THE CATCH EGGS AT U. S. FISH STN.

LIONS LITTLE GLOBULARS NOW IN HATCHING.

Artificial Process Beats Nature in All Except Bass Hatching.

The annual egg-sorting is now in progress at the U. S. Fisheries here, employing for several weeks twenty or more women, besides a force of eight men and extra employees under the supervision of Superintendent Will H. Fifty-three million lake eggs have been gathered from Great Lakes and these must all be sorted by hand and the fertile ones, which are easily distinguished by their color—removed. The eggs are all the time in running water, the pickers being used to pick out the good ones, and the hatching takes place in running water. Of the enormous amount of eggs handled, about fifty per cent are supposed to hatch, when left to natural processes, only about ten percent would come "little fishes in the brook."

In the case of white fish eggs the culture business has still greater perfection, as artificial propagation delivers the goods to the amount of fifty per cent as with the lake fish, while if left to nature only ten per cent of the eggs is estimated to bring forth the living product.

The Detroit branch a hundred and seventy-five million white fish eggs have already been secured and are now in the process of hatching.

The white fish eggs are subjected to an entirely different method of sorting and hatching, as it is an interesting and peculiar fact that nature does not duplicate her own process of reproduction of the various species of the fish tribe.

The pisciculturist has been taught by generations of study and experiment that this variety of eggs is sorted by placing them in jars, the infertile eggs sink to the bottom and the fertile ones float to the top and are subjected to conditions to which they are subjected and are siphoned off several times a day.

The hatching of the eggs handled by the commission takes place in March and April, and the planting is begun in May.

If artificial methods, however, have been proven thus superior to natural ones in regard to the two varieties of fish mentioned, in case of bass fishing Mother nature has it all.

THE DAY AFTER

over the culturist, as these fishes have to be allowed to follow—of course in this case with all the scientific assistance that can be applied—their own natural bent for the reproduction of their kind.

They must be surrounded by conditions as nearly like their normal environment as possible for their nesting, fertilizing and hatching. In a case of "every lassie has her fiddle," although some times polygamy is practiced and one male has two females in his home. They guard their spawning beds day and night and there is always some one "at home" to give visitors a warning to keep off the premises during this period. The bass also protect their young up to a certain age, when they become cannibalistic. The care and disposal of the bass forms one of the most interesting phases of the fish culturist's work.

They begin spawning in April and upwards of 500,000 of the small-mouth variety will be hatched out at the Northville hatchery the coming spring. In the big ponds the two hundred or more nests will be protected by tube shaped wire screens about two feet across reaching a little above water. After the little fellows are hatched out they are where they are given a rearing for several weeks before being turned loose in Michigan's inland lakes and streams.

Even at Engle Sam's big hatchery here "polygamy" in the bass propagation is carried on and quite often one male fish is allowed to have to lady fish in his house and the three seem to get along as nicely as in the other fish houses where only a single couple dwell.

LOST FINGERS ON GROOVE SAW

RAY LANNING WAS CAUGHT IN BAD ACCIDENT LAST WEEK.

Surgeon Thinks He May Possibly
Save the Thumb.

Toe groove saw at the Union Mfg. & Lumber Co's factory got in its work late Friday afternoon. The victim was Ray Lanning. While sawing, the board split knocking his left hand to one side and thus directly under the saw. The four fingers were cut off near the hand and the thumb partially severed. He was taken to Dr. Turner's office where the wounds were dressed and the thumb sutured back in place in hopes of saving it.

The Union Mfg. Co. is protected by accident insurance and the insurance company will settle with Lanning under the state laws which give him a fixed amount for the loss of the fingers besides an allowance for several weeks as a sick

THE PEOPLE WILL DECIDE

It is sometimes objected that the subjects selected by preachers are not of interest. Rev. R. M. Pierce will preach on the six most popular subjects in this list, beginning January 1. These will be evening sermons. Mark the six subjects that you wish to hear discussed and mail the list to the pastor or place same on the plate next Sunday, or hand to one of the ushers. The six most popular subjects will be printed in this paper, when counted, and will be preached upon in order of popularity, beginning Sunday night, January 4. A victrola will play each night.

HUFF'S PENNY VOTE CONTEST WINNERS

The winners in the Huff penny vote contest are placed below in the order of their winning. The exact count is displayed on the bulletin board at the store and will be published in the Record next week.

Northville Presbyterian Ch.	$75.
Northville Methodist Ch.	$45.
Northville Baptist Church	$25.
St. Mary's Catholic Church	$15.
Novi Baptist Church	$10.
Northville German Lutheran Ch.	$10.
Northville High School	$5.
Novi Methodist Church	$5.
Knights of Pythias	$5.
King's Daughters	$5.

The contest closed Wednesday night and from all reports the last few days of the contest drew forth a very heavy count. The general Christmas trade and the paying of store accounts, old and young, as the closing days drew near, made an unusual demand for vote coupons.

As a beneficial contest for all concerned and the manner in which it was conducted, this penny vote affair was the best that has ever been attempted in this part of Michigan.

O. E. S. TO GIVE NEW YEARS BALL

HELD IN THE RINK EVENING OF
DEC. 30. COLORED ORCHESTRA
DETROIT TO FURNISH MUSIC.

The order of Eastern Stars will give the annual New Year's ball, in the rink Tuesday evening, Dec. 30. The party could not be arranged for New Year's eve, as it was impossible to secure music for that time.

Shook's colored orchestra of five pieces, formerly known as Finney's, will be on hand to furnish the music. Northville people have enjoyed their music at more than one party on previous occasions and it is sure to be enjoyable this time. A buffet luncheon will be served to the guests at 11 o'clock.

The members of the O. E. S. are supposed to all be present without invitations.

CALENDARS.

The 1914 Record calendars will be ready for distribution to its subscribers tomorrow, Saturday. Please don't send children. We have a very limited amount of them and of course those who come first will get them.

Another Sure Cure.

Wood Violets

In a far distant corner of the exhibition hall a woman stood before a painting. Her hands hung loosely clasped, her head was bowed in reverie. As she looked at the picture the color faded from her beautiful, care worn face.

"Wood Violets," she repeated. There was a little catch in her voice as she whispered the name of the artist, the name of him who embodied for her all the mystery and meaning of life. Pressing her hand to her bosom she dropped upon the settee with a tremulous sigh.

Her mind spanned the years to the time when she and the painter had been sweethearts. She saw the glowing, ferny bank; the winding brook; heard its gentle purr, saw the dewy violets lifting their faces in the twilight. She saw a tall dark-haired youth picking a bunch of those violets, saw him lift them to his eyes and heard him whisper that they were like them. And then their lives had met. The ecstasy of that first love ten evenings comes back to her, its sweetness. He had faithfully reproduced it on the canvas.

Before long this picture passed and another took its place. A wedding party, the bride, young and fair, with face as white as her wedding robes, the groom, not the lover of bygone days, but a middle-aged, stern-looking man. Her young and innocent face and mirth had captured his fancy and she had bartered herself for gold. She had sacrificed truth and honor, and, as she soon found, her happiness as well.

She learned, however the hardest lesson in life—of concealing an aching heart behind a smiling face. With the coming of her child something like peace had crept into her heart. Then, shortly afterward, her husband had died and she was free.

She heard nothing of her young lover. She knew, however, that he had left the old home, had first gone to New York to study art, and then to Europe. Now he had returned and they had met. The country youth had become a famous painter, a strong, virile man replaced the lover of her maiden days.

But now the pictures of the past had disappeared. Other scenes glided across the mirror of her thoughts. Hope and longing painted them. Presently a tall, fair girl stepped to the woman's side.

"Are you ready to go now, mamma?" she asked.

"I'm on a puzzling moment," the woman said, as she looked at the girl. "I'm not sure whether I should go now or wait until the painter comes. I'm not sure whether I should go now or wait until the painter comes. I'm not sure whether I should go now or wait until the painter comes."

The days and weeks passed quickly after that morning in the exhibition hall. The painter was not in, and the woman's heart was torn. The water grew more and more spring, ungentled into summer. The city became hot and oppressive and the thoughts of the cool garden country filled their minds. To the woman came the desire to visit again the old home where she had lived in girlhood days.

In early June she and her daughter journeyed out to the country. The painter followed and took up his abode at a neighboring farmhouse. His visits to the old home were more frequent than his visits to the city. No evening or evening passed but that he and the woman sat on the porch and talked for a bit of work, or for a chat after night had fallen.

One beautiful evening the woman was standing on a little knoll beside the house looking far into the valley. The air was soft and cool and filled with the sweet perfumes of the helix. Vast steamers of red and gold floated in the western sky. The woman's face was alight with the wonder and radiance of a love dream.

As she stood there her daughter came running up like a flushed bird, shining. At her bosom was a bunch of violets.

"Oh mamma!" she cried, nestling close and laying her head on her mother's breast. "What do you think? I have been down in the garden with Mr. Worthing. He wished to know the scene of his painting. And oh mother, knowing her arms around the older woman's neck, he loves me. Yes, he loves me and he wants me to be his wife. I—I am so happy, mother."

A silence lasted for many minutes. Then the woman lifted the sweet girl's face and looking into the deep eyes, pressed her lips to her daughter's burning cheek.

"I am glad my darling that you are happy," she said.

The golden light of sunset had died from the western sky leaving it pale and gray and cold. The woman shivered in the warm summer air. Her eyes, in which the old weakness had returned, looked down at the violet-wood violets at her daughter's breast.—MARIA HENDERSON.

SELLS HIS BLOOD AT BARGAIN RATE

Man Charges $10 to Give Up 15 Ounces of Life Fluid to Save Boy's Life.

PATIENT'S FATHER CLOSES DEAL.

Transfusion Operation Is Made as Soon as the Bargain Between Buyer and Seller Was Struck—Man and Boy Eyed Each Other During Operation.

New York City.—Human blood went at bargain-counter prices in Bellevue Hospital when for $10 a guest of Mills Hotel No. 2 sold fifteen ounces of his life fluid, thereby probably saving the life of John Denison, 15 years old, a patient suffering from malignant growth on the right leg. There was nothing heroic about the manner in which the man sold his blood. It was purely a business proposition. The Mills Hotel man needed the ten-spot and felt he could spare the blood. The father of the patient, though poor, felt he could spare the $10 in view of his son's need for the fresh blood.

Striking a bargain between buyer and seller was easy. Denison's father went to Mills Hotel No. 3 and announced he was in the market for human blood. He explained that his son was in Bellevue Hospital and that the surgeons were anxious to transfuse the blood of a healthy person into the body of the boy.

"The doctors want a strong man who is healthy in every way," the father explained.

A guest registered as Mark Owen, who refused to tell anything further about himself, stepped forward and remarked he would like to know more about it.

Big, broad-shouldered, with the glow of health in his cheeks, he looked as if he would pass the test of the physician.

"I guess you'll do," said Denison's father.

"How much blood do you want?" asked Owen.

"Fifteen ounces."

"How much do I get?"

"Ten dollars."

"I'm your man," and the bargain was struck. The rate was $2.50 cents an ounce.

Up to Bellevue Hospital marched Denison's father. The surgeons examined the man who was willing to sell his blood for $10. They found him to be a healthy man and that he was a good specimen of the race.

He was given a transfusion of blood from his arm into the boy's leg. The operation was successful and the boy's condition improved.

AWAITED DEATH IN DESERT.

Body of B. T. Pratt, Dead from Hunger and Thirst, Found in California.

Los Angeles, Cal.—"Water, if I could only find water! I'm suffering terribly from hunger. To-day I ate some green brush, but I can't go any more. I wonder how long it will take to die."

These entries in the notebook of B. T. Pratt, whose body was found on the desert in Inyo county by two prospectors, give pathetic evidence of the suffering the man underwent as he watched the approach of death far from human habitation. The diary also was found by G. W. Lewis and S. B. Shattuck, the prospectors while on a trip through the Argus Mountains in Inyo county. Pratt had been dead nearly two months. He was evidently trying to reach the mountains, where he knew he would find food of a sort and water in abundance, but within sight of his refuge he gave out and could go no further. Pratt was sixty years old. The entries in the notebook were scribbled and began only when the man found he was in danger of dying.

"Food gave out to-day; guess I can make Argus," was the entry for August 3, on the day after he had started to cross the desert. "Water gone," told the story of the following days.

For one whole day he went without water or food, but maintained an optimistic spirit, as is witnessed by the following entry for August 6:

"Signs of water about half mile ahead. There will be green stuff there too. Will reach it early in the morning." But evidently the desert was playing tricks on him as it so often does by means of a mirage. Two days later came the two entries quoted first. The last entry reads:

"I left Grapeville Inyo county, Cal., July 28. Tom Spratt told me I would perish. I thought I could make it, but got lost so guess I will have to give in. I have no water, nothing to eat and can't walk. I have brothers, C. H. Pratt at Banner Springs, Wendell county, Kan.; E. B. Pratt in St. Louis and W. R. Pratt, Custer county, Wyo."

LONGEST AUTO FRIGHT LINE.

Car Will Carry 27 Passengers and 10 Tons of Freight.

Spokane, Wash.—What is believed to be the longest automobile freight line in the world, a trip from Spokane to Los Angeles, will be made by a car carrying 27 passengers and 10 tons of freight.

The car, a 1913 model, will be loaded with 10 tons of freight, including 5 tons of coal, 5 tons of lumber, and 5 tons of other goods.

The car will be driven by a single driver, and will be accompanied by a guard.

The trip will take about two weeks, and will be a record for the longest automobile freight line in the world.

PETE, TAME MUSKRAT IS DEAD.

Careless Gunner Shoots Strange Pet of Farmer's Family.

Swinefield, N. J.—Wounded fatally by a gunner who had obtained permission to hunt for game on the farm, Pete, a tame muskrat, for five years the chief attraction of Charles Waters' place, crawled from a brook to the feet of his master, looked at him feebly and pleadingly and then died. Instantly there was a rage in the heart of Waters. He ran to the back of the barn and saw the slayer of his pet running across the fields toward Caldwell. When the news of the death of the rodent was communicated to the other members of the Waters family they denounced the shooting as "deliberate murder." Even old Rover, the family dog, dropped his ears when he saw the bleeding body of his playmate, and the cats, which had so many good times sporting with the muskrat in the barnyard and down by the brook at the back of the barn, seemed to understand that some one had committed a crime which never could be repaired. Knowing the muskrat's feeding ground was back of the barn, Waters had expressly stipulated that the gunner should not do any shooting there. If that injunction had been obeyed Pete probably would be alive and well now.

In the spring of 1902 the home of Pete's parents was invaded and he and four other young muskrats were found there. Waters was attracted to Pete and decided to let him live. The others were killed. Pete became a pet in the Waters family. He manifested his appreciation of kindness by becoming as tame and as grateful as a kitten. From the hands of members of the family he ate pieces of tender cabbage lettuce and celery. He seemed to know he never must touch that growing in the garden. Each day he would go to the brook at the back of the barn and dig up and eat flag roots and other water bulbs of which he was exceedingly fond. When he got old enough he built a house near the barn and stored therein his winter supply of herbs and roots. With the approach of winter Pete would retire to his home and only emerge from it on particular warm days. He would spend an hour or two in the house and then return to his snug winter quarters. The sagacious animal was engaged in getting sticks and grass with which to equip his home when he was shot. ## THE COPPER COUNTRY STRIKE.

And still the trouble continues up in the copper country. From the beginning of the controversy the miners have signified willingness to submit their grievances to arbitration only to be met with the old stereotyped phrase "We have nothing to arbitrate."

It would seem, however, as if there surely is something to arbitrate, when, for the preservation of life and property, it becomes necessary for the governor of Michigan to send an entire regiment of soldiers to the scene of disturbance. While, on the one hand, the strikers, in the enforcement of what they consider their rights, are certainly not justified in destroying property or in preventing others, by forcible means, from working, on the other hand the mine owners are going beyond their moral rights in refusing to settle the controversy by a board of arbitration composed of disinterested citizens. The miners involved are not in a situation to pack up their tools and move on, to look for another job.

On the contrary, they are, in the main, owners of their homes, with families dependent upon their daily labor. Naturally, as well as by the obligations of their organization, they resent the bringing in of outsiders to take their places, and by the same rules they can not allow the employment of those who are driven by desperate need to defy the union pledges. The whole matter is a lamentable illustration of the impatient need of some arbitrary legal form of adjustment of the difference between capital and labor which has caused and have previously caused such an amount of suffering, privation and even the sacrifice of human life.

This strike is by no means a matter of local effect only, but touches thousands of people throughout the country. Possibly some of the trouble and expense might have been averted if Governor Larned had, before sending troops, to the copper country, notified the mine owners that on practice must first refer to the submission of the controversy to a peace committee.

Certainly there is need of some legislation here. It is a pity that the law on present laws are inadequate to such problems. A model law is being prepared by the Michigan State Bar Association, and it is hoped that it will be adopted by the Michigan Legislature.

YOUR TOWN

If you don't believe in your own town or city as a home better most respects than any of its neighbors you should move out. Like other places, it has advantages that others have not, and your modesty should not prevent you making that fact known whenever the opportunity presents itself. At home or abroad whether pursuing pleasure or engaged in business, do not neglect to give those with whom you come in contact to understand that you live in a live town populated by enterprising wideawake, go-ahead people, and one that is advancing instead of retrograding. If you can truthfully speak in commendation of the ability of your professional men, the square dealing methods of your merchants, the excellence of your mechanics, the superiority of your churches, schools and public institutions, and industry, energy and sobriety of your citizens, let nothing prevent you from exercising the privilege. You should learn to believe, if you do not already, that we have all these and in addition the best located town, the finest country surrounding it, with the most intelligent class of farmers to be found. If there are any drawbacks it will not be necessary to mention them. The people and newspapers of competing towns will relieve you of that task by attending to that part of it themselves. Strangers seeking locations are always greatly influenced in favor of any town whose citizens are enthusiastic in its praise. No city or town expects to attain prominence over its rivals unless its inhabitants appreciate the excellence and virtues of each other and will collectively spread abroad their faith in the present prosperity and future greatness of their locality. Talk is a cheap commodity but when rightly utilized it can be made effective in many directions and this is one of them.

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 27, 1913.
A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year! A million times these cheering words will be spoken during the Christmas season. Sometimes they will be uttered perfunctorily, but more frequently the wish will be sincere, for in that happy period true friendship speaks from the heart.

When all the strife for personal gain; when poisonous envy and malice; when suicidal jealousy and hate; when all of the pomp and circumstances of place and power; when all of these shall have spent their little hour and been buried in oblivion, real friendship will be fragrant with its blossoms immortal.

I send you the greetings of a sincere friend.

CHAS. E. TOWNSEND.

THE NEW YEAR.

New Year's is a grand, an inspiring occasion, for it is always saturated with hope. We are wont to scoff at and deride it as a day when men make good resolutions only to break them; when they turn over new leaves, as it is called, they merely turn them back again. They want to hope to be better and but few of them are so. They determine to advance, and if they do advance they slip back. Their failures are many, are continuing, and often excite laughter. But it is worth while to determine and decide, to begin and be disappointed then not to de- termine or hope at all.

In other words, don't just claim to think all has passed at Lansing, should be based on whether they are beneficial to the political and of Detroit regardless of the balance of the state.

BIBLE STUDY ON

"CHOOSE YE THIS DAY."

John 3:16—Dec. 28.

"For God so loved the world that He gave His Only Begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

THE closing of the year is properly considered an opportune time for balancing books, carrying forward profit and loss, and determining for the future. We may safely say, however, that no business man can strike a thoroughly satisfactory balance of accounts unless Jesus has been partner and counsellor.

And every one finding himself perplexed and discouraged we would have known how to begin the new year.

By entering into covenant relationship with the Redeemer who declares, "Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden; and I will give you rest."

Today's Study is full of helpful instructions. The very first lesson is that "God so loved the world."

The difficulty in the past has been that we have not emphasized the Love of God. How could we when our eyes of understanding were misdirected by our creeds away from the God of the Bible to a creedal image picturing the Heavenly Father in most Satanic colors—more loveless than any demon we can possibly imagine.

But while we have gotten away from "the doctrine of demons," as St. Paul calls them (1 Timothy 4:1), Christendom still holds up those horribly slanderous creeds before the world, blinding them from getting even a glimpse of "the Love of God," which passeth understanding, and giving them, instead, terrible misrepresentations of Divine justice.

But God's people are awakening to the Truth, and gradually gaining courage to assert it. We are now met with the difficulty that the world has so thoroughly belittled our blasphemy of the Divine character that they can scarcely believe the gracious Message of the Bible—the Message of Divine Love.

Our text illustrates our former blind- ness. It does not say, as we supposed, that God gave His Son to save us from eternal torture. Quite to the contrary, it declares that His mission was to save from perishing. When brute beasts die, they perish. God has made no provision for their resurrection. Man-kind would have likewise perished, had it not been for God's Mercy and provision in Christ.

Because of Jesus' death there is to be a resurrection, not only of the just, but also of the unjust—the unjustified whose eyes of understanding have not yet opened to see the grace of God. "Thine we read, 'As all in Adam die, even so all in Christ shall be made alive.' Since by man came death, by a man also [Christ Jesus] comes the resurrection of the dead."

"Every man in his own order."

"The Better Resurrection."

The chief resurrection to glory here and immortality is only for those called during this Gospel Age, who lay aside every weight and run the race with patience. These saints only will constitute the Royal Priesthood who with Jesus is Royal Chief Priest will bless the world, resurrecting man and from sin and death conditions during His Messianic Reign.

The Divine Plan is purposely so arranged that none can obtain everlasting life except through personal relationship to Christ the Redeemer, and faith in His redeeming blood and obedience to His counsels. This being true, the beaten are yet unsaved. None living before Jesus came into the world are saved.

The great mass of "Testified in Due Time," our friends and neighbors, yea, of our own families are still unsaved, for they have not come into vital relationship with the Savior. "He that hath the Son hath life; he that hath not the Son shall not see life."

"Testified in Due Time."

St. Paul commenting upon the fact that Jesus died a Ransom-price for all, declares that this will be testified in due time. (1 Timothy 2:5, 6) God's due time for the testimony to reach the world evidently has not yet arrived. The testimony began when Jesus "brought life and immortality to light through the Gospel." "So great salvation began to be spoken by our Lord"—Hebrews 2:3.

God has permitted this blindness but declares that under the blessed influences of the Kingdom the true light shall shine everywhere. What a blessed vista this opens before us, on behalf of the poor world! We thus see that God has special grace and blessing for His faithful Church, the saints and we also perceive that He has a blessing for the world, although a different blessing from that provided for the Church. The latter are to have life on the Divine plane, sharers of the glory, honor and immortality of the Master, while the world, by faith and obedience during the Messianic Kingdom, may attain earthly life and perfection, lost by Adam, but redeemed by Jesus at Calvary.

W. R. C. NOTES.

(By the President.)

The retiring president of the Corps wishes to publicly express her thanks to the officers and committees who have so loyally and faithfully and efficiently stood by her during the past two years, and especially during the year just closed, with its many demands on time, ability and loyalty.

The work has been done with unusual efficiency even for an organization more than locally noted for its capabilities along all the lines of its stated activities, and every officer and committee member has had some part in the result.

The writer must always have an especially warm spot in her heart for those officers and committees who have helped her so greatly, and can formulate no better wish for her successor than that she may be as well supported, as well undoubtedly be the case.

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES

Morning subject, "The Lights and Shadows of the Past Year." Evening subject, "A King Crucified." Special music.

Do not forget that the morning service of January 4 is "Family Church Day." We are hoping that many from away will return to be with Father and Mother that day.

We also hope to see the children of the Sunday school present and in the same seat with Father and Mother.

Watch the front page of the Record for my advertisement. The first six Sunday evenings in the new year will be taken up with the most popular subjects chosen from the list in the Record. Mark your six choices and mail or hand to the pastor.

"The King's Own Bible class" will hold its January social meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lyke. Every member of the class is urged to attend.

Don't Wait for the Fatal Stages on Kidney Illness. Profit by Northville People's Experiences.

Occasional attacks of backache, irregular urination, headaches and dizzy spells are frequent symptoms of kidney disorders. It's an error to neglect these ills. The attacks may pass off for a time but generally return with greater intensity. Don't delay a minute. Begin taking Doan's Kidney Pills and keep up their use until the desired results are obtained. Good work on Northville proves the effectiveness of this great kidney remedy.

Mrs. F. S. Fry, West St., Northville, Mich., says: "My kidneys were out of order, and the kidney secretions were unnatural. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they helped me very much. My kidneys soon became normal. I strongly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills because I know that they are a safe remedy and give fine results."

ALSO ROCHESTER HAS BEEN WORKED

EVIDENTLY HAS BEEN EASY, JUST LIKE NORTHVILLE.

Every once in a while, lately, considerably often, a smooth individual blows into the smaller towns and proceeds to promote an entertainment for the benefit of some local church or charity, allowing the locals the privilege of furnishing the talent, expenses and nearly everything pertaining to the show, and the added pleasure of dividing the receipts with the promoter on a basis of 60 and 40, the long end going to the outsider. Rochester, being favorably situated to Detroit where most of the "wise guys" estimate from, has bitten very freely in the past few years, and nearly every time to her sorrow.

Usually the local people, work their heads off to get up the performance, drill the participants for a week or so before the show, when along comes the promoter one or two days before the affair, furnishes a few cheap and inappropriate costumes and vanmooses with 60 per cent of the proceeds, leaving the local talent but a few dollars for their hard work.

The promoter has taken advantage of the public spirit of the people inasmuch as all have to "boost" for the show, the newspapers give the advertising, and the friends of the particular institution which is championing the venture attend whether they want to or not, because it is for their benefit. It is for their benefit, 40 per cent of it is, the balance goes to an individual who goes to the next town with a feeling that there is no profit easier to work, and the writer has personally heard many of their boasts of their success along the line of "working" the people.

We do not know how the people feel about the craft, but we do know that if a show is to be put on for the benefit of any church or charitable institution Rochester has local talent who can handle the same as well as the outsider and, say, by all means turn down the profit and percentage home about to Roger Clayton.

THE GOLDEN AGE AT HAND

Scriptural Evidence That Are Astonishing—No One Can Afford to Be Without the Knowledge.

We do our friends a valuable service when we call their attention to the valuable book entitled, "THE TIME IS AT HAND," in which are given many Scriptural evidences to prove where we are on the stream of time.

"Men's hearts are failing them for fear" and many of the leading thinkers are proposing remedies to better conditions. The Scriptures assure us that man's extremity will be God's opportunity, and this book holds out an anchor to those who fear the wave of unrest now spreading over the world.

The honest heart confesses that it is at a loss for an explanation of transpiring events. While we refer to this as the BRAIN AGE and the Age of ENLIGHTENMENT, nevertheless many realize that we are fast approaching a crisis which is wrapped in darkness owing to the present world wide social, religious and political unrest.
