulletin sets forth his ideas as to their cause. Dealers are warned that the sale of questionable eggs comes within the provisions of the pure food and drug act.

The bulletin follows:

"With the season of hot weather, comes also the season of rotten eggs. The food laws of Michigan do not permit the sale of rotten eggs any more than they permit the sale of rotten meat or vegetables. Persons who sell rotten eggs are just as amenable to the food laws of the state as persons who sell other decayed food. From its construction, however, decay in the egg is not so easily discovered as decay in other food stuffs."

"Why does an egg rot? It is because it is a fertile egg. Eggs that are not fertile do not rot. A hen can sit three weeks on infertile eggs and every one at the end of that time will appear like fresh eggs. Infertile eggs will dry up but they will not rot."

"What causes a fertile egg to rot? The fertile egg has in it the germ of life in a dormant state. When the temperature of that egg is raised above 35 degrees, incubation starts and the germ proceeds to take on life. If the temperature of that egg afterwards falls below 95 degrees, the germ is chilled and dies. It becomes a dead chicken in embryo. Putrefactive processes set in, or, in common terms, the eggs rot. One good hot day in summer will start thousands of eggs to incubation. Unless consumed within a short time these eggs will rot. A setting hen 12 hours on the eggs will do the same. This is why we have rotten eggs in hot weather. In the spring the days are not warm enough to start incubation."

"When we remember that only fertile eggs rot, the remedy for rotten eggs is simple. Produce none but infertile eggs during the hot months. This can be easily accomplished by removing the rooster from the flock. After the middle of June the hatching season is past. The old rooster is of no further utility in the flock. Then is the time to swat the old rooster. It is an economic waste to feed him further. He will bring a higher price than at any other time. Make chicken pie of him or sell him to the summer resort. Anyway, swat him. The little chicks will produce nothing

NORTHVILLE, MICH., JULY 11, '13

POOR TELEPHONE SERVICE.

The poor, very poor telephone service handed out to Northville people may be largely attributed to inadequate equipment. The Bell company is attempting to take care of 500 or 600 subscribers here with switch board facilities for about 300. With possibly 20 cord connections to take care of 40 calls at one time, it is necessary for about half of the subscribers calling to wait, and those who have to wait from one to ten minutes to get a party, know how exasperating it is, and especially after the previous years of prompt service. Northville people have been enjoying. The operators here are doing the best they can, but that is no excuse on the part of the Bell company for giving such abominable service. The company had no sooner bought up the Independent companies here than they commenced to raise rates. They not only added to the rental rates but also the toll rates to Detroit was boosted from 15 cents, up to 20 cents, but the service was decreased, not only locally but to Detroit as well, to such an extent that the mail or street car or going on foot is just about as serviceable. It is understood that in Detroit the operators have about 40 per cent more subscribers put upon them than they can promptly handle and in consequence the service is crippled to a large extent. In Northville the major part of the trouble is in shortage of equipment. The company should have known that a new switch board could not be secured on a moment's notice.

Governor Perris is to be congratulated upon the splendid selection he made in appointing Harry Coleman of Pontiac on the new State Board of Correction, board for Bay City. Mr. Coleman is the enterprising editor of the Pontiac Press-Gazette and his good business judgment will be of great value to the new institution. He served on several state boards with much credit under Governor Warner.

Automobile owners showed remarkable (?) enterprise in Northville's Fourth of July parade. Six out of six showed up.

Anyhow it was a sane Fourth. No one drunk, no one hurt, no noise.

Evidently people do not care so much for horse races.

There is such a thing as too quiet a Fourth.

Nature.
The best definition of Nature is perhaps Mill's in his "Three Essays on Religion." In that most able and interesting work Mill says: "Nature is a collective name for all facts, actual and possible, or a name for the Mode, partly known to us and partly unknown, in which all things take place." Continuing, Mill says: "The nature of a thing means its entire capacity of existing phenomena. As the nature of any given thing is the aggregate of its powers and properties, so Nature, in the abstract, is the aggregate of the powers and properties of all things."

"Improved" Bull Fight.
A bull fight in Tokio is quite as much excuse for a gala day as a full fight in Madrid. Business men leave their offices, and women and children their homes, to hurry to the arena, stripped of all the less exciting, or less horrible, preliminaries which characterize the Spanish bull fight; the animals are brought in and sent at each other at once. So the battle is shorter, and two or three more fights will follow in quick succession during the course of an afternoon's entertainment."

Eggnog for Invalids.
Separate the yolk from the white of an egg, beat the yolk thoroughly, and then beat the white to a froth, add a teaspoonful of sugar, a trifle of salt. Stir these into the yolk and add the white. Add enough milk to the glass and stir. Add either rum or one-half spoonful of sherry. The salt offsets the flavor of the egg.

[Poem composed and given by B. Zalewski, one of the graduates of the Northville High School, on commencement night.]

FACING THE WORLD.

The hours, the days, the years, have passed and lo! We stand where cross-roads, leading onward, lie Our childhood joys that used to come and go. The busy life at school, are all gone by.

Sad and hopeless, we leave them behind;

For there is life before us full and rich;

We hear a call that urges us to find And meet our fate, the goal we ought to reach;

Like little birds in the nest, free from care,

Safe we lived—our wings not fully grown yet;

But now the world we are to face and dare;

To fly alone, our course and work to set;

It was our right to take the true and good;

We lived, because the giver for us cared;

Because there was a helping hand we stood;

The loving hand that guided when we errred.

For what we are and have, we owe to mother's care and father's toll and treach;

It was their love that could on us bestow;

So many gifts—shall we that love forget?

We have but learned to open eyes to light;

And yet the rays of knowledge fall within;

Their active, radiant force our minds makes bright;

Clearing the view they render vision keen.

A wider field of action we must take;

And step by step, climb up to greater height;

Our lives must build the future, and awake;

The world wide sense of living true and right;

Farewell, dear childhood play, the school farewell;

We take with us sweet memories of all;

In our hearts, man's, woman's thoughts must dwell;

A larger school extends to us its call.

MOLLY McDONALD

A TALE OF THE FRONTIER

By RANDALL PARRISH
Author of "Keith of the Border," "My Lady of Doubt," "My Lady of the South," etc., etc.

Illustrations by V. L. BORRAS

SYNOPSIS

Major McDonald, commanding an army post near Fort Dodge, seeks a man to protect his daughter, Molly, from her father, the Indian out-breaker, Sergeant "Brick" Hamlin, who has threatened to kill her. Major McDonald sends his son, Sam Watson, to recruit Hamlin, who has been discharged from the Confederate service. Hamlin, at the close of the war, enlisted in the regular army. He suspects one Captain LeFevre of being responsible for the desertion of Troops A and C, and he has been sent to recruit them. Major McDonald's plan is to have Hamlin leave to rejoin his regiment. He returns to Fort Dodge after a summer of fighting Indians, and finds Molly there. She is heard in the darkness and falls over the body of Lieutenant Gaskins, who accuses Hamlin of shooting him. The sergeant is proven innocent. He saves Molly's life, and they are married. Hamlin is promoted to Captain and McDonald is promoted to Major. They are attacked by Indians, and Hamlin kills one of the best men who ever lived, a friend of mine, Sam Watson."

"Who?"

"Sam Watson, a government scout."

Molly dropped his face into his hands.

"Good Lord! I knew him!"

The Sergeant drew a deep breath, and into his face there came a look almost of sympathy.

Then you begin to realize the sort of fool you are," he went on soberly.

They don't make better men out here; his little finger was worth more than your whole body. But killing you won't bring Sam back, and besides I reckon you've told me the straight story, an' his shooting was an accident in a way. Then you're more use to me just now alive than you would be dead. My name is Hamlin, sergeant Seventh Cavalry, and I am here after that mab LeFevre. We trailed his outfit from Dodge until the storm struck us, and then came straight through traveling by compass. I did not know the man's name then. LeFevre until you told me; up in Kansas he is known as Dupont."

That's it; that's the name he took when he sold the cattle."

The officer robbed and killed was Major McDonald, and it is his daughter they hold. The fellow Dupont surrendered with and shot was a deserter named Connor. We found the body. Now where do you suppose LeFevre is?"

Hughes stared into the fire, nervous, as if pulling his beard.

"Well, I'd say in West yere somewhere along the Cimarron. Taipn't like he had a compass, an' the wind was from the northeast. Best they could do the ponies would drift. The Indians would keep the general direction, o' course, storm or no storm, ev' Gene is some plainman himself, but that blizzard would sheer 'em off all the same. I reckon they're under the banks ten mile, er more, up that. An' soon as there's a change in weather, they'll ride fer Black Kettle's camp. That's my guess, mister."

Hamlin turned the situation over deliberately in his mind, satisfied that Hughes had reviewed the possibilities correctly. If LeFevre's party had got through at all, then that was the most likely spot for them to be hiding in. They would have drifted beyond doubt, further than Hughes supposed, probably, as he had been sheltered from the real violence of the wind as it raged on the open plain. They might be fifteen, even twenty miles away, and so completely drifted in as to be undiscoverable except through accident. What course then was best to pursue? The storm was likely to continue violent for a day, perhaps two days longer. His horses were exhausted, and Carroll helpless. It might not even be safe to leave the latter alone. Yet if the frozen man could be left in the hut to take care of himself and the ponies, would there be any hope of success in an effort to proceed up the river on foot? He could make Hughes go—that wasn't the difficulty—but probably they couldn't cover five miles a day through the snowdrifts. And, even if they did succeed in getting through in time to intercept the fugitives, the others would possess every advantage—both position for defense, and horses on which to escape. Hughes, lighting his pipe, confident now in his own mind that he was personally safe, seemed to sense the problem troubling the Sergeant.

"I reckon I know this kentry well enough," he said lazily, "ter give yer a pointer or two. I've rounded up longhorns west o' yere. Them fellers ain't goin' to strike out fer the Canadian till after the storm quits. By that time yer ponies is rested up in better shape than theirs will be, and we kin strike cross to the sou'west. We're bound either to hit 'em, or ride cross that trail."

"But the woman!" protested Hamlin, striding across the floor. "What may happen to her in the meanwhile?"

She is an Eastern girl, unaccustomed to this life—a lady."

"Yev don't need worry none 'bout that. Ef she's the right kind she'll star more'n a man when she has to. I reckon it won't be none too pleasant long with Gene an' them Cheyenne bucks, but if she's pulled through so far, that ain't nothin' special goin' ter happen till they git to the Indian camp."

"You mean her fate will be decided in council?"

"Sure, that's Cheyenne law. LeFevre knows it, an' ol' Koleta would knife him in a minute if he got gay. He's a devil all right—the ol' buck—but he's afraid of Black Kettle, an' that won't be no harm done to the ing in his heart—hope that he might yet write from LeFevre a confession that would clear his name. He knew his man at last—knew him, and would track him now with all the skillless ingenuity of a savage. Once he could stand erect, abashed or disgraced, a man again among men, he would ignore the uniform of the ranks, and go to her with all the pride of his race. Ay, and down in his heart he knew that she would welcome his coming; that her eyes would not look at the uniform, but down into the depths of his own."

The Sergeant walked over to the fire, and stared down into the red embers, striving to control himself. He realized the truth of all Hughes said, and yet had to fight fiercely his inclination to hasten to her rescue. The very thought of her alone in those ruthless hands was torture. There was no selfishness in the man's heart, no hope of winning this girl for himself, yet he knew now that he loved her; that for him she was the one woman in all the world. Her face was in his memory, the very sighing of the wind seemed her voice calling him. But the real man in him—the plainman instinct—conquered the impetuosity of the lover. There must be no mistake—no rash, hopeless effort. Better delay, than ultimate failure, and Hughes' plan was the more practical way.

"Good Lord! I knew him!"

The Sergeant drew a deep breath, and into his face there came a look almost of sympathy.

Then you begin to realize the sort of fool you are," he went on soberly.

"They don't make better men out here; his little finger was worth more than your whole body. But killing you won't bring Sam back, and besides I reckon you've told me the straight story, an' his shooting was an accident in a way. Then you're more use to me just now alive than you would be dead. My name is Hamlin, sergeant Seventh Cavalry, and I am here after that mab LeFevre. We found the body. Now where do you suppose LeFevre is?"

Hughes stared into the fire, nervous, as if pulling his beard.

"Good Lord! I knew him!"

The Sergeant drew a deep breath, and into his face there came a look almost of sympathy.

Then you begin to realize the sort of fool you are," he went on soberly.
